

Medieval Merriment

The atmosphere is that of a county fair — a fair held in the Renaissance period. See Page 7.

Weather

Partly cloudy, windy and much cooler today, high in mid-60s. Clear tonight with frost likely, low in low to mid-30s. Sunny Saturday, high 65 to 70.

...g injuries

The man who was expected to carry the 'Cats to glory only averages 56.3 yards per game. See Page 7.

Friday
October 2, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 29

Kansas State Collegian

LA quake kills 6, injures more than 100

Anatomy of a Quake

By The Associated Press

Here is an at-a-glance look at Thursday's earthquake in the Los Angeles area:

■ WHEN AND WHERE: The first shock was recorded at 7:42 a.m. local time and was followed by at least 12 aftershocks. The U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park and California Institute of Technology in Pasadena said the quake was centered 15 miles south of Pasadena in the Montebello-South Gate-Downey area at the north end of the Whittier-Elsinore Fault.

■ STRENGTH: Initial reports said the quake's magnitude varied from 5.5 to 6.1 on the Richter scale.

■ DEATHS: Six deaths were reported.

■ DAMAGE: Authorities said there were extensive reports of minor damage within a 20 miles radius of the epicenter of the quake, but there did not appear to be any widespread major damage.

■ WHERE FELT: In addition to the Los Angeles area, the quake was felt 250 miles to the northeast in Las Vegas, Nev., and 110 miles north of the city in Taft. It was also felt throughout San Diego County to the south. The quake was not picked up on seismographs 200 miles to the north at the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plants.

■ HISTORY: Thursday's quake was the strongest in the Los Angeles area since 1971, when the Sylmar quake in the San Fernando Valley northwest of Los Angeles registered 6.4 on the Richter scale. That quake killed 64 people.

Collegian graphic

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A severe earthquake and 16 strong aftershocks rumbled across Southern California on Thursday, destroying buildings, damaging hundreds of houses, closing freeways and setting off dozens of fires. At least six people were killed and more than 100 injured.

The U.S. Geological Survey said the quake registered 6.1 on the Richter scale, making it the strongest to hit the Los Angeles area since the 6.4 Sylmar quake of 1971 that killed 64 people.

The tremor sent thousands into the streets as buildings were temporarily evacuated amid widespread power outages. Landmark buildings dating to Spanish colonial times were damaged, shattered glass and other debris rained into the street, and a tall plume of smoke from a shopping center fire rose south of the downtown area.

Damage was worst in Whittier, the closest suburban area to the epicenter. The quake destroyed 30 downtown buildings, mostly businesses, said J. Sonny Morkus, Whittier's emergency services coordinator. Marsha Andersen, a spokeswoman for Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital, said 50 to 60 people were treated for injuries.

The quake hit at 7:42 a.m. PDT and lasted 15-to-30 seconds, depending on nearness to the epicenter, which was about seven miles south-southeast of Pasadena at the north end of the Whittier-Elsinore Fault. At least 16 aftershocks measuring 3 or more on the Richter scale followed by late afternoon, and more were expected.

Based on its location, scientists are calling Thursday's quake the Whittier Narrows earthquake, said Clarence Allen, professor of geology and geophysics at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

In Whittier's older residential neighborhoods, porches collapsed onto lawns, chimneys toppled, windows were shattered, and most residents sat outside on chairs, afraid to return inside.

"The houses up here in the hills are all a mess," said Denise Huff, 33, of Whittier, whose ceiling caved in. "I'm from Ohio, and I'm going back."

Police Officer Mike Willis said the downtown area in the city of 71,000 "suffered considerable damage. It's been closed off."

Mayor Gene H. Chandler declared a state of emergency and two shelters were established for people to stay overnight. By midafternoon about 100 people had asked to stay in them.

A trip through the city showed hundreds of buildings and houses sustained at least some damage, including at least one collapsed roof. The nearby Whittier Narrows Dam apparently escaped structural damage.

In Compton, 12 miles southwest of the epicenter, spokeswoman Andrea Guy said "major and minor structural damage" was apparently widespread. City Hall was closed after a woman was hit in the head by a chunk of ceiling plaster.

The quake was felt as far away as Las Vegas, Nev., 250 miles to the northeast. It knocked dishes off

■ See QUAKE, Page 12

New airport manager begins Monday

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

The new manager of the Manhattan Municipal Airport, William S. Fogerson, was announced Thursday during a press conference at City Hall.

Fogerson, who begins his new job Monday, replaces Jim Thomas, who resigned after 3½ years in the position, said Bruce McCallum, director of public works.

Before accepting the job, Fogerson was general manager and director of operations for Capitol Air Lines at the airport. He is certified by the Federal Aviation Administration as an airline transport pilot, ground instructor and flight instructor.

"We're particularly excited about his management leadership, executive ability and current knowledge of the airport," said City Manager Mike Conduff.

During the three-month search, one other candidate, Michael L. Dunlap, accepted the manager's job but changed his mind shortly after starting work.

"He (Dunlap) said it would be in his best interest to pursue other opportunities," McCallum said.

Fogerson said one of his first priorities in beginning the $24,000 a year job is raising public awareness about the airport.

"My main thrust is to make our people aware of what the airport does contribute to Manhattan," he said.

Jim Pearson, assistant city manager, said Fogerson will also be working to keep open the FAA flight service station at the airport.

"Keeping open the flight service station has a high priority as to effort, but it's not likely we will achieve it," Pearson said.

The flight service station provides information about local air traffic and weather conditions, Fogerson said. He pointed out that it does not provide air traffic control for the area. Manhattan air traffic is controlled by the flight center for the Kansas City area in Olathe, Kan., Fogerson said.

Manhattan's flight service station is scheduled to close July 1, 1988, as part of an FAA modernization program. Weather information for Manhattan airport, as for all of Kansas will be provided by the Wichita flight service station, Fogerson said.

"The FAA has been talking about doing this for 10 years. But, this is the first year we've seen any of the flight service stations closed," he said.

"We would not be seriously compromising safety at the airport," Fogerson said about the closure of the flight service station.

Pearson said construction of a new terminal for the airport would be another of Fogerson's tasks.

Bicyclist becomes 5th traffic victim in as many days

By The Collegian Staff

A K-State student became the city's latest traffic accident victim Thursday when he was involved in a car/bicycle accident at 14th and Fremont streets.

Breck Barnhart, sophomore in environmental design, was on a bike that was struck by a car driven by Katherine K. Wilson shortly after 3 p.m. Thursday, said Officer Stuart Peck of the Riley County Police Department.

Barnhart was listed in stable condition in the intensive care unit early Friday morning at The Saint Mary Hospital, where he underwent surgery late Thursday night.

Jane Copp, housemother of the

■ See MISHAPS, Page 11

Instructor won't let handicap stop her

Staff/Greg Vogel

Kate Bromley, instructor in speech pathology, demonstrates sign language to her manual communication (signing) class. In the seventh grade, Bromley was diagnosed as being hearing impaired.

By Chuck Homer
Collegian Reporter

Life for the hearing impaired can be filled with frustrations and triumphs. Kate Bromley is hearing impaired, but refuses to dwell on the frustrations.

Diagnosed as being hearing impaired in the seventh grade, doctors identified what had been thought to be a speech impediment, as a hearing loss which is probably genetically connected, said Bromley, instructor in speech pathology.

She said she has refused to let her handicap stifle her drive for success, as evidenced by her attainment of a bachelor's degree in psychology, and a master's degree in administration and supervision. The latter was received under the auspices of the National Leadership Training Program, a federally funded, competitive-selection program.

Bromley devotes much of her time working within the deaf community. She said she credits the discovery of her inner-self and the ability to deal with her own handicap from working with the deaf.

In addition to teaching manual communication (signing) classes at K-State, Bromley also interprets in the classroom for deaf children attending area elementary schools.

"Going to a party and spending the night nodding your head like you understand, but not hearing what is being said, is absolutely frustrating," Bromley said.

"The most difficult aspect of being hearing impaired is the frustration of either misunderstanding or missing critical information in the work or social environment," she said. "The same holds true for listening to music or watching a movie."

Technological advances like Telecommunication Devices for the Deaf (TDD) and captioned television broadcasts have helped to improve the quality of life for the deaf, Bromley said.

"Deafness still remains a difficult handicap to cope with, because we live in primarily an 'auditory' world," she said.

Bromley is adamant about the teaching of sign language to all deaf children.

"There is a school of thought, commonly referred to as oralism, that advocates only the use of lip reading and speaking techniques for the deaf," she said. "It is ridiculous to think a deaf child can adequately comprehend classroom lectures using lip reading as the primary means to assimilate information."

"There are studies indicating that lip reading is only 35 percent to 40 percent effective for even the best lip readers, and that just won't cut it," Bromley said.

The best lip readers are people who are knowledgeable of the English language, she said. English is a second language for the majority of the deaf, and consequently, their ability to effectively read lips is hampered.

Bromley said among her triumphs are designing and building her own home; being nominated as the U.S. "Outstanding Handicapped Postal Employee" for 1987 (Wichita Division); playing the harp, and above all, her work.

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Soviets conduct 2 missile tests

WASHINGTON — Despite U.S. protests, the Soviet Union conducted two tests this week of a new long-range, nuclear-capable missile by targeting an area of the Pacific Ocean about 500 miles north of Hawaii, the Pentagon and State Department said Thursday.

One of the tests was an apparent failure, but the second ended with dummy warheads splashing into the Pacific Ocean closer to U.S. soil than ever before, officials added.

"We protested this," said State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley, explaining the Soviets had informed the United States on Sept. 26 through diplomatic channels of their plans.

Fred Hoffman, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, said the Soviets had originally indicated an intent to "bracket" the Hawaiian Islands with their test shots. The Soviets warned ships to stay away from a large trapezoid-shaped target area about 500 miles northwest of Hawaii and from a smaller, circular area only about 360 southwest of Hawaii.

If the Soviets had fired a missile toward the second target area, it would have actually flown over the 50th state, Hoffman added.

Pat Robertson enters '88 race

NEW YORK — Longtime television evangelist Pat Robertson, confronted by chanting protesters, entered the 1988 Republican presidential race on Thursday with a pledge to "campaign for all people" and be "strong for freedom."

Robertson declared his candidacy from a platform in front of the Brooklyn brownstone where he lived briefly in 1959 when he was a young minister. Two days ago, he resigned as a Baptist preacher and also severed ties to the Christian Broadcasting Network, the religious ministry that made him famous.

Several hundred people, about half of them black, stood in front of the platform and he often had to struggle to be heard over the chants of "Down with Pat." His supporters countered, "We back Pat."

"I don't think these people live in this neighborhood," he said. "We lived here 28 years ago. This is not their neighborhood."

"And I particularly feel," he added, "that every person in America has a right to be heard when they speak."

Robertson became the fourth candidate to officially enter the GOP race. The others are former Gov. Pete du Pont of Delaware, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Florida gun law goes into effect

MIAMI — Worried police departments issued special warnings to officers Thursday as the state's first 100 concealed weapons permits rolled off the presses under a new law allowing most Floridians to carry sidearms.

"I think it's a very stupid idea, a very stupid law, and they should reconsider it," grumbled Miami Officer Frank Pichel before he went on patrol Thursday, the day the law took effect.

The law, which was passed in April after lobbying by the local chapter of the National Rifle Association, eased restrictions on gun permits, allowing anyone to carry a concealed weapon unless they are convicted felons or are incapacitated.

Iraqi warplanes fire on boat

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraqi warplanes fired a missile Thursday at a shrimp boat in the Persian Gulf and killed its Australian captain after Iranian speedboats attacked at least three tankers in 24 hours, sources said.

The 85-foot trawler Shenton Bluff was damaged but didn't sink, said salvage executives who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The trawler is one of 10 jointly owned by the Australian firm Bluff Fisheries and a United Arab Emirates firm, al-Aquilli. The trawlers were on contract to the Iranian government, which charters foreign commercial ships.

The captain, identified as Robert Wellock, was at the helm and died when the missile hit the trawler's wheelhouse, the executives said. They said the other six crewmen survived the attack.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said it was the second fishing boat attacked this week by Iraq.

Earlier Thursday, two Iranian speedboats opened fire with machine guns and rockets on a Pakistani tanker less than 24 hours after attacking two Japanese supertankers, shipping sources said. No casualties were reported in any of the attacks, and damage was minimal.

Shipping sources said they could not confirm reports by radio monitors that a third Japanese tanker had been hit.

'Chow hound' sets blaze

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. — A fire probably started by a hungry dog caused at least $32,000 damage to a house, firefighters say.

The fire was believed to have started on an electric stove top, where a cooked meal of hamburger and potatoes awaited millworker Bill Conklin, said Fire Marshal Mike Hudman.

Apparently, one of Conklin's dogs got to the meal first and, in doing so, pushed a button on the stove that turned a burner on high, he said.

The burner apparently melted the skillet, which then caught a piece of plastic on fire before the wall went up in flames, Hudman said.

When Conklin arrived home Tuesday night, he found the kitchen in flames, Hudman said.

Hudman said family members indicated the dog previously had turned on the stove.

Inmate can eat poppy seeds

DANBURY, Conn. — A federal inmate who was ordered back to prison after eating a poppy seed bagel, which apparently caused him to fail a urine test for drugs, completed his term and was freed Thursday.

Anthony Clarizio was released from federal prison here after he finished his two-year sentence on loansharking and false statement charges, prison spokesman Lee Enzor said.

Clarizio was serving his sentence at a halfway house in Hartford when he failed a drug test and was ordered back to prison Aug. 24. Clarizio said he had eaten a bagel containing poppy seeds, which apparently caused him to fail the urine test.

A condition of his release to the halfway house was that Clarizio not eat poppy seeds.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

STUDENT GOVERNMENT FILING
FORMS are now available in the Union Student Government Office. The deadline is Oct. 20.

CAREER COUNSELING CENTER
Making a Major Decision- Career Life Planning Independent Study for one hour credit. Contact the Counseling Center, 532-6927, for details. The course begins the week of Oct. 5.

EMERITUS FALL DINNER will be at 5:30 p.m., Oct. 8, in the Union Ballroom. Tickets are $7.50 and are due to George Larson, 419 Oakdale Drive, Manhattan, KS 66502 before 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 3. Robert De Bruyn, Master Teacher, Inc., will be the featured speaker.

CHIMES HONORARY PARENTS applications are due at 5 p.m. today in the Union Activities Center.

GOLDEN KEY HONOR SOCIETY deadline for acceptance is Oct. 5.

AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS can be picked up in Anderson 122. They are due Oct. 5.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

WOMEN'S RESOURCE CENTER meets at noon in Union 206. The speaker, Laura Budweg, will talk about women in the Peace Corps.

SUNDAY

ALPHA GAMMA RHO LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8 p.m. at the AGR house. A paddle party follows meeting.

DELTA UPSILON LITTLE SISTERS meet at 5:30 p.m. at the DU house.

MENNONITE STUDENT GROUP meets at 6:30 p.m. at 1116 Blumont Apt. 4.

LUTHERAN YOUNG ADULTS meet at 5 p.m. at St. Luke's Lutheran Church for dinner and a discussion on time management.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

Krystallos
"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"
8855 E. Hwy. 24
(fly the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

HUNAM EXPRESS
FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0896

Michael John & Michelle Joan
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
21st

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
ESTABLISHED 1982
TONIGHT & SATURDAY
GET DANCED!!
-WITH-THAT STATUE MOVED only $1 Cover
TODAY—FREE SANDWICH BAR
Starting at 4
Saturday—Pre-Party with us before the K-State-Tulsa Game starting at 11 a.m.
1800 Clifton 539-9619

TGIF
Free sandwich bar
4-6 p.m.
Saturday
KSU vs. TULSA
Good Luck Cats
Pre- & Post-Game
Parties
Open @ 11:30 a.m.

RIDE OUR STADIUM BUSES!
1800 Clifton

SPAGHETTI SUNDAY
ALL YOU CAN EAT
SPAGHETTI AND GARLIC BREAD!!
ONLY $3.25
SERVING 5-8 p.m.
SUNDAY LUNCH TOO
IKITE'S
BAR AND GRILL
619 N. 12TH, Aggieville

Tonight
Seafood Buffet
All you can eat $11.95
5:30-10 p.m.
Live Entertainment
9 p.m.-1 a.m.
"OVAL TEENS"
(50s & 60s music)

Saturday
Breakfast Buffet
8-10 a.m. only $2.99
75' Wildcattwilly Shots
Live Entertainment
9 p.m.-1 a.m.
"OVAL TEENS"
(50s & 60s music)

University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Piñata
Restaurante
CHILE RELLENOS
In English a Chile Relleno means a "stuffed pepper." Ours is a mild Anaheim pepper stuffed with cheese, breaded, & then deep-fried. We then smother it in chili sauce & melt Cheddar cheese on top. Mmmmm! A lettuce salad and a side of rice, sour cream, & salsa finish the meal. This is a truly special taste treat—only at PINATA!
1219 Blumont (913) 539-3166 Open Daily 11 a.m.

Attention:
Students, Faculty/Staff and Campus Departments
1987-88 Campus Directories on Sale
Beginning Monday, Oct. 5
You'll need the directory to call friends, conduct campus business, use the coupons and yellow page ads, and refer to campus and city maps.
Get your directory at the tables near the Union Travel Board from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, Oct. 5-7.
$1 for students (limit two with student I.D.) and $1.50 for non-students.

•Round Trip Only $1
•Starting at Noon from all locations
Kite's open at 9 a.m. all other locations open at 10 a.m.
IKITE'S
BAR AND GRILL
The Station
RIP & MO'S
new york deli
GO LAST CHANCE
1219 Moro, Aggieville

$500 million loss by phone companies results in crackdown

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Collegian Reporter

AT&T, MCI and U.S. Sprint have begun cracking down on fraudulent users of long-distance access codes after incurring a $500 million loss last year.

Some of those identified as abusers have been given the chance to pay the costs of the long-distance telephone calls that were illegally made, said Bill McHale, director of public relations for MCI Telecommunications Corp. Southwest.

"We are taking civil action when we deem it effective and have gone as far, in some instances, as turning in cases to the authorities and having them dealt with on a criminal level," McHale said.

Quintin Smith, a University of Kansas football player, was arrested and charged with one count of criminal theft of telecommunication last week, according to an Associated Press story.

He was alleged to have used an unauthorized MCI credit card number to place long-distance calls during the 1986-87 school year.

"MCI considers it serious (the yearly loss)," McHale said. "The industry estimates losses of $500 million in a year; although, we feel that the total is decreasing somewhat from previous years."

McHale said he wasn't at liberty to reveal the methods used to identify code abusers, but said long-distance carriers are frequently monitoring the traffic and usage patterns of long-distance calls in different geographical areas.

"Long-distance switches are computers and can indicate patterns that shouldn't be or aren't normally there," McHale said.

Abuse is suspected when patterns and "other indications" of abnormally high usage in any area is revealed.

"Abuses are not confined by any means to college campuses," McHale said. "We've found that most abuses take place in city and community settings where there are large concentrations of people. It makes it easy to pass about, give, and sell long-distance codes."

Supreme Court nominee dealt setback

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Robert H. Bork's Supreme Court chances were dealt a severe setback Thursday when a key Republican senator joined three formerly undecided Southern Democrats in declaring opposition to President Reagan's nominee.

Reagan, far from giving up, said, "I'm working my head off to make sure that we don't lose it."

He said he had talked with Bork by telephone during the day and did not discuss withdrawing the nomination of the federal appeals court judge.

"I'm spending my time working as hard as I can to see that he gets confirmed as he should be," Reagan said.

The latest blows to the embattled Bork came when Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, a key Republican moderate, joined three previously undecided Southern Democrats in announcing they will vote to reject the nomination.

Specter said in a speech on the Senate floor that he was not swayed by a face-to-face meeting with Bork on Wednesday or by concerns of loyalty to party and to Reagan.

"I shall vote against Judge Bork ... because I believe there is substantial doubt as to how he would apply fundamental principles of constitutional law," said Specter, whose vote had been courted by both sides.

"This is a difficult vote since I will be opposing my president, my party and a man of powerful intellect whom I respect and like," Specter said.

He said his objections were the same that he raised repeatedly during Bork's confirmation hearings: the nominee's positions on whether the 14th Amendment guarantees equal protection of the law to women, and on the limitations of freedom of speech.

Word of Specter's decision leaked out earlier after he did not appear for a meeting involving Judiciary Committee Republicans, White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker and Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

Asked why Specter was not present, Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole said, "I think he's going to vote against Judge Bork."

Earlier Thursday, in a rapid flurry of anti-Bork announcements, Sens. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, David Pryor of Arkansas and J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana gave speeches attacking Bork's record — with Johnston declaring Bork's defeat in a Senate confirmation vote inevitable.

"I think there's an inevitability to this vote," said three-term Sen.

Johnston, who is opposing the conservative jurist even though describing himself as "very conservative."

"My guess is the nomination is going to fall apart and they (Senate Republicans) are going to be talking alternatives," Johnston said.

Despite the dampened administration hopes in the South, Reagan and pro-Bork senators showed no signs of giving up — although Senate GOP Whip Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., admitted he had listed Johnston as undecided.

Justice Department spokesman Terry Eastland said the administration privately had written off the votes of Pryor and Sanford beforehand. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a Judiciary Committee member, said it was obvious Bork's opponents were mounting "an orchestrated campaign" of announcements against the nomination in an attempt "to get a steamroller going. Frankly, some of us are a little irritated about it."

Hatch added the loss of Southern Democrats and Specter "is going to make our job more difficult."

However, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "We still feel ... that we have a slight edge; there is still a large undecided vote."

After a White House meeting with Reagan, Dole said, "We feel very good about the Bork nomination." He added, "We don't believe the headcounts advertised by the opposition" — a reference to Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston's figures showing Bork rapidly losing ground.

He told reporters that Reagan "feels very positive about it. He's working very hard on the confirmation process."

Meese said Reagan was talking with undecided senators, in person and on the telephone.

"I think we are looking as good as we did 48 hours ago, and we're going to keep going until we win," Meese said.

A Bork opponent, Judiciary Committee chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., said, "Clearly the momentum is with us."

Collegian Classifieds Where K-State Shops

DANCE
to the
MUSIC MAKERS
Sat., Oct. 3, 9-12 p.m.
at the Eagles Lodge
312 S. 4th
Dinner Served Prior to dance
Tickets on sale at lodge

FRIDAY TGIF

FREE TGIF TOSTADO BAR

50¢
PURPLE PASSION
SHOTS

KITE'S
BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12th, Aggieville

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Slices
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers—Aggieville

The Fishbowl
The Fishbowl, a "K-State
Tradition" Since 1951 is back!
Weekend & Football Specials
Kitchen Opening Soon!
105 N. 3rd • Downtown • 539-9904

Celebrate World Communion Day with the People of God at First Presbyterian Church

801 Leavenworth
Worship 8:30 and 11:00 a.m. Sunday
"Getting Ready For the Party" Communion Meditation
by Rev. Dr. Philip S. Gittings
9:30 a.m. Sunday School
Tuesday evenings 5:30-6:30
College Out Reach (C.O.R.) Bible Study and fellowship in K-State Union

ALL YOU CAN EAT SUNDAY BRUNCH

Make this a Sunday tradition for your family! Our Sunday, all you can eat brunch from 10:30-2:00 features, your breakfast and lunch favorites.
only $6.95

University Club
Restaurant & Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Mayer Retail Liquor

We will not be undersold

- Cold Kegs in Stock
- Stop by and check-out our daily special
- Chilled Beer, Wine & Wine Coolers
- All your game day needs

ATTENTION
Dillon wants you to stop by & meet his new girlfriend, Maddie

521 N. 12th 1 block S. of Kite's—Next to Southern Sun 539-5267

MOTOROLA INC.
Semiconductor Products Sector

We'll be on campus
October 12

Qualified college students are invited to explore the career opportunities... the innovative industry leadership that is Motorola's Semiconductor Products Sector.

On-campus interview... ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING MAJORS. We will also... MECHANICAL ENGINEERING, COMPUTATIONAL ENGINEERING and MANUFACTURING ENGINEERING and... positions.

For more information, stop by your College Placement Office or write to recruiting at the appropriate address below.

Arizona Opportunities
Motorola's Semiconductor Products Sector
725 South Madison
Tempe, AZ 85281
(602) 994-6394

Texas Opportunities
Motorola's Semiconductor Products Sector
1112 W. Ben White Blvd., Suite 200
Austin, TX 78704
(800) 531-5183

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer

Finally, a great pizza delivered.

1118 Laramie 539-5303
GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special

$10.99/$8.99 plus tax
LARGE MEDIUM COMBO PIZZA
or up to 4 toppings
Original Crust
Plus FREE 20 oz. drink!
4 drinks with large
3 drinks with medium
Offer good Monday through Wednesday only.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no added delivery charge). Not valid with other promotional offers. Limited Delivery Area.
GODFATHER'S PIZZA
Offer Expires 10/07/87 KSU

Large Pizza for a Medium Price

Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium. Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery. Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug offer. On Sunday your choice: either use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

GODFATHER'S PIZZA
Offer Expires 10/11/87 KSU

2 for $9

Receive two medium cheese pizzas for only $9. Added ingredients available for only $1 per topping, which covers both pizzas. Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery. Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1 for delivery. Limited delivery area.

GODFATHER'S PIZZA
Offer Expires 10/11/87 KSU

Hot Slice™ 2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas by the slice for $2! Combo or Pepperoni. Dine-in or Carryout. Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

GODFATHER'S PIZZA
Offer Expires 10/09/87 KSU

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 2, 1987 ■ Page 4

'Rubes' a cheap imitation of 'Far Side'

Dear Jeff,

I am basically a fan of the Collegian. Each morning I rush to grab a copy so I can spill my morning coffee on the front page and scatter doughnut crumbs throughout the sports page. If nothing else, I always read the personals (even though none of them are ever for me) and the comic strips (even though I am a sophisticated college student). If I have time, I read about our victorious athletic teams, our rising enrollment figures and our terrible lack of funds.

Most of the paper is very professionally published. However, I feel a need to complain about a part that is not. Earlier in this letter I stated that I was a fan of comic strips.

And as a fan of comic strips, it sickens me to see the Collegian publish a cheap imitation of the "Far Side" titled "Rubes." I realize it is hard to come up with your own material (former presidential contender Joe Biden knows that only too well). Does that justify being a copycat? Are there not copyright laws that can put the cartoonist in jail? Can the prison term be lengthened each time the comic strip is not funny? Why can't we just skip this whole mess and print the real "Far Side" in the paper?

Signed,

Dying for an Original Chuckle

Dear Chuckles,

Commentary

JEFF SCHRAG
Collegian Columnist

Let me give you a quick lesson in the ethics of journalism economics.

Ethical Journalism, the mix of three unique disciplines, is one of the most underpublicized majors at K-state. In the study of basic ethics, one looks at values. In the discipline of ethical Journalism, one looks at circulation figures. Economists draw lots of graphs and actually care about supply and demand.

Ethical Journalists draw lots of stares and only care about being supplied with the paycheck they demand every month. Journalists gather stories which they attempt to publish in a nice, readable, unbiased manner. Ethical Journalists attempt to read stories that are unpublishable. They never use the words "nice" or "manner."

The first rule of Ethical Journalism is never give your readers what they want — if you do, they will only want more. The second rule is to make sure you do something to punish the people who only read your publication for the personals, the police log or the comics. So don't look at "Rubes" as a real comic strip. The more stupid it is the better it is. The paper only prints it to punish you. The third and final rule is to remember that you are in business to make money. This rule supersedes all other rules. Cheap, imitation comic strips such as "Rubes" fulfill both rule No. 2 and rule No. 3 very well.

I don't think any court would try the case on the basis of copyright fraud. You obviously forget that some judge would have to sit and look at all the comic strips in question. They are bad enough one by one, just imagine them all together. Who would you be trying to punish, the judge or the artist?

Dear Jeff,

I am a former contender for the democratic nomination for the presidency. Let me emphasize the word "former." I was nosed out of the race because I ran out of original material to use in my speeches. Thus, I was forced to borrow some remarks from other politicians. I had footnotes on the typed copies of my speeches, I just never had the opportunity to read them to the audience. Do you think you could give me some ideas for speeches that would get me elected president of the United States, not as president of the American Plagiarizers Union?

Signed,

Out of One Liners

Dear Mr. Liner,

Your approach is all wrong. You are working too hard to be a decent politician. Forget about this "giving a different speech to each audience business." As long as you sound good and smile a lot, no one will listen to your speech (Ronald Reagan hasn't said an intelligent thing since 1947, and that statement was only witnessed by the man at the next urinal). Success has nothing to do with smarts.

Some of the best parts of politicians' speeches are the clichés they use over and over. No one can plagiarize a cliché. So sit down and write a speech that is just made up of useless phrases — no one will ever know the difference. Just make sure you comb your hair and brush your teeth.

I suggest you write something like this.

Ladies and Gentlemen, Special Guests, Reverend Clergy: It is with great pleasure that I come here to speak to you on this occasion.

The winds of change are always blowing. We must face these breezes confidently, with the resolve that we are determined in our mission.

A very wise man once said that history will look kindly upon our generation — for with a gleam in our eyes we proudly point to the credit side of the ledger.

A funny thing happened to me on the way over here today, which reminds me of a story. Let us not shirk the heavy responsibility fate has laid upon our worthy shoulders. And as we stride unto the future let us be ever courageous, ever vigilant and ever proud.

And in closing, let me state what words cannot express. The die is cast and the race is ours to win.

Thank you and God bless you.

Dukakis proves he's not above reproach

He says he didn't know about it — the incriminating tape that sent Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., on a rocky trip right out of the presidential fray.

But can the public believe Gov. Michael S. Dukakis?

It is a sad state of affairs when a candidate in the presidential race can't be trusted. But during the past four months, two candidates have literally been pushed out of the race because of some sort of scandal that has attached itself to their names.

It all began with former Sen. Gary Hart and his overactive hormones. Of course there is nothing wrong with hormones, except Hart got caught with a woman who wasn't his wife.

Then Biden ended his candidacy by being forced to admit that he had not attributed the sources of some parts of his speeches during at least the last year. He was also forced into the position of admitting he had misrepresented his law school career.

Hart was caught by some reporters answering his challenge which declared that he had nothing to hide.

Biden, on the other hand, was given a push from another Democrat vying for the presidential bid. The videotape, which showed Biden borrowing a segment of an apparently personal passage from a speech by British Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock, was supplied to the press by two members of Dukakis' campaign staff.

Dukakis at first denied that any member of his staff had committed the dastardly deed, but two days later he accepted resignations from his campaign manager and the campaign issues director. He then announced he would accept full responsibility for their actions but that he had no prior knowledge of what these men were doing.

But considering the track record of Dukakis' fellow democratic candidates, can we believe what he is saying? Only time — and a small scandal — will tell.

Riley County slighted in block grant awards

Last week, six Community Development Block Grant awards were made throughout the state. To the surprise of many local officials, Riley County was not on the list to receive a grant award.

Neither the Solid Waste Management Committee nor the Fairmont Water Project made the final cuts for federal funding. County commissioners had requested two grants of $30,000 each. One would have been used to hire a consultant to work with the Solid Waste Management Committee, formed to find a new means of solid waste disposal after the Riley County Landfill was ordered closed in July by the Kansas Department of Health and Environment.

The landfill had been determined to be the cause of water contamination in the area. The other grant would have been used to hire an engineer to examine water conditions in the Fairmont Area, southeast of downtown Manhattan. Water tests taken in June 1986 detected trihalomethanes — known carcinogens — in at least two wells, and tetrachloroethylene — a suspected carcinogen — in several wells tested.

The Kansas Department of Commerce, the agency that allocated the grants, said the Riley County projects were next in line to receive funding, but that "we just ran out of money." It appears they also ran out of common sense. One of the cities that received a grant — Grandview Plaza — got the money in order to investigate water sources in the area.

Yet the Fairmont area — where carcinogens are floating around in the residents' drinking water — received nothing.

One of the criteria for receiving the grants was that of need. The Solid Waste Management Committee has the difficult task of coming up with a new form of waste disposal for the only landfill in the state that has been ordered closed by KDHE. Yet, according to the allocations, their "need" didn't quite cut it.

The county has shown a commitment to the landfill issue by deciding to use general revenue sharing funds to go ahead with the hiring of a consultant. They must do likewise in the Fairmont case.

The water contamination is not going to improve with time. Alternative sources must be considered and implemented. Riley County residents can't count on the state for help with the two projects. Let's hope the county's priorities lie along a different path.

Letters

Women overcome

Editor,

I consider the issue of "sexist" language to be about as trivial as the issue of the "phallic" symbol outside of King Hall that took up too much space in the Collegian a few years back.

If some women believe the English language is a real threat to their success, then how do they explain the success of women such as Margaret Thatcher, Indira Gandhi, Corazon Aquino, Nancy Kassebaum and many more. My unqualified observation is that English is not the only world language that is gender specific. We can't change one language without changing them all, and that would take many centuries of wasted effort.

In my opinion people who are uncomfortable with the English language are in reality more uncomfortable with their sexuality. If today's woman wants success, then she must forget about barriers in the road or fruitless detours and engineer her own opportunities.

D.M. Gunther
senior in political science

the Iowa game and the small crowd at the game supporting K-State could be heard throughout the stadium. The K-State cheerleaders were not at the game, and when the team plane landed in Manhattan on Sept. 26, 1987, no one was at the airport to greet the team. Coach Parrish and the football team are doing all they can to turn the program around, but without the support of the fans it will not be an easy job. The University of Iowa had losing football teams for 19 years during the 1960s and 1970s, yet they averaged almost 50,000 fans per game during those 19 years of losing. It is time for the students of K-State, the faculty of K-State, and the citizens of Manhattan to stop criticizing our football program and start supporting the program.

K-State is very lucky to have quality people such as Coach Parrish and athletic director Larry Travis. Let's try to keep these people at the University by supporting our football team.

R. Daniel Lykins
Topeka resident

Arias support

Editor,

Most of us at K-State appreciated President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica for the intelligent and thoughtful man that he is; this made one of his answers at the 3 p.m. question-and-answer session appear particularly outlandish. He stated that the Sandinista party would lose any future "free" election because they were "responsible for making Nicaragua the poorest Latin American nation in just seven years."

It is of course the U.S. government and not the Sandinista party that is responsible for Nicaragua's economic troubles. Since the 1979 revolutionary victory, Nicaragua has made remarkable strides in health care, infant mortality, land reform and literacy. But a brutal war, an economic embargo and a drastic reduction in loans from international lending agencies, all sponsored by our government, have had their intended devastating consequences.

Surely Arias did not really believe what he was saying. I would like to think that he was simply trying to convince Ronald Reagan of his won anti-communist views before he attempts to persuade Reagan to support the Central American peace plan. But that would be wishful thinking, either by Arias or by me.

T.S. Cox
assistant professor in agronomy

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 028) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Bulimia still exists Epidemic an exaggeration

By Dana Brummelt
Collegian Reporter

Bulimia comes from a Greek word meaning "the hunger of an ox." However, binges are usually triggered by emotional upset — not by physical hunger.

Binge eating is the rapid, uncontrolled consumption of large amounts of food. According to a pamphlet at Lafene Health Center, binges may last from a few minutes to several hours. The number of calories consumed in a binge may range from as few as 1,000 to as many as 55,000.

A recent article by Knight-Ridder Newspapers said the widely reported "epidemic" of college bulimia is a myth, according to a University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist in the "Journal of the American Medical Association."

"There has been considerable exaggeration about the amount of bulimia around," said Albert Stunkard, director of Penn's obesity research group, who wrote the article with David Schotte of the Chicago Medical School. "The 'epidemic' of bulimia sweeping the country is a myth."

The article also said Stunkard believes the findings were indicative of the frequency of bulimia at other college campuses. This particular study was limited to mostly eastern colleges.

Although there is not an 'epidemic' at K-State, bulimia still exists, said Margaret Grayden, licensed specialist and clinical social worker in the Mental Health Section at Lafene Student Health Center.

Bulimia is predominantly a women's problem, but studies have shown an increasing number of men suffer from the eating disorder, Grayden said.

She said most women have a low self-esteem and use bulimia, or other eating disorders, to have control over their lives and be more attractive and desirable to men.

"People say 'He's a big man' but say 'She's fat,'" Grayden said. "Older men are portly, older women are fat."

"There is so much pressure on women to be thin," she said. "Petite used to mean short but today has come to mean thin."

Grayden said the definition of a clinically significant bulimic according to the "Diagnostic Criteria Manual" is someone who binges and purges at least twice a week.

"I believe that someone who binges and purges once every two weeks is bulimic," Grayden said. "I also feel that a person who does not binge, but uses laxatives or self-induced vomiting as a form of weight control, is considered bulimic."

Most people who develop bulimia are average in weight, perfectionists, emotionally insecure or lacking in confidence, according to the pamphlet.

Grayden said women use bulimia as an emotional outlet. They use food as comfort rather than deal with their emotions, because they feel it's dangerous to show emotions, especially anger.

"Some women use the act of purging to relieve tension — literally 'chewing it all up and spitting it out,'" Grayden said.

She said bulimia, as well as other eating disorders, is curable but is a long-term process and requires a lot of psychotherapy. The key to recovery is to teach women that their self-worth does not depend on the configuration of their bodies — they can make their own decisions and carry them out with conviction.

"More people are seeking help, because society is becoming more health conscious," Grayden said.

She said there are a number of self-help groups in Kansas, and K-State has its own eating disorders support group which meets on Thursdays in the Union. Many hospitals have inpatient units to deal with eating disorders.

"With the in-patient units, the patient is in a controlled environment," Grayden said.

Senate considers revised plan to finance Holton renovation

By Jill Conger
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate discussed a revised plan for the funding of the renovation of Holton Hall and heard the final report concerning the findings of the Ad Hoc Representation Committee at the Senate meeting Thursday.

Dan Owens, senior in economics, presented Senate with a bill outlining a revised plan for the funding of Holton Hall. His bill stated the $780,000 plan for the renovation of Holton Hall is the only funding that student fees will provide.

Owens proposed, however, that the $1.069 million project be approved, and the administration contribute funds from the Institutional Support Fee to make up the difference.

Each year, the administration collects a 3 percent tax from Housing, K-State Union, Intercollegiate Athletics, Kansas Artificial Breeding Service Unit, Parking Operations, Student Publications Inc. and Lafene Student Health Center. In 1986, this Institutional Support Fee added $269,961 to the university revenues.

"I think students should market for a Volkswagen and not a Porsche," Owens said, referring to his opinion that students should not contribute any more money for Holton Hall.

In his bill, Owens states that if the administration refuses to give money from the 3 percent tax, Senate will remain with the $780,000 plan.

According to Owens' report, the administration did propose a compromise. Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement, told Owens the 3 percent tax collected from Lafene — roughly $14,000 — could be used to finance the renovation of Holton Hall if the Counseling Center were to be moved from Holton to Lafene.

Senate decided to continue to research the funding proposals and continue debate next week.

The ad hoc committee that researched the effectiveness of Student Senate representation gave its final report.

In regard to changing the current method of electing senators, the committee did not give any recommendations, but instead summarized the pros and cons of an equal representation system. Last year, Senate debated electing half of the senators by college and half by living group representation.

Join us this weekend at the "Finest Little Tavern By A Dam Site" NOW OPEN SUNDAYS 12 to 12

Rt. 5 537-3133

Open 7 days a week HUNAM Restaurant
Free Delivery 11 a.m.-1 a.m.
1116 Moro 537-0886 (eggroll & fried rice $1.25) Call 539-8888 or 537-0886 1304 Westloop 539-8888 (10% off with KSU ID)

WORSHIP ON CAMPUS

DANFORTH CHAPEL SUNDAYS 11 A.M.

October 5 WORLDWIDE COMMUNION

Celebrating our oneness in God! Affirming our commitment to justice and hope! International Students Participating

EVERYONE WELCOME!

Coordinator: Don Fallon, Campus Pastor, 1021 Denison, 539-4451

K-STATE PLAYERS

ON THE VERGE by Eric Overmyer

FRI. & SAT.

Nichols Theatre 8 p.m. 12-5 532-6398 M-F

Ferris Bueller's Day Off

SHOWTIME EXCLUSIVE

Showtime Exclusive Movie of the Week

Now, a different, exclusive movie every Saturday night in prime time. Week after week, watch and enjoy them. Only on Showtime.

ONLY ON SHOWTIME... NOT ON HBO!

Manhattan Cable TV 610 Humboldt 776-9239

UPC ARTS COMMITTEE PRESENTS An Exhibition and Sale of Fine Art Reproductions and Laser Photographs

LAST DAY TODAY!

Don't Miss Out!

Monday - Friday Sept. 28-Oct. 2
9am-5pm K-State Union
1st Floor Concourse

$6.00 each or 3 for $15.00

Cars, Cities, Animals
Scenery & Travel Posters, etc.

Hundreds to choose from!

M.C. Escher Picasso Van Gogh Dali Renoir Seurat and many more

Plastic bags available.

Many new prints available!

Now the Best Pizza in Town Has the Best Price!

Two Pizzas for Only $5.99!

Now you can have two delicious 10" pizzas for the price of one. They're custom-made with your choice of toppings on each — they don't have to be the same! And we use only the freshest ingredients and 100% real cheese.

You're not seeing double. It's just our latest way to say that Domino's Pizza Delivers. And we deliver at no additional charge in 30 minutes or less. That's the Domino's Pizza guarantee.

No coupon necessary.

Call Us! Manhattan 539-0561

517 N. 12th Street

Hours: 4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs. 4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.

COKE® AVAILABLE in 16 oz. bottle 75¢ each.

Domino's Pizza Delivers® Doubles.

Prices do not include tax. Our drivers carry less than $20.00. Limited delivery area.

PEPPERONI	SAUSAGE	HAM	JALAPENOS
MUSHROOMS	BLACK OLIVES	GREEN PEPPER	EXTRA THICK CRUST
GROUND BEEF	ONIONS	PINEAPPLE	EXTRA CHEESE

Menu	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE *	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI 	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA 	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

*DELUXE — 5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.

VEGI — 5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.

EXTRAVAGANZZA — A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

Final candidate vies for position of budget director

By Paula Selby
Collegian Reporter

The final candidate for the position of K-State's director of budget would bring an "eternally optimistic" attitude about the job from Wayne, Neb.

John Struve, who has been the vice president for finance at Wayne State College, spoke at an open meeting Thursday afternoon in Bluemont Hall.

"I do everything from A to Z (at Wayne State)," he said to a group of 10 K-State faculty members. "I'm at the point where I'd like to do something a bit more focused."

Struve explained his interest in K-State and his qualifications for the position of budget director.

For the past 10 years, Struve has had a broad range of responsibilities at Wayne State. Besides serving as the director of finance and the dean of finance, he oversees the university's telecommunications, accounting and payroll.

"There are no promotion possibilities for me (at Wayne State)," Struve said. "I am as far as I can go within the institution. My position answers to the president."

"I look at this position (at K-State) as having less responsibility in terms of breadth, but probably, realistically, much more responsibility as in size and complexity," he said.

Struve said Wayne State College has an enrollment of about 3,000. However, he thinks the budget systems at both colleges are similar in procedure.

Struve considers K-State a University with "more decentralized power" than Wayne State. The deans at K-State have as much responsibility as the provosts at Wayne State, he said.

"In my position as chief financial officer, I am fairly vulnerable under the presidency," he said. "I have survived five presidents, but nonetheless, sometime my number — probably — has to come up."

"I have had a fair amount of success at Wayne State, and I feel strongly that the time to move from a position is when you are successful, not when you're about ready to be shoved out the door," Struve said.

K-State Crew appeals to Senate for funds

By Nancy Chartrand
Collegian Reporter

Some of the K-State Crew's rowing shells are being permanently water damaged by a leaking boathouse roof.

"The rowing team has appealed to the University as well as Student Senate in an attempt to get the boathouse's leaky roof fixed," said Jeff Laughman, vice-president of the rowing team.

It is imperative that the roof be fixed because the leaking water warps the wooden shells, he said.

The building also houses canoes used by the Continuing Education Department. An estimated $10,000 will be needed to repair the roof.

"The crew falls under the category of Recreational Services and they have told us they have no money to replace the roof," Laughman said. "We were then referred to the Student Senate but they also did not have the funds."

The boathouse became University property in 1981 after the crew was unable to make payment on the boathouse's loan.

On this, its 25th anniversary on campus, the team still supports itself through donations from area businesses and fundraisers. One such fundraiser, the annual Erg-Athon, is tentatively set for Wednesday.

An erg, a training device for rowing, will be placed in front of the Union. Team members solicit pledges for each meter they can row on the erg in 20 minutes.

"Each fall, the team makes about $400 on the Erg-Athon," Laughman said. "In addition, each semester team-members pay dues of $35. The dues basically help to pay our entry fees in regattas. While this does generate some support, much more is needed."

The team will be taking a trip to Henley, England, this summer for which funds are needed. Team members have been appealing to local businesses to help sponsor the trip. The team is also in need of a new racing shell which will cost approximately $10,000.

"We really need some new boats. However, despite that fact, we are still undefeated. We won all of our races last year, won our first race this year and placed fourth in regionals," Laughman said. "You might say we are the 'Bad News Bears' of rowing. Our equipment is very old, but we still keep winning."

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL

Join us for our 6th Sale
Celebrating our 6th anniversary

- Buy one scoop of ice cream at regular price & get 2nd scoop for 6¢. Cone or dishes (excluding Edy's)
- Buy any size pop at regular price - get 2nd one (of equal value) for 6¢.
- Register for our gift certificates—cookies & popcorn gift canisters.

(Prices effective Thur. Fri. & Sat.)

537-7079 1439 Anderson

KSU SHOWCASE of TALENT

BENEFIT FUNDRAISER FOR SUNSET ZOO
NOV. 6, MCCAIN AUDITORIUM 8 P.M.

AUDITIONS

FOR ALL CATEGORIES OCT. 11, 12
CALL 776-7852 IF INTERESTED

- Lip Sync
- Accompanied
- Groups
- Instrumentalists

- Unaccompanied
- Male & female Vocalists
- Comedy

Perennials

The backbone of the flower garden is the low-maintenance perennial. Varieties to please every preference . . . tall, short, creeping, vining, some fragrant . . . many colors among dozens of varieties . . .

... and this weekend . . . they're on sale!

$1 off selected 1 gallon perennials including:

Daisy	Yarrow
Coreopsis	Hibiscus
Veronica	Gaillardia

and many more!

reg. $3.95 Now Only $2.95

Save on beautiful hardy garden Chrysanthemums for traditional Fall color. 1 gallon pots.
reg. 3/$13.95
Now Only 3/$11.95

Remember . . . We're open Friday evenings until 7:30!

Horticultural Services

• Garden Center •

Mon-Sat 8-6 Sun 10-6
776-5764
2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

"Purple and White" Swirl CONES and CUPS

at

I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

50% DISCOUNT

(on purple & white swirl cones and cups excluding waffle cones)

SATURDAY

to Everyone Wearing Something Purple!

Enjoy the taste of Ice Cream but with one-fifth the fat and half the calories

GO CATS!

We'll be cheering you on to victory against University of Tulsa

FREE SAMPLES EVERY TIME YOU COME IN

Open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sunday
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers, Aggieville

GUITAR and AMP SALE

Hayes House of Music

"We Will Not Be Undersold!"

776-7863 327 Poyritz, Manhattan

TGIF!

FRIDAY

Free Hors D'oeuvres 5 p.m.

SATURDAY

Join us for FREE Sandwich Bar Before the Game
Open at 11 a.m.

COMEDY INVASION

Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.
Next Week Dr. Gonzo along with Dan Chopin

BUSHWACKERS

• THE FUNDRIKERY •

531 N. Manhattan 539-4321, 539-9727

CONGRATULATIONS

to the 1987
Alpha Chi Omega
Greek Playboy
Richard Fox

ΦΔΘ

PEOPLE POWER IN DEMAND

if you:

- find other people interesting
- like variety and excitement in your work
- require a flexible schedule
- need some extra cash

THEN BECOME A PART OF A NATIONALLY-RECOGNIZED TEAM.

Interested individuals contact:
Boyd Food Center (532-6484).
Derby Food Center (532-6483).
Kramer Food Center (532-6482).

Entertainment Friday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 2, 1987 ■ Page 7

Renaissance Festival:

A trip in time

A member of "The Abbots of Unreason" performs a juggling routine as part of the performances of the Renaissance Festival.

Upon 60 lush acres outside of Bonner Springs, Kan., a wooded grove shrouds a trip into the 16th century.

The streets of woodchips and dirt wind through shops, theaters, booths and live performances of days of yore. Nearly every bit of space is occupied; the shade from a few trees, and a couple of bales of hay provide a perfect performance area.

The atmosphere is that of a county fair—a fair held in the Renaissance period.

The 11th annual Renaissance Festival, modeled after a 16th-century English harvest fair, is located just north of I-70 at the Bonner Springs exit. The festival began Labor Day weekend and continues every weekend through the middle of October.

Performances of various types and sizes attracted many people at the Renaissance Festival.

A medieval joust drew a crowd of over 1,000 people for most performances last Saturday at the Renaissance Downs tournament area. The joust, officiated by the King of the Festival, Henry VIII (Michael Marzella), consisted of four knights battling for honor and "money."

Other performances included plays, acrobatics and juggling.

One troupe new to the festival this year,

"The Abbots of Unreason" presented juggling, fire-eating, magic and nonsense in its performance on one of the nine stages at the Renaissance Festival. Though they held the audience's attention throughout the performance, it was impossible to tell if the passing of the hat at the end of the show—as at most of the festival shows—was for real or to chase everyone off.

Many groups of Renaissance period singers performed at the festival, including K-State's Collegium Musicum. The group performed several times at different places last Saturday at the festival.

The group, led by Sara Funkhouser, associate professor of music, performed music from the Renaissance period and has come to the festival every year since 1977 when the festival began. The group is made up of those enrolled in the class for one hour credit and Manhattan community members who have joined in for "the fun of it," Funkhouser said.

Members of the collegium seemed to enjoy performing at the festival, agreed Janell Thome, senior in music, and Diane Herman of Manhattan.

"It's worth coming back for year after year," said Herman.

Various types of arts and crafts were available for both exhibit and sale at the Renaissance Festival. Anything from musical instruments to medieval armor to a fool-on-a-stick (a jester's head carved from wood and mounted on a wooden stick) made up the selection.

People walked among the rows of shops and small booths that lined the streets where they made purchases of the goods offered.

One item that drew great interest from the children was a wand which made soap bubbles. The wands, sold by Dick Neuroth of Dubuque, Iowa, create bubbles of differing shapes and sizes as they are waved through the air.

Neuroth travels to the festival every year to sell his wares.

"I drive back and forth every weekend," Neuroth said. "It gets old but we always have really good sales."

The one item for sale that could not go unnoticed at the Renaissance Festival was food.

Smoked turkey drumsticks headed the list of original food, while sausage-on-a-stick, pickle-on-a-stick, apple dumplings and the King's ices offered other choices for festival goers.

The Renaissance Festival is presented as a benefit for the Kansas City Art Institute.

ABOVE: Dick Neuroth of Dubuque, Iowa, creates bubbles of differing shapes and sizes as he waves one of the wands he sells from his booth. RIGHT: Janell Thome, senior in music, performs with the K-State music group Collegium Musicum.

The reigning knight of the joust prepares to do battle to the opposing knight. The joust was performed by the On Edge Touring Company three times each day.

Photos and story by Jim Dietz

Spotlight

EVENTS

Amsterdam Guitar Trio, 8 p.m., Saturday, McCain Auditorium.

KSU Band Day: Parade on Poyntz Avenue, 9 a.m., Saturday; bands will perform at halftime of KSU vs. Tulsa University game.

Children's Theatre Company's production of "Little Women," 8 p.m., Wednesday, McCain Auditorium.

"A Grave Affair," 8 p.m., Oct.

8-10, Purple Masque Theatre

FILMS

K-State Union

"Raising Arizona," Friday and Saturday 7 and 9:30, Union Forum Hall.

"Street Wise," Wednesday, Oct. 7,

7:30, Union Forum Hall and Thursday, Oct. 8, 3:30, Union Little Theatre and 7:30, Union Forum Hall.

Campus

"Roxanne," (PG), daily at 7 and 9; Saturday and Sunday at 3 and 5.

Westloop Cinema 6

"Hamburger Hill," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2.

"Stakeout," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.

"Like Father Like Son," (PG-13),

daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.

"He's My Girl," (PG-13), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.

"Pick-up Artist," (PG), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.

"Dirty Dancing," (PG-13), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.

Seth Childs Cinemas

"Someone to Watch Over Me," sneak preview Saturday at 7:10.

"The Principal," (R), Friday 7:10, 9:35; Saturday 2:10, 4:40 and 9:35;

Sunday 2:10, 4:40, 7:10 and 9:35.

"The Big Shots," (PG-13), daily at 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 and 4:35.

"Fatal Attraction," (R), daily at 7

and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2 and 4:30.

"Hell Raiser," (R), daily at 7:25 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday at 2:25 and 4:45.

"The Big Town," (R), daily at 7:05 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:05 and 4:25.

"Full Metal Jacket," (R), daily at 7:15 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday at 2:15 and 4:40.

Assistance available for new teachers

By Jeff Stead
Collegian Reporter

For the past two years, first-year teachers throughout the state have been able to receive teaching assistance by calling the First-Year Teacher Resource Program at K-State.

The program was developed in 1985 by the administration and professors in the College of Education who saw a need for continued support of first-year teachers, said Elizabeth Simons, director of the program.

Teachers call about a variety of topics, ranging from minor situations that need to be resolved to very large problems, she said. There are also teachers who are doing all right but want to do more.

Some of the calls received so far this year have dealt with teaching the writing process, how to get first grade students to turn in assignments and creating bulletin board projects, Simons said.

"First-year teachers need the most help but we also help second-year teachers and others, like those changing from one grade to another and substitute teachers," she said.

Most of the work on the program is done by Simons. She answers the telephone in the morning and does all of the research. If a call comes in and she doesn't know the answer she will research the topic or talk to a professor in that field and then send the information back to the teacher.

The number of calls received varies over the school year, Simons said. At the very beginning of the school year the new teachers are too busy to call but after a while the calls start coming in.

Enough people are calling to keep the program going but the program would welcome more, she said.

"The program is in its second year and with programs like this the number of calls increase as you get credibility, so we give the best information and advice we can," Simons said.

Although the program is for teachers certified to teach in Kansas, some letters have been received from K-State graduates who are in other states and those letters are welcomed. It is not, however, for undergraduates, she said.

Presenting seminars around the state is also part of the program, Simons said. The seminars deal with topics such as discipline and motivating both students and teachers near the end of the school year.

"People don't realize it, but teachers, especially first-year teachers, also need motivating near the end of the school year," Simons said.

She said her goal was to have the seminars, most of which were presented in the northeast part of the state, spread out across the rest of the state.

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Phi Kappa Theta, Pi Beta Phi, Off Campus

Oct. 5: Pi Beta Phi, Pi Kappa Alpha, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Nothing works up a powerful appetite like an exciting game of football. On the field or in the stands! That's why, after the last touchdown, you should rush that extra yardage to pick up a piping hot Bredeaux French-style pizza. A line-up of great gourmet toppings over a field of golden brown crust will satisfy the meanest hunger. Hot sausage, spicy pepperoni and 100% real cheeses make extra points for the whole team!

So get your kicks after the game and tackle the big one! Bredeaux French-Style Piza.

776-5577

TO GO!!!

1800 Claflin
in FirstBank Center above Charlie's within walking distance of most campus housing!

- Single Topping Pizza
- Bavarian Pizza
- Hawaiian Pizza
- Taco Pizza
- Braised Pizza
- Bredeaux Special Pizza
- Pocket Pizza

2 PIZZAS
FOR THE PRICE OF 1
EVERYDAY!

Tickets on sale NOW,
at UPC office, 3rd floor Union—$10

Concert Sunday, October 4, 8 p.m.
Kansas Union Ballroom
University of Kansas

Presented by SUA SPECIAL EVENTS

Yom Kippur
High Holiday Services
Kol Nidre
Friday Evening
Oct. 2
7:30 p.m.
Saturday, Oct. 3
Morning Service 10 a.m.
Memorial Service 6 p.m.
Break-the-fast following at Manhattan Jewish Congregation

1509 Wreath Ave.

Students who wish to share supper with a local Jewish family may call Matt—532-6096 or Dave—539-6177 (evenings)

BUD LIGHT

1987

Attention

Flag Football Teams

"Do it for Lou" Weekend

Friday: 3 p.m. First round of games
8 p.m. "Do it for Lou" party at Phi Delt house. Featuring "The Catch."

Saturday: Second round of games

Sunday: Last round of games and presentation of trophies.

Don't forget to get your raffle tickets for dinner for two and an evening at the University Inn. All proceeds go to the National ALS Foundation (Lou Gehrig's Disease).

THIS IS AN ALL UNIVERSITY PARTY.

I.D.S. REQUIRED.

ST DONATION
AT THE DOOR.

BUD LIGHT

Looking for Hope?

World renowned author and public speaker addresses the heart cry
of all Kansans
— and all Americans.

hear

Luis Palau

October 7-11

Wed.-Sat. 7:30 p.m.
Sun. 4 p.m.

KSU's Ahearn Fieldhouse

FREE ADMISSION

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 2, 1987 ■ Page 9

Wildcats, Golden Hurricane looking for first victory

Tailback Tony Jordan, who is still nursing injuries, has rushed for only 169 yards in his first three games. He leads the team with 13 receptions going into the Wildcats' home game Saturday against Tulsa. File/Andy Nelson

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

Hindsight is better than foresight. When K-State Coach Stan Parrish said the passing attack would be somewhat grounded this season in favor of the rushing game, he had no idea record-setting tailback Tony Jordan would be hampered with injuries for two of the first three games. Plus, who would have thought transfer quarterback Gary Swim would so quickly develop into the second-best field general in the Big Eight Conference behind Nebraska's Steve Taylor?

"There's probably a chance Saturday afternoon that the ball will be in the air a lot," Parrish said. K-State hosts Tulsa, a traditional passing team, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in KSU Stadium.

Even though both squads are winless — K-State is 0-3 and Tulsa is 0-4 — it doesn't necessarily mean this game is the yawner of the week.

"Contrary to their record, Tulsa has got a good football team," Parrish said.

First-year head coach George Henshaw isn't so sure. After assisting for 17 seasons perennial winners such as Florida State and Alabama, Henshaw was welcomed to the Division I-A head-coaching ranks with a murderous schedule.

Formerly of the Missouri Valley Conference and now an independent, the Golden Hurricane's first four games were losses to Oklahoma State (39-28), Florida (52-0), Arkansas (30-15) and Oklahoma (65-0) — Tulsa's worst loss since a 100-6 drubbing by Houston in 1968.

"We haven't been in a game yet. It's been a mismatch so far," Henshaw said. "Teams have been able to do anything they want against us. We got three first downs against Oklahoma and to be totally honest, we were lucky to do that."

"Our strengths would have to be our work habits that we have," he added. "As far as people are concerned, we don't have a strength."

Yes, it's difficult to evaluate a team when it loses by an average score of 46-10 in its first four outings. But Tulsa has some true budding talent on the field.

Freshman quarterback T.J. Rubely has completed 56 percent of his passes (58-104) for 811 yards and four touchdowns, and needs just 559 more to surpass Tulsa's total passing yardage of last season. In the opener against Oklahoma State, he completed 27 passes for 386 yards and two touchdowns.

Rubely went out of the game in the second quarter against Oklahoma with a neck spasm, but is reported to be healthy for Saturday. Dan Bitson is Rubely's favorite target with 15 catches for 322 yards.

As for Tulsa's ground attack, junior tailback Derrick Ellison became only the fifth Golden Hurricane to reach the 1,000-yard plateau last year. Placed in a passing situation, Ellison has managed only 167 yards in his first four outings.

Defensively, inside linebacker John Brown leads the team with 34 tackles. Strong safety Doug Desherow and defensive tackle Dennis Byrd are tied for second with 29 tackles each.

K-State, though, is coming off its most impressive performance of the season when they gave Iowa all it wanted and more last week at Iowa City. Can K-State repeat its performance?

"I just hope we do," Parrish said. "It wasn't a matter of us being real emotionally juiced up last week, because we were more juiced up for the Army game."

The big difference against Iowa was the 'Cats recorded six interceptions and one fumble recovery — their first turnovers of the 1987 campaign.

"We finally got some turnovers. Good things lead to good plays and good emotion," Parrish said.

On the down side, K-State is hurting. Center Paul Yniguez (knee) and linebacker Dewayne Baziel (dislocated shoulder) were lost for Saturday during this week's practices. Also gone is third-string quarterback Carl Straw (knee) and backup tight end Brent Cotton (leg staff infection).

Chad Faulkner will replace Yniguez and Jeff Lowe and Vantz Singletary will handle Baziel's line-backing chores. K-State's reserve center now is Bob Pacchioli, who was converted from offensive guard last week.

Jordan, still nursing injuries, has rushed for only 169 yards in his first three games. The man who was expected to carry the 'Cats to glory only averages 56.3 yards per game. He leads the team in receptions with 13.

"Well, he's been hurt, and he's still hurt," Parrish said. "He hasn't had much practice time. When you...just go from Saturday to Saturday, I think it's difficult to excel. I'm proud of the way he's played...and given us everything he can."

If K-State can respond to the injury situation and not fall flat emotionally, Henshaw said it should be an evenly matched game. The Golden Hurricane coach's main concern is avoiding Tulsa's first losing season in nine years.

"As far as the game is concerned, if we can just hang in there and not surrender a lot of scores early, then it will be a good football game," Henshaw said.

"It's been so long (since we won). I'm not sure how our kids will react."

NOTES: It's Band Day at K-State...Tulsa leads the overall series 9-6-1...K-State is 3-1 against the Golden Hurricane in Manhattan...the Wildcats are 8-25-1 against independent schools...Cats quarterback Gary Swim is gunning for his fourth consecutive 100-yard game...only three non-conference schools have played K-State more often than Tulsa.

Computers, not humans decide odds for contests

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

Tulsa is a nine-point favorite against K-State, and the Wildcats have been picked to lose every game so far this season — including by 42 points against Iowa. But in the gambling game, it's nothing personal, said Terry Cox, sports book manager at Harrah's Resort and Casino in Reno, Nev.

"A lot of people at K-State may take it personally when we pick their team to lose, but it's all up to the computers. It isn't how we think about a team," Cox said.

To set the point spread, bookies rely mainly on a team's power index based on records, schedules and current performance. Also taken into consideration are injuries, and additions or losses of key players.

Contrary to popular belief, point spreads aren't established to predict a game's outcome.

"We try to create an illusion that the two teams are equal so it creates an equal amount of betting action on both teams," Cox said. "Ideally, if the general public places an equal money on both sides, we can win either way."

Though betting on college gridiron action takes a definite back seat to the pro game, Cox estimated that more than $1 million a week is wagered on NCAA games in the 30 legal betting establishments in Nevada.

Cox, who has been at Harrah's for seven years, started out working at a bank in southern California. Cox played football at Dartmouth and said he's always loved sports and betting on horses.

"A lot of people at K-State may take it personally when we pick their team to lose, but it's all up to the computers. It isn't how we think about a team."

—Terry Cox

"One day I was in (Las) Vegas rolling the dice, and I saw how much fun those guys were having working in the betting room," Cox said. "I said to myself the money (I get) working at the bank is fine, but a person has to have some fun in his life."

"I used to get up every morning and read the Wall Street Journal and then the sports page. Now, I only have to look at the sports section."

Cox said the general betting public isn't concerned about what teams play each weekend, it all depends on the point spread. For example, the point spread for this week's K-State-Tulsa game started out at 10, but has dipped one point because of the number of wagers placed on the outcome.

"Obviously there's a lot of people out there who think the point spread is too high," Cox said. "Still, it comes down to which teams are good at covering the point spread week after week."

Betting action does increase, he said, when conference play begins or there is a big rivalry such as California-Stanford.

"The big rivalries draw real good," Cox said. "John Q. Public is just dying to lay $20 on his team when the traditional rivalries come around."

Cox said one fact about betting is written in stone: People who wager on games are true sports fanatics.

"I remember when the San Francisco 49ers won the Super Bowl. You wouldn't believe the number of winning tickets that weren't cashed in. People just held on to them for souvenirs," Cox said.

Even though the final object in betting is financial gain, and odds are established by computers, Cox said he takes his fair share of ribbing when a winning ticket is cashed in.

"Oh sure, it's part of the game," he said. "There's nothing more fun than to beat the bookie."

Ruggers in action against KC squad

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The K-State rugby team will play host to the Kansas City Rugby Football Club this weekend, but not at the regular sight of K-State home games. Due to lack of grass on the intramural fields, the recreation center director has asked the team if they could find somewhere else to play their home matches.

The city of Manhattan responded by allowing the K-State ruggers to use one of its parks for a new home field. Gorman Park will be the new sight of all K-State's remaining home matches. The park is located just off Tuttle Creek Blvd. on Casement Road in east Manhattan.

K-State is looking to avenge last year's 13-11 loss to the Kansas City squad during the spring season.

"Both teams are pretty evenly matched," Dave Todd, K-State club president said.

"They have a very mobile backline and they have some really good wing forwards. Their key winger is out of the country, which will be an advantage for us. I'm expecting it to be a real close game," he said.

"They are a good team, I put them in the same category with Columbia," Todd added. "We will have to play much better this week than we did last week (in a 9-6 victory over South Dakota) to even have a chance."

"We played sloppy last week. We can't play that kind of match and still expect to win against Kansas City."

K-State should have almost everyone if not the entire team healthy for the match this weekend. Some of K-State's key players who went to Dallas for select side games last weekend will also be available for Saturday's game against Kansas City.

"We're going to field the best team we can field this week," Todd said.

"We should have an advantage on the lineouts because of our size and most of our first team backline will be playing," Todd said.

"Our backline movement was kind of poor last week," he added. "Our scrum played really well against South Dakota."

Soccer club to be in action twice

By The Collegian Staff

The K-State soccer club will take on the Wichita State Shockers this Saturday evening at the Wamego Oktoberfest celebration. Along with the Saturday match, the 'Cats will travel to Lincoln Sunday to play the University of Nebraska.

The Wichita State match will be at the old football field at Wamego High School at 7:00 p.m.

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

With an injury-plagued squad, K-State head baseball coach Mike Clark is expecting his 'Cats to be well-tested this weekend.

The 'Cats will be going up against Iowa Western Community College at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and will face Barton County Community College and Kansas City Community College in a doubleheader, starting at 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Clark will be looking to see how K-State will perform in the three-game weekend home stand lacking the services of several key players, but not lacking plenty of stiff competition.

"We've got several injuries right now — we don't even have a first baseman. We may have to play a pitcher at first base this weekend because of the injury situation," Clark said. "We may have six of our starters out this weekend."

Clark said he'll learn a lot about his team and how it deals with adversity.

"We'll find out this weekend where we're at depth-wise. That's one concern we have. It's a chance to see some of our depth, to see three good junior college teams, and see if we are progressing. We are hurting in numbers in position players."

"We've got quite a few kids out (to injury) right now, so it's a bad time to be playing three games, but hopefully we'll get a couple of them back for this weekend," Clark said.

"I wish that we didn't have the injuries at this time, because this is the time we've got to mold the team together. We are just going to have to do some other things," he said.

Clark said the 'Cats may be lacking in depth this weekend, but they will definitely not be lacking in quality opposition.

"Iowa Western won the Iowa regional last year and came one game away from going to the national tournament. (Kansas City Kansas Community College) won the Kansas regional and came one game from going to the National Junior College tournament."

"Barton County was the team that KCK beat to win the Kansas regional, so we are seeing three of the top junior college teams in the Midwest in a period of less than 24 hours."

"It will be a good test for our pitching depth and be a good test for the team as a whole just to see how far we have progressed and where we are at and what we need to work on," Clark said.

Despite the lack of numbers in the lineup, Clark is pleased with the performances in hitting and from the pitching staff.

"So far pitching has been pretty good. It looks like it could be one of the strong points of our team. Our hitting has been good so far. Pitching-wise we've done some super job. Hitting-wise we've done a great job; we've hit the ball extremely well. Defensively we played well. I'm real happy with what we have done," Clark said.

"We are encouraged by the way the team has progressed. We have three more weeks of fall practice and we're hoping we can really take off."

Game utilizing imaginary money provides economic awareness for people of all ages

By Julie Key
Collegian Reporter

For just $10, the Center for Economic Education in the College of Education will give you $100,000 to invest in common stocks.

Sound too good to be true? OK, so the money is only imaginary, and, yes, it is all part of a game.

Teams and individuals have begun playing the Stock Market Game making imaginary investments, said Sharon Visser, game coordinator. Each team turns daily or weekly transactions in to the center and in turn receives weekly portfolios summarizing their financial status.

The transactions are based on actual stock prices and current events, which were processed by a K-State computer. Teams are allowed to borrow up to an additional imaginary $100,000 for investment during the course of play.

They can select from stocks on the American and New York Stock Exchanges and over-the-counter stocks. This is the first year over-the-counter stocks and offerings on the American Stock Exchange have been included, said Vera Freeman, director of the Center for Economic Education.

"The game teaches economic awareness and the stock market to high school, junior high and elementary school kids," Visser said.

K-State was one of the first schools to pilot the national game that started 10 years ago, Freeman said.

"A lot of teachers had their own stock market games in the classroom," Freeman said. The games were developed by a group of economic educators who decided to computerize the weekly data tapes from the three exchanges.

Last spring, Ell-Saline High School of Brookville clinched top state honors by making a 102.8 percent profit playing the game. Its team finished with $202,785 from the original imaginary stake of $100,000, Visser said.

This fall, eight elementary and six high school teams in Manhattan are playing.

"It is good hands-on experience in the stock market. It simulates real life," said Bill Sanderson, economics instructor at Manhattan High School.

Sanderson's classes have played the game for three years and take it seriously, he said.

"The first thing many of the students do when they get into class is check their stock in the Wall Street Journal. They get upset if they lose money," Sanderson said.

This fall, Visser estimates there are 600 teams playing. But, none are from K-State.

"In other years, we've had people in business and economics classes play. We do have one professor playing this fall," Freeman said.

"We always have a smaller game in the fall. We will be expecting about 1,000 teams in the spring," Freeman said.

The teams are mostly made up of students, but there is an open region for anybody, Visser said. Student's advisers form a team to compete against their students, she said.

"We would be happy to have individuals of any age play. But, we haven't publicized it that much to them," Freeman said.

The game is offered each fall and spring and runs for 10 weeks. It is supported by the Securities Industry Association and by several Kansas businesses, including local stock-brokers, banks, and savings and loans.

TV Listings

By TV Data

FRIDAY OCTOBER 2, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo	Special	Bozo	Nation's Bus.	B. Hillbillies
8:00 " "	" "	" "	My Little Pony	Street	Smurfs	SportsCenter	I Love Lucy
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid	Ghostbusters	Who's the Boss	Sesame	H's Heroes	Australian Rules Foot-	Movie: "Royal
10:00 Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's the Boss	M.T. Moore	Body Electric	Andy Griffith	ball: Grand	" "
11:00 Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connect	Dyke	Green Acres	Painting	Aerobics	Perry Mason
12:00 News	Middle	All My Child-	Beaver	I Love Lucy	Sesame	College Foot-	Movie: "24
1:00 Lives	As the World	One Life to	Andy Griffith	Mystery/Lord	Van Dyke	Beach State	" "
2:00 Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospi-	Brady Bunch	Kitchen	Beaver	PGA Tour	Tom & Jerry
3:00 " "	Donahue	Scooby Doo	Smurfs	Cooking	Jem	PGA Seniors	Flintstones
4:00 " "	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game	Jetsons	Square 1 TV	G.I. Joe	Championship	Munsters
5:00 Family Ties	News	ABC News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame	Facts of Life	SportsCenter	Alice
6:00 News	News	M*A*S*H	WKRP	Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Le-	Cheers	Andy Griffith
7:00 Rags to Riches	Beauty and the Beast	Full House	Friday the Thirteenth	Washington	Baseball: Chi-	NFL's Grea-	Movie: "The
8:00 Miami Vice	Dallas	Max Head-	Star Trek: The	McLaughlin	Montreal Ex-	Top Rank	Yard"
9:00 Private Eye	Falcon Crest	20/20	tion	Innovation	Market	News	Major League
10:00 News	News	Cheers	M*A*S*H	Nature	Business Rpt.	Magnum, P.I.	SportsCenter
11:00 son	Solid Gold in	Concert	B. Buddies	MacNeil / Le-	rer Newshour	Movie:	SportsLook
12:00 Late Night	Sybervision	CHiPs Patrol	700 Club	"Shock	Waves"	Sign-Off	"French Con-

SATURDAY OCTOBER 3, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Gummi Bears	Hello Kitty	Care Bears	Kidsongs	U.S. Farm Re-	SportsCenter	Bonanza	" "
8:00 " "	Muppet Babies	Pet Monster	Popples	Adventure	Charlando	People-People	National Geo-
9:00 Fraggle	See-wee Play	Little Wizard	Bugs Bunny	Cliffhangers	Minority Busi-	Surfer Mag.	plorer
10:00 ALF	Popeye & Son	Flintstones	Visionaries	City Within	lie Chan's Se-	Sports	NWA Super
11:00 Tom & Jerry	Storybreak	Jem	Wonder	Painting	Soul Train	Saturday	Pre-Game
12:00 Can't Take It	News	Weekend Spcl	Star Trek: The	Sesame	Movie: "Snow	Auto Racing:	ball: Teams to
1:00 Major League	Special	WWF Wres-	tion	Fru. Gourmet	White and the	PGA Seniors	nounced
2:00 " "	ball: Miami at	Coll. Football	Star Trek	Bodywatch	Movie: "Public	Championship	Major League
3:00 " "	ball: Miami at	Coll. Football	Star Trek	Bodywatch	Movie: "Public	Championship	Major League
4:00 Control	Men of Oct.	nounced	Buck Rogers	Focus/Society	Puttin' on Hits	Be An-	nounced
5:00 Wild Kingdom	Back Yard	Black Sheep	Health	Century	Bustin' Loose	" "	" "
6:00 Hee Haw	Mama	Guinness Rec.	To Be An-	Lawrence	It's a Living	College Foot-	Championship
7:00 Facts of Life	Frank's Place	The Sheriff	Werewolf	Tales of	Movie: "Victor	ball: Teams to	Movie: "The
8:00 Golden Girls	Leg Work	Ohara	Chance	Austin City	" "	nounced	" "
9:00 Hunter	West 57th	Hotel	Rich & Fa-	Country	Cliffhangers	News	College Foot-
10:00 News	News	News	Movie: "Or-	The Sheriff	Friday the	H's Heroes	SportsCenter
11:00 Night Live	Next Genera-	deal By Innoc-	Thirteenth	of Youth"	tion in the	Championship	Night Tracks
12:00 Fri. the 13th	Series	At the Movies	News	Concert	NCTV	Sign-Off	" "

SUNDAY OCTOBER 4, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 James Ken-	Jerry Fallwell	Jimmy Swag-	Superfriends	R. Schuller	SportsCenter	Tom & Jerry	" "
8:00 L. Lundstrum	Discovery	Kenneth	All Star Wres-	Sesame	Sunday Mass	SpeedWeek	Cont'd
9:00 Schuller	Oral Roberts	It Is Written	Wild, Wild	Mister Rogers	Visionaries	SportsCenter	Good News
10:00 gart	CBS News	David Brinkley	Black Sheep	Sesame	Superman	SportsCenter	Macahans"
11:00 Muppets	ing	All Star Wres-	Star Trek	From Broth-	Rawhide	Sunday	Fishing
12:00 Little House	NFL Football:	Movie: "First-	Movie: "Tar-	Washington	Lead Off Man	Auto Racing:	Movie: "The
1:00 National Geo-	Coverage	" "	Amazon's"	Adam Smith	Baseball: Chi-	Holly Farms	Pauper"
2:00 Can't Take It	" "	Major League	Movie: "The	Presidency	Montreal Ex-	" "	Leave it to
3:00 NFL Football:	NFL Football:	" "	Gilligan's Is-	McLaughlin's	Senior PGA	Major League	Baseball
4:00 Coverage	boys at New	" "	Movie: "The	Vintage Years	Fame	Championship	" "
5:00 " "	" "	News	Bears"	Bradshaw on	Movie: "King	Horse Racing:	" "
6:00 Our House	60 Minutes	Disney Hour	21 Jump	Wild America	" "	NFL Prime	Movie: "Good
7:00 Family Ties	Murder, She	Spenser: For	With Children	Nature	" "	NFL Theatre:	Black"
8:00 Perry Mason:	Movie: "Mis-	Daily	Tracey Ullman	Masterpiece	Star Search	Jackie Robin-	National Geo-
9:00 the Married	" "	Buck James	Marblehead	Camp David	News	" "	plor."
10:00 News	News	News	Mama	TBA	Darkeide	SportsCenter	Sports Page
11:00 Entertainment	Rich & Fa-	cist II: The	Dating Game	Plight Of Un-	Movie: "Key	NFL Prime	World Tom.
12:00 Happy Days	Sybervision	Sign-Off	Fame	Lou Grant	Sign-Off	Largo"	NFL Great

Religious Directory

American Baptist Campus Ministry
Evening Gathering
Sundays - 7 p.m.

Baptist Campus Center
1801 Anderson 539-3051

• Study Sessions
• Social issues resources
• Personal consultations
Campus Minister - Dave Stewart

Sunday Praise Hours
10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

• Sunday School—9:30 a.m.
• Collegiate Bible Class
• Transportation available

Office 537-7633
Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave.

Mike Wall, Pastor. 537-7967

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

801 Leavenworth
537-0518

Worship 8:30 & 11 a.m.
Church School 9:30 a.m.

• College Outreach
(Tuesdays, K-State Union)
• Weekday programs for youth
• Nursery available
Senior Minister
Rev. Dr. Philip S. Gittings III

Manhattan Jewish Congregation

Shabbat Services 8 p.m.

1st and 3rd Friday
Religious School
9:30 Sundays

Rides Available
Sponsor B'nai B'rith Hillel
at K-State

1509 Wreath Ave. (temple)
539-8462

Campus Adviser,
David Margolies 532-6154

Come Share the Spirit!

Lutheran Campus Ministry
invites you . . .

Worship 11 a.m. Chapel 9:45 a.m.
Sundays Danforth Chapel (campus)

Lutheran Student Movement 5 p.m.
Sunday - Lutheran Student Center

Don Fallon, Pastor
1021 Denison 1539-4451

GREAT COMMISSION

Church of Manhattan

Campus Bible Study

Sunday Worship

10:30 a.m. Sundays
at University Inn

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)

9:45 a.m. Church School

8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services

John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH

WORSHIP 8 and 10:30 a.m.

College Class 9:30 a.m.
Kennedy's Claim side entrance

Sun. Eve. Worship 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd, and 5th Sundays

CARE CELLS (Small Groups)
6 p.m. 2nd and 4th Sundays
Office at 2607 Allison Ave.
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

FAITH BAPTIST CHURCH

Independent, Fundamental 2615 Allison Avenue

Sunday School 10 a.m.

Sunday Service
11 a.m. & 7 p.m.

Wednesday Service 7 p.m.
For information, call . . . 537-8963

STUDENT WELCOME! COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH

8:30 a.m. First Worship Service

9:30 a.m. Sunday School

11 a.m. Second Worship Service

6 p.m. Training Hour
7 p.m. Evening Worship
2221 College Heights Rd. 537-7744

Trinity Presbyterian Church

Church School 9:30 a.m.

Worship 10:45 a.m.

• Nursery Provided
• Handicap Accessible
• Rides Available

Pastor James Cramer
1110 College Ave. 539-3921

LIVING WORD CHURCH

Sunday 10 a.m.

Wednesday 7:30 p.m.

Campus Group
776-0940

(1 mile south on Hwy. 177)

Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship

Sunday School 9:30 a.m.

Worship 10:45 a.m.

KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m.
Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4079

College Avenue United Methodist Church

welcomes college-aged students

Sundays School discussion topic during October

SEXUALITY and CHRISTIANITY:
How do they fit together?
9:30-10:30 a.m. every Sunday
1609 College Avenue COME JOIN US!

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH

Worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.

Sunday School — 9:45 a.m.
(Collegiate Class)

10th & Poyntz 537-8532

BLUE VALLEY MEMORIAL UNITED METHODIST

Sunday School 9:15 a.m.

Morning Worship 10:30 a.m.

835 Church Ave. 539-8790

First Baptist Church

SUNDAY WORSHIP 11 a.m.

CHURCH SCHOOL 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hills Rd. 539-8601

St. Isidore's

Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses
9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m.

Saturday - 5 p.m.
Daily Mass - 4:30 p.m.
711 Denison 539-7496

Crestview Christian Church

Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.

Collegiate Sunday School 9:30

776-3798
4301 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Church School—9:45 a.m.

Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Disciples of Christ
115 Courthouse Plaza 776-8790

CHRISTIAN CAMPUS MINISTRY

A Ministry Of The Church Of Christ

Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.

Bible Classes 9:30 a.m.
& Wed. 7:30 p.m.
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

COME AND WORSHIP!

MANHATTAN CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Worship Services 10:50 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Study & Prayer Wed. 7 p.m.
10th & Fremont 537-4936

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan

former Luckey High School Juliette St. and Piene
Worship 9 a.m.
Sunday School 10:15 a.m.
776-0259 Nursery provided 537-8526

MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR
New Supply of Conchos, Beads &
Leather Strips
Open Daily 8:50 a.m. - 8 p.m.
Thurs. 8-8
Drive Up Convenience
401 Humboldt
776-1193

UNITED ARTISTS
UA SETH CHILDS
CINEMAS
SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD.
Sneak Preview Saturday
at 7:10 p.m.
"Someone to Watch Over Me"

THE PRINCIPAL (R)
Fri. 7:10, 9:35, Sat. 2:10, 4:40, 9:35
Sun. 2:10, 4:40, 7:10, 9:35
THE BIG SHOTS (PG-13)
Daily 7:20, 9:25, Sat./Sun. Mat. 2:30, 4:35
FATAL ATTRACTION (R)
Daily 7:00, 9:30, Sat./Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:30
HELL RAISER (R)
Daily 7:25, 9:40, Sat./Sun. Mat. 2:25, 4:45
THE BIG TOWN (R)
Daily 7:05, 9:20 - Sat./Sun. 4:25
FULL METAL JACKET (R)
Daily 7:15, 9:40 - Sat./Sun. 2:15, 4:40

THE BEST T.G.I.F.
The Spread
An Hors d'oeuvres Buffet over 8 varieties
Plus
$1.50
Strawberry Daiquiris
Plus
An All Premium Well
Plus
$3.25 Pitchers
Michelob & Coors Light
THE COTTON CLUB

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE INFORMATION 538-1291
IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 782-4094
CAMPUS
HEART OF ADGIEVILLE

ROXANNE PG
Today at 7 & 9
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 3 & 5

WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center

HAMBURGER HILL R
Today at 4:30-7:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2

TAKEOUT R
Today at 4:30-7:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2

LIKE FATHER LIKE SON PG-13
Today at 4:40-7:40
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:10

HE'S MY GIRL PG-13
Today at 4:40-7:40
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:10

PICKUP ARTIST PG
Today at 4:40-7:40
Matinee Sat. &

Mishaps

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Delta Sigma Phi fraternity of which Barnhart is a member, said Barnhart suffered multiple facial injuries, a broken collar bone and one or two compressed discs in his back. In addition, he suffered internal bleeding as a result of the facial injuries, she said.

Peck was unsure how the accident occurred or if Wilson would be charged.

Barnhart is the fifth traffic accident victim in as many days. All accidents have involved the collision of a vehicle with a pedestrian or bicyclist.

"I'm not saying it's not unusual, but it's more frequent," said Capt. Nick Edvy, of the Riley County Police Department, about the recent spate of accidents.

From what has been reported about the accidents, there doesn't seem to be a common factor linking them, he said.

Pleasant weather might be contributing to an increased number of pedestrian and bicycle traffic, Edvy said, thereby increasing the chances for these types of accidents.

One thing he said he has noticed is that bicyclists and drivers are both committing quite a few violations.

Car drivers are sometimes impatient when following bicyclists and pass them without allowing for a proper amount of room, Edvy said.

Because they are highly mobile, bicyclists have been noted cutting through gas station driveways, he said. They have also been seen running red lights at intersections.

"If everybody would just follow the basic rules (of the road) they could avoid some of the accidents," Edvy said.

Kedzie 103

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today! (28-34)

MAKING A major decision—Career Life Planning Independent Study. One hour credit. Contact the Counseling Center at 532-6927 to enroll. Begins week of Oct. 5. (29-30)

QUIT MONKEYING around! Audition for "KSU Showcase of Talent." It's a benefit fundraiser for the Manhattan Sunset Zoo. See ad for details. (29)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

ONE-BEDROOM, furnished. Close to campus. Available immediately. 776-8918 after 5:30 p.m. (26-30)

LARGE, ONE-BEDROOM, furnished apartment, two balconies, air, $295 plus utilities. Across from Ahearn. Available Oct. 1. Call 539-5021; 539-2166; or 776-1712. Call for Pam. (27-29)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211)

TWO-BEDROOM, 727 Leavenworth #2, available Sept. 30. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 537-3186. (23-29)

AVAILABLE OCT. 15, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid, can be furnished. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (271)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 CHEVY, 3/4 ton, 4 x 4 pickup, 350 engine, power steering, power brakes, air-conditioning, automatic transmission, dual fuel tanks and set up for stock trailer. 456-8472 after 5 p.m. (25-29)

FORD LTD 1977: Excellent condition, low mileage, runs great. $1,500 or best offer. Call Salah in 636 Moore or Sonny in 533. 532-2362 after 6:30 p.m. (25-29)

1975 CHEVY wagon, air conditioned, cruise, runs well, clean, $490, 539-2892 between 5-10 p.m. (27-29)

1978 BLUE Monza. Nice body, excellent engine, 30 miles per gallon on highway. Leave message for Sheikh, 533 Moore Hall, 532-2362. (27-31)

FOR SALE: 1977 full-sized Oldsmobile wagon. Terrific condition, new paint, air, cruise, FM stereo, 112,000 miles. Call 776-9888 after 5 p.m. 1521 Jarvis. (27-29)

FOR SALE 1982 Chevette—$2,400 and 1983 Chevette—$2,200. Nice! Call 537-4083 after 5 p.m. (28-32)

1974 VW, new paint, low miles, $700 or best offer. Inquire basement Kedzie, 12-1 p.m. only. Ask for CB. 238-3874 evenings. 1980 Buick Riviera, loaded, $3,000, trade up to $1,000. (28-30)

1980 AUDI 5000S, good condition, loaded, $3,000 or best offer. 776-9508. (29-33)

CHILD CARE 07

FULL-TIME student with child wants another student with child to exchange babysitting spring semester. Phone 539-6430. (28-32)

COMPUTERS 08

ALMOST NEW NEC Multispeed laptop computer, MS-DOS compatible. Carry case, PD software, $1,595. Call: 537-7173, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. weekdays. (28-30)

IBM WORDPROOF (checks spelling, finds synonyms). Program disks, manual. New, never used. 539-6123 after 6 p.m. (29-30)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN THUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

FULL AND part-time retail help needed. Sports page—Town Center. Send resume to: Steve Webb, 224 Redbud Estates, Manhattan, KS 66502. (25-29)

HARDEE'S OF Aggieville is taking applications for delivery drivers, day or night time hours, full or part-time. Can earn five to six dollars per hour. (26-29)

Sub8Stuff Sandwich Shop

Applications now being accepted for following positions. Daytime, late night, and delivering. No phone calls. Apply between 2-5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

12th & Moro in Aggieville

TRACK-ORIENTED student to work with conditioning and form with talented fourteen-year-old. One or two evenings a week. Hours negotiable. Frank, 532-5634. Evenings, 494-8318. (27-29)

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

NEW COMPANY seeking to employ people interested in temporary long/short term employment. Send name, address, phone, job skills to: P.O. Box 215, Wamego, KS 66547. (29-31)

WANTED, TEMPORARY weekend construction laborer. About 20 hours on Saturday and Sunday. 537-1002. (29)

FINANCIAL SERVICES 10

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (27-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COUNCIL for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

FOR RENT two-bedroom mobile home with space for four horses. 539-5778. (25-29)

THREE-BEDROOM, unfurnished, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. Available now. No pets. Call 539-5562 after 5 p.m. (29-32)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

BY OWNER nice, clean, two-bedroom mobile home with or without furniture set up on large shady lot. 539-5778. (25-29)

HOUSE WEST of campus, two bedrooms, attached garage. For couple, single person, person with one child. Call 539-2860. (28-29)

LOST AND FOUND 14

LOST: JEAN jacket in Seaton 63 on Monday morning. If found, please call 776-6241. (28-29)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

FLEER 1987 update sets now available. We buy—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables. 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (25-29)

WANTED TO buy—Two tickets to U2 concert in K.C. Please call Stacie, 539-8695. Price negotiable. (26-29)

U2 TICKETS for sale, lower level. Call 1-541-9823 Saturday, Oct. 3 from 8 to 10 a.m. Best offer takes it all. Ask for Paul. (29)

PYRAMID PIZZA

All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m. WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

The Ladies Club

Now Open! Memberships Available! Work out with us today! First Visit Free 776-6469 1104 Waters, Manhattan

FRIDAY 5-9 p.m.

The Chef Fried Chicken or Spaghetti w/meat sauce all you can eat 111 S. 4th $3.95 with salad bar

LEE'S WESTERN WEAR

913-776-6715

Just Arrived

New Shipment of WRANGLER PRO RODEO JEANS

2 mi. east of K-Mart Hwy. 24

Manhattan, Ks. 66502

776-6715

Mon.- Sat. 9-5:30

Thurs. 9-8:30

NO PAIN NO GAIN

October Special

Unlimited Number

of Sessions for

only $50

Slender You

Figure Salons

No membership fee—first visit free

Candlewood Plaza-3232 Kimball Ave.

776-3308

TANS TO GO

$2 Sessions

1214-C Moro-Aggieville

776-7874

(must be used by 10-31-87)

Crossword

ACROSS 45 Gaze fixedly 47 Actress — Dawn 7 Fogs — Chong 48 Francis- can monks 52 Ninny 53 Sports hall 54 Buddhist branch 55 "It Be" (song) 56 Pine type 57 Tater part 58 Stallone's nickname

DOWN 1 Long tales 2 Gram- marian's concern 3 Fox spot 4 Lunda- mentals 5 Lathered up 6 Overly excited: colloq. 7 Domestic 8 Business name abbr. 9 Min. part 10 Mai 11 Hit sign

Solution time: 24 mins.

GAS SITS SIZE IDA IDOL ECON GOLDMINE VEND TIM SIEGEDES CAMPED PAR ALL ROD PAGED RANG GIS LODG YIELD NAG AGE EAR MILLED PARAGON RAM ALES LANDMINE NINO EVIL NAW ETON SYNE EYE

Yesterday's answer 10-2

SUN CONNECTION

NOW SELLING $2 SESSIONS

1126 Laramie 776-2426

DANCE, DANCE, DANCE.

to the sounds of the

"OVAL-TEENS" the best '50s & '60s music in town

Friday & Saturday 9 p.m.-1 a.m.

University Club

17th & Anderson, 539-7531

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

FOR SALE: Men's red Schwinn 10-speed. Extras and in excellent condition. Call 532-2233 after 7 p.m. (25-29)

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (25-29)

RALEIGH RACER USA—Competition 14-speed geometry, custom built. Diamondback Meanstreak—Mountain bike, 15-speed, new components. Both $300 or best offer. 537-0182 evenings. (25-29)

DIAMOND BACK mountain bike, 27", excellent condition, extras included. Call after 7 p.m., 776-9371. (27-29)

MOPED HONDA Express 1980, low mileage, excellent condition. Negotiable! Phone 539-8887 or 537-1395. (28-32)

1986 KAWASAKI 454 LTD, mint condition, three helmets plus cover. Paul, 776-2150. (29-31)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

DRUM EQUIPMENT for sale: Ludwig 14" and Ultra-sound 14" snares. Peavy 50W bass amplifier. Boss electric drum pad. Alpine cassette deck. All excellent shape. 539-1697 or 539-2328. (28-30)

MUST SELL: Crate 10-watt guitar amplifier. Three months old—warranted for five years! 532-5217. (28-32)

PERSONALS 18

"PHI GAM" car owner—If you are available, I would like to know you better. Please respond. (28-29)

DAMNIT DOUG! Get off on your 21st birthday. Thursday night at Charlie's is such a waste. Breakfast at McDonald's get rid of the aftertaste. The da-quiri party was great, the bathroom trash can party will be our next date! Nasty Susan and Kristin. (29)

AZD PLEDGES—B, M, H, 5:30, Y, U, A, F. (You know—barbecue, Monday, house, 5:30, you, us, awesome, fun!)—Love, the Seniors. (29)

PRECIOUS PIKE pledge "Travis." Today your Hot Bod turns 19, all the girls think you're lean and mean! But being your Sis, I know what the real truth is! You're only a little brother to me. Happy B-Day, Sherry. (29)

KY, it's been one year since we met and six months since I agreed to be yours. I'm looking forward to forever. Love, Lou. (29)

HEY LAMBDA—You're the apple of our eye. Our only limit is the sky. We can't tell all, my oh, my, we love Lambda Chi—the KDs. (29)

ADPI—PAULA B., Happy Birthday, Love, David. (29)

HAPPY DAY-Late 19th birthday from Monte and a dozen red roses from Denny. (29)

MISS RODEO, Come to Charlie's wearin' tight Wrangler blue, we'll admire your function curves, it's us, the Ag Econ crew. Leave the hubby at home on our command, and we'll see if your supply can meet our excess demand. (29)

KAPPA ROULETTE dates: Connie, Dacia, Jodi, Jody, Kate, Kristin, Sommer. Come with us, we'll show you the way. This is the day to romp in the hay. Your AGRs. (29)

KAPPA ALAINE—As my lil' sis you were great. As my pledge dot you are top ratel L and L Kerry. (29)

SIGMA NU DF 1 and Theta Xi DF 2—Friday's here and it's time for cheer, look out comrades B and A is near. Partying in closets and walking on cars, for a few of your classes we'd go clear to Mars. But here's fair warning: If it's mischief you seek, we'll send you home early and call you a Geek! Prep at 5:30, wear clean underwear. Pi Phi Risk 1 and 2. (29)

THANKS SO much 9th floor Moore. For those of you who took care of me and looked in on me while I was sick. Tiffany. (29)

THANKS RENE. Tiffany. (29)

AGR GGG—Another party, oh no! More swing dancing I guess! No piggies this time but the same western dress. Let's laugh and have fun and nothing will be better—a date with you to '87 Roulette! Love you, JKH. (29)

BETA BEAUS—Tonight's the night we'll party right, as B & A dates you're out-of-sight. We'll wine and dine and have a ball, for Beau and Arrow is the best party of all. See you tonight! Love, your Pi Phi dates. (29)

HUEY—Six months ago you kissed me. Thanks to my Tri-Delta friend, we've been kissing ever since. You're still doing it all for your baby. Love, Mannequin, remember? (29)

BONO—U2 can have fun at B & A. You're going with me. Let's seek entropy! —J. (29)

THETA ROULETTE dates. Laying in the hay, was more mighty fun but don't put your boots away cuz we're not quite done. Roulette's near, its become quite clear that Thetas and AGRs have nothing to fear because it's the best party of the year. AGRs. (29)

ANET—CONGRATULATIONS, it's a Girl. Clovia Love—lil sis. (29)

C-L-O-V-I-A SYNCOPATE, now we can show that you really do rate—Brenda—Congrats Big Sis! (29)

ALPHA AUNT Becky—C U at C-N-C from your neat niece. (29)

BETH S—Congratulations on your new lil' sis, it'll be an experience you won't want to miss. You're really funny and full of wit, I'm glad you're the one, and that's no crap. The Wee One. (29)

STEVE—I love you—Kayla. Sweetness—I love you—Steve. Jack—I love you—Melissa. Kayla—I still love you—Jack. Billy—I love you—Big Bro. Adrian—I love you—Dimples. Steve, Billy, Jack, Adrian—I love all three of you—Jo. Frankie—I love you—Carrie. Jen—I love you—Frankie. Frankie—I love you—Jennifer. Shane—I love you—Eve. Kimberly—I love you—Shane. Grace—I love you—Neil. Neil—I love you—Jo. Roman—I loved you—Mariena. (29)

AFRICAN QUEEN—I'm looking forward to Friday night. Saturday... Let's make life one big Safari. Love, DF #1. (29)

SIGMA NU Hader: I'm so happy you're my son! Have a great weekend! Love, Mom. (29)

ALPHA XI Soph. Wednesday night was a blast, don't ever let those memories pass. No more tears just drink your beers. You're in my heart and on my mind. I'm going to jam so I'll see ya next time! Fuzzy Kristin. (29)

CHAR—YOU'RE awesome and I'm psyched to have you as my dot! Your KKG Mom. (29)

PETS AND SUPPLIES 19

SIAMESE KITTEN—Female, 10 weeks, litter-trained. Not registered, $25. 539-0508. (29)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (111)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9160. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (111)

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville. 539-7931. (111)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

PAPERS, RESUMES, cover letters, theses and dissertations entered, stored and completed to your specifications. Letter-quality printer. Come see us. Rosa Secretarial Services, 614 N. 12th (across from Killea), 539-5147. (23-32)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (27-29)

EXPERIENCED TYPIST: Will do any size typing jobs. Call Mary after 5 p.m. at 537-0456. (27-29)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

ROOMMATE OCTOBER-June. Nice house, close to campus, washer/dryer, own room, only $135. 776-7905. (27-29)

WANTED: TWO female roommates—Nice two-bedroom apartment—furnished, one-half block west of Ahearn. Needed for second semester. Call 537-9370. (28-31)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share house. $160/month. Gas/electric paid. Call 537-4083, after 5 p.m. (28-32)

RESPONSIBLE FEMALE roommate, preferably graduate student or working woman, needed to share three-bedroom house near high school. One-half $385 rent plus utilities. 537-8663. (28-32)

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed. Laundry facilities, carpeting, close to campus. $110 rent plus one-third utilities. Call 539-3575 and ask for Dawn Robertson, otherwise leave name and number. (29-31)

WELCOMES 27

ST. LUKE'S Lutheran Church (Missouri Synod), Sunset and North Delaware welcomes students to services: Saturday at 6 p.m. and Sunday at 8 and 10:45 a.m. Bible classes, 9:30 a.m. (29)

COLLEGE HEIGHTS Baptist Church SBC, 2221 College Heights Road. First worship service 8:30 a.m. Sunday School 9:30 a.m., second worship service 11 a.m., Training Hour 6 p.m. Sunday. Sunday evening worship service 7 p.m., mid-week service Wednesday 7 p.m. (29)

MANHATTAN FRIENDS meeting (Quaker), Baptist Campus Center, 1801 Anderson, Sundays. Silent worship 10 a.m., discussion, 11 a.m. For information, call 539-4676 or 539-2638. (29)

ROOM FOR RENT 28

Nebraska likely to be named as host for low-level radioactive waste site

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Stanley Grant, secretary of health and environment, said Thursday Nebraska appears likely to become the host state for a low-level radioactive waste disposal site under a criteria developed by Kansas.

That criteria, accepted in principle by the Central Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact Commission at a meeting in Little Rock, Ark., includes as a factor in the site selection process the historic and projected volumes of nuclear waste from each state.

The commission, which includes Kansas, Nebraska, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas, has drafted a tentative agreement with U.S. Ecology to develop a site for low-level radioactive waste facility in one of the five states.

Nebraska, Louisiana and Arkansas have two nuclear reactors, Oklahoma none and Kansas one. Louisiana's are the newest and have the greatest combined generating capacity; Nebraska's are the oldest and have the least combined generating capacity. Kansas' sole nuclear plant at Wolf Creek has the largest of any single unit in the region.

"If waste is one of the primary factors considered...draw your own conclusions," said said James Powers, director of the Division of Environment within KDHE.

The commission has not yet assigned weighted values to the different factors in the criteria, which also includes hydrogeology and transportation. Grant said he proposed that current generation of radioactive waste should count as 20 percent and projected waste as 40 percent in selecting a site, but the commission balked at accepting those weights.

"If it goes as we presented it, in all probability Nebraska would be the host state," Grant said, but added other states could be selected if the factors are weighed differently.

U.S. Ecology is expected to announce a site in November.

By federal law, a host state has to be selected by Jan. 1, 1988 and a licensed and operating facility by 1993. If a state chooses to withdraw from the compact, it must develop its own waste facility.

Under the draft of the contract, the commission would pay $10 million and U.S. Ecology, a Kentucky-based corporation, would contribute $1.1 million to develop the site, said John Campbell, deputy Kansas attorney general.

The cost of the constructing the facility is estimated at $30 million, Campbell said. "The commission has retained the option to finance the construction of the facility," he added.

Six utility companies that use nuclear power in the five states have formed committees to investigate financing the $30 million facility, Campbell said, and no tax money is involved.

U.S. Ecology would be compensated for running the facility by rates charged to organizations that dispose of waste there.

Quake

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

shelves in the Victor Valley, 70 miles to the northeast, and shook the ground in El Cajon, in San Diego County to the south.

In downtown Los Angeles, hundreds of people were evacuated from swaying buildings, where windows shattered and elevators became stuck as power was knocked out for nearly an hour.

"All at once there was a whoosh of wind, and I walked over to a brick wall until everything stopped shaking," said Gerald Livezey, a security guard at one downtown building. "Everyone was coming out...circulating, not knowing what to do."

"This one scared me," he said. "I was outside, and I mean it was really shaking. I thought it was the biggie. I thought there wasn't going to be anything left."

Police Officer William Frio said five people were arrested for looting in various parts of the city where windows were shattered. Police spokesman Lt. Dan Cooke said a special anti-looting squad was working downtown and the entire department was on full tactical alert, working 12-hour shifts.

Los Angeles officials said that within the city there were at least 40 injuries and three deaths. County coroner's spokesman Bob Dambacher identified two of the dead as Lupe Exposito, 21, of San Gabriel, who was killed by the collapse of a wall of a parking structure at California State University and Juan Herrera, 32, who died of injuries in a fall from the second-floor window of his apartment in suburban Maywood.

Fire Chief Don Manning said the department had responded to 67 fires caused by natural gas leaks, 36 structural fires, 41 heart attacks and 21 elevators with people stuck in them, and 35 traffic accidents.

Mike Guerin, a spokesman for the California Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, said at least two vacant brick buildings collapsed.

3,400 to participate Saturday in Band Day

By The Collegian Staff

More than 3,400 state high school and junior high performers will take the field Saturday at KSU Stadium to participate in the annual Band Day celebration.

Any high school or junior high band in the state is invited, said Stan Finck, director of bands.

"It's an ideal recruitment opportunity for K-State," Finck said. "The event also provides high school band directors a chance to expose their bands to other groups and get the students more involved."

The celebration begins with a parade at 9 a.m. down Poyntz Avenue from 11th Street to Third Street.

The stadium pre-game performance of the bands is scheduled at 1:00 p.m. prior to the KSU-Tulsa University football game. The game begins at 1:30.

The bands will remain seated until halftime when they will perform on the field.

This year three $100 scholarships will be awarded to three participating senior band members who will enroll at KSU in the fall of 1988.

K-State mascot Willie the Wildcat will draw the names of three high schools before the game. The band directors of the winning schools may nominate three seniors in their bands to the KSU general scholarship committee for final selection.

SUNDAY SUPPER

Oct. 4
5:30 p.m.

Topic: "Nuclear Waste in Your Backyard"
Speaker: Enid Stover
(50¢ donations or free if needed)

1021 Denison
The building with the two red front doors

Sponsored by
CUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES

AGGIEVILLE FLOWERS

SWEETHEART ROSES
$6.00 a dozen

Flower Bundles
$4.00

12th and Laramie
10-5:30 M-Sat. 537-9549

The Station

T G I F

FREE TGIF TERRIFIC BUFFET,
JOIN MANHATTAN'S TGIF TRADITION!

No membership needed
For restaurant & bar!
Open To Public!

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

Brother's

AGGIEVILLE

1120 Moro
539-9064

Don't Forget
Blind Date Tonight
$1 shots all weekend

RECORD—TAPE SALE

Now In Progress!

CLASSICAL ROCK FOLK
JAZZ COUNTRY

Records start as low as $1.98!
Cassette tapes as low as $2.98!

9-9 MON.-SAT. 12-5 SUN.

On the edge of campus, in the heart of Aggieville.

BAND DAY 1987

Greet Your High School Band & Director
From Noon until 1 p.m. at the South end bleachers of KSU Stadium before K-STATE vs. TULSA game

Andale	Flinthills	Mankato	St. George
B and B Baileyville	Frankfort	Marysville	St. Mary's
Bern	Goddard	McPherson	Stockton
Blue Valley	Hanover	Mission Valley	Sylvan Unified
Centre	Haven	Nemaha Valley	Topeka West
Chapman	Herington	North Central	Valley Falls
Chase County	Hillcrest	Northern Heights	Victoria
Circle	Holisington	Norwich	Wabaunsee
Clafflin	Inman	Olpe	Waconda East
Clay Center	Jackson Heights	Osage	Wakefield
Clifton-Clyde	Jefferson County North	Osborne	Wamego
Conway Springs	Jewell	Otis-Bison	Washburn Rural
Council Grove	LaCrosse	Pike Valley	Washington
Ellinwood	Lansing	Pretty Prairie	Wellington
Fairfield	Lebo-Waverly	Riley County	West Elk
	Linn	Russell	Westmoreland
	Lyndon	Smith Center	Wetmore
	Manhattan	Southeast of Salina	Wilson

Sponsored by: Kansas State Admissions Representatives

THE SOUND SHOP

Audio-Video-CarStereo
CDs-Records-Tapes

SALE

Thurs.- Fri. - Sat.

SPECIAL PRICING ON
$50,000 worth of Audio & Visual Equipment

20% OFF
ALL CLASSICAL, JAZZ AND COUNTRY LP'S AND TAPES

STUDENT FINANCING

NEW RELEASES BY:
Aerosmith-Mr. Mister-Michael Jackson-Cars and others
$6.99

all single Beatles cd's $13.95

AUTO SOUND

Special Sale Prices On YAMAHA-BLAUPUNKT-DENON

We carry over 20 brands of autosound equipment

BOSTON ACOUSTICS
NAKAMICHI

PROFESSIONAL INSTALLATION
25% OFF
on equipment purchase

PLUS:
Too many other specials to list here!!!

There will be lots of new demo, one of a kind, and even some used equipment at this sale

SO HURRY!! DON'T MISS IT!!
1204 MORO

HUD Grant

The Department of Regional and Community Planning has received a grant of $109,000 for internships and graduate support. See Page 3.

Weather

Partly sunny, breezy and cooler today, high 70 to 75. Partly cloudy and cool tonight, low near 45. Partly cloudy and cool Tuesday, high around 65.

5 DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  7
Kans. State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th,
Topeka, KS
66612
See Page 6.

Monday
October 5, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 30

Kansas State Collegian

Band Day response 'pleasing'

Drummers from across Kansas look to K-State Band Director Stan Finck for the beat while performing in KSU Stadium during half time of the Wildcats' football game Saturday against Tulsa University. More than 3,400 musicians from 74 high school bands participated in annual Band Day activities.

More than 3,400 high school students attend

By The Collegian Staff

People lined Poyntz Avenue on Saturday morning to view the assortment of colors and instruments of more than 3,400 high school and junior high band students who participated in this year's annual Band Day.

Stan Finck, director of bands, said he was pleased with the number of bands that participated this year.

"We wouldn't be able to handle many more bands than what we had Saturday," Finck said.

The bands played "The Ceremony of Allegiance" and "The Star-Spangled Banner" at the football stadium for the pre-game performance prior to the K-State-Tulsa University game.

During halftime, the bands took to the field, forming a giant KSU. While facing the alumni section, the bands played "Wildcat Victory," the "Pride and Glory March" and "Somewhere Out There." At the command of the announcer, the band members did a 180-degree turn to face the student section and play "Old Time Rock 'n' Roll." The high school and junior high bands were then accompanied by the Fort Riley band and the ceremonial cannons for the halftime finale of the "1812 Overture."

Hollie Martin, a member of the "Spirit of Gold" Andale Marching Band, said it was a long drive to Manhattan but she enjoyed being able to participate in the events.

Andale Band Director Jay Williams said he would like to have more competition among the bands adding that the parade was good experience for the high school students.

The winners of the drawings of the $150 scholarships awarded prior to the game were Topeka West High School, Nemaha Valley High School and Olpe High School.

The awards will go to three senior band members enrolling at K-State in the fall of 1988. The band directors of the winning high schools may nominate three high school seniors in their bands to the K-State general scholarship committee for final selection.

A 10-year-old Manhattan girl supports band members at the annual Band Day parade on Poyntz Avenue Saturday morning.

Iranian bases on full alert

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iran said Sunday its bases in the Persian Gulf were on full alert following intensive Iranian naval exercises that set off widespread alarm and sent a U.S. warship steaming toward the maneuvers.

Rear Adm. Harold J. Bernsen, commander of the U.S. Navy's Middle East Force, acknowledged that higher officials ordered his flagship to break off from a southbound convoy and head north toward the area Friday night.

Iran's Prime Minister Hussein Musavi vowed Sunday to fight any aggressor in the gulf and said Iran was determined to oppose the U.S. presence there.

Iraq said 19 civilians were killed and others were wounded in Iranian shelling of border towns Sunday, and Iran reported injuries from Iraqi bombardments of its frontline cities in a campaign that threatened to revive the bloody War of the Cities.

Iraq said in a war communique that most of the casualties were women and children killed in long-range artillery shelling of the southern port of Basra, and declared "the hour of revenge is not far" if the attacks persist.

Iraq said Iranian forces "indiscriminately" shelled civilian areas in Basra, hitting homes, hospitals, schools and mosques.

Iraq said it will keep shelling Iraqi industrial and military installations until "the enemy puts an end to its acts of mischief."

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency monitored in Cyprus reported a "number" of civilians were wounded and some houses and shops damaged by Iraqi artillery shelling over the past two days. IRNA said the shells hit the Iranian port cities of Abadan and Khorramshahr, across the border southeast of Basra.

The Italian navy, meanwhile, prepared to escort its first Italian-flag tanker through the gulf, where more than 375 ships have been attacked since the Iran-Iraq war broke out in September 1980.

Since July, U.S. warships have been escorting reflagged Kuwaiti tankers through the gulf to protect them from attacks by Iran, which accuses Kuwait of supporting Iraq.

Bernsen wouldn't say from whom or what level the order came directing the USS LaSalle to head toward the northern gulf, where scores of Iranian vessels were spotted.

The LaSalle's commander, Capt. Harry T. Rittenour, told his crew the "change in mission" was ordered by "national authority," apparently meaning officials in Washington.

"There was a lot of activity, movements, boats out, a bit more than we're accustomed to," Bernsen told reporters Saturday night. "When we get something that's unusual, we like to know about it."

The vessels, including speedboats used frequently by paramilitary Revolutionary

■ See GULF, Page 11

Tremors continuing in LA

Sunday's aftershock kills 1, injures 200

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A sharp aftershock from last week's severe earthquake jolted Southern California before dawn Sunday, causing at least one death and dozens of injuries, damaging buildings, knocking out power and sending jittery residents into the streets.

The quake, centered in suburban Rosemead about eight miles northeast of downtown Los Angeles, registered at 5.3 on the Richter scale of ground motion, said Don Kelly of the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo.

At the California Institute of Technology the quake was measured at 5.5, according to a spokesman, Robert Finn.

"It was pretty wild," said Mark Rosenker, who was on the 18th floor of the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. "Let me tell you, it does get you up."

The 3:59 a.m. quake was the 22nd aftershock registering more than 3.0 since Thursday's quake, which measured 6.1 on the Richter scale and caused six deaths and more than $75 million in damage.

Sunday's shock, centered about two miles west of Thursday's, was felt 40 miles west of Los Angeles in Ventura County and 100 miles south in San Diego. It was followed by three tremors measuring 3.0 or more within four hours.

Power outages occurred in numerous areas, and many residents, some in bathrobes, gathered outside apartments and houses, waiting for more shocks. Others, camped out in a downtown parking lot, said they had been there since Thursday.

"We are glad we stayed out here," said a man who identified himself only as Hector. "At least here we feel safe."

Mildred Robbins, 66, of Arcadia, was pronounced dead at 5:14 a.m. at Arcadia Methodist Hospital after going into full cardiac arrest, said administrative supervisor Terry Pisenti. Efforts to revive her failed.

Pisenti said the heart attack was attributed to the quake.

More than 60 other quake-related injuries, mostly cuts from broken glass, bruises from being hit by falling objects and anxiety-related chest pains and breathing problems, were reported at area hospitals.

"All the lights went out. It felt like the sky was falling. I thought the whole house was coming down," said Marta Jimenez of suburban Montebello.

The Jimenezes moved a mattress and cushions onto their lawn and set up camp, listening to a portable radio. Many neighbors did the same.

In suburban Whittier, where hundreds of homes were damaged and 30 buildings collapsed Thursday, residents who had been in overnight shelters were evacuated to a lighted baseball field.

■ See QUAKE, Page 11

Flasher in Farrell 'reveals' himself to library patrons

By Jackie Brazzle Collegian Reporter

"And they call him the streak," go the words of a once-popular song in the 1970s. At K-State, a more appropriate phrase might be "and they call him the flasher."

The recent rash of flashing incidents in Farrell Library has become a concern, a library spokesman said last week.

Brice Hobrock, dean of libraries, said he began to receive scattered reports of a flasher in Room 216 and the fourth-floor stacks of Farrell. Two of these reports were received during the summer and a recent sighting was reported about two weeks ago. All the sightings were reported by female students.

Hobrock said Farrell asked for assistance from the K-State Police. The police department has not been able to establish a pattern of times and places that would give them any clues as to who might be doing the flashing. Hobrock said Farrell has no suspects.

"The police really can't get a person unless there is a stakeout,"

■ See FLASHER, Page 11

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Van full of explosives diffused

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — A van crammed with 500 pounds of explosives was defused on the western outskirts of Belfast on Saturday night, after army experts spent nearly 30 hours working on it, police said.

They said the van was stolen by the outlawed Irish Republican Army and loaded with explosives. It was then left on the main road between Lisburn and Belfast international airport.

The van was probably timed to go off as a security force patrol went by, but it failed to detonate, the police said. The IRA is fighting to drive the British out of predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland and unite the province with the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Irish Republic. About 2,560 people have died in IRA-related violence since 1969.

Fish abound near Wolf Creek

BURLINGTON — There's fish in that 5,000-acre cooling lake at the Wolf Creek Generating Station near Burlington in eastern Kansas. Millions of bass, catfish and walleye.

Stories are told of fishermen on midnight missions who sneak onto plant property to cast out into the sky-blue waters of the nuclear age. But it isn't legal.

State conservation officials would like to make a deal with the Wolf Creek Nuclear Operating Corp. to open the lake 95 miles southwest of Kansas City to public fishing. Utility officials say they aren't opposed to the idea, but they're concerned about plant security and evacuation plans.

Scientists at the plant are studying the options. Meanwhile, the fish only grow bigger.

"It's your basic predator-prey relationship," said Mike Theurer, fisheries division chief for the Kansas Department of Wildlife and Parks. "The top predator isn't allowed out there, and that's man."

"The fishing? Oh yeah, it'd be cream."

The eating? Perfectly safe, researchers say.

More patients to be released

OSAWATOMIE — Each year, hundreds of mental patients walk away from the unfenced, campus-like Osawatimie State Hospital in east-central Kansas.

Last year, 365 patients left Osawatimie, said Miami County Sheriff Dan Morgan. State law requires the hospital to notify Morgan's department when a patient disappears.

Patients usually are found within a few hours, wandering along a riverbank or on a nearby road. A few patients have been killed when they stepped in front of cars or trains.

Osawatimie officials now plan to initiate a new policy designed to relieve overcrowding by increasing the number of patients released from Osawatimie. Officials say they can handle the greater risk.

But others, such as Morgan are less confident. He fears these patients may harm themselves or others.

"I always wonder what could happen if some housewife catches a (patient) in her home," said Morgan.

David Clapsaddle, coordinator of research and training at Lamed State Hospital, which handles high risk patients, said dangerous patients require greater security.

"You have to have a secure facility for the forensic patient," Clapsaddle said.

Skull found during search

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — The mother of a missing Kansas City, Kan., woman found a human skull Saturday while she was searching for clues to her daughter's disappearance.

Linda King of Overland Park said she was acting on a tip from an anti-crime group when she discovered the skull on the front porch of a house in Kansas City, Kan.

King's daughter, Lori Newton, 23, has been missing since Aug. 3.

King's husband, Brad, and five friends were helping with the search. A television news team was accompanying the group when the skull was discovered at about 11:30 a.m.

Police and bloodhounds joined the search after the skull was discovered.

Police said they would contact a pathologist this week to help determine the identity of the victim, but they said it would be difficult because the teeth had been removed. Police said they did not know how long the skull had been there or how long the victim had been dead.

Capt. Milan Supica of the Kansas City, Kan., police department said he thought the skull had been placed on the porch intentionally.

Police said they know who lives in the house, but they said they had no suspects.

Lansing searches for physician

LANSING — Despite a nine-month search that has cost $6,500, the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing has not found anyone interested in becoming chief physician at the prison.

"Any idea anyone's got on how to find a doctor, we're following," said David McKune, deputy director at the prison. "It's been a top priority with us all year long."

The search was intensified by a scathing report from the U.S. Justice Department, which told the prison it needs to fill the vacant position immediately.

Prison officials began a national search for a chief physician in January, when the former chief was fired for personal reasons that were not disclosed publicly.

The job has been advertised as paying up to $80,500, depending on experience and specialties.

Dog or presidential race?

SEABROOK, N.H. — With presidential politics heating up in this bellwether state, officials at the Seabrook greyhound track have announced the card for their pre-presidential primary race. The names of the dogs, and their habits, may sound familiar to Republican odds-makers.

There is Robertson, born twice in the South, the lineup sheet says.

"Runs with the spirit of a winner," the track says, "Has a prayer of a chance."

Then there is a dog dubbed Dole, who was "unsuccessful in '76 Presidential as kennelmate to Ford," the tip sheet says.

"Both dogs faded due to peanut poisoning." The No. 3 dog in Tuesday's greyhound race is Kemp. "Plodder, runs to the extreme right."

Bush, No. 4, is "touted best of the GOP Kennel. Excellent record."

"Won '42nd and 43rd Veep Consolation races," the sheet reminds. "Always in the money."

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTERVIEW applicants for 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT FILING FORMS are now available in the Student Governing Association office in the Union. Filing deadline is Oct. 20.

CAREER COUNSELING CENTER Making a Major Decision — Career Life Planning Independent Study for one hour credit. Contact the Counseling Center, 532-6927, for details. The course begins this week.

ICAT sign up for the road trip to Missouri in Ahearn Field House 101. Cost is $25 for ticket and transportation.

GOLDEN KEY HONOR SOCIETY deadline for acceptance is today.

AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS can be picked up in Anderson 122. They are due today.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

HOMEcoming REPRESENTATIVES meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 207 to discuss homecoming parade; attendance is mandatory.

GYMNASTICS CLUB meets at 9 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

BETA ALPHA PSI meets at 7 p.m. in Union 212 for a panel discussion on private vs. public accounting.

TAU BETA PI meets at 7:15 p.m. in Union 206 for a smoker.

SOCIAL WORK ORGANIZATION meets at noon in Union Stateroom 3. Dave Kingsley will speak on social change.

CHIMES JUNIOR HONORARY meets at 9 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

PI SIGMA EPSILON meets at 7 p.m. in Union 208.

SENATE INTERNS meet at 7 p.m. in Union Student Government Office.

BUSINESS COUNCIL meets at 4 p.m. in Union 206.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS AMBASSADORS meets at 4:30 p.m. in Calvin 102.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATOR BROWN BAG LUNCHEON at noon at the International Student Center. Luis Palau will be the speaker.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATION DEADLINE at 8:15 a.m. in Eisenhower Dean's office.

Correction

Due to an editor's error, a headline for a story about K-State's Family Center was incorrect in Thursday's Collegian. The cost of counseling is not free, as the headline stated. Fees range from $5 to $60.

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL
Ice cream cakes & pies
Freshly baked cookies
Popcorn gift canisters
Open 7 days a week
1439 Anderson 537-7079
South of McCain Auditorium

The Station
STADIUM NIGHT MONDAY

$1 STADIUM BEERS
(32 oz.)
25¢ BAR BURGERS
OR 6 FOR $1.39, 5-12 p.m.

Taco Tuesday
Tomorrow!
1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

THE JEAN STATION
QUITTING BUSINESS SALE

20% off
Regular Priced Merchandise
ENTIRE STOCK INCLUDED
ALL SALES FINAL
NO EXCHANGES • NO REFUNDS • NO PAYAWAYS
AGGIEVILLE, MANHATTAN
1217 MORO
HOURS: 10-6 M-Sat 10-8:30 Thurs 1-5 Sun

INSTANT REPLAY MONDAY

2-FER STEINS
99¢ LATE NITE NACHOS
(REGULAR), 11-12

Grill open till 1 a.m. nitely!
Open to Public!

KITE'S BAR AND GRILL
619N. 12th, Aggieville

BUSHWACKERS
Comedy Invasion
Every Monday and Tuesday 9 p.m.
Special 2nd Anniversary Show:
Prizes! Drink Specials!
Two National Headline Comedians!
The Doc of Comedy Rock: Dr. Gonzo
The Comedian with the Biggest Lips:
Dan Chopin
We want to thank YOU for your support over the last two years. You've made Bushwacker's the #1 comedy spot in Kansas! Come join the tradition of laughter at:
BUSHWACKERS 531 N. Manhattan 539-9727

Yearbook Portraits
TODAY: Pi Beta Phi, Pi Kappa Alpha, Off Campus
Oct. 6: Pi Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Off Campus
Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Attention:
Students, Faculty/Staff and Campus Departments
1987-88 Campus Directories on Sale NOW
You'll need the directory to call friends, conduct campus business, use the coupons and yellow page ads, and refer to campus and city maps.
Get your directory at the tables near the Union Travel Board from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, Oct. 5-7.
$1 for students (limit two with student I.D.) and $1.50 for non-students.

Teachers in Chicago sign 2-year contract

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Representatives of the Chicago Teachers Union on late Sunday approved a two-year contract that ended a four-week teachers' strike, the longest in the city's history.

The 563-95 vote by the union's House of Delegates guarantees that the system's 28,000 teachers and other employees will start work Monday, said union spokesman Chuck Burdeen. The agreement was reached a day earlier.

The contract will be submitted to rank-and-file union members over the next few weeks, Burdeen said.

The system's 430,000 students would return Tuesday, officials said. Teachers went on strike Sept. 8, their ninth walkout in 18 years.

The proposed contract, reached Saturday, called for a 4 percent pay raise this year and a 4 percent increase the next year, with the second-year increase depending on additional state funds. The contract also called for some reductions in class size.

Trio of talent

Johan Dorrestein, Olga Franssen and Helenus De Rijke of the Amsterdam Guitar Trio perform at McCain Auditorium Saturday. The Trio played pieces from Bach, Debussy, Chopin and others in a two hour concert. This performance was a part of the McCain International Season series. The next performance will be "Little Women" by the Children's Theatre Company.

Staff/Brad Camp

Charlie's becomes 21 bar

By The Collegian Staff

After a recent series of bar checks in Manhattan conducted by the Kansas Alcoholic Beverage Control, one local bar owner is changing his policies concerning the admittance of minors.

Charlie's Neighborhood Bar is changing to a strictly 21 bar, said owner Charlie Busch.

"We have gone to a lot of trouble not to allow minors (in the past) to consume cereal malt beverages," Busch said.

But despite a stamping system Charlie's has used to distinguish between minors and its over-21 patrons, five citations were given in Charlie's on Sept. 28 to minors for consumption of cereal malt beverage.

Busch said he didn't believe the bar's image had been damaged by the incident and that the decision to change to 21 was a "self-imposed" policy change.

"We haven't received any threats or pressure," he said. "We just don't want to do anything to risk losing our license."

A Manhattan city ordinance allows people between 18 and 21 to enter a bar or tavern as long as they don't consume cereal malt beverages.

But, Sgt. Larry Freeby of the Riley County Police Department said minors who are caught consuming alcoholic beverages in bars are given a citation to appear in court.

If the individual is between 18 and 21, the misdemeanor is punishable by a minimum fine of $100 and a maximum fine of $250 or by 40 hours of public service. The two punishments may also be combined.

Freeby said the bartender or waitress serving the minor can also be issued a citation to appear in court and may receive the same fine as the minor, with the addition of a possible jail sentence not exceeding 30 days.

ABC is authorized to levy fines and revoke or suspend bars' licenses, Freeby said.

The Kansas law states that no person under the legal drinking age may attempt to purchase or consume cereal malt beverages.

HUD grants $109,000 to help graduates

By The Collegian Staff

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has granted $109,000 to the Department of Regional and Community Planning at K-State.

The money will be used to support graduate education and professional internships for seven graduate students in planning and public administration, said Vernon Deines, professor of regional and community planning and director of the HUD grant at K-State.

The seven graduate students — five in regional and community planning and two in public administration — will split the money from the grant, he said. The funds will pay for the students' tuition, fees, books and supplies for two years.

Students will serve as interns for local public agencies, Deines said. The students work 16 hours a week for the agencies and also take graduate courses.

"Some of these students have been out of school for awhile and this grant is giving them the chance to come back and get their graduate degrees," Deines said.

He said the grant provides the opportunity to increase the number of women and minorities in community planning and at the same time increase enrollment in the graduate program.

"The HUD grant has made it possible to attract and recruit minority and female students," Deines said. "About 10 percent of our graduates have been black Americans, and in recent years there has been an increase in the number of women."

Grant money is also helping the agencies because they are receiving additional staff with experience and it helps stimulate economic development in the community, he said.

Half of the money is received each year and almost all of the money goes to the students, Deines said.

"Students receive $7,500 each year from the grant and only $7,000 from the entire grant will be used for administrative purposes," he said.

Research works.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

Would Like to Say

THANK YOU to the women of

AXΩ

for letting us work with you on

GREEK PLAYBOY

Congratulations

On Your Success

1800 Claflin 539-9619

The Children's Theatre Company
LITTLE WOMEN

"The finest children's theatre in the country."—L.A. Times

Wednesday, October 7
8:00 p.m.

McCain Auditorium

General Public: $12, 10, 8
Students/Seniors: $8, 6, 5

Box Office open 12 noon to 5 p.m.

Monday-Friday

Call 532-6428 to charge tickets

to MasterCard or VISA.

This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through their participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

SHEAR DYNAMICS
CUSTOM HAIR DESIGN 776-9100

VISIT US AT OUR NEW LOCATION

15% OFF
ALL PERMS
THRU OCT. 10

1125 Laramie, ground floor, Laramie Plaza

Falsetto's PIZZA

539-3830

For the Best "Homemade" Pizza in town with the Best "Hometown" Price.

Two Delicious Homemade Pizzas

$5.99

MENU

Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
	TWO 10"	TWO 14"
Cheese	8.99	8.99
1 Item	8.94	10.39
2 Items	7.89	11.79
3 Items	8.84	13.19
4 Items	9.79	14.59
Deluxe	9.79	14.59
Veggie	9.79	14.59
Supreme	10.74	15.99
Each Additional Item95	1.40

Prices do not include tax

We Accept Checks

1127 Moro • Aggieville

SALES & CLEARANCES!

BRAND NAMES FOR LESS!

$24.99

FORENZA & OUTBACK RED
COTTON-BLEND SWEATERS
VALUES $39-49

NOW $13.99

Lee CLAUDE
BRITTANIA
& OTHERS

DENIM JEANS & SKIRTS
(Junior & Misses 5-14)
VALUES $27-40

NOW $13.99

STONEWASHED
COTTON SHIRTS
VALUES $28-29

NOW $13.99

Hunters Run
15-BUTTON HENLEY TOPS
VALUE $25

OUTBACK RED

FORENZA
SPORTWEAR

IN MANHATTAN

OPEN HOURS:

Mon.-Fri. 10 am - 9 pm
Saturday 10 am - 6:30 pm
Sunday Noon - 5:30 pm

• FREE LAYAWAYS
• RETURN & EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES

TOWN EAST CENTER

MARKET
FOOD
LANE
FASHION
COMPANY
EAST PORT

DESIGNER AND NAME BRAND FASHIONS FOR LESS!!

Fashion Company

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, October 5, 1987 ■ Page 4

Palestinian office closed for wrong reasons

In the midst of all the festivities celebrating the creation of the glorious U.S. Constitution, there lies — ironically — an ugly, glaring example of just how undemocratic and out of control the American government has become.

Recently, the Reagan Administration decided — primarily at the urging of Republican members of Congress — to close the Palestine Information Office in Washington, D.C. The other Palestine Information Office, which is New York-based and affiliated with the United Nations, is allowed, for now, to remain open.

The PIO has been in operation in Washington, D.C., for many years and has aided the American public in developing a more balanced understanding of the Palestinian people. The mission of the office is strictly informational in nature, providing Americans with information concerning the Palestinian people and their government.

The PIO is operated by the Palestine Liberation Organization, the "parliament in exile" of the Palestinian people. Because the PLO plays an important role in the future stability of the Middle East and must be included in all negotiations pertaining to the destiny of the world's 4.5 million Palestinians, experts say the closing of the PIO will only hinder the peace process in the Middle East.

But if the potential for making matters worse in the Middle East is not enough to be concerned about, there is an even scarier, more destructive facet to the PIO shut-down.

A recent article in the highly regarded Christian Science Monitor points out that the decision to close the PIO was not made in a normal, good old democratic way. Quoting from the Monitor: "...the decision was worked out in negotiations between the State Department and representatives of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, a pro-Israel lobbying group...."

If the fact that a lobbying group has so much power regarding a significant, international decision is not scary, then take a look at who drafted the legislation that shut down the PIO: the American Jewish Congress.

Now, the first question I want to ask is this:

Commentary

PATTI PAXSON
Staff
Writer

What in God's name does Israel or being Jewish have to do with an American-based information office regarding the Palestinian people? If the PIO was based in Israel or the occupied West Bank or Gaza Strip or even in countries bordering Israel, then Israeli/Jewish groups may very well want to monitor its operations.

However, the American-based PIO offices are the business of no other country but the United States, and Israeli interest groups have no right whatsoever to negotiate with the State Department in its closing. Unfortunately for the American public, though, our legislators are dumb enough (uncaring enough? lazy enough? uninformed enough?) to let an interest group take hold of the reins of this country and ride the American people for all they're worth.

I am in no way naive to the fact that lobbying groups play a very visible role in the making of American politics. Letting interest groups take on the responsibilities of lawmakers, though, is pushing democracy and control right out the window. In the case of the PIO shut-down, this is exactly what happened.

And the story does not end here.

The Israeli government and its many American-based interest groups have attached an inherent terrorism trait to all Palestinians. So where the PIO is concerned, it, too, is inherently infested with terrorism, as groups like AIPAC and the American Jewish Congress have accused.

Yet isn't it odd that neither of the American PIOs have been linked to any damage or harm to Americans, but the Israeli-oriented interest groups that negotiated the PIO shut-down have connections with — according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation — the deadliest terrorist group on American soil: the Jewish Defense League?

While the Israeli government is first to point out the number of people killed abroad by individuals who have had connections at one time or another to the PLO, it is much less quick to acknowledge that an Israeli interest group, the JDL, is responsible for several terrorist attacks on American soil.

According to the "FBI Analysis of Terrorist Incidents and Terrorist-Related Activities in the United States in 1985," Jewish extremist groups carried out most of the terrorist attacks on American soil in 1985. In the last few years California, New England, New York, Washington D.C., Maryland and Virginia have experienced terrorist bombings and even murders by Jewish extremist groups — primarily the JDL.

The time is long overdue for the nation's lawmakers to find out exactly "who's zoom-in' who" where Israeli interests are concerned. There is some serious, misdirected finger-pointing being done by Israeli/Jewish interest groups.

Perhaps it's time to look more closely at what they have in the other hand.

As difficult as it seems, fans must support team

Humiliating.
Frustrating.
Demoralizing.

Those words have been used to describe the K-State football program, and after the 'Cats' 37-25 loss to Tulsa Saturday afternoon, they were probably uttered a few more times.

Those words undoubtedly echo in Coach Stan Parrish's mind after every game, and the task facing Parrish and the rest of the team is not an enviable one.

In fact, the team's opponent on the playing field is not the greatest obstacle the 'Cats face.

Their greatest challenge is to overcome, week after week, their self-doubt as well as a legion of K-State fans made cynical by season after season of losses. Granted, it's extremely difficult to be enthusiastic when the home team loses to such underwhelming forces as Austin Peay and Tulsa.

And it's difficult to remain optimistic when headline after headline heralds the team's unremarkable performance.

But there's more involved than just having a winning record. What's involved is the future success of the football program. This season — regardless of its outcome — could prove pivotal in that regard.

The K-State football program has gone far beyond the point of embarrassment. It has gone as low as it probably can or will.

The program needs answers and, as difficult and unlikely as it may sound, it also needs the support of everyone at K-State. It's extremely easy to root for a winner, and fans can be disgustingly fickle when a winning program turns sour.

Anyone who doesn't believe that can call the Kansas City Royals and ask them how the fans reacted to this season's performance.

But only when an outpouring of support is shown can the team be expected to improve. Fans have about as much influence in determining the final score as the team.

Just as the words "humiliating," "frustrating" and "demoralizing" characterize this year's team, there's no reason why the words "exciting" and "inspiring" can't describe next year's.

Interestingly, the home field advantage is often cited as a factor, but what most people don't realize is that there is most definitely such a thing as a home field disadvantage.

K-State fans must make sure this Wildcat team never learns what that is.

Senate must not buy 'Porsche'

Tradition dies hard here in the land of sunflowers. Kansans are raised knowing the value of hard work, a steady Christian faith and moderate Republicans like Sen. Nancy Kasenbaum, R-Kan.

K-Staters have their own traditions as well, albeit less laudable ones; the library remains underfunded, imbeciles riot when the Jayhawks come to town, and Student Senate continues to dig into students' bank accounts to pay for building projects.

Case in point: Holton Hall. You know, the building with the castle turret next to the library parking lot. Holton Hall houses several services of great benefit to students, including the Women's Resource Center, U-Learn, Counseling Center and Minority Affairs. Unfortunately the interior of the building is a nightmare of crumbling walls, exposed pipes and electrical outlets, and rooms lacking proper ventilation. Without question the building needs to be renovated.

The dire condition of Holton Hall is not a new phenomenon, nor has this problem escaped the attention of past K-State administrations. Their solution, however, was to schedule Holton, along with Dickens and Nichols halls, for demolition — presumably to put up a parking lot (you know the song) or perhaps another architectural abortion like the Blumont monstrosity across the street from Holton.

Fortunately some people appreciate the aesthetic advantages the architecture of these old buildings brings to our campus. All three buildings will be saved — Holton through a Student Services fee paid by each student. You'll find this and the other "extra" student fees listed on the back of your fee card. At the rates of $3 per full-time student, $1 per part-time student, per semester, student monies have been collected since 1982 to renovate Holton. The decision to do so was made by the 1982-83 Student Senate, whose members also determined the renovation should cost $780,000.

In principle that was not a good decision,

Commentary

DAN OWENS
Collegian
Columnist

because Holton is a state building and as such should be renovated with state funds, not student money. But each administration has its "priorities," and the 1982-83 Senate was informed that Holton was not a priority of the administration. Students could either allow the building to be demolished or fund its renovation themselves — a choice which appears to me to be a mild form of blackmail.

Student funding aside, I'm glad Holton got saved. But the history of the Holton project since 1982 provides a classic example of why students should not get involved in building projects. Although the renovation was discussed off and on by Senate, nobody stopped to consider cost escalations until last spring. At the last Senate meeting of the semester, University architect Larry Garvin informed Student Senate an additional $405,000 would be needed to renovate Holton in a first-class manner. Since then Student Senate, of which I am a member, has grappled with this problem.

Last spring Senate passed a bill, sponsored by me, which stated students would honor their original commitment of $780,000 to Holton, but that the administration should come up with the additional funds needed for a first-class renovation. As you might guess, Senate was informed this fall that Holton Hall is still not on the administration's list of priorities, and students would have to pay for any increase.

I think I've found a source of funding in the institutional support fee, which was levied last year by the administration when K-State faced a $100,000 revenue shortfall due to Governor Mike Hayden's budget cuts. At the time Senate was told the fee would be temporary, but, of course, once a bureaucratic entity gets its hands on a source of funding, the last thing it is going to do is eliminate that source.

Last year this fee raised $269,961, about $200,000 of which came from the students. Now you don't have to be a math major to figure out the $100,000 revenue shortfall was quickly made up. My proposal currently on the Senate floor asks that some of these funds be used to finance the renovation of Holton Hall. But again, Holton is not a 'priority' of the administration, and, of course, they have no shortage of figures describing how essential every penny of the institutional support fee is, and how it would be impossible to commit funds from this fee to Holton Hall.

So I say we have to stick to the $780,000 figure. A plan does exist which could renovate Holton for this amount. Maybe the renovation won't be first-class, but it won't be trash either. Sometimes we must judge when a Porsche is within our budget, or when a Volkswagen is what we can afford. In order to pay for something called the "Margin of Excellence" program, tuition is going to go up 15 percent (30 percent for out-of-state students) over the next 3 years. Given those increases, and unforeseen other increases which will undoubtedly arise, this is not a time when students can afford to be shelling out an additional $405,000 to renovate a state building.

Unfortunately, Student Senate has a tradition of "buying Porsches" on the student body's expense account — the Bramlage Basketball Coliseum is one example. This Thursday, Senate will vote on this issue. I encourage you to talk with your senators, attend Thursday's meeting and make your opinion known.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTOGRAPHICS EDITOR

John Thelander

CAMPUS EDITORS

Jenny Chambliss

Chad Sanborn

SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR

Judy Lundstrom

FEATURES EDITOR

Susan Staggensborg

AGRI-BUSINESS EDITOR

Janet Swanson

GOVERNMENT EDITOR

Candy Leonard

ARTS/ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR

Becky Howard

SPORTS EDITOR

Jeff Rapp

COPY EDITORS

Peggy Aeschliman

Becky Edwards

Lori Siegrist

STAFF WRITERS

Tom Denzel

Jennifer Dorsch

Lori Lindstrom

Alison Neely

COLUMNISTS

Judd Annis

Kirk Caraway

Doug Folk

REVIEWER

Gary Leffler

SPORTS WRITERS

Chase Clark

Bill Lang

Patti Paxson
Jodi Swengel
Debbie Whitson

Mike Kneger
Mike Nichols
Jeff Schrag

Tom Morris
Chris Wilhelm

SPORTS COLUMNISTS

Tom Purin

David Svoboda

PHOTOGRAPHERS

Brad Camp

Jim Dietz

Brad Fanshler

Brett Hacker

Gary Lytle

GRAPHIC ARTIST

Mary Ward

ADVERTISING GRAPHIC ARTIST

Alex Maure

EDITORIAL BOARD

Jeff Bielser

Kirk Caraway

Deron Johnson

Becky Lucas

ADVERTISING MANAGER

Judy Goetz

ASST. ADVERTISING MANAGER

Jada Allenhagen

REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVE

Bill Sherbert

CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER

Barry Steffen

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Donna Adelhardt

Stacey Darnell

Cathy Doud

CLASSIFIED SALES REPS

Tracy Mayhew

Jackie Clements

Janelle Dennis

DIRECTOR

Dave Adams

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR

Gloria Froeland

NEWS ADVISER

Connie Fulkerson

GRAD. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

David Svoboda

ADV. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

Wanda Haynie

Andy Nelson
Steve Rasmussen
Greg Vogel
Steve Wolgast

Judy Lundstrom
Patti Paxson
Chad Sanborn
Erwin Seba

Jennifer Kopp
Melissa Paul
Eric Snell

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116 or mailed to the Collegian.

Commissioners consider city's long-term goals

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

During a Saturday morning work session, city commissioners set long-term goals to improve city finances, promote industrial growth and develop regional cooperation.

Commissioners agreed Manhattan's first priority should be development of an overall financial plan.

"I'm tired of jumping through hoops at budget hearings wondering where we're going to find the money to pay for programs," Commissioner Nancy Denning said.

Commissioners also agreed that sources of revenue other than the property tax need to be explored.

"I think we should be trying to find alternative ways to finance local government away from this heavy reliance on property taxes," said Commissioner Kent Glasscock.

Cooperative lobbying efforts with area county and city governments to promote regional economic expansion was another goal set by the commission.

"There may be some things that Junction City needs that we should help them lobby for," Commissioner Richard B. Hayter said.

A ground-water inspection program was recommended to commissioners by City Manager Mike Conduff, as a way to meet the commission's goals of protecting and developing the city's water supply.

"We're in a position, if our water supply becomes contaminated, where Manhattan's going to die real quick," Conduff said.

The identification of industrial park sites was also determined as a goal of the city at the work session.

"There are two ways to look at that," said Commissioner Dave Fiser. "One is the prospective industrial developers who come in and say, 'Where can you find me a location?' and we scurry around and pick several sites."

"The other is we get the sites prepared ahead of time, and then we can say, 'Here it is, this is it. The best site in the Midwest,'" Fiser said.

In addition, Hayter said Manhattan should pursue the promotion of the growth of current industries in the city.

"I would like to have us look at the industries we've already got," Hayter said. "Are there things that we can do that will help them grow? Are there things we are doing now which prevent them from growing? Or, even worse than that, are there things we're now doing that would force them to leave?"

Conduff suggested one-stop building permits as a way for Manhattan to help industrial developers.

"Instead of making developers go to five offices to get a building permit, let's put a strategy together in which a developer goes to one person in City Hall and that person goes to five offices," Conduff said.

Bush returns from trip

Journey seen by some as campaign tool

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Polish Solidarity leader Lech Walesa had just lavishly praised Vice President Bush in Warsaw as a man who "deserves to lead a great nation," when Bush was asked how it felt to have the equivalent of a campaign endorsement from one of the world's best known figures.

"The question is, how many relatives does he have in Iowa?" the vice president replied with barely a pause. "That's the only thing I want to know."

Bush's jocular reference to the state that will pick early delegates to next year's Republican National Convention demonstrated the extent to which his official nine-day visit to Europe occurred against a backdrop of domestic politics.

Bush, who returned home on Saturday, will meet with President Reagan to report on his trip on Monday. He begins intensive presidential campaigning on Tuesday.

Already the front-runner in the race, Bush will make a formal declaration of his candidacy for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination on Oct. 12.

Bush insisted throughout that the trip was an official one, and the federal government picked up the cost. In London, he uttered a denial that he was behaving in a political fashion while standing a few feet from a video camera hired by his campaign organization.

And he and aides expressed particular satisfaction at the diplomatic outcome of his trip to Poland, where he met with government leaders, church officials and leaders of the banned Solidarity movement over a delicately scripted four days.

But having pronounced the trip a success, Bush said on his final day in Europe on Saturday that he expected to receive some political benefit.

"If the trip had not been successful, if it had been viewed as a massive failure ... there would have been some major political fallout for me," he said.

"There's bound to be some political benefit" the way it turned out, he concluded.

Bush's chief of staff, Craig Fuller, told reporters he believes Bush is helped politically every time he undertakes a foreign policy assignment because it underscores his experience in the field.

Bush's conservative campaign rivals may envy the vice president the dramatic videotape of him and Walesa appearing before thousands of cheering Poles at the balcony of a pro-Solidarity church in Poland.

But they may also criticize Bush for several elements of his trip:

■ The prospective agreement with the Soviet Union to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear weapons, which some conservatives already are complaining about.

■ Bush's delicate mission in Poland. There, he lent moral support to outlawed Solidarity and Walesa with a series of dramatic gestures, but agreed to help the Communist Polish government ameliorate its foreign debt problem without winning concrete human rights concessions from ruling Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski in exchange.

■ His offhand comment in Brussels that Soviet tank workers should be sent to Detroit for their quality of work.

The vice president swiftly apologized for any offense taken from his remark, the only obvious misstep in a grueling overseas trip. And he urged all who oppose the arms control treaty outline "to take another look at it."

Get Personal
in Collegian Classifieds

Godfather's Pizza welcomes the Students at K.S.U.

Pizza without the wait.

Finally, a cure for your instant Pizza Emergency. Hot Slice™ at Godfather's Pizza™ lets you enjoy choice cuts of luscious pizza for lunch without the wait you experience at other restaurants.

Hot Slice available Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

539-5303
1118 Laramie

GODFATHER'S
HOT SLICE
PIZZA

HOT SLICE
$3.19 Special

Receive one Hot Slice Pizza by the Slice, one trip to the salad bar and a medium drink for only $3.19.
Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.
Dine-in or Carryout.
Valid only at participating Godfather's Pizza restaurants. No coupon necessary.

Expires 10/21/87

LARGE PIZZA
MEDIUM PRICE!

Present this coupon and receive any large Original or Stuffed Pizza for the price of a medium.
Dine-in, Carryout, or Delivery.
On Sunday your choice either use this coupon or take advantage of our free drink offer. Sorry, can only choose one. Not valid with reliable or other promotional offers. Limited delivery area.

Expires 10/25/87

HOT SLICE
2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizza by the Slice for $2.00.
Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.
Dine-in or Carryout.
Valid only at participating Godfather's Pizza restaurants.
No coupon necessary.

Expires 10/25/87

2 for $12

Get two medium special pizzas (The Super Pepperoni or The Four Toppings) for just $12!
Dine-in, Carryout, or Delivery.
Not valid with other promotional offers or coupons. Valid only at participating Godfather's Pizza restaurants. Limited delivery area. Add $1 for delivery.

Expires 10/23/87

Brother's
KSU
IN AGGIEVILLE USA

$1 Pitchers
$2 Cover
Monday and Tuesday

1120 Moro
539-9064

Optometrists

Dedicated to Optometry
in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs. Price, Young, Odle and Horsch

1119 Westloop

537-1118

4th Annual

MANHATTAN MERCHANTS GIFT BOOK

Sponsored by 50 of the local Manhattan merchants

$1000 Value
Gift Certificate Book
for only $39⁹⁵

Our operators
may be contacting you 537-9022

Fulsetto's
Pasta House

2 for 1
Dinner

Monday, Oct. 5 only
Good for any menu item

Family Style Pastas
from $3.99
minimum 4 persons

OPEN:

Mon.-Sat. 4-10 p.m., Sun. 11 a.m.-9 p.m.
Now open to the public.

Across from the Holidome
537-8443

Looking for Hope?

World renowned author and public speaker addresses the heart cry
of all Kansans
— and all Americans.

hear
Luis Palau

Wed.-Sat. 7:30 p.m.

Sun. 4 p.m.

Yes, there is real hope.

October 7-11

KSU's Ahearn Fieldhouse

FREE ADMISSION

PASTA

SportsMonday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, October 5, 1987 ■ Page 6

Mistakes assure 'Cats remain winless

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

In about the same amount of time it takes a concert pianist to play "The Minute Waltz," K-State's football team literally handed Tulsa its first win of the season Saturday at KSU Stadium.

Leading 7-6 with 10:38 left in the second quarter, Tulsa scored 21 points in the next one minute and 21 seconds — courtesy of a blocked punt and two recovered fumbles — and went on to defeat the Wildcats, 37-25, in a game marred by mistakes from both squads.

On Band Day, the 'Cats could not be described as being harmonious.

"Obviously, it wasn't very pretty," K-State Coach Stan Parrish said. "Tulsa, they made the plays when they had to, but I didn't think it was very pretty...from either side really."

Combined, the two teams had more than 175 yards in penalties and eight turnovers. But it was K-State's three miscues in the second quarter, which led to Tulsa scores, that made the difference.

"To me, if you have no turnovers on either side, it's going to be a tight game won by a field goal," Tulsa Coach George Henshaw said.

The matchup between two passing teams quickly dissolved when Golden Hurricane tailback Derrick Ellison started running wild. When it was all said and done, Ellison had rambled for the second-best game of his career, gaining 183 yards on 30 carries. Tulsa, 1-4, rushed the ball 51 times and passed just 25.

Parrish said he wasn't surprised with Tulsa's running attack.

"I kind of had a sneaking feeling because we really hadn't stopped the run all year," he said.

Saturday's game might have also created a new quarterback controversy in Manhattan when Tim Hanson replaced Gary Swim in the second half, and finished the game throwing for more than 100 yards and two touchdowns.

Swim failed to reach the 100-yard mark for the fourth straight time this season, fumbled twice and had one interception. On the sidelines, Parrish was visibly unhappy with the junior college transfer from Utah.

"That's the way a coach communicates," said Swim of his conversations with Parrish. "You've got to get things straight; got to know what's happening. If he thinks you've got your head up your, you know, that's what a coach has to do."

Though Parrish made the switch, he said Swim is still his No. 1 quarterback.

"I thought our quarterback play in the first half was horrible, ball mechanics. The whole thing," Parrish said. "I made the change. I still think Gary's our starting quarterback. I went to the bullpen today."

Hanson, who lost the starting job after his lackluster first-half performance in the season-opening loss to Austin Peay, said in Swim's defense that quarterbacking isn't as easy as it looks from the stands.

Tulsa University cornerback Scooter Webb (20) tries to grab the ball as K-State punter David Kruger (17) and Tulsa linebacker Mike White (51) give chase after the Hurricane blocked a punt in the second quarter of the non-conference game Saturday in KSU Stadium. White recovered the ball in the endzone for a touchdown.

"(Gary and I) talked about it. We both know what's going on out there. Everyone can see a lot of stuff going on and they think it's so easy out there. All we can do is try to learn from (the mistakes)," Hanson said.

Tulsa opened the game by driving 67 yards in 10 plays for an early 7-0 lead. The 'Cats, 0-4, responded with two Mark Porter field goals of 23 and 42 yards to pull within one before K-State's turnover nightmare began.

First, Golden Hurricane strong safety Lenny Williams — who had two blocked punts in the game — blocks David Kruger's punt which is recovered in K-State's end zone. On the ensuing kickoff Terry Richards fumbles, Tulsa recovers, and two plays later lead 21-6. In K-State's next possession, tailback Maurice Henry is stripped of the ball. The Golden Hurricane recover and, before you can say turnover, lead the 'Cats by 22.

Tulsa's luck was running so well that on the second score of the quarter, a pitchout to Ellison bounced off the fullback's helmet and into the hands of Golden Hurricane quarterback T.J. Rubley, who strolled untouched into the end zone.

Coach Henshaw employed some strategy used by Kansas City Chiefs' Coach Frank Gansz and worked on his squad's special teams play.

"I said 'the heck with all those returns. We're going to go in there and block it,'" Henshaw said. "We felt like coming in today's game, watching the protection, we felt like we could block a punt. We were able to get two."

"We were definitely afraid of (the blocked punts) all week," Parrish said. "We've had problems with our punting game all year. I can't tell you until I see the films what exactly happened...but that was the ballgame."

K-State threatened to make a comeback when the 'Cats responded in the second half by scoring on a 64-yard touchdown drive. But Tulsa scored on a 38-yard touchdown run by Ellison on its next possession, and held on for the 12-point win.

Henry, who had 73 yards rushing, highlighted the Wildcats' ground attack with K-State's longest scoring run this season — 16 yards.

"I got down and ran through the hole and I saw a guy coming. But I was a snake and I was laying low because I smelled the goal line. Kent Dean came by, just took him out of the picture, and (the score) felt great," Henry said.

For Parrish, it was a loss that could be attributed to the loss of several key starters due to injuries, including tailback Tony Jordan and wide receiver John Williams who are both out with ankle injuries.

"We played...without Jordan and Williams today, and I don't think it takes an Einstein to see that we're maybe not (a) great group with 'em, but we're less without 'em and it hurts in our preparation," he said.

And it's another week of trying to discover how to eliminate the mental mistakes that have plagued the 'Cats for most of the season.

"In 15 weeks, I haven't figured it out yet," Parrish said. "Keep trying and keep trying something different, but a history of not winning...makes that very difficult."

STATISTICS	KSU	TULSA
First Downs	19	22
Rushing Yards	110	266
Passing Yards	186	164
Return Yards	7	55
Att.-Comp.-Int.	38-16-2	25-14-1
Total Yards	296	430
Fumbles-Lost	4-2	3-3
Penalties	10-69	12-115

RUSHING — K-State, Henry 18-73, Lewis 14-48, Swim 4-(-7), Dillon 1-(-4); Tulsa, Beasley 3-14, Morrison 8-41, Ellison 30-183, Rubley 3-3, Adams 7-25.

PASSING — K-State, Hanson 19-8-1-102, Swim 19-8-1-84; Tulsa, Rubley, 25-14-1-164.

RECEIVING — K-State, Dean 6-73, Lewis 3-29, Wilson 3-19, Tolbert 2-41, Blades 2-24; Tulsa, Ellison 3-14, Anderson 2-43, Adams 3-32, Morrison 2-13, Bitson 1-29, McVay 1-20, Harrison 1-14, Beasley 1-6.

Coach Stan Parrish yells at Gary Swim after a second quarter drive stalled. Parrish replaced Swim with Tim Hanson in the second half.

Ellison comes off bench to end season dry spell

By Jeff Rapp
Sports Editor

When the Tulsa Golden Hurricane rolled into Manhattan for Saturday's game against K-State, a loaded aerial arsenal was one thing the team could boast.

Of course, Tulsa was winless, with previous losses coming to tough opponents Oklahoma, Arkansas, Florida and Oklahoma State. But freshman quarterback T.J. Rubley had averaged 207 yards passing per game and had completed 56 percent of his passes for 811 yards and four touchdowns.

In each of the Hurricane's first four games, in fact, it passed for more yardage than it rushed, including 278 yards passing countered by just two yards rushing in a 30-13 loss to Arkansas.

The state of the Tulsa rushing game definitely improved against K-State.

The Hurricane racked up 287 yards on the ground and junior tailback Derrick Ellison alone accounted for 183 of those yards. Ellison, who didn't start the game, was substituted for freshman red-shirt tailback Ron Beasley with 12 minutes left in the first half and from there, things took off.

Ellison — who this season had gained only 167 yards on 42 carries in four games — credited the banner rushing day to the men who opened the holes for him.

"The offensive line did a great job of blocking," Ellison said. "They really came into the game wanting to win and I came in with the attitude that I had something to prove to myself and to the rest of the team. And we just needed a win."

Tulsa, 7-4 last year but winless until Saturday this season, saw Ellison become only the fifth back in the school's history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in a single season last year. With a less-than-spectacular start this year, though,

Ellison was glad to see the rushing attack become effective against K-State.

"(K-State) played a pretty good game, but we had to pick it up after a loss of confidence in four straight losses.

"I regained my confidence and got my attitude back to the way it's supposed to be. The team is really up on a win and it should carry on to the next game," Ellison said.

Tulsa Head Coach George Henshaw said his game plan was to establish the run against the 'Cats.

"We talked about it as a team and we said, 'hey, we're not going to turn the ball over, we're going to go out and get first downs and we're going to try to run the ball on them.'"

"Coming into the game, I was planning on throwing the ball more than we did. Don't get me wrong, but we were planning on coming in and we were going to establish the toss-sweep play," Henshaw said.

Tulsa running back Derrick Ellison spent most of Saturday's contest slashing through the Wildcat defense and ended the game with 183 yards on 30 carries.

Big Eight teams stay consistent

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — South Carolina did its best to spoil the Big Eight's nationally ranked 1-2 punch, but came up short.

No. 2 Nebraska, a 19-point favorite, rallied to score the final 17 points Saturday and down the Gamecocks 30-21, on a day which saw every Big Eight team but one do what it had done the previous week.

No. 1 Oklahoma made sure it will stay at the top by crushing Iowa State 56-3 in Ames, Iowa. The Sooners and Huskers are both 4-0, with Oklahoma taking the early lead in the conference standings by winning before anybody else is into league action.

Oklahoma State, the other unbeaten Big Eight team, had the week off. But now there is one less winless team in the conference.

Kansas snapped a 10-game losing streak by beating the team it had last beaten — Southern Illinois. Getting a second 1-yard touchdown run from freshman quarterback Kevin Verdugo with 1:02 left, Kansas edged the Division I-AA Salukis 16-15. Victory was not secure until Southern Illinois' John Brda missed a 50-yard field goal — by a couple of feet left — with 19 seconds to play.

Colorado didn't play the game it wanted to, but the Buffs did raise their record to 3-1 with a mistake-filled 29-16 victory over a winless Colorado State.

Missouri was also afflicted with fumbles, losing five of nine and dropping to 2-2 when Syracuse, unbeaten in five games, rolled to a 24-13 conquest of the Tigers in Columbia.

Nebraska's defense harried Todd Ellis all day and sacked the South Carolina quarterback six times. Although Ellis passed for 256 yards and two touchdowns, he also threw three interceptions, including one to safety Mark Blazek that set up a clinching field goal. Last year at

South Carolina, a last-second interception by Nebraska saved another close victory.

"If Ellis wants to keep throwing to our safeties, we'll keep catching them," Blazek said. "Ellis is a good passer, but he looked a little shook at the end of the game."

Keith Jones rushed for 129 yards and two fourth-quarter touchdowns for the Huskers.

Jim Walden got what he asked for out of Iowa State's game against Oklahoma, and not much else. When asked what he wanted to get out of the game, Walden had said, "My players."

"It will take somebody's greatest ability to beat these guys," Walden said after the game. "The last time I saw that much speed was at the NCAA track meet."

Jamelle Holieway passed for two touchdowns and ran for another and Anthony Stafford scored three times to lead the Sooners to their fourth straight rout. The Sooners in four games have outscored North Texas State, North Carolina, Tulsa and Iowa State by a combined 218-17, an average rout of about 54-4.

"Offensively, this was the best half we've played this year," Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said of the first two quarters.

Colorado used five Colorado State turnovers to beat the winless Rams before a record Hughes Stadium crowd of 38,129.

"For the most part, it was the mistakes CSU made that triggered this victory," said Colorado Coach Bill McCartney. "I wasn't really pleased with our offense or our defense."

Kansas' Kevin Verdugo, making his first college start as a freshman quarterback, scored on two 1-yard plunges against the ragged Salukis. Then the Jayhawks had to survive a Brda's field goal attempt with 19 seconds left.

Baseball team weathers weekend

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

The K-State baseball team weathered the competition this past weekend by defeating three opponents in two days.

Saturday night the 'Cats started off the weekend by topping Iowa Western Community College 14-9, then continued by leveling Barton County Community College and Kansas City Kansas Community College 21-6 and 10-6, respectively, in a doubleheader on Sunday.

K-State head baseball coach Mike Clark said his team packed a lot of quality play into a short time this weekend.

"The kids that we put in there played well this whole weekend — three games, 27 innings in less than 24 hours against good competition. We have a lot to work on, but I was pleased. Our hustle was good, we were alert, there were a few breakdowns, but nothing we can't work on. Kansas City Kansas has a great ball club. They really look like they are going to have a solid team. Barton County and Iowa Western are good ball clubs. It was good competition, we had to keep our concentration level up against these people," Clark said.

Besides the play of his team as a whole, Clark was pleased with the effort put forth by his younger players.

"We had some kids who didn't do a lot for us last year. We didn't know what role they would have on the team for us this year. They really stepped forward and showed us that they improved. It's different. This is the second year that they are in the program so they are a little more relaxed, they know what is expected of them," Clark said.

Despite the three big wins, the second-year coach saw some lessons to be learned from areas that could be strengthened.

K-State shortstop Scott Spangenberg reels around after tagging out Rodney Jones of Kansas City Kansas Community College as he tried to steal second base Sunday. The 'Cats won the game, 10-6.

Friendship, objectivity: Mixing two can prove difficult

When I began my career as a journalist many moons ago, I seem to remember someone saying something about "objectivity."

"It's important to remember to keep your personal opinion out of your work," that faceless, nameless journalism instructor said. "And you mustn't get too close to your source — whether you're a beat writer or not."

The advice was basically simple and sound. Journalists shouldn't let opinion enter into how they cover stories, and it is wise for a writer not to get too involved with a source, lest he lose his sense of perspective.

It is the job of a journalist to give the reader "just the facts," to steal a line from Joe Friday.

It's a job that's a lot tougher than it sounds.

While attempting to maintain a sense of objectivity as a writer, I have a confession, of sorts, to make — Stan Parrish is my friend and I'll back him 100 percent in everything he does to improve the football program at K-State.

Before you begin bailing out and muttering to yourselves about how

"Svoboda's lost it for good this time," hear me out.

K-State has been my home for the past five years and two months, and during that time I've grown to think of this town and University as just that — my home.

Very few people have come along in that time that have made a conscious effort to boost the morale and spirit of my home — our home.

Jon Wefald surely has. And so, my friends, has Stan Parrish.

I must admit, I'm not only a sports writer, I'm a big fan as well. K-State's my alma mater and by God, I'll have trouble to the end of time sitting in the press box and remaining quiet when my Wildcats — our Wildcats — are giving the fans something to go wild about.

"Wait a minute," you say. "How in the world can you talk about Stan Parrish and excitement at an athletic event in the same breath?"

Easy.

Granted, Stan Parrish has only produced two wins in his 15 games as K-State's head football coach, but those two wins are probably two

Svoboda on Sports

DAVID SVOBODA
Sports Columnist

more than any other human I know would have been able to milk from this group of individuals at this University.

That's not intended to be a knock off the players Parrish has assembled here. And that's not a knock off the players Jim Dickey brought to Manhattan, either.

What that statement means, to me, is that Stan Parrish is the best man K-State possibly could have hired to get this program turned around.

If Stan can't get it done, no one will. Ever.

What makes me so steadfast in that belief? And why should you listen to a guy that joined Parrish in saying that this team might just win five or six games?

It's simple, really. I believe, and you should believe, because we're the only ones who can make sure we — yes, we — have a chance to get this thing turned around.

If K-State fans don't make this a personal thing, and make it personal quickly, this program is destined to do nothing but fail until all of the sand has left the top half of the hourglass.

If we don't get involved now, we won't see a winner here in the days of our lives, or our children's lives...or their's for that matter.

Let me tell you a few things about Parrish, a man I've been around on an almost daily basis for the last two football seasons.

First and foremost, he shoots straight. You'll never hear Stan Parrish say one thing and mean another. If his team stunk, he'll be the first to tell you. This is the guy who said Gary Swim's play at quarterback in Saturday's loss to Tulsa was "horrible."

Stan probably told Gary that too.

Parrish expects his players to bring the same intensity onto the field that he does, and anything less just won't cut it. A difficult task master he is, but that's what's needed here now.

Secondly, he's not afraid to try something — anything — different if it means he might just help his team in even the smallest way.

Take the now infamous letter Parrish wrote us last week, soliciting our support, much as I'm doing now. He took a real gamble in going public with his problems and asking for help, but it was a gamble he knew he had to take.

He also knew he'd be gambling by joining Iowa State Head Coach Jim Walden in going to the National Collegiate Athletic Association in an attempt to get the number of scholarships at the two schools expanded so they could compete with the big boys of big-time, Big Eight football.

It's darn near impossible to expect a man that has twenty fewer players on scholarship than do his coaching foes to instantly produce a football dynasty. Especially at a school with little or no football tradition.

As Stan said countless times last week, "If Vince Lombardi lined up with 30 players and his opponents had 40, you probably wouldn't be hearing much about him today. A coach can only do so much."

Right again. Simply stated, Parrish has gone out and hit the recruiting trail harder than any coach I've ever worked with. He's spent more hours in his office looking at film than his wife and children would care to think about. He's solicited alumni support more vehemently than anyone wearing the purple since Vince Gibson and the "Purple Pride" era of the late 1960s and early 1970s.

He's stuck his neck out more times than anyone with such a strong track record should ever have to.

And he's fighting this fight for us. Wake up and smell the coffee, people. Stan Parrish had very little to gain and one heck of a lot to lose when he took this job.

He had never experienced a losing season as a head coach until last year. Sure, if he was (or is) able to turn the K-State program around, he had

■ See STAN, Page 11

Tau Kappa Epsilon player Von Hallauer avoids a tag by Steve Groth, player for the Theta Xis at the 6th annual Phi Delta Theta "Score For Charity" flag-football tournament. Twenty-six organizations participated in the fund-raiser for Lou Gehrig's Disease.

Football tourney 'does it for Lou'

By Nancy Chartrand
Collegian Reporter

This weekend the Phi Delta Theta fraternity sponsored its sixth annual "Score For Charity" flag-football tournament at Memorial Stadium, and they "did it all for Lou."

"We had nine sororities, 13 fraternities and four independent men's teams participating," Scott Thompson, tournament director and member of Phi Delta Theta, said.

In the women's division, the first place trophy went to Kappa Kappa Gamma, second to Gamma Phi Beta and third to Alpha Xi Delta. In the men's division, first place went to Tau Kappa Epsilon, second to Theta Xi and third to The Patriarchs, an independent team from Kansas City, comprised of K-State alumni.

"The Kappas and the Gamma Phis did very well for this being their first year in the tournament," said Thompson. "However, this was the second year in a row that the TKEs won."

All proceeds from the double-elimination tournament go to the Phi Deltas' philanthropy, Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis or as it is commonly referred to, Lou Gehrig's Disease. Gehrig was a famous New York Yankees baseball player, who died of the disease.

"Last year we sent the ALS foundation $2,500. I believe that is more than any other philanthropy at K-State," said Thompson. "This year we hope to be able to send the foundation between $2,000 and $3,000."

Money was raised through entry fees, donations from local merchants and a cover charge for their kick-off party Friday night, Thompson said. About 1,200 people attended the party which featured a band called The Catch, he said.

"The party, which was planned by my assistant, Mike Lowmore, went over well. Everyone really seemed to like the band."

A deluxe suite at the University Inn and dinner for two at the University Club was also raffled off.

Pickets cause flack before 'scab games'

By The Associated Press

Pickets in Philadelphia closed the gates to the stadium and only 4,074 fans entered through a corridor of mounted police as thousands of union members supporting the NFL strike demonstrated at game sites on Sunday.

In Detroit, seven people were arrested for disobeying a court order not to interfere with people entering the stadium.

Supporters demonstrated without arrest in other NFL cities, including Denver, Atlanta, Cincinnati, Washington, Buffalo, New Orleans and Pittsburgh.

In Philadelphia, three dozen trucks, tractor-trailer rigs and vans stopped bumper-to-bumper on the street next to Veterans Stadium 45 minutes before game time, paralyzing traffic. One truck had a sign that said, "Teamsters Don't Like Scabs." One car was attacked by pickets and had its windshield smashed and radio antenna ripped off.

The game, which normally would draw about 60,000 people, was attended by only 4,074. Police said about 1,500 pickets were outside the stadium.

In Detroit, only 4,919 fans showed up for a game that had an advance sale of 40,000. At least seven people were arrested, given citations and released for disobeying the orders of police directing traffic, authorities said.

Pickets from several unions joined strikers outside the Louisiana Superdome where 29,745 fans showed up, the smallest crowd in the team's 21-year history.

In Atlanta, about 1,000 union members joined striking players outside Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium before the game between the Falcons and the Pittsburgh Steelers. The Falcons had the smallest crowd ever in October, 16,667. The team normally would draw about 40,000.

In Buffalo, police said about 3,500 people turned out at a park for an autograph session held by striking players, including quarterback Jim Kelly and nose tackle Fred Smerlas. And in Washington, about 2,000 union members picketed outside RFK Stadium as 27,728 people entered, the first non-sellout since 1966 for the Redskins. The 159-game streak had been the longest in the NFL. One ticketholder carried a sign that read, "I'm Pro-Union, but Anti-NFL greed."

The most dramatic confrontation was in Philadelphia.

Hundreds of pickets wearing union jackets and carrying signs showed up three hours before the 1 p.m. kickoff, and the numbers grew.

Exchange benefits colleges' diversity

Learning includes culture, textbooks

By Ann Iseman
Collegian Reporter

Exchange is defined as "to give and receive." In an exchange, no one loses.

When colleges exchange students, both schools benefit from the added cultural diversity and the international awareness the students' presence creates.

The College of Human Ecology at K-State and the University of Otago School of Home Science in New Zealand participate in a yearly student exchange program. A K-State undergraduate attends Otago every other year, and in the alternate years, an Otago alumnus attends graduate school at K-State.

Helen McGlone is having an "overseas experience" or an O.E. as she calls it. She has come from New Zealand to earn a master's degree in community nutrition.

Karna Peterson, junior in dietetics, who says she was "bitten by the travel bug at an early age," attended Otago in 1986.

"Young people in New Zealand are encouraged to have an O.E.," McGlone said. "We live in a small, isolated country. We need more exposure to the rest of the world. Most of my friends go to Britain or Europe because they have relatives there or because of the image they have of the U.S."

Many New Zealanders have a negative attitude toward the United States, largely because of President Reagan, television and movies, McGlone said.

"Reagan just doesn't seem in control, and his nice little statements are very annoying," she said. "In the news only the strange things are broadcast; these strange, violent things seem to typify America."

Despite the bad image, McGlone said she has always wanted to come to the "states" and is glad she did.

"It's so big and so different," she said. "There are so many parts of America that you can't go to (just) one part and say, 'OK, this is America.'"

Peterson, who was known as "Dorothy" during her first few weeks in New Zealand, was also glad she participated in the exchange.

"It (New Zealand) was a lot more relaxed, slower-paced," she said.

"Reagan just doesn't seem in control, and his nice little statements are very annoying."

—Helen McGlone

After many heated discussions involving Reagan, Peterson realized many New Zealanders assume all Americans like Reagan.

"They didn't understand that I don't necessarily like what Reagan is doing either," she said. "They (New Zealanders) hated Reagan. They are really anti-nuclear."

Peterson said another distinction New Zealanders hate is being "lumped with Australia, as if they are the same."

"Australia is next to New Zealand," McGlone said. "Get it right. I get annoyed at people when they hear my accent and automatically assume that I'm from Britain or Australia."

Not only do exchange students like McGlone and Peterson benefit by their experience, but they also help reduce the misconceptions held by people in both countries.

When Peterson first arrived in New Zealand, many of the students asked her if all Americans really drive Corvettes to high school, and if they all carry guns to school because it is so dangerous.

McGlone said she would tell her friends in New Zealand not every part of America is like New York. She knew little about Kansas before she came here.

"I knew it is in the middle of the country, it is flat, it has a lot of wheat, there are a lot of tornadoes and Wichita makes airplanes," McGlone said.

McGlone traveled to North Carolina and Virginia last summer and was surprised to find that the people there were just as curious about Kansas as they were about New Zealand.

Both Peterson and McGlone appreciated the difference between Kansas and New Zealand in climate.

"The seasons here are so defined," McGlone said. "I love the thunderstorms — they are so dramatic. In New Zealand, the climate is mild and the change in seasons is barely noticeable."

Peterson said the climate in New Zealand wasn't as extreme as Kansas' climate.

"Since it is a small island, and anywhere you go is close to the ocean, the temperature tended to be mild," she said.

Four die in Kansas traffic over weekend

By The Associated Press

Four people died after traffic accidents in Kansas this weekend, including three people who were killed Saturday afternoon in a two-vehicle accident four miles west of Wamego on U.S. 24, the Kansas Highway Patrol said.

The patrol identified the dead as Donald E. Good, 61, Wamego; Carmen Alicia-Sanchez, 43, Fort Riley, and her daughter, Brenda, 16.

The patrol said Good's van collided nearly head-on with the car in which the Alicia-Sanchezs were riding. The driver of that car, Nereida Andujar, 39, of Fort Riley, and her daughter, Jarigsa, 15, were listed in critical condition at Stormont-Vail Regional Center Sunday.

The women's husbands and other children were following in another vehicle and witnessed the accident.

An 86-year-old Topeka woman died Saturday afternoon as a result of injuries she suffered late Friday in a two-vehicle accident at the east entrance of the Kansas Expocentre in Topeka.

Vera P. Mallon's vehicle collided with a pickup truck at about 10:15 p.m. Friday, said traffic officer Shawn Miller. After the collision, Ms. Mallon's car hit a light pole.

Countries resume talks

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, India — India and China will hold an eighth round of talks on a border dispute next month in New Delhi, Foreign Ministry officials said Sunday.

The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said India suggested Nov. 13 as the starting date for negotiations, the United News of India reported. It was not reported whether China agreed to the date.

India and China fought a bloody 1962 border war.

A day's worth of reasons for joining

HOW MANY CALORIES ARE IN THIS PICTURE? WHO CARES?

If you've eaten any of this stuff in the past week, chances are good you're still carrying it around. But you could leave it at NAUTILUS Manhattan's Weight Receptical

Join Now For Our Annual Renewal Rate and Save almost 30%. Come in TODAY—Your first visit is free.

Nautilus® 776-1654

PLYMOUTH CAREER SEARCH WORKSHOP

PRESENTED BY CAREERS

Everything You Need to Know About Getting A Job

- RESUME WRITING—
- INTERVIEW TECHNIQUES—
- DRESSING FOR SUCCESS—
- NEW CAREER OPPORTUNITIES—
- ALL PARTICIPANTS WILL RECEIVE A FREE CAREER SEARCH WORKBOOK, RESUME GUIDE, AND MUCH MORE!
- DON'T MISS IT!

FREE AND OPEN TO EVERYONE

Thursday, October 8, 8:30 a.m.
10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m., 3:30 p.m.
Kansas State Union Room 212

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

* HORSEPACKING *

OCT 24-25 IN THE BEAUTIFUL OZARKS

$35 PRICE INCLUDES
1) RENTAL OF TRAIL HORSES
2) 3 DELICIOUS MEALS
3) CAMPING FACILITIES

INFO MEETING
TUES. OCT 6
7pm. RM.207 UN.

SIGN UP
WED. OCT 7 8am
UN. ACTIVITIES CENTER
OCT 7 Sign-up open to all
OCT 8 Sign-up open to K-State students only
OCT 9-10 Sign-up open to all

K-state union
upc outdoor rec.

Streetwise

Nominated for an Academy Award in 1984 for Best Documentary, this film shows how a band of teenagers, ages 13-19, in downtown Seattle, survive as pimps, prostitutes, panhandlers and hustlers. Their lives are a mass of contradictions—full of wisdom and innocence, tragedy and vulnerability. Unrated

Wednesday, October 7, 7:30 p.m.
Forum Hall

Thursday, October 8, 3:30 p.m.
Little Theatre

7:30 p.m. Forum Hall

$1.75, KSU I.D. required, Unrated

K-state union
upc feature films

Let's Talk About It ...
SELECTIVE ADMISSIONS POLICY
John Flemming (Asst. Director of Undergraduate Admissions), Tim Balfour (Admissions Representative), and Veryl Switzer (Asst. Vice President and Asst. Professor-Minority Affairs) will be discussing alternative admission policies.

Thursday, October 8 at Noon
Catskeller in KSU Union

Free Admission

K-state union
upc issues & ideas

PANEL ON ROBERT BORK

7 p.m.,
Tuesday, October 6
LITTLE THEATER
FREE ADMISSION

Panelists include:
Dr. Orma Linford
(Professor of Constitutional Law, K-State)
Dr. Bill Rich
(Professor of Law, Washburn Univ.)
George Erickson
(Topeka Attorney)
Dr. Emil Tonkavich
(Professor of Law, University of Kansas)

BORK... the right balance for justice?

Nicaraguan student enjoys America

Knowing culture main advantage

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

Being inside the American culture and knowing the American reality is one of the main advantages of studying in the United States, said Wilfredo Gutierrez, graduate student in sociology from Nicaragua.

Gutierrez, who came to Manhattan in August, said being inside the American culture is good because he can get to know the people, their attitudes and their reality.

"So far, the people of Manhattan have been very friendly and very willing to help me with any problems," he said. "I haven't had any bad reactions because I am Nicaraguan."

Gutierrez said that in general, the people here don't really know enough about the situation in Nicaragua to form an opinion about it.

"Or they only know one version of it, that which they see on television," he said. "It's hard to really know the reality only from the news here."

Gutierrez said he thinks the views of the American people and the views of the U.S. government are distinct.

"I don't think the people always agree with the government. I think they have different ideas," he said.

Gutierrez said he likes America's ideas and democracy, but the people of Nicaragua and Central America have a different reality than the people of the United States. Therefore, a system of government exactly as the United States' can't be established in Nicaragua, he said.

Gutierrez said about 80 percent of the Nicaraguan population supports the views of the Sandinista government. This includes a large majority of professors, businessmen and students.

"Actually, the government has made many favorable changes with families, economics, and schools and hospitals," he said.

Gutierrez said due to the Sandinista government, there now exist many more schools and hospitals than previously under the Somoza regime.

"Now there are schools in the most remote parts of the country where before nothing existed," he said.

Of the estimated 20 percent who oppose the Sandinistas, some are part of the Contra rebels, but not necessarily all of them, Gutierrez said.

"Some live in Costa Rica or Honduras, but they are not all in the Contra group," he said.

He said some members of the Contreras were employees of Somoza's government or were in his military.

The economic situation is still very serious, Gutierrez said, due largely to the war. Much of the vegetation and land was destroyed and they are being relocated and losing their land.

It is still the farmer who is being affected and is upset, because it is he who is caught in the middle when the Contreras and members of the military confront one another, he said.

Gutierrez said the people of Nicaragua are just like people anywhere else.

"The people of Managua walk along the street going to work or going to school just like they do here," he said.

Robertson won't impose religious ideas

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Republican presidential hopeful Pat Robertson, a former evangelist, said Sunday that he would not impose his religious beliefs upon the nation if he were elected president.

"There's a deep feeling in our country that the church as an institution should be on one side and the government as an institution should be on another," Robertson, the founder of the Christian Broadcasting Network, said on the CBS News program, "Face the Nation."

Asked if the United States should be a Christian nation, he replied: "I don't think it's going to be possible. We're not one now and I don't, frankly, see it happening at any time in the future."

But, he added: "I don't want to say no. And the reason is because if the people want this to be a Christian nation, it's up to the people. But they can't do it through law. It's got to be through their own beliefs."

Robertson said that he uses prayer for guidance, but also reads voluminously.

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Slices
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nauticus Towers—Aggieville

Piñata
Restaurante

FAJITAS

Heard the talk? Fajitas have come to PINATA, and are they ever worth the wait! Chunks of marinated steak, or chicken, with fresh onion slices served sizzling on a hot skillet. Comes with a wide array of toppings for your choosing: guacamole, shredded lettuce, sour cream, salsa, chopped tomatoes & fresh grated cheese. A serving of rice, refried beans, & tortillas complete your meal. Don't miss out, try our Fajitas today!

1219 Blumont
(913) 539-3166

Open Daily
11 a.m.

Wichita Family Planning Inc.
Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services
Free Pregnancy Testing
Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

Research saves lives.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

SCHLIEBE WORKOUT CENTERS

Some people come for the rush...
The exhilaration,
The physical "high".
Some come for the social experience...
The co-ed environment, the chance to make new friends.
Some come for the results...
The way they look and feel afterward.

"PERSONALIZED PROGRAMS ARE OUR SPECIALTY"

Call about our special student & faculty rates.

3236 KIMBALL 776-1750

OCTOBER REC REPORT

lifeline
kansas state recreational services

Challenge Run
Run 60 miles during October and receive a certificate and T-shirt.
Entry Deadline—Today 5 p.m.
Entry Fee: $3

Volleyball Officials
Recreational Services is NOW HIRING
Must attend these two clinics:
Sunday, October 18
6:30 p.m. Union 212
Monday, October 19
6 p.m. Rec Complex

Nutritional Counseling
Deb Ocken is offering Nutritional Counseling from 3:30-5:30 p.m. on Mondays in the Rec Complex 2nd floor lounge. No appointments necessary!

ACTIVITIES OCTOBER 1987 CALENDAR
Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
PROB. NUMBERS REC CHECK 532-6000 IN HOTLINE 532-6292 RC EQUIPMENT/COURTS 532-6951 OUTDOOR RENTAL CENTER 532-6894 REC SERVICES OFFICE 532-6980	RC ...REC COMPLEX P ...POOLS ORC ...OUTDOOR RENTAL CENTER A ...AQUA-FITNESS AQF ...AQUA-FITNESS		OCTOBER 16...5pm IN DEADLINE FOR: VOLLEYBALL, SINGLES; 4-wall Racquetball, 4-wall Handball Table Tennis, plus Horse shoot out.	1 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am F 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 3:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm A 4:30pm - 5:15pm AQF 5:30pm - 5:15pm AQF 7:30pm - 8:15pm 5pm IN WRESTLING DEADLINE	2 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am F 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 3:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm A 4:30pm - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am	3 RC 9:00am - 10:00pm P 1:00pm - 3:00pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 11:00am - Noon 1:30pm HOME FOOTBALL GAME
4 RC Noon - 11:00pm P 1:00pm - 4:30pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm Note: Pool will close at 4:30 rather than 5pm.	5 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	6 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	7 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	8 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	9 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am *IN WRESTLING 5:30pm-9pm in Rec Gym	10 RC 9:00am - 10:00pm P 1:00pm - 3:00pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 11:00am - Noon
11 RC Noon - 11:00pm P 1:00pm - 3:00pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm	12 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	13 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	14 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	15 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	16 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5pm IN DEADLINE FOR VOLLEYBALL, etc. (see above)	17 RC 9:00am - 10:00pm P 1:00pm - 3:00pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 11:00am - Noon 1:30pm HOME FOOTBALL GAME
18 RC Noon - 11:00pm P 1:00pm - 3:00pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm	19 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	20 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	21 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	22 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	23 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am	24 RC 9:00am - 10:00pm P 1:00pm - 3:00pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 11:00am - Noon LAST DAY OF DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME
25 RC Noon - 11:00pm P 1:00pm - 3:00pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm	26 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	27 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	28 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	29 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am 5:30pm - 5:15pm 5:30pm - 6:15pm	30 RC 6:00am - 11:00pm P 6:00am - 7:30am 11:30am - 1:30pm 7:30pm - 10:00pm ORC 4:00pm - 6:00pm AQF 6:30am - 7:15am A 6:30am - 7:15am	31 RC 9:00am - 10:00pm P 1:00pm - 3:00pm 7:00pm - 10:00pm ORC 11:00am - Noon

Intramural

Deadline:
Friday, October 16
5 p.m. Rec Services Office
Volleyball
Singles: 4 wall handball
4 wall racquetball
Table Tennis
HORSE Shootout

Manager's Meeting
Thursday, October 15
4 p.m. Seaton 63
SPORT: Volleyball and individual sports
ALL MANAGERS MUST ATTEND!!!

Intramural Deadline
Thursday, October 22
5 p.m. Rec Services Office
Bowling
Cross Country Meet
Innertube Water Polo

'Pick Up' is mediocre, yet entertaining

By Gary Leffler
Collegian Reviewer

Molly Ringwald is back. This time she is performing without the direction of John Hughes and without the accompaniment of her fellow brat packers. This time she steps out on her own, playing a character that's earned her high school diploma and is living in a world beyond prom dances, pep rallies and chic cliques. "The Pick Up Artist" is Ringwald's latest effort on the big screen and, for the most part, she accomplishes what she set out to do — distinguish herself from those pouty princesses at Suburban High.

Movie Review

However, while Molly succeeds in setting herself apart, the film gets bogged down in mediocrity. "The Pick Up Artist" isn't bad, mind you. It simply lacks that mysterious something that produces sizzle, chemistry or whatever other term you wish to use.

"The Pick Up Artist" is not a story about Ringwald's character, but rather about a character named Jack Jericho, played by Robert Downey. Jack is an elementary school teacher who gets more than a passing grade in picking up the ladies.

He has a line for everything, a smile that melts hearts and a square of paper covered inch by inch with names and phone numbers. That's his hobby, you see: collecting seven digit codes to heavenly pleasures.

One day Jack tries his luck on Ringwald's character, Randy Jensen. He succeeds, in a big fashion, and suddenly finds himself unable to chalk her up as just another victory. He follows her around for days and she eventually leads him into a plot filled with mafia goons and Atlantic City lights.

Ringwald's performance was solid, if not inspiring. She did carry a different aura about her and seeing her as an adult (or at least on her way to being one) was a welcome sight. There seemed a certain confidence surrounding her and she's long past her gawky, full-checked adolescence. She has potential to be a fine actress, should she find more meaty vehicles in which to perform.

Robert Downey, however, nearly stole the show from Ringwald. His portrayal of Jack was clever, bright and ever optimistic. An especially memorable moment occurred when he compared the brevity of human existence to that of a cheeseburger.

One of the more curious things about "The Pick Up Artist" was its rather obvious re-editing. It was all too apparent that the film initially received an R rating for language. All of these words were then subsequently dubbed over with the appropriate PG-13 vocabulary. All that this dubbing accomplished, aside from the rating change, was to give the film the feel of a chopped, re-hashed television version of the original movie. It was, in essence, a large distraction.

"The Pick Up Artist" is a harmless film. It's not a particularly bad film, nor is it particularly outstanding in any way. It is, in a very true sense, light entertainment that could make a weeknight or weekend more enjoyable.

Boston brothers lead lives on opposite sides of the law

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — One brother is the president of the Massachusetts Senate, the other a convicted bank robber and reputed killer.

They are the brothers Bulger, William and James of South Boston, power brokers on opposite sides of the law.

William, a Democrat, lawyer and father of nine, runs the business of the state's upper house with an iron hand and a quick gavel.

Older brother James, known as "Whitey" to most, controls most of the small-time rackets in the Boston area, according to federal prosecutors.

Their distinctly different impact on life in the Boston area was highlighted recently when Whitey was in the news for a strange run-in with the law at Logan International Airport.

Neighbors, business associates and priests are reluctant to talk much about them. And the brothers don't have much to say.

A legislative aide in the Statehouse who asked that his name not be used said reluctance in South Boston to talk about the Bulgers comes from loyalty rather than fear.

Further, the aide said, no one believes Whitey and William work together in any way.

William Bulger has only recently begun talking to the news media again after a long silence triggered by his anger over coverage of forced busing — which he opposes — in his beloved "Southie." However, he did not return telephone calls to his office by The Associated Press for this story.

A telephone call to the South Boston Liquor Mart, where James Bulger is listed as landlord, was also not returned, and no one knows how much, if any, contact the brothers have with each other.

William, 53, was elected to the state's House of Representatives in 1962. He moved to the Senate in 1971, assuming the presidency in 1978.

One brother is the president of the Massachusetts Senate, the other a convicted bank robber and reputed killer. They are the brothers Bulger, William and James of South Boston, power brokers on opposite sides of the law.

Bulger's control of the Senate is legendary. When a bill leaves the Senate Ways and Means Committee, it is almost always approved by the Senate after perfunctory debate. When a disagreement over a bill arises, Bulger calls a recess and the matter is resolved in a hushed discussion.

Less is known of Whitey's power. During the 1985 racketeering trial of Gennaro Angiulo and others, federal prosecutors said Whitey Bulger and an associate, Steven "The Rifleman" Flemmi, controlled most of the small-time rackets in the Boston area, including betting and loansharking.

"Whitey's got the whole of Southie," Angiulo said in a 1981 conversation secretly taped by federal officials.

Whitey, 58, and Flemmi were reputed to have been lieutenants in the Winter Hill Gang, which was based in Somerville. In a 1986 report by the President's Commission on Organized Crime, Whitey was referred to as a "reputed killer, bank robber and drug trafficker."

In 1956, Whitey was convicted for robbing banks in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Indiana. He was sentenced to 20 years in prison but served only a portion of the sentence.

Whitey hasn't had a known picture taken of him since his arrest in 1956.

On Sept. 8, Whitey Bulger allegedly fled the Boston airport as he was asked by a guard about a bag full of cash he had passed through the security detector. Officials alleged that Whitey gave the bag to an associate who departed the scene as Whitey held up a revolving door and prevented pursuit.

No charges were filed, but an official with the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration who asked that his name not be used said Whitey is under continual investigation by the agency, and the incident was added to department files.

Cuomo denying rumors No skeletons in family's past, he says

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Gov. Mario Cuomo is denying rumors that he is afraid to run for president because it could expose a skeleton in his family's closet.

"I have run in New York State for governor twice," Cuomo said in an interview broadcast Sunday. "They throw everything at you in this place, especially if you're an Italian-American. ... I don't believe there is (a skeleton) or you would have known about it."

The interview was recorded Friday for the CBS News program "Face the Nation."

The New York Times said Sunday that Cuomo had called its Washington office after the taping to ask whether reporters had heard rumors about alleged past misdeeds by his family, including his wife's parents.

He emphatically denied any wrongdoing in his family's past, but declined to elaborate on the nature of the rumors.

Cuomo reiterated that he was not running for president, but said that "if anything could change" his mind, it would be the notion that he was not running because of his family's past, the Times said.

On "Face the Nation," Cuomo said, "I'll never be president."

"I have no great desire to prove that I could get to the top of the heap," he added. "I won't get a chance because the Democrats are going to be in place for eight years and by then I will be a vague whisper of a footnote in the book of New York State life."

Asked why people doubt him when he says he isn't running, he replied, "Maybe you're all cynical."

"People believe in this country that if you're the vice president you must want to be the president, that we always have to go up. ... I'm happy."

TV Listings

By TV Data

MONDAY OCTOBER 5, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTAK	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	"	"	"	My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook	I Love Lucy
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes	Senior PGA Golf: Vantage	Movie: "One Desire"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore	Body Electric	Andy Griffith Soap	Championship	"
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Commun. Hugenots	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	College Football: Florida at LSU	Movie: "Flight for Freedom"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Nature	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	"	"
2:00	"	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch	Nature Learn to Read	Beaver	"	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	"	Donahue	Scooby Doo	Smurfs	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones
4:00	"	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game	Jetsons	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravest	Golf: Dunhill Cup	Munsters
5:00	Family Ties	News	News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook	Alice
6:00	News	News	M*A*S*H	WKRP	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers	SportsCenter	Andy Griffith
7:00	Wheel-Fortune	News/Conseq	Newlywed	Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Barney Miller	NFL Monday	Movie: "Casa-blanca"
8:00	Movie: "Haunted by Her Past"	Movie: "Haunted by Her Past"	NFL Football: San Francisco 49ers at New York Giants	Best of the National Geo-	Oil: God Bless Standard Oil	"	Auto Racing: NASCAR	"
9:00	News	News	Barney Miller	Wild America	H'mooner	SpeedWorld SportsCenter	World/Animals	CNN News
10:00	News	News	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	NFL Theatre: Mavericks and graphic Ex-	"	"
11:00	Ent. Tonight	Diamonds	News Nightline	Dating Game	Sign-Off	"	NFL Great	"
12:00	David Letterman	The Cheyenne Social Club	700 Club	Mrs. America Pageant	"	"	NFL Great	"

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND

Hours
Mon.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-2 a.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-3 a.m.
Sunday 11 a.m.-12 a.m.

BUY 1 GET 1 FREE
Any size Pizza!
We deliver... FAST and Friendly-like.

Delivering All Day Every Day For Your Convenience

539-4888
We accept Visa and MasterCard

Offering Thin Crust or Our Original Golden Braided Crust

BUY 1 SMALL 1 TOPPING PIZZA $4.75 (plus tax) GOOD MONDAYS ONLY

BUY 1 GET 1 FREE Any Size Pizza 539-4888 GOOD MONDAYS ONLY

Gulf

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Guards in shipping attacks, headed toward the joint Saudi Arabian-Kuwaiti oil terminal at Khafji. The incident reportedly triggered a heightened military alert in Saudi Arabia.

Stan

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

loads to gain and would have been able to write his ticket to any coaching job in the land.

But then again, if he fails, a possibly brilliant coaching career will have been wasted. The efforts of a man who may be our last hope will have gone for naught.

Wichita State no longer has a football program. Maybe you think we'd be better off not having one either. If that's the case, hop off the bandwagon now.

But if you've got some guts and the courage of your convictions, hop on. It's going to be a really bumpy ride and it will be filled with more agony than ecstasy along the way. But it's a ride we have to make together.

I plan on being there at the end of the road, reporting what's happening in the most objective way I know how. The little voice inside of me will be cheering my friend and my team all the while.

Will I ever get the chance to reach the end of a "happy trail," or am I just a dreamer with a life of disappointments staring me in the face?

Who knows. But regardless of how things turn out, if I have a friend like Stan Parrish along side fighting with me, I won't care.

Anyone care to take a chance?

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said Sunday the boats were taking part in three days of naval maneuvers by the Revolutionary Guards naval forces.

It quoted Hussein Alaie, commander of the Guards' naval forces, as saying the maneuvers were designed to defend Iran's main oil terminal at Kharg island and gulf oilfields from attack. Alaie pronounced the maneuvers a success and said similar exercises would be held "to attain necessary readiness."

About 80 warships from seven nations are in or en route to the gulf region to protect commercial vessels.

Quake

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Among the injured was a 91-year-old Pasadena woman who suffered a possible ruptured disc in her back when the quake knocked her into the bathtub.

California Medical Center, about a mile south of downtown Los Angeles, sustained some structural damage and power to the complex was lost. The center was operating on emergency power, said nursing supervisor Elizabeth Adams.

Flasher

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Hobrock also said nobody is ever able to give an accurate description of the person.

Hobrock said when it was learned students were talking about the incidents in classes, Farrell's administration issued a set of instructions to the staff on the procedures to take when they are either witnesses to a "flashing" or an incident is reported to them.

The guidelines to follow when witnessing an incident include physically restraining the offender if it is comfortable for the witness; noticing details so an accurate description may be given to the police; and notifying the library office immediately.

The guidelines for staff to follow when an incident is reported to them include notifying the library office immediately and asking the student if they are willing to talk to the police. If a student does not want to talk to the police, interview the student for a description of the person, location of the incident, etc. or take them to the office for such an interview.

Hobrock said there was a reason for the instructions.

"We didn't want to get the reputation of a dangerous place to come," Hobrock said.

According to Hobrock, flashing incidents happen in libraries all the time.

"This is a public place," he said. "It is a place that has a lot of nooks and crannies."

Hobrock offers the same advice to students if they are flashed when they are visiting other public places.

"Get a description, report the incident immediately to the staff and be careful about being in isolated places by yourself," he said.

Kedzie 103

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parts/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today! (28-34)

MAKING A major decision—Career Life Planning Independent Study. One hour credit. Contact the Counseling Center at 532-6927 to enroll. Begins week of Oct. 5. (29-30)

IN CELEBRATION of National Co-op Month, People's Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado, will have numerous items on special during the month of October. Open to everyone Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Saturdays 10 a.m.-5 p.m. (30-34)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

ONE-BEDROOM, furnished. Close to campus. Available immediately. 776-8918 after 5:30 p.m. (28-30)

TWO-BEDROOM apartment available immediately. Across from Ahearn. 776-7559. (30-34)

NICE, LARGE two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. Also two-bedroom apartment near KSU, $340/month, furnished for three people. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (30-31)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 BLUE Monza. Nice body, excellent engine, 30 miles per gallon on highway. Leave message for Sheikh, 533 Moore Hall, 532-2362. (27-31)

FOR SALE 1982 Chevette—$2,400 and 1983 Chevette—$2,200. Nice! Call 537-4083 after 5 p.m. (28-32)

1974 VW, new paint, low miles, $700 or best offer. Inquire basement Kedzie, 12-1 p.m. only. Ask for CB. 238-3874 evenings. 1980 Buick Riviera, loaded, $3,000, trade up to $1,000. (28-30)

1980 AUDI 5000S, good condition, loaded, $3,000 or best offer. 776-9508. (29-33)

CHILD CARE 07

FULL-TIME student with child wants another student with child to exchange babysitting spring semester. Phone 539-6430. (28-32)

COMPUTERS 08

ALMOST NEW NEC Multispeed laptop computer, MS-DOS compatible. Carry case, PD software, $1,595. Call 537-7173, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. weekdays. (28-30)

IBM WORDPROOF (checks spelling, finds synonyms). Program disks, manual. New, never used. 539-6123 after 6 p.m. (29-30)

EMPLOYMENT 09

NEW COMPANY seeking to employ people interested in temporary long/short term employment. Send name, address, phone, job skills to: P.O. Box 215, Wamego, KS 66547. (29-31)

Share gifts of good health, earn extra money for the holidays

Shaklee, the Nation's Number One Nutrition Company, now offers Gifts of Good Health and Good Taste for the holidays. Earn extra cash just for introducing them to your friends. No capital required, no inventory. To see how easy it can be, call 316-685-0875.

ROB OLIVERA 1157 S. WEBB WICHITA, KS 67207

EARN THUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

Sub & Stuff Sandwich Shop

Applications now being accepted for following positions. Daytime, late night, and delivering. No phone calls. Apply between 2-5 p.m. Mon.-Fri. 12th & Moro in Aggieville

OVERSEAS JOBS 10

summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields, $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

(PART-TIME learning skills specialist—Description of job responsibilities. Assisting students to increase academic skill levels, preparing basic skills content materials for individual and group sessions; assisting with developing training for tutors and teaching study skill techniques to program participants, maintain records and prepare reports. Qualifications (necessary and preferred): Master's degree in education or English; experience with academic intervention and teaching core skills. Experience in programs serving high risk populations. Especially desire diagnostic, assessment skills and programming skills. Salary range: $10,000-$12,000, nine-month contract. Immediate starting date. Submit resume, letter of application, names, addresses and telephone numbers of three references to Speech Communication, 201 Holton Hall, KSU, Manhattan, KS 66506 by 5 p.m., Oct. 14, 1987. KSU is an AA/EEO. (30-31)

FINANCIAL SERVICES 10

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (27-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

THREE-BEDROOM, unfurnished, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. Available now. No pets. Call 539-5562 after 5 p.m. (29-32)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

MOBILE HOME, $4,500, Northview. Call after 6 p.m. 539-3862. (30-31)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND—JEAN jacket on Fremont street, next to City Park. Call Dave C., 539-7561, to claim. (30-32)

LOST—BLEACHED jean jacket, lost Wednesday near 12th and Fremont—City Park. Please call 537-8597. (30-31)

WOMEN'S BLACK Timex watch. Found at Rec Complex. Call Bill at 539-7491. (30-31)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

FOR SALE—Two Boston tickets for Friday, Oct. 9 in Kemper. Jim: 539-0185, best offer. (30-37)

AT&T ELECTRIC typewriter, never used. $150. Proch glider, metal and wood, one-year old. $60. Phone 539-8473. (30-34)

The Ladies Club

Now Open!

Memberships Available!

Work out with us today!

First Visit Free

776-6469

1104 Waters, Manhattan

THE COTTON CLUB

MONDAYS SHRIMP NIGHT

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

NO PAIN NO GAIN

October Special

Unlimited Number

of Sessions for

only $50

Slender You

Figure Salons

No membership fee—first visit free

Candlewood Plaza-3232 Kimball Ave.

776-3308

Shelbe

3236 Kimball

Manhattan, Kansas

TANNING SPECIAL

GRAB A FRIEND AND RECEIVE

TWENTY 30 MIN. SESSIONS

FOR ONLY $30!

OFFER ENDS OCT. 15th

NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

776-1750

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Archie's place

4 Footless creatures

9 Sen.'s colleague

12 In — (occupied)

13 Atrophy

14 The gums

15 Beef cut

17 Nothing

18 Hawk

19 Dangling ornament

21 Furnish

24 Makes a lap?

25 Creek

26 Slippery one

28 Hungarian composer

31 Not working

33 — Harbor, N.Y.

35 Painted lady

36 Puppets

38 Egyptian god

40 Equip

DOWN

11 Become vapid

16 Pi follower

20 Stalk

21 Anagram for raid

22 Faithful dog

23 Prove lacking

27 Experiment room

29 Blue dye

30 David

32 French pronoun

34 Inclusive

37 Delilah's victim

39 Couch

42 A modern religion

44 Cul-de-

45 Road sign

46 Center

50 Libyan weight

51 Likely

52 Malay isthmus

53 Lunch ending?

11 Become vapid

16 Pi follower

20 Stalk

21 Anagram for raid

22 Faithful dog

23 Prove lacking

27 Experiment room

29 Blue dye

30 David

32 French pronoun

34 Inclusive

37 Delilah's victim

39 Couch

42 A modern religion

44 Cul-de-

45 Road sign

46 Center

50 Libyan weight

51 Likely

52 Malay isthmus

53 Lunch ending?

PYRAMID PIZZA

All Slices 99¢

after 5 p.m.

WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

MOPOD HONDA Express 1980, low mileage, excellent condition. Negotiable! Phone 539-8887 or 537-1395. (28-32)

1986 KAWASAKI 454 LTD, mint condition, three helmets plus cover. Paul, 776-2150. (29-31)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

DRUM EQUIPMENT for sale: Ludwig 14" and Ultra-sound 14" snares. Peavy 50W bass amplifier. Boss electric drum pad. Alpine cassette deck. All excellent shape. 539-1697 or 539-2328. (28-30)

MUST SELL: Crate 10-watt guitar amplifier. Three months old—warranted for five years! 532-5237. (28-32)

Hayes House of Music

Guitar Strings and Drum Sticks. Buy one set get 2nd set at 50% off

327 Poyntz 776-7983

PERSONALS 18

STEVE, YOU'RE just after my body. I'm sticking with Jack. So long, sucker. Unfaithfully yours, Kala. (30)

FIGI STEVE H.—Son you're #1. Have a great week. Love, Mom. (30)

NEW KAPPA Mom, Michele—I'm so elated, we're now related. You're so special—Leigh terrific!! Love you, Shannon. (30)

CAR ADMIRER—There are two of us that drive that car. Which one do you want? "PHI GAM." (30)

TKE—BURNISY. Can't believe you stuck with me a year—Miracles do happen. It's been a blast! Your daft took it up Delta, Christy. (30)

ATTENTION—BRUNETTE wearing Wranglers in Blument on elevator on Thursday at 9:10. How 'bout a date? —6' 2" grey sweater. (30)

ATO P. McKenzie—Thank for being my step-dad Thursday night. Dad Tim—I'm never doing that again! The ride to CU was hell, with a hangover! Beards thank for the ride back. This is going to be a terrific year! Kara. (30)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11)

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (11)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

PAPERS, RESUMES, cover letters, theses and dissertations entered, stored and completed to your specifications. Letter-quality printer. Come see us. Ross Secretarial Services, 614 N. 12th (across from Kites), 539-5147. (23-32)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

WANTED: Two female roommates—Nice two-bedroom apartment—furnished, one-half block west of Ahearn. Needed for second semester. Call 537-9370. (28-31)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share house. $160/month. Gas/electric paid. Call 537-4083, after 5 p.m. (28-32)

RESPONSIBLE FEMALE roommate, preferably graduate student or working woman, needed to share three-bedroom house near high school. One-half $385 rent plus utilities. 537-8663. (28-32)

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed. Laundry facilities, carpeting, close to campus. $110 rent plus one-third utilities. Call 539-3575 and ask for Dawn Robertson, otherwise leave name and number. (29-31)

ROOM FOR RENT 28

GIRL WANTED to rent room without board. $80/month, bills paid. Close to campus. No pets. 539-8608. (271)

Research institute studies interaction with environment

By Jeff Stead
Collegian Reporter

Goose lovers rejoice. A substitute for down, soft fine feathers used for insulation in jackets and sleeping bags, may soon arrive thanks to the Institute for Environmental Research at K-State.

The institute does research related to the thermal interaction of people and their environments, said Byron Jones, associate professor of mechanical engineering and director of the institute.

Information recovered by the institute is widely used by building firms, the military, and protective clothing designers.

"The information available for operating indoor environments comes directly from our data base," Jones said.

Settings for the control of thermostats for energy efficiency were established by the institute.

The institute's work does not come in major discoveries and inventions.

"It's a slow, methodical establishment of data base so we don't have any really big breakthroughs," Jones said.

Research is conducted by a combination of faculty, graduate students and a few undergraduate students. The students come from engineering and clothing textiles backgrounds, Jones said.

"The grad students are working on research for their thesis, and the other students do it as a job," he said.

Financial backing for research comes from the federal government (Army and Corp of Engineers) and private companies, which are seeking information from the research.

The institute, located in the environmental lab on the north side of Seaton Hall, was established more than 20 years ago by a group headed by Ralph Nevins, former dean of engineering.

There are several ongoing experiments. One small company is looking for a replacement for down. Another company is wanting a new insulation for sleeping bags, and the Army wants new cold-weather gear.

The research for the down replacement is still in the experimental phase. It will be a month or so before anything is established. It will not be a fiber-based material, such as Quallofil, which is now on the market; it will instead be a honeycomb-type material.

Cold weather, snowfall surprises New England residents, tourists

By The Associated Press

New England was plastered with unexpected wet snow up to 20 inches deep Sunday, the earliest on record for some places, and temperatures skidded to record lows as far south as the Gulf of Mexico.

The heavy snow and wind knocked out power to more than 300,000 customers and stranded tourists who thought they were going to see fall foliage.

It even snowed in Florida — Florida, Mass., that is, where 9 inches fell.

"It's the last thing we expected. The last we heard, we were only supposed to get rain and the next thing you know we were calling people in from church," said Louis Keezing of Northeast Utilities in Connecticut, which had about 85,000 customers without power.

"This makes my heart jump for joy. This is what we're all about," said Alan Ross, executive director of the U.S. Ski Team's cross-country team at Vermont's Sugarbush Ski Resort, where about an inch fell. "And to notice that it's happening on Oct. 4 hopefully is a good sign for the coming winter, in terms of skiing."

Connecticut Gov. William A. O'Neill ordered open the Civil Preparedness Emergency Operations Center at the state armory in Hartford to coordinate cleanup and public safety efforts.

"This makes my heart jump for joy. This is what we're all about. And to notice that it's happening on Oct. 4 hopefully is a good sign for the coming winter, in terms of skiing."

—Alan Ross

The snow was caused by a cold pocket at an altitude of about 18,000-20,000 feet that moved in from Canada and mixed with a low pressure system carrying precipitation from the east, said meteorologist Mel Goldstein of the Weather Center at Western Connecticut State University.

For much of the eastern third of the nation, it was the coldest day since last spring, and there was frost on pumpkins as far south as northern Alabama.

The National Weather Service reported low temperature records for the day were broken or tied in at least 37 cities, and for some it was the earliest on record for such cold air. Nashville, Tenn., chilled to 36 degrees and Louisville, Ky., hit 35, both breaking records on the books since 1888.

In Alabama, Mobile at 44 degrees and Montgomery at 40 both tied their records. Normal temperatures for the first week of October are 62 at Mobile, on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, and 59 at Montgomery, the weather service said.

In contrast, early morning temperatures in the hills above Los Angeles were already in the 90s. On Saturday the city hit 108, and there have been only three days hotter in the past 109 years.

The weather service posted a winter weather advisory for parts of eastern New York state, where nearly 20 inches of snow fell at East Jewett, in the Catskill Mountains.

The 4 inches of snow at Albany, N.Y., was the earliest snowfall of more than a half-inch on record. The up to 7 inches in Connecticut was the earliest substantial snow on record there, Goldstein said.

The wet snow on tree limbs and power lines blacked out more than 171,000 customers in the Albany greater capital district, where the airport was blacked out and closed, said Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. spokesman Ray Hull.

Nick Lyman of Niagara Mohawk said some people in the Albany area could be without power for days.

North of New York City, state police warned motorists to stay home in Dutchess and Columbia counties because virtually all roads were closed.

Trooper Susan Benfield said high wind and freezing rain toppled trees onto roadways. Two fatalities in Columbia County were blamed on falling trees, but no details were available, police said.

West of Albany, the Montgomery County village of Hagaman, population 1,300, was completely closed with only emergency vehicles allowed in or out, said Sheriff Ron Emery.

There was a greater-than-usual amount of downed trees and branches because trees in southern New England had not yet begun to shed leaves, leaving more surface to collect the heavy snow.

The leaves also cause other problems, since their annual autumn color change attracts tourists to New England.

In Middlebury, Vt., two busloads of "leaf peepers" were stuck on one road until plows and sanders could help them out, said Ray Burke of the state Highway Department.

"They may have to wait a little bit, but they can see what Vermont's all about early," he said.

Snow fell as far south as the mountains of West Virginia, where the Snowshoe ski resort, at an elevation of 4,500 feet, accumulated about an inch.

Pact to eliminate tariffs with Canada

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan hailed a tentative U.S.-Canadian trade agreement Sunday that would eliminate all tariffs between the two countries as a historic pact beneficial to both nation's economies.

"Now, in addition to sharing the world's largest undefended border, we will share membership in the world's largest free trade area," Reagan said in a statement released at the White House.

Treasury Secretary James Baker III and Canadian Finance Minister Michael Wilson said at a joint news conference they were confident the agreement would be approved by the U.S. Senate and Canada's parliament. Both described it as a "win-win situation," good for both countries.

U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter said some tariffs would be dropped upon implementation of the treaty and others would be phased out over five to 10 years.

Baker said the tentative agreement also eliminates other trade barriers and will improve trade in agriculture. He called it a "political signal against protectionism."

Baker described the negotiations, which he said culminate a 100-year effort to reach a trade agreement between the two countries, as "taxing and at times overwhelming."

U.S. and Canadian negotiators had settled on the general framework for the pact linking the world's two largest trading partners just before the midnight Saturday deadline that had been set for submission of the agreement to Congress.

Neither side gave many details of the agreement at the news conference.

"There is a lot of text," Baker said. "I would characterize it as an agreement in principle. We still have to cross some t's and dot i's. We are continuing to clean up loose ends."

The president's statement said:

"This historic agreement will strengthen both our economies and over time create thousands of jobs in both countries. It will serve as an important model for other nations seeking to improve their trading relationships."

The president said the pact will remove all Canadian tariffs; secure improved access to Canada's markets for U.S. manufacturing, agriculture, high technology and financial sectors; improve U.S. security by opening access to Canadian energy supplies, and offer new investment opportunities.

The president telephoned Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney

Sunday afternoon after returning from his weekend at Camp David, Md., according to White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

Reagan "congratulated him on the agreement and noted that the negotiations had gone down to the wire, but both teams had shown good faith in bargaining and produced a good agreement," Fitzwater said.

Reagan, in the statement released at the White House, said the "essential elements" of the pact had been agreed to and that the final details would be hammered out over "the next few days."

The president said the pact "will provide enormous benefits for the United States."

"I congratulate Prime Minister Mulroney for his courage and foresight in seeking this free trade area," Reagan's statement said. "It will strengthen the bonds between our nations and improve the economic performance and competitiveness of both countries."

"The agreement will provide an enduring legacy of which both nations can be proud," Reagan said.

The two nations exchange more than $150 billion a year in goods and services. The U.S. trade deficit with Canada in 1986 was $13.3 billion.

Autumn Equinox Sale!

This week only—Oct. 5-10

10-60% off

Like nature, we only do this twice a year and have been preparing for weeks, so don't miss it!

- ★ All summer clothing—men's & women's (Patagonia, Royal Robbins, Woolrich, The North Face)

Selected:

- ★ Winter Clothing—men's & women's
- ★ Gloves (Gates, Saranac)
- ★ Coats & Jackets (The North Face, Patagonia, Sierra Designs, Wilderness Experience)

Selected:

- ★ Bicycles (Schwinn, Fuji, Cannondale)
- ★ Bike Accessories & Clothing (specialized) (Bellwether, Rhode Gear, Paramount)
- ★ Camping & Backpacking Equipment (The North Face, Wilderness Experience, Sierra Designs, Sierra West)
- ★ All Windsurfers

1111 Moro
Aggieville

The
PATHFINDER
OUTDOOR EQUIPMENT SPECIALISTS

Hours: Mon.-Fri. 9-6
Thurs. 9-8
Sat. 9-5

Building Up

Construction booms occur in cycles on the K-State campus, but the current one is in excess of $34 million. See Page 6.

Weather

Mostly sunny today, highs in the mid 60s. Mostly clear tonight, lows in the mid to upper 30s. Mostly sunny Wednesday, highs in the mid to upper 50s.

gined she w... quickly to the top spo... ne team. See Page 7.

Tuesday
October 6, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 31

Kansas State Collegian

AIDS study reveals 98 percent diagnosed die within 3 years

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The survival rate for AIDS patients is worse than official figures suggest, with up to 98 percent of victims succumbing less than three years after diagnosis, a researcher said Monday.

The official tally of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta shows that about 15 percent of AIDS victims will live longer than three years. But a detailed examination of long-term survivors suggests that only 2 percent to 5 percent may hang on that long, said Ann Hardy of the CDC.

...about 15 percent of AIDS victims will live longer than three years.

Hardy presented her results at the Interscience Conference on Antimicrobial Agents and Chemotherapy, a meeting devoted to research on infectious diseases.

Elsewhere at the meeting, two researchers presented reports differing sharply over whether the AIDS virus is being spread commonly through heterosexual contact.

"Doctors have known for some time that the virus can be spread through heterosexual contact, but the most widely held notion is that such spread is uncommon. Most AIDS victims continue to get the disease through homosexual contact, the sharing of needles during intravenous drug abuse and other high-risk behavior."

Dr. Thomas Quinn of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., found that one-third of men infected with the AIDS virus and half of infected women in an inner-city neighborhood in Baltimore apparently became infected through heterosexual contact.

However, Constance Wofsy of the University of California in San Francisco found that among 700 San Francisco women tested for AIDS infection, only 35, or about 5 percent, were infected — even though many of them had had heterosexual contact with high-risk men, such as intravenous drug abusers and gay or bisexual men.

The infection was most likely to be spread to women who had a sustained relationship with a high-risk man, she said. The risk was lower for those who had multiple but not sustained contact with various partners, including some at high-risk of AIDS infection.

Quinn's study was based on an anonymous questionnaire given to 4,000 men and women visiting a clinic for treatment of sexually transmitted diseases, he said Sunday. The men and women came from an area of Baltimore where drug abuse is common, he said.

Three percent of the women surveyed and 6.3 percent of the men had been infected with the AIDS virus, Quinn said, one of the study's authors.

Approximately one-third of the infected men and nearly half of the infected women denied being intravenous drug abusers or homosexuals or engaging in other behavior that would put them at special risk of getting AIDS, Quinn said.

He said he was "absolutely confident" that those respondents became infected through heterosexual contact. He declined to give details of the study until its forthcoming publication in a scientific journal.

A study to be presented this week by the New York City health department and the CDC found that only one in 205 men at a sexually-transmitted-disease clinic in New York City was infected with AIDS in the absence of drug use, homosexuality or other high-risk behavior.

Staff/Jim Dietz

Watery walk

Eric Bauer, sophomore in civil engineering, walks next to sprinklers in the 1500 block of Anderson Avenue. Bauer later changed his course to avoid getting wet by other sprinklers in his path.

Program sees less freshmen

By The Collegian Staff

Most of the K-State community is breathing a sigh of relief after the announcement that enrollment at the University is at its highest level since 1984.

However, at least one K-State department is not rejoicing about the increased enrollment, primarily since its enrollment decreased. Freshman enrollment in the College of Engineering's agricultural engineering department has declined.

"Incoming students think that agricultural jobs are not really in demand any more because of the suffering farm situation," said Stanley Clark, professor of agricultural engineering and acting department head.

Clark said even though farming in the United States is suffering, jobs are plentiful in agricultural engineering. He said companies such as Pillsbury and the Excell Food Co. are looking for agricultural engineering graduates.

Clark said the department has enjoyed large graduating classes over the past two years, but there aren't enough incoming students now to fill that void. Clark also said K-State's department is not unique — universities all over the country have seen declines in their agricultural engineering departments.

He said the department has started a recruitment program to get new students interested in the program again. The department has been sending letters and other circulation materials to incoming high school students as well as junior college transfer students.

Clark said agricultural engineering is the field applying engineering science and technology to the food production and agricultural industry. Students completing this program are prepared to develop new methods as well as to further the application of engineering fundamentals in areas such as agricultural machinery.

Court begins new term 1 justice short

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Still one justice short, the Supreme Court began its 1987-88 term by acting in some 1,000 cases Monday, agreeing in one to decide the right of private clubs to keep out women and racial minorities.

The court said it will review a New York City law, similar to those in numerous other cities, barring private clubs with more than 400 members from adopting exclusive membership policies.

But the justices refused to free the prestigious Bohemian Club from a California court order that it stop refusing to hire women as employees.

The club's 2,000 members, all of whom are men, include President Reagan, former presidents Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford, Vice President George Bush and several Cabinet members.

In other action, the court: —Turned down an appeal aimed at scuttling the prosecution of Michael K. Deaver, the former presidential aide charged with lying to a grand jury about his lobbying activities. Deaver's trial is to begin Oct. 19.

—Voted to consider reinstating a contempt-of-court citation against the Providence Journal for publishing information the FBI obtained while illegally spying on a reputed Mafia boss. A federal appeals court had exonerated the Rhode Island newspaper, ruling that a judge's order barring publication was "transparently invalid."

—Agreed in a case from North Carolina to consider broadening the remedy for workers who claim to be victims of racial harassment.

—Refused to allow publication of an unauthorized biography of J.D. Salinger that includes quotations from letters the novelist wrote.

—Refused to spare former Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos and his wife, Imelda, from going to prison if they refuse to supply documents to a grand jury investigating allegedly corrupt U.S. weapons contracts.

—Killed a much-publicized libel lawsuit against The Washington Post by former Mobil Oil Co. President William P. Tavoulareas.

—Left intact a qualifying physical test that since 1984 has excluded women from being hired as New York City firefighters.

—Refused to let Florida authorities execute serial killer Theodore R. Bundy for murdering a young girl in 1978 without first holding a hearing to determine whether Bundy was competent to stand trial.

The court's order does not bar state officials from seeking to execute Bundy for the murders of two Florida State University women that same year.

For the first time since 1971, the high court began a new term without nine members. President Reagan's nomination of Robert H. Bork to replace the retired Justice Lewis F. Powell is in danger of being denied Senate confirmation.

The flurry of activity generated by the eight justices as they returned from a three-month summer recess, however, was as busy as it has been in recent years.

The private club dispute arose when the New York State Club Association, comprised of 125 private clubs and associations, challenged the New York City law soon after it was enacted in 1984.

Many of the association's groups are male-only or are organized along national origin or ethnic lines.

The law exempts "distinctly private" clubs from the law.

■ See COURTS, Page 10

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Here, at a glance, are highlights of actions taken Monday by the Supreme Court:

PRIVATE CLUBS

Opening its 1987-88 term one justice shy of a full bench, the court said it will rule on a New York City law barring large men-only clubs from excluding female and minority applicants.

The justices also told a San Francisco men's club it may not keep women off its payroll. The high court, citing the lack of a "substantial federal question," turned away arguments that San Francisco's Bohemian Club has the right to hire men only.

MICHAEL DEEVER

The court let stand a decision that former presidential aide Michael K. Deaver prematurely pursued his challenge of a federal law that provides special independent counsels to investigate top government officials. Deaver is to stand trial later this month on perjury charges.

THEODORE BUNDY

The court refused to allow Florida authorities to execute serial killer Theodore R. Bundy for murdering a 12-year-old girl and said the state must rule on his competency to stand trial.

BHOPAL-UNION CARBIDE

The court refused to move from India to the United States a massive lawsuit against Union Carbide stemming from a 1984 disaster at a Bhopal chemical plant that killed more than 2,000 people and injured 200,000.

NEWSPAPER LIBEL SUIT

The court killed a libel lawsuit against The Washington Post by former Mobil Oil Co. president William P. Tavoulareas, refusing to reinstate a $2 million jury verdict against the newspaper.

NEWSPAPER CONTEMPT SUIT

The court said it will consider reviving a contempt-of-court citation against a Rhode Island newspaper for publishing information the FBI obtained while illegally spying on a Mafia boss. The justices agreed to review a ruling that the Providence Journal was justified in defying a federal judge's order barring publication of the material.

FDIC

The court allowed state-chartered banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve System to enter the business of trading stocks and bonds. The court, without comment, left intact a ruling that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. did not violate a Depression-era law by permitting such banks to move into the securities business.

LAWYERS' ADS

The court agreed to study whether states may ban direct mail advertisements sent by lawyers to potential clients. A challenge to such a ban has been imposed in Kentucky. In 1977, the court ended the legal profession's longtime ban on lawyer advertising, ruling that a ban impermissibly interfered with lawyers' freedom of speech. But the justices left it to the states to regulate such advertising so the public would not be misled or deceived.

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Police chief faces charges

CANEY — The Caney police chief faces 32 criminal charges alleging that he reported excessive overtime hours and collected $1,000 more than he was entitled to receive, Montgomery County officials said Monday.

Police Chief Howard Anderson surrendered to authorities Monday on the 32 counts filed against him late Friday in Montgomery County District Court. He was released on a $2,500 bond.

The Caney City Council planned an executive session Monday night to consider possible action against Anderson.

Herington woman sentenced

ABILENE — A Herington woman who pleaded guilty to criminal solicitation to murder her husband was sentenced Monday to one to five years in prison.

The sentence for Jana Nowell, 25, was ordered by District Judge John Christner, who refused her request for probation.

Nowell and Bernard Howlett Jr., 35, of Copperas Cove, Texas, a soldier stationed at Fort Hood, were charged in an alleged plot to kill Anthony Nowell, a soldier at Fort Riley.

Women's prison to be closed

WASHINGTON — The only high-security federal prison unit for women, at Lexington, Ky., is being phased out and will be replaced, Bureau of Prisons Director J. Michael Quinlan decided Monday.

There is insufficient space in the 16-bed facility in a sub-basement of the Federal Correctional Institution at Lexington, said bureau spokeswoman Kathryn Morse. The women's unit was opened about a year ago and there is a need to have a larger one to accommodate growing numbers of female offenders convicted of terrorist acts and other serious federal crimes, she said.

Until a new facility is built or an old one renovated in the next nine months, women deemed in need of high-security federal prison space will be housed at the Alderson, W.Va., and Pleasanton, Calif., prisons for women.

The Lexington high-security unit won't be completely closed until a replacement facility is found.

Panelists to discuss treaty

WICHITA — The intermediate-range nuclear force treaty now being negotiated will be discussed by panelists at a half-day arms control seminar scheduled for Oct. 14.

Panelists for the free event, sponsored jointly by the Winfield Daily Courier and The Wichita Eagle-Beacon, will include George W. Rathjens, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology political science professor; Col. Bruce B.G. Clarke, a native Wichitan who is senior Army officer in the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency; Jack Mendelsohn, deputy director of the Arms Control Association; and James McCartney, senior national correspondent for Knight-Ridder newspapers.

George Neavoll, Eagle-Beacon editorial page editor, will moderate.

Further information is available from either David Seaton at the Winfield Daily Courier or Neavoll.

The program was developed in cooperation with the Arms Control Association and the Committee for National Security.

Earthquake cleanup begins

LOS ANGELES — Aftershocks continued to rattle Southern California Monday, damage estimates jumped to $125 million and Gov. George Deukmejian said he might call a special session of the Legislature to approve earthquake aid.

The most recent of more than two dozen serious aftershocks following Thursday's major earthquake struck at 4:59 p.m. Monday, measuring 3.2 on the Richter scale, the seismology laboratory at the California Institute of Technology reported.

In a report to Deukmejian, state disaster officials gave a preliminary damage estimate of $117.3 million damage to 9,164 homes and 1,455 businesses. There was an additional $8.1 million damage to public property, said Tom Mullins of the state Office of Emergency Services.

The Republican governor asked President Reagan and the Federal Emergency Management Agency to declare a major disaster in Los Angeles and Orange counties, which would allow federal disaster relief such as individual grants up to $5,000, temporary housing help and low-interest loans to rebuild homes and businesses.

Most of the damage occurred during Thursday's quake which measured 6.1 on the Richter scale. But the largest in a series of aftershocks, a 5.5 quake early Sunday, heaped much more damage on already weakened structures.

IRS places lien on Reagans

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service falsely placed a tax lien on President and Nancy Reagan this year because of a trainee's miscue in Texas, the IRS said Monday.

Though the error was caught and corrected, the phony lien remains a permanent entry in the agency's computer files, a spokesman added.

As reported by the Kiplinger Tax Letter, an IRS official was demonstrating the agency's electronic lien system during a summer training class in Austin, Texas, and used the president's name as an example despite an IRS policy that real names, especially those of VIPs, not be used.

The demonstration itself caused no problems. But after the class, a trainee, practicing what she was shown, hit the wrong buttons on her computer and thereby recorded a tax lien against the president at the Travis County courthouse.

Man charged in 7 slayings

MARSHFIELD, Mo. — In a startling turn of events, a man was charged Monday with the murder of seven family members, including the 14-year-old nephew investigators had originally believed responsible for the Sept. 25 shooting rampage.

James E. Schnick, 36, of rural Elkland, was accused of killing his wife, her brother and the brother's wife and children.

Officials in southwestern Missouri's Webster County said initially they believed that 14-year-old Kirk Buckner had gone on a shooting rampage, killing his parents, three brothers and an aunt before dying in a struggle with his uncle, Schnick.

But late Monday afternoon, after an hour-long meeting involving Webster County Sheriff Eugene Fraker, Prosecuting Attorney Donald Cheever and Missouri Highway Patrol investigators, Schnick was charged with all the killings. He was being held without bond.

Cheever said Schnick was charged with seven counts of first-degree murder.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTERVIEW applicants for the 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT FILING FORMS are now available in the Student Government Office in the Union. Filing deadline is Oct. 20.

CAREER COUNSELING CENTER has Making a Major Decision — Career Life Planning Independent Study available for one hour credit. For details, contact the Counseling Center, 532-6927. The course begins this week.

ICAT sign-up for the road trip to Missouri is in Ahearn 101. Cost is $25 for ticket and transportation.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

HOSPITALITY MANAGEMENT SOCIETY meets at 8 p.m. in Justin Lounge for a meeting and pictures.

FOOD SCIENCE CLUB meets at 7:30 p.m. in Call 140.

KSUARH EXECUTIVES meet at 10 p.m. in the Association of Residence Halls office in Derby Food Center.

MEXICAN-AMERICAN COUNCIL OF STUDENTS meets at 7 p.m. in Union Room 208. All Hispanic students are encouraged to attend.

SPURS SOPHOMORE HONORARY meets at 9 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for pictures and a short meeting.

HORTICULTURAL THERAPY CLUB meets at 6 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

DELTA TAU DELTA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of George M. Scheets Jr. at 3:30 p.m. in Durland 274. The topic is "Estimating the Bit Time of a Random Binary Signal in White Noise Via Adaptive Filtering Techniques."

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

STUDENT DIETETIC ASSOCIATION meets at 9:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

LUTHERAN YOUNG ADULTS meet at 8:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

FRENCH TABLE meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 1.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE officers meet at 7 p.m. in Williams Auditorium in Umberger Hall. A regular meeting follows at 7:30 p.m. The guest speaker is Pam Wolf from the Kansas Stock-Dog Association.

Alpha Chi Sigma meets at 7 p.m. in Willard 218 for a discussion on pledging ceremony.

GRADUATE STUDENT COUNCIL meets at 4:30 p.m. in Waters 133. John Noonan, associate dean of the Graduate School, will be there to answer questions.

WEDNESDAY

ETA KAPPA NU meets at 7:30 p.m. in Durland 173 for an interview with a Texas Instruments recruiter. There will also be demonstration interviews open to all students.

INTERVARSITY, BSU, NAVIGATORS, CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST AND ICTHUS meet at noon in the Union Ballroom for a free international student luncheon. Luis Palau will be the speaker.

Corrections

Due to a photographer's error, Ron Bradshaw, second baseman of K-State's baseball team, was misidentified in a photo outline in Monday's Collegian.

Due to an error by the Associated Press, a story in Monday's Collegian about the Osawatomie State Hospital was inaccurate. The hospital is not initiating a policy of releasing more patients to relieve overcrowding. The policy that went into effect Sept. 15 limits admissions to patients who pose a life-threatening situation.

GARFIELD SAYS:

Watch for traffic.
Always stop at the curb.

Safety Tips From
the National Safety Council

BUSHWACKERS

Comedy Invasion

Every Monday and Tuesday
9 p.m.

Special 2nd Anniversary Show:

Prizes! Drink Specials!

Two National Headline Comedians!

The Doc of Comedy Rock: Dr. Gonzo

The Comedian with the Biggest Lips:

Dan Chopin

We want to thank YOU for your support over the last two years. You've made Bushwacker's the #1 comedy spot in Kansas! Come join the tradition of laughter at:

531 N. Manhattan 539-9727

TRUCKLOAD SALE

Over 100 TVs in stock now thru the end of October. Also a complete selection of VCRs & Camcorders Come in for a demonstration!

Zenith's new 2-head cable compatible VHS HQ Recorder
•VRD 100 $339

Zenith 20" Diagonal Systems
Remote Control Color TV•SD2023W
•Computer Space Command 2800
Remote Control.
$359

"We're more than a Hardware Store"

MIDWEST

Serving Manhattan for 20 Years
624 TUTTLE CREEK BOULEVARD
MANHATTAN, KANSAS Ph. 776-9454
Next to Wal-Mart

TACO TUESDAY

60¢ GIANT TACOS
all you want plus
$1 Margaritas
4-7 p.m.

LUNCH SPECIAL
2 Tacos & Salad Bar
only $2.99
$1 Margaritas

THE COTTON CLUB
418 Poyntz Manhattan

The Station

TACO TUESDAY

featuring those freshly prepared crisp flour shells

$1.25 MARGARITAS
99¢ TACOS
OR 3 FOR $2.75

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Attention:

Students, Faculty/Staff and Campus Departments

1987-88 Campus Directories on Sale NOW

You'll need the directory to call friends, conduct campus business, use the coupons and yellow page ads, and refer to campus and city maps.

Get your directory at the tables near the Union Travel Board from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, Oct. 5-7.

$1 for students (limit two with student I.D.) and $1.50 for non-students.

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Pi Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Off Campus

Oct. 7: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Students designing agricultural product

By Nancy Hill
Collegian Reporter

Most students don't think of designing a suspension system for an agricultural chemical applicator as a class project, but a group of K-State students is working on just that.

For the five seniors in agricultural engineering the class is the first exposure to design in the curriculum, said Mark Schrock, associate professor of agricultural engineering.

All of the designing and construction is done by the Design I students.

"The project idea is left up to the student," Schrock said. "We've never had to tell a student his design was not appropriate."

The class is composed of a lecture and a lab. The lecture addresses the technical knowledge that the students will need for their research and design. During lab, students conduct their research and design the project.

"We're in the research stage right now," said Troy Kolb, senior in agricultural engineering. "We're seeing what has been done already, if there's a need to re-design the system and what exactly we want our design to accomplish."

In the spring semester, the Design II class will follow through on the project by creating a prototype.

Upon completion of the project, the design will be entered in a regional contest. The region includes Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas.

Schrock said that if the project places in the top two at regionals, it will be submitted to the national competition. The entries are screened on the national level based on a written report. Once the top three projects are chosen, the students are asked to make a full-scale oral presentation at the national competition.

"K-State has been very successful in the national competition," Schrock said. "In the last ten contests, K-State students have placed first seven times and have also had a second, fourth and fifth place finish."

Two of K-State's past designs have been patented. The most recent was a control system for round balers which was both patented and licensed. The University receives a small royalty check from its patented designs with the inventors receiving approximately 15 percent of the royalty check, Schrock said.

Schrock said the feedback on the class is very positive from both the students who have completed the course and from employers.

"In the real world you must find your own information, decide if it's good enough, make assumptions and then make decisions," Schrock said. "A major recruiter told me once after a national presentation that 95 percent of his company's problems are solved at or below what he had just seen in our presentation."

Staff/Jim Dietz

Opening Up

Lauren Nadel, Dillards employee, stocks a display in the newly opened Dillards department store Monday in the Manhattan Town Center. Dillards opened unannounced Saturday but will be closed today in preparation for Wednesday's grand opening.

Accounting program may be accredited

By Susan L'Ecuier
Collegian Reporter

If all goes according to plan, K-State's Department of Accounting may soon have its own accreditation in addition to that of the College of Business Administration.

Currently there are only about 65 programs in the nation which are accredited independently from their colleges.

"In 1982, there became available for the first time separate accreditation of accounting programs," said Maurice Stark, professor and head of the department of accounting. "Our faculty decided that that should be one of our goals to attain and we have been working toward that ever since."

Having the separate accreditation will bring several positive effects on the accounting program.

"This helps in recruiting faculty," he said. "This helps in recruiting students. This helps in selling students when they graduate. It means a lot to companies when students can say they graduated from an accredited program."

"It's quite an elite group," he said. "Out of 250 schools with the overall business accreditation, before this year there were only about 62 schools who had the separate accounting accreditation."

After making curriculum changes and hiring and maintaining faculty to meet with certain required "quantitative and qualitative" standards, the accounting department submitted a self-study report to the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, the accreditation review board for business colleges.

The initial accounting accreditation review occurred during the summer of 1986 when the College of Business Administration was reviewed for re-accreditation.

Last April, the accounting department learned it would not receive immediate accreditation, but instead was given a one-year deferral by the review board.

"A one-year deferral means they found deficiencies which they think can be corrected in one year," Stark said. "If they don't think the deficiencies can be corrected in one year, they deny the accreditation. We felt it was really quite successful as far as we were concerned."

The review board informed the accounting department it would have to provide a "more conducive atmosphere for research," Stark said.

"We do not have a doctoral program; we have a bachelor's program and a master's program. The accreditation standards are very qualitative rather than quantitative in that respect."

Stark said the department was required to submit both bachelor's and master's degrees for accreditation together.

Association issues 'dry' challenge to bars

By Brenda Badostain
Collegian Reporter

An Aggieville bar is being challenged to go dry for one night as part of alcohol awareness week, Oct. 26-30, said Kelli Nichols, adviser of the Association of Residence Halls.

Nichols said the alcohol awareness week committee has contacted several area bars including Bushwackers, Brothers, Dark Horse Tavern and Charlie's Neighborhood Bar.

"We've received some real positive responses from the bars," she said. "Some of them are very willing to look into the idea of doing it (but) we don't have a firm commitment from any of them yet."

The committee hasn't received any negative reactions from the bars, she said, but a few have said the project won't work for their specific bar.

"Some bars only have beer on tap and therefore they don't have the facilities to do anything that's non-alcoholic."

"We're looking for a situation where we can have non-alcoholic drinks — like a 21 club would be best because they can serve Hawaiian drinks and pina colodas without the alcohol," Nichols said.

The committee is looking for a bar to go dry from at least 8 p.m. until midnight, she said. After that time the bar may resume serving alcohol but "during that period (from 8 p.m. to midnight), we will have no alcohol served whatsoever," she said.

Several activities are being planned for that night.

"We're going to have a costume party since it's (during) Halloween week. We're thinking about doing some type of game show on alcohol education," she said. "Maybe like the 'Wheel of Fortune' and using some alcohol terms and teaching people (about alcohol) because a lot of people don't know a lot about alcohol and its effects."

The idea behind alcohol awareness week is not to tell everyone how bad alcohol is, she said.

"It's just to encourage them (students) to drink responsibly and tell them a lot of things that they maybe never knew about alcohol and its effects. Our purpose is to just inform people and make them more aware of alcohol and the goods and bads of it," she said.

There is an alcohol awareness week each year, however, Nichols said the committee wants to do something bigger this year.

"I think because it's gotten to the point where 21 is the drinking age...now it's incorporated a lot more of our residents."

"We were concerned with the idea of having some type of get-together for them (students under 21) — a type of party where there was no alcohol. And trying to get people to come to a non-alcoholic party...is very difficult," Nichols said.

The committee includes representatives from each residence hall, a hall director and the adviser to the Association of Residence Halls, Nichols said.

The event will be sponsored by the Association of Residence Halls and the Alcohol and Other Drug Education service, she said.

"We're looking into getting UPC (Union Program Council) to co-sponsor the event," Nichols said.

Blue River Pub
YOUR EATING & DRINKING ESTABLISHMENT
Wednesday & Thursday Night
'50s & '60s Dance Rock & Roll with THE BACKSLIDERS
—Coming This Weekend—
Next to Tuttle Creek Dam
CROSSWIND 537-9877

accents & images, inc.
1112 Laramie
537-9024
Large selection
posters and prints
Mon.-Sat. 11 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
Custom Framing

Be outstanding!
To a certain group of individuals, good isn't good enough. And better is just another word for good. To this elite group, some legends in their own time, only one word describes their noble ambitions. Outstanding! College undergraduates, if this sounds like you, call 1-841-1821 (collect).

$2 Pitchers $1.25 Wells
Dark Horse
NEXT TO K-SU

The KSU Department of Music presents...
FACULTY FOLLIES...a medley of musical mania.
ALL FAITHS CHAPEL
Tuesday, October 6, 8 p.m.
Students: $1 in advance, $2 at door
Adults: $3 in advance, $4 at door
Sponsored by Pi Kappa Lambda, a scholarship—benefit concert

WE ARE ONLY A PHONE CALL AWAY
Medical advice is as close as your telephone. If you are uncertain whether your condition is something you can take care of yourself or whether you need to see a physician, you can call LAFENE HEALTH CENTER, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Our professional staff will advise you on the best course of action—either home care or medical care at our facility. The next time you are uncertain what to do, call 532-6544—we are only a phone call away.

American Heart Association
WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE
Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops
Brother's
Expose yourself to a new band!
IN/OUT
HUNAM EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

New New New
CAR WASH
FOUR BAYS
619 N. 3rd St.
Across from Pizza Hut
Brand new and no waiting

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
From Yogurt Stores
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers—Aggieville

Lafene Health Center
Services available
Outpatient Clinic
Lafemme (Gyn) Clinic
Allergy Clinic
Mental Health Clinic
Laboratory
Physical Therapy
Pharmacy
X-Ray Department
Dietary Counseling
In-Patient Hospital
Sports Medicine Clinic
Wart Clinic
Clinic Hours • 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.
532-6544

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, October 6, 1987 ■ Page 4

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

U.S. propaganda effort threatens democracy

Discoveries made public yesterday by the General Accounting Office about the activities of a State Department agency validate the proverb which says "the first casualty of war is truth."

The GAO, Congress's investigative agency, has determined that the Office of Public Diplomacy, established by the Reagan Administration in 1983, engaged in illegal propaganda in its attempt to support the Contra rebels fighting against the Nicaraguan government.

U.S. law states that federal funds may only be spent on propaganda activities specifically authorized by Congress. The Office of Public Diplomacy was set up as a unit within the State Department to lobby Congress for support of the Contras.

The most frightening fact of all uncovered by GAO is that this propaganda was not directed at groups overseas but at Americans.

To further support for the Nicaraguan rebels, the Office of Public Diplomacy planted opinion articles in U.S. newspapers and used private organizations as fronts for trips by Contra leaders to meet with journalists here.

One such example of the work of the public diplomacy office is an article written by Rice University professor John F. Guilmartin Jr., published in the Wall Street Journal on March 11, 1985.

Guilmartin, then a paid consultant to the Office of Public Diplomacy, wrote the article, analyzing the Nicaraguan defense build-up. He was assisted by the Office of Public Diplomacy staff, according to a March 13, 1985, memo written by an official of the office to Patrick Buchanan, then director of White House communications.

While telling Buchanan that Guilmartin's work was an example of the office's propaganda techniques, Johnathan S. Miller also wrote: "Officially, this office had no role in its preparation."

The GAO report points out another circumvention of the law — including the diversion of profits from the sales of arms to Iran — by the Reagan administration to gain support for its Central American policies.

Such activities must be stopped before the second casualty of the Nicaraguan war becomes democracy in America.

U.S. loses perspectives Yet, can boast of new appliances

Is it just me, or is this country really becoming insane?

In a recent example of judicial expertise, Attorney General Edwin Meese III stated in an interview that he opposes the Miranda warning, which protects any person accused of a crime from abuse of police authority. His rationale is simple: "You don't have many suspects who are innocent of a crime. That's contradictory. If a person is innocent of a crime, then he is not a suspect." Following that enlightened line of reasoning, why do we have elections? If most people don't know anything about politics, why not have a cadre of bureaucrats run the country instead?

Many cynics would argue that that is already happening.

Another interesting topic is the plight of the American farmer. Take a look at Farm Aid III for example. The huge benefit, which attracted over 70,000 people, was a great success. Organizers hoped to top last year's income of $7 million, all of which goes for food, emergency assistance, farmer crisis hotlines, legal assistance, education and research for the depleted farm communities of the Midwest.

What is wrong with that? Nothing, but how can one praise the merits of a $7 million effort when Congress is to shortly vote on a $270 million aid package to the Contras? Where are this nation's priorities? We spend millions of dollars aiding military groups which terrorize Central America, blowing up hospitals and killing innocent men, women and children, while at the same time we leave to rot those who feed our people. Perhaps I was the only one sickened at the sight of Republican Sen. Nancy Kassebaum's waxen smile during President Oscar Arias Sanchez' speech at the recent Landon lecture, after having already declared she would endorse the next Contra-aid vote. Perhaps Kassebaum and Dole both forget they are from Kansas, the breadbasket of America.

But not all senators' souls are lost. Some of them still believe in performing their official duties despite party affiliation or executive pressure. Consider Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., for example. Despite being one of the most conservative Southern Democrats in the Senate, Nunn recently spearheaded a campaign to prevent Reagan from once again breaking the 1972 Anti-ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty with the Soviet Union.

On Sept. 17, the Senate rejected Reagan's plan to test space-based antiballistic weapons

Commentary

MICHAEL NICHOLS
Collegian Columnist

without prior congressional approval. Sen. Nunn argued that had the Senate allowed Reagan to have such powers, it would be reducing its role to that of "a potted plant." Two weeks ago, the Senate also tied 50-50 in an effort to cut the Star Wars budget back by $2 billion.

The importance of these votes is they protect current arms negotiations from any blunders committed by the Oval Office. Also important is the fact they challenge one of Ronald Reagan's greatest commitments while the Soviet foreign minister was negotiating in Washington. This served our president with the message he may not be as powerful as he once was, and the Soviets with the impression this nation is serious about nuclear disarmament.

But while we hold endless debates on the nature of arms talks with the Soviet Union, we ignore other potential threats of nuclear war. Few people seem to remember, or even know, there are more than 40,000 American troops on the border between North and South Korea, armed with some 150 tactical nuclear weapons. Even more startling is the fact that these servicemen are stationed alongside 360,000 South Korean soldiers, who stare across the Demilitarized Zone at 480,000 North Korean troops.

What is so startling about that? Nothing, except that supposed American strategy entails responding to a North Korean military effort by striking deep into their country, integrating ground and air conventional and nuclear forces. An ensuing nuclear exchange would be small in scale, but would nevertheless constitute a senseless waste of human life.

It seems even more senseless when one recognizes the situation could be remedied by a few peaceful efforts on our part. First of all, why not recognize North Korea diplomatically, and end this silly charade of militarized relations? Or what about impressing the South Korean military with the idea it may be in their best interest to step down from power and encourage a civilian democracy? Either of the aforementioned ideas would certainly be greeted with something other than hostility by North Korea. Maybe we could even live to witness a retrieval of all nuclear weapons from the area.

But that would be silly to hope for now, wouldn't it? What can one possibly expect from a nation which proudly boasts that in the first four months of this year U.S. companies have introduced a new food, household or beauty appliance every 41 minutes?

Gulf war deserves everyone's concern

Commentary

KIRK CARAWAY
Collegian Columnist

It was a pretty ordinary day for me. I was sitting with some friends in the Union eating what I think was lunch — I'm still alive, so it couldn't have been that bad. Then my friend, DJ, posed the question to me, "What do you think about all this crap in the Persian Gulf?"

This has become a familiar question these days, to which I usually respond with my familiar answer, "Well, it's just crap." But DJ wouldn't let it go at that. "C'mon man, don't wimp out on me now. Analyze the situation and tell me what you think."

I couldn't turn down a direct challenge like that, but I had to get to class before I could give him an answer. I realized later that I not only owed DJ an answer, but a lot of other people too. I have been indifferent for too long. So let's go to the gulf.

The Iran-Iraq war has been raging for seven years. It started because of a simple border dispute but has grown beyond that. Iran is calling for the ouster of Iraqi president Saddam Hussein, while the Iraqis would like to see the government of the Ayatollah Khomeini replaced with a more friendly regime. The war has become a long, drawn-out stalemate from which these two countries are having problems extricating themselves.

But what got the United States involved is the so-called tanker war. Since it started, 375 vessels have been attacked in the Persian Gulf, the waterway through which a large percentage of the world's oil flows. Each side has tried to cripple the other's oil producing capability, thereby destroying the other's ability to pay for the war.

So now the U.S. Navy has intervened to "help ensure the safety of neutral shipping in the region." They have been joined by naval forces from Britain, France, Italy, the Soviet Union and others. The presence of all these warships has turned the gulf into a floating battlefield, a war waiting to happen.

The United States only gets about 10 percent of its oil from the Persian Gulf, an amount U.S. officials admit could be easily obtained from other sources. Japan and Western Europe, on the other hand, have a lot to lose from a cutoff of oil from the gulf. One could question the economic sense of spending millions of American dollars protecting the economy of our main competitor, Japan, which has no naval forces in the gulf.

This is not the only thing that should be questioned about American policy in the Persian Gulf. While the Reagan administration maintains that its forces there are not taking sides in the conflict, the facts prove otherwise. The decision to reflag Kuwaiti tankers and protect them with American warships is definitely not a neutral act. Kuwait is an avid supporter of Iraq and has been helping the country ship its oil. Any claim of neutrality disappeared with the reflagging of the first tanker.

Then let's take the recent encounter with the Iranian ship that was supposedly laying mines. American forces fired without warning on an Iranian ship, killing at least three seamen and injuring four, with two still missing.

There are a few things in this story that don't add up. First, the Iranian sailors had three hours from the first attack to get rid of what they knew would be damaging evidence, but they didn't. They also abandoned ship in enemy territory without first scuttling the vessel, standard procedure for every navy in the world.

Then, the U.S. Navy towed the captured Iranian vessel to the middle of the gulf and blew it up with explosives, but not before getting "incontrovertible evidence" of Iranian minelaying. Why didn't the Navy fly in reporters from every newspaper in the world to see this evidence? I don't mean to say that it didn't happen the way the Navy says it did, but given past fabrications like the Gulf of Tonkin incident, one must be cautious.

But while American ships are searching for Iranian minelayers, Iraq is attacking shipping with impunity. Since the minelaying incident, the Iraqis have attacked no fewer than five ships with their Exocet missiles, the same type that killed 37 sailors on the USS Stark. One of the attacks — which resulted in the death of the vessel's Australian captain — was on a shrimp trawler.

Why has the United States taken Iraq's side in this war? The one event that really sparked renewed interest in the gulf was the Iraqi attack on the USS Stark. Iraq apologized for shooting our ship and now enjoys a certain amount of American support. Remember that it was Iraq that started the tanker war. Also remember that it is Iraq that has received Soviet military aid, a sure sign of Russian imperialism in the context of Reagan Newspeak.

I am not taking anyone's side in this conflict. I am only pointing out that the Reagan administration is only playing its usual game of hiding the truth. I see a very dangerous international situation brewing in this tense region. When you throw the navies of the most powerful nations on earth into an area the size of the Great Lakes, where there is already a war going on and which has the world's richest oil fields, the possibility for a major war is far too likely to ignore. America better watch who it's dealing with.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116.

Letters

Lack of coverage

Editor,

Included in the Collegian's Sept. 22 coverage of Costa Rican President Arias' visit was his advice to students "who support the (Arias) peace plan (to) let their representatives in Washington know how they feel." In light of this and the general theme of his lecture, "History is Ours to Write," it seems odd that the Students in Solidarity with Central America (SISCA)-sponsored activities that took place in conjunction with the lecture were not reported.

Members of SISCA, with the help of representatives from Manhattan Alliance on Central America and Neighbor to Neighbor, solicited letters to Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R.—Kan., from students and others attending the lecture — while these people were on their way to and from the lecture. The letters — written on the spot — urged Kassebaum to support the Arias peace plan by voting against any more aid to the Contras. The total amount of letters collected was 267!

Why wasn't this reported? It was not a scene that could have been overlooked. Against the background of an impressive, handmade 8-by-10 foot "Welcome President Arias" banner, the area was flooded with television cameras and reporters. Yet there was still no mention in the Collegian and very little even in the Manhattan Mercury.

A great emphasis has been placed this year — on campus as well as in the community — on the celebration of the 200th anniversary of our Constitution. And SISCA members are recognizing this great document when they take advantage of the provisions it gives for citizens to participate in our government through activism such as that displayed at the Arias visit. Local student involvement in global issues is an important part of the education process presumably taking place at this University and deserves to be reported with just as much care as are the activities of the sororities, the fraternities and the athletes.

Paige A. Nichols junior in philosophy

Hear Luis Palau

Editor,

A statewide event is taking place on the K-State campus.

Luis Palau will be speaking at Ahearn Field House Wednesday, Oct. 7 through Sunday, Oct. 11, each night at 7:30 p.m.

Who is Luis Palau?

He is a family counselor, author, and successful public speaker.

He was born in Argentina and grew up in a small farming community. At a British missionary boys' camp, he made a sincere commitment to follow the Lord Jesus Christ, and from there grew in his Christian faith. He finished college and worked at a bank to support his widowed mother and younger sisters. In 1952, Palau heard Billy Graham speak on the radio, and decided to pursue his own desire to become a preacher. Eventually he worked with Billy Graham.

Ordained in Palo Alto, Cal., in 1963, he and his American wife went with a missionary organization to establish churches in South America. Later he formed his own team.

Since then he has gained an honorary doctorate, become a U.S. citizen, helped raise four sons and spoken to over 7 million people in 42 countries. In addition, he has authored a dozen books in English and Spanish, as well as counseled people over the T.V. and radio.

Why go and hear him speak?

There are several reasons. First of all, many people have worked hard to bring him here. Over 55 area churches, representing a broad cross section of denominations, who are knowledgeable of his reputation for honesty and integrity, have asked him to come and speak. His topics address issues that we all deal with every day. His moral message applies to everyone, regardless of their status in life. His topics include hope for the stressed-out, hope for the restless heart, hope for family relations, hope for the AIDS generation and hope for the uncertain future.

There is another reason to go hear him speak. As college students, it is easy to go through college without looking beyond the regular group of friends, studies and campus life.

When an opportunity like this one comes up, to listen to a man such as Palau, it is important to take advantage of it. During this time of negative world news, and moral speakers competing for public responses, we find it refreshing to hear one who is down-to-earth, humorous, honest and who truly has a positive solution to give. Don't miss him!

Holly Friesen
senior in elementary education and one other

Intention remains

Editor,

There were many vagaries and unfounded claims made in the Sept. 21 editorial board opinion which need to be set straight for the benefit of the student body.

As the article pointed out, a student fee has been collected since the fall of 1983 to be used toward the renovation of Holton Hall. This has always been the intent of the fee; that is why it is called the "Holton Hall" fee, not the "let's start collecting money from students for Holton Hall and change its use on a whim of Student Senate five years later" fee. To change the use of the fee now would be a breach of faith to every student who has ever paid the fee, and to the student services housed in Holton Hall. The student body's credibility for the intent of any other student fee in the future would be damaged by this precedent.

The opinion also falsely portrays the administration as "suddenly taking a renewed interest in Holton's condition. On the contrary, the administration has been very cooperative in working with the Student Senate on the issue since last April, when it was first discovered that the renovation was going to cost more than the original $780,000. If any party has taken a sudden interest in Holton Hall, it is the Collegian editorial board, which has failed to take a stand on the issue up to this point or even keep the student body informed of the progress on an issue that involves a significant amount of student money. It is only when a vaguely written bill with the rallying cry of "let's have a referendum" is introduced by a senator, who just coincidentally happens to be on the editorial board, that we ever see Holton Hall made into an issue.

The opinion also states that student services "may be moved to other buildings" upon renovation of Holton. This could only happen with student consent, due to the foresight written into the bill calling for the $1,069,000 renovation plan. It establishes that any significant change in the use of Holton Hall, i.e., the moving of a student service, would have to be approved by Student Senate from now on, due to the involvement of students in its renovation. This would be a unique opportunity and responsibility, as students have never before had authority over a state-owned building on our campus. Furthermore, the administration fully supports this provision, which even the most casual observer would have to interpret as an act of good faith.

Wally Brockhoff
senior in agricultural economics

Willie does help

Editor,

Whatever the problems of the Willie Nelson concert in Manhattan last month, the headlines on your "Commentary" in the Sept. 17 Collegian give, we believe, a false picture.

Perhaps the funds go directly from Nelson's bank account to the helping agencies — we don't know. We do know that, in the past, Kansas has received many thousands of dollars from the Nelson Farm Aid funds, as have numerous other states. In Kansas (considered exemplary, incidentally, in its handling of these funds), payment has been made to the Consultation of Cooperating Churches in Kansas (CCCK) for distribution to needy farmers. Any pastor in the state can request funds for persons in need (not necessarily members of their churches.) Recipients are not identified by name, only by situation. The amount of any one donation is limited to $100, certainly not enough to solve any major need, but great enough to help in food, medical and other emergencies. Thousands of dollars have been distributed in this fashion, and many individuals given at least a bit of help and encouragement.

The Nelson funding has encouraged other agencies to give to CCCK for similar use, and more funding is anticipated. If you wish more specific details, you may wish to contact Dorothy Berry, executive director of CCCK, 4125 Gage Center Drive, Topeka, 66604.

Jim Henry chairperson

Kansas Ecumenical Rural Issues Coalition

Someone cares

Editor,

We attended the SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) activities on the K-State campus on Sept. 26 and were very impressed by the event. Robert Anastas, founder of the national SADD organization, asked K-Staters to sign a contract that may save their lives, and the mock alcohol-related accident at 17th Street and Anderson Avenue was very realistic.

Statistics show that too many young people are still losing their lives in alcohol-related auto accidents. One of the most thought-provoking statements made by Anastas, however, was that no one cares about statistics. A person only cares when it happens to them, and when they are a statistic, who will care? Judging from the enormous effort of time and planning put into the SADD event, Connie Garrison, president of K-State SADD, and the SADD members do care what happens to each of you.

Don Kropf
professor of animal sciences and industry and one other

Updated facts

Editor,

First, I would like to make a correction in my last letter. Due to a typographical error, the Old English form I referred to was printed as 17th century English. It is actually 7th century English.

Secondly, I would like to quote the Oxford English Dictionary: "In OE. the words distinctive of sex were 'wer' and 'wif,' 'waepman' and 'wifman.'"

Leigh Ann Wheeler
junior in history

Jeopardized right

Editor,

I recently saw the (material on the) bulletin board by the east entrance of the Union comparing the U.S. action in the Persian Gulf with Vietnam. The display didn't have the name of any organization on it, so I went to the Union director's office to see who would put up such propaganda.

I wasn't very surprised to find that it was done by the Iranian Student Union. Now, it may seem strange coming from an ex-Marine to hear that these "students" who posted this repulsive material have a point, but they do!

Yes, the U.S. actions in the gulf do bring to mind another war. But the Iranians chose the wrong war. I believe that the U.S. actions in the gulf are more like our actions before the American entrance to World War II.

The Ayatollah has shown himself to be a modern (-day) Hitler. He believes he has the right to impose his own religious views on others or eliminate them. He believes that he has a mandate from God to justify the deaths, pain, and suffering in his and all the other countries of the world, that he has caused.

We allowed Hitler to remain for more than 10 years before he and his insidious regime (were) stamped out. How much longer must we and the rest of the people of the world be forced to cower in the face of Iranian and other extremist terrorism before it, too, is stamped out?

The Iranian Student Union should be allowed to express its views — whether they be lies or its view of the truth — for too many good American men and women have fought and died defending that right.

But, like the Nazis, we should remember that, if given the chance, they would take those rights away from us.

Robert W. Hicklin
senior in chemical engineering

Volley of thanks

Editor,

We want to thank all of those responsible for our huge crowd last Wednesday night at the K-State-University of Kansas volleyball match. We're very proud to represent K-State, and it was rewarding to us to see such an outpouring of support.

Your season-long coverage, as well as that of other local media, no doubt played a key role in securing such big numbers.

Of course, we also want to thank our many loyal fans who cheered us on to the victory. There's no question that the crowd gave us the winning edge over KU. We hope to see all of you back at our home matches throughout the remainder of the season.

The K-State volleyball team

Different meaning

Editor,

While traveling between classes the other day, my friend, Dean, and I encountered a statement on a shirt we thought was rather interesting. The shirt had the words "Americas Behind" encircling the word "Ollie." We both had the same reaction and chuckled as we read, "Ollie, America's Behind," out loud.

I realize this wasn't the intent of the manufacturer, but I felt our interpretation of the statement was much more appropriate and suggest the addition of an apostrophe.

Chad Herd
senior in landscape architecture

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian Classifieds

JOYCE'S HAIR
HAIRCUTS
HERS.....$10.50
Includes Shampoo & Style
$7.50
539-TAME or 539-8601
404 Humboldt

Memorial Hospital Auxiliary
presents
Pumpkin Patch 14
Friday, Oct. 9, noon-8 p.m.
Saturday, Oct. 10, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.
at Cico Park
Manhattan, KS

IMPORT
BEER
TUESDAYS!

• All Imports
$1.25
• All Coolers
$1.25
(Regular $1.75)

Open to the Public

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
ESTABLISHED 1981

DON'T FORGET
TONIGHT
The First Tuesday
Of The Month.

AND YES

There Will Be Another
POOL TOURNAMENT

Starts at 8 p.m.

1800 Claflin 539-9619

NOW OPEN

Now that we're open, what do we do you ask? Accessories on the Park is the largest and most prestigious women's accessories store in the Manhattan area. Enough said? Stop by and you'll like it.

Mon.-Sat.: 10-6:00, Thur.: 10-8:30, Sun.: 1-5:00
708 N. Manhattan Ave., Aggieville 537-0707

4th Annual
MANHATTAN MERCHANTS GIFT BOOK
Sponsored by 50 of the local Manhattan merchants

$1000 Value
Gift Certificate Book
for only $39⁹⁵

Our operators
may be contacting you
537-9022

You Can't Pay More than $44.95!

Complete Eyeglasses

SINGLE VISION

$24.95

BIFOCALS

$34.95

Our only Extras: Cox Coating (scratch guard)-$10 and Photo Grey Extra (lenses that darken)-$10.

Payless Optical Outlet

1210 Moro, Manhattan
537-1574

M-F 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

Construction costs exceed $34 million

K-State's associate director of facilities planning, Vince Cool, is currently working with three construction companies on three projects costing in excess of $34 million.

By Janet Swanson
Agri/Business Editor

Construction booms occur in cycles on the K-State campus, but the current one is a more than $34 million boom.

"We always have something going on, but we do have a lot going on now," said Vince Cool, associate director of facilities planning.

The Weber Hall renovation, Fred Bramlage Coliseum and the Chemistry-Biochemistry Laboratory are all at varying stages of completion.

"Our capital improvement plans are updated every year on a five- and a 10-year range," Cool said. "We expect action (by the state Legislature) on our budget for the next five years around April."

Weber Hall

"It's pretty sophisticated and complicated. It was a tough one to build," said Cool.

Construction on Weber Hall began in December of 1985 and is expected to be finished in the next six weeks.

"It was supposed to be finished in August, but it has been a slow process," he said.

The renovation includes construction of freezing facilities, meat preparation rooms, chemical labs, and cooling and cutting rooms.

"Weber is a small laboratory slaughter house," Cool said.

"A lot of the money for Weber, about $500,000, was from gifts," he said. "The other buildings are being paid for by state funding."

"We anticipate raising a half of a million dollars through gifts and gifts in kind, such as equipment," said Calvin Drake, executive vice-president of the Livestock and Meat Industry Council.

The Iowa Beef Packing company has sent the college a list of equipment from which to choose, Drake said.

Simpson & Sons Inc., Wichita, is completing the $7.2 million addition. It is 22,000 square feet and two stories.

Chemistry-Biochemistry

Construction on the building began a year ago and is expected to be completed in July of 1988.

"When we started planning this building, safety was the paramount issue. If it came to a choice between energy efficiency or safety, safety won," said Joseph Paukstelis, professor of chemistry and chairman of the building committee.

Because of the modern ventilation system in the new building, a majority of chemistry labs will be moved into it.

"It got to the point where we couldn't use some solvents because they were unsafe (in Willard)," he said. "Our experiments were limited by the facilities, and the University recognized that."

The building is connected to King Hall on the first, second and third levels. It will have a few offices and conference rooms, but it will mainly contain laboratories.

"We started at the top of the list of the labs that had to move and just went down it until we were out of space in the building," Paukstelis said. "That may have not have been the best way to do it, but safety was the issue."

Contractor of the building is Don-dling & Sons Construction Co., Wichita. A second phase of the building is on the University's five-year plan.

"The second stage will allow us to move the remaining labs and will open Willard for another department that needs to expand," Paukstelis said.

Because the $10 million building is primarily made of concrete and brick, the building will be very humid to start with, Cool said.

"Due to the nature of the building, there will be a lot of excess water causing it to be very humid at first," he said. "We want to be able to maintain a reasonable level of humidity and have it stabilized before the building opens."

To reduce the humidity, a chilled water line will be extended from the power plant, on the west side of campus, to the building, Cool said.

"Construction on the line should begin Oct. 12," he said. "Some roads will have to be closed for a few days as we put it in."

The $385,000 line will be placed by Ziggler Construction, El Dorado, and should be completed by April 1.

Fred Bramlage Coliseum

The coliseum will seat 13,500 spectators and will replace Ahearn Field House as the location of home basketball games.

"The indoor track will remain at Ahearn," Cool said. "I don't see it (the coliseum) as taking that much away from Ahearn."

Although Ahearn only seats 11,200, it is bigger in other ways than Bramlage.

"Ahearn has more floor space than Bramlage does. And despite the addition of Bramlage, there will still be a shortage of basketball courts," Cool said.

Intramurals will continue to be played at Ahearn, and trade shows will continue to be hosted there, he said.

The $17 million Bramlage Coliseum will also have offices, dressing rooms and a training area.

But moving the home basketball games to Bramlage causes some concern for Malley Sisso, food service director for the K-State Union.

"It will definitely mean a decrease in revenue for us," she said. "We're trying to brainstorm to find a way to

■ See BUILDING, Page 10

The Chemistry-Biochemistry Laboratory as drawn by the architect. The building is expected to be ready for classes next fall and will house the majority of graduate and undergraduate laboratories.

Bonds, mutual funds guarantee face value at maturity

If you invest in bonds or mutual funds that include bond funds, reading Ben Weberman's "Forbes" column could be beneficial to you. A senior editor of "Forbes" magazine who has covered the capital markets for many years, Weberman keeps his readers abreast of current bond yields and offers valuable information about individual bond issues and bond mutual funds.

Several months ago, he discussed advertised yields on some of the bond funds dealing in U.S. government securities. If you have invested or plan to invest in one of these mutual funds, a basic review of how to manage their bond portfolios is valuable.

More income generally requires more risk. For example, if U.S. treasuries are paying 7 percent and you find an investment offering 10 percent, then to get this additional 3 percent income, you must accept a risk above that which the U.S. treasury obligation offers. The underlying security of a government fund — treasuries, bonds or mortgages — is the guarantee by the U.S. government that the holder will receive the face value of the security at maturity as well as stated interest until that time. That does not mean, however, the

Commentary

STEPHEN P. HARRISON
Guest Columnist

daily market value of the investment will remain the same. In fact, it is almost certain to change as face value, maturity and stated interest.

Face value refers to the printed amount on the security. Maturity and stated interest, also printed on the security, tell you when the bond is due and what percent of interest it will pay until that time. For example, let's say you buy a $10,000 bond that pays 7 percent and matures on June 1. If you hold the bond until that time, you will receive $700 interest each year and on June 1, you will get your original $10,000 back.

But, what if you want to sell your bond before June 1? There is generally a ready market, but the amount you receive is based on the interest rates at that time. For example, if the rate on bonds of similar quality and maturity is 6 percent, your 7 percent bond would bring a premium, or profit, over its purchase price. On the other hand, if the current rate is 8 percent, your 7 percent bond would sell at a discount of less than you paid for it. Since the interest paid on a bond does not change, the only way the bond can be competitive enough to be bought and sold in the market is for the market value to change. This is a normal market fluctuation and occurs with all long-term debt issues, whether they be individual bonds or mutual funds investing in bonds.

In our example, an individual 7 percent bond pays a regular, stated interest until it matures. This way, you know exactly how much income you will receive each year. But with a bond mutual fund, since it is a professionally managed portfolio of many bonds, your interest depends on how much income the portfolio generates. As Weberman explains, "You can't make a pool of 8 percent bonds yield 10 percent." How, then, can many of the "enhanced" or high yield funds do — or claim to do — this?

Face value refers to the printed amount on the security. Maturity and stated interest, also printed on the security, tell you when the bond is due and what percent of interest it will pay until that time.

One way yields may be enhanced, or increased, is by writing covered options of the bonds held in the portfolio. Here, the fund manager can take the premium received from the sale of the call option and distribute it as income. Weberman maintains this is not income but a return of principal. Regardless, if the market value of the underlying security drops due to a rise in interest rates, the option premium buffers that drop somewhat. But, if interest rates fall and the security rises in market value, the buyer of the option may call the bond and this eliminates any potential profit. In other words, for a little additional income, the fund manager has sacrificed the possibility of gain.

Another way yields are enhanced is to buy portfolio securities with coupons above current market rates. This means the securities trade at a premium to maturity. The current yields may be high, but as the bonds mature at face value, this premium is lost from your principal. Weberman gave an example of a 9.75 percent Treasury of 1992 trading at 112½, a current yield of 8.7 percent. However, when the bond matures at face value of 100, the yield to maturity is only 7 percent since part of the original investment has been lost.

This may sound confusing, but the main message to remember is, the higher the income, the greater the risk. When income looks unusually high, check carefully to see how that income is coming into the portfolio. As Weberman said, "If someone told you he could pour an eight ounce beer into a glass and make it 10 ounces, you'd be a little suspicious, wouldn't you?"

Stephen P. Harrison is an investment representative with Edward D. Jones & Co., which is a national investment firm with an office serving the Manhattan area.

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, October 6, 1987 ■ Page 7

Burcham bursts onto tennis scene

Freshman garners No. 1 spot

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

To say that Thresa Burcham, K-State's No. 1 women's tennis player, is kind of a sports enthusiast would be comparable to saying that Babe Ruth was kind of a baseball player or that Elvis Presley was kind of an entertainer.

Burcham, a freshman, has been to every home Wildcat football game this year. Considering she hails from Little Rock, Ark., where football is taken extremely seriously, it's hard to picture her sitting through a Wildcat performance without thinking of packing her bags and heading back home to watch her previous favorite team — the University of Arkansas Razorbacks.

"I like football and I like to go to the games. I just wish they (Wildcats) were a little more successful," Burcham said. "I also love watching volleyball. We have a great volleyball team here."

"My favorite sport to watch is basketball. I'm really looking forward to the start of basketball season," she added. "I guess you could say that I like watching all kinds of sports."

Burcham — who participated in tennis, track, volleyball and basketball in high school — said she never imagined she would move so quickly to the top spot on the team.

"I was really surprised with myself," Burcham said. "I came in and played really well in our (team) tournament. I really didn't expect to play that well.

Freshman Thresa Burcham, K-State's No. 1 women's tennis player, practices Monday afternoon at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area tennis courts.

"I played in a lot of tournaments over the summer but until I got here (K-State), I never had time to stop and work on my strokes. I got here and Coach (Steve) Bietau worked with me on everything he saw that I needed to improve on."

"I was in good playing shape but not as good as I should have been in," she added. "I never really had the opportunity to stop playing and just train for a week or two like I've done here."

Playing in the No. 1 spot could put added pressure on the freshman from Arkansas. But with her experience from playing on the junior circuit, Burcham said she'll do just fine.

"I love the atmosphere of college tennis as compared with junior tennis," Burcham said. "In college you get a lot more encouragement, where in junior tennis there is a lot more pressure."

"In junior tennis you are out there playing for yourself. Here, I am part of a team and if you make a good shot, one of your teammates will tell you."

It is amazing Burcham has come this far with her tennis playing abilities, considering her high school only had three girls out for the sport and there wasn't much interest in it. She started playing tennis at the age of 11 when she discovered a summer program close to her house. It didn't take her long to realize she loved the game.

"I was playing basketball in high school but in the tenth grade, I decided that I was going to give it up to devote more time to tennis," Burcham said. "My goal at that point was to try to get a scholarship to play tennis at a university."

"I visited a lot of schools in the south before coming here, but K-State has such a pretty campus, I decided I really liked it here. The people were all so friendly when I came back for enrollment that I knew I was going to like it here."

"I'm going to continue playing the best tennis I can for K-State and hopefully I'll reach my potential."

'New NFL' could spark ambition

Tom on Tuesday

TOM MORRIS
Sports Writer

So you weren't impressed with the so-called masquerade NFL games which began this week? You're disillusioned with the fact that there's a significantly smaller man running around toting William "The Refrigerator" Perry's number?

Face it, you're tired of the struggle between the players and the owners, and in the long run it's the fans that are sitting in the middle of this mudslinging mess.

If you're like I am, you're bored to death with the whole affair and you would just like to "take a vacation from arbitration." After all, it's no fun watching the networks contradict themselves by saying 'scab football' is bad, then turning around and broadcasting the games. So why not find something else to occupy your time?

Here are some alternatives for couch potatoes everywhere to fill the void left in their Sunday afternoon and Monday night schedules:

■ Forget about football for awhile. It's not worth the mental stress and strain sitting around worrying about something you have no control over. An option? Watch baseball. After completing the 162-game schedule which seems to last forever at times, it's time for some quality, intense baseball. Two teams begin play today in the National League playoffs for the right to advance to the World Series. The American league playoffs begin Wednesday, so this one should last you until mid-October.

■ Catch a hockey game. Football on ice. And for the fans who like the violent aspect of games, as much as the NHL owners and executives try to downplay it, fighting is an integral part of hockey. Rodney Dangerfield once said, "I went to a fight the other night, and a hockey game broke out." Come to think of it, Rodney probably said that more than once. I wonder what he thinks of the strike.

■ Write personal hate letters to every striking NFL player. By the time you've accomplished this feat, the strike should be over.

■ Go to an arcade and play video sports, or purchase a football game that can be played with a VCR. Hey, it's not the same thing, but it's as close to pro football on television as you're going to get these days.

■ Reminisce about your childhood days when watching pro football wasn't as important as organizing and playing a game of sandlot football with your buddies. It may take a few phone calls, but you could get that certain thrill out of doing it yourself for a change instead of sitting on your butt and watching some guys getting paid six or seven figures to play.

■ Or, heaven forbid, do something that is actually constructive such as painting the house, mowing the lawn, reading textbooks or doing homework. You might even consider something on the good samaritan order such as joining Big Brothers or Big Sisters, and bringing some joy to a child in need of a friend, even if it's just for a few hours a week.

Just because the NFL owners and players are being selfish, doesn't mean the fans have to act the same way.

'Quiz' wants trade, seeks 'opportunity'

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Dan Quisenberry says he's tired of not being used and wants to be traded from the Kansas City Royals.

Quisenberry, who signed a lifetime contract in 1985, was the premier relief pitcher in baseball between 1980-85. But he finished the 1987 with only eight saves and was hardly used at all in the second half of the season as the Royals finished in second place in the American League West, two games in back of Minnesota.

"I still feel that I can pitch and feel the need to pitch," Quisenberry, 34, said Sunday. "I can't let that hope die within myself and have to pursue that hope somewhere else."

The submarine-throwing right-hander said he doubted there would be an opportunity for him in Kansas City.

"I have to hope there's an opportunity somewhere else. I didn't want this to happen. I don't think anybody wished this upon me," said Quisenberry, who finished with a 4-1 record and a 2.76 earned run average along with his eight saves.

One difficulty in trading him will be a contract that gives him a guaranteed base salary of $1.1 million for each of the next three seasons and a real estate partnership with Royals' co-owner Avron Fogelman through the year 2025.

"If the real estate partnership is an impediment to that trade, I'm willing to be bought out," Quisenberry said.

In 1985, Fogelman made Quisenberry a 24.7 percent owner of Stewart's Ferry, a 700-unit apartment complex in Nashville, Tenn., in addition to other holdings.

Fogelman said he has never been approached about buying out a limited partner in a real estate deal such as the one that involves Quisenberry.

"That's mainly because they're long-term investments," Fogelman said.

Tiger QB could be out

By The Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Missouri quarterback Ronnie Cameron will be examined by a second doctor for dizziness before resuming practice with the Tigers this week, officials said Monday.

Cameron took himself out at half-time Saturday against Syracuse. Trainer Fred Wappel said a neurologist cleared Cameron on Sunday.

Rugby team splits series with KC

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The K-State rugby team may have played its best matches of the season Saturday, but only the B-side was successful on the scoreboard, as they beat the Kansas City Rugby Football Club 17-6. The A-side dropped a 17-0 decision to the Kansas City A-side.

"You really have to give credit to the Kansas City team, they had several Welshmen playing for them and they were incredible rugby players," said Greg Barnes, former head coach and current player. "Their Welsh guys had incredible hands and they were excellent kickers. They were the difference in the game."

Although the A-side game saw the K-Staters coming up on the short end of the score, their play was solid, Barnes said.

"We played a really competitive game," Barnes said. "We had a couple of let-downs, but other than that we played a pretty solid game."

"This weekend they really did well, especially on the back line," added Coach Danny Blea. "Our pack also played really well."

"There's still a lot of room for improvement, but I think that this was the best match we've played all season, even if the score doesn't read that way."

In the B-game, K-State saw some positive play out of their younger, less experienced players.

"In the second game we played a lot of young guys," Barnes said. "They played exceptionally well for (being) as inexperienced as they are."

The ruggers were fortunate not to suffer any injuries as they head into their collegiate merit table matches. All of the matches that K-State has played so far this season have either been club level matches or collegiate matches that don't count in the standings.

Due to eligibility requirements, many of K-State's younger players will move up to the A-side to compete in the college level matches. The eligibility rule will involve six of K-State's players.

K-State rugby club member Scott Hamilton struggles to gain possession of a loose ball during the club's Saturday contest against the Kansas City rugby football club. The 'Cats were defeated, 17-0.

Sports Briefly

Soccer teams victorious

The K-State men's soccer team lost to Wichita State 3-1 at the Wamego Oktoberfest Saturday, then bounced back Sunday when it defeated the Nebraska Cornhuskers in Lincoln, 3-2.

David Nicodemus scored the only goal against Wichita State.

Sunday, Dave Weitz, John Syzhowski and Pat Bonnell tallied in the winning effort against Nebraska.

"It was a very smooth performance by our squad. It's nice to be back on the winning track," K-State soccer coach Ian Anderson said.

The women's soccer team beat the University of Kansas, 3-0, Saturday in Lawrence, then knocked off Missouri Valley College by the same score Saturday in Manhattan to improve its record to 3-0.

Women's golf team fourth

The K-State women's golf team finished fourth in a seven-team field over the weekend at the par-74 Pheasant Ridge Country Club, in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The team carded rounds of 388-349 for a 36-hole team total of 737. Mankato State claimed team honors with a two-day score of 703.

Jill Zientara was the top Wildcat, with a total of 176, with freshman Chris Adams one stroke behind at 177.

'Little women' to be presented Wednesday night

By Susan L'Ecuier
Collegian Reporter

The Children's Theatre Company of Minneapolis will present its original theatrical adaptation of Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in McCain Auditorium.

The production tells the story of the March family — daughters Meg, Jo, Amy and Beth and their mother and father — as seen through the eyes of Jo. The play focuses on the domestic lives of the family during the 1860s and the triumphs and tragedies experienced by the four sisters at that time.

Richard Martin, director of McCain Auditorium, is pleased to have the company perform here.

"It's a company that is — if not the best — then one of the best companies for children in the country," Martin said. "The members are all adult, professionally trained actors who portray their characters well."

The productions they do are family entertainment, but rather than being a distraction like television, they are a worthwhile form of art, Martin said.

"The programs they do are accessible and worthwhile — accessible in that they are something both children and adults can enjoy. 'Little Women' is about four girls in a poor New England family and their coming to terms with what it basically means to live...they're people we can relate to even today."

The production is directed by CTC artistic director Jon Cranney and was adapted for the stage by award-winning playwright Marisha Chamberlain.

"All who are involved with the production have first-rate reputations," Martin said. "It's just a good, solid piece of work."

Martin did, however, express the concern that many people in the college community, especially the students, may associate the novel on which the play is based with the literature they had to read as children and therefore not think it worthwhile to attend.

"But like any first-rate piece of literature, it's good for everybody," Martin said.

The Children's Theatre Company is a theater for children and their families. In more than 20 years of operation, CTC has developed an annual audience of nearly 250,000 people.

Incest victim sentenced

Woman faints after hearing decision

By The Associated Press

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. — A teenager who admitted hiring a classmate to kill her father to end years of sexual and physical abuse was sentenced to six months in jail for manslaughter Monday.

Cheryl Pierson, 18, whose case had focused national attention on incest and domestic violence, fainted in her courtroom chair when Suffolk County Supreme Court Justice Harvey Sherman announced the sentence.

The former high school cheerleader had pleaded guilty to manslaughter for hiring 19-year-old Sean Pica to kill her father, James Pierson, 42, who she said had abused her sexually and physically for more than four years.

Pierson, an electrician, was shot to death in the driveway of their home in Selden, on Long Island, when he left for work on the morning of Feb.

5, 1986.

Miss Pierson sobbed uncontrollably in court while she told Sherman: "I realized what I did was wrong and I'm sorry." She was unable to continue.

She was sentenced as a youthful offender, meaning the conviction will be wiped from her record. In addition to the jail term, the judge placed her on five years' probation and ordered her to continue psychotherapy.

Shortly before sentencing, she had begun crying when her attorney, Paul Gianelli, emerged from Sherman's chambers and whispered in her ear.

Relatives and friends in the courtroom, who at first had sighed with relief when the judge sentenced her to five years' probation, broke into cries when he announced that she also would go to jail.

Pierson has said she arranged her father's death because, after enduring his sexual abuse herself, she saw signs that he was starting an incestuous relationship with her 8-year-old sister, JoAnn. Their mother had died in February 1985.

The judge said he received more than 100 letters about the case, most from victims of domestic violence who asked that he be lenient.

"Many show great sympathy for the suffering you endured," Sherman told her.

In a nine-page written decision that was obtained through attorneys because the judge refused to release it, Sherman said he found that Pierson was sexually abused by her father from the time she was 11 until his death.

For one year after her mother's death, Pierson "was the object of frequent, repeated acts of sexual intercourse by her father," the judge wrote.

But he noted that she planned her father's death over a 3½-month period and agreed to pay $1,000 to Pica, of nearby Coram. Pica also pleaded guilty to manslaughter and is serving eight to 24 years in prison.

The judge said her participation in the killing was "deliberate and planned."

He said the murder was done "considerably subsequent to the initial acts of intercourse and would, in the context of the law, appear to be unjustified."

"Society has the right to condemn and the duty to punish such conduct and a term of incarceration is warranted," he wrote.

He specified that Pierson undergo intensive supervision during her probation and continue psychotherapy as an outpatient indefinitely.

Gianelli said he expects Pierson to be freed on parole Jan. 20.

"The last thing she said was, 'I don't want to go to jail,'" the lawyer said.

Faculty to showcase performing talents

By The Collegian Staff

K-State faculty members will display their performing talents this evening with "Faculty Follies: A Medley of Musical Mania!," to be presented at 8 p.m. in All Faiths Chapel.

The concert is being held to raise money for scholarships through Pi Kappa Lambda music honorary, said Craig Parker, assistant professor of music.

"The program consists mainly of music department faculty," Parker said.

The program for the concert features music by Tom Lehrer, a popular satirist, and Irving Berlin. The follies will also include a Laurel and Hardy silent film, "Unaccustomed As We Are," which will have organ accompaniment by Robert Edwards, professor of music.

Tickets for the concert bought in advance are $1 for students and senior citizens and $3 for the general public.

Tickets may also be purchased at the door for $2 for students and senior citizens and $4 for the general public.

1

1101 MORO
AGGIEVILLE

RUNZA DRIVE-IN RESTAURANT

A Meal
In Itself

EXPIRES
10-15-87

FRIES

1

FREE FRENCH FRIES
1 order of FREE French Fries with your next food purchase at RUNZA

TV Listings

By TV Data

TUESDAY OCTOBER 6, 1987

	KSNT 12	WIBW 13	KTCA 14	KSHB 15	KTWU 16	WGN 17	ESPN 18	WTBS 19
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00		TBA		My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook Sports	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid	Ghostbusters	Who's Boss	Sesame Street	H's Heroes	Senior PGA Golf: Vantage	Movie: "The Great Lie"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss	M.T. Moore	Body Electric	Andy Griffith Soap	Championship
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec.	Dyke Green Acres	Psychology Computers in	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday	All My Child-	Beaver	Sesame Street	News	Horse Show Jumping	Movie: "Honky Tonk"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith	Masterpiece Theatre: The	Van Dyke	Auto Racing: NASCAR
2:00	Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch	Mod. Maturity Learn to Read	Beaver	Holly Farms 400	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scooby Doo	Thundercats	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	3's Company	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game	Jetsons	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravestar	Auto Racing: Gold Coast	Munsters Laverne
5:00	Family Ties	News	ABC News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsCenter Bill Dance	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News	M*A*S*H	WKRP	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers	SportsCenter Tractor Pull	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00	Baseball Play-offs: National	Houston Knights	Who's Boss?	Hill Street Blues	Nova	Movie	Drag Racing: IHRA U.S.	Movie: "2001: A Space Odyssey"
8:00	League Championship Ser-	Jake and the Fatman	Moonlighting	Movie: "Up-town Saturday"	We the Peo-		Superbouts	sey
9:00	ies Game One	Law and Harry McGraw	Thirtysome-thing	Night	Story of English	News	Billiards: Internat'l Champ.
10:00	News	News	M*A*S*H	Barney Miller	Wild America Business Rpt.	H'mooner	PGA Tour SportsCenter	Movie: "The Silencers"
11:00	son	Hunter	B. Buddies	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie	Auto Racing: Off-Road
12:00	Late Night With David	"Institute for Revenge"	700 Club	Movie: "The Dolly Sisters"	Sign-Off		Speedway Racing	Frankenstein

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.20	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

- 01 Announcements
- 02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished
- 03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished
- 04 Automobiles for Sale
- 05 Automobile Rentals
- 06 Card of Thanks
- 07 Child Care
- 08 Computers
- 09 Employment
- 10 Financial Services
- 11 Garage and Yard Sales
- 12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent
- 13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale
- 14 Lost and Found
- 15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
- 16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
- 17 Musical Instruments
- 18 Personals
- 19 Pets and Pet Supplies
- 20 Professional Services
- 21 Rentals
- 22 Resume/Typing Services
- 23 Roommate Wanted
- 24 Situation Wanted
- 25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
- 26 Sublease
- 27 Welcome
- 28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____	Phone no. _____
Address _____	Student ID # _____
1 _____	2 _____
3 _____	4 _____
5 _____	6 _____
7 _____	8 _____
9 _____	10 _____
11 _____	12 _____
13 _____	14 _____
15 _____	16 _____
17 _____	18 _____
19 _____	20 _____
21 _____	22 _____
23 _____	24 _____
25 _____	26 _____
27 _____	28 _____
29 _____	30 _____
Date ad begins _____	Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____	Category _____

Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors & Grads ...

GIVE YOURSELF SOME CREDIT!

APPLY NOW FOR YOUR VERY OWN...

- Bring a photocopy of your School I.D.
- No cosigner required

APPLY NOW ON CAMPUS!

Date: Oct. 6, 7 & 8

Time: 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Place: Table outside Union Stateroom

CITIBANK
Citibank (South Dakota), N.A. Member FDIC

State's hospitals facing financial woes

By The Associated Press

WICHITA — With three of the eight institutions in the state hospital system facing loss of millions of dollars in federal aid and a long waiting list of Kansans who need help, there is growing pressure on state officials to find solutions to the problems.

Last week's hearings before the Legislature's Special Committee on Ways and Means clearly showed differing views on solutions. Directors of retardation and mental health programs, members of advocacy groups, academics and parents with family members in state hospitals are expressing often sharply conflicting views of what's wrong with the system — and what it will take to fix it.

Gerald Hannah, state commissioner of mental retardation services, called on lawmakers Thursday to increase state money for community mental-health programs from $11.8 million this year to about $22 million in 1991.

Pressure grows for finding answers

He said beefing up the system of 27 community centers could absorb new patients and take pressure off the four overcrowded and understaffed state hospitals that now house about 1,220 patients.

A University of Kansas professor submitted a 45-page report on the same system telling lawmakers they're already spending enough, but they need to change where they're putting the money.

Charles Rapp, an associate dean of KU's School of Social Welfare, said the real issue is reallocation. "Our plan wouldn't take any tax increases."

Rapp recommended the state shift funding from Larned, Topeka and Osawatomie state hospitals to the community mental-health programs in those areas. His plan did not include Rainbow Mental Health Facility in Kansas City, the state's smallest psychiatric hospital with only 46 patients.

The plan would be a marked departure from the state's methods in recent years when it has had to deal with crises in both the mental-retardation and mental-illness sides of the hospital system.

At Osawatomie State Hospital, for instance, the state is likely to be spending more money in the near future to hire extra medical personnel. The hospital faces the loss of $1.94 million a year in Medicaid funding. Federal inspectors in August concluded that the hospital has at least 30 more patients than its medical staff can handle.

Allocating more state money also has been the main tactic in dealing with threats of losing federal money at Winfield and Larned state hospitals.

Technically, Winfield already has lost its eligibility for about $725,000 a month in Medicaid money to treat mentally retarded patients. The money is still flowing, however, pending the outcome of the state's appeal. At Larned, federal inspectors are threatening to cut off about $1.6 million a year in Medicaid unless the hospital hires more nurses for its psychiatric patients by the end of November.

When the question of new community mental health facilities arose, some community directors told the committee if the state guaranteed them operating money, they would find money for bricks and mortar elsewhere, mainly through federal grants. Other directors disagreed, saying they'd probably need state money for capital costs.

Hannah's plan for reducing the size of state hospitals depends largely on a rapid expansion of another system — a $60 million-a-year network of 28 agencies across the state that serve the mentally retarded in their own communities.

He said a state of "public crisis" surrounds the 1,223 patients in the state's four institutions for the mentally retarded. He said the state must reduce the patient population at Winfield, Norton and Parsons state hospitals and Kansas Neurological Institute in Topeka by at least 30 percent by 1992.

This year, that system receives only about $5.3 million of its financing from the state, less than 9 percent. The rest comes from federal grants, county mill levies and charitable donations. But Hannah has prepared three possible budgets next year that would boost the state's contribution to at least $8.8 million.

As patients leave the state hospitals in the next few years, they would join those programs, which provide an array of services from counseling and vocational training to transportation and supervised apartment living.

Soviets display chemical weapons array, say U.S. plans could endanger arms ban

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Soviet officials said Monday that U.S. plans to produce a new type of chemical weapon could torpedo talks on a chemical arms ban. They silenced a U.S. envoy who sought to defend his government's policy.

Over the weekend, diplomats participating in the Geneva talks on a chemical weapons ban were flown to the Shikhan military base in central Russia, where they were shown an array of Soviet chemical munitions.

It was the first time the Soviet Union put on display weapons from its chemical arsenal. Until this year, the Kremlin had declined to confirm it had chemical weapons, but Western defense experts estimate the Soviets have more chemical munitions than any other power.

Col. Gen. Vladimir Pikalov, commander of the Soviet Union's chemical warfare forces, told a Moscow news conference the Soviet Union "has no special types of chemical weapons not held by the West."

But Pikalov said the Soviets would not disclose where all its chemical weapons are stored until after the signing of an international convention leading to the destruction of such weapons throughout the world.

He said Geneva disarmament talks aimed at drafting such an agreement are jeopardized by a U.S. plan to produce a new class of chemical arms.

The new munitions are called binary weapons because they contain two relatively harmless substances which, when combined, become lethal agents.

The Reagan administration won congressional approval to begin on Dec. 1 to manufacture a limited number of binary munitions in the first resumption of U.S. chemical weapons production since 1969.

Ambassador Max A. Friedersdorf, a former senior Reagan aide and now the chief U.S. negotiator at the Geneva chemical weapons talks, was given a microphone after seeking to be recognized during the Foreign Ministry news conference where Pikalov and other officials spoke.

Friedersdorf said he wanted to respond to the criticism of U.S. policy and launched into a defense of that policy. He contended that a Soviet buildup of chemical weapons during the U.S. moratorium threatened the security of the United States and its allies in Europe.

He was cut off by the moderator, Foreign Ministry spokesman Genady Gerasimov, who said the session was intended for questions and answers.

Friedersdorf then sought to ask a rhetorical question, but Gerasimov ruled he made "a statement, not a question."

Veteran Soviet arms negotiator Viktor Karpov then charged that Friedersdorf's side was stalling in the Geneva talks.

Friedersdorf told reporters after the session that his weekend trip to the previously secret chemical weapons base at Shikhan with observers from 44 other countries was an encouraging development. He said it could lead to greater openness in dealings with the Soviets on sensitive arms issues.

Building Courts

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

make up for what we will lose."

On the nights of a home basketball game, Sisso said the Union's revenue increases about $1,000.

"It is usually older, retired people or staff that come in early to get a parking spot. They may arrive at four in the afternoon and play bridge or something until game time," she said.

Sisso is considering chartering a bus and giving rides from the Union to the coliseum for those with a State Room ticket.

"We'll canvass the people during this season and find out how they want us to handle it," she said.

J.E. Dunn Construction Co., Kansas City, Mo., began groundwork on the coliseum last year and expects to have the arena ready for use in the fall of 1988.

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

vate organizations" from the anti-bias requirements. But it deprives non-religious organizations of that designation if they:

—Have more than 400 members.
—Provide regular meal service.
—And regularly receive payment for a member's dues or other fees from a non-member, such as an employer.

The law was upheld last Feb. 17 by the New York Court of Appeals, the state's highest court.

The state court discounted arguments that the challenged law unconstitutionally creates an irrebuttable presumption that such organizations are not truly private.

Mayor Edward I. Koch said Monday his city's law was "landmark legislation," adding, "If it works for us, every city in America should do it."

Eriksen Sports Medicine Clinic

- Evaluation, Diagnosis, Treatment, Rehabilitation of sports related injuries and problems
- Determine Body Fat Percentages
- Heat Stress Information
- Information and advice on Fitness, Injury Prevention, Health Effects of Exercise
- MUCH, MUCH MORE

Walk-in Clinic
8-9:30 a.m. Mon.-Fri.
1-2:30 p.m. Mon.
1-2 p.m. Tues., Thurs., Fri.
For Appointments
532-7880

Lafene Health Center

Godfather's Pizza welcomes the Students at K.S.U.

Pizza without the wait.

Finally, a cure for your instant Pizza Emergency. Hot Slice™ at Godfather's Pizza™ lets you enjoy choice cuts of luscious pizza for lunch without the wait you experience at other restaurants.

Hot Slice available Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

539-5303
1118 Laramie

They're here.

Introducing California Raisin figurines. Only 99¢ each.

You've seen 'em. You've heard 'em. And for a limited time, when you buy any two Rise 'n Shine™ biscuits or any dessert at a participating Hardee's restaurant, you can get these cute California Raisin™ figurines.

But don't wait to hear about 'em through the grapevine. Because at this price, they'll be going fast.

We're out to win you over.

Hardee's

* Plus tax. † At regular price. Offer good while supplies last. ©1987 Hardee's Food Systems, Inc. ©1987 CALRAB

HOT SLICE
$3.19 Special

Receive one Hot Slice Pizza by the Slice, one trip to the salad bar and a medium drink for only $3.19.
Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.
Dine-in or Carryout.
Valid only at participating Godfather's Pizza restaurants. No coupon necessary.

Expires 10/21/87 KSU

LARGE PIZZA
MEDIUM PRICE!

Present this coupon and receive any large Original or Stuffed Pizza for the price of a medium.
Dine-in, Carryout, or Delivery.
On Sunday, your choice either use this coupon or take advantage of our free drink offer. Sorry, can only choose one. Not valid with rebate or other promotional offers. Limited delivery area.

Expires 10/25/87 KSU

HOT SLICE
2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas by the Slice for $2.00.
Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.
Dine-in or Carryout.
Valid only at participating Godfather's Pizza restaurants. No coupon necessary.

Expires 10/25/87 KSU

2 for $12

Get two medium special pizzas (The Super Pepperoni or The Four Toppings) for just $12.
Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery.
Not valid with other promotional offers or coupons. Valid only at participating Godfather's Pizza restaurants. Limited delivery area. Add $1 for delivery.

Expires 10/23/87 KSU

Day of Bread

Bread and similar wheat foods provide more nourishment for people of the world today than any other food. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly sunny today, high 65 to 70. Mostly clear tonight, low around 40. Fair Thursday, high 70 to 75.

5 DIGIT 66612

164 07/07  7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS

66612 ... by the university of Oklahoma, fight end Kent Dean says he has no regrets about coming to K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday

October 7, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 32

Kansas State Collegian

Bork hearings remain controversial

Area experts present opposing perceptions

Attendance was low for the panel discussion about Supreme Court justice nominee Robert Bork Tuesday night.

By Susan L'Ecuier
Collegian Reporter

A four-member panel presented opposing and supporting arguments concerning the nomination of Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court in a discussion sponsored by Union Program Council Issues and Ideas Tuesday night.

George Erickson, a Topeka attorney, and Emil Tonkavich, professor of criminal law at the University of Kansas Law School, spoke in favor of Bork's nomination.

Orma Linford, associate professor of political science at K-State, and Bill Rich, professor of constitutional law at the Washburn University Law School presented opposing opinions.

Linford, providing a history of the Supreme Court, said the Senate has rejected approximately one in every five nominees to the Supreme Court. She gave two reasons for the rejections.

"First, the person has controversial views on public policies, and secondly, the candidate has taken a stand on the contemporary Supreme Court's record," she said, adding six nominees in history have been rejected

Topeka attorney George Erickson gives supporting arguments during a panel discussion in the Union Little Theatre sponsored for the nomination of Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court by UPC Issues and Ideas.

Collegian/Neal Hinkle

for these reasons.

Reading an excerpt from the "Federalist Papers," Linford said it was not the intention of the framers that the appointment of Supreme Court justices was to be the sole privilege of the president.

"The framers very clearly intended for the Senate to be involved in the confirmation of nominees," she said.

Rich said he opposed Bork's nomination because of his narrow interpretation of the Constitution. He used the example of the individual's right to privacy, which Bork has said is not specifically defined in the Constitution, as the actual word itself does not appear anywhere in the document.

"Judge Bork has supported his argument

See DEBATE, Page 11

Senate Judiciary Committee recommends rejection in 9-5 vote

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Judge Robert Bork's embattled nomination to the Supreme Court suffered its worst setback yet as the Senate Judiciary Committee voted 9-5 Tuesday to recommend his rejection and a key Southern Democrat and a fifth Republican joined the opposition.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., the committee chairman, said he didn't see "any reasonable prospect that Judge Bork will be confirmed."

Reagan insisted at the White House that he would not give up the fight. But his spokesman said "it's tough" to win now. And Tom Korologos, a lobbyist brought in by the White House for the Bork fight, said, "I'm not kidding anybody; I'm not sure it's over but we're in trouble."

Some Democrats were openly urging Reagan to find a replacement nominee.

The Judiciary Committee recommended that the full Senate reject the nomination when it comes up for a vote, probably within two weeks.

Before the vote, Reagan rejected all talk of giving up. "There's no backing off. I'm going all out," he said.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said after the committee made its decision: "We're disappointed but we're pushing ahead." He conceded, "It's tough. There's no doubt about it."

The committee vote fell roughly along party lines, with Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania the only Republican to join eight Democrats in recommending rejection of Bork's nomination. The committee's five other Republicans were on Bork's side.

Before its final vote, the panel voted 9-5 against sending the nomination to the full

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Here is the 9-5 roll call vote:

Against Bork (9):

Joseph R. Biden, D-Del.; Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.; Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio; Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.; Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt.; Howell Heflin, D-Ala.; Paul Simon, D-Ill.; Arlen Specter, R-Pa.

For Bork (5):

Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.; Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah; Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo.; Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa; Gordon J. Humphrey, R-N.H.

Senate with a recommendation that it be approved.

The outcome had been expected. But Sen. Howell Heflin's decision was suspenseful, and his support was coveted by both sides.

"I must vote no," he said, adding that he was following the old adage, "When in doubt, don't."

Heflin's defection was particularly damaging to Bork's chances for confirmation, since White House officials were hoping to use a "yes" vote from the former Alabama Supreme Court justice to attract other conservative Southern Democrats to Bork's side.

The committee moved to send the nomination to the full Senate for a final showdown later this month.

The nomination suffered another setback when Sen. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt., became the fifth Republican senator to announce his opposition.

The committee debate mirrored arguments made for weeks.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., urged Reagan to withdraw the nomination. "Let's begin again," he said.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said, "Judge Bork is wrong on civil rights, wrong on equal rights for women, wrong on the right to privacy and wrong on freedom of speech. And President Reagan is wrong to try to put him on the Supreme Court."

But supporters praised Bork's intellect and integrity, and said he was the subject of unfair criticism.

"The nation will be ill-served if the Senate rejects this remarkable man," said Senate Republican Whip Alan Simpson of Wyoming.

Refugees' boat overturns Fifty die in shark-infested waters

By The Associated Press

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — A wooden boat carrying more than 100 refugees sank Tuesday in shark-infested waters off the coast of the Dominican Republic, killing at least 50 people, authorities said.

Authorities rescued 32 people but 68 others were missing when the boat was overturned by heavy waves about five miles off the northeast coast as it was headed for Puerto Rico.

The survivors were treated at two hospitals for exposure from the sun and other injuries, police said.

Eugenio Cabral, head of the Civil Defense in the Dominican Republic, said "there are many dead, more than 50."

Cabral said he made the estimated count while flying over the zone in a small Dominican Air Force plane.

"There are many dead, more than 50. I saw sharks eating the bodies of the people."

—Eugenio Cabral

"I saw sharks eating the bodies of the people," said Cabral, adding that there were between 100 and 150 people aboard the boat.

Authorities said the craft left a beach area near the town of Nagua, on the northeast coast of the Dominican Republic, about 4 a.m. and that heavy waves overturned the vessel about two to four hours later.

A search began about noon for survivors, Cabral said. Up to 10 small fishing boats, a Dominican navy launch and a Dominican air force helicopter and light plane were used in the rescue effort.

The hunt was called at dark, about 7 p.m., and will resume at first light Wednesday, Cabral said.

Lt. Dale Ferrell of the U.S. Coast Guard in nearby San Juan, Puerto Rico, said the Dominican Navy was handling the case and said they "did not need our help."

Back on land in the Dominican Republic, about 150 people who had expected boats to come for them were discovered and detained by police for questioning to determine who was responsible for planning the trip to Puerto Rico, a U.S. Commonwealth.

Beaches on the northeast coast of the Dominican Republic often serve as jumping off points for Dominicans aiming for jobs and a better life in Puerto Rico — and, if things go well, the U.S. mainland.

The neighboring islands are separated by the 100-mile wide Mona Passage, which runs between the Caribbean Sea and the Atlantic Ocean.

Luis Palau begins Christian crusade tonight in Ahearn

By The Collegian Staff

Two years of planning and thousands of volunteer hours will come together starting tonight. Luis Palau, the bilingual native of Argentina who is a well-known worldwide Christian evangelist, will speak at 7:30 p.m. in Ahearn Field House.

Ray Contreras, a member of Palau's crusade team, said 18 Manhattan churches and more than 60 surrounding area churches are sponsoring Palau's crusade.

"Luis Palau is not afraid to say what he thinks needs to be said. He is going to address the issues that college students in this day are facing," Contreras said.

In addition to Palau's speech tonight, he will speak at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and at 4 p.m. on Sunday. All the speeches will be in Ahearn Field House.

Contreras said Palau's scheduled topics are "Hope for the Stressed Out," tonight; "Hope for the Restless Heart," Thursday; and AIDS, Saturday.

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Stocks record biggest loss ever

NEW YORK — Stock prices fell into a tailspin Tuesday and the Dow Jones industrial average plummeted nearly 100 points in its biggest one-day loss on record.

Analysts said investors were unsettled partly by another rise in interest rates early in the session and also by assessments from a handful of market observers that stocks were due for a short-term fall.

But analysts also said no signs of panic accompanied the selloff.

"It's not the beginning of a great big decline," predicted Lewis Smith, an analyst with Bear Stearns & Co. "This is the final touch" to the market's pullback that began in August, he said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 91.55 points to close at 2,548.63. The previous biggest fall in the widely watched market barometer had been 86.61 points on Sept. 11, 1986.

Broader market indicators also fell. Four stocks dropped in price for every one issue that rose on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was active but not unusually heavy, with volume on the Big Board rising to 175.6 million shares from 159.65 million on Monday.

The recent rise in interest rates in the bond market has made returns on some bonds appear to be a more attractive investment than stocks, analysts said.

Higher interest rates also could reduce corporate profits. And some investors fear that the Federal Reserve Board may tighten credit conditions, driving interest rates yet higher.

Students lose their parade

ST. CLOUD, Minn. — St. Cloud State University will celebrate homecoming this weekend without the traditional homecoming parade.

The parade Saturday was canceled by organizers who cited drunkenness and rowdiness by some students along the parade route in past years.

Margaret Vos, head of the planning committee, said incidents reported in past parades included "majorettes being literally picked up, put over a person's shoulders and carried off, trumpets being pushed into people's mouths and beer cans thrown down tubas."

Vos said the decision not to have a parade this year is meant to send a message that "if students aren't going to enjoy it, we aren't going to do it."

Shepherd gives birth to twins

LOS ANGELES — Actress Cybill Shepherd, who plays Madie Hayes on television's "Moonlighting" series, gave birth Tuesday afternoon to a boy and a girl, and all three were doing fine, her publicist said.

Ariel Shepherd Oppenheim, weighing 5 pounds, 11 ounces, was born at 1:06 p.m. Eight minutes later, Zachariah Shepherd Oppenheim, weighing 7 pounds, 2 ounces, was delivered, said publicist Cheryl J. Kagen.

"Mother and babies are extremely happy and healthy," said Kagen, who was at the hospital with the actress. "The babies have a great set of lungs and they are healthy."

The name of the Los Angeles hospital wasn't disclosed.

The father, Dr. Bruce Oppenheim, was at his wife's side during the natural childbirth. Shepherd's daughter by her first marriage, 8-year-old Clementine, was also at the hospital, Kagen said.

Nurse cuts off newborn's thumb

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — A nurse snipping tape that held an intravenous needle in a newborn baby's hand accidentally cut off the tip of the infant's thumb, officials and relatives say. Jessica Michaelle Eason was only 15 hours old when the top of her right thumb, almost down to the knuckle, was cut off Monday at Bayfront Medical Center, relatives said.

Dr. Osama Suliman, a St. Petersburg plastic surgeon, sewed the thumb back together in a 45-minute operation. But he predicted Monday that the chances of success for the replant were only 10 to 15 percent. It will be two or three days before the outcome is known, he said.

Stitching together the tiny blood vessels in the thumb was impossible, Suliman said.

"The only way it will heal is if the blood vessels grow back," he said.

"This is an unfortunate incident that has occurred, and we are very sorry," said Bayfront spokeswoman Maxine Michael. "Bayfront will continue caring for the mother and baby, and at this point there's no further information to be released."

She declined to identify the nurse who cut the baby.

Carol Eason, 22, gave birth Sunday to Jessica, who was about three weeks premature. Eason's husband, Ethridge, said hospital officials had been "bending over backwards. It shouldn't have happened. But we're all human. ...No one's perfect."

Eason, who also has a son, was moved to a private room and insisted on keeping the baby with her, the family said.

Is Massachusetts sinking?

BOSTON — Thousands of acres of Massachusetts coastal land could be under water by the year 2025, two scientists predict.

The warming of the atmosphere caused by the so-called greenhouse effect and the sinking of some waterfront areas threaten to inundate at least 3,000 acres of the state's coastline over the next 38 years, say the scientists from the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

In an article in this month's issue of the institute's Oceanus magazine, Graham S. Giese and David G. Aubrey warn the loss could be as great as 10,000 acres. With prices of coastal property soaring, the loss would translate into several billion dollars.

In a report they completed last month for the state Department of Coastal Zone Management, Giese and Aubrey said nearly two-thirds of the coastal land submergence in Massachusetts during the last century resulted from the sinking of the land.

What concerns Giese and Aubrey even more is the fear that the greenhouse effect — an atmospheric warming trend caused in part by pollution — will melt the polar ice caps and lead to rising ocean levels.

Regents request revenue bonds

TOPEKA — The interim Ways and Means Committee Tuesday balked at recommending legislation that would allow state Board of Regents universities to issue revenue bonds for capital improvements.

University officials have told lawmakers that the state's seven Regents schools need a massive infusion of money to buy or replace equipment in the classrooms and laboratories.

"I don't think bonding is a good idea for equipment," said Rep. Jack Shriver, D-Arkansas City.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB members need to sign up for Oktoberfest on the first floor bulletin board in Shellenberger Hall.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTER-VIEWS applicants for 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT FILING FORMS are now available in the Student Governing Association office in the Union. Filing deadline is Oct. 20.

CAREER COUNSELING CENTER "Making a Major Decision- Career Life Planning Independent Study" for one hour credit. Contact the Counseling Center, 532-6927, for details. The course begins this week.

ICAT sign up for the road trip to Missouri in Ahearn 101. Cost is $25 for ticket and transportation.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

GAY AND LESBIAN SUPPORT GROUP meets at 7 p.m. at 1446 Laramie Apt. 4.

ETA KAPPA NU meets at 7:30 p.m. in Durland 173 for an interview with Texas Instruments recruiter. There will also be demonstration interviews open for all students.

INTERVARSITY, BSU, NAVIGATORS, CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST AND ICTHUS meet at noon in Union Ballroom for a free international student luncheon. Luis Palau will be the speaker.

KANSAS STUDENT NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION meets at 4 p.m. in Blumont 255.

ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGIATE ENTREPRENEURS meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 206.

THURSDAY

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206.

MASTERS IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION will have an informational meeting at 4 p.m. in Union 207.

1988 PRE-MED APPLICANTS meet with the KU Medical School Admissions deans at 7 p.m. in Union 213.

ICTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 9:30 p.m. at Danforth Chapel to car-pool to Westview Community Church. Richard Beach will be the speaker.

WILDLIFE SOCIETY meets at 7 p.m. in Ackert 221.

ILLUMINATING ENGINEERING SOCIETY meets at 6:30 p.m. on the east side of Dillard's.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 3 p.m. in Shellenberger 110 to begin baking for Oktoberfest.

AG AMBASSADORS meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

PI SIGMA EPSILON PLEDGES meet at 6 p.m. in Union 203 for a meeting.

LAFENE STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE meets at 3:30 p.m. at Lafene 131.

ROCK CLIMBING CLUB meets at 8:15 p.m. in Union 207.

EATING DISORDER SUPPORT GROUP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 204.

Krystallos
"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(by the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

The Children's Theatre Company
LITTLE WOMEN

"The finest children's theatre in the country." —L.A. Times

Wednesday, October 7
8:00 p.m.
McCain Auditorium

General Public: $12, 10, 8
Students/Seniors: $8, 6, 5

Box Office open 12 noon to 5 p.m.
Monday-Friday.
Call 532-6428 to charge tickets
to MasterCard or VISA.

This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through their participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Sigma Alpha Epsilon,
Off Campus

Oct. 8: Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu,
Sigma Phi Epsilon, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

M.B.A./MACC SEMINAR

Master of Business Administration
Master of Accounting

Are you interested in earning a MBA or MACC?
Great Career Opportunities!
High Starting Salaries!

Come to informational meeting
Thursday, Oct 8
4 p.m.—Union Rm. 207

K-STATE MEANS BUSINESS
For more information call 532-7190

Autumn Equinox
Sale

through Saturday Oct. 10

Casual Clothing
summer & winter,
men's & women's

Coats & Jackets

Bicycles

Bike Accessories
& Clothing

Camping Gear

10-60% off

the
PATHFINDER

OUTDOOR EQUIPMENT SPECIALISTS

1111 Moro Aggieville

Falsetto's
PIZZA

539-3830

For the Best "Homemade" Pizza
in town with the Best
"Hometown" Price.

$5.99

Two Delicious
Homemade Pizzas

MENU
Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
	TWO 10"		TWO 14"
Cheese	5.99		8.99
1 Item	6.94		10.39
2 Items	7.89		11.79
3 Items	8.84		13.19
4 Items	9.79		14.59
Deluxe	9.79		14.59
Veggie	9.79		14.59
Supreme	10.74		15.99
Each Additional Item95		1.40

Prices do not include tax
We Accept Checks 1127 Moro • Aggieville

Attention:

Students, Faculty/Staff and Campus Departments

1987-88 Campus Directories on Sale
NOW

You'll need the directory to call friends, conduct campus business, use the coupons and yellow page ads, and refer to campus and city maps.

Get your directory at the tables near the Union Travel Board from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, Oct. 5-7.

After today, buy your directory in Kedzie 103.

$1 for students (limit two with student I.D.) and $1.50 for non-students.

Director named to academic council

By Debbie Whitson
Staff Writer

A K-State official is one of 12 people named to a national advisory council recently formed by Dow Chemical Co.

J. Bruce Laughlin, director of Career Planning and Placement Center, was named to the committee, which will inform the company on the impact of policies that might affect higher education.

"I feel kind of honored to be on the committee," Laughlin said. "It's a blue ribbon committee, and I'm really pleased to be included."

The council, which met for the first time in August, is made up of members from schools in California, Mississippi, Illinois, Texas, Louisiana, Indiana, Michigan, Georgia, Pennsylvania and Kansas.

In addition to chemistry and chemical engineering, council members represent business, engineering and computer technology departments. Laughlin is one of three placement directors on the committee.

Laughlin said the committee will meet twice a year to exchange ideas with Dow to help the company "be more responsive to the academic community."

"They have been trying to reassess themselves," he said. "They are aware of society's growing concerns with the environment, and they realize that being a chemical company they should be just as concerned with that aspect as with the business aspect."

Laughlin said the company is hoping for a broader exchange of ideas that will benefit all members of the council. He thinks the experience will benefit K-State, as well as helping him in his position.

"This will help us learn what's going on in the industry," he said. "One of our concerns will be with business ethics, as well as staffing problems."

Dow believes the committee is a novel idea, because it knows of no other company with this type of program, Laughlin said. The ground rules "are such that both sides will be very candid in offering comments."

A major concern of the committee will be staffing in the future, he said. But concerns about business policy and how corporations are seen by the academic community will also be discussed.

"I think it should help us at K-State get a clearer idea of industrial employer needs," Laughlin said. "It will also help us carry information to them about the quality of our students."

He said he is pleased K-State has been identified with the other "quality institutions" represented on the committee. He said this is still an experiment, but all parties were "very satisfied" with the first meeting.

Beer can be susceptible to spoilage; smart shoppers check code date

By Nancy Chartrand
Collegian Reporter

Although not many people consider it while drinking a cold beer, the golden liquid is as susceptible to spoilage as many other foods. Consumers are advised to check a code date to determine beer's freshness.

"Beer is like any perishable food. Like cottage cheese or milk it has a code date, past which it should not be sold," said Dennis Cook, sales manager for Campbell Distributors.

"It is the ultimate responsibility of the distributor that they have a fresh quality product in the market," Cook said. "If the distributor sees that a product is not moving fast enough in one store, it is up to them to move it to a store where it will sell before its code date expires."

"It is the ultimate responsibility of the distributor that they have a fresh quality product in the market. If the distributor sees that a product is not moving fast enough in one store, it is up to them to move it to a store where it will sell before its code date expires."

—Dennis Cook

Code dates are printed on the side panels of beer cartons. Look for a series of computer-generated numbers next to which is printed a code date, such as Oct. 31. This means that this beer should be sold by Oct. 31 or it should be pulled from the shelf and destroyed.

"The flavor of beer changes over time," said Sue Knetley of the Coors Information Hotline. "There are three things that can affect the taste of beer: One is heat, which is taken care of by refrigeration; another is light, which is why beer is placed in cans, and bottles are placed in cardboard cartons; and the third is age, which is why we code date beer."

The distributor takes the loss when beer is destroyed. If too much beer must be destroyed it can be devastating to the distributor, Cook said.

"Coors' code dates are for 90 days," said Jerry Frakes of Junction City Distributors. "We have had no problems that I know of with outdated beer."

However, on a recent visit to the Shop Quik at 1816 Claflin Road, three out of five 12-packs of Coors Extra Gold on the shelf were found to have exceeded their code dates by one month.

"It is up to the vendors to check the dates on the beer. If there was any outdated beer, the drivers must have just missed it," said Diane Nordhus, store manager. "The Coors Extra Gold has been moving very slow. If anyone were to complain, we would simply give them a new product in exchange."

"When you start something new like the Extra Gold, you expect it to take off slow," Frakes said. "but it is starting to gain momentum."

When told about the outdated beer found at the Claflin Shop Quik, Frakes said he was very surprised.

Missouri Baptists fight multistate lottery

By The Associated Press

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — A hearing was scheduled for Wednesday in Cole County Circuit Court challenging the Missouri Lottery Commission's action in joining a multistate lottery.

The three-member commission recently voted to join "Lotto America," a multistate lottery made up for five other states, including Kansas, and the District of Columbia.

However, the Missouri Baptist Convention, long-time opponents of gambling, filed a suit against the commission.

A hearing was scheduled to be held Wednesday before Judge James McHenry, but a spokesman for Attorney General William Webster said it might be put off until next week so those involved could have more time to prepare for the case.

Under the multistate lottery, the states involved would share costs and profits. The games, which would be similar to the computerized "Lotto" game now used in Missouri, were scheduled to begin early next year.

The multistate lottery would be able to offer much larger jackpots.

BUSHWACKER'S
THE FUNDRIKERY

BUSCH TONIGHT
2 for 1
Steins & Well Drinks
KSU SHOWCASE OF TALENT
Auditions Oct. 11 & 12
Comedy, Vocals, Lip Sync, Instrumentalists & Groups. For info, call: Scott Jones 776-7852.

Bar 539-9727 531 N. Manhattan Office 539-4321

Take a break from SCHOOL STUDIES &
Stop by for a cool, refreshing
Blizzard treat

Dairy Queen

12th & Moro Aggieville 1015 N. 3rd Manhattan

*U.S. Pat. Off. Am. D.O. Corp. Copyright 1987
Am. D.O. Corp. Mpls. Minn. Printed in U.S.A.

MEN'S SILK BOXERS
~
SILK BRIEFS
~
UNDERCOVER
1224 Moro Aggieville
Mon.-Fri. 10-5:30
Sunday 1-5
Thurs. til 8 p.m.
-FREE GIFT WRAP-

M A R G E N

ROCKY FORD TAVERN

Tonight
Pitchers $2.10
Draws 85¢
On tap: Coors Light, Budweiser, Old Milwaukee
"Your Discount Beer Barn"
Now Open on Sundays
Rt. 5 537-3133
"The Finest Little Tavern By A Dam Site"

DARK HORSE

Come Discover
$2 Pitchers
Our
Specials
$1.25 Wells

Bar 539-9081 Office 776-6638

RIP & MO'S AUTHENTIC NEW YORK DELI

We're open for lunch and dinner, serving whole and half sandwiches, homemade potato chips, homemade cheesecake, pasta salads and MORE!

mon.-thurs. 11am-11pm
fri.&sat. 11am-1am
sun. 11am-10pm

Also visit the Back Door Bar (entrance at the rear of Rip and Mo's), open at 5pm nightly, and Saturday at noon.

RIP & MO'S
new york deli
710 N. Manhattan, Aggieville tel. 539-9706, OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

The Fishbowl
The Fishbowl is back!
Drink Specials All Night.
105 N. 3rd
Downtown
539-9904

Manhattan Civic Theater
presents
Oliver!
October 9, 10, 15, 16
at 8 p.m.
October 17
at 2 p.m. & 8 p.m.
at
Manhattan Middle School,
9th & Poyntz
For ticket information
call 776-8591

Southwestern Bell Telephone

WEDNESDAY GUEST DJ NITE!

Coed Guest DJs Tonite

Meet Tonite's
BAR DIRECTORS

$2 PITCHERS
at Back Bar

$1 SHOTS
KAMIKAZIS etc...

$1.25 SHOTS
WATERMELONS etc...

$1.50 SHOTS
B-52s etc...

KITE'S BAR AND GRILL

Sunchase SIXTH ANNUAL COLLEGE WINTER TRIP 1988

Breckenridge $54
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Steamboat $159
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Winter Park $172
JANUARY 2-9, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Vail/Beaver Creek $178
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency

Never a dull moment.

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, October 7, 1987 ■ Page 4

Some compromises prove impossible

The motives behind government actions are often contradictory, which makes you wonder if everything is as it seems to be. For example, we mandate seat belts or air bags in every car to save lives. We keep the speed limit at 55 mph on most highways to save lives, and we mandate ever higher fuel efficiency for autos, while we have realized for years that the latter causes more injuries and more severe injuries as autos are made smaller and lighter.

Within a period of 10 days in September, two sets of data were issued that bring evidence of this contradiction into the spotlight. The Highway Loss Data Institute, an insurance industry group, released precise figures by make and model on the personal injuries and costs of collision damage to be expected by automobile owners. Shortly afterward, the Environmental Protection Agency came out with its fuel economy ratings for 1988 model vehicles.

The HLDI data consisted of three indexes:

- an Overall Injury Index showing the relative likelihood that a particular car was in an accident for which an insurance claim for occupant injury was filed;

- a Severe Injury Index expressing the relative likelihood of an insurance claim for medical losses exceeding $500 being filed; ■ a Collision Index reflecting the average loss payment for vehicle damage due to collisions in a year.

The EPA data listed the miles per gallon to be expected in city driving for every automobile model/engine type combination for 1988. Both sets of data categorized automobiles into size and weight classes using the same criteria.

Looking at the large cars (Cadillacs, Ford LTD, Buick LeSabre, Lincolns, etc.), the overall injury index averaged 67 and the severe injury index averaged 70, while the fuel economy was roughly 19 miles per gallon. At the other end of the spectrum were the small, two-door models such as Toyota Corolla, Dodge Colt, Chevrolet Sprint and Ford Escort, which had an overall and severe injury indexes in the 130 range, with fuel economy of 38-45 mph.

Of course, there are explanations for these general trends, but you have to look long and hard for them. For someone contemplating the purchase of a new car, the effort involved in finding a model with good accident injury figures as well as decent gas mileage would certainly be worthwhile.

Within a category such as small or sub-

Commentary

JUDD ANNIS
Collegian Columnist

compact cars, the trend still continues. The Saab 900 has an overall injury rating of 70 and severe injury of 64, numbers that stack up well with the large cars. The Mitsubishi Mirage, on the other hand, has an overall injury rating of 158. How is its gas mileage? The Saab 900 gave 20 mpg in city traffic, while the Mirage produced 29 mpg.

Despite the repeated affirmations about the sanctity of human life, our government and industrial leaders have apparently decided that increased loss of human life and suffering are justified if it is the least expensive course of action or some "higher purpose" is served. To some extent, they are saying that the end justifies the means.

In the example just cited, to achieve the goal of less dependency on foreign oil, principally from Arab countries, our government has mandated improved gas mileage, knowing full well that the primary methodology will be to make the car smaller and lighter. The push to "tighten" building construction — that is, keep outside air from seeping into homes and offices — caused a measurable increase in inside air pollution, enough to give rise to the term "tight building syndrome." Although the data are now convincing, is there a push to "loosen up"? Not hardly.

In the famous Pinto gas tank case, it was revealed in court testimony that the Ford Motor Co. had carefully calculated the cost of disposing of any lawsuits resulting from injuries or deaths due to the faulty design, compared it to the cost of recalling all the autos and fixing the problem, and decided it would be cheaper to leave the potentially fatal vehicle on the road.

At times, I suppose, there may be justification for sacrificing a life to uphold a principle, although the person asked to give his life might disagree. In World War II, the prospect of Adolph Hitler ruling the world and exterminating millions of people was enough to cause free people to willingly lay down their lives. Then came "Better dead than red," which never seemed to strike as much terror in the hearts of free people, although individuals took great personal risks to escape Communist rule.

The Vietnam War became a national problem because Americans began to ask what the principle was they were upholding. Now we have American men dying in the Persian Gulf in order to preserve the right of Japan to receive the oil it needs to fuel its economy, and even our politicians have trouble explaining that one.

We will always have individuals who recklessly endanger their own lives. Whether society has a right to protect someone from himself is the subject of much debate. When a person endangers the life of another, society is quick to step in with legislation or police action. Why is it that we so complacently allow our government to endanger the lives of its citizens?

A shortage of energy can adversely affect our standard of living, while being dependent on the wrong people for our energy sources can cause long-term political problems. Still, are we justified in sacrificing human lives to maintain our way of life? Life is full of compromises, but in this case, the price is one we shouldn't have to pay.

Tourists are lingering; Coleman is profiting

Kansas made the invitation, and people from all across the country have taken it up on its offer.

And, yes, tourists really are lingering longer in the Land of Ahs.

The "Linger Longer" promotion, which ends Dec. 31, was initiated by state tourism officials in an attempt to convince tourists — especially the ones passing through on their way to somewhere else — to spend some time in the state. Upon proving that they spent time in the state, tourists were then to receive a free Coleman jug.

More than 3,500 claims for the jugs have been mailed in thus far, and officials are so pleased with this campaign's results that a similar program will be initiated next year beginning on Memorial Day.

For the Coleman Co., its offer represents a sizable commitment. But such a commitment surely wasn't done just in the name of civic pride. The company had enough foresight to realize what a boon it would be to its image, not to mention its sales.

Other companies are probably wishing they would have been just as generous a little sooner.

So, while state residents can feel satisfied that more of the nation is noticing us, the Coleman Co. can feel doubly proud: It did something good that is turning out in its best interest as well.

State's gun law mirrors latter-day 'Gunsmoke'

When people think of Florida, they think of palm trees, oranges, long expanses of beautiful, sunny beaches or even NASA. What they shouldn't think of is Dodge City — not the city in Kansas, but the mythical city with its gun-toting and gun-slinging cowboys and outlaws.

Through a loophole in a recently passed gun-control law (and that phrase is used loosely here) people in Florida were allowed to carry firearms openly and in public. Kind of makes you wonder if Marshal Dillon would feel safe letting Miss Kitty go for a stroll there, or even walk the streets himself.

This meant anyone who cared to apply for an easily obtainable firearms license could strap an iron on his or her hip and scare the wits out of all those criminal types running around.

OK, the law never specifically said anything about scaring the wits out of any criminal types, but what other motivations could have persuaded Florida lawmakers to pass one of the least restrictive gun-control laws in the nation? To change the state's image from "Miami Vice" to "Gunsmoke"?

What makes this situation so ludicrous is that this is what happens when a loophole comes to light in a ridiculous law. The law still makes it sinfully simple for practically anyone to obtain a license for a concealed weapon in that state.

Why should anyone want to carry a concealed weapon in the first place? Yeah, yeah. The law doesn't say anything about scaring the wits out of any criminal types — so why? Why does it allow people to carry concealed guns, tear gas launchers, knives and clubs?

Whoever thought this up has gone to a few too many "Rambo" movies.

In a time when Los Angeles motorists have been terrorized by others taking potshots at them in a less liberal gun-control climate, what do Florida officials think is going to happen there?

Maybe the loophole has been closed, but the law that created it is just as dangerous and should be tightened up before a shootout there kills as many people as were ever killed in all the years of "Gunsmoke."

Letters

Bork column fails

Editor,

The column on Bork's conservatism needs more research. Most of the points were plainly wrong or half-truths.

For instance, the column attacked Bork for writing a 1971 article in which he said that the First Amendment protects only "explicitly political speech." What the column failed to say was that, in that same 1971 article, Bork stated his views were only "tentative." Bork has since clearly rejected such a limited concept of free speech.

The column also mentioned a 1963 article by Bork in which he opposed some civil rights bills. If the columnist had done his homework, he would have found that Bork has long since abandoned those views admitting that he had been wrong. In fact, the column failed to tell us that Bork has supported equal pay for women, argued that discrimination due to pregnancy was illegal, and argued against a certain electoral plan fearing that the plan might weaken the power of black voters.

The columnist's assumptions about Bork and the concept of "original intent" are also unfounded. The column defined the concept of original intent as taking "the Constitution...in a context coherent with the intentions of its framers." There is nothing wrong with this concept, however. If you examine court decisions, you will quickly notice that even the most liberal justices often rely on debates of the Founding Fathers to ascertain the meaning of parts of the Constitution. Also, neither the concept nor Bork "ignore that this is...a nation which has changed radically since the Constitution was written," as the columnist suggests. For example, consider Bork's personal statement arguing that the use of electronic surveillance could constitute an illegal search: "the people who wrote the Fourth Amendment to stop unreasonable searches and seizures by the police didn't foresee electronic surveillance. But the value that they were trying to protect is threatened by electronic surveillance." This illustrates how the concept of original intent works well in our changing society.

Stephen Craig Moore graduate student in psychology

Bicycle safety

Editor,

In the wake of four bicycle accidents and an editorial dealing with the issue, I feel the need to make some important points. However, I first wish to make myself credible.

I put over 3,000 miles a year on bicycles. I've participated in Bike Across Kansas, Bike Ride Across Nebraska and many other rides — including a ride I've successfully completed the last three years, in which I ride 200-plus miles within 24 hours.

I do believe that bicyclists and motorists deserve equal respect, but I know too many bicyclists who do not respect the laws of the road. Several things amaze me about this point; I will only mention three of them.

One point is that some people who drive both cars and bicycles stop at a red light in their cars, but somehow think they can go through a red light on their bicycles and not get hit. At least in a car you have doors to protect you from injury.

The other point is that some people think they can be seen at night, even though they don't have the proper lighting. Reflectors are not enough!

The third major point I wish to make is to question why officers of the law are not ticketing bicyclists who are not obeying the traffic laws.

Shawn B. Mullen
senior in information systems

No courage

Editor,

It's been almost 40 years since I graduated from K-State and except for about six years during that period, the Wildcat football team has been at the bottom, or almost.

So...why in four decades hasn't K-State been able to establish a winning tradition? Because no one, no college president, has had the courage to take this bull by the horns. Let's either have winning football or give it up. Perhaps these suggestions would prove helpful:

1. Abandon the color purple! Purple hasn't meant anything grand or victorious in the school's tradition. Put on new colors, a new face, a bright outlook.
2. Refurbish and brighten-up Wildcat stadium.
3. Get some decent uniforms and clever style for the band which is far from being the "pride" of anything.
4. Make new cheerleader outfits; develop a Dallas Cheerleaders for our own K-State bunch. Skimp costumes would attract attention to our staid old prairie University.
5. Somehow, someday, get football to become a No. 1 priority on the president's agenda. He wouldn't stand for a perennial last-place school of engineering or vet medicine.

Roger S. Swanson
Orlando, Fla. resident

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291-020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kottlin Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kottlin Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

City plans crack down on bars, taverns selling repeatedly to minors

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

City commissioners said Tuesday they want to crack down on bars which have repeated convictions for selling alcoholic beverages to minors. The Commission directed City Attorney William Frost to draft an ordinance revoking the licenses of such bar owners.

"There are establishments that may run 30-40 violations a month of minors consuming alcohol on their premises," Frost said.

Frost originally asked commissioners to adopt an ordinance banning anyone under the age of 18 from entering bars. But, commissioners reacted strongly against his proposal.

"I'm against closing off Aggieville to 80 percent of the students of Kansas State University," said Commissioner Nancy Denning.

Frost told commissioners the current Manhattan ordinance was inadequate because it allows people over 18 to be present in bars that sell only beer, providing the opportunity for minors to break the law. State law prohibits anyone younger than 21 from purchasing alcohol and beer.

The new ordinance requested by commissioners would allow them to revoke a bar owner's license after the owner had a certain number of violations within a set time period. The number of violations and the exact time period allowed will be contained in the final language of the ordinance. The license could only be revoked after a public hearing before the Commission.

In separate action, commissioners banned beverage containers, except those made from paper or plastic, from Aggieville on the days of K-State home football games.

Banning beverage containers was recommended to the Commission by Alvan Johnson, director of the Riley County Police Department.

In a hearing on this ordinance held last month, Johnson told commissioners that most of the damage to shop windows which occurred during the riot following last year's K-State-University of Kansas football game was caused by bottles and cans.

The Commission voted to provide partial funding of a feasibility study for an entrepreneurial incubator facility. Don Rathbone, dean of engineering, said the facility would provide support services for researchers developing new products.

Commissioners agreed to provide $12,000 for the study. K-State is to provide $15,000. The State of Kansas, the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce, Pottawatomie, Geary and Riley counties are expected to provide an additional $31,000 for the study.

Contacts available in crisis University provides priority list

By Jan Schwartz
Collegian Reporter

In the case of an emergency, call 911.

This adage should be familiar to most people. For K-State students, the University also provides its own priority list of people to contact in a crisis situation in addition to calling 911.

Student emergencies, unfortunately, occur every year, and the University must be prepared to deal with those situations and the people involved, said Susan Scott, associate dean of student life.

For the past several years, the office of the Dean of Student Life has coordinated the University response in situations involving death, serious injury or sudden illness, and has provided assistance to students in times of family crisis.

The University has a priority calling list, so University response to emergencies is not unduly delayed, Scott said.

"It's important that the University responds quickly and in a caring manner. Especially in cases when the student is from out-of-state and it's difficult for the parents to make the necessary arrangements."

—Susan Scott

In the case of a crisis situation, Scott should be contacted immediately at 532-6432. If a person cannot reach Scott, the names and numbers of at least seven other people are available to call.

"It's important that the University responds quickly and in a caring manner," Scott said. "Especially in cases when the student is from out-of-state and it's difficult for the parents to make the necessary arrangements."

Scott cited an example of when the policy was followed earlier this year. When K-State student Earl R. LaPere was found dead in his Aggieville apartment Aug. 28, the Riley County police called the K-State Police and it called Scott.

The residence halls follow the all-University policy and the residence hall staffs are provided with the list of people to contact in the event an emergency may occur, said Robert Felde, assistant director of housing.

"The policy has been operational for years, and we follow it, dealing with other University officials depending on the severity of the situation," Felde said.

In addition to the all-University policy, the office of Greek Affairs provides a list of specific guidelines to all greek living organizations. Barb Robel, adviser for Greek Affairs, said these guidelines are to be carried out by the president of that particular organization in the event of a tragedy or serious illness.

One such incident several years ago involved a student at one of the sororities who had an epileptic seizure and died, she said. People at the incident called 911 and then contacted Robel.

Scott said the greek living organizations and the residence halls may have their own procedures to follow and lists of people to contact, but they are not different policies from the University guidelines, only coordinating policies.

Seminar to cover service approach

By The Collegian Staff

High tech and human touch in service production, how to design services, and internal marketing are some of the key topics that will be discussed by two Scandinavian business consultants today in the Union Big Eight Room.

The program, "A Service Approach to Business: The New Thinking in Service Marketing and Management," will be presented by Evert Gummeson and Christian Gronroos from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"Service marketing and management are among the hottest topics in the business world today," said Lynda Spire, conference coordinator. "This seminar is to help businesses and organizations analyze the services they offer to customers. It's all about how people go away feeling about your organization."

Gummeson is a professor of management and marketing at the University of Karlstad, Sweden, and co-founder of the Stockholm Consulting Group. Gronroos is chairman of the department of marketing at the Swedish School of Economics and Business Administration, Helsinki, Finland, and chairman of Nordic Service Institute Ltd.

Spire said the conference is unique because it offers an opportunity to hear two international experts on service management and marketing.

"The seminar will benefit anyone engaged in business," she said. "While the orientation is toward private sector businesses, the information would also be beneficial for public non-profit agencies and students interested in a business career."

Registration is from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. The event is sponsored by The International Trade Institute, The International Trade Council of Mid-America Inc. and the Conference Office at K-State.

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202

New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

Specials Oct. 7-Oct. 13

Guy's Potato Chips 6.5 oz. bag	99¢
Scotch Buy Orange Juice 12 oz. can	79¢
2 liter Pepsi products	99¢
Milwaukee's Best Beer 12/12 oz. cans	$2.99

Check cashing with student I.D.

WET 'N' WILD

MOBILE HOT-TUB

776-0203

MAKE A SPLASH WITH YOUR FRIENDS THIS HALLOWEEN. CALL TODAY FOR RATES OR TO MAKE RESERVATIONS.

HAYNES

BEAUTY SUPPLY

ONE DAY SALE

OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

We carry the largest selection of Hair, Skin and Nail supplies with Licensed Hair Stylists to explain how to use them.

20-50% OFF ENTIRE STORE

8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

THURSDAY ONLY

Visit our Salon Department

718½ N. MANHATTAN
AGGIEVILLE

Mon.-Fri. 8-6
Sat. 8-5
Sun. 1-5

HURRY ONE DAY ONLY!

OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

539-5512

Daily 9 to 9 Sunday 11 to 6 3007 Anderson

ALCO

AS SEEN ON TV

Prices Effective: Wed. Oct. 7 thru Sunday Oct. 11, 1987

25% OFF SELECTED NATURE MADE VITAMINS

Vitamin C 500mg 100 tablets 1.72
Vitamin E 400 I.U. 100 softgels 3.13
Century-Vite Multi-Vitamins plus minerals 100 + 30 free tablets 3.95
Oyster Shell Calcium 500mg with Vitamin D 100 + 30 free tablets 4.00

2 FOR 3.00 PERMA SOFT

Choose from 15 oz. shampoo, or conditioner, 7 oz. aerosol hairspray or 5.5 oz. mousse.

3.47 ADVIL 50's

Advanced medicine for pain relief. 50 caplets or tablets.

VALUABLE COUPON
Prices Good Oct. 7-11

1.00 TAMPAX TAMPONS
10's
1¢ mail-in refund

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON
Prices Good Oct. 7-11

78¢ PUFFS TISSUES
175 Ct. package

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON
Prices Good Oct. 7-11

1.36 6-PACK 7-UP
Dt. 7-Up and Cherry 7-Up

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON
Prices Good Oct. 7-11

99¢ SWISS MISS
Hot Cocoa Mix
12-1 oz. envelopes

ALCO

SOUTHERN SUN

the TANNING CENTER

$2 tans

•COMPLETELY PRIVATE, CLEAN, SOUNDPROOF ROOMS
•FEATURING THE WOLFF SYSTEM TANNING BEDS
•FEATURING WOLFF'S BELLARIUM "S" SUN BULBS
•MOST TANNING ACCELERATOR

DON'T MISS IT!

We have a new video by WOLFF SYSTEM, the most trusted name in tanning! Stop by and find out the latest information on how safe and fast indoor tanning is. This is a 15 min. video that we bought to help you understand indoor tanning & its benefits.

776-8060 519 N. 12th
(Next to Domino's)

Tips offered for safety-conscious biking

By Chuck Horner
Collegian Reporter

Photographs of bicycle riders prone on stretchers and crumpled bicycles are vivid reminders of the need for safety while bicycling.

Three local accidents involving cars and bicyclists in less than five days last week is cause for concern for both bicyclists and motorists. The need for everyone to drive defensively is self-evident.

According to "Bicycling" magazine, economy of operation, quest for fitness, convenient parking and a growing recognition of bicycling as a sport are all factors contributing to an increase in bicycling throughout the United States.

Magazine gives rules of the road

In recognition of that fact, the federal government passed legislation in 1986 granting bicycles the same rights and responsibilities for the use of America's roads as cars, buses and trucks, with the exception of certain restricted-access roads such as freeways.

According to "Bicycling," there are many things bicyclists can do to avoid being struck by a vehicle, an encounter which the bicyclist usually loses:

■ Always wear a tested/ approved hard-shell helmet. Eighty-five percent of all bicycle-accident injuries are head and facial injuries.

■ Never ride at night without proper lights and reflectors on the bicycle.

■ Always obey traffic regulations.

■ Signal any intentions to turn, change lanes, etc.

■ Don't weave in and out of cars parked alongside the road.

■ Establish an imaginary line to follow, at least 18 inches from the natural edge of the road — whether this is the pavement edge, parked cars, the shoulder of the road, or the curb. Riding this established line is necessary to allow motorists approaching from the rear to anticipate a bicyclist's action.

■ If a bicyclist rides closer to the edge, passing cars will attempt to occupy the same traffic lane and will be too close for comfort. If debris, sewer drains or any other road hazards are encountered, there will be no room for a bicyclist to maneuver to avoid the obstacle.

■ If a bicyclist rides too far out in the lane, traffic can be impeded. Bicyclists and motorists alike will be endangered.

■ A rearview mirror attached to the helmet, glasses frame or the bicycle will allow a bicyclist to see traffic approaching from the rear.

■ Never wear headphones while riding a bicycle.

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

Wichita builder says PTL tie-in hurt business; he will survive

By The Associated Press

WICHITA — The worst thing about being tied to the PTL scandal, builder Roe Messner says, is that it has hurt his ability to do business in his hometown.

Despite his reputation as a church builder, publicity over his part in the PTL scandal has made him a beggar at his own bank, Messner said Monday in an interview with The Wichita Eagle-Beacon.

Since the PTL controversy broke, Messner said, his banker, Fourth Financial Corp. chairman Jordan Haines, has refused to lend him any more money.

"My banker told me he's a fair-weather banker," Messner said, adding that Haines has refused him loans, not because he lacks the collateral but because of the bad publicity.

Haines said he won't discuss Messner's business with Bank IV Wichita. "I'm surprised and disappointed if that's what he said. But I'd be the worst kind of banker or friend if I commented on a person's relationship with our bank," Haines said.

Messner said he doesn't lack money. He has 35 churches worth at least $161 million under construction all over the country, and 600 more on the drawing board. He said he has built 1,214 churches in 47 states.

Messner told the newspaper he has twice turned down offers from PTL lawyers — one of them for $9 million — to settle his lawsuit against the South Carolina TV ministry.

Ten months of scandal and confusion have made Messner hard-nosed about his legal battle with the new PTL administration headed by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, Messner said. But he said he still has confidence in Bakker, whom he considers a friend.

Asked if ousted PTL leader Jim Bakker should be returned to head the organization, Messner told the Eagle-Beacon that the church is "the only institution that shoots its wounded. We preach forgiveness, but we... Anyway, yes. I think that, after a period of repentance and forgiveness, he should be returned."

Although he's the biggest creditor caught in PTL's Chapter 11 reorganization Messner said he won't use his influence to put Bakker back in power.

The publicity over his ties with Bakker has its good side, Messner said. Church officials who had never heard his name before are coming to him with business.

Messner says he is certain that eventually he'll collect "every penny" PTL owes him for the $80 million worth of hotels, restaurants and amusement park structures he has built there. But even if he doesn't get a nickel, he's here to stay.

"The bottom line is I will survive. I can take it. If I don't get my money from PTL, I'm not out of business, not by a long shot," he said.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

LAFEMME (GYN/Family Planning) CLINIC:

- Available Services
- * Birth Control Information & Prescriptions
 - * Pregnancy Counseling & Referrals
 - * Pregnancy Testing
 - * Routine Gynecological Exams
 - * Self Breast Exam Instruction
 - * Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFEMME
HEALTH CENTER
"Your Medical Facility" 532-6554

snip n' clip HAIRCUT SHOPS®

MIDWEST'S FAVORITE HAIRCUTTERS

WORLD'S GREATEST HAIRCUT
$6

OSCAR WINNING
CUTS, STYLES, PERMS

Under 12 KIDS KUT $5

OPEN NIGHTS & SUNDAYS. JUST DROP IN!
36 LOCATIONS—VILLAGE PLAZA—MANHATTAN
539-4043

Optometrists

Dedicated to Optometry
in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs Price, Young, Odle and Jorsch
1119 Westloop 537-1118

Brother's AGGIEVILLE

1120 Moro
539-9064

TOMORROW NIGHT
Come and get crazy with

IN/OUT

4th Annual

MANHATTAN MERCHANTS GIFT BOOK

Sponsored by 50 of the local Manhattan merchants

$1000 Value
Gift Certificate Book
for only $39⁹⁵

Our operators
may be contacting you
537-9022

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Edelaine's
421 Poyntz
776-4498

- Wedding Gowns
- Tuxedo Rental
- After Five Wear
- Disposable Shoes
- Gloves & Handbags
- Rhinestone Jewelry

108 M.P.
10-6 Sat., 1-5 Sun.

TACOS
3 for $1.25
Good Wed. thru Sat.

TACO HUT

2809 Claflin 539-2091

Auntie Mac's Parlor

SANDWICHES
Now being served!

Tonight:
$1.50 Well drinks
75¢ Draws
$2 blended drinks
$1 Wine

Thursday:
$1.25 Well drinks
616 N. 12th 539-9967

Now, oil-free makeup that gives oily skin the soft matte finish you want, the oil-control you need.

DEMI-MATTE MAKEUP
DEMI-MATTE POWDER
ESTÉE LAUDER

CALL GINA 776-4776
FOR YOUR PERSONAL
MAKEUP CONSULTATION

Broune's
DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors & Grads...

GIVE YOURSELF SOME CREDIT!

APPLY NOW FOR YOUR VERY OWN...

- Bring a photocopy of your School I.D.
- No cosigner required

APPLY NOW ON CAMPUS!

Date: Oct. 6, 7 & 8
Time: 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.
Place: Table outside Union Stateroom

CITIBANK
Citibank (South Dakota), N.A. Member FDIC

FoodWednesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, October 7, 1987 ■ Page 7

Bread: 'A slice of Grandma's kitchen'

Window courtesy of 84 Lumber

Staff Illustration/John Thelander

By Michelle Engemann
Collegian Reporter

Stop for just a moment, if you will, and think about the two slices of bread you threw some lunch meat and mayonnaise between this morning, or smothered with butter and jelly on the way to class.

Think about the waving wheat fields and the farmers who produced this invaluable and multipurpose food product.

Ignore the myths that surround the lowly piece of bread, the high fats and starches, and think of the fiber it provides and the protein wheat flours offer us.

The Day of Bread, celebrated Tuesday, is a worldwide event celebrating the importance of bread in the world's nutrition and economy, according to a newsletter from the Kansas Wheat Commission.

The newsletter, written by Sharon Davis, nutritionist for the Kansas Wheat Commission, said, "Bread is so basic that it is often taken for granted. For centuries, some cultures have celebrated the harvest and given thanks for their food with a fall festival. Bread is a natural for this celebration since bread and similar wheat foods provide more nourishment for people of the world today than any other food."

Bread is often one of the first things dropped from a diet when someone wants to lose weight, Davis said.

"Fat is fattening — not the bread. It's all the stuff people put on bread that makes it bad for them," Davis said.

Sliced bread was considered fattening for many years because of its high starch content. Davis said people are beginning to realize that starches are critical because they are complex carbohydrates and are needed for energy.

"The leanest people in the world will consume two times the bread and grains we do, but little oil, butter, margarine or shortening is eaten with or used to prepare their breads or main dish meals. Because wheat is also a protein food, they may also get 30 percent to 50 percent of their protein needs met from wheat and other grains," Davis said.

Davis said bread should be an important part of diets because of the low calorie level and high fiber content. The fiber causes a "full" feeling and absorbs large quantities of liquids, which helps the digestive process.

Whole wheat bread is higher in fiber than white bread, but switching to whole wheat won't provide all the fiber needed for a healthy diet. Davis said it is necessary to eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables to include other important sources of fiber.

The four main kinds of sliced breads vary little in nutritional value, but they do have some differences.

Whole wheat bread must list wheat as the first ingredient on the content label. Wheat can be any combination of wheat and enriched white flour.

White breads contain enriched white flour.

The new "light" breads contain more water and fiber and less flour and sweetness. Davis said this sacrifices quality by "watering down your food."

"Sliced bread is already 'light.' Producers played on a consumer myth about bread being fattening," Davis said.

The introduction of quick-rise yeasts and food processors makes homemade breads easier and more feasible for most people, Davis said. While adequate rising time for bread dough is necessary for a quality loaf, the amount of time can be shortened if the bread is intended for immediate use.

Food processors can usually be used for kneading the dough and saving time on the baker's arms. Davis said to check the instruction manual or panel on the processor to make sure breads can be kneaded in them and what quantity of dough can be used.

One-Bowl Honey Wheat Bread

2½ cups whole wheat flour
½ cup rolled oats, quick or regular
3 cups (or more) all-purpose or bread flour
2 packages quick-rise yeast
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup water
1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup honey

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 eggs, room temperature

Combine whole wheat flour, oats, yeast and salt in large mixing bowl. Heat water, cottage cheese and honey until very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Stir while heating.

Beat warm cottage-cheese mixture into flour mixture, and beat for 2 minutes.

Mix in butter and eggs. Add all-purpose flour until dough cleans sides of bowl. Turn dough onto lightly floured surface and let rest 10 minutes.

Knead dough until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl, turn and cover. Let dough rise 30 minutes in 80-degree place free from drafts, punch down and let rest 10 minutes.

Divide dough in half and shape into round or 5¼ by 9¼ -inch loaves. Place on greased pans, cover and let raise in 95- to 105-degree place until light and doubled. Bake at 350 degrees, 35 to 40 minutes. If browning too quickly, cover lightly with foil, shiny side up. Remove from pans, cool until just barely warm and wrap.

Half-and-Half Dinner Rolls

1 cup milk
½ cup sugar
½ cup margarine or butter
1½ teaspoons salt

¾ cup warm water
2 packages active dry yeast
2 eggs, beaten
2½ cups whole wheat flour
2½ to 3 cups all-purpose or bread flour
Scald milk. Stir in sugar, margarine and salt. Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees). Measure water into large, warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast, stir and let stand until gra-

■ See BREAD, Page 11

Coupons: The ultimate bait for innocent shoppers

Grab your scissors and your coupon caddy! The coupon-clipping era has begun.

Shoppers run daily to check-out lines with coupons in hand to save that extra dollar or "get one free."

Many shoppers

Food for Thought

SUSAN STAGGENBORG
Features
Editor

would not be able to eat without their trusty coupons at their side. Many people claim these little bits of ragged paper save them hundreds of dollars annually.

This may be true, but I've clipped and I've clipped and I have yet to save more than $2 on my grocery bill. Granted, I may be shopping at the wrong store, but by the time you go through the Sunday paper and cut and clip the coupons, your scissors are dull and you have clipped coupons for dog food for the dog you don't even have.

Coupons are used as a ploy to get consumers to try foods they normally would not buy. Without a coupon the cost of the item is so outrageous you would not buy it anyway. This is where coupons come in. They bait the consumer to buy, buy, buy — regardless of what the product is.

Once you have clipped or ripped your coupons out of the newspaper, the next step is to find a place to keep and organize them. Those fancy coupon caddies are dandy for a while, but by the time you shove hundreds of soap coupons into them, you can't find anything.

After filing the coupons, you're off to the grocery store. Here you stand in the middle of the aisles, coupons all over the floor, pulling out the coupons you want to use. You stumble and fumble with the ragged coupons only to get to the

■ See FOOD, Page 11

Education secretary condemns condoms

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Once again challenging the nation's top health officer, Education Secretary William J. Bennett on Tuesday issued a guide to AIDS education that frowns on condoms and emphasizes the teaching of morality and sexual restraint as the best safeguard against the deadly disease.

Unlike Surgeon General C. Everett Koop's own pamphlet on AIDS, Bennett's booklet takes a dim view of condoms as a disease preventive, saying they "can and do fail."

It also contends that "promoting the use of condoms can suggest to teen-agers that adults expect them to engage in sexual intercourse."

"This is not moralizing; it is realism," Bennett told a news conference.

Bennett supports teaching morality

His 28-page booklet, "AIDS and the Education of Our Children," suggests that schools ordinarily can wait until sex education courses at the junior high level to teach youngsters the facts about AIDS and how it is spread.

Koop has said that frank instruction about AIDS "should start in early elementary school." And he has urged men who engage in any high-risk sexual activity to wear condoms from start to finish during intercourse.

Bennett told reporters that condoms can "help reduce the risk, but they by no means can be relied upon."

Without mentioning Koop by name, he added, "People who have thought or who have been suggesting that condoms will provide an adequate safeguard against the spread of AIDS are, I think, now admitting either to overstatement or mistake."

Bennett later cited a recent remark by Koop, that condoms had "extraordinarily high" failure rates when used by homosexuals during anal intercourse.

The two officials have carried on a year-long public debate over how to stop the spread of AIDS.

Koop was in Europe and unavailable for comment. James Brown, a spokesman for the Public Health Service headed by Koop, said the surgeon general has no plans now to change his report on AIDS, but was awaiting the results of a UCLA study on condoms and spermicides and might change his advice if that study warrants it.

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on intergovernmental relations, criticized the Bennett booklet's emphasis. Given the "tremendous amount" of sexual activity among teen-agers, it should have included an extensive treatment "about the use of condoms, about sanitary needles and so on," he said.

"To pretend that this problem really is being addressed by taking this moralistic approach only is not dealing with the real world," Weiss said.

AIDS — acquired immune deficiency syndrome — is spread through the exchange of contaminated body fluids, including semen and blood. Most victims are homosexual men, but intravenous drug abusers who share needles also can contract the disease.

As of last month, only 17,755 of the 41,825 Americans diagnosed with AIDS were still alive.

The Bennett booklet says any instruction about condoms "should occur in an appropriate moral context. In particular, young people must know that the use of condoms can reduce, but by no means eliminate, the risk of contracting AIDS."

"AIDS and the Education of Our Children" is available free by writing the Consumer Information Center, Department ED, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Bennett said the Education Department will mail nearly 300,000 copies to school principals, school boards, presidents of parents' groups and other educators.

That is only a tiny fraction of the 45 million copies of a new pamphlet, "What You Should Know About AIDS," that the Public Health Service plans to distribute through employers, health departments and community organizations.

Author blames AIDS epidemic on government, gay citizens

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Inadequate government response and the initial failure of the gay community to accept lifestyle changes allowed AIDS to rage out of control during the early years of the disease, a reporter charges in a new book.

Randy Shilts, a reporter for the San Francisco Chronicle, labels the often confusing and contradictory efforts between 1980 and 1985 a "drama of national failure."

"By the time America paid attention to the disease, it was too late to do anything about it," Shilts writes in "And the Band Played On: People, Politics and the AIDS Epidemic."

Shilts, who has covered AIDS full-time since 1983, says the spread of the deadly disease "was allowed to happen by an array of institutions, all of which failed to perform their appropriate tasks to safeguard the public health."

Although charges of foot-dragging by scientists and government health officials are not new, Shilts details these allegations in the 630-page book by St. Martin's Press, set for release Oct. 30.

Shilts, a homosexual, accuses many gay community leaders of treating AIDS originally as a "public relations problem."

He said doctors with largely homosexual practices delayed putting together risk-reduction guidelines, and activists had difficulty getting professionals to sit on community panels.

Shilts writes some homosexual activists were so angered when Bill Kraus, a gay aide to the late Rep. Phil Burton, suggested gay men change their sexual habits and stop patronizing bathhouses that several publicly called him a "sexual Nazi" and an "anti-sex Brown Shirt."

"Self-criticism was not the strong point of a community that was only beginning to define itself affirmatively after centuries of repression," Shilts writes.

But Shilts tempers his criticism. "The gay community was slow to react adequately, but what then happened in response to the crisis happened mainly because of gay people's involvement."

The book also includes an account of the final four years in the life of Gaetan Dugas, a 28-year-old airline steward from Montreal known to researchers as "Patient Zero."

QUALITY SILKSCREENING—FRIENDLY SERVICE—COMPETITIVE

TEE'ZERS
Aggieville's Newest Fun Store
620 N. Manhattan 776-5621

Come in and register for our
WEEKLY GIVEAWAY
THIS WEEK: Winter in Manhattan
Last week's winner: Eric Hoffman

B.A.S.K.E.T WORKS
DISTRIBUTOR

MYLAR BALLOONS
only $1.90

QUALITY SILKSCREENING—FRIENDLY SERVICE—COMPETITIVE PRICES

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Sticks

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Manhattan Towers—Aggieville

Manhattan Milling Co.

Purina Pet Foods

- Puppy Chow $14.60/40 lbs.
- Field & Farm $12.25/50 lbs.
- Dow Chow $14.50/50 lbs.
- Hi-Pro $15.00/50 lbs.
- Cat Chow $6.45/10 lbs.
- Cat Chow $12.25/40 lbs.

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

GOODSON AUTO TRIM

Tailor Made Seat Covers
Tanneau Covers
Boat Covers
Window Tinting
Convertible Tops
Vinyl Tops
Complete Auto, Truck
& Boat Upholstery
201 Sarber Lane
(behind Wal-Mart)
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
Phone 776-7679 Res. 776-7614

BRIDAL GIFT REGISTRY

We are pleased to announce that the following couples have registered with us:

Karen Ekart
& John Graham
Denise Shepherd
& Donnie Magnuson
Marcia Schilling
& Dan Cook
Linda Harrington
& Tom Drickworth
Mary Krouse
& Dan Herrs

MIDWEST HARDWARE SERVICE ON TWENTY ONE HUNDRED
HUMPHREY BLVD.
PH. 776-9454

ICAT

This is your last chance to sign-up for the road trip to Columbia, Missouri! The price is only $25 ($30 for non-ICAT members) and includes your game ticket, snacks and transportation. The bus leaves the parking lot west of the old stadium at 7 a.m. and returns right after the game. Sign-up now in Ahearn Room 101 and back the Cats this Saturday!

Deadline is Thursday at 5 p.m.

International Travel during Winter Intersession

Travel this winter to London, Paris, Brussels, Greece, or Australia and earn 2 to 3 hours of credit for your trip during Winter Intersession. Because of the travel involved, registration deadlines are sooner than for on-campus Intersession courses. For more information about these study tours, see the individual instructors as soon as possible, or call the Intersession Coordinator at 532-5686 or come to Umberger Hall, Room 311. Prices for study tours below do not include K-State tuition, which is $43 per undergraduate hour and $62 per graduate hour of credit, and is payable at Intersession Registration, December 7-9 at Farrell Library Basement.

12/26/87-1/14/88 Comparative Agriculture—Australia, New Zealand, Hawaii Tour: GENAG 505. Learn about agriculture in Australia and New Zealand by visiting private and university research centers. View beef cattle, dairy, sheep, swine, poultry and horse operations and a variety of forages and crops. Some highlights of the tour include: nature reserves with native flora and fauna, the Great Barrier Reef, the Maori Hangi feast and concert, & the Hawaii stopover on the return. Three hours undergraduate or graduate credit. Instructor: Dr. Clenton Owensby, Agronomy Department, 532-7232. Deposit of $100 due: October 12. Balance of $2500-2700 due November 16.

12/22/87-1/10/88 Architecture and Planning of Greece: ENV 699. Through visits to sites, museums, and offices of design and planning professionals, the architecture and planning of Greece will be examined from pre-historic to modern times. A three-day excursion to Corinth, Mycenae, Tyrins, Epidaurus and Nauplion will complement the sites visited in Athens. Three hours undergraduate or graduate credit. Instructor: Dr. Eleftherios Pavlides, Environmental Design Department, 532-6846. Deposit of $200 due: immediately. Balance of $780 due: November 16.

12/26/87-1/10/88 Art Tour—London: ART 300. Visit art galleries and museums, restorations or preservations related to the Arts, literary and historical sites, and the theatre in London, Bath and Stratford. Students will visit the National Gallery, the Tate Gallery, Mne. Tussaud's Wax Museum, the Saatchi Gallery, the Museum of London, Stonehenge and Winchester Cathedral. Students will do research in an area of particular interest during scheduled stops and will present the results of their investigation upon return. This course coincides with the English Department's Literary Britain tour. Interested students are invited to attend an informational meeting on Wednesday, October 14, 3-5 p.m., in Union Room 204. Two hours undergraduate credit. Instructor: Ms. Diane Dollar, Art Department, 532-6605. First deposit of $100 due: October 23. Second payment of $542 due: November 13. Balance of $871 due: November 16.

12/26/87-1/10/88 Literary Britain: ENGL 395. Students will visit a number of literary sites including the homes of Dickens and Keats and Shakespeare's properties in Stratford and Bath. Other sites on the tour include the KEW Royal Botanical Gardens, the British Museum, Roman Baths Museum, Stonehenge and Westminster Abbey. Course fees include tickets to six plays, a ballet and an opera. Students will read texts provided by the instructors, attend two on-campus sessions and will prepare a paper following the study tour. This course coincides with the Art Department's Art Tour. Interested students are invited to attend an informational meeting on Wednesday, October 14, 3-5 p.m., in Union Room 204. Two hours undergraduate credit. Instructors: Mr. Gary Clift and Mr. Ben Nyberg, English Department, 532-6106 or 532-6716. Deposit of $100 due: October 23. Second payment of $542 due: November 13. Balance of $871 due: November 16.

12/27/87-1/10/88 Clothing and Textiles Study Tour/Brussels, Paris, London: CT 650. This course will examine the design and merchandising of clothing and accessories. Discussions are planned with representatives of a number of trade associations and professional organizations. In Paris and London, a number of leading fashion accessory houses will be visited. Visits to fashion and folk costume museums and discussions with fashion marketing officials are also planned. Two hours undergraduate credit. Instructors: Mr. Bernard Rueschhoff and Dr. Bettie Minshall, Clothing, Textiles and Interior Design Department, 532-6993. Amount of $1595 due: November 1.

Division of Continuing Education
Kansas State University

Some people have all the right equipment.

Smile protectors from the professionals

Mouthguards from $25

SAGER DENTAL ASSOCIATES, P.A.
514 Humboldt Plaza Sports Dentistry Department 913-537-8831

Mizzou player gives warning

By The Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. — When a player makes two interceptions, 12 tackles and two quarterback sacks, it could be considered a good day. But for Missouri strong safety Erik McMillan, that effort last Saturday against Syracuse wasn't good enough.

The rebuilding Tigers dropped their second straight game, losing 24-13. Missouri's now 2-2 and Syracuse is 5-0. And McMillan wasn't satisfied with just playing a solid defensive game.

"I thought I had a good game, but I guess it wasn't good enough because we came up a little short," he said.

"We just have to concentrate on whipping up on K-State. K-State had better watch out."

—Erik McMillan

The Tigers begin the Big Eight season Saturday by hosting the winless K-State Wildcats.

"We're 2-2 preseason. Big Eight is a whole new season. We just have to concentrate on whipping up on K-State. K-State had better watch out," McMillan said.

Missouri Coach Woody Widenhofer can't say enough good things about McMillan, whose aggressive play has netted both national and conference honors.

"Erik is playing as well as anybody I know of," Widenhofer said. "He's a real leader out there."

The tenacious Orangemen defense kept the Tigers at bay throughout the afternoon last Saturday and entered the game with the nation's No. 1 rushing defense. Missouri had the No. 5 rushing attack averaging 330 yards a game. But the Orangemen stuffed the ground game, limiting Missouri to a season-low 164 yards.

Without the effective ground game, the Tigers were struggling in the first half, trailing 10-0. Missouri hadn't moved the ball past midfield until the very last play of the first quarter. The Tigers needed a break to get things going their way.

Step up McMillan.

He picked off a Don McPherson pass and cruised over an open 37 yards into the end zone, giving the Tigers what turned out to be their only touchdown.

The end zone is not exactly foreign territory to McMillan, the team captain for the second straight year. He scored Missouri's first touchdown of the season on a 13-yard interception in a 23-18 victory over Baylor, which also saw him become the school's career tackle leader.

"There were two guys out there, and I saw how McPherson turned his shoulder, and I knew where he was going to throw it," McMillan said. "We knew the defense had to come up with the big play."

But in the third quarter it was McPherson coming up with the big play, hooking up with Rob Moore on a 71-yard touchdown pass to give Syracuse a 17-13 lead.

"I thought our defense played a phenomenal game in the first half," Widenhofer said. "And then to give up a big play like that, it broke our backs."

Kent Dean: 'I've never looked back'

Mid-Week Commentary

TOM PERRIN
Sports Columnist

Meet Kent Dean, K-State tight end — the man who told University of Oklahoma Head Football Coach Barry Switzer "Thanks for the scholarship offer, but no thanks."

It all happened five years ago when Dean was a heavily recruited player at Derby High School. Rated as one of the top 15 players in the nation by one publication, Dean was getting attention from top colleges around the nation.

Given Oklahoma Coach Switzer's track record in recruiting, it seemed inevitable that Dean, who says he grew up "a die-hard Oklahoma fan" would sign a national letter of intent with the Sooners. Switzer made trips to Derby and spoke with Dean and his parents in the family's living room.

"It was a big thrill for me," Dean said. "I was offered a scholarship and everything that went with it."

But after a visit to the Norman, Okla. campus, Dean still wasn't quite sold.

"I enjoyed my trip and everything about it, but I got to thinking, 'is this what's best for Kent Dean or is this something that's going to be an ego trip,'" he said.

On the day before the national letter signing day, Dean decided on K-State, which at the time had the look of an up-and-coming program after a 6-4-1 record and trip to the Independence Bowl. In this particular battle, Oklahoma had lost out to K-State.

"When I called down there, I talked to (assistant coach) Galen Hall. I didn't even want to talk to Switzer, because I knew he was going to be (unhappy) that I wasn't going to Oklahoma," Dean said. "They went after me hard, and they are used to getting what they want."

Four years and four losing seasons later, Dean says he has no regrets about his decision.

"People ask me 'Do you wish you had gone to Oklahoma?' and I say 'Well, I really never thought too much about it,'" Dean said. "I've never looked back too much on my decision to go to Kansas State. I've just said, 'Hey, we have to do what we need to do here.'"

You'd think a prospect as highly regarded as Dean would have come to K-State and made an immediate impact, breaking into the starting line-up and contending for all-conference honors. But it hasn't been until this year that Dean has turned into that type of player.

Tight end Kent Dean watches for the snap during the Wildcats' practice Tuesday afternoon in preparation for this weekend's game against Missouri.

Dean, 6-foot-4 and 245 pounds, has been the most consistent force in the Wildcat offense the past two games, catching 12 passes for 133 yards. Last year, Dean caught 12 passes for the whole season.

"Things are going pretty well personally, but it doesn't help a lot when the team doesn't win," Dean said. "I think that's our major goal, whether it's me catching passes or Tony Jordan getting 100 yards a game. Just the winning is what we need."

Not until this year has Dean gotten the opportunities he deserves to catch the ball.

"The potential has always been there," Dean said. "It's been disappointing to me as a player that I haven't been utilized in my years before. ...But this year, Coach Parrish told me 'We're going to throw the ball to you. We want to center the attack around short passes with you catching a lot of those, and Tony (Jordan) running.'"

Dean had heard promises like that before at K-State, though, and was admittedly skeptical. Now, Dean has seen the promises come true and appears to have his career back on track. Professional scouts have been taking a look and Dean has his sights set on the National Football League.

"I've heard a lot of positive things. I've had scouts talk to me and say I have great opportunities in the NFL," Dean said. "Some of them have talked, with the way the ballgames have been going, that it wouldn't be out of my range to go in the second or third round."

With talent like that, you've got to wonder why K-State fans haven't seen a lot more of Dean the past few years.

Labor talks resume after 11-day silence

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — NFL strike negotiations resumed Tuesday after the union softened its stance on free agency, leading some players to predict regulars would be back on the field this weekend.

The talks, the first in 11 days, involved only the chief negotiators — management's Jack Donlan and the union's Gene Upshaw. The site was undisclosed.

The two sides returned to the bargaining table following an eight-hour meeting in Chicago of the union's 28 player representatives.

The new talks also followed a weekend in which both sides seemed to lose — owners, because stadiums were filled to just 25 percent capacity rather than the usual 90 percent; players, because of nearly 90 defections and reports that many more, including entire teams, might cross picket lines this week.

"I think the pressures are beginning to build on both sides," Commissioner Pete Rozelle said in Washington where he was testifying before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on the NFL's TV package.

Owners, meanwhile, put more pressure on players by moving up the reporting deadline from Friday to Wednesday. That means a player who wants to get paid for this weekend's games must report to his team by Wednesday, two days earlier than last week.

Players said they hoped a quick settlement could be reached if they moved away from their demand for unrestricted free agency after four years, the issue that stymied the last round of talks.

"When you have other players out there playing and you know you should be out there it feels a little bit ridiculous," said Mike Singletary, the Chicago Bears' player rep, who also said he was "very optimistic" a settlement would be reached by this weekend.

How far players had moved off free agency was left open to question by a vaguely worded resolution approved by all 28 player representatives. "He (Upshaw) made a commitment to the reps that he would not let any single issue hold up reaching an agreement," it said.

Osborne not taking Kansas lightly

By The Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. — Although second-ranked Nebraska is a 49-point favorite in its Big Eight Conference opener against Kansas, Coach Tom Osborne said Tuesday his Cornhuskers had best come ready to play if they expect to win.

In his weekly news conference, Osborne recalled how Kansas upset heavily favored Oklahoma in Lawrence, Kan., twice in the past dozen or so years. One of those years, Osborne noted, was when Oklahoma was forced to use a backup quarterback because of injuries.

Nebraska, 4-0, is in that same situation this week after regular starter Steve Taylor reinjured a bruised shoulder in last week's 30-21 victory over South Carolina. Fifth-year starter Clete Blakeman came off the bench to drive the Huskers to 17 fourth-quarter points and the win. Blakeman will get the call Saturday against 1-3 Kansas, a team the Norfolk senior defeated 70-0 in a start for the injured Taylor last year.

"We think Clete Blakeman is well-prepared," Osborne said. "Steve I think feels about like he did after the UCLA game (in which he hurt his left shoulder). He's sore. He could play in an emergency situation. We'll prepare him a little to play...but we will try not to play him."

Osborne said Kansas is not without its own good players.

"Kansas probably has better athletes than a lot of people think because we tried to recruit a lot of them," he said. "But I think we probably have more good athletes."

Osborne said the Jayhawks are capable of playing good football, although they have struggled early this season.

Spikers to tangle with WSU

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson is taking his team on the road and believes the tour will be successful.

The 'Cats — winners of six straight home matches — take a 9-4 record into playing host to The Wichita State University Shockers at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Council Grove High School gymnasium.

"I think taking the team on the road is a good way for people to see what K-State volleyball is all about," Nelson said. "It'll help us in recruiting in a big way if we win."

The win might be hard to come by, though. Nelson admitted not knowing much about the Shocker team, except that they have common foes in Tulsa and Kansas. K-State has beaten both, and Wichita State beat Tulsa but lost to Kansas.

Last season, the 'Cats beat the Shockers in two games, which both went five sets. Nelson feels the improvement of his team will be measured after the match.

However, WSU has been unable to beat a Big Eight opponent this season. The Shockers have lost to Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska.

"It'll be an interesting match in that we're just going to go out on the floor and say 'try and beat us,'" Nelson said of his game plan. "If we beat them in three (games) we know we've improved. If we beat them in five (games) then we know that they've improved as much as us."

As of now, though, Nelson's team is feeling the crunch of mid-terms, and he is hoping the team's efforts could improve within the next few weeks.

"With mid-terms going on, the kids have a lot on their minds and aren't totally committed mentally to volleyball," Nelson said. "We can't have much more of that, otherwise we could get into a slump which would be hard to get out of."

Going into tonight's contest, K-State has two players listed on the national level in offensive categories.

Kristi Jacquart ranks 14th in the nation in serving aces with an 82 percent mark. Shawnee Call ranks 11th in kill average with 4.9 per contest and 4.17 digs per contest, good enough for eighth place.

Another person who should enjoy the trip to Council Grove is junior Tami Tibbetts, who hails from Council Grove.

"It'll be great to take Tami back to her old gym and play a game," Nelson said. "That's another reason I think the crowd will be pro-K-State when we play there."

After tonight's match the 'Cats hit the road for a match against Colorado, Saturday, and a match against the No. 2 ranked Cornhuskers of Nebraska next Tuesday.

Cards win first playoff game to claim NL series advantage

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Emergency starter Greg Mathews blew away pressure and the Giants, pitching four-hit ball for 7½ innings and blooping a key two-run single Tuesday night as the St. Louis Cardinals beat San Francisco 5-3 in the first game of the National League playoffs.

Even with Mathews' effort, the largest crowd in Busch Stadium history, 55,331, had to hold on in the eighth when the Giants scored once and loaded the bases with two outs. Reliever Ken Dayley retired Will Clark on a long fly ball to end the inning and then finished for a save.

The Cardinals, plagued by injuries all season and playing without ailing first baseman Jack Clark, were not hurt this time after scheduled starter Danny Cox came down with a stiff neck. Mathews, told four hours before the game he would pitch, responded coolly against the team that pounded him three times this year.

NL Game 1
Cards 5, Giants 3

Mathews gave up three runs, two earned. He tied a season-high with seven strikeouts and walked one. Mathews, who drove in only three runs this year, also contributed a single that capped a three-run sixth for a 5-2 lead.

Todd Worrell relieved after Mathews' first walk in 22 innings, to Robby Thompson with one out in the eighth. Worrell, with a 7.36 earned run average in six games against the Giants this year, gave up a single to Jeffrey Leonard, an RBI double to Candy Maldonado and a walk to Chili Davis that loaded the bases.

Dayley, a left-hander, quelled the threat by getting the left-handed Clark on a fly ball to right fielder Curt Ford just short of the warning track.

Mathews, a second-year left-hander, and 38-year-old Rick Reuschel were settled into a 2-2 game when a blown rundown triggered the Cardinals' three-run sixth.

Dan Driessen doubled with one out and was then trapped when shortstop Joe Uribe grabbed Willie McGee's infield hit in the hole.

Chinese troops arrest marchers at Tibet Capital

By The Associated Press

LHASA, Tibet — About 60 people shouting the name of the Dalai Lama, Tibet's exiled god-king, marched Tuesday to a government office, where armed Chinese security forces quickly arrested them, herded them into trucks and drove them away.

The marchers, believed to be Buddhist monks in street clothes, did not resist arrest. About 2,000 bystanders made no attempt to help them or four monks who were arrested at about the same time in the Jokhang Temple square, where pro-independence protests last week left at least 14 people dead.

The Chinese government has sent 1,000 armed police to Lhasa, capital of the remote Himalayan region of 2 million people, said a source in the local Public Security Bureau.

The troops are to guard against further unrest on Wednesday, the 37th anniversary of the day China occupied Tibet, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Tibetans and Chinese questioned on the street said they expected the anniversary to be quiet because of fears that police would fire on protesters.

Western witnesses said police fired last Thursday on demonstrators who burned a police station and vehicles in the temple square.

Western doctors in Lhasa said eight Tibetans were shot to death and one unidentified Chinese was stoned to death. Authorities said six Chinese police were killed. It was not known if the Chinese was one of the six.

There was a smaller, less violent protest on Sept. 27 that resulted in about two dozen arrests. Tuesday's march was the first protest since Thursday.

About 100 marchers raised their fists and chanted the name of the Dalai Lama, Tibet's former civil and religious leader, who fled to exile in India after a 1959 uprising against Chinese rule. China annexed Tibet in 1950.

The marchers did not wear the saffron robes usually worn by monks, but they came from the direction of the Drepung monastery, one of three leading monasteries whose members led the independence demonstrations last week. The monastery is about five miles west of Lhasa.

Western witnesses said a few were arrested quietly on the way and that others left the march.

About 60 marchers continued to the gate of the Tibetan regional government office. About 100 security forces carrying submachine guns and automatic pistols immediately herded them onto trucks.

Aside from the arrests, police kept a low profile Tuesday. A small group of plainclothes police stood on the roof of the temple watching the square below as hundreds of people worshiped inside the temple.

China is acutely sensitive any outside criticism of its rule in Tibet. When the Dalai Lama visited the United States last month and called for negotiations on Tibet's status, China denounced Washington for letting him make political statements.

Rural economies suffering

Ag economist suggests technical aid

By The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — States need to provide more education and technical assistance to community leaders in order to spur economic growth in rural economies, according to an agriculture economist.

Glen C. Pulver, in a paper presented to the Council of State Governments' Center for Agriculture and Rural Development conference, said, "A great deal of local energy is committed to fruitless effort in the name of economic development simply because rural officials are not well informed as to the strategies likely to exhibit the greatest payoff."

He said rural leaders often depend on university extension services, regional planning groups or state development offices that do not have the funds to deal with each area individually.

"The payoff in terms of careful, intelligent economic development analysis, planning and execution in rural areas would be great," he said.

Charles Cadwell, Deputy Chief Counsel for Advocacy in the U.S. Small Business Administration, said overlapping by government agencies needs to be avoided.

"The instigator to pull all the resources together has to be local (officials)," he said.

"Rural America is perceived as a homogenous area," he told about 50 state officials. "It is not. It is a very complex set of economies grouped together."

Pulver, a University of Wisconsin professor, said that natural resource-based industries, such as farming, forestry and mining, are declining in importance in many areas.

He said growth in rural areas will be dependent on transportation systems, education, development capital, quality living environments and tele-communications systems.

He noted that regions "suffering the most in the midst of the rural crisis of the 1980s are those which are the greatest distance from cities of 20,000 people or more."

Anthony Redwood, director of the Institute of Public Policy and Business Research at the University of Kansas, noted that employment in the farm sector has declined from 8.3 percent in 1960 to 3.2 percent in 1984, in manufacturing from 25.5 to 18.5 percent and in mining from 1.1 to 0.9 percent.

He said that service industries, over the same period, increased from 11.2 to 19.8 percent.

Redwood said states must establish an environment for economic growth by improving public education, fostering linkages between public-private sectors, revising tax structure, removing barriers and obstacles to entrepreneurship and innovation and assisting resource development through investment.

Billy Ray Hall, president of North Carolina's Rural Economic Development Center, said the "buffalo hunt" to attract industry through various incentives is over for states.

He said states "need to understand the international and national economy in which we operate."

Hall said 61 percent of North Carolina's annual budget is earmarked for education, which is helping rural areas keep up with the changing global economy.

Bob Ovington, president of Bob's Food Service in Mount Sterling, Ky., said that he is concerned about Kentucky's educational system.

He said many high school graduates "can't read, write or do arithmetic as well as eighth graders 20 years ago. That tells me something is wrong with the school system when that happens."

Ovington said that while his company has over 600 employees and is the third largest employer in his area, there are no vocational education programs which relate to his business.

He also said that several weeks ago Gov. Martha Layne Collins was in Morehead at a news conference to announce that a company was bringing 60 new jobs into the area.

Florida nuclear plant could be shut down

By The Associated Press

MIAMI — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission could shut down the Turkey Point nuclear plant if there are any more problems at the troubled facility, a federal inspector says.

A special federal supervisory team was sent to the Florida Power & Light Co. plant Sept. 26 to oversee control room operations around the clock, said David Verrelli, the resident NRC inspector at the plant.

Turkey Point has been hit with more safety fines in the past five years than any commercial nuclear plant still generating power, according to NRC records.

The most recent violation occurred Sept. 13, when a licensed control room operator let a supervised but unlicensed technician operate a control button, according to Verrelli.

The right button was touched, but the incident violates NRC codes, and when utility supervisors learned of the incident, they suspended the operator and notified the NRC.

A temporary shutdown of the plant's two reactors could come next.

"That's always an option," Verrelli said Monday. "If they were to have another incident. ... Well, I think we're that close."

Early this year, Turkey Point's Unit 4 reactor had to be shut down for five months to clean up.

TV Listings

By TV Data

WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 7, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scoby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	"	"	"	My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook	I Love Lucy
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid	Ghostbusters	Who's Boss	Sesame Street	H's Heroes	Senior PGA	Movie: "The Cradle Will"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss	M.T. Moore	Body Electric	Andy Griffith	Championship	Fall
11:00	Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec.	Dyke Green Acres	Communi. Name of God	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Football: Tiger-Cats at	Movie: "The Deadly"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith	Nova	Van Dyke	Blue Bombers	Tower
2:00	Baseball Play-offs: National	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch	McLaughlin Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	Drag Racing: NHRA Key-	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	League Championship Ser-	Donahue	ABC After-school Special	Smurfs	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones
4:00	ies Game Two	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravestar	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravestar	Mint 400 Off-Road Race	Munsters Laverne
5:00	Family Ties	News CBS News	News TBA	Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook PGA Tour	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News Truth/Conseq.	M*A*S*H	WKRP Gimme Br.	Pope John XXIII	Movie: "Dirty Harry"	Sailboarding	Movie: "Mother"
7:00	Baseball Play-offs: American	Magnum, P.I.	Hooperman	Movie: "The Hanging	Corridos!	"	Surfing	Code
8:00	League Championship Ser-	Magnum, P.I.	Hooperman	Movie: "The Hanging	Corridos!	"	Surfing	Code
9:00	ies Game One	Equalizer	Dynasty	Tree	Joan Baez	News	Another Classic Summer	Movie: "Donovan's Reef"
10:00	News	News Cheers	News M*A*S*H	Barney Miller	Wild America	H'mooner	Scuba World SportsCenter	"
11:00	Ent. Tonight	Diamonds	B. Buddies	Nightline	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie	Sports Karate: ISKA	Movie: "The Deadliest Sea-
12:00	Late Night With David	"Happy Endings"	700 Club	"Fury at Furnace Creek"	Sign-Off	"	World Fly-Arm Wrestling	son"

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.40	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Looking for Hope?

World renowned author and public speaker addresses the heart cry of all Kansans — and all Americans. hear

Luis Palau

Tonight through Sunday

Yes, there is real hope.

"Hope for the Stressed-out Heartland"
Wednesday, Oct. 7, 7:30 p.m.

"Hope for the Restless Heart"
Thursday, Oct. 8, 7:30 p.m.

"Hope for the Frustrated Family"
Friday, Oct. 9, 7:30 p.m.

"Hope for the AIDs Generation"
Saturday, Oct. 10, 7:30 p.m.

"Hope for an Uncertain Future"
Sunday, Oct. 11, 4:00 p.m.

October 7-11 KSU's Ahearn Fieldhouse FREE ADMISSION

Bread

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

nules dissolve.
Add lukewarm milk mixture, eggs and whole wheat flour. Beat 2 minutes.
Stir in enough remaining white flour (about 2 cups) to form soft dough that can be turned out of mixing bowl onto lightly floured surface. Let dough rest while cleaning and lightly greasing bowl.
Knead, using only small amounts of additional flour to handle dough, 8 to 10 minutes. The dough should be smooth and elastic, and no flour should be necessary to handle dough when done kneading.

Place dough in greased bowl, turn to grease all sides. Cover tightly, place in draft-free, warm place and let raise 30 to 45 minutes.
Punch dough down, let rest 10 minutes and shape as desired. Place rolls on lightly greased baking sheet, cover and let raise in warm place until double, about 30 minutes. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes.

(Recipes compliments of the Kansas Wheat Commission)

Debate

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

that there is no argument for the right to privacy. But while the framers did not specifically allude to it, the best place to look is their own language," Rich said, reading the Ninth Amendment. "The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people."
Erickson and Tonkavich both said they did not necessarily advocate the nomination of Bork, but rather thought he was being unfairly attacked.

"I just think he's getting a bum rap," Erickson said. "Bork has one of the highest intellects of any man nominated to the Court."
"I came here tonight not as an advocate for Bork...I came here...because I feel that Judge Bork's confirmation proceedings have been a disgrace to our system," Tonkavich said. "The point here is whether or not Judge Bork has had fair consideration."
Tonkavich referred to Bork's "exceptional" credentials as a Federal Appellate Judge in the Washington, D.C. District Court, "the second highest court in the country."

"What we have here is no attack on his qualifications," Tonkavich said. "The only thing they (liberals) can attack the nominee on is his ideology."
Tonkavich said opposing groups are accusing Bork of "being a right-wing zealot," too far out of the public main stream.
"I think the bottom line here is politics," Tonkavich said. "The irony of this is that Judge Bork will be defeated...and the people who are going to get hurt are Bork's opponents."

Tonkavich said that "as long as they don't burn a cross in the confirmation room" the next nominee will "have to be" confirmed and will probably be even more conservative and less qualified than Bork.
"Everyone will lose," Tonkavich said.

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Food

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

check-out line and find more than half of them have expired.
Coupons are a useful tool in budgeting your grocery bill. That is, if you want to take the time to clip and organize them prior to your trip to the store. It's worth it.
A few tips for coupon clippers: Keep your coupons updated. Throw out any expired coupons, and don't clip any coupons that you will not use. It is not worth your time or space to clip those extra coupons. Finally, try to organize the coupons by type of item. Dairy products, beverages or baked goods, for example. This step may save you from going through all the coupons to find the one you want.
A final tip for grocery shopping: It helps to make a list of the items needed prior to shopping. Mark a "C" next to items on your list for which coupons are to be used. A list also helps you to stick to only the items on the list and to avoid buying unnecessary items.

Kedzie 103

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.
Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

Disc Golf Tournament
Sunday, Oct. 11
Registration 12:30
Herington North Park
$6 includes free frisbee
For more info: 1-258-2494

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

Grand Opening
Oct. 10
Susie's Showbar
101 Riley
Ogden, KS
Something Special

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Sure, Eddie had a spare tire.
But it wouldn't do him any good.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

FOR SALE 1982 Chevette—$2,400 and 1983 Chevette—$2,200. Nice! Call 537-4083 after 5 p.m. (28-32)

1980 AUDI 5000S, good condition, loaded, $3,000 or best offer. 776-9508. (29-33)

1980 FORD Bronco XLT 302-V8. Power steering, power brakes, air conditioning. Good condition. 539-8436. (31-33)

CHILD CARE 07

FULL-TIME student with child wants another student with child to exchange babysitting spring semester. Phone 539-6430. (28-32)

COMPUTERS 08

VISUAL COMPUTER—1050, CP/M, two drives, 128K, Hi-res monitor, software includes Wordstar, Multiplan, Basic. $450. Call 238-1073. (32-36)

EMPLOYMENT 09

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive-In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

Sub & Stuff Sandwich Shop

Applications now being accepted for following positions. Daytime, late night, and delivering.
No phone calls. Apply between 2-5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.
12th & Moro in Aggieville

EARN SHUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work: electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

Earn holiday cash sharing gifts of good health and good taste
Immediate profits can be yours just for introducing your friends and neighbors to Shaklee Good Harvest Gift Collections—delicious assortments of delectable fruit and Shaklee Nutritional Products. No inventory required. To begin earning money for the holidays, call 684-0875. 1157 S. WEBB WICHITA, KS 67207

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields., $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write J.C. P.O. Box 52-K52, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

MAIL CLERK, 40 hours a week. Involves some listing, typing and fulfillment of orders. Contact Norreen at the Master Teacher, 539-0555 for interview. (31-34)

WANTED DISC Jockey Friday and Saturday night. 539-6015. Susie's Showbar, 101 Riley, Ogden, Kansas. (31-34)

WANTED, ENTHUSIASTIC people who work well with people. Falsetto's is now taking applications for full and part-time help for positions in running cash register, cooks, and drivers. Come in for interviews after 5 p.m. Ask for Steve, 1127 Moro. (32-33)

AEROBIC LEADER vacancy at the KSU Rec Complex. Must be a student carrying 6 or more hours. Certification is desired, but not required. Previous teaching experience highly recommended. Must be available Mondays through Thursdays from 5:20-6:30 p.m. Interested individuals are to apply in person at the Rec Complex administrative office during business hours before 12 noon on Thursday, Oct. 8th. (321f)

JUNIORS, SENIORS, and graduate students earn up to $5,000 this school year managing on campus marketing program for top national companies. Flexible P/T hours. Call 1-800-527-6700 ext. 007. (32-33)

FINANCIAL SERVICES 10

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (27-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

THREE-BEDROOM, unfurnished, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. Available now. No pets. Call 539-5562 after 5 p.m. (29-32)

POND, PETS, pasture, privacy—8 miles. Need responsible couple. Labor can reduce rent. One of two attached mobile homes. 494-8328. (31-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

HOUSE FOR sale. Two bedrooms, attached garage, fenced yard. Couple, single person, couple with one child. Call 539-2860. (32-33)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND: JEAN jacket on Fremont street, next to City Park. Call Dave C., 539-7561, to claim. (30-32)

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on I-70 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short fluffy hair from spraying. Answers to "Abby" 537-0646. (32-39)

FOUND—SHARP calculator in Cardwell 103 on Wednesday, Sept. 30. Call Joel C. 539-7561. (32-34)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

AT&T ELECTRIC typewriter, never used. $150. Porch glider, metal and wood, one-year old. $60. Phone 539-8473. (30-34)

2508 ALICIA, Wednesday, 4-8 p.m. Skis, weights, motorcycle helmet, Norelco razor, clothing case, luggage, iron, study lamp, small-medium doghouse, small animal cage, fall arrangements. (31-32)

THREE-PIECE living room set for sale. Brown paid. Make offer. 532-5840, daytime. After 5 p.m., 537-1434. (31-34)

STERLING SILVER jewelry and chain just arrived. We buy/sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (32-34)

EMMA AND Myrtle: Men may come and men may go, but friends are friends forever. Emma—S----- a R--- Wilma. (32)

BLONDE CO-PILOT—The first time I passed out and burned the second time—well I'll find out after Saturday night. The first lesson begins at 2000 hours in my classroom. Call sign Boozie. (32)

BSU CCC icthys ivcf naves: Romans 10:13-17, 1 John 5:11-12. (32-33)

KAPPA SIG Jeff—If an Opus you want in return, you better show some concern, tonight at 9 at Kite's you should be, if cute opus you want to see. The Opusnapper. (32)

GOODNOW TWO ladies (J. G. A. C.)—Thanks for taking me to Dodge City and showing me a fun time. In return the next party is on me—Carl. (32)

GABE—HAPPY birthday Stud Muffin! Bein' 19 ain't nuthin'. Yo' party was a smash, too bad you had to get thrashed. But it's not healthy to pass out at Hardee's. Mother warned you about college parties. Love, Sister Corruption. (32)

SIGMA NU Sarge: Thanks for the great time Monday. We got you, now you know what fun women we really are. You lived it. But beware: Homecoming is just starting and so are we! Love, the doggnappers of Sigma: Harris, Van Doren, Heinrich, Houston. PS. Harris thanks you for the saran wrap. (32)

LAMBDA CHI Darin—You make life so wonderful. Thanks for being there. You're special. PS. What rain checks?—L.M. (32)

DU ANTHONY Wishing you a very happy 21st birthday! Mimi. (32)

GORGEOUS BLONDE psychology TA, T.M.—Sorry I missed class last Friday. It won't happen again. See you for the quiz. —The late arrival. (32)

ATO—TOM B. Dear Dad, Thanks for a great time last Thursday! I just love being hungover! So glad you're my dad, it's going to be a helluva year! Your loving daughter. (32)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11f)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11f)

Hair Shack

415 N. 3rd
776-7421

Affordable Prices!

Sebastian and Redken products used.

RENTALS 21

TYPEWRITERS—CORRECTING and non-correcting. In the Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (321f)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

PAPERS, RESUMES, cover letters, theses and dissertations entered, stored and completed to your specifications. Letter-quality printer. Come see us. Ross Secretarial Services, 614 N. 12th (across from Kite's), 539-5147. (32-32)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (32-34)

TYING—TERM papers, reports, resumes and cover letters. Call Lori, 776-8627, anytime. (32-36)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

ROOMMATE WANTED to share house. $160/month. Gas/electric paid. Call 537-4083, after 5 p.m. (28-32)

RESPONSIBLE FEMALE roommate, preferably graduate student or working woman, needed to share three-bedroom house near high school. One-half $385 rent plus utilities. 537-8663. (28-32)

TWO ROOMMATES needed. $150 month, three-bedroom house. 539-7002. (31-34)

WANTED: FEMALE roommate for spring semester. Two bedroom, furnished apartment. Two blocks from campus. 776-3199. (31-33)

PROFESSIONAL LADY acquiring a doctorate needs to share home with another professional lady. Call 628-1320 or write 2401 "B" Henry, Hays, KS 67601. (32-33)

ROOM FOR RENT 28

GIRL WANTED to rent room without board, $80/month, bills paid. Close to campus. No pets. 539-8608. (271f)

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Ending for sheep or seven
5 Table leaving
8 Venomous snakes
12 Away from the storm
13 Pooch with no pedigree
14 Garner
15 Kind of aircraft
17 Frog genus
18 Hungarian wine
19 Black-board adjunct
21 Depend
24 Expel, once
25 "One of Those Things"
30 WWII org.
33 American humorist
34 One of the Churchills
35 Unrefined
36 Extinct New Zealander
37 Unique thing
38 Swiss capital
39 "There ought to be a—"
41 Remain
43 Laud
46 Range or scope
50 Decimal units
51 Beach find
54 TV comedy
55 Onassis
56 Ceremony
57 Stockings
58 Ode topic?
59 Bambino for one
DOWN
1 Kind of food?
20 Hurry
2 Bread spread
3 Tap trouble
4 Leave
5 Wood sorrel
6 Seek office giver
7 Shade
8 Tapestry wall hanging
9 Vacation choice
10 Window section
11 Practice for the ring
16 Soap ingredient
42 Kind of residue
43 Chief god of Memphis
44 San—Italy
45 Jacob's brother
47 New York canal
48 Italian noble house
49 Equal
52 Make a boo-boo
53 Hebrew letter

22 Bank's offering
23 Town in Belgium
25 Fruit preserve
26 Japanese vegetable
27 Ocean routes
29 Small pie
31 Common value
32 Beard on grain
34 Farm breeders
38 Proverb
40 River to the Oise
42 Kind of residue
43 Chief god of Memphis
44 San—Italy
45 Jacob's brother
47 New York canal
48 Italian noble house
49 Equal
52 Make a boo-boo
53 Hebrew letter

CRYPTOQUIP

DSK EJZO, AXEO UYNK-
UYEE KHDSZNXND AKHD
UYDDM DJOYM
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: A CLASSIC ODE TO OUR FECKLESS, DO-NOTHING RULER: "IDLES OF THE KING."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals B

Uncle admits to killings of Missouri farm family

By The Associated Press

MARSHFIELD, Mo. — Police investigating the killings of seven members of a rural family turned their suspicion from a slain 14-year-old to his wounded uncle after learning that the boy was left-handed while the murder weapon was found in his right hand, officials said Tuesday.

A Missouri Highway Patrol investigator said the uncle, James E. Schnick, admitted during a two-hour interrogation Monday that he was responsible for the shootings on the morning of Sept. 25.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's a confession," Sgt. Tom Martin said. "He told us he did it."

Schnick, 36, of rural Elkland, barefoot and wearing bib overalls and a T-shirt, was taken to court Tuesday on charges that he murdered his wife and six other relatives.

Schnick shook while he stood on crutches before Webster County Associate Circuit Judge Daniel Max Knust, but quietly answered "Yes, sir," when the judge asked if he understood the seven first degree-murder charges filed against him Monday.

Earlier, Schnick had claimed that he killed his nephew, Kirk Buckner, in a struggle after the youth killed Schnick's wife, Julie,

30. The Schnicks' two children were unharmed.

Deputies then went to the Buckner farm, about five miles away, and found the bodies of Kirk's mother, Jeanette, and three brothers, Dennis, 8, Timmy, 6, and Michael, 2. Later, Kirk's father, Steve Buckner, Mrs. Schnick's brother, was found dead along a road between the two farms.

Schnick was wounded, and police found a gun in Kirk's right hand.

Officials said Tuesday that suspicion turned from Kirk to his uncle after they learned that Schnick's wounds were minor, and that the teen-ager was left-handed.

Webster County Sheriff Eugene Fraker said there also were questions about how the gun ended up in Kirk's hand after he suffered the bullet and stab wounds that killed him.

"It's pretty hard to pick up a gun when you're dead, in either hand," the sheriff said at a news conference.

Fraker said no single piece of evidence led authorities to charge Schnick, although several things had emerged in the 10 days since the killings.

"Daily it became more doubtful that our first assumption was correct," said Fraker, who earlier had said authorities were "as sure as we could be" that Kirk Buckner was the killer.

Schnick was hospitalized for four days after the shootings. Fraker said the first real indication that he might be a suspect came when officials found out more about the gunshot wounds he suffered.

"His wounds were not nearly as serious as we were led to believe," the sheriff said. "At the time we thought they were life-threatening."

Fraker said an abdominal wound was superficial, but a leg wound caused swelling that resulted in Schnick being shoeless and on crutches in court.

Webster County prosecutor Don Cheever said at the news conference that it was possible Schnick's wounds were self-inflicted.

Another factor that troubled investigators, Martin said, was how Kirk could have moved the body of his 250-pound father and then wrestled with the 190-pound Schnick.

"He was a frail, 90-pound boy," said Martin. "That's just one of the things that bothered us."

Cheever and Fraker would not give details on the events surrounding the shootings. They said they had solid information on a motive but would not discuss it.

Job seekers get help Workshop to prepare students

By Brett Hacker
Collegian Reporter

Job seekers will get help in landing that first job through a free workshop co-sponsored by K-State's Career Planning and Placement Center, Plymouth division of Chrysler Motors, and Business Week Careers magazine.

Students can get help in resume writing, interview techniques, how to sell yourself to employers and dressing for success.

The sessions are planned for 8:30 a.m., 10:30, 1:30 and 3:30, Thursday in Room 212 in the Union, said J. Bruce Laughlin, director of the Career Planning and Placement Center.

"Part of what will be presented will be a humorous video titled 'How Not to Get a Job' which I think will attract quite a little bit of attention," he said. "It's a kind of do's and don'ts situation."

Participants will also receive a career search workbook and resume guide.

The presenters of the workshop, three human-resource professionals, will be in the Union today to give out preliminary information about the workshop. They are also making themselves available to talk to clubs, societies or classes.

Laughlin said the presenters are young professionals — people who have had quite a bit of experience of their own in learning about job seeking. He said as a group, they are young enough to relate very well to college age students.

He said he thinks Chrysler sponsors these workshops "in part as a public relations activity, and I am sure a certain amount of advertising is involved, secondarily however."

"One of the things we tried to make clear to them when we were negotiating to host this originally was that we did not want it to be a commercial venture, and I am sure they're aware of that. They will be talking in terms of benefits to the student — not in terms of trying to sell cars," Laughlin said.

This is the first time this program has been hosted at K-State, he said. The University is only one of two schools in Kansas to host the workshop, the other being Ottawa University.

Workshop presenters travel in teams throughout the country, Laughlin said. This year, workshops will be presented on 120 campuses nationwide.

The workshop is being offered in time to help prepare K-State's December and June graduates for interviewing, which began on campus Oct. 1, he said.

Laughlin said the same material will be covered in all four sessions, thus giving students the flexibility of fitting in one of the sessions between classes and getting the full benefit of the workshop.

Due to the more competitive job market, more importance is placed on job-seeking skills now than was 10 years ago, he said.

It is a new trend all over the country to help prepare people to go out and seek jobs, Laughlin said.

"We (universities) have come to the reality that we can't do it all ourselves — there is simply too much work to be done," he said. "We have changed our style somewhat in that we try to personally present all of the good information we can, but we welcome other professionals — assuming they have adequate credentials — to come on board and help out too."

American Heart Association
WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

Wichita Family Planning Inc.
Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services
Free Pregnancy Testing
Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

Memorial Hospital Auxiliary
presents
Pumpkin Patch 14
Friday, Oct. 9, noon-8 p.m.
Saturday, Oct. 10, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.
at
Cico Park
Manhattan, KS

Marie's Costumes
Rental Costumes for all Occasions
Ball Gowns—Tuxedos
Wedding Gowns
October Hours
M-S 10-6, Thurs. 10-8:30, Sun. 1-4
1631 Humboldt
539-5200

NON-TRADITIONAL WOMEN STUDENTS:
A Support Group For You, the Transitional Woman
Support, information, coping tips, direction, self-help, and other women like you.
Wednesdays, 3:30-4:45 p.m. (starting Oct. 14)
Call Joyce, at the Counseling Center, at 532-6927

STRESS
Not Managed Adequately Will Often Be Transformed To Physical Illness
(50-80% of all illnesses are closely associated with and perhaps even caused by excessive and/or poorly handled stress.)
LEARN TO MANAGE YOUR STRESS
CALL 532-6550
Lafene Mental Health Center

NEW CURLS
A change of hair-like changing a dress. Instant long hair without growing pain.
Only at
TINA'S Studio 32
FOR HAIR
776-8830 Candlewood

Midnight Madness is coming October 14

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

Walt Disney's CLASSIC
SLEEPING BEAUTY
Walt Disney's enchanting classic tale of a young princess who meets and falls in love with a handsome prince and is put into a deep sleep by the evil witch Maleficent. The only one able to bring her out of the spell is the handsome prince.
SATURDAY, 2 p.m. Forum Hall
& SUNDAY, 2 & 7 p.m.
Forum Hall

STREETWISE
TODAY, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall & TOMORROW, 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre and 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall.
Unrated.

All films are $1.75, except matinees—shown Saturday, 2 p.m. & Sunday 2 & 7 p.m., $1.50
KSU I.D. required.

Let's Talk About It . . .

SELECTIVE ADMISSIONS POLICY

Guest speakers:
Veryl Switzer; Asst. Vice-Pres. Minority Affairs
John Flemming; Asst. Director of Admissions
Tim Balfour; Admissions Representative
Thursday, Oct. 8
NOON
Union Catskeller
k-state union
upc issues & ideas

HORSEPACKING
in the beautiful Ozarks . . .
OCT. 24-25
Sign-up begins today!
Oct. 7—K-State students only.
Oct. 8-20—Sign-up open to all!
COST: $35 which includes trail horses, and 3 meals.
k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

It will make you feel really funny!
Paramount Pictures Presents
Smoke
Cheech and Chong made their film debut in this riotous rock-n-roll comedy. Their humor keeps their spirits high and leads them to an outrageous finale at L.A.'s Roxy Theatre.
Rated R.
FRIDAY and SATURDAY, Midnight, Forum Hall.
k-state union
upc feature films

SPACEBALLS
The outerspace comedy written, produced, directed by and starring Mel Brooks.
Rated PG.
FRIDAY and SATURDAY, 7 & 9:30 p.m., Forum Hall

College Crusade

Luis Palau brought his message to students, soldiers and area farmers Wednesday night in Ahearn Field House. See Page 7.

Weather

Partly cloudy this morning, becoming mostly sunny during the afternoon, high in low to mid-70s. Mostly clear tonight, low in low to mid-40s.

The K-State volleyball team defeated WSU Wednesday night in Council Grove and saw another entry in the 'Cat record book. See Page 11.

Thursday
October 8, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 33

Kansas State Collegian

Refugees' escape hindered

Death toll estimate increases to 100

By The Associated Press

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — Doomed refugees from a sinking boat thrashed wildly in bloody water to fend off more than 40 frenzied sharks, but officials flying overhead could do nothing to save them, authorities said Wednesday.

Estimates of the number of people killed Tuesday when the overloaded boat sank ranged from 70 to more than 100. Thirteen bodies were found Wednesday.

A Civil Defense official said the boat's motor exploded.

Survivor Eddy Ventura said 168 Dominicans crowded onto the old 50-foot wooden boat about 4 a.m. Tuesday. They each paid $300 to $500 to be smuggled 100 miles across the shark-infested Mona Channel to Puerto Rico, the most prosperous U.S. commonwealth.

"Most of those who made the trip were women, and hardly anyone knew how to swim," said Ventura, 39. He said he floated 3 1/2 miles to shore clutching an empty gasoline tank.

Eugenio Cabral, civil defense director of the Dominican Republic, said recovery operations would continue Thursday when bodies of victims who sank or were attacked by sharks probably would begin to surface.

"That takes about 48 hours," he said. "I expect that between today and tomorrow, bodies will begin appearing in large quantities."

By Wednesday afternoon, 32 people had been rescued, said hospital officials in Nagua and Cabrera on the northeast coast of this Caribbean nation.

Cabral put the number of passengers at 100-150 and said about 30 people probably made it to shore but fled to avoid arrest.

■ See DEATHS, Page 13

LA earthquake site declared disaster

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Southern California received a disaster declaration Wednesday from President Reagan, while earthquake recovery efforts gained momentum with the announcement that several schools would reopen.

Meanwhile, officials of communities throughout the Los Angeles area continued to add to their estimates of damage wrought by the Oct. 1 earthquake, which measured 6.1 on the Richter scale, and by a large aftershock Sunday.

The quake and aftershock, both centered about 10 miles east of downtown Los Angeles, killed seven people and damaged more than 10,600 buildings.

Reagan's declaration of a major disaster ordered federal aid for temporary housing and opened the way for grants and

■ See QUAKE, Page 14

As paramedics place Kramer's leg in a splint, Sue McMillan, junior in apparel and textile marketing and the driver of the vehicle, is consoled by Ken Snook, junior in fine arts. Kramer is the sixth pedestrian to have been hit by a car in Manhattan since the beginning of September.

Staff/Andy Nelson

Kathy Kramer, sophomore in business administration, is comforted by Mary Gleissner, sophomore in business administration, after she was struck by a car Wednesday morning while trying to cross Mid-Campus Drive near Kedzie Hall. Kramer was taken to The St. Mary Hospital where she was treated and released.

Sophomore 6th pedestrian hit by vehicle

By Janel Swanson
Agri/Business Editor

Kathy Kramer, sophomore in business administration, became the sixth pedestrian to be struck by a vehicle since Sept. 1 in the Manhattan area.

Kramer was injured Wednesday while crossing Mid-Campus Drive between Kedzie Hall and the Union at about 10:20 a.m. She was transported to The Saint Mary Hospital and treated for bruises and abrasions before being released Wednesday afternoon.

"The pedestrian was crossing the street and the two of them (the car's driver and Kramer) both hesitated at the same time," said Oscar Morales, senior in pre-medicine and witness of the accident. "I guess they just misread each other's expression."

The driver, Sue McMillan, junior in apparel design and textile marketing, said she had just passed a bicyclist before she struck Kramer.

"The driver of the car said she had been following a bicyclist who was in the center of the road, and then she decided to pass it," said Cpl. Andrew Amaro of the KSU Police Department.

Both Amaro and Morales said they did not find a bicyclist at the scene.

"That is something we're still looking into. This is still under investigation," Amaro said.

Also since Sept. 1, three bicyclists have been struck by vehicles.

One of those bicyclists, William Everett, senior in social work, is still rehabilitating.

"I still have a deep bruise on my left leg and had about 35 stitches in my shoulder," he said.

Everett was struck by a car at about 5 p.m. Sept. 28 at the intersection of 6th Street and Poyntz Avenue.

"Right now I'm worried about the long term effect on my neck and shoulder. I'm still in physical therapy and will be for probably another week," he said.

Civil rights group speaks out against Bork nomination

By Cindie Baldwin
Collegian Reporter

The American Civil Liberties Union said Wednesday it had "no other alternative" but to speak out against the nomination of Judge Robert Bork after an extensive review of Bork's speeches over recent years.

ACLU of Kansas President David Gottlieb and Robert Littrell, Manhattan attorney and Kansas representative to the national board of the ACLU, both gave their views on Bork's nomination at a news conference at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday at City Hall.

Littrell said the ACLU had "great reservation" to speak out against Bork, but knew it had "no choice."

On Aug. 29, the National Board of Directors of the ACLU changed a 50-year policy which stated that the ACLU would not endorse or oppose any candidate running for elected or appointed office.

This policy was changed because of the "highly controversial" nomination of Bork to the Supreme Court.

"ACLU is not here to advocate someone else for nomination," Littrell said. Instead, he hopes there will be another candidate who will have "less radical" views than Bork.

"There are hundreds of people who qualify who don't carry all kinds of baggage that Bork carries," Gottlieb said.

The main concern of the ACLU was Bork's opinions on privacy, civil rights of women and minori-

■ See ACLU, Page 8

Kansas fulfills initial conditions in effort to acquire super collider

By Staff and Wire Reports

Kansas is one step closer to landing what Gov. Mike Hayden calls the nation's biggest economic bonanza.

A proposal to locate a superconducting super collider in Kansas was sent to the Department of Energy last month and has passed its first obstacle by meeting the government's primary qualifications, said Tom Unruh, staff member of the project office in Topeka.

Analysis

Some of the major qualifications included:

- keeping the location of the collider completely in the United States;
- meeting the land size and configuration requirements set by the government;
- total absence of land to the federal government for land acquisition;
- sufficient availability of electrical power and industrial water;
- and a lack of environmental impact on the area in which it is to be located.

A few of the proposals did not make it past the first qualification of being located entirely in the United States, Unruh said.

"One proposal located it (the collider) half in New York (state) and half in Canada," he said. Another proposal located it on the moon.

Kansas' proposal locates the $4.4 billion super collider on a 7,863-acre tract in Osage County near the Pomona Reservoir, south of Topeka. The collider funnels charged particles through a circle 53 miles in circumference. This makes it the world's largest subatomic particle accelerator, designed to provide 20 times the atom-smashing power available now.

Accelerators, such as the collider, are used to study ion-atom collisions that separate the most tightly bound electrons, said Basil Curnutte, professor of physics.

Curnutte works with the University's tandem Van de Graaff accelerator in Cardwell Hall.

The higher the available particle energy, the easier it is to break the atomic bonds between the tightly bound subatomic particles, he said.

The difference in energy between current sources and what the new accelerator could provide would be like the difference between sitting down and playing a piano and dropping it off a 10-story building, he said.

"If you want to see how it works, you sit down and play it," he said. "If you want to see what it is made of, drop it off the building."

He said the super collider will allow further study on basic particles.

The Kansas Legislature appropriated $300,000 for the state's effort to influence the Department of Energy to accept the site. The state is also prepared to spend another $60 million in four fiscal years to make necessary improvements in the area, Hayden said.

The project would generate additional tax revenue many times that expense through the jobs it would bring to Kansas, the governor said. It is estimated that it will create 4,500 jobs during the construction stage and 2,500 jobs after it goes into operation.

If the collider is built in Kansas, it will attract individuals technically skilled in that field, Curnutte said. "It would raise the opportunity for people to become aware of the technology available to them," he said.

He said the University's accelerator uses a lot of the same technology as the super collider, but it does not create the same level of energy.

Curnutte said that if the collider is built, it can be expected to have a few problems.

"When you strain the limits of technology there will be some puzzles that come up," he said.

Hayden said the state is going after the collider with a very strong proposal. He added that he was confident about the state's chances of landing the project.

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Pony searches for 'good life'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — A Shetland pony named Butch, perhaps in search of the good life, wandered through the affluent neighborhood of Belle Meade until police caught up with him and took him to City Hall.

"We ought to start the Belle Meade mounted patrol," said City Manager Robert Thomas. "I wonder how a radar gun would work on horseback?"

Police found the pony walking down a busy street during rush hour Monday morning in Belle Meade, which is part of metropolitan Nashville but has its own police force.

The pony spent the afternoon tethered behind City Hall, munching grass until its owner came to claim it.

"It's our pony, I blush to admit," said Dr. Henry Howerton. "He probably got lonely."

Howerton said the family has had Butch for about five years, but he didn't know how old he is.

"He's old enough to know better, though," Howerton said.

Whistling could result in jail

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. — Train engineers who toot their horns without adequate cause while rolling through town could go to jail under a new ordinance that goes into effect later this month.

City Council members adopted the ordinance 4-3 after they said they received numerous complaints from residents in this central Pennsylvania town of 9,600.

"The engineers of the locomotives have probably gone ape," said Councilman Joseph J. Nevins. "Instead of a toot-toot, they blew it quite a long period of time."

A Conrail spokeswoman declined immediate comment on the ordinance, which was passed Monday and is to take effect Oct. 25.

The ordinance restricts the sounding of train whistles at crossings except when visibility is hampered by poor weather and when an engineer believes there is imminent danger, such as a vehicle that does not appear to be stopping, said Nevins.

The ordinance carries a maximum penalty of a $300 fine and 90 days in jail sentence.

City seeking return to glory

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. — The 99-year-old Elms Hotel, which catered to such personalities in the past as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman and Al Capone, will be the centerpiece of a project to return Excelsior Springs to its glory days as a mineral water attraction.

City officials announced Wednesday that the hotel will be more than doubled in size in the 15-year, $50-million project.

KDHE fines Topeka company

TOPEKA — The Kansas Department of Health and Environment has fined a Topeka company $500 for allegedly violating solid waste disposal regulations, the agency announced Wednesday.

The fine, assessed against Champney Wrecking Company, is the maximum allowed by law. The fine stems from an April incident in which oil was found in two holes at a site the company owned in northeast Topeka, KDHE spokesman Bob Moody said.

Summit conference to be set

WASHINGTON — A date for a summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will be set while Secretary of State George P. Shultz is in Moscow for meetings Oct. 22-23, a visiting member of the Soviet Politburo said Wednesday.

Viktor P. Nikonov, the official in charge of Gorbachev's drive to rejuvenate Soviet agriculture, talked to reporters after meeting privately with Reagan. He said he brought the president an oral message from General Secretary Gorbachev but did not say whether the message discussed the summit.

But he said the message was "very positive" in content and told reporters the summit "is a subject not only of concern to press men, it is of concern to the entire world."

Asked if Gorbachev had suggested a date for a summit, he said, "The final date will be determined at the time Secretary Shultz is in Moscow."

Man held for murder trial

WICHITA — A woman testified Tuesday her ex-husband admitted he strangled a 15-year-old Wichita girl and that he gave her the dead girl's bracelet as a birthday present.

The former wife of Martin Priest testified he strangled the girl with panty hose after she resisted his advances.

Debra Yoder, Hutchinson, said Priest also told her authorities didn't have enough evidence to convict him of killing Katrina Cheely.

Following preliminary hearing testimony Tuesday, Sedgwick County District Judge Ray Hodge ruled there was enough evidence to hold Priest for a Dec. 7 trial on the first-degree murder charge.

Prisoner remains on strike

LANSING — Four more inmates who went on a hunger strike at the Kansas State Prison last Thursday have begun eating again, a prison spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman, Bill Cummings, said only one prisoner was still refusing food. He was one who began his protest after the eight original hunger strikers started on Thursday. Cummings would not disclose the demand of the remaining striker.

Demands from the original eight included requests for transfers to other states and changes in television privileges.

Three of the prisoners began eating again on Friday, another on Sunday. Cummings said the prisoners were offered three meals a day during the strike and were monitored by medical personnel. He said no adverse effects were noted.

Expert urges eating of game

HARARE, Zimbabwe — A United Nations expert Wednesday urged African governments to use wild animals for food instead of reserving them for foreign tourists to see.

"All forms of wild animals have potential as sources of meat from frogs to rodents to large animals and birds," said Emmanuel Asibey, a Ghanaian representative of the Food and Agriculture Organization.

He spoke before 450 delegates from 22 countries on the second day of the eight-day conference on wildlife management in Africa.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB members need to sign up for Oktoberfest on the first floor bulletin board in Shellenberger Hall.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Acker 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at K-State are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students, and the awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTERVIEW applicants for the 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT FILING FORMS are now available in the Student Government Association office in the Union. Filing deadline is Oct. 20.

CAREER COUNSELING CENTER "Making a Major Decision — Career Life Planning Independent Study" for one hour credit. Contact the Counseling Center, 532-6927, for details. The course begins this week.

ICAT sign up for the road trip to Missouri in Ahearn 101. Cost is $25 for ticket and transportation.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

FINANCE CLUB meets at 10 p.m. in Union outside of the Cats Paws. Meeting only for people going to Chicago.

GAY AND LESBIAN RESOURCE CENTER meets at 7:30 p.m. at St. Francis Campus Ministries, 1402 Legore Lane, for party planning.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF BLACK ENGINEERS meets at 6 p.m. in Durland 161.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207.

SOCIETY FOR ADVANCEMENT OF

MANAGEMENT meets at 6:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

SOCIETY FOR ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT meets at 7 p.m. in Union Little Theatre. A representative from the Federal Reserve will be the speaker. All persons going on the Dallas trip should be present.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206.

MASTERS IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION will have an informational meeting at 4 p.m. in Union 207.

1988 PRE-MED APPLICANTS meet with the KU Medical School Admissions Dean at 7 p.m. in Union 213.

ICHTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 9:30 p.m. at Danforth Chapel to carpool to Westview Community Church. Richard Beach will be the speaker.

WILDLIFE SOCIETY meets at 7 p.m. in Acker 221.

ILLUMINATING ENGINEERING SOCIETY meets at 6:30 p.m. on the east side of Dillard's.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 3 p.m. in Shellenberger 110 to begin baking for Oktoberfest.

AG AMBASSADORS meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

PI SIGMA EPSILON PLEDGES meet at 6 p.m. in Union 203.

LAFENE STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE meets at 3:30 p.m. at Lafene 131.

ROCK CLIMBING CLUB meets at 8:15 p.m. in Union 207.

EATING DISORDER SUPPORT GROUP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 204.

FRIDAY

FINANCE CLUB meets at 6:30 a.m. in front of Calvin Hall for a field trip to Kansas City.

619 N. Manhattan
Last Week
to Party
Under the Stars!

Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

Auntie Mac's Parlor

TONIGHT
Well Drinks
$1.25

Draws

75¢

Pitchers

$2.25

FRIDAY
FREE
HORS
D'OEUVRES

Now Serving
SANDWICHES

616 N. 12th 539-9967

Coming Soon!!
Opens Oct. 16th
Costume Alley
Costume starting at under $10
•Make-up/Colored Hairspray
•Wide variety of costumes
•Rubber Mask
Open Mon-Fri. 1-8 p.m., Sat. 10-6 p.m.
Located in the alley behind Brothers

CHILE RELLENOS
In English a Chile Relleno means a "stuffed pepper." Ours is a mild Anaheim pepper stuffed with cheese, breaded, & then deep-fried. We then smother it in chili sauce & melt Cheddar cheese on top. Mmmmm! A lettuce salad and a side of rice, sour cream, & salsa finish the meal. This is a truly special taste treat—only at PINATA!
1219 Blumont
(913) 539-3166
Open Daily
11 a.m.

1/2 PRICE SWEATERS
Every sweater in stock is now 1/2 off its original price
(one week only)

HAPPERS
FAMOUS LABEL FASHIONS FOR LESS
Hours
Sunday 1-5
M-F 10-8
Sat. 10-6
331 Poyntz
Manhattan
945 Mass.
Lawrence

Attention:
Students, Faculty/Staff and Campus Departments

1987-88 Campus Directories on Sale
NOW

You'll need the directory to call friends, conduct campus business, use the coupons and yellow page ads, and refer to campus and city maps.

Buy your directory in Kedzie 103.

$1 for students (limit two with student I.D.) and $1.50 for non-students.

Academic probation figures total 1,580

By Alison Neely
Staff Writer

The word "probation" no longer instills fear in the hearts of students. In fact, K-State currently has 1,508 students on academic probation. That is 8.3 percent of the student body.

However, this number is not considered unusually high by the administration.

"I'm not surprised by that (number). Our academic standards are average when compared with other schools," said Michael Lynch, assistant vice president for institutional advancement. "The cumulative grade point average is 2.0, and we have an open admissions policy with a wide variety of programs."

To be placed on probation, a student must have a cumulative GPA

Officials 'not surprised' by number lower than 2.0. Individual semester GPAs may be above or below the 2.0 average but do not directly affect the probation status. Probation status is affected only if the semester GPA changes the cumulative GPA above or below 2.0.

Being placed on probation can be the result of several factors. Simply not studying is one reason, Lynch said.

Frequently, students are enrolled in courses where they have either not had the prerequisites or the particular major may require more of them than they can give, Lynch said. In the latter case, students are encouraged to re-evaluate their choice of major to determine if they should pursue a major which is more compatible with their knowledge and interests.

"A student may be on probation for as long as he or she is here, depending on the semester grades," said Patty Lee, records clerk in the registrar's office.

"I'm not surprised by that (number)."

—Michael Lynch

For a student with 19 or less hours completed, the GPA may drop up to three points below the average before probation is instituted, according to the Kansas State University General Catalog 1986-1988. As the number of hours increases, the number of points allowed below the average decreases.

"Students have a much better chance of getting off probation when they are freshmen or sophomores than when they are upperclassmen," Lee said.

A student who is dismissed for academic reasons and wants to continue the educational process can either sit out a semester or apply for reinstatement.

To be reinstated the student must apply for readmission. This is done through either the college in which they were last enrolled or another college. Each college has its own standards for reinstatement.

Academic probation has no effect on financial assistance.

Financial assistance is determined by the number of credit hours, said Lorene Dahm, student financial assistance administrative officer.

The minimum number of hours required for financial assistance minus the number of credit hours completed equals either a credit or a deficiency, Dahm said.

Each kind of financial aid has a different minimum number of credit hours required by the financial assistance department.

"For the Pell grant we require 12 credit hours but only nine (credit hours) for three-quarters time," she said, "and seven (credit) hours for students with a Guaranteed Student Loan."

Credit is built when a student completes more than the required number of hours for the semester. This credit is carried over each semester in case the student is short of credits at the end of a term.

In the same way, a deficiency is created if the student is credited with fewer hours than necessary for financial assistance. Deficiencies also accumulate each semester.

"A warning is issued to the student after the first semester of deficiencies. If more occur the next semester, the student goes on exclusion (from financial assistance)," Dahm said. "Appeals must then be made with reasons why the hours were deficient."

Faculty health care costs to rise

By Debbie Lyons
Collegian Reporter

More than 3,000 K-State faculty members will be affected when health care costs for state employees rise in 1988, a personnel services official said.

Single employees who had no monthly payment in 1987 will pay as much as $20 a month in 1988, said Jennifer Gehrt, manager of the employee benefits and records department. The monthly charge for dependents will increase 10 percent from $158 to $173 for Blue Cross-Blue Shield customers.

K-State employees may choose from Blue Cross-Blue Shield and the Health Medical Organization of Kansas. The HMO rates for dependents have increased from $108 in 1987 to $126 for 1988. The single employee rates are the same no matter what company is chosen.

A discount is given to non-smokers, which saves the employee as much as $10 a month, Gehrt said.

Deductibles will also increase under the new plan and instead of not having a deductible in many cases, employees may be paying as much as a $400 deductible.

A main reason for the increase is that state employee health care costs were higher. Hospital bills for state employees were 23 percent higher than similar groups statewide and 14 percent higher than the national average.

"These changes won't allow as much flexibility. Customers will have to choose a primary physician," Gehrt said. Some faculty members are upset because the new plan includes a 60-day waiting period before the employee is eligible, she said.

Formerly the waiting period was one to two months, depending on the employee's choice.

"There may be some problem recruiting (employees) if they have to wait for insurance," Gehrt said. Although there are no guidelines set yet, the waiting period may be waived in extenuating circumstances, said Gehrt.

"I'm not happy about paying higher rates and it will raise the health cost — especially for the lower-income employees. It will be a big chunk out of their pockets," Gehrt said.

Enrollment for the new program begins Oct. 26 and all eligible employees must register, even if they are covered by the current plan.

KELLY JO SMITH

THANKS FOR ALL THE LOVE
AND PRIDE FOR 20 YEARS!

LOVE,
Mom, Dad & J.T.

Landon still in hospital, listed as satisfactory

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Former Gov. Alf M. Landon remains hospitalized at Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center with no scheduled release date.

Landon's condition is listed as satisfactory. He is assisted in walking during daily physical therapy sessions, and his appetite remains good, family members said Wednesday.

SOUTHERN SUN
the TANNING CENTER

$2 tans

- COMPLETELY PRIVATE, CLEAN, SOUNDPROOF ROOMS
- FEATURING THE WOLF SYSTEM TANNING BEDS
- FEATURING WOLFF'S BELLARIUM "S" SUN BULBS
- MOST TANNING ACCELERATOR

Buy All You Want

776-8060 519 N. 12th
Must be used by Oct. 16 (next to Domino's)

Sunchase
SIXTH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS 1988

Breckenridge JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS — $154
Steamboat JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS — $159
Winter Park JANUARY 2-9, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS — $172
Vail/Beaver Creek JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS — $178

TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency

Never a dull moment.

The Station

THUR. BIG "C" NIGHT
(that famous mexican beer with a lime on top)

BIG "C" MEXICAN BEERS 99¢

DRINKS (ANY BRAND) - $1.50

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

CHIMES CONGRATULATES THE 1987 KSU HONORARY PARENTS

Dr. Tom & Garalyn Avery parents of Bob & Carey Avery
and salutes the nine finalists

Robert and Geraldine Cole
Nelson & Marilyn Galle
Dr. Frank and Marilyn Jordan
Raphael and Bessie Letourneau
Dr. Max and Penny Moss
Syd and Joline Rinard
Lewis and Janene Schneider
Carl and Lynda Thurow
James and Sandie Vader

VANDERBILT'S

$59.99

Compare to $79.95

LADY DINGO
No. 1 Best Seller

#7373 Genuine cameo leather foot with matching 10-inch leather like quarter. Wall toe and fashion heel! Stitched medallion. Pre-finished weather outsole! Makes you look great with all of today's fashions. Manufactured in Sizes: Narrow 7-9 & 10, Medium 4-11 & 12, Wide 6-9 & 10.

dingo

VISA DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100 MasterCard

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 8, 1987 ■ Page 4

American intervention in gulf justified

Terrorism warrants U.S. action

Recent events in the Persian Gulf have been receiving a lot of media attention, and not without justification. The situation in the gulf is serious and merits the scrutiny of the American people. Believe it or not, that includes Joe Student.

First of all, I'll bet my Jessica Hahn issue of "Playboy" that some of you just aren't really sure exactly where the Persian Gulf is located. Here's a quick geography lesson. First, figure out where Africa is. Bordering on the northeast part of Africa is a peninsula, which is separated from Africa by the Red Sea. This is the Arabian Peninsula, where Saudi Arabia is located. Continue northeast through Saudi Arabia and you've found the Persian Gulf. If you now travel clockwise around the gulf, you hit the countries of Kuwait (small country, small shoreline), Iraq (larger country, small shoreline), and Iran (still larger country, large shoreline). The gulf empties into the Arabian Sea which separates the Arabian Peninsula from Pakistan and India.

The problems in the gulf started about seven years ago, when the bordering countries of Iran and Iraq went to war. As is true in any war, each country has different versions of what started the war and why the war continues. Evaluation of the United States' involvement in the region doesn't require any judgment of the guilt or innocence of either country in starting the war. What it does require is that we look at how the war and the actions of its players have affected the United States and its allies.

Commentary

DOUG FOLK
Collegian
Columnist

Each country has attempted to cut off the other's export of oil through the Persian Gulf. This has resulted in the destruction of nearly 400 ships in the region from several countries including the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, France and Australia. These attacks by both sides cannot be ignored and justify intervention into this aspect of the war.

You may have heard some people try to compare the United States' presence in the Persian Gulf to Vietnam, or to our questionable policy in Central America. Upon analysis, however, there is little similarity. Vietnam, as well as Nicaragua, dealt with ideology. The idea, right or wrong, was to halt Communist expansion into the "free" world. The Persian Gulf is different.

The situation in the Persian Gulf has to do with state-sponsored terrorism. It has to do with the indiscriminate attacking of neutral commercial vessels in international shipping lanes. This is not about Yankees and Commies. In fact, the Soviet Union's interests in the gulf are similar to our own.

Although the United States has officially denied taking sides in the war, many have accused us of supporting Iraq, because of our reflagging of Kuwaiti oil tankers to provide them with U.S. protection through the gulf. Kuwait is an alleged ally of Iraq. Well, now I'm going to stick my neck out a little bit. If we are taking sides, then by all means side with Iraq. While Iraq should never be considered "the good guys," Iran can easily be considered "the bad guys."

Iraq is willing to comply with the United Nations' mandate for a cease-fire in the region. Iran has refused. As the world views photographs of the captured Iran Ajr, which was caught in the act of minelaying, and its cargo of mines, Iran claims the ship was carrying groceries.

Also, I don't know about you, but I get more than a little riled when I see my country's flag publicly burned, my president (as much as I disagree with his philosophies) burned in effigy and have his life threatened, and my nation called the "Great Satan." I also have a hard time forgetting the hostage crisis of 1980, especially in the absence of anything remotely resembling regret for the incident.

I'm not suggesting that Americans should blindly accept U.S. presence in the Persian Gulf on the word of our president. In fact, I wouldn't suggest blindly accepting anything that comes from this administration. But I do believe that, in this instance, our actions are very justifiable.

KU newspaper ignores reality of Aggie 'riot'

Any responsible reporter will affirm that sensationalistic coverage of an event is not one of the basic tenets of journalism, especially when that event has a decidedly negative impact on a community.

That's why it is especially surprising and frustrating to read the lead story in Monday's issue of the University Daily Kansan, the student newspaper at the University of Kansas. The headline reads: "Aggieville set for riot, part III."

What is this, an annual event a la Farm Aid? No, it's a blemish on Manhattan and K-State that must not continue.

It is ludicrous to believe or insinuate that such violence is condoned or even mapped out, as the headline implies. This is not a party—this is a violent melee that has already resulted in dozens of arrests and serious injuries.

A real party, huh?
The University community is only fortunate that no one has been killed in the previous two disturbances.

In defense of the Kansan, an otherwise respectable and award-winning newspaper, the story itself was not as irresponsible as the headline. It basically gave a preview of what law enforcement officials and business owners are doing to prevent another disturbance on Nov. 7, when K-State hosts KU in football.

What Kansan editors apparently don't realize is that KU has a vested interest in ensuring that another melee doesn't occur. After all, there were more KU students arrested last fall than K-State students. And another "riot" will make the entire state look bad, not just K-State.

By promoting the night of Nov. 7 as an inevitable "fun" free-for-all, the Kansan is doing its readers a great disservice. And for that, it owes its audience a retraction.

And K-State an apology.

Pat Robertson sending mixed signals to voters

Pat Robertson for president. You know, the television evangelist.

He shouldn't have too much trouble raising campaign funds, if the coffers of any of the other successful TV preachers are evidence. Look at the opulence of the PTL empire, pre-Jessica Hahn.

Robertson brings some interesting credentials to his presidential bid. He's the guy who says he has made lame people walk, stopped a hurricane with prayer and cured hemorrhoids. Does this mean he could heal the oh-so-ailing national deficit?

He also says he has some support for his bid for this nation's highest office. Never mind that he had to cut short the program where he announced his candidacy because of protesters. He has a better endorsement. God.

Yes, God told him to run for president.

A conservative, Christian evangelist like Robertson would be perfect as president. If this was a nation of conservative Christians, everyone would agree with Robertson that AIDS was sent by God to punish homosexuals and that there is only one theory of creation.

Unfortunately for him, this country has more diversity than that. It has gays, women who want to be fully equal to men, and other religions that have ideals just as high as those of Christianity.

This is one reason why there is a constitutional separation of church and state in this country: to keep any religion from controlling the political power structure. It helps ensure that everyone, whether they fall within a religion's belief structure or not, is protected equally under the law.

What is the difference between Pat Robertson and Jesse Jackson, the other evangelist in the race? Jackson has worked to supersede his purely religious thinking with more critical thinking. He has based his campaign on social equality for all people, as do the secular candidates in the race.

Pat Robertson has the right to run for president, as does any other legally qualified citizen. What he does not have the right to do is to further his religious beliefs, or those of any one religion, through the presidency of the United States.

Letters

Exchange ideas

Editor,

With great interest, I read Ann Iseman's article about K-State's foreign exchange student from New Zealand, Helen McGlone. In this article, McGlone is reported as saying that New Zealanders have a negative attitude toward the United States and that most of her friends go to Great Britain or other parts of Europe because of the United States' bad image. She further states that "President Reagan just doesn't seem under control, and his nice little statements are very annoying."

I am the one who is annoyed, and not solely because she made unfavorable comments about my country and my president. When given the opportunity, McGlone failed to present the prevailing issues so that the readers could try to understand her point of view. The reader is left begging the question: "Why do New Zealanders feel this way?"

Having lived and traveled to many different countries in the world, I always try to understand different perspectives. In a free society such as we have in the United States, everyone has the right to his own opinion. However, along with that opinion comes a responsibility to substantiate it as objectively as possible.

McGlone was shown as someone who is either unfamiliar with the issues or as someone who lacks the initiative to pursue them. I can always respect those I may disagree with as long as they can objectively support their view. Using the school newspaper in such a manner seems highly opportunistic by McGlone and highly unbecomingly by the University newspaper. The Collegian staff needs to dig into their subjects a little better, or edit the parts without an adequate explanation. What ever happened to who, what, when, where and why?

I believe that everyone can benefit from constructive criticism when it is conducted objectively and presented diplomatically. As some may recall, New Zealand refused support to U.S. naval ships while conducting naval maneuvers in the area. We were refused support because U.S. ships would not reveal whether they were carrying nuclear weapons. New Zealand is a self-declared nuclear free zone. The U.S. ships were refused against the backdrop of two key issues: Both the United States and New Zealand were members of a joint security agreement (SEATO), and New Zealand is protected under the United States nuclear umbrella. These are some of the issues that deserve further analysis.

I do agree with McGlone when she said that she needs more exposure to the world. Her comments demonstrated this lack of exposure. One thing I know for certain, if you don't present your side objectively, someone else will be glad to do the job for you.

Post Script: Ms. McGlone, when you criticize my president it's like insulting my sister. It's OK for me to do it, but unacceptable when outsiders try.

Frank Takacs Jr.
graduate in food science

Special thanks

Editor,

The K-State campus should be proud of the efforts made by numerous students, faculty and staff at the Little Apple Triathlon Saturday, Sept. 12, at Tuttle Creek State Park. Many participated — swimming 1/2 mile, bicycling 10.2 miles and running 3.1 miles. Others volunteered their time and/or resources to make the triathlon an enjoyable and safe event for the 250 participants involved.

Specifically, Deb Christie, instructor of physical education and leisure studies, chaired the swim phase. Numerous present and former students in both aquatics and first aid volunteered their time, as did several members of the physical education and leisure studies faculty.

Mike Buchanan, a former K-State student, from the Manhattan Parks and Recreation Department, is a co-sponsor and organized the team competition and the transition areas. Buchanan's volunteers included Roy Hunter's Leisure Studies class and several City of Manhattan employees.

Donna Miller chaired the bicycle portion of our event with assistance from the Riley County Police Department, members of REACT, and the Pottawatomie County Sheriff's Office.

Sandy Murphy, instructor of biochemistry, has chaired the run phase of the Little Apple Triathlon for the past three years. Sandy received volunteer assistance from CHIMES.

Dave Colburn, manager of the Pathfinder, sponsored the refreshments at the finish line and utilized staff from the pathfinder to certify bike helmets and inspect bicycle brakes.

Brenda Merryman, Durland Hall, provided Red Cross first aid assistance.

The Alpha Delta Pi sorority provided volunteer personnel to help with registration, organize heats, provide split times and park vehicles.

Julie Halfmann designed our logo, local Fish & Game officials (and others) provided boats, Ft. Riley Company Commander Donald Jones provided binoculars, and the Theta Xi fraternity provided bike racks. For the past four years Tuttle Creek State Park and the Corps of Engineers have been our hosts, and they increasingly become more generous in their support.

Recreational Services is proud to sponsor this event, but we would be the first to admit that without the help of these 150 individuals, we could not continue to program the Little Apple Triathlon each September. Thank you, everyone, for a job well done.

Joyce Halverson
KSU Recreational Services
assistant director

Letters to the editor may be brought to Kedzie 116 or mailed to the Collegian.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291-020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Campus Briefly

K-State artisan gets award

A K-State associate professor has received a Preservation Award from the Kansas Preservation Alliance for his involvement in the rehabilitation of the Weist Building in Manhattan.

Anthony Chelz, associate professor in environmental design, served as the artisan for a project to rehabilitate the original Weist structure built in 1884. He did graphic work and sign production for the building, tailoring the sign designs to the building itself.

"I like to create unique designs, things that are responsive to the building and its context," he said. "I like to create designs that are custom made — one-of-a-kind things."

The awards were given to ten owners of historic buildings in the state and to the 17 architects, contractors and artisans who worked on these buildings. Twenty structures were nominated for the awards.

University celebrates France

If it seems like gay Pari around campus this weekend, don't be alarmed — it's K-State's French Weekend.

Kansas high school French teachers and advanced students will be participating in an intensive language workout Saturday and Sunday.

Claire Dehon, professor of French and coordinator of the event, said the purpose of the weekend is to build language and hearing skills. Activities planned include lectures, movies on the French culture, dinner and lunch. Dehon said French will be spoken exclusively in all instances.

French Weekend is sponsored by the Department of Modern Languages.

Service honorees chosen

K-State's Distinguished Service Award recipients in agriculture have been selected for 1987.

Loreen Locke McMillan and Lawrence E. Schrader have been chosen based on their outstanding professional and public-service related contributions in agriculture.

McMillan has been coordinator of special projects for the Kansas State Board of Agriculture since 1984. She works cooperatively with all of the Kansas agricultural producer organizations and a variety of federal, regional and state agencies and organizations.

She received a bachelor's degree from K-State in home economics and mass communications in 1969 and a master's in home economics education in 1970.

Schrader, a 1963 graduate of K-state, has been the head of the agronomy department at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign since 1984. He has a doctorate from the University of Illinois and has been a consultant in areas such as genetic engineering and plant physiology.

Architecture series continues

K-State's Architecture From the Plains series continues Monday through Oct. 16 as Cabell Childress Architects of Denver brings their exhibit and presentation to the Chang Gallery in Seaton Hall.

The firm will make a presentation at 8 p.m., Wednesday, in the Big 8 Room in the Union. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

"The Cabell Childress Architects is a small firm which has a very strong concern for careful use of materials and for the relationship of each building to its physical and social context," said Eugene Kremer, professor of architecture.

The firm is one of six participating in the year-long Architecture from the Plains series. Other firms scheduled to participate in the series are from Iowa, Colorado, Missouri, Minnesota and Manitoba, Canada.

United Way drive begins

Campaign raised $62,000 in 1986

By Sally Neary
Collegian Reporter

Once again, K-State's faculty and staff have another opportunity to contribute funds to the annual United Way campaign.

"Last year, the K-State faculty and staff contributed nearly $62,000," said Cliff Schuette, chairman of the Campus United Way Committee.

He said the committee didn't set a money goal for this year, but he did say they hope to raise between $65,000 and $66,000.

Members of the campus committee are Schuette; Bobbie Flaherty, Conference Office; Sharon Hauck, Registrar's Office; Cheryl May, University Relations; Chester Peters, Retiree Representative; Art Thomas, Mortar Board; and Celeste Tillson, Payroll.

Schuette said faculty and staff contributions are received through payroll deductions or through checks or cash gifts.

Schuette said the United Way of Riley County assists 17 local agencies in providing vital community services through the contributions. Some of the agencies include the American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Crisis Center, Homecare Inc., Manhattan Emergency Shelter, Salvation Army and United Cerebral Palsy.

Schuette said the Riley County United Way goal is to raise $337,460. Eighty-nine percent of the money raised is allocated to various agencies participating in the United Way.

"The local agencies are set up to help people with various types of needs," Schuette said. "One of the benefits is to know that it (the money) is going to help people in Riley County."

"The United Way has seen a 28 percent increase in the number of people served by United Way agencies in the community."

He said that in 1986, 22,000 people — or about two-thirds of the community — benefitted from the United Way agencies. However, since 1983 there has been only a 21 percent increase in the budget.

"The agencies are operating as efficiently as they can," Schuette said.

In per capita giving, Manhattan rates 13 out of 16 Kansas communities. Manhattan gives $4.76 per person. Lawrence gives $9.07 per person, and Topeka donates $20.71 per person.

"Manhattan can do more," Schuette said.

he said. "Manhattan can improve in its giving to the United Way."

The campus campaign began Sept. 30 with a continental breakfast for about 120 United Way departmental representatives from the University who were asked to attend a training session and distribute an informational letter about the United Way and pledge cards to the employees within their department. The representatives are also responsible for collecting donations and returning the cards and money to the campus committee.

A videotape produced by the local United Way committee was also shown at the breakfast to illustrate the needs in Riley County.

"It gave the flavor that it could be your next door neighbor, or someone you know with one of these needs," Schuette said.

Former Miss America indicted in New York

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Bess Myerson, the former Miss America who rose to high city office, was indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday for allegedly using her position to influence the judge who was presiding over her boyfriend's divorce.

Myerson, 63, former city cultural affairs commissioner, was named in conspiracy, mail fraud and bribery-related charges for allegedly giving a city job to the judge's daughter in return for a reduction in the amount her companion had to pay his ex-wife.

Also named in the six-count indictment were Myerson's boyfriend, millionaire Carl "Andy" Capasso, and former state Supreme Court Justice Hortense W. Gabel, who presided over Capasso's divorce.

Capasso, 45, a former major city contractor, is serving a four-year federal prison sentence on an unrelated tax evasion conviction.

Gabel, 74, a judge since 1970, resigned from the bench in June after a city investigation charged she had a "secret understanding" with Myerson about her rulings in Capasso's divorce from his wife Nancy.

If convicted, Myerson would face a maximum 30 years in prison and fines of $513,000. The others each face up to 25 years in prison and fines of $263,000.

"I think this is a very sad case," U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani said at a news conference. "You can't help but feel real sadness, where you are alleging misconduct against, crimes involving, not only high government officials but members of the court."

Myerson's lawyer, Frederick P.

Hafetz, issued a statement saying she "unequivocally asserts her innocence."

"I am innocent of any wrongdoing," said Gabel, who was named judge of the year by the National Association of Woman Judges in 1986. Her lawyer, Michael Feldberg, said she retired primarily for health reasons, not the allegations against her.

The indictment alleged the trio's scheme not only defrauded the city in the hiring of Gabel's daughter, Sukhreet Gabel, but defrauded Capasso of $60,000 in temporary support payments as well as possible larger sums in the final divorce settlement for "the financial benefit" of Capasso and Myerson.

The indictment also charged that Myerson wined and dined the Gabel family during the summer of 1983 and Capasso picked up the tab.

Part of the scheme, according to the indictment, included numerous false statements to the parties and lawyers in the Capasso divorce, the news media and city officials, including Mayor Edward I. Koch, for 25 years a close friend and political ally of Myerson's.

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nauticus Towers—Aggieville

For Your Special
Moment Add
Something Unique

BALLOON
BOUTIQUE

The modern alternative to flowers!

401 N. 3rd Mon.-Sat. 8:30-5
539-0106 We Deliver

ROCKY FORD TAVERN

TONIGHT
OLD MILWAUKEE NIGHT
Pitchers $1.60
"It just doesn't get any better than this"
•NO DRESS CODE•
•NO COVER CHARGE•

NOW OPEN ON SUNDAYS
THE FINEST LITTLE TAVERN BY A DAM SITE
Rt. 5 537-3133

BUSHWACKERS

TONIGHT
All
Mixed
Drinks
$1.50

M.B.A./MACC
SEMINAR

Master of Business Administration
Master of Accounting

Are you interested in earning a MBA or MACC?
Great Career Opportunities!
High Starting Salaries!

Come to informational meeting
Thursday, Oct 8
4 p.m.—Union Rm. 207

K-STATE MEANS BUSINESS
For more information call 532-7190

Looking for Hope?

World renowned author and public speaker addresses the heart cry
of all Kansans
— and all Americans.

hear
Luis Palau

Thurs.-Sat.
7:30 p.m.
Sun. 4 p.m.

Yes, there is real hope.

October 7-11
KSU's Ahearn Fieldhouse
FREE ADMISSION

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1983

LIVE BAND
THIS FRIDAY
"THE HOUSEROCKERS"
NEW BAND
TONIGHT THE ORIGINAL
SDAZES
CHARLIE'S

1800 Claflin "The location is where you want to be.
The setting is where you need to be" 539-9619

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu,
Sigma Phi Epsilon, Off
Campus

Oct. 9: Sigma Sigma Sigma,
Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Marketing seminar says priority should be to 'satisfy' consumers

By Linda Huddleston
Collegian Reporter

Companies need to gear their production, marketing and advertising practices to meet consumers' wants and needs, two Scandinavian business consultants said Wednesday at a service marketing seminar in the Union.

"We are free to produce the products of our choice. But, it is only economically logical to satisfy the customer," said Christian Gronroos, one of the speakers. "To have a real service approach to business, you must understand the consumer."

The program, "A Service Approach to Business: The New Thinking in Service Marketing and Management," was presented by Gronroos, chairman of the department of marketing at the Swedish School of Economics and Business Administration, Nordic Service Institute Ltd.; and Evert Gummesson, a professor in management and marketing at the University of Karlstad, Sweden, and co-founder of the Stockholm Consulting Group.

"Service marketing is the major consumer attractor when the product itself doesn't differentiate one producer from the next," Gummesson said.

"Good service is not only to be able to take care of the normal activities, but also to be able to deal with the abnormal. If a business can do this, then it's got a good start on business-consumer relations," he said.

Gronroos said in a service company, every employee is engaged in the marketing performance of that company.

"The person who has the direct contact with the customer must realize the responsibility of satisfying that customer. Hard work from the rest of the company rests on the success of the main contact person," he said. "Customers pay for services, so they should be satisfied with them."

Gummesson added, "Advertising and sales promotion departments only involve a small part of the company, but service marketing involves utilization of resources in all parts of the company."

Both lecturers said the two most important elements of service marketing are accuracy and cooperation.

"Even if a company has one customer walk away unsatisfied, improvements can be made," Gron-roos said. "When companies perform perfectly, it is something to be proud of. However, consumers expect perfection, and several will tolerate nothing less."

Since service marketing is becoming a greater part of the United States' total economy, more knowledge about it needs to be disseminated, said Ray Coleman, director of the International Trade Institution.

"It's critical we not only have efficient service and marketing of those services in the United States, but also worldwide," Coleman said. "We feel very fortunate to be able to bring Gummesson and Gronroos to Kansas and have them share their knowledge with us."

More than 70 people attended the seminar.

Holton renovation tops Senate agenda tonight at 7 p.m.

By The Collegian Staff

Student Senate will consider several plans to renovate Holton Hall once again during their meeting at 7 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room.

A bill presented by Dan Owens, senior in economics, will go before Senate asking that student fees provide only $780,000 of the money used to renovate Holton Hall. Owens' plan indicates the rest of the money needed for the $1.069 million renovation would come from the administration through the Institutional Support Fee.

Senate Chairperson Michelle Benoit has also drafted a bill to accept the original $780,000 plan. Senate agreed to fund this money in 1981 when the renovation was proposed.

Benoit said there is also the possibility that the plan for student money to fund the entire $1.069 million would be reintroduced. Senate voted against this plan on Sept. 24.

"I don't know what will happen," said Benoit. She said that because of the requirement of a two-thirds majority vote any bill would be difficult to pass.

"I really hope this gets decided," Benoit said about the funding of the Holton renovation. "We need to get this done" to move on to other things, she said.

Other issues on the agenda for the Senate meeting include possible revisions in the by-laws and the Senate constitution.

Top 2 members of AIDS commission resign

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The top two members of President Reagan's AIDS commission resigned Wednesday, underscoring continuing turmoil within the panel that is supposed to file its first report in two months.

More than six hours after Dr. W. Eugene Mayberry's office at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., confirmed that he was quitting as chairman of the 13-member commission, the White House said Reagan had accepted the resignation with regret.

The brief statement also confirmed reports from several government sources that the president will elevate retired Adm. James D. Watkins, a former chief of naval operations, to the chairmanship.

The White House statement took no note of the departure of the panel's vice chairman, Dr. Woodrow A. Myers Jr., the Indiana state health commissioner. Myers announced his resignation shortly after Mayberry.

There was no word whether Reagan would name new members to the commission to replace Mayberry and Myers.

Reagan created the commission earlier this year to develop recommendations on how the government should cope with the growing epidemic of AIDS — acquired immune deficiency syndrome. The panel's makeup has been criticized for lacking medical specialists who deal with the fatal disease.

A spokesman for Mayberry, chief executive officer of the Mayo Clinic, said the doctor preferred not to comment on the reasons for his departure.

"For his own reasons, he just prefers not to elaborate," said spokesman Michael O'Hara.

The White House statement issued by presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan met with Watkins on Wednesday. It quoted the president as saying he was sure Watkins "will provide the leadership that is necessary for this commission to review fully all aspects of the AIDS epidemic."

The statement said Watkins expressed his willingness to devote full time to the commission, which has been without an executive director for nearly a month.

Myers told reporters in Indiana that he had talked with Mayberry before announcing his own resignation.

He cited internal bickering and inadequate White House support for Mayberry in particular and the panel in general as the reasons for his resignation.

"I'm not going to get into individual personalities, but the difficulties we experienced internally were severe," Myers said.

Three federal health officials told The Associated Press that Mayberry's departure, which spurred Myers to follow, came after he failed to obtain White House backing in commission member Dr. William B. Walsh, founder of Project Hope.

7 colleges to divide grant

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Seven Kansas colleges will divide U.S. Department of Education grants totaling nearly $2 million, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kansas, announced Wednesday.

The grants, under Title III of the Higher Education Act of 1965, are designed to improve academic quality while encouraging self-sufficiency.

The largest grant, $493,653, went to Donnelly College of Kansas City, Kan., while Allen County Community College in Iola got $404,677.

Other grants included Barton County Community College, Great Bend, $200,000; Cloud County Community College, Concordia, $199,649

EMR — What is it?
A revolutionary skin care system developed in Europe to help minimize: stretch marks, small scars, fine red lines, age lines, wrinkles & other minor skin faults. Also, programs for reduction of skin reddening & minimization of cellulite.

Call Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
Ask for the Skin Care Dept.

Crum's beauty college
512 poyritz avenue manhattan, kansas

776-4794

SHUTTLE SERVICE
for temporarily or permanently physically limited students

On campus, building to building transportation

Inquire by calling 532-6436

Students Are Welcome!

GREAT COMMISSION CHURCH

Statement of Faith:

We believe the Bible to be the inspired, the only infallible, authoritative Word of God.

We believe there is one almighty, perfect and true God: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, eternally coexistent personalities of the same essence.

We believe in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, in His virgin birth, His sinless life, His substitutionary death, His bodily resurrection, His ascension to the right hand of the Father and His personal return in power and glory.

We believe in the personality of the Holy Spirit, and in His ministry of convicting and regenerating sinful men, and indwelling, sealing and empowering believers.

We believe in the fall of man from the state of innocence in which he was created to one of total depravity in which he is devoid of spiritual life, and incapable, apart from divine power, of pleasing God.

We believe in the justification of the sinner by grace through faith alone.

We believe that the church universal is composed of all true believers and that its members should assemble themselves together in local churches for worship, prayer, fellowship and teaching with a view to being equipped to fulfill the Great Commission.

We believe in the bodily resurrection of the saved to immortality, and in the conscious eternal suffering of the lost.

10:30 a.m. Sundays
University Inn (17th & Anderson)

THE JEAN STATION
QUITTING BUSINESS SALE

20% off

Regular Priced Merchandise
ENTIRE STOCK INCLUDED
ALL SALES FINAL

AGGIEVILLE, MANHATTAN
1217 MORO

HOURS: 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Mon.-Fri. 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Sun.

Noritake Spectacular!

OUTSTANDING SAVINGS ON TOP-QUALITY FORMAL AND CASUAL DINNERWARE!

ROTHSCHILD 5-Pc. setting—

CARÉ DU SOIR 5-Pc. setting—

• SAVE $8 to $31 on PLACE SETTINGS

Select or add-on to your pattern of this world-famous dinnerware now during our sale of settings, sets and special-order open stock accessory pieces. There are worthwhile savings as well on Noritake crystal, casual glass and giftware. Be sure you take advantage of all these savings now during our big Noritake Spectacular.

Campbell's
Downtown 776-9067 Aggieville 538-1881

Use our Bridal Registry

HOLIDAY STYLE

Was there ever a moment so full of love, or a choice so important...

... That's why at Danenberg's Holiday Jewelers you'll find over three hundred styles to choose from.

DANENBERG'S Holiday JEWELERS

OPEN LATE TONIGHT

425 DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN 913-776-7821

InFocusThursday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 8, 1987 ■ Page 7

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

Audience members attend Palau's first college ministry since the University of Wisconsin, Madison in 1982.

Spreading the Word

Palau crusade emphasizes perfect souls

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

Palau says although there are many people with different problems such as divorce, AIDS and the farm crisis, each person has the opportunity to seek help through the love of Jesus Christ.

By Judy Lundstrom
Special Projects Editor

Luis Palau ended a five-year streak Wednesday night.

The 52-year-old Christian evangelist once again began a crusade on a college campus.

The last time Palau held a college crusade was at the University of Wisconsin in Madison in 1982. His reason for returning to the college scene: Today's students have an image of a perfect body, but not a perfect soul, he said.

"The University is not geared to the soul, the spirit and moral standards," he said during an interview Wednesday at the University Inn. "The emphasis is more on the intellectual and the physical aspects. I feel that every year there should be an event to give students a balance in their total lifestyle."

Palau, who was born in Argentina, moved to the United States at age 25 and attended Multnomah School of the Bible in Portland, Ore., where he now resides with his wife, Pat, and four sons. He conducted his first evangelistic crusade in Bogota, Colombia, in 1966, and has since conducted more than 120 crusades in nearly 50 countries. The Palau staff consists of 45 members across the continent.

While he usually ministers in large capitol cities with populations of one million or more, Palau said he gets just as excited over a city like Manhattan.

He said there were three reasons why he chose Manhattan.

"I was persuaded that Kansas State was a good reason for coming," he said. "I am always nervous when I speak to university students, but I then end up enjoying it and wishing I was there longer."

Another reason, he said, is Fort Riley.

"I have a real sense of duty to the military of America," he said.

The third reason is the farmers, he said.

"I felt a real sense of understanding and compassion for the farmers (for) whom, at the point of my invitation, the crisis was at its depth," he said.

Manhattan is small, he said, "but people are people." And no matter where he goes, Palau said he gets tired of questions about Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker.

"It's a national issue, because when they're short of news it fits well and it's a nice, juicy scandal," he said. "But I'm here to promote the Prince of Peace — I'm not here to promote me or promote evangelists, or even defend evangelists."

The failure of one couple in South Carolina is not going to destroy the character of Christ, he said.

Palau said a common misconception people have of the Bakkers is that they are evangelists.

"They are not evangelists, they are talk show hosts," he said.

Palau believes another talk show host who is misidentified as an evangelist is Pat Robertson, host of "The 700 Club" and the latest presidential candidate.

Palau added, however, that "Robertson's a fine person. I don't want to put him in the same league."

He said he doesn't like using the term "evangelist" because it has such a poor connotation. But, he said, the Rev. Billy Graham has lifted the term to higher credibility.

Palau has often been called a "Latin Billy Graham," a title he said he is honored to hold.

"I'm a personal friend of his," he said. "He opened the doors to Europe for us; he opened the doors to Australia for us; I owe him a lot."

Even so, Palau said, he does not try to copy everything Graham does. He said he has gotten away from some of the "churchy" things, using more upbeat music and fewer invocations and benedictions in his crusades.

Palau's crusades are geared toward the non-church people.

"The purpose is not to entertain the Christian, but to reach out to the one who still isn't committed," he said.

Palau said there is no way his ministry can be considered a cult.

"A cult usually is led by a forceful figure who draws attention to himself or herself and that tries to get the disciples to follow them and obey their rules, whereas my approach is the focus to follow Christ and not to follow man — precisely the very opposite," he said.

Palau's sponsors for the Manhattan crusade are a transdenominational committee made up of most of the Christian campus organizations and many local churches.

He said that when it comes to money, he has "always been up front."

"We always give away copies of balance sheets and budgets," he said.

"We let everybody come to our office

Staff/Jennifer Quist

ABOVE: Shawna Palmer, left, sophomore in hotel and restaurant management, talks to Brenda McHenry, senior in social work and crusade counselor after the first session of the Heart of America Crusade. LEFT: Jenny Stutesman, freshman in secondary education, joins in the singing at the opening of the crusade.

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

Palau delivers his message of "Hope for a Stressed-Out Heart Land" Wednesday evening was the opening session of his five-day area crusade.

See PALAU, Page 12

Property tax to rise

Regents propose buildings

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The interim Ways and Means Committee Wednesday agreed to recommend that the state's property tax be increased to finance construction of new buildings at state Board of Regents universities.

The proposed increase in the state mill levy from 1.5 to 2 mills would generate about $6.3 million under current appraisal, according to Sen. Gus Bogina, R-Lenexa, who is committee chairman.

The committee declined to increase the mill levy to allow the universities to purchase equipment for classrooms and laboratories, however.

Increasing the state mill levy for construction projects, which would require the approval of the Legislature, was the only substantial recommendation the committee made as it sought alternative forms of financing for the state's seven regents institutions.

The committee rejected proposals to allow the regents to issue revenue bonds or increase student tuitions to purchase what university officials say is badly needed equipment.

School officials have told lawmakers the state's regents schools need to buy and replace old equipment to keep the Kansas colleges competitive with other institutions.

The committee agreed that current level of funding for equipment was inadequate. But in failing to come up with an alternative source of financing for equipment purchases, the committee indicated that the current method of funding should be continued.

Kansas regents universities use general-use and restricted-use funds, such as research grants, for equipment purchases. Approximately $28.8 million was spent at the seven campuses on equipment and library acquisitions in the fiscal year of 1987, which ended June 30.

Sen. Paul Feleciano, D-Wichita, who supported a proposal to allow regents to issue revenue bonds, said the state's existing funding mechanism is not adequate to meet the growing needs of the seven campuses.

"We'll never get out of the rut we're in," he told committee members. "It's just not there, gentlemen. You have to be bold, you have to be innovative."

Rep. Jack Shriver, D-Arkansas City, said revenue bonds would provide the regents schools with a one-time infusion of cash, but that would not solve the equipment-shortage problem in the long run.

Sen. Merrill Werts, R-Junction City, said he opposed increasing student tuition to pay for equipment purchases. He suggested, however, that course fees be assessed to students who use equipment if that equipment has a relatively short life span, such as two or three years.

KCC offers proposal eliminating regulation of state trucking rates

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Kansas Corporation Commission has presented a proposal to eliminate all regulation of trucking industry rates in the state to Gov. Mike Hayden.

The proposal, outlined in an issue paper, was submitted to the Division of Budget along with the agency's budget in July. The commission had been studying the issue for several months, Steve Menaugh, a KCC spokesman, said Wednesday.

"We concluded that economic regulation does not serve the public interest, and that the cost savings of deregulation outweigh the possible harms," the KCC's issue paper said.

However, a representative for the trucking industry said the proposal concerned her, and she said she did not understand why it was being submitted.

"The commission hasn't contacted us," said Mary Turkington, executive director for the Kansas Motor Carriers Association. "We don't know what they're trying to correct."

Kathy Peterson, Hayden's press secretary, said the proposal is being considered by the governor and "has no other standing" among other requests for legislation.

"He has made absolutely no comment, pro or con, on it," Peterson said. "It was initiated by the KCC."

Currently, the commission has the power to specify minimum and maximum rates for motor carriers, and the agency regulates the entry of intrastate motor carriers into Kansas.

According to the issue paper, the KCC has become less restrictive in its regulation of the trucking industry, preferring to focus on safety and whether a carrier is "fit, willing and able" to serve when considering allowing them to operate.

"Lessened regulation has resulted in significant savings for Kansas shippers," the issue paper said.

However, Turkington said she questioned whether rates would go down if the industry was deregulation, and she said her group would be concerned about predatory pricing.

"Frankly, we'd really be concerned about such a move," Turkington said.

"Strict deregulation would maximize the responsiveness of motor carriers to market forces and increase competition," the KCC said in its issue paper. "Such competition would decrease shipping costs and improve service, especially to rural areas."

The report also recommends that if the state deregulates trucking industry rates, a greater emphasis should be placed on enforcing safety regulations.

"The commission will shift personnel from the rates section to safety programs and increase the number of investigator-inspectors to increase enforcement," the issue paper said.

ACLU

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

ties, freedom of reproductive choice and freedom of speech and the press.

Gottlieb said he opposed Bork's

"hostility to the traditional view of the role of the Bill of Rights." He said Bork's views would "cut across all areas of constitutional law."

Although the Senate Judiciary Committee voted 9-5 Tuesday against Bork's nomination, Gottlieb and Littrell still want to "keep up the pressure" on Kansas senators Nancy Kassebaum and Robert Dole to let them know that Bork is considered "a threat" to civil rights and liberties fought for in the last several decades.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

U.S. banks increase prime rate to highest mark since early '86

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Major U.S. banks raised their prime lending rates a half percentage point Wednesday to 9.25 percent, the highest level since early 1986 and a reflection of the broad pressure toward higher interest rates nationwide.

Citibank and Chase Manhattan — the nation's two biggest banks — were the first to announce an increase in the key rate. Other major banks followed suit.

The financial markets showed little reaction to the increase. Bond prices were higher, while the stock market saw-sawed throughout the day in reaction to Tuesday's record-breaking drop in prices.

The Dow Jones average finished the day up 2.45 points to 2,551.08, after a record 91.55 point plunge Tuesday.

The prime is the benchmark used by banks to set interest rates on a variety of corporate and consumer loans.

The latest increase, the fourth so far this year, will likely mean higher interest payments on mortgages, home equity loans, credit cards and other consumer debts. It also could slow future economic growth.

"It basically comes as no surprise," said Elizabeth G. Reiners, a money market analyst with the investment firm Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. "Banks have been under pressure to maintain profit margins following huge writeoffs for loan-loss reserves" for shaky Third World loans.

The increases also reflect the recent runup in credit market rates, which over the past year have pushed up banks' costs of borrowing money and paying interest on deposit accounts.

Economists have linked the upward movement to efforts by the Federal Reserve Board to tighten credit conditions, largely to stem the dollar's declining value and keep inflation in check.

The prime was raised to 8.75 percent from 8.25 percent on Sept. 4, in response to the Fed's decision to boost its discount rate, the interest charged to member banks.

The last time the rate was as high as the new level was in early March 1986, when it was lowered from 9.5 percent to 9 percent. The prime peaked at 20.5 percent in 1981.

While most economists said they expected another rise in the prime rate, some were surprised by the amount of the increase.

"It does appear to be relatively greater than the market cost of funds," said Ward McCarthy, chief financial economist for Merrill Lynch Capital Markets.

For instance, a one-month certificate of deposit carries an interest rate of 7.60 percent. A 1 1/2 percentage point spread between the one-month CD and the prime rate is usually sufficient to maintain comfortable profit margins for banks, he said.

"The banks were probably just looking for an additional increase in short-term rates," McCarthy said. "It's also a way of catching up to some of the Fed's tightening in recent months."

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Manhattan
Civic Theater
presents
Oliver!
October 9, 10, 15, 16
at 8 p.m.
October 17
at 2 p.m. & 8 p.m.
at
Manhattan Middle School,
9th & Poyntz
For ticket information
call 776-8591

Southwestern Bell
Telephone

Autumn Equinox
Sale
through Saturday Oct. 10

- Casual Clothing
summer & winter,
men's & women's
- Coats & Jackets
- Bicycles
- Bike Accessories
& Clothing
- Camping Gear

10-60% off

the PATHFINDER
OUTDOOR EQUIPMENT SPECIALISTS
1111 Moro Aggieville

THURSDAY
BREW
and BBAMB

1.50 MIXED
DRINKS
(ANY BRAND)

$1.25 BBAMB
BURGERS, BURGERS
AND MORE BURGERS,
$1.25 BURGERS, 5-11

KITE'S
BAR AND GRILL
619 N. 12th, Aggieville
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Home Cinema

We Are Worth Looking For...

NO Hassle Movie Rental

- Best Prices
- Best Selection (over 1500 titles)
- No Membership Fee
- Newest Releases

Come Check Us Out Behind Alco

South Addition—Village Plaza Shopping Center

Krystallos
"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

Alpha Delta Pi & The Ronald McDonald House would like to thank the following organizations for participating and sponsoring the 2nd Annual ΑΔΠ Softball Classique

1st Place-ΠΚΑ
2nd Place-ΑΤΩ
3rd Place-ΒΣΨ

Participants:	Sponsors:
ΦΚΤ	ΚΣ
ΔΣΦ	ΣΦΕ
ΛΧΑ	ΦΔΘ
ΦΚΘ	ΔΥ
ΒΘΠ	ΣΧ
ΑΚΛ	ΔΤΔ
ΠΚΦ	ΣΑΕ
Fiji	FarmHouse
Manhattan Parks & Recreation	KSU Recreational Services

Your contributions helped make this a huge success!!

GET WHERE YOU WANT TO GO.

You know how far you want to go. You have what it takes to get there. Now, put the degree you've earned and the opportunities you need together. Lead the adventure as a Navy officer.

As a Navy officer, you start with a leadership position in business management, engineering, law, personnel administration, systems analysis or one of many other professional fields. You gain the experience and responsibility it might take years to get in a corporation.

Earn a good salary and receive exceptional benefits including free medical and dental care, thirty days' paid vacation each year, and many tax-free incentives. Minimum qualifications require that a student be pursuing a B.S. or B.A. degree. Not more than 26 years old and a United States citizen.

For more information stop by and see our representatives at the Student Union on Oct. 13 thru 16, or call the placement office at Holtz Hall to set an appointment or interview on Oct. 14 or 16, or you may call TOLL FREE 1-800-821-5110 for more information.

NAVY OFFICER.

LEAD THE ADVENTURE.

Air Force grounds fleet of B-1 bombers

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Air Force on Wednesday grounded its fleet of 68 new B-1B bombers for a brief inspection of the planes' crew ejection system following a recent crash in which only three of six crewmen on the aircraft were able to escape.

In a statement, the service's Strategic Air Command said "this precautionary inspection is an outgrowth of the Sept. 28 accident" at a training range in eastern Colorado.

The inspections will require only about two hours per plane and are beginning immediately, meaning the planes will be returned to service quickly, SAC said.

"The Strategic Air Command is Inspection follows recent crash performing a precautionary, one-time inspection of each B-1B aircraft's emergency escape system prior to the aircraft's next flight," the statement said.

"Air Force maintenance personnel are performing the inspections ... and each aircraft will be returned to flying status upon completion of the inspection."

The Associated Press reported last week that the Air Force, in investigating the crash, had begun trying to determine why only three of the six crewmen on the plane ejected from the crippled aircraft.

Sources said at the time the Air Force was concerned because based on initial reports, it appeared that at least four and possibly all six of the crewmen should have been able to bail out safely.

The three who ejected escaped with minor injuries, but the other three went down with the plane and were killed.

The issue is a particularly sensitive one for the Air Force because when a B-1B carries six men instead of its normal crew of four, two of them are always going to face a more difficult time escaping a damaged plane. The B-1B carries four ejection seats for the four primary crewmen; extra passengers have to bail out through hatches in the plane's belly.

The B-1B that crashed was carrying six men because it was on a training flight and instructors were on board. The Air Force and Federal Aviation Administration have reported the plane apparently ran into a flock of birds during low-level flight practice, disabling two of the four engines and setting at least one of them on fire.

Despite the plane's crippled condition, the pilots managed to climb to an estimated altitude of about 15,000 feet — in theory more than high enough to allow safe ejection and parachuting.

The Air Force said no findings would be released until the crash investigation is completed.

The B-1B, the first long-range strategic bomber to be produced by the United States in more than 25 years, is manufactured by Rockwell International in El Segundo, Calif. It has a maximum speed of about 1,000 mph and a range of more than 7,000 miles, but is designed primarily to fly just below the speed of sound only 200 feet above the ground.

The Air Force is buying 100 of the planes for a total of $27.3 billion.

The B-1B is powered by four engines and is smaller than the aged B-52 but capable of carrying more bombs. It already holds a number of world aviation speed records for a plane of its size.

The B-1B and the radar-evading "Stealth" bomber, which has yet to enter production, are key components of the Reagan administration's military buildup. Both are designed to improve the Air Force's ability to penetrate Soviet border defenses in the event of a war.

State food products to be highlighted

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Kansas food products will be highlighted at grocery stores during the Oct. 14-20 "Celebrate Kansas Food" promotion, the Board of Agriculture announced Wednesday.

More than 500 retail grocery stores have received promotional material as part of the program, including banners, posters, shelf cards, balloons and buttons.

In addition, the Board of Agriculture has developed radio and television commercials that have been distributed to every Kansas station, according to a release issued by the board.

The promotion features more than 100 Kansas companies registered in the Board of Agriculture's "From the Land of Kansas" program.

The promotion is designed to increase consumer awareness of Kansas food products. Signs will be used to identify the "From the Land of Kansas" food items on the shelf.

Kansas-made products vary from cookies to baking ingredients, tofu to candy.

A survey of more than 1,000 customers and grocery store managers who participated in the May promotion showed that 72 percent recognized the "From the Land of Kansas" logo and 20 percent looked for it specifically.

Pilots admit falling asleep in air; 'strenuous' work schedule faulted

By The Associated Press

LONDON — British airline pilots on long-haul flights say their entire crews have fallen asleep at the controls because of strenuous work schedules, researchers report.

Under a 5-year-old confidential reporting program, one-third of almost 800 British pilots who disclosed problems affecting their performance mentioned a demanding work schedule and the fatigue it caused, said Roger Green and Roy Skinner of the Royal Air Force Institute of Aviation Medicine.

The researchers quoted a range of pilots — either flying alone or with a large crew, in helicopters, freight or passenger aircraft — who said they had nodded off while the automatic pilot did the flying.

Green, an aviation psychologist, and Skinner, a retired military pilot, said pilots on long-distance night flights complained most often about difficulty in staying awake.

Some specified being unable to sleep in noisy hotels between night flights; enduring long stopovers at congested airports, or becoming complacent in cockpits that are highly automated and where key chores become "unavoidably soporific."

Writing in the October issue of The Log, the British Airline Pilots Association monthly journal, the researchers quoted one pilot on a long-haul aircraft who said he and his crew were delayed unexpectedly for 12 hours at an airport.

"During the subsequent flight, because of the delay, all of us were extremely tired," the pilot wrote.

"During the cruise we all fell asleep, only to be woken by the Mach (speed) warning bell," he added. "At the constant power setting, the aircraft had slowly accelerated, causing the bell to ring. I estimated we were all asleep for about 20 minutes. Fortunately, we were between reporting points."

Another pilot was quoted as saying he fell asleep on an eight-hour flight that he boarded one hour after a 53-minute flight from another airport.

The researchers remove identifying details of such cases, including the kind of airplane involved and size of crew, from their published reports. In a telephone interview, Green said they had not totaled up the number of pilots who reported falling asleep.

Even if the crew is asleep, airline passengers are not in immediate danger, Green said.

"But it goes against the whole ethos of flying," he said. "The crew are there to deal with the unexpected. I would think nobody would say this is a satisfactory situation."

The Civil Aviation Authority, which regulates the British aviation industry, said it had several specialists who deal with pilot fatigue. "We don't wish to comment" on the research, said a spokesman, who declined to give his name.

The authority lays down a maximum that a pilot can work: no more than 50 hours a week and no more than 100 hours in 28 consecutive days.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Live Entertainment
Every Friday & Saturday
Appearing This Week
LITE 'n' LIVELY
9 p.m.-1 a.m.

University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Benefit Auction
for Heather Huntington
"Miss Rodeo Kansas"
Friday at 9 p.m.

Live Band Friday & Saturday
Mike Shaw & The K.C. Breeze

The Ranch SALOON
3 miles east of Manhattan on Highway 24
A Class B Private Club

THURSDAY
is IMELDA MARCOS
NIGHT
at

Bobby J's Restaurant and Fundrinkery

Win one pair of shoes every month for three months. Register every Thursday.
Candlewood Shopping Center
Shoes compliment of Brown's Shoe Fit
539-1571

UPC
UNION PROGRAM
COUNCIL

WALT DISNEY'S CLASSIC

Sleeping Beauty

SHARE IT WITH SOMEONE YOU LOVE

SATURDAY
2 p.m. Forum Hall

SUNDAY
2 & 7 p.m. Forum Hall

(Rated G)

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

STREETWISE
TODAY!

3:30 p.m. Little Theatre
& 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
Unrated. (Documentary)

All films are $1.75 except matinees-shown
Saturday, 2 p.m. & Sunday 2 & 7 p.m., $1.50.
KSU I.D. required.

Let's Talk About It ...

SELECTIVE ADMISSIONS POLICY

TODAY!

Union Catskeller
Noon

Guest Speakers: John Flemming, Asst. Director of Admissions; Tim Balfour, Admissions Representative; and Veryl Switzer, Asst. V.-Pres. Minority Affairs.

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

HORSEPACKING! ... in the Ozarks!

Let's Talk About It ...

ROCK & ROLL CONFIDENTIAL
featuring: Dave Marsh
Oct. 20 Free Admission
8 p.m. Forum Hall

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

SPACEBALLS

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
7 & 9:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
(Rated PG)

k-state union
upc feature films

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
Midnight
Forum Hall
(Rated R)

President requests $270 million in aid as peace 'insurance'

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, warning he won't be fooled by Sandinista "facades of freedom," asked Congress on Wednesday to approve $270 million in Contra aid as an insurance policy for peace in Nicaragua.

Reagan, in a toughly worded address to the Organization of American States, lauded recent steps taken toward peace under a regional accord.

But he also said the pact is "only a beginning" and described a series of steps the leftist Sandinista government in Managua must take in order to assure that U.S. military aid to the Contra rebels ends.

"Full, free and fair elections and the open society that alone can make them possible, including full human rights and expulsion of all Soviet and Cuban forces — these must be the bedrock of conditions upon which any further agreement with the Sandinistas is built," Reagan said.

Although House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, has said Reagan has little chance of obtaining renewed military aid, the president lectured Congress against abandoning the Contras after supporting them in the past.

"I cannot just walk away," he said. "I have made a personal commitment to them — and I will not walk away."

Reagan termed the aid package "the essential guarantee that the Sandinistas will live up to the democratic conditions of the Guatemala Accord," the peace pact signed in August by five Central American nations, including Nicaragua.

The president said he would "request and fight for" the $270 million, 18-month aid package, which administration officials have said would go forward before the Nov. 7 cease-fire date called for under the regional peace accord.

"Once a cease-fire is fully in effect, only that support necessary to maintain the freedom fighters (Contras) as a viable force will be delivered," Reagan pledged. "Then we, and they, will be watching to see how genuine the democratic reforms in Nicaragua are."

The president said that if the Contras "are allowed to contest power politically without retribution," U.S. support would "decrease proportionately" and would then be directed towards strengthening the democratic process in Nicaragua.

He added that he planned to keep a wary eye on Nicaragua.

"We cannot be satisfied with facades of freedom erected to fool international opinion, and then quickly dismantled when the pressure is off," Reagan declared. "We must insist on real democracy in Nicaragua — not for a week, not for a month or a year, but always."

While Reagan praised the Sandinistas for starting to comply with the regional peace accord, he said he had "a skepticism born of a long record of Sandinista deceit and broken promises."

The president said Contra aid should be continued unless the Sandinistas realize "they do not have the option of being dictators." He called on them to form a political party and "serve for limited terms of office" under free and fair elections.

Under the new peace plan signed by the Nicaraguans, municipal elections are to be held next year and presidential elections in 1990.

Although it is ambiguous whether negotiations must be face to face under the regional peace plan, Reagan asserted that "isn't it time (the Nicaraguans) sat down and negotiated" a cease-fire with the Contra rebels.

The president also called for the expulsion of "all Soviet and Cuban forces," full freedom of the press, the disbanding of the secret police force and release of all political prisoners.

Pregnant women warned Day care children may carry virus

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Children in day care centers may be giving their mothers an invisible infection that can cause pregnant women to bear mentally retarded children, says a study reported Wednesday.

The infection thus poses a risk to women with children who become pregnant again and is probably to blame for 1,000 to 2,000 cases of retardation and other birth defects a year, said the author of the new study, Dr. Stuart Adler of the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

In a two-year study of 104 children in a day care center in Richmond, Adler found that 38 of them, mostly under the age of 3, got the infection caused by a virus called cytomegalovirus.

Of the mothers of those 38 children, 18 had not become immune to the virus through a previous infection, and six of them, or one-third, got the infection from their children, an infection rate that Adler said was "extremely high."

In the general population, only 1 percent to 5 percent of people are infected each year, he said. He reported his findings Wednesday at the Interscience Conference on Antimicrobial Agents and Chemotherapy.

In general, day care centers are known to be places where infections spread easily because of the number of small children in the same place.

Adler noted that infection rates with cytomegalovirus vary in different regions, but he said that he believes the problem of cytomegalovirus infection in pregnant mothers is not limited to Richmond.

"We think it's a national problem," he said, noting that similar findings have been made in Alabama.

The virus produces no visible illness in normal children or adults, Adler said, though it can cause problems in people whose immune systems are damaged as a result of cancer or AIDS.

In normal individuals, infection can be detected only through laboratory tests. Thus there is no way for either children or mothers to avoid contact with those who are infected or know when they are infected themselves.

"There is not much that can be done," he said. Between 30 percent and 70 percent of adults have already had the infection, making them immune to further infection, he said.

Mass screening to identify mothers who are not immune is not feasible, he said. The only hope lies in developing a vaccine to prevent the disease, which researchers are now trying to do, Adler said.

Although the virus is not normally associated with disease, its consequences during pregnancy can be devastating, he said.

"A mother who gets infected during the first half of pregnancy has between a one in 10 and a one in 20 chance of having a child damaged by the infection, usually mentally retarded," he said.

Cytomegalovirus is extremely common in the Third World, where children are universally infected before reaching age 2, Adler said. Paradoxically, the disease does not lead to birth defects in any appreciable numbers there because women of childbearing age virtually all become immune to the virus as young children.

The principal mode of transmission of the virus among children and their parents is not known, Adler said. The possibilities include contact with saliva, contamination of shared toys or transmission on hands, he said.

Adler also found that the infection was transmitted to day care workers and to four fathers, although the evidence indicated that two of those fathers may have contracted it from their wives rather than their children.

March of Dimes
SAVES BABIES

Blue River Pub
Your EATING & DRINKING ESTABLISHMENT Coming FRIDAY & SATURDAY NIGHT
"CROSSWIND"
Next to Tuttle Creek Dam
—NEXT WEEK THE PUB PRESENTS
"SATIN RAGE"

Brother's KSU
IN AGGIEVILLE USA
Start your 3 day weekend with
IN/OUT
Thurs., Fri., and Sat.
Inxs. The Call, U2, The Cars.
Duran Duran, Bon Jovi
1120 Moro 539-9064

the SOUND SHOP
NEW THIS WEEK
•BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN—TUNNEL OF LOVE
•DEPECHE MODE—MUSIC FOR THE MASSES
•THE MISSION U.K.—THE 1st CHAPTER
•THE SECRET POLICEMAN'S THIRD BALL
•MEN WITHOUT HATS—POP GOES THE WORLD
Special Octoberfest Prices Throughout The Store
1204 MORO—AGGIEVILLE

ISOTONER Broune's
PANTYHOSE Fits Like The Glove!
DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN
20% OFF
Broune's ISOTONER
PANTYHOSE Fits Like The Glove!
323 Poyntz

The Men of Phi Kappa Theta would like to Congratulate the new little sisters of the Aphelion Rose

Sandy Arnoldy
Lori Botts
Cynthia Bowen
Gaye Cain
Tina Cardona
Kim Courtney
Julie Cox
Anne Frey
Brenda Goetz
Becky Howard
Roxanne Jones

Kelly Keimig
Stephanie Lee
Tina Lemom
Terri Ann Lusenhop
Kristi Mitchell
Kelly Provow
Robin Rottinghaus
Angie Sester
Heather Solomon
Susan Sowles

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB

invites you to come visit us at

Octoberfest in Aggieville

Saturday
October 10
10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Come and Choose from our Selection

Baked German Goods

International Travel during Winter Intersession

Travel this winter to London, Paris, Brussels, Greece, or Australia and earn 2 to 3 hours of credit for your trip during Winter Intersession. Because of the travel involved, registration deadlines are sooner than for on-campus Intersession courses. For more information about these study tours, see the individual instructors as soon as possible, or call the Intersession Coordinator at 532-5686 or come to Umberger Hall, Room 311. Prices for study tours below do not include K-State tuition, which is $43 per undergraduate hour and $62 per graduate hour of credit, and is payable at Intersession Registration, December 7-9 at Farrell Library Basement.

12/26/87-1/14/88 Comparative Agriculture—Australia, New Zealand, Hawaii Tour: GENAG 505. Learn about agriculture in Australia and New Zealand by visiting private and university research centers. View beef cattle, dairy, sheep, swine, poultry and horse operations and a variety of forages and crops. Some highlights of the tour include: nature reserves with native flora and fauna, the Great Barrier Reef, the Maori Hanga feast and concert, & the Hawaii stopover on the return. Three hours undergraduate or graduate credit. Instructor: Dr. Clenton Owensby, Agronomy Department, 532-7232. Deposit of $100 due: October 12. Balance of $2500-2700 due November 16.

12/22/87-1/10/88 Architecture and Planning of Greece: ENVD 699. Through visits to sites, museums, and offices of design and planning professionals, the architecture and planning of Greece will be examined from pre-historic to modern times. A three-day excursion to Corinth, Mycene, Tyrins, Epidaurus and Naftion will complement the sites visited in Athens. Three hours undergraduate or graduate credit. Instructor: Dr. Eleftherios Pavlides, Environmental Design Department, 532-6846. Deposit of $200 due: immediately. Balance of $780 due: November 16.

12/26/87-1/10/88 Art Tour—London: ART 300. Visit art galleries and museums, restorations or preservations related to the Arts, literary and historical sites, and the theatre in London, Bath and Stratford. Students will visit the National Gallery, the Tate Gallery, Mme. Tussaud's Wax Museum, the Sacchi Gallery, the Museum of London, Stonehenge and Winchester Cathedral. Students will do research in an area of particular interest during scheduled stops and will present the results of their investigation upon return. This course coincides with the English Department's Literary Britain tour. Interested students are invited to attend an informational meeting on Wednesday, October 14, 3-5 p.m., in Union Room 204. Two hours undergraduate credit. Instructor: Ms. Diane Dollar, Art Department, 532-6605. First deposit of $100 due: October 23. Second payment of $542 due: November 13. Balance of $871 due: November 16.

12/26/87-1/10/88 Literary Britain: ENGL 395. Students will visit a number of literary sites including the homes of Dickens and Keats and Shakespeare's properties in Stratford and Bath. Other sites on the tour include the KEW Royal Botanical Gardens, the British Museum, Roman Baths Museum, Stonehenge and Westminster Abbey. Course fees include tickets to six plays, a ballet and an opera. Students will read texts provided by the instructors, attend two on-campus sessions and will prepare a paper following the study tour. This course coincides with the Art Department's Art Tour. Interested students are invited to attend an informational meeting on Wednesday, October 14, 3-5 p.m., in Union Room 204. Two hours undergraduate credit. Instructors: Mr. Gary Clift and Mr. Ben Nyberg, English Department, 532-6106 or 532-6716. Deposit of $100 due: October 23. Second payment of $542 due: November 13. Balance of $871 due: November 16.

12/27/87-1/10/88 Clothing and Textiles Study Tour/Brussels, Paris, London: CT 650. This course will examine the design and merchandising of clothing and accessories. Discussions are planned with representatives of a number of trade associations and professional organizations. In Paris and London, a number of leading fashion accessory houses will be visited. Visits to fashion and folk costume museums and discussions with fashion marketing officials are also planned. Two hours undergraduate credit. Instructors: Mr. Bernard Rueschhoff and Dr. Bettie Minshall, Clothing, Textiles and Interior Design Department, 532-6993. Amount of $1595 due: November 1.

Division of Continuing Education
Kansas State University

'Cats rip Shockers

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

COUNCIL GROVE — The walls are tumbling down as K-State's volleyball team rewrites the record books almost every time it walks onto the floor.

While defeating Wichita State, 15-8, 15-8, 15-8, Wednesday night in Council Grove, K-State's Kristi Jacquart made her third entry this season in the Wildcats' record book. With seven service aces, Jacquart broke the individual career service ace record giving her a total of 129 career aces.

Renee Whitney held the old mark of 128 from 1983-85.

"Wasn't this our half-way point of the season?" K-State Coach Scott Nelson said. "I have a feeling Kristi is going to be rebreaking the record several times. She's just worked at (serving) real hard and it has really helped us. It's an area we haven't called on her to help us with this year...but she's sure been a pleasant surprise."

Jacquart was the only person to set records Wednesday, but she's not the only Wildcat to do it this season.

With the season just barely half completed, 23 K-State records have been tied or broken. Individually, Shawnee Call has wiped out five K-State marks, Jacquart has erased three and Mary Kinsey has set two new records.

Kinsey, Call and Jacquart turned in good performances against WSU. Jacquart led the team in aces. Call collected 13 kills, four more than Kinsey, to pace the team and Kinsey dove for 10 digs while Call had nine digs. But they weren't the only reasons K-State was able to easily defeat Wichita State.

Serving and consistent play were two of the main factors in the win against the Shockers.

"Our execution and our concentration stayed pretty level," Nelson said. "It seemed like as each game went on, we wore at them. Most of the aces came late in the game. Usually that's a sign that they are getting mentally tired."

"Obviously we've made some good improvements (since last season). A lot of the teams we went five (games) with last year, now we are beating in three," he added. "That's a good sign."

Another factor in the win was K-State's two- to three-inch height advantage over the Shockers.

"When you are up against a team with shorter hitters, if you can play tough defense and dig them a few times, they start going for a little extra in their hitting," Nelson said. "That's when our blockers start blocking...and it helped in that it funneled their hitters right into our defense. I think (the size difference) is an advantage."

Playing in Council Grove was a homecoming of sorts for K-State junior outside hitter Tami Tibbets. Tibbets, a Council Grove native, graduated from there in 1985. She played on the school's 1984 Class 4A state volleyball championship team and is the all-time leading scorer in girls' basketball there.

"The crowd favorite had to be Tami," Nelson said. "There was a lot of pressure on Tami coming into this match. Any time you go back to your hometown...and you're a college player, you've got to play well."

"I thought she played a great match. It seemed like every time I looked up, she was swinging and the ball was hitting the floor on the other side," Nelson said.

K-State started slow in all three games and had to play catch up ball in the early stages. In the middle and end game, though, the 'Cats stopped the Shockers in their tracks and easily won all three matches. Wichita State coach Phil Shoemaker was unable to find the right combination on the court to stop K-State's dominance in the later stages of all three games.

"Last year both times we played them it went five games," Tibbets said. "I think we are stronger this year in a lot of areas and we just went after them."

With the win, K-State's record climbed to 10-4 overall. Wichita State dropped to 3-11 overall and 0-4 against Big Eight Conference teams. The Shockers have previously lost to Nebraska, Oklahoma and Kansas.

K-State will look to improve on its 1-1 conference mark this weekend when they travel to Boulder, Colo., Saturday to play the Buffaloes. After that, the 'Cats face nationally ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers on Tuesday in Lincoln, Neb. The Cornhuskers are ranked fourth in the nation in the most recent national poll. K-State is 5-4 on the road.

Mary Kinsey spikes during Wednesday's game against The Wichita State University. The 'Cats improved their record to 10-4 by defeating the Shockers 15-8, 15-8, 15-8. Kinsey led the team with 10 digs.

From 1911 to 'The Cat in the Hat,' Missouri is where tradition began Saturday in Columbia, Mo., the K-State football team will take its place in history, so to speak.

That's right. When the 'Cats arrive Friday evening in Tiger town, the team can look forward to celebrating the 77th anniversary of homecoming as a nationwide college alumni-student celebration.

The tradition began in 1911 at the University of Missouri. The first game, between Missouri and Kansas, ended in a 3-3 tie. I can only suspect the festivities were more exciting than the actual game.

As hallowed a tradition as homecoming is — with alumni re-establishing ties with the school and sporting the appropriate colors of their respective alma maters — something very nutty must be going on in Columbia.

Sports Rapp

JEFF RAPP
Sports Editor

Let's face it. With the oldest homecoming tradition in the U.S., the Tigers have a chance to stage a real class act and to set some standards to gain nationwide media attention.

Enter this year's MU homecoming theme: "The Joke's On You, KSU." Rather than making their theme a tribute to "Ol' Mizzou," they've shoved their tongues into their cheeks and thought of a theme that merely exploits and pokes fun at the opposition. Pure class for the place where homecoming began.

Just a bit of information I gathered by calling Columbia was that we at K-State are being made out as villains, in one instance.

It appears that in one homecoming skit, Willie is taking on the title of the "Wildcat in the Hat," and instructing "the Grinch" to steal homecoming away from the fearful MU students.

Never fear, though, because the older, wiser alumni save the day by instructing the students that the grinch can't possibly steal homecoming. Why? Because homecoming is not made up of the materialistic floats and banners the Grinch took — homecoming is held within the heart, with loyalty to 'Ol' Mizzou and black and gold pride.

Upon hearing this, the Grinch's heart expands to three times its normal size and the once evil monster returns everything he stole to douse the Tiger homecoming spirit.

To top off this fairytale, the alumni, the students and the gracious Grinch all join in telling Willie, the Wildcat in the Hat, "The joke's on you, KSU." This may have taken some time to think of, but this cheap copy of the Dr. Seuss classic, "The Grinch That Stole Christmas" stimulates my gag reflex.

Oh well, I guess what it's all about is people getting together to watch a football game, but I think it would be even funnier if the last laugh was on the Tigers.

Players rejoin NFL teams

By The Associated Press

Quarterback Joe Montana, wide receiver Dwight Clark, running back Roger Craig and nine other San Francisco 49ers were among 35 NFL players who defied the strike Wednesday and rejoined their teams.

The NFL Management Council had set a 1 p.m. deadline for players to report so they could be eligible for this weekend's games — and be paid. Several key players were among those who decided against missing a third consecutive paycheck.

Wednesday's returnees sent the total number of players to 128 who have reported since the strike began Sept. 22, though several are injured and rejoined their clubs for medical treatment. The players union has 1,585 in its jurisdiction.

Seven teams remained solid — Kansas City, Philadelphia, the New York Giants, Seattle, San Diego, Tampa Bay and Washington. And on four other teams — Chicago, Detroit, Minnesota and Green Bay — the only players who had reported were on injured reserve.

Thus, four of Sunday's games will match all non-union players, with San Diego at Tampa Bay, Washington at the Giants, Minnesota at Chicago and Detroit at Green Bay.

The St. Louis Cardinals led the league in defectors, with 18, including four players who returned Wednesday — offensive tackle Tootie Robbins, punter Greg Carter, linebacker Charlie Baker and guard Mike Morris.

The Super Bowl champion Giants had three near-defections.

Both leagues now battling for pennants

Youthful Twins outslug Detroit, 8-5

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota Twins bullpen ace Jeff Reardon came in with runners on second and third and nobody out and retired the first three batters he faced. Nevertheless he didn't think he did his job.

"You have to go for the strikeout in that situation," said Reardon, who gave up consecutive sacrifice flies to Dave Bergman and Chet Lemon in the eighth inning to let the Detroit Tigers take a 5-4 lead in the opening game of the American League playoffs.

Reardon, however, kept the Twins close and they went on for an 8-5 victory.

"I didn't get the strikeout, you can't be perfect all the time," said Reardon, who was the winner. "After we got the tying run I forgot all about it."

Reardon entered this series with a 27.00 earned run average in playoff action. He had pitched one inning giving up three runs in 1981 with Montreal.

"I didn't even know I had a 27.00 ERA," Reardon said. "It means nothing to me."

Reardon said he thought the Twins had an advantage in the bullpen entering the series.

While Reardon allowed only one hit in two innings, Detroit relievers failed to protect a 5-4 lead in the Twins' four-run eighth.

"We have a lot more experience in the bullpen, all the really have who has a lot of time is Hernandez," Reardon said.

Hernandez was one of three relievers who failed to do the job for Sparky Anderson in the eighth.

The victory was the first ever in a playoff series for the Twins, who were swept by Baltimore in their only two appearances in 1969 and '70.

AL Game 1
Twins 8, Tigers 5

Game 2 will be at the Metrodome Thursday night with Detroit's Jack Morris, 18-11, facing Bert Blyleven, 15-12.

The Twins scored four runs in the eighth inning, erasing a 5-4 Detroit lead and chasing Tigers' starter Doyle Alexander, whose postseason miseries continued.

One run already had scored in the eighth when the 37-year-old Baylor came to bat against reliever Willie Hernandez with the bases loaded and one out. Baylor, one of only five Twins with postseason experience, lined a single to left for the run that put the Twins ahead to stay and made a winner of reliever Jeff Reardon, who had replaced starter Frank Viola in the top of the inning.

The hit extended Baylor's record of consecutive playoff games with a hit to 11.

Gaetti hit solo homers in the second and in the Minnesota's three-run fifth, becoming the first player ever to hit homers in his first two AL playoff at-bats.

Alexander came into the game with a 9-0 regular-season record with Detroit but in one previous World Series and two playoffs he was 0-3 with a 7.65 ERA.

Dan Gladden started the Minnesota eighth with a single. One out later Kirby Puckett doubled to left scoring Gladden and chasing Alexander. Mike Henneman relieved Alexander and walked Kent Hrbek intentionally. Henneman followed with a walk to Gaetti and that brought on Hernandez.

Baylor, hitting for Randy Bush, singled for the tie-breaking run and Tom Brunansky followed with a double to left to score two more runs. Baylor was thrown out at the plate by shortstop Alan Trammell as he also tried to score on the hit.

Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson was denied his record-equaling 10th consecutive playoff victory dating back to 1975 and '76 Cincinnati teams.

It was supposed to have been a battle of Detroit's experience versus Minnesota's youth. Each of Detroit's 10 starters had some postseason experience none of Minnesota's did. Anderson was in his seventh playoff as a manager; Twins Manager Tom Kelly, his first.

Giants pull even in NL playoff series

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Dave Dravecky pulled the plug on St. Louis, Will Clark and Jeffrey Leonard turned on the power and the San Francisco Giants headed home with the National League playoffs tied at one victory apiece.

Dravecky pitched a two-hitter while Clark and Leonard homered Wednesday as San Francisco beat the Cardinals 5-0.

"Without a doubt, it was my best game ever," said Dravecky, who pitched 10 2-3 scoreless innings in postseason play for San Diego in 1984. "The focus is keeping their speed off the bases."

The Giants shut down St. Louis' sprinters with another brilliant pitch-out, sending the power-versus-speed series back to Candlestick Park for the next three games. Game 3 will be Friday night.

"We play well in our ballpark," Giants Manager Roger Craig said. "It takes something away from their game."

San Francisco, which outthundered the Cardinals 205-94 during the regular season, exerted itself with the long ball. St. Louis, which led the majors by stealing 248 bases, again failed to unleash its running game.

"They had the green light. I don't know why they didn't run," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said. Dravecky did not allow a runner past second base and did not give up a hit after Tommy Herr's single in the fourth. Jim Lindeman singled in the second for the Cardinals' other hit.

Dravecky managed to avoid trouble despite leadoff walks in four innings. Those were his only walks and he struck out six.

Atlee Hammaker is scheduled to pitch for the Giants in Game 3 with either Danny Cox, who missed the opener with a stiff neck, or Joe Magrane going for St. Louis.

NL Game 2
Giants 5, Cards 0

The Giants seized control on Clark's two-run homer in the second against John Tudor. Clark almost lost the home run when he came within a stride of passing Candy Maldonado on the bases.

Leonard homered to straightaway center field opening the fourth for the second straight day. Leonard, with a $50,000 bonus clause in his contract for being the Most Valuable Player in the playoffs, also had two singles and is 5-for-8 in the series.

Gold Glove shortstop Ozzie Smith let Jose Uribe's bases-loaded grounder go through his legs with two outs in the eighth. The two-run error put the game out of reach.

The Giants again throttled St. Louis' speed with a brilliant pitch-out. Tony Pena was at first with no outs in the third and Tudor batting in a sacrifice situation. But Dravecky pitched out on an 0-1 count with Pena running, and catcher Bob Melvin caught him stealing.

San Francisco led the major leagues in throwing out would-be base stealers, and its only pitchout Tuesday night in a 5-3 loss caught Vince Coleman. The Cardinals, the fastest team in baseball, stole 248 bases this season but are 0-for-2 against the Giants.

A crowd of 55,331, matching the record attendance set for the playoff opener, was taken out of the game early.

Maldonado led off the second with a single and one out later Clark hit a 1-0 pitch on a high arc to right field. Maldonado was not sure it would clear the fence and was retreating toward first base and watching the ball. Clark was also looking at his hit and came within one step of going past Maldonado before suddenly stopping.

If Clark had passed Maldonado, Clark would have been out and credited with a single and Maldonado would have scored.

Clark had been just 1-for-16 at Busch Stadium this season and the home run was the first allowed by Tudor in 24 1-3 innings. Giants Manager Roger Craig had dropped the left-handed Clark, who hit 35 homers, to the sixth spot against Tudor, a left-hander, even though Clark has hit better against left-handers in his major-league career.

'Little Women' crowd McCain

By Nancy Chartrand
Collegian Reporter

Not only "Little Women," but little boys, grandparents, parents and students filled McCain Auditorium Wednesday evening as The Children's Theatre Company of Minneapolis presented its original theatrical adaptation of Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women."

The play tells of the hardships and joys of the March family: Meg, Jo, Beth, Amy and their parents. The story is told through the eyes of Jo, a tomboy who is struggling to keep her family together while her father is away fighting in the Civil War.

The Children's Theatre Company has been touring for 23 years, performing to young people and their families. The company performs nearly 300 times a year in facilities ranging from school gymnasiums to large metropolitan theaters.

The CTC's home is a multi-million dollar Minneapolis facility which was built in 1974. The CTC has developed an annual audience of nearly 250,000 for its Mainstage productions. This year, the touring production of "Little Women" is expected to play to an audience of 100,000.

While the CTC directs its productions toward children, people of all ages attended the performance. The audience ranged from pre-schoolers to grandparents.

The daughters of "Marmee" March present Christmas gifts to their mother during The Children's Theatre Company's presentation of "Little Women" in McCain Auditorium Wednesday evening.

The Culture Cat, a promotional mascot for McCain, was on hand to welcome Wednesday's audience and inform them of future events. Two of the audience's younger members, Kelly Janssen and Jennifer Barth, both 10 years old, said they were enjoying the play. "I've read it before but have never seen it," Jennifer said.

Not all of the children were as impressed by the play as Kelly and Jennifer. Some of the younger children opted to crawl into their parents' laps and take a nap.

Palau

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7
and walk right through."

People who use money-raising tactics like Oral Roberts are insulting the intelligence of even the least educated people, Palau said.

"It's an embarrassment to the cause," he said. "It just set up Christianity for more mocking and more sneering. It will not destroy Christianity...but it does bring into disrepute the credibility of evangelical Christianity."

Palau said in the 22 years he has been in the ministry, he has never raised money over the air. The financing for his crusades is raised locally by a finance committee, he said, with most of the money donated by individuals, churches and businesses.

At the conclusion of each crusade, he said, a certified public accountant audits his records and the results are made available to the public.

Although he said he doesn't like "to come on strong" on any issues, Palau said some of today's "hot topics" are sex, the family and the end of the world.

He believes sex will be an issue forever. The family issue revolves around a fear of divorce.

The issue Palau said he sees in all parts of the world is fear of a third world war and Armageddon.

"It's a tremendous, intriguing interest to everyone," he said.

People in western Europe have the most pessimistic attitude about the end of the world, he said.

"They literally feel it could happen any moment. It is very depressing," he said.

Palau, who will be leaving for a two-week crusade in Hong Kong Oct. 30, said his goals are three-fold. He wants to introduce people to a personal relationship with Christ, bring unity to all Christians and see young Christians serve Christ full-time.

As for the economics of his organization, Palau said he is not in the ministry to get rich.

"Not because we wouldn't like being rich," he said. "But there's no need to be rich in the first place because it can corrupt you."

University re-names building

By The Collegian Staff

The Kansas Board of Regents recently approved the re-naming of the housing maintenance building at K-State for a classified staff employee.

The Davenport Building was so named to honor Lloyd W. Davenport, who worked in housing maintenance from 1948 until he retired in 1984.

The building is the first at K-State to be named for a classified staff employee, said University archivist Tony Crawford. Other campus buildings are named for past University presidents, former deans and professors, alumni and other administrators.

Davenport was the first person to be presented the Upper Midwest Region of Housing Officers Service Award.

TV Listings

By TV Data

THURSDAY OCTOBER 8, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTKA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo	Special	Bozo	Nation's Bus.	B. Hillbillies
7:30				Flintstones	Mister Rogers		SportsCenter	Bewitched
8:00		To Be Announced		My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook	I Love Lucy
8:30				Brady Bunch		Teddy Ruxpin	Racing	Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid	Ghostbusters	Who's the Boss	Sesame Street	H's Heroes	Hydroplane	Movie: "The Farmer's
9:30		Card Sharks	G.I. Joe	Mr. Belvedere		Twilight Zone	Racing	Movie: "The Farmer's
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's the Boss	M.T. Moore	Body Electric	Andy Griffith	Billiards: Inter-	Daughter"
10:30	Lose or Draw		Mr. Belvedere	Dick Van	Congress	Soap	nation's Champ.
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec.	Dyke	Psychology	Geraldo	Aerobics	Perry Mason
11:30	Wheel-Fortune		Ask Dr. Ruth	Green Acres	Exercise/Billie		Getting Fit
12:00	News	Midday	All My Child-	Beaver	Sesame	News	Boxing (Top	Movie: "Ba-
12:30	Days of Our	Bold/Beautiful	ren	I Love Lucy	Street		Rank): (Lupe	thing Beauty"
1:00	Lives	As the World	One Life to	Andy Griffith	Tenko	Van Dyke	Aquino vs.
1:30	Another World	Turns	Live	B. Hillbillies		Andy Griffith	Gianfranco
2:00		Guiding Light	General Hospi-	Brady Bunch	Living	Beaver	Rosie/World	Tom & Jerry
2:30	Santa Barbara		tal	Zoobles Zoo	Learn to Read	Ghostbusters	NFL Yearbook	and Friends
3:00		Donahue	Scooby Doo	Smurfs	Cooking	Jem	AWA Wres-	Flintstones
3:30	Oprah Winfrey		Thundercats	Ghostbusters	On Aerobics	Transformers	ting	Flintstones
4:00		Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game	Jetsons	Square 1 TV	G.I. Joe	Auto Racing	Munsters
4:30	3's Company		P. Court	M. Bravestar	3-2-1 Contact	M. Bravestar	Laverne
5:00	Family Ties	News	ABC News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame	Facts of Life	SportsLook	Alice
5:30	NBC News	CBS News	ABC News	Facts of Life	Street	WKRP	Horse Mag.	Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News	M*A*S*H	WKRP	MacNeil / Le-	Cheers	SportsCenter	Andy Griffith
6:30	Wheel-Fortune	Truth/Conseq.	Newlywed	Gimme Br.	rer Newshour	Barney Miller	NHL Hockey	Sanford
7:00	Cosby Show	Tour of Duty	Sledge Ham-	Hill Street	Adams Chron-	Movie	Montreal Can-	Movie: "High
7:30	Baseball Play-		The Charm-	Blues	icles		adiens at Phi-	Plains Drifter"
8:00	League Cham-	Movie: "Star	80"	Movie: "The	Mystery/Lord		ladelphia
8:30		80"		Year of Living	Peter Wimsey		Flyers
9:00	pionship Ser-	Knots Landing		"Dangerously"	DeGrassi High	News	Stanley Cup	Movie: "Major
9:30	ies Game Two				Newt's Apple		Dundee
10:00		News	ABC News	Barney Miller	Wild America	H'mooner	SpeedWeek
10:30	News	Cheers	M*A*S*H	Late Show	Business Rpt.	Magnum, P.I.	SportsCenter
11:00	Tonight Show	Adderly	B. Buddies	Nightline	MacNeil / Le-		Water Skiing	Movie: "Para-
11:30					rer Newshour	Movie		trooper"
12:00	Ent. Tonight	Mike Hammer	700 Club	"Seven Per-	Sign-Off		Surfer Mag.
12:30	Late Night			cent Solution"			Skateboarding

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75
Over 30 words						1.75

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____
Address _____ Student ID # _____
1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____
6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____
11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____
16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____
21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____
26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____
Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors & Grads ...

GIVE YOURSELF SOME CREDIT!

APPLY NOW FOR YOUR VERY OWN...

- Bring a photocopy of your School I.D.
- No cosigner required

APPLY NOW ON CAMPUS!

Date: Oct. 6, 7 & 8

Time: 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Place: Table outside Union Stateroom

CITIBANK
Citibank (South Dakota), N.A. Member FDIC

Deaths

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

"We would have...about 70 missing," he said. "I would not say there is no hope. I have faith that there are two or three (alive) in the Mona Channel. ...I insist that there are still people alive."

Luis Rolon Nevarez, civil defense director for Puerto Rico, was not so optimistic. "I don't think we're going to find more survivors," he said Wednesday.

Cabral and Nevarez flew over the scene Tuesday. Cabral estimated the number of sharks at "more than 40."

"People signaled to us with their hands to please help them, but in our little plane we could do nothing," Nevarez said he saw several dozen bodies in the water, "some alive, others apparently dead, and sharks of 600 to 800 pounds with bodies in their mouths."

The Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel quoted him as saying:

"When I saw the overturned hull, there were survivors on top of it and swimming next to it. A few minutes later we could see the sharks attacking them."

"There were several schools of about 15 sharks each, just attacking the refugees in the water. The sea was red around them. I've never seen anything more horrible in 22 years of civil defense."

Cabral criticized the Dominican armed forces for not sending helicopters immediately.

Ventura said the wooden boat started taking on water as soon as it left Death's Head Beach in Nagua.

A plank attached to the prow gave way three miles offshore, water flooded in and the boat "sank very rapidly," he said.

Lt. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, the armed forces minister, said other survivors told rescue officials several passengers started arguing with the boat's captain about the fare and the plank broke after a fight broke out.

He said the captain was killed in the melee and the boat struck a sand bar, according to the survivors.

Cabral said some survivors had gasoline burns and "two or three of them are expected to die." How and when the fire started was not clear. Rolon Nevarez said one of the boat's motors exploded and that gasoline from spare tanks caught fire when passengers tried to empty them to use for flotation.

Kedzie 103

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11f)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lift tickets, skis, boots, and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today!! (28-34)

IN CELEBRATION of National Co-op Month, People's Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado, will have numerous items on special during the month of October. Open to everyone Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Saturdays 10 a.m.-5 p.m. (30-34)

Grand Opening
Oct. 10
Susie's Showbar
101 Riley
Ogden, KS
Something Special

GOODNOW: MEET at 7:10 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8 in the first floor lobby to go to the Plaza Crusade. All your friends will be "going places." (32-33)

WANTED: PERSONALS column from Collegians dated 9/1/87 to 9/30/87. Will pay .05¢ each. Call Heather, 532-2362, room #345. (33-34)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

TWO-BEDROOM apartment available immediately. Across from Ahearn. 776-7569. (30-34)

ONE-BEDROOM, furnished. Close to campus. Available immediately. 776-8918 after 5:30 p.m. (31-34)

TWO BEDROOM: Spacious apartment, good location, for now or January, $350. 776-4993. (32-34)

ONE-BEDROOM, basement, quiet, plenty of space, 1/2 block from campus. Available now, 539-6871 or 537-1269. (33-34)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (21f)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1980 AUDI 5000S, good condition, loaded, $3,000 or best offer. 776-9508. (29-33)

1980 FORD Bronco XLT 302-V8. Power steering, power brakes, air conditioning. Good condition. 539-8436. (31-33)

COMPUTERS 08

VISUAL COMPUTER—1050, CPIM, two drives, 128K, Hi-res monitor, software includes Wordstar, Multiplan, Basic, $450. Call 238-1073. (32-36)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN $HUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work: electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields., $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

ClassAds

532-6555

MAIL CLERK, 40 hours a week. Involves some listing, typing and fulfillment of orders. Contact Norreen at the Master Teacher, 539-0555 for interview. (31-34)

WANTED DISC Jockey Friday and Saturday night, 539-6015. Susie's Showbar, 101 Riley, Ogden, Kansas. (31-34)

WANTED, ENTHUSIASTIC people who work well with people. Faisetto's is now taking applications for full and part-time help for positions in running cash register, cooks, and drivers. Come in for interviews after 5 p.m. Ask for Steve, 1127 Moro. (32-33)

AEROBIC LEADER vacancy at the KSU Rec Complex. Must be a student carrying 5 or more hours. Certification is desired, but not required. Previous teaching experience highly recommended. Must be available Mondays through Thursdays from 5:20-6:30 p.m. Interested individuals are to apply in person at the Rec Complex administrative office during business hours before 12 noon on Thursday, Oct. 8th. (32f)

JUNIORS, SENIORS, and graduate students earn up to $5,000 this school year managing on campus marketing program for top national companies. Flexible P/T hours. Call 1-800-932-0528, ext. 007. (32-33)

SCHOOL BUS drivers beginning immediately. $4.75 per hour. Must be 21, have a good driving record and complete a training program. Bus driving experience not required. Part-time 6:30 a.m.-8:30 a.m., 2:40 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Job description available upon request. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502, (913) 537-2400. EOE. (33-35)

LUNCHROOM/PLAYGROUND supervisor. 1 1/2-2 hours per day. 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. $3.87/hour. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502, (913) 537-2400. EOE. (33-36)

FINANCIAL SERVICES 10

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (27-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

POND, PETS, pasture, privacy—6 miles. Need responsible couple. Labor can reduce rent. One of two attached mobile homes. 494-8328. (31-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14x70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

HOUSE FOR sale. Two bedrooms, attached garage, fenced yard. Couple, single person, couple with one child. Call 539-2860. (32-33)

LOST AND FOUND 14

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on 170 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spaying. Answers to "Abby." 537-0646. (32-39)

FOUND—SHARP calculator in Cardwell 103 on Wednesday, Sept. 30. Call Kent O. 539-7561. (32-34)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

AT&T ELECTRIC typewriter, never used. $150. Porch glider, metal and wood, one-year old. $60. Phone 539-8473. (30-34)

SCHLIEBE'S
OKTOBERFEST
SPECIAL
JOIN NOW FOR
25% OFF
STUDENT SEMESTER
& STUDENT YEAR
MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER EXPIRES OCT. 31st
776-1750

The Ladies Club
Now Open!
Memberships
Available!
Work out
with us today!
First Visit Free
776-6469
1104 Waters, Manhattan

THREE-PIECE living room set for sale. Brown plaid. Make offer. 532-5840, daytime. After 5 p.m., 537-1434. (31-34)

STERLING SILVER jewelry and chain just arrived. We buy/sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (32-34)

TWO DAYS only. The latest designs in women's bags, jewelry, and sequined dresses. Holiday Home, Saturday, Oct. 10, from 2-6:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11, from 9:30 a.m.-8 p.m. Patrick's Clothing. (32-34)

PHASE LINEAR 1000 noise reduction unit, Kenwood KX-1030 cassette deck, 2 HPM-100 speakers, Akai 1810 reel to reel, Technics SL-1310 turntable, Pioneer SA 9500 II amp with matching tuner. Call 784-3937 after 6 p.m. (32-37)

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

FOR SALE: King size waterbed, headboard, book shelves, drawers, $250. Call 539-5405. (32-34)

1967 DODGE Polara, $500. Like new 12-gauge Mossberg "Turkey" special, $150. Call after 6 p.m. 776-3576. (32-36)

U-2 TICKETS for sale, two great lower level seats. Must sell, call evenings. 539-1941. (32-34)

NO PAIN, NO GAIN
Oct. Special Unlimited
Number of Sessions
for only $50.
No membership fee—
first visit free

Candlewood Plaza
3232 Kimball
776-3308

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢
after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON!
539-4888

LATE NIGHT BREAKFAST GRILL
10 p.m.-1 a.m.
Fridays and Saturdays
Candlewood Shopping Center
539-1371

DANCE, DANCE, DANCE. to the sounds
of the
Lite 'n' Lively
the best variety
music in town

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

DIAMOND BACK mountain bike, excellent condition, extras included. Call after 7 p.m., 776-9371. (31-34)

1981 HONDA CM 400 custom. Excellent condition, bought new in 1984, almost 12,000 miles. Windshield, rack, backrest available. Leon, 532-4886. (32-33)

FOR SALE: 1981 Honda scooter, $300. Call 532-5496. (33-34)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

CARVIN X-60 amplifier with celestion speaker. Five-band equalizer footswitch and chorus box included. 539-6395. (33-35)

TRADE UP!
Trade in Your Old Home Speakers & Receive $100 Trade in Value Against the New Audio Pulse.
1126 Moro 776-5507

Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings and Drum Sticks. Buy one set get 2nd set at 50% off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

TWO ACOUSTIC band speakers and mixer. Used for dances and band. Excellent condition. Ask for Clint or Trent. 539-9044. $800. (33-36)

PERSONALS 18

BSU CCC Icthus ivcl nays: Romans 10:13-17, 1 John 5:11-12. (32-33)

HEY NATHAN—Horndog! How's your package? What was in it? The Neighbors. (33)

TINA DEP Happy 19 birthday. Let's party! Your buds, Lori, Marcy, and Christie. (33)

PHI KAP "OBE" (Gower)—You are so special. I haven't said thank you enough for being my chippendale, the flowers and my car. I have to be the Luckiest mom! Son, you are a Sweetheart! Love, Mom. (33)

AZD BECKY: To an awesome pledge Dot—I am proud to be your pledge Mom. Fuzzy Love, Julie. (33)

"PHI GAM"—The one I want to see is the one who holds the presidency. If you're still interested, please respond. Car admirer. (33)

SHAUNA M. So glad to have you back in Manhattan. Hisham. (33)

K. WINTER from Putnam—I've got hungry eyes for you. Secretly Yours. (33)

RICHARD H. Happy 21st birthday. Stay "Out of trouble" but have fun. Love you, V.L.H. (33)

DELT RYAN: Tonight's the night when the stork arrives. And just the beginning of many good times. Love, Mom. (33)

DELT DARLINGS: Your pledge dads are psyched. It's going to be great. The place is the Delt house. Be there at eight! (33)

DELT SON WARD: To tell you I'm your mom, I can hardly wait. We'll party tonight. It'll be great. So my son be ready by 8, I'm so proud, cause I think you're top rate. Love, Mom. (33)

DELT DANE: Watch out Deltas, the time has come for all to see Plummer's my son. We'll tear up the town, don't say might, because my boy, you're out-a-sight. Love, Mom. (33)

TKE BOB V.: Do I feel lucky or what? A stud for my dad! How special! Love, your Dot. (33)

AZD JEANNINE—How's my little girl, tired? I hope you had a fun time today—many more ahead. Love, Mom.—P.S. When's the pledge active? (33)

20 MINUTE Tornado—Thanks for all your love and help. Love Always—Messy Room. (33)

DAVID—HAPPY 19th TMBOLMF Can't wait for Friday, VMO?? You're very special to me! Love always, Sarah. (33)

BABY RIPPEE—A bouncing baby girl—I want to tell the world. What a team we'll be—you and me. Watch out world, she'll leave you in a whirl—just wait and see. Love, Mom. (33)

WANTED: FEMALE: Must be good-looking, fun-loving, and be able to mend a broken heart. Opus. (33)

AZD SHEILA: Together we will chat, together we will chow, together we will have fun... but most of all together we are #1! Your Mama loves you—Rachelle. (33)

AZD PLEDGE Ginger—I'm so excited to have you as my Dot—Let's party. Love, Mom. (33)

AZD LIL: Laura: Yo' mama have you guessed? Yo' baby you've been stressed! Welcome to the nest, as a dot you're the best!! Love, Mom. (33)

AZD KRISTA: You and I will make a great pair, together, good times ahead we will share. I'm super excited to have you as my dot!! Love, yo' Mama. (33)

KARELYN—THE reason I was so thirsty is because you are so hot. Will you help me spend my life-savings of $307 Waitresses don't always get the last say. Love, Scott. (33)

HARPIST SATURDAY—said I enjoyed your music, would like to talk more.—I'm all ears! (33)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES 19

SPAYED FERRET, very playful and gentle. Prefer sale to biology or veterinary student. 539-1988. (33)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11f)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11f)

SELF-HYPNOSIS. Improve concentration, memory, recall. Overcome test anxiety, fear of public speaking, etc. Personalized instruction, one 90-minute session required, $140. Greg Potter, Ph.D., 714 Poyntz, Suite A, 537-0076. (33-49)

RENTALS 21

TYPEWRITERS—CORRECTING and non-correcting. In the Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro, 537-7294. (32-34)

TYPING—TERM papers, reports, resumes and cover letters. Call Lori, 776-8627, anytime. (32-36)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

TWO ROOMMATES needed, $150 month, three-bedroom house. 539-7002. (31-34)

WANTED: FEMALE roommate for spring semester. Two bedroom, furnished apartment. Two blocks from campus. 776-3199. (31-33)

PROFESSIONAL LADY acquiring a doctorate needs to share home with another professional lady. Call 628-1320 or write 2401 "B" Henry, Hays, KS 67601. (32-33)

FEMALE ROOMMATE: To share two-bedroom furnished apartment, laundry facilities, $150 per month plus utilities. Two blocks from K-State Union. Phone 537-1583 after 5:30 p.m. (33-34)

ROOM FOR RENT 28

GIRL WANTED to rent room without board, $80/month, bills paid. Close to campus. No pets. 539-8608. (27f)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

At the "overcoming fear" encounter group.

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 "Woe is me!"
5 Pea's place
8 Some poetry
12 Package wrapping need
13 Sunbeam
14 Play on the green
15 Pizzeria fixture
16 "Able was I —"
17 Beige
18 Saws
20 Gave a rating
22 Oahu souvenir
23 Abrade
27 Bowling targets
32 Debt reminder
33 George's brother
34 Stellar cat
35 '50s hairstyle
38 Feed the swine

DOWN
39 London's — Gardens
40 Beat walker
42 Pollux's twin
45 Foot-baller
49 Oodles
50 Sagacious one
52 Strong wind
53 Actor Newman
54 Bud's partner
55 Portent
56 One kind of dream?
67 — Alamos
68 School book
1 Tiny particle
2 Vesuvian output
3 Pinnacle
4 Doddering
5 Executive committees
6 Rowboat need
7 Fabric worker
8 Be
9 Platypus

Solution time: 25 mins.

OLD ORT ASPS
ALEE CUB REAP
SEAPLANE RANA
TOKAY ERASER RELY USH
JUST OPTS OPA
ADE SARAH RAW
MOA ONER BERN LAW STAY
PRATISE SWEEP
TENS SEAHORSE
AMEN ART RITE
HOSE URN DEER

Yesterday's answer 10-8

10 Raison d'—
11 Ornamental button
19 Yours truly
21 Bible boat
24 Secreted
25 Uncle Sam's want?
26 Marx Brothers classic
28 Swiss canton
29 Newton's math
30 New: prefix
31 Soak up
36 Drum type
37 "Tea for —"
38 Tap
41 Running
42 Cartoonist
43 Jai —
44 Bun's cousin
46 No longer feral
47 "Family Ties" role
48 Broadcast
51 Court

CRYPTOQUIP
10-8
CX BEZFUS, T MEJWF
MTEEFHCTWFE, AHFLFEHX
IEZFJS IJ VITLF JBB
CFTU AEFSSZIEV
Yesterday's Cryptquip: THE LOUD, WILD BASEBALL ENTHUSIAST WENT BATTY TODAY.

Today's Cryptquip clue: F equals E

U.S. Justice team visits penitentiary for reinspection

By The Associated Press

LANSING — A team representing the U.S. Department of Justice began a reinspection of the Kansas State Penitentiary on Wednesday.

The group is expected visit the prison again Thursday and Friday, said Larry Cowger, special assistant to Corrections Secretary Richard Mills. The reinspection follows the release this past summer of a report that charged conditions at the prison subjected inmates to cruel and unusual punishment.

State Department of Corrections officials requested the reinspection, Cowger said.

Cowger said the report was based on an inspection that took place nearly 18 months ago and state officials wanted a reinspection so that federal officials would have updated information.

He also said the state wanted to narrow the number of issues to be resolved in an agreement it will try to work out with the federal agency to avoid a lawsuit.

"We anticipate returning to the negotiating table with the Department of Justice," Cowger said, adding that the state agency wanted to start the process as soon as possible. "Any kind of remedial action will be tied to the Legislature."

Cowger said the team consisted of two consultants for the federal agency and three attorneys. Accompanying them were Mills, Charles Simmons, the state agency's chief legal counsel, and Steve Davies, deputy secretary of corrections for institutions and acting director at KSP.

In its earlier report, sent to Gov. Mike Hayden in June, federal inspectors said they found serious constitutional violations in three major areas: medical care, fire protection and living space. The inspection was done following inmate complaints.

Corrections officials have said they already have moved to correct many of the problems listed in the report, noting that the Legislature has approved a renovation of the prison's infirmary and "A" Cellhouse.

The team's visit came as four prisoners ended their participation in an unrelated hunger strike. Eight prisoners began fasting Thursday, and only one remains on the strike, a KSP spokesman said.

The spokesman, Bill Cummings, said the only prisoner still refusing food was one who began his protest after the eight original hunger strikers started on Thursday. Cummings would not disclose the demand of the remaining striker.

Demands from the original eight varied, including requests for transfers to other states and changes in television privileges.

Stores may promote state, Hayden says

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Although it is still tentative, Kansas could be the next state to have a six-week promotion in Bloomingdale's department stores.

Gov. Mike Hayden met with Lester Graibetz, executive vice president of Bloomingdale's, during a three-day Kansas Cavalry trip to New York City to promote the state. The Kansas Cavalry is a group of private citizens who try to attract businesses to the state.

"I was very pleased with the response we received from the Bloomingdale's officials," Hayden said in a release Wednesday. "They're excited to feature Kansas products in their stores during a special promotion tentatively scheduled for sometime either this spring or summer."

Seven representatives of Bloomingdale's will visit Kansas Oct. 18 for six days to interview about 200 companies being considered for product promotion in Bloomingdale's store. They will also visit attractions throughout the Kansas to learn as much about the state.

The promotion would feature Kansas in displays throughout Bloomingdale's department stores in New York City and 16 other locations. Four states, Maine, Louisiana, Vermont and Oregon have preceded Kansas in being featured in the stores.

"These promotions have been very successful for the states which have been featured," Hayden said. "I am confident they would be equally successful for Kansas."

Staff/Mark Leffingwell

Rowing for dollars

Rene Suazo, junior in animal science, participates in the sixth annual Erg-Athon, which raises money for K-State Crew. Team members rowed for 20 minutes and were sponsored for each meter rowed.

Quake

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

low-interest loans for reconstruction of homes and businesses.

Damage from the initial quake is estimated conservatively at $125 million, but the total will grow as inspections continue and figures from aftershocks are added, said Cindy Kawano of the state Office of Emergency Services.

The most recent sizable aftershock was a 3.0-magnitude tremor at 4:35 p.m. Thursday — the 26th of magnitude 3 or above since the Oct. 1 quake — and scientists say small quakes will likely continue for weeks.

However, "the likelihood of another major aftershock is extremely remote at this point," said seismologist Nancy Durland at Pasadena's California Institute of Technology, the prime monitoring agency for the region.

Map helps pinpoint genetics

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Scientists said Wednesday they have drawn a detailed map that helps to pinpoint human genes, an accomplishment they said will speed the search for the genetic causes of heart disease and many common inherited ailments.

The genetic map was described by researchers from Collaborative Research, a biotechnology firm in Bedford, Mass., and the Whitehead Institute for Biomedical Research and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, both in Cambridge.

Another map has been developed independently by Ray White of the University of Utah. Some details of both maps were described to scientists in September at a genetics workshop in Paris.

Such maps pinpoint specific sites spaced along the chromosomes that hold the 100,000 or so genes that contain the body's hereditary blueprints, marking genes that play crucial roles in human development.

Experts say the maps should make it possible to identify the genetic components of many common diseases, including those such as heart disease and cancer that may result from two or more genes — something that so far has never been done.

"I think it's a great achievement," said one of the nation's most distinguished geneticists, Dr. Victor McKusick of Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. David Botstein of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, one of the authors of the Collaborative study and a pioneer in the search for genetic markers, called the development "a milestone."

"It means that genes that cause diseases can be linked all over the genome," the body's 23 pairs of chromosomes, he said. "It's no longer a hit or miss process to the degree it was before."

The map should aid the search for prenatal tests for serious inherited disorders, and it should improve the understanding of what disease-causing genes are doing wrong so that their unwanted effects can be treated.

The work by Collaborative Research was outlined by Dr. Philip Green at a meeting of the American Society of Human Genetics in San Diego Wednesday. It will be published Oct. 23 in the journal Cell.

Genes, the carriers of hereditary information, are strung together to form chromosomes.

CLIP, KEEP
& SAVE
ALL WEEK

Crum's beauty college
1/2 OFF
Haircut

Mon.-Fri. 10:30 a.m. Appointments ONLY with this coupon

Expires 10-15-87

776-4794

512 Poyntz Ave.
Merriam, Kansas
66502

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE LARGE
TWO TOPPING PIZZA

WE DELIVER ALL
DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

$7.99

539-4888
"We Pile It On!"

Now Accepting
Visa
& MasterCard

PYRAMID PIZZA

Now Serving
Thin Crust

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE MEDIUM
TWO TOPPING PIZZA

WE DELIVER ALL
DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

$6.50

539-4888
"We Pile It On!"

Now Accepting
Visa
& MasterCard

PYRAMID PIZZA

Now Serving
Thin Crust

Dr. Paul E. Bullock
Optometrist

Bring this coupon in for a FREE consultation and see your eyes change from brown to blue.

Specialized Contact Lens Care
—Tinted (to enhance eye color)
—Extended/Flexible Wear
—Bi Focal

776-9461

404 Humboldt TOLL FREE or 1-800-432-0036
(1 blk. W. of Dillard's)

MasterCard VISA DISCOVER

JOYCE'S HAIR TREATERS

PERM SALE

Gals	Reg.	Now
Apple Pectin	$40	$30
Axiom	$45	$35
Warm & Gentle	$48	$38
Feels So Lively	$35	$25

Guys

Curly	$25
Body	$28
Partial	$20

All Perms Include
Cut and Style

539-TAME or 539-8601

404 Humboldt Expires 10/15/87

10% off any services must present coupon
exp. date 10/14/87

kinko's
Great copies. Great people.

1110 Laramie

537-7340

Kentucky Fried Chicken.

2 pieces of chicken, biscuit, potatoes & gravy

for only $1.79 with coupon

901 N. 3rd
3002 Anderson
Offer expires Oct. 14

We Do Chicken Right.

GET HEXAPPEAL
IT'S TAN-FAST-ICI

new BEGINNINGS

12 Sessions
for $25
Save $5

See our coupon in the Campus Connection

1107 N. 3rd, 537-1007

Offer expires
Oct. 31, 1987

Deadly Fun

A play called "A Grave Affair," is now breathing with the life of actors on stage, tonight and Saturday night at 8. See Page 7.

Weather

Partly cloudy Friday, high in low 60s. Northeast wind 15 to 25 mph. Mostly cloudy Friday night and Saturday. Low Friday night in mid- to upper 30s, high Saturday in mid-40s.

"My season just might not be over," David Wallace said with a smile. Wallace, who was injured, might return at season's end. See Page 9.

Friday
October 9, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 34

Kansas State Collegian

Senate passes $1.069 million plan for Holton

By Jim Dietz
Collegian Reporter

After 35 minutes of debate, Student Senate passed the $1.069 million renovation plan for Holton Hall at its meeting Thursday night.

The Holton proposal dominated debate until Senate voted by a two-thirds majority to suspend "Robert's Rules of Order" and reintroduce the original bill at 11:30 p.m. It passed with the 33 necessary votes at 12:05 a.m. Friday.

The $1.069 million plan calls for student money to pay for the entire renovation of Holton Hall. The money for the project began to be collected in 1983, after Senate voted to begin the consideration of renovating Holton hall for $780,000.

Despite the agreement that student money should not fund state buildings, many senators disagreed on how much student money should be spent on Holton Hall.

"This (the $780,000 plan) is our commitment, but it stops here," said Michelle Benoit, Senate chairperson. Benoit was one of a group of senators who introduced a bill to spend only the $780,000 in student money originally committed by Senate in 1983. That bill failed and was followed by the passage of the $1.069 million plan.

"We have to stop this very scary precedent (that student money be used to fund state buildings)," said Shelly Wakeman, senior in political science.

Among those in favor of the $1.069 million plan was Eirene Tatham, senior in construction science.

"Some senators voted for the plan to make sure the job was done right while others voted to get it over with," Tatham said.

"We would be cheating the students to do the job half way," said Matt Queen, senior in chemical science. Patrick Muir, senior in agricultural economics, agreed.

"We want Holton Hall to be something we can be proud of," he said.

A bill to amend the Senate constitution to prohibit the spending of student money on state buildings is scheduled to be introduced by Dan Owens, senior in economics, at next week's Senate meeting.

Handicap is no disability

Dedicated students triumph

By Chuck Homer
Collegian Reporter

"I have been told hell is losing my sight and my hands, but that's not true," said Bill Wedekind, sophomore in business and a disabled Vietnam veteran.

"Hell is just to the south of the Union. I know, because one day when coming out of the Union, I overheard two guys talking to each other. I heard one say to the other 'go to hell'. My leader dog, Casey, made a sharp left turn, so I know it's to the south of the Union," he said.

The ability to joke in the face of adversity, and triumph against tremendous odds, is what National Hire the Handicapped Week is all about, said Peg Spencer, from Kansas Social Rehabilitation Services public information.

Kansas activities began Oct. 1, when Gov. Mike Hayden signed a proclamation designating Oct. 4-10 as Employee-Qualified Disabled Week.

The focus of the week is on the attitudes and triumphs of the disabled, Spencer said.

There are approximately 70 disabled students attending K-State, said Gretchen Holden, coordinator for physically limited students.

"The fact these students are attending K-State is mute testimony to their determination," she said.

Holden said she functions as the advocate for physically limited students at K-State, assisting with decisions affecting their quality of life and helping them with integration into the college community.

That description falls short of what Holden really does, according to the students she assists.

"She's our battle commander, she is always in there battling for us," said Robert Lagerstedt, junior in finance, who uses a wheelchair.

Wedekind used the term "Superwoman" to describe Holden and declared that physically limited students at K-State would be in real trouble, if not for Holden and the services her office provides.

In addition to those students with highly visible disabilities, students with non-visible handicaps such as learning disabilities and arthritis, respiratory and diabetic conditions are also supported, Holden said.

There are a myriad of types of support services, such as interpreters, notetakers and building-to-building transportation, she said.

For students with mobility impairments, the problem of accessibility to some buildings has not been overcome, Holden said. There are still places on campus, such as Calvin Hall, she said, that cannot be accessed above the basement.

"Calvin Hall is a problem, and will continue to be until it is renovated or replaced, and an elevator installed," said Bruce Cook, senior

Staff/Brett Hacker

Bill Wedekind, sophomore in business, throws a pot in his ceramics class. Wedekind said overcoming difficulties after losing his sight and hands in Vietnam has been a slow but sure process.

in accounting and finance, who uses a wheelchair.

"Three years ago accessibility on this campus was very poor, but in the last three years tremendous progress has been made," Cook said.

Aggieville continues to be an accessibility problem. A survey conducted three years ago revealed that 68 percent of all Aggieville businesses had at least one step-up to enter the business, Cook said.

The situation has improved somewhat, but curb cuts, which enable impaired people to get from the street to the sidewalk, are still a problem, especially at 12th and Moro streets, he said.

"What is good about our society, is that we have the time, knowledge, and money to help the disabled, it's just that sometimes the channels for making it happen get messed up," Lagerstedt said.

The bottom line of all accessibility issues is funding, he said.

Representatives of Students for Handicapped Concerns, a group composed of disabled K-State students, participate in meetings with the administration to provide input regarding accessibility problems.

Until the state of Kansas or the federal government provides additional funding, only limited progress can be expected, Lagerstedt said.

The appropriation of student money to pay for the installation of an elevator in Anderson Hall two years ago is indicative of the tremendous support given to students with disabilities by the student body, Cook said.

"That action carried a far more significant message for disabled students than most would perceive," he said.

"When people ask if I need help, I usually say no, because of my desire to be independent, but please don't stop offering," Lagerstedt said.

Wedekind, an accomplished pottery maker, lost his sight and both hands in an enemy ambush in Vietnam. Cook is a wheelchair racer listed in "Sports and Spokes" magazine and is a former student senator. Both Lagerstedt and Cook were disabled as a result of car accidents.

Praise for the faculty and students evolved as a central theme during interviews with the three.

"I have nothing but the highest respect for the faculty and students," Lagerstedt said.

U.S. fires, sinks 3 Iranian boats in Persian Gulf

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S. helicopter gunships sank three Iranian patrol boats in the Persian Gulf on Thursday after an American observation helicopter was fired upon without provocation, the Pentagon said.

It was the first American military engagement in the region since the United States attacked an Iranian ship laying mines on Sept. 21, and the first to involve a direct attack on U.S. forces by Iran.

Officials said no Americans were hurt in the confrontation.

At least six Iranian crewmen survived Thursday's assault and were picked up from the gulf's waters by a U.S. patrol boat, said Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman.

Three of the six were reported in serious condition, he said, adding that a search for other survivors was continuing.

President Reagan was informed of the incident by Lt. Gen. Colin L. Powell of the National Security Council staff. Powell went to the Oval Office at 3:30 p.m. EDT to brief Reagan, said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. He said the president would be updated on developments as warranted.

"It appears it was an isolated incident," Fitzwater said. "We did not provoke the incident in any way. Our helicopters acted in self defense because they were fired upon."

He said the administration would review the incident in terms of the War Powers Act, which if invoked gives Congress a say in whether American forces could remain in the region. The administration has refused to invoke the law over the Persian Gulf deployment.

Fitzwater said the act is reviewed every time there is an incident and "will be after this incident, as well, but there are no preliminary judgments to make other than we will comply with the spirit of the resolution by giving full and detailed consultations to the Congress."

Asked if the Iranians picked up from the water would be returned home, Fitzwater noted that the United States repatriated Iranians who were captured from the mine-laying boat.

"I think the other incident is instructive of our general attitude, but I just couldn't go beyond that," Fitzwater said.

Hoffman said the incident occurred 9:50 p.m. local time in the gulf, or 2:50 p.m. EDT. He said the American helicopters were flying in international airspace and mounted the attack "within the rules of engagement in self-defense."

Hoffman said he didn't know how many helicopter gunships took part in the attack, but indicated he thought

■ See ATTACK, Page 11

250 additional reserved parking spaces allocated

By Jackie Brazzle
Collegian Reporter

Following complaints from faculty and staff, the Council of Traffic, Parking and Police Operations has allocated an additional 250 reserved parking spaces.

The spaces are being offered on a trial basis from Oct. 1, 1987 to Dec. 31, 1988. Richard Brenner, physical plant supervisor II of the Department of Housing, said the trial period is just to see how the spaces are accepted. The committee will decide whether to make the spaces permanent in the 1989 spring semester.

The spaces are being filled on a first-come, first-serve basis, and K-State Police has received 43 applications, Brenner said.

The University Ad Hoc Committee on Parking Utilization is collecting information to see if the reserved spaces will be wanted and needed after the trial period.

The plan is Section 8 of a recommendation by the ad hoc parking committee. The section reads: "It is recommended that availability of reserved parking spaces for any faculty/staff member who wishes it to be adopted to the limit of 500 reserved spaces. Additional reserved spaces may be awarded if after one full year of implementation it is found that no significant adverse effect has resulted."

Under the plan, reserved spaces will be available to faculty/staff permit holders at a prorated cost of $37 for a 10-hour space and $55 for a 24-hour space. Annual costs are $110 for a 10-hour space and $165 for a 24-hour space. However, Brenner said the costs are likely to go up.

The committee just wanted to help

■ See PARKING, Page 11

Briefly

By The Associated Press

8 indicted for abducting Moonie

DENVER — The Denver Grand Jury on Thursday indicted eight people on kidnapping and conspiracy charges accusing them of abducting a Unification Church follower in Denver and attempting to deprogram her.

The eight were charged with kidnapping Britta Adolfsson Hitchler, 29, from a street in Denver's Capitol Hill on May 26. After being kept a prisoner for seven days, the woman escaped from an apartment in Lyons, Kan., on June 2 while her abductors slept.

Authorities said Thursday that arrest warrants have been issued for Dennis G. Whelan, 52, an Omaha, Neb., private detective specializing in deprogramming cases; Jim L. Hilzender, 27, of Omaha; Lawrence G. Whelan, 24, son of Dennis Whelan and also of Omaha; Patrick A. Kinney, 24, of Omaha; Judith R. Kowal, 25, of Omaha; Robert L. Brandyberry, 40, Brice, Ohio; Deann Reher, 30, of Ohio, and Linda Miller, 24, of Douglas County.

The indictment said Hitchler's parents, physicist Tord Adolfsson and his wife Margit, of Malmo, Sweden, contacted Brandyberry and Denis Whelan in April and asked them to make arrangements to abduct and deprogram their daughter, a follower of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

Falwell resigns as PTL leader

FORT MILL, S.C. — The board of the PTL ministry resigned Thursday and PTL Chairman Jerry Falwell said he feared defrocked minister Jim Bakker could return, making the ministry "the greatest scab and cancer on the face of Christianity in 2,000 years."

The resignations were prompted by a court ruling Wednesday that allowed PTL's creditors and contributors to file a competing plan for reorganizing the ministry, which is plagued by more than $60 million in debt.

Bakker, in a news conference at his mountaintop retreat near Gatlinburg, Tenn., said he would return to the ministry if invited to do so by its creditors. Bakker said he thought Falwell was resigning to avoid testifying under oath in bankruptcy court.

Falwell, who has his own ministry based in Lynchburg, Va., said PTL's main television program, the "PTL Club," will remain on the air at least three weeks, but the payroll at the "Heritage USA" theme park will not be paid Friday.

Heroic cat's cries save owner

GRESHAM, Ore. — A cat's cries awakened its owner as their home filled with smoke from a fire caused by a smoldering cigarette, officials say.

"Had it not been for that cat, she'd never made it out of there," said Bill Jolly, a spokesman for the Gresham Fire Department.

Patricia M. Mooney, 55, was treated for smoke inhalation at Mount Hood Medical Center and released following the early morning fire Wednesday.

Mooney had removed the battery from her smoke detector because it was weak, which caused the detector to emit an irritating noise periodically, Jolly said.

The fire was started by a cigarette smoldering on a couch. After the cat's cries roused Mooney, she went next door and her neighbor called the fire department, Jolly said.

The fire caused a total of $25,000 damage, officials estimated.

Luggage startles New Mexicans

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Skies here have been filled with flying objects during the city's annual hot air balloon festival, but some residents discovered the airways contained several unexpected items.

Two pieces of baggage fell from a Mesa Airlines plane Wednesday and plunged 1,000 feet to the ground.

"We were in the house and heard a splat," said Duane Hamman.

A leather bag had landed on his roof, leaving an imprint and popping loose some nails from the ceiling. A briefcase hit a neighbor's yard, spewing papers and other items.

Mesa Airlines President Larry Risley said a latch on a wing locker door had failed on the plane, which was carrying nine passengers to Farmington. The pilot returned to Albuquerque's airport and the passengers were put on another flight.

The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating.

Pumpkins may be scarce

DES MOINES, Iowa — Part of the state's pumpkin crop ripened too early or rotted in the fields, which could mean a pumpkin shortage this Halloween, growers and horticulturists say.

"It hasn't been good," said Sherry Beattie of Runnells. "A lot of them have been ripe for so long that when you pick them up by the tops, the bottoms stay on the ground."

Grocery store produce managers are hustling to find pumpkins for the Halloween season.

"This is the first time I've run up against anything like this," said Larry Anderson of a Dahl's Food Mart in Des Moines. "I walked around a field up by Waukee where one man is going to be lucky to get 20 or 25 percent of his normal crop."

Henry Taber of the Iowa State University horticulture department said the condition of the pumpkin crop varies. In some parts of Iowa, the ground will be covered with pumpkins, he said, but in central and south central areas some of the crop is looking soft.

Monkey doesn't worry Soviets

MOSCOW — The mischievous monkey that freed his left paw and grabbed for whatever he could on an orbiting Soviet spaceship can't cause any damage, a Soviet scientist said Thursday.

Rostislav A. Ruzin, a spokesman for the Soviet biomedical institute involved in the experiments aboard the flight, said there were no plans to bring the prankish monkey Yerosha and his fellow travelers down early.

Ruzin said in a telephone interview that Yerosha was "probing with great curiosity" whatever he could reach. But he said the monkey is isolated in a sealed chamber and cannot reach any of the other chambers.

The flight is going as scheduled, and there is no plan to bring it back early, Ruzin said.

Soviet press reports had raised the possibility the mission might be curtailed if the monkey Yerosha could reach switches and buttons and cause trouble for the mission that blasted off Sept. 29.

Five days into the flight scientists noticed on ground monitors that Yerosha had worked his paw free and removed the metal tag from his helmet. One paper reported he was "joyfully investigating everything around."

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB members need to sign up today for Oktoberfest on the first floor bulletin board in Shellenberger Hall.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS award applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Acker 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at K-State are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students; the awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTER-VIEWS applicants for 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT FILING FORMS are now available in the Student Governing Association office in the Union. Filing deadline is Oct. 20.

CAREER COUNSELING CENTER Making a Major Decision- Career Life Planning Independent Study for one hour credit. Contact the Counseling Center, 532-6927, for details. The course begins this week.

ICAT sign up for the road trip to Missouri in Ahearn 101. Cost is $25 for ticket and transportation.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

WOMEN'S RESOURCE CENTER meets at noon in Union 213. The speakers will be Dr. Eleftherios Pavlides and Dr. Jana Hesser.

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nauticus Towers—Aggieville

FINANCE CLUB meets at 5:30 a.m. in front of Calvin Hall for a Kansas City field trip.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 5 p.m. in Shellenberger 110 to begin baking for Oktoberfest.

BETA SIGMA PSI LITTLE SISTERS meet at 7 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

SUNDAY

K-LAIRES meets at 3 p.m. at Alta Vista (Tom Jones' farm) for hog roast and hayrack ride. Call 539-5875 for ride information.

LUTHERAN YOUNG ADULTS meets at 6 p.m. at City Park for softball.

GYMNASTICS CLUB meets at 8:30 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI PLEDGES meet at 6 p.m. in City Park.

HORSEMAN'S ASSOCIATION meets at 5:45 p.m. in front of Call for a hayrack ride and hotdog roast for members, guests and anyone interested in joining.

STUDENTS SOLIDARITY WITH CENTRAL AMERICA meets at 8:30 p.m. in Union 206 to watch the film, "Witness to War."

The Station
TGIF

FREE TGIF TERRIFIC BUFFET,
JOIN MANHATTAN'S TGIF TRADITION!

No membership needed
For restaurant & bar!
Open To Public!
1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Sigma Sigma Sigma,
Off Campus

Oct. 12: Tau Kappa Epsilon,
Theta Xi, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

"THANK YOU!"

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK

The Kansas State University Students Against Driving Drunk Chapter would like to thank the following individuals for making our September 26, 1987 "SADD Day" a reality.

A-1 Auto Parts
Aggie Lounge
All-State Insurance
Alpha Tau Omega
Assoc. of Flint Hills Life Underwriters
Brother's
Bushwacker's
Campbell Distributor, Inc.
Capital Federal Savings and Loan
City of Manhattan - (B.A.D.D. and Manhattan Helping Hand Action Program)
Columbia Savings and Loan Association
Dick Edwards Ford
Farm Bureau
Fast Eddy's
FirstBank
Ft. Riley Counseling Center
Ft. Riley Public Service Department
Kistner's Flowers
KSU Alcohol & Other Drug Educ. Services
KSU Athletic Department
KSU Housing Department
KSU Police Department

KQLA-103.9 FM
Lafene Student Health Center
Lutheran Campus Ministries
Manhattan Federal Savings and Loan Manhattan Fire Department
Manhattan High School SADD
Manhattan Jaycees
Memorial Hospital
Mr. J. Lester Hooper
National Video, Manhattan Store
Pawnee Mental Health
Peoples Heritage Federal Savings
Pepsi Cola Bottling Company
Pizza Huts of Manhattan
Rickle's
Riley County Emergency Medical Services
Steel and Pipe Company
Student Council, Manhattan Christian College
University Amoco
The Manhattan Optimist Club
The Little Apple Task Force
University Amoco
Walmart
82nd Medical Detachment MAST Helicopter
24th Transportation Department

Attention:

Students, Faculty/Staff and Campus Departments

1987-88 Campus Directories on Sale NOW

You'll need the directory to call friends, conduct campus business, use the coupons and yellow page ads, and refer to campus and city maps.

Buy your directory in Kedzie 103.

$1 for students (limit two with student I.D.) and $1.50 for non-students.

FREE Hors d'oeuvres 5 p.m.

Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.
Next Week
Eddy Strange

KSU Showcase of Talent
Auditions Oct. 11 & 12

Comedy, Vocals, Lip Sync & Instrumentals

For more info call: Scott Jones 776-7852

Bar 539-9727

531 N. Manhattan

Office 539-4321

Falsetto's PIZZA

539-3830

For the Best "Homemade" Pizza
in town with the Best
"Hometown" Price.

$5.99

Two Delicious
Homemade Pizzas

MENU
Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
		TWO 10"	TWO 14"
Cheese	5.99	8.99
1 Item	6.94	10.39
2 Items	7.89	11.79
3 Items	8.84	13.19
4 Items	9.79	14.59
Deluxe	9.79	14.59
Veggie	9.79	14.59
Supreme	10.74	15.99
Each Additional Item95	1.40

Prices do not include tax
We Accept Checks 1127 Moro • Aggieville

Indian scholar speaks at forum

India faces two revolutions, speaker says

By Jennifer Chaulk
Campus Editor

A distinguished scholar from India, a country representing one of every five people in the world, is visiting K-State to talk about the country's social, economic and political challenges.

Ramashray Roy, the Mid-America

State Universities Association distinguished international scholar, spoke to a political science class and at an open forum Thursday.

Roy explained India's status as a developing country, outlining the kinds of difficulties it faces in its attempt to become a self-sustaining nation.

"There are great expectations among Indians that their lifestyles will become better," Roy said. "A large segment of the population has come to expect a better life."

Roy said India is undergoing two revolutions — industrial and democratic.

"Economic growth with social justice will be the results of the revolution," he said.

Roy said the industrial revolution is vital to the country because it has been "economically backward." Getting this revolution into full swing, however, may be difficult because "economic well-being has never been a large value of the Indian population."

Roy said India has had an economic growth rate of about 3 percent. This rate has been "dormant" and must be raised if India is to become economically stable, he added.

An off-shoot of industrialization will be the elimination of social inequality. This elimination is the first step in achieving a true democracy, he said.

"Social inequality must leave, and it will, if India succeeds in industrializing itself. And it will," Roy said.

Historically, Roy said India has had privileged and unprivileged classes. A state where these divisions are wiped out has the chance for democracy, he said.

Roy said the Indian government must be stabilized if the country is to achieve its goals.

He said the ruling party in India — the Indian National Congress — is losing its popularity. Of the 16 nation-states in India, Congress parties rule in only seven.

He said democracy does exist, however, and there is "no reason to think it will stop."

The government's main opposition comes from localized and fragmented parties, Roy said. These parties have not been able to unify a front against the government in power.

Another political conflict in the country is the fact that ethnic groups want to "have autonomy — control over their own resources."

Roy is confident these problems will be overcome, and he recognizes the task the government faces is difficult.

"It (the government) is engaged in creating a new society," he said. "The legitimacy of it depends on the extent the government performs its job well."

Roy is a senior research fellow at the Centre for the Study of Developing Societies at Delhi University in India. He has a doctorate in political science from the University of California at Berkeley and has been a visiting professor at Berkeley, the University of Texas and the University of California at Los Angeles. He has written 10 books and over 50 articles.

Roy will be speaking to a South Asia civilization class today before leaving Manhattan. His visit to the University is sponsored by the South Asia Center, the Graduate School and the Department of Political Science.

'Wild oats' haunting Robertson

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson, in his first appearance since he acknowledged being legally married 10 weeks before the birth of his first child, said Thursday he sowed wild oats in his youth but Jesus had forgiven him.

The former minister and television evangelist also said he didn't think journalists covering the presidential campaign should be making such inquiries.

The Wall Street Journal reported Tuesday that Robertson and his wife, Dede, were legally married 10 weeks before the birth of their first child, and on Thursday, The Washington Post quoted him as saying he and his wife felt married from the day they conceived their son.

Robertson said he hadn't previously revealed his wedding date in an effort to "protect his family," the Post reported.

"I have never, ever, claimed that I was free from the normal life of a young college man," Robertson told reporters here before addressing some 250 supporters at a fund-raising luncheon.

"I have never, ever, indicated that in the early part of my life I didn't sow some wild oats. I sowed plenty of them."

"But I also said that Jesus Christ came into my life, changed my life and forgave me."

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Dr. Ramashray Roy, the Mid-America State Universities Association's distinguished international scholar, was here Thursday discussing change in India. Roy, a native Indian, is visiting America for three weeks.

SPAGHETTI SUNDAY

ALL YOU CAN EAT SPAGHETTI AND GARLIC BREAD!! ONLY $3.25 SERVING 5-8 p.m.

SUNDAY LUNCH TOO

619 N. 12TH, Aggieville

50% OFF SOFTIE COOKIEWICH™

Bring this coupon in to receive 50% off any Softie Cookiewich™ available in a variety of frozen yogurt flavors and cookie combinations. Limit two cookies per coupon.

Celebrate Octoberfest with a delicious frozen yogurt treat!!

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily Noon 11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Coupon Expires Oct. 20, 1987

The Fishbowl is back! Drink Specials All Night. 105 N. 3rd Downtown 539-9904

GOETSCH-IRVINE CHRYSLER-PLYMOUTH-SUBARU

4th and Leavenworth
Phone 776-4875
Expires 11/15/87

10% off

any repair work or maintenance on your car with this coupon

Excludes body shop repair

THE Palace Cards & Gifts

SAT. OCTOBER 10 ONLY

Save up to 50%

On Over stocked and Discontinued items on the Sidewalk

Mon.-Thurs. 8:30-8:30, Fri. & Sat. 8:30-5:30, Sun. 12-5
539-7654 • in Aggieville • 704 N. Manhattan Ave.

Harvest Super Sale!

25% Off selected shrubs:

Regal Privet-Ideal hedging plant
Reg. $9.95/2gal. pot Sale $7.49

Kerria-Yellow springtime flowers
Reg. $9.95/2gal. pot Sale $7.49

Pauli Euonymus-Glossy evergreen foliage
Reg. $11.95/2gal. pot Sale $8.95

$2.00 Off Shredded Hardwood Mulch
Replenish your shrub and flower beds before Winter

Reg. $4.95/3 cu. ft. bag Sale $2.95

All prices good through October 12
Cash and Carry only
Remember... we're open Friday evenings until 7:30!

Horticultural Services

• Garden Center •

Mon-Sat 8-6 Sun 10-6
776-5764

2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

Students Are Welcome!

Statement of Faith:

We believe the Bible to be the inspired, the only infallible, authoritative Word of God.

We believe there is one almighty, perfect and true God: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, eternally coexistent personalities of the same essence.

We believe in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, in His virgin birth, His sinless life, His substitutionary death, His bodily resurrection, His ascension to the right hand of the Father and His personal return in power and glory.

We believe in the personality of the Holy Spirit, and in His ministry of convicting and regenerating sinful men, and indwelling, sealing and empowering believers.

We believe in the fall of man from the state of innocence in which he was created to one of total depravity in which he is devoid of spiritual life, and incapable, apart from divine power, of pleasing God.

We believe in the justification of the sinner by grace through faith alone.

We believe that the church universal is composed of all true believers and that its members should assemble themselves together in local churches for worship, prayer, fellowship and teaching with a view to being equipped to fulfill the Great Commission.

We believe in the bodily resurrection of the saved to immortality, and in the conscious eternal suffering of the lost.

10:30 a.m. Sundays
University Inn (17th & Anderson)

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 9, 1987 ■ Page 4

College life hectic for student on the go

Dear Jeff,

This semester marks the first time in my life that I am truly on my own. My roommates and I have to do all the cooking, all the cleaning and all the laundry. It is driving me crazy! How am I supposed to do all of this work and also finish my studies? My parents always told me to do one thing, and do it well. Now that I am in college, I do a lot of things — most of them poorly. Is there a way to do well in college, eat good meals and be relatively tidy — all at the same time? If not, which of these virtues is the most desirable? You know, what will make me the most money after I graduate?

signed,

Running Scared of Bleach, Burgers and Biology

Dear Running Scared,

K-State offers a number of courses to help students with certain problems the administration finds important. A course on study skills is available to teach organization, but no course on cleanliness is available to teach laundry skills. However, this does not mean that you are out of luck. There are many tricks a person can use to be the all-around neat person that every Fortune 500 company wants to hire. Here are some of my favorites.

■ Polyester is the sloppy person's silk. You can't ruin polyester. It does not turn funny colors in the washing machine, and it does not shrink in the dryer (however, since it is plastic, it would melt during a nuclear attack — but so would your skin.) Throw away everything you have that is not polyester and replace your entire wardrobe with the wonderful fabric. Just make sure you buy everything in sets of 14 — especially underwear, pants and shirts. This way, if you wear everything twice, you would only have to do laundry once a month. Since you wear only polyester, no one would get close enough to you to find out if your clothes smell.

Polyester, TV dinners suggested

Another benefit comes on laundry day. You wouldn't have to waste your time sorting whites, darks, jeans, etc. You will only have to sort them into two piles — those to be washed and those that can go another month. Furthermore, you can just designate a part of your apartment — like the floor closest to where you undress — as a revolutionary new type of "hanger-less closet." You won't need to hang your clothes up because polyester doesn't wrinkle very much, and if it does, just consider yourself and your wrinkled clothing a step ahead of the fashion magazines. But

Commentary

JEFF SCHRAG
Collegian Columnist

save your hangers, because if your new style catches on in New York and Paris, they may request them for the Smithsonian.

■ Don't be embarrassed because you can't cook. No one who worked in the lunchroom at my high school could cook either. The principal (who always went home for lunch) just assumed they knew what they were doing, because they all wore hairnets. However, this is all irrelevant unless you want a job in the high paying field of lunchroom maintenance and supervision.

Have you ever heard of TV dinners, microwave burritos or Dominos' two-for-one night? The entire frozen food industry was developed for people like you who couldn't fix a hamburger if all the ingredients were cooked and laying in front of you. Every convenience store in America exists to cater to your specific problem. In fact, boiling water was invented so if something you cook is inedible, you will know that none of the little germs and parasites will enjoy it either.

Finally, if all of this advice fails to give you some good ideas on food, remember that prisons, hospitals and mental institutions serve three hot meals a day. If, for example, you bought a gun, then you would have many options. You could shoot someone, plead guilty and go to prison. You could shoot someone, plead insanity and go to a mental institution. Or you could shoot yourself, plead stupidity and go to the hospital. The choice is yours, the food is all about the same.

■ As for doing well in college, I'm afraid you are asking the wrong person. For years I thought a National Merit Scholar was a former Boy Scout who earned a merit badge by being able to correctly spell the names of all fifty states. During third grade I was absent on the day we learned how to divide, so I'll never be able to work in a pizza place. If you added up all of my semester grade point averages, you still wouldn't have a 4.0. My goal at K-State is not to graduate, but to pass college algebra.

I do have friends, believe it or not, and some of them are here to get a quality education. They tell me things like, go to class, read your textbooks and study before each test. I personally don't want to wear myself out, and plan to gradually implement their suggestions over the next three semesters. Maybe you could do the same? Of course, holidays like birthdays and laundry day are excused absences. If you plan to get out of here in less than 8 years, however, you may want to spend more time concentrating on your studies, and less time concentrating on the afternoon soaps.

■ Your final question was, which of your problems is the most important to solve in order to get a good job? I can't answer that. Wearing polyester put Gerald Ford in the White House. Cooking with Rice kept Gary Hart out of the White House. Getting good grades is usually a good idea, but the lack of good grades never stopped Marilyn Monroe. As long as you are happy with your situation, don't worry that you are a total failure. Worrying will just lead to high blood pressure.

Senate bypasses logic in passing Holton bill

In this editorial space exactly two weeks ago, Student Senate was praised for adhering to its original 1983 commitment of $780,000 for the Holton Hall renovation project. The editorial's words read: "Student Senate made one of the wisest decisions...it is likely to make all semester."

Thursday night, Senate made one of the most lame-brain and irresponsible decisions it is likely to make. Ever.

Senate approved, by a 33-13 vote, to appropriate the additional $290,000 administration officials had requested to help pay for the $1.069 million Holton renovation, bypassing all elements of good sense as well as the students' voice. Now, students will — without the opportunity to at least vote on it — be forced to pay hundreds of thousands of dollars extra for a building that primarily houses state-funded agencies.

What was Senate thinking?

Obviously not much. At the very least, Senate was obligated to allow students the opportunity to vote on the increase. After all, it is the students' money Senate is dealing with. And this is no game.

While it is unacceptable for Senate to give carte blanche approval to any increase in students' expenditures, it is infuriating that it allowed the increase for Holton Hall.

How much do students benefit from the building? A quick answer comes in the fact that very few even know where it is.

In light of that, how many would have voted to sink even more money into a building that has absolutely nothing to offer? Not many, and that's probably why Senate passed it. It is obviously so concerned with pleasing the administration that it has become blind to logic and reason.

In fact, this latest Senate fiasco illustrates all too clearly what the supposedly representative body has become: a mouthpiece and rubber stamp for the administration. It was true last spring when then Senate Chairwoman Sally Traeger threatened to override the students' vote on the Athletic Fee Referendum the day after students soundly rejected the proposal.

Only publicity and angry calls from constituents prevented her from presenting it to Senate.

With representation such as was exhibited Thursday night, Senate could effectively dissolve and students wouldn't be any the worse for it.

Pat Robertson episode an oh-so-sweet irony

Alas, the fickle hand of fate has tapped Pat Robertson on the shoulder, and we mortal Americans can take heart that the would-be president has joined our ranks. The evangelist has confirmed newspaper reports that 33 years ago he became a father just 10 weeks after he was married.

And while Robertson admitted his "sowing of wild oats" was a sin for which he's already atoned, he now knows what it's like to be judged. For those who don't remember, Robertson had said that AIDS was sent from above to punish homosexuals for their "sinful" lifestyle.

And now who's being punished for whose lifestyle?

How sweet is this irony.

And who said life isn't fair?

Letters

Whole picture need

Editor,

I appreciated your discussions of the moral dilemmas of Joseph Biden, Gary Hart and Jessica Hahn in Thursday's Collegian, Sept. 24, 1987. I agree that it is appropriate for the media to expose the lack of integrity in Hahn's story, the plagiarism of Biden and the antics of Hart. However, I am not nearly as optimistic as you that the media has "won one more battle" for democracy. Even if this is so, democracy may well be losing the war at the same time it is winning a battle.

We in this society embrace a very odd morality, whereby the plagiarism of one person, or the sexual activities of a few persons, is considered far more unethical and immoral than the bad decisions made by the leaders that affect entire populations.

I am not suggesting that we should dismiss the immorality of Biden, Hart, Hahn, et. al. But I am suggesting that we should be at least as morally concerned about the nomination of Robert "Watergate" Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court by President Ronald "Contragate" Reagan. We should be no less morally concerned about Nancy Kassebaum's past votes to support Contra aid and the terrorizing affects that action has on innocent people in Nicaragua. We should be as concerned about the immorality of Bob Dole's support of guerilla forces in Mozambique and Angola in southern Africa, which he has done to court the vote of the "Far Right." Even the Reagan administration will not agree with Dole's position on this issue. Dole has to turn to Jesse Helms to find a partner. The decisions of Reagan, Kassebaum and Dole, among others, have far more serious implications for a much greater number of people than the antics of Biden, Hart and Hahn. If the media is going to take up the "moral issues" in our society — and I think that is appropriate — it is obligated to deal with the whole picture and to focus the greatest attention and energy on the actions that have the most far-reaching moral effects. To do less is to engage in soap opera journalism.

A. David Stewart campus minister

Hear Palau speak

Editor,

You may have seen posters and ads around campus for Luis Palau. I just thought I would write in reference to him and his message. I first met Palau several years ago when he spoke at the college I went to in the Chicago area. Since then he has been to England and other countries in Europe, parts of Africa and Asia, throughout South America and many other areas of the world talking about hope and the potential for a better life here and now. He is a Christian evangelist, but please do not lump him into a Falwell-, Roberts- or Graham-type mold. He is an energetic yet sensitive Argentinian with a heart for people who have few places in which to place their hope.

You may wonder why an internationally known person like Palau is coming to Manhattan, since it is not a major world-class city or a hotbed of vice and destruction where one might expect such an evangelist to have a "campaign." A few people in Manhattan, including myself, felt we could use a burst of hope and encouragement in the heartland of America.

I would like to invite you to come and consider what Palau has to say at one of several of his advertised meetings at Ahearn. Be prepared to engage your heart as well as your mind when you come to hear him speak.

John Bechtold
graduate in psychology

Wrong priorities

Editor,

Re: Roger S. Swanson's letter "No Courage," Oct. 7, 1987.

It's pretty easy for you to sit in Florida and write us a letter saying we're all whimps because we don't have a winning football team. But the question I have is where are we going to get all the money needed to get a really good football team? If you look at Oklahoma and Nebraska it seems pretty obvious that there is a direct proportion between money spent and games won. But is having a winning football team really going to matter to us in ten years as much as a winning engineering or veterinarian medicine college? Right now the University of Nebraska has plans to build an indoor practice field for their football team. But their chemistry students aren't going to be studying in a brand new laboratory, and their nuclear engineers don't have a reactor right in their campus. I'm from Nebraska, but decided to come to K-State and pay out-of-state tuition because I feel that K-State has its priorities set a lot better than Nebraska. But I also have a season ticket for the 'Cats and can still have fun at football games whether we win or lose.

John Skarda
junior in computer engineering

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

'Positive experience' at K-State closes as assistant director of admissions resigns

John Flemming, assistant director of admissions since 1984, is resigning to take over as director of admissions at the University of Nebraska-

Omaha beginning Oct. 19. He considers K-State a "positive experience," but is still looking forward to his new job.

By Shawn Dorsch
Collegian Reporter

John Flemming, assistant director of admissions, is resigning to become the director of admissions at the University of Nebraska-Omaha within two weeks.

Flemming, an Omaha native, said he really wanted to go back to Omaha somewhere down the line in his career, and this is his opportunity.

An assistant director of admissions at K-State since October 1984, Flemming will begin his new job Oct. 19.

Although Flemming described his career at K-State as "a positive experience," he said he is looking forward to his new job.

Flemming said his job at K-State consists of being in charge of the campus visitation program for new and transfer students.

"We see a pretty good percentage of those who tour the campus," he said.

Prospective students call Flemming's office and he organizes campus tours and makes appointments with the college in which the student is interested. Tours are offered Monday through Friday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Most of the time students answer the phones in admissions and talk to the prospective students, Flemming said.

"We provide student-to-student communication. We feel it makes the newcomer more comfortable to be able to talk with the students of K-State instead of just the personnel," he said.

"We've really come a long way in the last few years," he said. "We've done about as much as we can with the campus visitation program."

Flemming said he would like to see the parking problem at K-State improve.

"Parking is the first stumbling block many prospective students have," he said.

They come from smaller high schools and are apprehensive about K-State to begin with, he said. They don't need the added problem of not being able to find a parking space.

"We try to get around this problem," Flemming said.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Admissions policy topic of discussion

By Brad Fanshler
Collegian Reporter

Four K-State officials agreed that procedures need to be taken slowly toward a selective admissions policy at a forum Thursday in the Union Cafeteria.

The forum was part of the UPC Issues and Ideas Committee's "Let's Talk About It..." series.

Pat Bosco, assistant vice president of institutional advancement and dean of student life; Veryl Switzer, assistant vice president of minority affairs; John Flemming, assistant director of pre-admissions; and Tim Balfour, pre-admissions counselor, talked with about 20 people on the possible effects of implementing a selective admissions policy at K-State.

The proposal being looked at by the Kansas Board of Regents would restrict enrollment at K-State, the University of Kansas and The Wichita State University based on each prospective student's high school performance and ACT scores.

Bosco cautioned against an abrupt change in the admissions policy.

"We have been operating quite successfully under the open admissions policy for 100 years. For us to ask to have this policy changed in a relatively short period of time, I don't believe we would be giving our University community and the people we serve adequate time to study this proposal," he said.

Bosco and Switzer expressed concern over the proposed standards for the new policy. Both men view the new standards as substantial obstacles to many students, especially those from small or rural schools where facilities may be limited.

"We know that about 40 percent of our students are from graduating classes smaller than 100 students," Bosco said.

Switzer is also concerned about problems for minority students from the use of ACT scores.

"It's common knowledge that minorities, in particular blacks, score much lower on standardized test scores than majority students," he said.

The group also discussed the possible positive aspects of changing the policy. The main advantages given by proponents of the change are a drop in costs for remedial programs and a stronger academic reputation. But all four of the speakers voiced doubt about these advantages.

Switzer said over 800 schools nationwide have federally funded remedial education programs and the federal government puts about $175 million into the state level every year for these programs. However, even in universities with selective enrollment, a great deal is spent on remedial programs.

"Every school has students with special needs, whether it be Harvard or K-State," Bosco said.

Bosco also said the thought that admission policies would eliminate the need for remedial programs is unfounded. He said UCLA, an institution that only admits students who graduate in the top 12 percent of their high school class, still has over 50 percent of their freshmen enrolled in non-credit, remedial math and English classes.

Balfour and Flemming said they feel selective admissions would not improve K-State's academic image.

"High school students do look at the schools' reputation, but I don't think selective admissions is going to change (the reputation) that much," Balfour said.

"K-State has a good reputation," Flemming said of the quality of graduates. "I think we should be more concerned with the quality of the finished product than what is coming in."

All four agreed there was a need to give everyone the opportunity for higher education and questioned the outcome if that policy was changed.

"Can we put ourselves in the position of saying 'No, you can't try' to anyone?" Flemming asked. "It's fine when it happens to someone else, but when it happens to someone in your own family — perhaps the child of an alumni — then what happens?"

OPEN FORUM

The Task Force reviewing the counseling, mental and physical health services provided to KSU students invites comments from students, faculty, and staff.

Tuesday, October 13
and Tuesday, October 20
3:30 p.m.

K-State Union, Room 212

For further information contact:
Mike Lynch, 204 Holton Hall, 532-6492

ALL YOU CAN EAT SUNDAY BRUNCH

Make this a Sunday tradition for your family! Our Sunday, all you can eat brunch from 10:30-2:00 features, your breakfast and lunch favorites.

only $6.95

University Club
Restaurant & Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

SHOWTIME

- Ferris Bueller's Day Off
- Avenging Force
- 52 Pick-Up
- Trick or Treat
- Blue Velvet
- The Delta Force
- A Room With A View

- Elaine Booster
- Broadway Baby
- It's Garry Shandling's Show
- The Rock 'n' Roll Summit: An American-Soviet Music Event

SHOWTIME
TOP 10

OCTOBER

Now every month, Showtime guarantees you at least 10 exclusive movies and original shows you can't see on HBO. We call them the Showtime Top Ten Exclusives.

ONLY ON SHOWTIME...NOT ON HBO!

SHOWTIME THE MOVIE CHANNEL, INC. 1987. All Rights Reserved. Titles Exclusive to SHOWTIME THE MOVIE CHANNEL. A National Pay Cable During Terms of License. HBO is a Registered Service Mark of Home Box Office, Inc.

Manhattan Cable TV

610 Humboldt

776-9239

Looking for Hope?

World renowned author and public speaker addresses the heart cry of all Kansans — and all Americans.

hear
Luis Palau

Fri.-Sat.
7:30 p.m.
Sun. 4 p.m.

Yes, there is real hope.

October 7-11

KSU's Ahearn Fieldhouse

FREE ADMISSION

Kansas Grown!
Golden
Delicious

Apples

5 pounds for just $1

or by the bushel... $5.99

Orchard Fresh from Missouri
Fresh Cider... $3.29
(Reg. price... $3.99) gallon

Plus more and more PUMPKINS!

Eastside & Westside Markets
just east of Manhattan on Hwy. 24 - west K-18

慶祝中華民國國慶

Celebrating the 76th Year of
The Republic of China
In Memory of Our Country's Founder
Dr. Sun Yat Sen

Sponsored by
KSU Chinese Student Association

Stylists 'snip' for charity

Renee Alonzo, senior in elementary education, washes Gary Wilson's hair Thursday afternoon during the Big Lakes Developmental Center Cut-A-Thon. Wilson is a disc jockey for KQLA-FM 104 radio station.

Proceeds to benefit Big Lakes

By The Collegian Staff

With scissors in hand, stylists at The Hair Experts clipped, snipped and styled hair for twelve hours Thursday during the Third Annual Cut-A-Thon.

Proceeds from the event will help in providing services for its clients at Big Lakes Developmental Center.

"Our goal this year is $2,500," said Sue Frady, community relations coordinator for Big Lakes.

She said the cut-a-thon was made possible by Jim and Lin Ward, owners of The Hair Experts.

"Jim and Lin do the majority of the work for this; it is quite an undertaking for them," she said.

"We pay for all the advertising for the cut-a-thon," Lin said. "We cut hair for 12 hours literally free."

"All the money we take in at the cut-a-thon will go directly to Big Lakes," she said.

According to Frady, four K-State fraternities and sororities, Kappa Delta, Pi Beta Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Triangle have volunteered as part of their community service project and their efforts in preparing for the event as well as providing "person-power" on the day of the cut-a-thon.

"The volunteers will wash hair so the stylists can style," Frady said. Door prizes, refreshments and games were also offered during the cut-a-thon, with donations for it coming from local merchants, she said.

"I can't stress enough what a major fund-raising event this is," Frady said.

Big Lakes serves 175 developmentally disabled adults and children on a daily basis in Riley, Geary, Clay, and Pottawatomie counties.

Get Personal
in Collegian Classifieds

Reagan continues support; Bork nomination looks bleak

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Robert H. Bork's Supreme Court nomination was dealt an almost certainly fatal blow Thursday as opposition spread to a majority of the Senate. But President Reagan said he wouldn't surrender "in the face of a lynch mob."

Reagan officials, giving what seemed to be conflicting signals, insisted the fight would continue to the Senate floor, no matter how bleak the outlook, but also said it was up to Bork to decide whether to withdraw.

The president himself said of Bork, "He has a decision to make. I have made mine. I will support him all the way."

Bork went at midday to the Justice Department to meet with Attorney General Edwin Meese III, raising speculation the nomination might soon be withdrawn. Department officials added to the speculation by saying Meese had arranged a meeting with Reagan to talk over Bork's fate.

However, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said later that there would be no such meeting, that Meese had reported there was no change in the status of the nomination and that "our strategy is to continue to make our case and change minds."

Terry Eastland, a Justice Department spokesman said Bork "obviously wants to stay in the fight for the nomination as of today and the attorney general is not trying to persuade him one way or the other."

Meanwhile, Democratic Sen. George Mitchell of Maine — himself a former federal judge — declared on the Senate floor that he would oppose Bork's nomination if the White House pursues it.

Finally, a great pizza delivered.

1118 Laramie

539-5303

GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special

$10.99/$8.99 plus tax

LARGE MEDIUM

COMBO PIZZA

or up to 4 toppings

Original Crust

Plus FREE 20 oz. drink!

4 drinks with large

3 drinks with medium

Offer good Monday through

Wednesday only.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no added delivery charge). Not valid with other promotional offers.

Limited Delivery Area.

Offer Expires 10/21/87

PIZZA KSU

Large Pizza for a Medium Price

Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug offer.

On Sunday your choice: either

use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

Offer Expires 10/25/87

PIZZA KSU

2 for $9

Receive two medium cheese

pizzas for only $9. Added

ingredients available for only $1 per topping, which covers both

pizzas.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1 for delivery. Limited delivery area.

Offer Expires 10/25/87

PIZZA KSU

Hot Slice™

2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas

by the slice for $2!

Combo or Pepperoni

Dine-in or Carryout

Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Offer Expires 10/23/87

PIZZA KSU

THE BEST
T.G.I.F.
The Spread
An Hors d'oeuvres Buffet
over 8 varieties

Plus
$1.50

Strawberry Daiquiris
Plus
An All Premium Well
Plus
$3.25 Pitchers
Michelob & Coors Light

THE COTTON CLUB

ROCKY FORD TAVERN

Join us this weekend
at the "Finest Little
Tavern By A Dam Site"

NOW OPEN SUNDAYS
12 to 12

Rt. 5 537-3133

ALL YOU CAN EAT
SEAFOOD BUFFET

Come on by and experience our all you can eat Friday evening buffet. It features all your seafood favorites, from 5:30-10:00pm.

only $11.95

University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Coors LIGHT.
COMEDY COMMANDOS

Naster!

"Naster carries a sackful of pizzazz and kept the audience howling"-Variety

TAYLOR MASON

Is comedy, music and ventriloquism

DATE: Thursday, October 29, 1987
TIME: 8:00 p.m.
WHERE: McCain Auditorium
ADMISSION: $2.00

Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Box Office or at the Activities
Center, third floor of the K-State
Union. Tickets sales will begin Monday, October 12th.

k-state union
upc eclectic entertainment

EntertainmentFriday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 9, 1987 ■ Page 7

From Mind to Stage

Bruce Rux, graduate student in theater, is the author and director of "A Grave Affair."

Writer's work comes alive in play

He was in the back row of empty audience seats, barely noticeable as he sat almost like a patron, with eyes riveted to the actors onstage. Occasionally he would absent-mindedly stroke his beard and then scribble something in a notebook in the dimly lit theater, but his gaze scarcely left the drama being portrayed.

The drama, a play called "A Grave Affair," is his creation. Originally conceived by playwright and director Bruce Rux, graduate student in theater, it is now breathing with the life of actors on the Purple Masque Theatre stage, tonight and Saturday night at 8.

The story is a unique one, as the play revolves around a character named Pierre Grave, a necrophiliac (one who has an obsession with and unusual erotic interest in or stimulation by corpses). The setting is the Franco-Prussian War in the late 1800s. French soldiers search for what they believe is a loup-garou (werewolf), that has been digging up, violating and consuming fresh female corpses.

Rux said he got the idea for the play from the book "Werewolf in Paris" by Guy Endore. The book's main character, a werewolf, is pursued by the werewolf's uncle.

"That book is based loosely on the actual court-martalling during the Franco-Prussian War of Francois Bertrand, a necrophiliac," Rux said.

"In 'A Grave Affair,' the people take their frustration and outrage about the war and turn it against Grave. They take what is actually a morbid misdemeanor and turn it into a major felony. It is a love story similar to 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame' or 'Phantom of the Opera,'" he said.

Rux had the idea for the play for some time but actually wrote it last semester. It took him 40 days to complete.

"What triggered the actual writing of 'A Grave Affair' was a play called 'The Red Robe' by Eugene Bireux, which had a structure ideal for this play," he said.

Rux's play is currently an associate entry to the American College Theatre Festival.

"As an associate entry, the play will be critiqued by judges and they will make recommendations for improvements and so forth," Rux said. "Hopefully they will like the play well enough that it will be picked up for bigger productions."

"A Grave Affair" is not Rux's first writing project to hit the stage. Last semester, "The Late, Great Dr. Death," the story of television characters resolving old conflicts before dying, was performed in the Purple Masque. On Oct. 30-31, his play called "Cutthroat," the story of a fortune teller who spends a suspenseful evening with a man she believes to be a killer, will be performed at the Mule Barn Theater in Tarkio, Mo.

"I write mostly about horror and the supernatural. I am a horror movie fanatic," he said.

Rux explained the fascination people have with horror.

"The key to the fascination is taking the horrors in the real world and making them something solvable. It's a tremendous catharsis when someone can plunge a stake into a vampire or kill a werewolf. It's taking the unbearable things and making them bearable," Rux said.

"It is also that age-old problem of figuring out evil. Those who are abnormal are the thorn in our side — people want to control that extreme. That's what has compelled me to study this type of thing," he said.

Rux, who received a bachelor's degree in theater from Loretta

Heights College in Denver, Colo., said he enjoyed psychology classes and gets many of his ideas from reading true crime stories.

"I read incessantly, and I read all kinds of stuff, like real crime stories and abnormal psychology," he said. "There is a fascination with why a criminal does the things he does."

Rux accepted an acting scholarship from Wayne State University in Detroit, but after eleven months of experiencing actors and the severe pressure they were under in the program, he decided to quit.

"I was then a semi-pro actor for six years, acting in various productions," he said.

"Sometimes I'm afraid of spreading myself too thin, but I like acting, writing and directing."

Since he began writing in 1980, Rux has completed two novels, three screenplays and three plays.

He enjoys his role as a director since it gives him more control in how his play is developed and performed.

"The problem with being a playwright is that although you initially write the story, you don't have any

■ See PLAY, Page 12

Ilse, played by Stephanie Hug, comforts Pierre Grave, played by Joel Herndon, after he is hurt while fleeing from soldiers.

ABOVE: Rux watches and advises Terri Lusenhop, makeup crew chief, while she applies makeup to Hug. As writer and director, Rux advised all aspects of the play, including music and other technical parts of the production. LEFT: Grave, a necrophiliac (one who has an obsession with and unusual erotic interest in or stimulation by corpses,) reflects on his feelings while looking at an oil lamp.

Story by Becky Howard
Photos by Greg Vogel

Spotlight

EVENTS

"A Grave Affair," 8 p.m., Oct. 9-10, Purple Masque Theatre.
"Happy Endings," 8 p.m., Oct. 16-18, Purple Masque Theatre.

EXHIBITS

Display of illustrations by graphic artist Tom Bookwalter runs through Oct. 9, Union 2nd Floor Showcase display.

FILMS

K-State Union
"Spaceballs," at 7 and 9:30, Friday and Saturday, Union Forum Hall.
"Sleeping Beauty," at 2, Saturday; at 2 and 7, Sunday, Union Forum Hall.
"Persona," at 7:30, Wednesday, Union Forum Hall; at 3:30, Thursday, Union Little Theatre; and at 7:30, Thursday, Union Forum Hall.

Commonwealth Theaters

Campus
"Hostage," (R), daily at 7 and 9; Saturday and Sunday at 3 and 5.
Westloop Cinema 6
"Hamburger Hill," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2.
"Stakeout," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.

"Like Father, Like Son," (PG-13), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.
"Surrender," (R), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.
"Pick-up Artist," (PG), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.
"Dirty Dancing," (PG-13), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.

Seth Childs Cinemas

"The Principal," (R), daily at 7:10 and 9:35; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10 and 4:40. No 7:10 showing Saturday.
"The Big Shots," (PG-13), daily at 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 and 4:35.
"Fatal Attraction," (R), daily at 7

and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2 and 4:30.

"Hell Raiser," (R), daily at 7:25 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday at 2:25 and 4:45.

"Someone to Watch Over Me," (R), daily at 7:15 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20 and 4:45.

"Three O'Clock High," (PG-13), daily at 7:30 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:35 and 4:35.

Improvements needed to aid industry

Report finds Kansas farming transitional

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The state should improve its efforts to strengthen rural banks and to market Kansas products if it wants to help its agricultural industry survive its current transitional period, according to a report released Thursday.

The report, from the state's Commission on the Future of Kansas Agriculture, made a series of recommendations, including several aimed at keeping agricultural banks afloat and increasing marketing activities in the state.

"As a rural state with an agricultural base, it is imperative that Kansas marshal all of its resources to assist those transitioning entities," the report said. "All of us Kansans have a stake in assuring that our rural economy makes the transition in a healthy form."

Secretary of Agriculture Sam Brownback presented the report to Gov. Mike Hayden during a Statehouse news conference today. The Kansas State Board of Agriculture appointed the 13-member commission in November 1986.

Hayden said he was pleased to receive the report because some of its recommendations call for greater cooperation between private groups or businesses and the state instead of asking for money.

Hayden also said his staff would study the report and consider its recommendations for inclusion in his budget and his requests for legislation from the 1988 Legislature, which convenes in January.

"I think we're on the right course," Hayden said. "We're anxious to analyze it in its entirety."

The report said the state's agricultural industry is in transition, facing a trend toward fewer and larger commercial farms.

"We can, however, change the game plan of how we react to the environment," the report said.

"Instead of accepting decreasing employment opportunities in rural areas and decreasing farm and rural population due to changing economic environments, we can target our efforts toward location-neutral industries, developing business supply links to the urban consuming populace and adding more value to our agricultural products."

The report recommends creating a state loan fund to help farmers in processing and marketing their products, as well as one to help farmers who wish to diversify their operations. The report also suggests a loan fund be created to help rural communities with development projects.

Brownback said he would like to see state officials and representatives form private groups to urge federal agencies, such as the Farmers Home Administration, to set up such funds, so that they would not require substantial state financing.

The report also made several recommendations for strengthening banks, among them one to create a secondary market for agricultural loans and to allow agricultural banks to sell insurance and offer other such services.

Also, the report suggested that banks be allowed to write off loan losses over 10 years, rather than just one, to reduce the amount of losses during a given year.

"We must innovate," the report said. "We must search for those opportunities which will fit our resources and market demands to prosper in this changed economic environment."

Brownback said some of the recommendations, in order to be implemented, would require state officials and private groups to lobby Congress for legislation. However, he said most can be dealt with by working with private groups or state agencies.

"We wanted to stay focused in Kansas," Brownback said.

Other recommendations include:

- Establishing a "rural initiative program," to which rural communities can go for assistance with local projects.

- Consolidating rural county government services to decrease local taxes for farmers.
- Changing degree requirements for students in colleges of agriculture so that they receive more formal business training.
- Establishing a statewide marketing institute to help farmers promote their products.

- Encouraging financial institutions to restructure delinquent agricultural loans.
- Increase funding from federal and state sources for retraining displaced rural workers.
- Creating a rural development foundation to help with the financing of rural development projects.
- Developing a marketing network to help home-based businesses to get their products on the market.

Congratulations

1987-88 K-STATE SINGERS

Stan Cowan	Amy McAnarney
Ruth Flynn	Kevin Mott
Mike Franklin	Jay Nachtigal
David Harris	Sherri Simmons
Lori Ingmire	Tim Stark
Kenney Johnson	Debi Steen
Kristi Kruckenberg	Doug Wetzel
Les Lankhorst	Jeff Wilson
Michele Lunsway

300 students participate in career workshop

By Jackie Brazzle
Collegian Reporter

"The job is a tiger. You have to know what you're looking for to hunt for one," said Donald Robinson, one of the three leaders for the Plymouth Career Search Workshop held Thursday in the Union.

Robinson, Monique Adler and Scott Brook lectured to more than 300 students in the four sessions. Participants in the workshop were given a workbook that complemented the session and provided a guide to compiling a resume.

Three video tapes were used to illustrate points in the sessions. In a video of Hal Sperlich, president of Chrysler Corp., he reminisced about the frustration of his first job search. But with a little hard work and education, a person could go far, he said.

He also stressed pride as a major factor in a career search.

"Pride has real meaning in today's competitive world," Sperlich said. "Only when pride becomes a habit are you on the road to success."

One of the videos titled, "How Not to Get a Job," was shown to demonstrate the positive and negative aspects of a job search.

"Being told the negative can help you avoid the same mistakes in the future," Robinson said.

The sessions concentrated on the mechanics or steps of a job search, with the first being a self-analysis, Adler said.

"Self-assessment is an opportunity to get to know yourself. The more you know about yourself, the better you can communicate those facts," she said.

Like Sperlich, Adler stressed the importance of pride in yourself.

"The more you learn about yourself, the more pride you have and will communicate to others," Adler said.

Resume preparation is the next step in hunting for a job.

Writing a resume is a tedious job, but, Brook said, the participants should remember one important fact.

"When you are looking for a job, you are selling yourself. Your resume is an advertisement of yourself," Brook said.

The guide states that a good resume should invite an employer to read it by making a strong statement using relevant information. This is done by having a clear layout and top quality printing.

People should target their resumes to meet the needs of the employer and the industry they are interested in, Brook said.

Besides a strong resume, cover letters and follow-up contacts are very important, he said.

The final part of the session centered on how to dress and prepare for questions an employer would ask.

A person should carefully plan what to wear to the interview, Adler said. Suits in neutral colors are best because they don't distract the interviewer. Wide ties, preferably silk, are the best for men.

Above all, be neat, she said.

The interview is "your chance to shine," Brook said.

He stressed the importance of an applicant gaining information about the company before interviewing.

Practice questions are a way to prepare for an interview, Brook said.

"Try to anticipate the unexpected," he said.

Adler said she was surprised at the number of participants and was glad the response was so positive.

WORSHIP

ON CAMPUS DANFORTH CHAPEL SUNDAY, 11 A.M.

"South Africa and Apartheid"

Dialogue: Kehla Mduli, South African Refugee Mqhele Dlodlo, Zimbabwe
KSU International Students

—Building Global Community and Awareness
—Affirming Justice and Liberation
—Seeking Solidarity
—Celebrating Holy Communion

Everyone Welcome!

Coordinator: Don Fallon, Campus Pastor, 1021 Denison, 539-4451

Krystallos

"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

FREE DELIVERY

UNAM Restaurant

1304 Westloop
10% off with KSU ID
539-8888 539-0888

COME TO THE MOVIES
TONIGHT
7:30 p.m.
1021 Denison

The Gods Must Be Crazy

Popcorn & discussion to follow! Hope to see you there!

Another program of Ecumenical Christian Ministries

The Campus Ministry of:
The Church of Brethren, The United Church of Christ,
The Presbyterian Church (USA), The United Methodist Church

Sponsored by
ECUMENICAL CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES

Now the Best Pizza in Town Has the Best Price!

Two Pizzas for Only $5.99!

Now you can have two delicious 10" pizzas for the price of one. They're custom-made with your choice of toppings on each—they don't have to be the same! And we use only the freshest ingredients and 100% real cheese.

You're not seeing double. It's just our latest way to say that Domino's Pizza Delivers. And we deliver at no additional charge in 30 minutes or less. That's the Domino's Pizza guarantee.

No coupon necessary.

Call Us! Manhattan 539-0561
517 N. 12th Street
Hours:
4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs.
4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.

Domino's Pizza Delivers® Doubles.

Prices do not include tax. Our drivers carry less than $20.00. Limited delivery area.

COKE® AVAILABLE in 16 oz. bottle 75¢ each.

Brother's

AGGIEVILLE

1120 Moro
539-9064

TONITE & Saturday

IN/OUT

INXS, The Call, U2, A-Ah
Split-End, Bongo-Bongo,
The Cars, Duran Duran

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB

invites you to come visit us at

Octoberfest in Aggieville

Saturday October 10
10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Come and Choose from our Selection

German Baked Goods

PEPPERONI MUSHROOMS GROUND BEEF	SAUSAGE BLACK OLIVES ONIONS	HAM GREEN PEPPER PINEAPPLE	JALAPENOS EXTRA THICK CRUST EXTRA CHEESE
Menu
	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE *	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI 	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA™ 	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM95	1.25	1.40

*DELUXE—5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.

VEGI—5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.

EXTRAVAGANZZA™—A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 9, 1987 ■ Page 9

'Cats hit road in search of first victory

By Jeff Rapp
Sports Editor

Going into Saturday's game against the University of Missouri Tigers, K-State Head Football Coach Stan Parrish said no matter what happens early in the game, his team must learn to play four solid quarters of football.

Parrish's attitude is not surprising, considering his team played an 82-second game against Tulsa last week.

"Last week, we took ourselves out of the game in one minute, but I attribute a lot of it to our inability to get back up off the deck when things aren't going good," Parrish said.

Things were definitely not going good for the Wildcats last week after Tulsa blocked a punt and recovered two fumbles to turn a one-point lead into a 22-point lead in just over a minute in the second quarter. After that turn of events, Parrish — the eternal optimist — said it took some pretty inspirational words to hype his team back up for the second half.

"We got back up off the deck at halftime, but that was more me getting the team back up than it was them getting back up off the deck. We've got to learn to fight back and not let ourselves think negatively. We've worked harder on that since January than at any other time in my life," Parrish said.

So this experience-of-a-lifetime continues for Parrish at Faurer Field this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in Columbia, Mo. Both K-State and Missouri will be opening Big Eight Conference play with the contest, and third-year Mizzou Head Coach Robert "Woody" Widenhofer is looking for a big win and a successful season from his 2-2 Tigers, who are coming off a 24-13 whipping by Syracuse.

"We're 2-2 and looking forward to the Big Eight (season)," Widenhofer said. "Last year, Colorado was 0-4 at this point, won six games and went to a bowl.... We're home for two of the next three ballgames and need to get some confidence back. We still have a chance to have a very successful season."

Whether or not Widenhofer — 6-20 in three years at Missouri — begins his desired success against K-State will depend on whether the 'Cats decide to get in too deep, too early, as in last week's contest, according to Parrish.

"We go in (to the game) anywhere from a three- to four- touchdown underdog against a team that we beat two years ago and that we played a pretty tough game against here (in Manhattan) last year," Parrish said. "I think the key is that we have to avoid digging a hole for ourselves like we did last week."

Parrish emphasized that his team must be equipped with the ability to come back from a deficit.

"If things don't go well early on, we have to hang in there and keep the game close, because I think we can move the ball against (Missouri)," he said.

A lack of moving the ball, however, is one demon the 'Cats may have to exorcise, if last year's contest against Mizzou is any indication.

Last season, coming off a highly emotional win over the University of Kansas, in which K-State amassed 318 yards of total offense in a 29-12 decision, the 'Cats faltered in KSU Stadium the next week against Mizzou.

K-State could only muster 237 yards of total offense and six points, as the Tigers spoiled the 'Cats' homecoming, 17-6.

Wildcat tailback Tony Jordan had a fair day against Missouri, with 71 yards rushing, but the Tigers' senior halfback Darrell Wallace rushed for 148 yards last year in Manhattan. In this Saturday's contest, Wallace needs only 64 yards on the ground to become Missouri's all-time leading rusher to eclipse James Wilder's record of 2,357 yards.

The word is not in on whether the Tigers' standout junior quarterback Ronnie Cameron — who developed an inner ear vertigo problem — will be able to play Saturday. Cameron, who is one definite spark in the Tiger offense, is someone Parrish considers a major factor in MU's success.

"I think Cameron is one of (MU's) real threats and if he doesn't play, it will be a plus for us. It will probably indicate that they'll stay with more of the 'power' part of their offense, rather than the option," Parrish said.

Parrish referred to MU's flexbone offense as the "WoodyBone."

"I understand that he took what he liked from his old offense and added the wishbone to it, so it's a little bit of both."

The Wildcats will have three veterans returning to the lineup — tailback Tony Jordan and wide receivers Dan Hughes and John Williams. Jordan will take over starting duties, while sophomore Eric Blades and junior Lawrence Tolbert will still start at the wide receiver slots. Also, offensive lineman Rob Goode will return after his knee injury.

Ruggers to play Pittsburg State

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The K-State rugby squads have a full day of games slated for this Saturday as all three of its sides will see some action.

The A-side will take on Pittsburg State University's A-side, the B-side will take on Garden City's A-side and K-State's C-side will take on Pittsburg's B-side.

The A-side match-up will pit the inexperience of the Pittsburg team against a more experienced K-State squad. Although K-State was able to shell the Pittsburg team in last year's contest by a 79-0 score, K-State team president Dave Todd expects this year's match to be much closer.

"They are a lot more improved this year. They have a new coach, and good coaching is half the battle," Todd said. "For the most part, they are still a pretty inexperienced squad, but I expect they will give us a much tougher game (than last year's)."

Pittsburg will bring a strong scrum into the match, according to Todd, while K-State's advantage should lie in its back line speed and its overall playing experience.

"They are pretty strong in the scrum, but they don't match up with us on the back line," Todd said. "We have some good speed on the back line and we are also pretty strong in the pack.

"They have an outstanding fly half who is an excellent kicker," Todd added. "He is one of their better players and he's a real field general on the playing field. That can really make a difference in a match."

The K-State team is healthy for the most part, with only one player having an injury that could possibly sideline him.

"We only have one rookie playing for us this week," Todd said. "He will be filling in for one of our regular back line guys who has a minor injury."

"We could play him but we feel that we'd be better off making sure that our injured guy is ready for the KU game because it will be a much tougher match."

The Pittsburg contest will be the first time this season the rugby team has fielded an entirely collegiate team. K-State will replace approximately six of its club-side players with collegiate-match-eligible players for its next two collegiate level merit table matches.

The Pittsburg match is a do-or-die match for the K-Staters, as they need to beat both Pittsburg and Kansas to advance to the Midwest regionals.

Harriers face tough test

By The Collegian Staff

Today the K-State men's and women's cross country teams will be taking part in the Sooner Invitational in Norman, Okla. Coach John Capriotti said this will be the toughest test for his runners all season long.

"It'll be a very competitive meet," he said. "Oklahoma will be there along with Oklahoma State, Nebraska, Iowa State and Kansas. If this meet were run once a week, there would be a different winner every time."

"A lot of the teams that will be competing in the meet are nationally ranked teams including our women's teams," he added.

The K-State women's team is currently ranked 12th in the nation, Oklahoma State's women team is ranked eighth and the Colorado men's team is ranked 10th.

Individually, Capriotti looks for the same performance he got from his athletes at Iowa State, when the women took second and the men took first.

"I look for the kids to improve on their times, really," he said. "They're well rested and ready to run. I think we should be able to come out of the meet knowing where we stand in the Big Eight and how much the kids have improved and with a good finish at the meet."

Staff/Greg Vogel

Senior linebacker David Wallace is consoled by senior defensive back Brad Lambert during last week's game against Tulsa. Wallace suffered a knee injury and was thought to be lost for the remainder of the season, but doctors say he may return in a few weeks.

Injured Wallace gets 'good news'

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

Just when things really started getting bad at the football office, some good news — really good news — came in concerning David Wallace.

"My season just might not be over," Wallace said with the biggest of smiles. "They (the doctors) called and found out that I might not have my knee operated on at all."

Things weren't always this happy for Wallace, though.

"When I first injured the knee last weekend I thought to myself, 'It's all over, the entire season is over with,'" he said. "At first the doctors said they would have to do total reconstruction on the knee. Now knowing this I feel a 100 percent better than the last few days."

Coach Stan Parrish even felt a little relief when he heard the news.

"To get him back near the end of the season was great news for us," he said.

Wallace, though, feels despite his loss, the rest of the linebacking corps will be playing just as tough as before.

"Matt (Wallerstedt) should start coming through and making the tackles," he said. "Matt is great and will start getting the recognition he deserves. And the other players should start coming through, it's still the same defense."

As far as personal goals, Wallace knows they've been slowed down a little, but the goal he's shooting for is the probability of coming back.

"Right now the doctors have me scheduled to go into surgery for Friday and then sitting out for about three weeks while doing rehabilitation," he said. "This set back my hopes of making all-Big Eight and setting those records for tackles."

"Right now, though, I plan to go in and get operated on and then work the rehab as hard as I can and then hopefully be back in three weeks."

If the rehabilitation schedule goes without flaw, he would be back in time for the Oklahoma State game October 31. If the rehabilitation takes longer, he would be back for the K-State-KU showdown. Which does he prefer? Just ask him any time.

"If I had a choice I'd rather sit the OSU game out and then play the KU game," he said.

Right now Wallace plans to take the whole process a day at a time.

"I'm not planning on coming back until there is strong possibility of that happening," he said. "The doctors are surprised that I've come this far since last Saturday. It's a miracle to me and I'm just taking it a day at a time."

"I don't want to get to hyped-up about getting back," he said. "It's hurt my goals and my feelings a little bit."

Twins widen lead to two

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Tim Lander and Dan Gladden drove in two runs each, and the Twins dealt Jack Morris his first major-league loss in the state of Minnesota, beating the Detroit Tigers 6-3 in the second game of the American League playoffs Thursday night.

The Twins, who were 0-6 in playoff games before Wednesday night's 8-5 victory, took a 2-0 lead in games in the best-of-seven series, which moves to Detroit for Game 3 Saturday. Detroit will send Walt Terrell, 17-10, against Twins rookie Les Straker, 8-10.

Morris, a Minnesota native and 11-0 in his career against the Twins in the Twin Cities, allowed a two-run double to Lander in a three-run second inning and a two-run single to Gladden in the fourth. The runs all were scored with two out. Morris, 18-10, also gave up a fifth-inning homer to Kent Hrbek, who led the Twins with 34 during the season.

Bert Blyleven, who pitched for the Twins the last time they were in the playoffs in 1970, worked 7½ innings and limited Detroit to Chet Lemon's second-inning homer, a two-run shot, and an eighth inning solo homer by Lou Whitaker. Juan Berenguer got the final five outs, four on strikeouts, for the save.

AL Game Two Twins 6, Tigers 3

This game very easily could have become a home-run hitting contest. Blyleven, 15-12 in the season, led the majors allowing 46 homers, and Morris gave up 39. The Tigers led the majors with 225 homers; the Twins had 196.

But this game did not turn on home runs, although three were hit. It turned on defense and speed — with Randy Bush stealing two bases in the pivotal Minnesota fourth to tie the playoff record — and that made a loser for the first time in postseason of Morris, the free agent the Twins didn't want.

Morris had a 1-0 playoff and 2-0 World Series record, all compiled in 1984 when the Tigers won the Series. The loser of his last three regular-season decisions, Morris, who went eight innings allowing six hits with three walks and six strikeouts, wasn't any more effective this time out as the Twins continued their winning ways at home.

Minnesota had a 56-25 home record this year, best in the majors. Add two more.

Blyleven, acknowledged as having the best curveball in the league, was the winner of this one, allowing seven hits, walking one and striking out six in his first postseason outing since 1979 when he won one game each in the playoffs and World Series.

Free agency still major issue in NFL player-owner labor talks

By The Associated Press

TYSONS CORNER, Va. — The thorny issue of free agency was brought to the table Thursday for the first time in the latest round of negotiations aimed at ending the 17-day NFL players strike.

But the two sides were not even able to agree on what progress, if any, was being made.

While Jack Donlan and Gene Upshaw, the two chief negotiators, were engaging in a line-by-line dissection of 38 separate items in the old contract, John Jones for management and Doug Allen and Dick Berthelsen for the union engaged in a variation of the old television feature, "Point, Counterpoint."

The union insisted the talks were going well; management said they were proceeding very slowly with agreement on just four minor issues, including a section concerning the length of players' hair.

And where Allen said "Gene thinks the talks have been fruitful and productive" and "he remains encouraged by the pace of negotiations and by the bargaining today," Jones took the opposite tack.

"A difference of opinion remains on many major issues," he said, listing them as player contracts, protection for player representatives, guaranteed contracts, the draft and discipline by the commissioner, as well as free agency.

On that most troublesome of subjects, Jones said the union was sticking by its demand for total free agency at some point in a player's career, which the union indicated it might be ready to drop after a meeting of player representatives in Chicago Monday and Tuesday. Management insists it will not deviate from the current system, which requires compensation for any player who changes teams after his contract expires.

Allen, the union's assistant executive director, would not characterize the new discussions on free agency, but re-emphasized that Upshaw was encouraged with the negotiations.

There was also disagreement on the pace of the talks.

"We urge everyone to recognize that this is a lengthy process, that the optimism at this time might be something of an overstatement of the actual progress that is taking place at the table," Jones said.

"It is not an overnight process. Characterizing it as such is not only misleading the players, it is misleading people on the progress being made. The process is not moving as rapidly as some members of the union say it is."

On the other hand, Allen and Berthelsen, the union's general counsel, claimed substantial progress and said the possibility existed for an agreement in from 48 to 72 hours.

UAW union reaches agreement with GM

Contract to achieve job security

By The Associated Press

DETROIT — The United Auto Workers union and General Motors Corp., the nation's largest automaker, reached agreement Thursday on a tentative contract.

The agreement came four days after the union signed a contract with Ford Motor Co.

Union President Owen Bieber and Vice President Donald F. Ephlin said in a written statement that the three-year contract will "achieve job security for our GM membership and make stable employment a part of the way this corporation does business."

The statement contained no details of the tentative pact, which will be presented Monday to the 300-member National GM Bargaining Council in Chicago. Afterward, the pact will be submitted to the union's 150 GM locals.

The settlement came shortly after 5 p.m. Thursday, eight days after the union turned its attention to GM following the Sept. 30 ratification of a job-protecting pact at Ford.

The union statement said mounting layoffs and cutbacks over which workers had no control had demoralized UAW members at GM.

"The new agreement here should help to turn that around by providing a stronger basis for job security and a stronger sense of attachment to this corporation and its future," the statement said.

"This settlement ensures unprecedented job security and provides significant economic gains for our hourly employees," said Alfred S. Warren Jr., a GM vice president who headed the company bargaining team.

"At the same time, we have established a framework which provides opportunities for General Motors to increase its competitive capability," Warren said.

Neither the company nor the union provided details pending ratification and neither mentioned how closely the agreement was patterned after the contract reached last month at Ford.

Union officials who asked not to be identified had earlier said the pact strongly resembled the contract reached with Ford.

Bieber directed the union's negotiations with GM without setting a strike deadline, but bargainners worked under an informal weekend deadline resulting from a scheduled Monday meeting of the 300-worker GM bargaining council, which must approve any tentative settlement before it can be offered for ratification to GM's 335,000 active UAW workers.

The negotiators' main task had been to fit the job-protecting Ford Motor Co. pact, which was signed Monday, to much-larger GM.

About 120,000 of GM's UAW workers are employed in its sprawling parts operations, which GM says in some cases are not competitive with outside suppliers.

GM also had said it still needs to cut costs, trim its work force and buy more parts from outside the company rather than make them in its own factories. GM makes 70 percent of its own parts while Ford makes 50 percent and Chrysler Corp., whose contract expires next year, makes 30 percent.

Negotiators worked to solve these problems within the bounds of the Ford pact, which bars layoffs for most causes, such as transfer of work outside the company, automation, new technology or reorganization of workers.

Workers may be laid off if production volume is cut due to slow sales, unless Ford replaces a U.S.-made Ford part or vehicle with an outside or imported one.

Ford can move work outside the company, but must continue to pay affected employees even if it has no other work to give them. Ford also must recall laid-off workers in most cases before ordering overtime after a sales slump.

The contract halves Ford's attrition rate by requiring the automaker to replace one of every two workers who leaves.

The contract extends a plant closing ban from the 1984 contract, except for previously announced closings.

GM has announced plans to close all or part of 16 plants, cutting 36,000 jobs, by the end of 1990. Three of the plants have closed and three more are scheduled to shut in December.

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

Ethiopia faces another famine

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Ethiopia is again facing the specter of famine, but existing relief efforts are expected to avert any emergency until at least next February or March, federal officials said Thursday.

Alexander Love, counselor for the Agency for International Development, also told the international task force of the House Select Committee on Hunger that the U.S. government is better positioned to help than it was for the Ethiopian famine and drought of 1984-85, which resulted in the displacement of several million people.

Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, who chairs the task force, said the 1984 relief effort was marked by confusion and delay. And he said the committee is determined that a "clear and immediate signal" be given that the U.S. government is determined that the current drought not result in widespread famine.

Love said it is estimated that 3 million to 5 million Ethiopians are considered to be at risk and that the African nation will need an estimated 950,000 metric tons of cereals beyond what it produces itself.

However, he said the U.S. government alone has already committed 115,000 metric tons of food this year and is prepared to consider additional aid.

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian Classifieds

TV Listings

By TV Data

FRIDAY OCTOBER 9, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scoby Doo Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00 " "	TBA	" "	My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs Teddy Ruxpin	SportsCenter Horse Mag.	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Tennis: Int'l. Jr. Chall.	Movie: "Singin' in the Rain"
10:00 Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore Dick Van	Body Electric Africans	Andy Griffith Soap	Surfing: Pro Champion-	" "
11:00 Password Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Painting	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	NHL Hockey: Montreal Can-	Movie: "Savage Wilder-
1:00 Lives Another World	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Mystery/Lord Peter Wimsey	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	adiens at Philadelphia	ness: "Alca-
2:00 " "	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobles Zoo	Kitchen Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	Flyers	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00 " "	Donahue	Scoby Doo Thunderscats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	Championship Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00 " "	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravest	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravest	Auto Racing: Off-Road	Munsters Laverne
5:00 Family Ties	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsCenter Magic Yrs.	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00 Wheel-Fortune	News Truth/Conseq.	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Wash. Week Wall St. Week	Movie	NFL Great NFL Great	Movie: "Alca-
7:00 Baseball Play-offs: National	Beauty and the Beast	Full House I Married	Friday the Thirteenth	Movie: "Casa-	McLaughlin Pacific	Boxing	Whole Shock-
8:00 League Championship Ser-	Dallas	Max Head-	Movie: "Casa-	McLaughlin Pacific	News	" "	World of Audu-
9:00 Les Game Three	Falcon Crest	20/20	" "	Innovation Market	" "	" "	Night Tracks: Power Play
10:00 News Tonight Show	News Cheers	News M*A*S*H	Barney Miller Late Show	Wild America Business Rpt.	H'mooner Magnum, P.I.	SportsCenter	Night Tracks: Power Play
11:00 " "	Solid Gold in Concert	B. Buddies Nightline	Movie: "Alliga-	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie	Basketball (International)	Night Tracks
12:00 Late Night With David	MDR Vitamins ChiPits Patrol	700 Club	" "	Sign-Off	" "	U.S. vs. Philip-	Night Tracks

SATURDAY OCTOBER 10, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Gummi Bears	Hello Kitty My Little Pony	Care Bears My Little Pony	Kidsongs LovelyLocks	U.S. Farm Report	SportsCenter Fishin' Hole	Bonanza	" "
8:00 " "	Muppet Babies	Pet Monster Puppies	Popples Get Along	Adventure Adventure	Charlando People-People	Bill Dance	National Geographic Ex-
9:00 Fraggle	Pee-wee Play. Visionaries	Little Wizard Ghostbusters	Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig	Cliffhangers Old House	Minority Busi-	Tractor Pull Speedway	prior
10:00 ALF	Popeye & Son Teen Wolf	Flintstones Bugs	Visionaries Animals	Motorweek	" "	SportsCenter	NWA Super
11:00 Control	Storybreak Bob Valasente	Jem Health Show	Wonder Woman	Painting Garden	Soul Train	Saturday Women's	Pre-Game College Foot-
12:00 Baseball Play-offs: American	News Eight is En-	Tennis	Movie: "Three Worlds of Gul-	Sesame Street	Movie	Bowling: Ham-	ball: Teams to Be An-
1:00 League Championship Ser-	College Foot-	" "	live	Fru. Gourmet Justin Wilson	" "	Tennis: WCT Open (Semi-	nounced
2:00 Les Game Three	ball	Coll. Football College Foot-	Star Trek Bodywatch Wonderful	Movie	" "	final Round)	" "
3:00 Movie: "Never Cry Wolf"	" "	ball: Teams to be Announced	Battlestar Galactica	Collectors Calligraphy	" "	College Foot-	ball: Teams to
4:00 " "	" "	" "	Buck Rogers	Focus/Society Focus/Society	Puttin' on Hits Good Times	be Announced	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies
5:00 Wild Kingdom	Back Yard CBS News	" "	Black Sheep Squadron	Health Century	Bustin' Loose Charles	" "	World Cham-
6:00 Hee Haw	Mama It's a Living	Guinness Rec. B. Buddies	Star Trek: Next Gener.	Lawrence Welk	It's a Living Mama	College Foot-	ball: Teams to
7:00 Baseball Play-offs: National	Sister Sam Everything's	The Sheriff 9 to 5	Werewolf Beans Baxter	WonderWorks	Movie	be Announced	Movie: "Alca-
8:00 League Championship Ser-	Leg Work	Ohara	Chance Duet	Austin City Limits	" "	" "	Whole Shock-
9:00 Les Game Four	West 57th	Hotel	Rich & Famous	Country Cliffhangers	News	College Foot-	College Foot-
10:00 News Sat. Night	News Star Trek	News Movie: "The Great Santini"	The Sheriff Friday the Thirteenth	Movie: "Fath-er's Little Divi-	H's Heroes Movie	ball: Long Beach State	Night Tracks: Charibusters
11:00 Live	" "	" "	Thirteenth Solid Gold in Concert	Penn & Teller	" "	at Pacific	Night Tracks
12:00 Fri. the 13th Series	" "	" "	News NCTV	Sign-Off	" "	College Foot-	" "

SUNDAY OCTOBER 11, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 James Ken-	Jerry Falwell	Jimmy Swag-	Superfriends	R. Schuller Heritage-Faith	SportsCenter PGA Tour	Tom & Jerry and Friends	" "
8:00 L. Lundstrum	Discovery Herald-Truth	Kenneth Copeland	All Star Wrestling	Sesame Street	Sunday Mass Popeye	SpeedWeek Racing	Cont'd Andy Griffith
9:00 Schuller Jimmy Swag-	Oral Roberts Larry Laves	It Is Written Week With	Wild, Wild West	Mister Rogers Special	Visionaries Power	Magic Years This Week in	Good News Movie: "The
10:00 gart	Sunday Morning	David Brinkley Business	Black Sheep Squadron	Sesame Street	Superman Lone Ranger	SportsCenter	Man Who Shot Liberty
11:00 Control	NFL '87	All Star Wrestling	Star Trek: Next Gener.	Wonder- Works: The	Cisco Kid Rawhide	Sunday: NFL Auto Racing:	Valence"
12:00 NFL Football: Minnesota Vikings	NFL Football: Minnesota Vikings	Movie: "The Great Santini"	Movie: "Tarzan and His Mate"	Wash. Week Wall St. Wk.	Twilight Zone	IMSA GTP Series	Movie: "Lower Come Back"
1:00 Coverage	ings at Chicago Bears	" "	WWF Wrestling	Movie: "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir"	That Delicate Balance	Open (Final Match)	Movie: "Pillow Talk"
2:00 " "	" "	" "	" "	One on One Interests	Movie: "Hei-di's Song"	Horse Racing:	" "
3:00 Little House on the Prairie	NFL Football: Washington Redskins at New York	" "	Movie: "The Princess and the Pirate"	Vintage Years Los Lobos	Movie: "G.I. Joe - The	Auto Racing: CART Laguna Seca 300	Bouts Leave/Beaver
4:00 America: Dream Lives	Giants	News Football	the Pirate"	Bradshaw on the Family	Movie: "G.I. Joe - The	NFL Prime Time	Movie: "A Big Hand for the
5:00 Siskel & Ebert	60 Minutes	The Journey of Natty Gann	21 Jump Street	Wild America Nature	Movie: "The	NFL Prime Time	Movie: "A Big Hand for the
6:00 Our House	Murder, She Wrote	Spenser: For Hire	With Children in Prison	Nature	Twilight Zone At the Movies	NFL Theatre	Little Lady"
7:00 Baseball Play-offs: American	Movie: "After the Promise"	Dolly	Tracey Ullman Mr. President	Masterpiece Theatre "The	Star Search	Sunday Show-	National Geo-
8:00 League Championship Ser-	" "	" "	Marblehead Throb	Bretts Great Per-	News INN News	Sunday Show-	case: Beneath
9:00 Les Game Four	" "	" "	Mama Marblehead	formances TV Classics	Darke Lou Grant	SportsCenter	Sports Page
10:00 News Sports M.	Rich & Famous	You Kiss a Stranger"	Dating Game	Agenda for a Tony Brown	Movie: "The	NFL Prime Time	World Tom.
11:00 Entertainment This Week	Siskel & Ebert Sign-Off	" "	Lou Grant	Sign-Off	Way We Were"	NFL Great Windsurfing	Jimmy Swag-
12:00 Gene Scott	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "

Religious Directory

Manhattan Jewish Congregation Shabbat Services 8 p.m. 1st and 3rd Friday Religious School 9:30 Sundays Rides Available Sponsor B'nai B'rith Hillel at K-State 1509 Wreath Ave. (temple) 539-8462 Campus Adviser, David Margolies 532-6154	FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH 801 Leavenworth 537-0518 Worship 8:30 & 11 a.m. Church School 9:30 a.m. • College Outreach (Tuesdays, K-State Union) • Weekday programs for youth • Nursery available Senior Minister Rev. Dr. Philip S. Gittings III	The Assembly Marked by the Assembly of God Sunday Praise Hours 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. • Sunday School—9:30 a.m. • Collegiate Bible Class • Transportation available Office 537-7633 Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave. Mike Wall, Pastor. 537-7967
GREAT COMMISSION Church of Manhattan Campus Bible Study Sunday Worship 10:30 a.m. Sundays at University Inn	Lutheran Campus Ministry Worship 11 a.m. Study 9:45 a.m. Sundays Danforth Chapel (campus) Lutheran Student Movement 5 p.m. Sunday - Lutheran Student Center Don Fallon, Pastor 1021 Denison 1539-4451	WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH WORSHIP 8 and 10:30 a.m. College Class 9:30 a.m. Kennedy's Chapel side entrance Sun. Eve. Worship 6 p.m. 1st, 3rd, and 5th Sundays CARE CELLS (Small Groups) 6 p.m. 2nd and 4th Sundays Office at 2607 Allison Ave. 3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173
FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH 8:45 a.m. Communion (first Sunday of the month) 9:45 a.m. Church School 8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship Nursery provided for all services John D. Stoneking, Pastor 612 Poyntz 776-8821	FAITH BAPTIST CHURCH Independent, Fundamental 2615 Allison Avenue Sunday School 10 a.m. Sunday Service 11 a.m. & 7 p.m. Wednesday Service 7 p.m. For information, call . . . 537-8963	STUDENT WELCOME! COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH 8:30 a.m. First Worship Service 9:30 a.m. Sunday School 11 a.m. Second Worship Service 6 p.m. Training Hour 7 p.m. Evening Worship 2221 College Heights Rd. 537-7744
LIVING WORD CHURCH Sunday 10 a.m. Wednesday 7:30 p.m. Campus Group 776-0940 (1 mile south on Hwy. 177)	Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship Sunday School 9:30 a.m. Worship 10:45 a.m. KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m. Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor 1021 Denison 539-4079	Trinity Presbyterian Church Church School 9:30 a.m. Worship 10:45 a.m. • Nursery Provided • Handicap Accessible • Rides Available Pastor James Cramer 1110 College Ave. 539-3921
BLUE VALLEY MEMORIAL UNITED METHODIST Sunday School 9:15 a.m. Morning Worship 10:30 a.m. 835 Church Ave. 539-8790	First Baptist Church SUNDAY WORSHIP 11 a.m. CHURCH SCHOOL 9:45 a.m. 2121 Blue Hill Rd. 539-8891	ST. LUKE'S LUTHERAN CHURCH WORSHIP Sat. 6 p.m. Sun. 8 and 10:45 a.m. SUNDAY SCHOOL 9:30 a.m. COLLEGIATE FELLOWSHIP as scheduled 539-2604 330 N. Sunest
St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center Sunday Masses 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m. Saturday - 5 p.m. Daily Mass - 4:30 p.m. 711 Denison 539-7496	FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH Church School—9:45 a.m. Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Disciples of Christ 115 Courthouse Plaza 776-8790	Crestview Christian Church Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m. Collegiate Sunday School 9:30 776-3798 4301 Tuttle Creek Blvd. (on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)
COME AND WORSHIP! MANHATTAN CHURCH of the NAZARENE College Class 9:30 a.m. Worship Services 10:50 a.m. & 6 p.m. Bible Study & Prayer Wed. 7 p.m. 10th & Fremont 537-4936	Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan former Luckey High School Juliette St. and Plame Worship 9 a.m. Sunday School 10:15 a.m. Nursery provided 537-8526	CHRISTIAN CAMPUS MINISTRY A Ministry Of The Church Of Christ Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m. Bible Classes 9:30 a.m. & Wed. 7:30 p.m. 2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581
College Avenue United Methodist Church welcomes college-aged Students Sundays School discussion topic during October SEXUALITY and CHRISTIANITY: How do they fit together? 9:30-10:30 a.m. every Sunday 1609 College Avenue COME JOIN US!!

Attack

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
there were at least two.

The situation in the gulf has intensified since July 18, when the United States started putting the American flag and American captains on Kuwaiti oil tankers and escorting them through the vital waterway.

Six days later, the first violence occurred with the reflagged supertanker Bridgeton hit by a mine. Ever since, the United States has increased its naval presence in the gulf with the fleet reaching 26 warships in that waterway and adjacent Arabian Sea a month ago.

Pentagon sources, meantime, disclosed that a second, unrelated incident had occurred in the gulf on Thursday.

Parking

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
out the faculty and the staff, and reserved spaces are never sold to students, Brenner said.

"We wanted to relieve some of the misery of the faculty/staff in finding a parking space," he said. "Instead of just high level individuals getting reserved spaces, anyone who wanted to pay for them, could have one."

The spaces will be on the perimeters of only faculty/staff lots, which do not contain student parking spaces. Brenner said at the last Council of Traffic, Parking and Police Operations meeting, the members wanted to make sure that no reserved spaces were placed within student lots.

Applications are available through the K-State Police. Applicants are given three choices of lots, but spaces will be assigned upon availability.

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

"Be a good little lamb and eat all of your grass so you'll grow up big and strong and become a seat cover like your father."

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad. Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.50 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunburst Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today!! (28-34)

IN CELEBRATION of National Co-op Month, People's Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado, will have numerous items on special during the month of October. Open to everyone Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Saturdays 10 a.m.-5 p.m. (30-34)

WANTED: PERSONALS column from Collegians dated 9/18/87 to 9/30/87. Will pay .05¢ each. Call Heather, 532-2362, room #345. (33-34)

GARDEN CITY party Oct. 10th, 8 p.m. Everyone come! 809 North 11th. See ya there. (34)

PENTECOSTAL CONQUERORS will be meeting in the Union Big 8 room, Friday, Oct. 9, at 7 p.m. Everyone is welcome. (34)

Grand Opening

Oct. 10
Susie's Showbar
101 Riley
Ogden, KS
Something Special

AVON OPEN house. Leave him breathless and take advantage of the $1 off sale. Drawings, discounts, refreshments. Oct. 10, 12-4 p.m., F25 Jardine Terrace. (34)

SHOW YOUR appreciation for mom and/or dad with a Parents' Day sweatshirt. Order yours in the Union, Oct. 13-15. (34)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

TWO-BEDROOM apartment available immediately. Across from Ahearn. 776-7559. (30-34)

ONE-BEDROOM, furnished. Close to campus. Available immediately. 776-8918 after 5:30 p.m. (31-34)

TWO BEDROOM. Spacious apartment, good location, for now or January. $350. 776-4993. (32-34)

ONE-BEDROOM, basement, quiet, plenty of space, 1/2 block from campus. Available now. 539-6871 or 537-1269. (33-34)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211f)

COMPUTERS 08

VISUAL COMPUTER—1050. CPM, two drives, 128K. Hi-res monitor, software includes Wordstar, Multiplan, Basic, $450. Call 238-1073. (32-36)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN SHUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United States of America is looking for home workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round, Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields... $800-2,000/month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write J.C. PO. Box 52-K52, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

CLERK, 40 hours a week. Involves some listing, typing and fulfillment of orders. Contact Norren at the Master Teacher, 539-0555 for interview. (31-34)

WANTED DISC Jockey Friday and Saturday night. 539-6015. Susie's Showbar, 101 Riley, Ogden, Kansas. (31-34)

CAREERS IN PETS

First rate opportunity to become part of the professional staff in a brand new pet store. Petland is looking for people who love animals and think work should be stimulating. Emphasis on animal care and customer service. Positions open include store management, bird and fish department management, pet sales counselors and animal care technicians. Full-service pet center carries birds, dogs, cats, tropical fish and a complete range of pet supplies. Experience helpful but not required. Training provided. Opportunities for advancement through nationwide company.

Apply in person at Petland
1325 Poyntz, Oct. 14, 15 & 16 from 1 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

AEROBIC LEADER vacancy at the KSU Rec Complex. Must be a student carrying 6 or more hours. Certification is desired, but not required. Previous teaching experience highly recommended. Must be available Mondays through Thursdays from 5:20-6:30 p.m. Interested individuals are to apply in person at the Rec Complex administrative office during business hours before 12 noon on Thursday, Oct. 8th. (32f)

SCHOOL BUS drivers beginning immediately. $4.75 per hour. Must be 21, have a good driving record and complete a training program. Bus driving experience not required. Part-time 6:30 a.m.-8:30 a.m., 2:40 p.m.-4:30 p.m. Job description available upon request. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (913) 537-2400. EOE. (33-35)

LUNCHROOM/PLAYGROUND supervisor. 11:2-2 hours per day 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., $3.87/hour. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (913) 537-2400. EOE. (33-37)

ENJOY CHILDREN? Bus driver for KSU Child Care Center needed immediately, previous experience preferred. Class B license required. Hours 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Apply at L9 Jardine Terrace, Manhattan, Nancy Bolson, director. Closing date Oct. 16th. EOE. (34-37)

EARN MONEY for Christmas selling Avon products. Interested? Call or stop by Oct. 10, 12-4 p.m., F25 Jardine Terrace. 537-4861. (34)

FINANCIAL SERVICES 10

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (27-35)

GARAGE AND YARD SALES 11

HUGE MOVING sale: Furniture, toys, bikes, TV, clothes, two metal detectors, typewriter, books, Technics turntable, much more. Sat., Oct. 10, 7 a.m., 3005 Dickens. (34)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

POND, PETS, pasture, privacy—6 miles. Need responsible couple. Labor can reduce rent. One of two attached mobile homes. 494-8328. (31-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

LOST AND FOUND 14

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardie's rest area on I-70 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spaying. Answers to "Abby" 537-0646. (32-39)

FOUND—SHARP calculator in Cardwell 103 on Wednesday, Sept. 30. Call Kent O. 539-7561. (32-34)

FOUND: GOLD ring in Seaton Hall student lounge. Call Atshan, 537-1974 or come to Seaton Hall 169 to identify. (34-36)

FOUND: ONE black and silver tie found in the Quinlan Natural Area on Oct. 6th. To claim, call Gary, 532-5132. (34-36)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

AT&T ELECTRIC typewriter, never used. $150. Porch griddle, metal and wood, one-year old. $60. Phone 539-8473. (30-34)

THREE-PIECE living room set for sale. Brown plaid. Make offer. 532-5840, daytime. After 5 p.m., 537-1434. (31-34)

STERLING SILVER jewelry and chain just arrived. We buy/sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie. 539-1194. (32-34)

TWO DAYS only. The latest designs in women's bags, jewelry, and sequined dresses. Holidome Hotel, Saturday, Oct. 10, from 2-6:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11, from 9:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Patrick's Clothing. (32-34)

DANCE, DANCE, DANCE.

to the sounds

of the

Lite 'n' Lively

the best variety
music in town

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

FRIDAY
Fried Chicken or
Spaghetti w/meat sauce
all you can eat
$3.95
with salad bar
111 S. 4th

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Takes in
6 Tub
9 First trans-plant?
12 Game fish
13 "— Senti-mental Mood"
14 Yoko—
15 Piano piece
16 Cicely Tyson movie
18 Wood-ward's spouse
20 The Emerald Isle
21 Auction action
23 Droop
24 Seeks
25 Passed with flying colors
27 Bowling button
29 Spin
31 Multiply by three

35 Billiards shot
37 Stir up
38 Act the ecdysiast?
41 Cribbage need
43 Good times
44 Woodwind
45 Unproductive
47 Company starter
49 Intensity
52 Hill dweller
53 So far
54 Colander
55 Envision

56 Historic time
57 Fight DOWN
1 French season
2 Museum fill
3 Smoothing tool
4 Unadorned
5 Ragouts
6 Countenance
7 Shortly
8 Greek cross
9 "Thinker" sculptor

10 Like neon
11 Drills
17 Like "it"
19 Stallions' mates
21 Sack
22 Frosted
24 That woman
26 "The Omen" character
28 Take the wheel
30 Spigot
32 Cad
33 Sassy talk
34 City trains
36 Ancient Greek nation
38 Davenport
39 Steak choice
40 Course
42 It's greener over there
45 "Suds"
46 Newsman Seavard
48 Coloration
50 Eggs
51 Congress-man: abbr.

Solution time: 23 mins.

ALAS, POD ODES
TAPE RAY ECU
OVEN ERE ECU
MAXIMS RANKED
LEI RUB
HOPE DUCKPINS
YOU IRA LEO
DUCKTAIL SLOP
KEW COP
CASTOR UNITAS
ALOT OWL GALE
PAUL LOU OMEN
PIPE LOS TEXT

Yesterday's answer 10-9

CRYPTOQUIP

LCRZNU LXVR ZF BCXUXFW
EZNVPM XF SXJY WZP
CEZZB BJYXJO: XP
OCUC PNBSJM
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: MY FRIEND, A BROKE BARRELMAKER, CLEVERLY TRIED TO STAVE OFF MEAN CREDITORS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: B equals R

Play

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

control in what is done to it after that," he said. "It's frustrating when you put something you have created through other hands because you know inevitably something will get lost. There is more control in being both the writer and director."

"The chief talent of the director comes in casting. When that is over, half the battle is done."

"Things are always OK after the first reading of the play," Rux said. "I wish I could skip the first reading because it always disturbs the pre-conceived ideas I have for my plays. But I'm fine after that."

"At first I was worried whether they (the cast members) could handle the scope of the subject matter," he said. "But the whole cast has done a good job, and things have come together nicely."

Joel Herndon, a sophomore in theater who portrays the lead character, Grave, said his role is a challenge and one of the more tougher roles he has played.

"It's not exactly a role you can go out and research. I hope it doesn't typecast me in any way," Herndon said. "I think it is really brave to try a play with this subject matter. I view the whole play as a love story, sort of like 'Phantom of the Opera.'"

Herndon said Rux has been very liberal in working with the cast.

"I did a play before where the playwright handed us new pages of script after opening night. Bruce listens to our ideas and suggestions," Herndon said.

Rux spends much of his time writing since he's getting a master's degree in playwriting.

"Writing is a solitary business, so I write in public places, like the Union, to balance that aloneness," he said. "It (writing) is a discovery process."

Rux said he enjoys writing novels because the novelist is the "perfect director."

"Novels have the perfect freedom. The novelist has total control of the whole thing," he said.

In his writing, Rux said he is "aware of the audience," but he writes for himself.

"I keep them in mind while I am enjoying myself," he said.

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE INFORMATION 528-1281
IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 762-4094

CAMPUS
HEART OF AGGIEVILLE

Hostage R
Today at 7 & 9
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 3 & 5

WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center

Hamburger Hill R
Today at 4:30-7:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2

Stakeout R
Today at 4:30-7:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2

Like Father Like Son PG-13
Today at 4:40-7:10-9:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:10

Surrender PG
Today at 4:40-7:10-9:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:10

Pickup Artist PG
Today at 4:45-7:20-9:25
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:20

Dirty Dancing PG-13
Today at 4:45-7:20-9:25
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:20

FRIDAY
TGIF

FREE
TGIF TOSTADO BAR

50¢
PURPLE PASSION
SHOTS

KITE'S
BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12th, Aggieville

GRAND OPENING

Introducing Manhattan's 1st Outlet Store BALLARD'S OUTLET

Featuring discounted Athletic Shoes, Clothing & Equipment
Ballards of Manhattan - Serving Manhattan Since 1951

500 Fort Riley Blvd.
(On the new By Pass)

Hours: Mon-Fri 3:00-7:00, Sat 10:00-6:00, Sunday 1:00-5:00

MENS SHOES

NIKE

	REG.	OUTLET
BIG NIKE HIGH	57.95	29.95
LEATHER ROADRUNNER	52.95	27.95
REEBOK
MID CUT WORKOUT	54.95	35.95
LOW CUT WORKOUT	49.95	33.95
PHASE I TENNIS	52.95	34.95
GL6000	59.95	39.95

FREE DRAWING
FOR ATHLETIC SHOES

CONVERSE

JIMMY CONNORS COMMODORE	48.95	26.95
A C CONVERTER	47.95	26.95
STARTECH	46.95	27.95
SPECTRE	37.95	19.95

NEW BALANCE

785 BASKETBALL	79.95	46.95
592 BASKETBALL	62.95	34.95
495 RUNNING	52.95	29.95

TIGER

AMADEUS HIGH	47.95	26.95
MERIDIAN HIGH	52.95	29.95
MEDRIDIAN LOW	49.95	27.95
ULTRA 1000	59.95	34.95

BROOKS

PUMA

FOOTJOY

FREE

DRAWING FOR TWO SEASON TICKETS TO KSU BASKETBALL

WOMEN'S SHOES

NIKE

VORTEX	52.95	28.95
LEATHER ROADRUNNER	47.95	25.95
NOVA	39.95	22.95
CONDITION HIGH	52.95	27.95

LOTS OF FUN
LOTS OF GIFTS
LOTS OF DRAWINGS

REEBOK

PRINCESS	39.95	24.95
WORKOUT	49.95	32.95
CLASSIC	49.95	32.95

TIGER

CONCERTO	54.95	32.95
ENSEMBLE	44.95	24.95

FREE

HOT DOG AND DRINK
WITH EACH
$15.00 PURCHASE!!

KAEPKA

CONVERSE

BROOKS

SPIN
FOR FREE GIFT
WITH EACH
PURCHASE

YOUTH SHOES

NIKE SKY JORDAN	39.95	18.95
CONVERSE JR. STAR TECH	29.95	14.95
CONVERSE ARIANNE	30.95	13.95
CONVERSE STARSHIP MID	29.95	13.95
INFANT BIG NIKE	21.95	9.95
INFANTRY NIKE	23.95	11.95

TIGER

NEW BALANCE

OTHER VALUES

LEATHER BASKETBALLS	54.95	34.95
WILSON FOOTBALLS	32.00	16.00

SOCCER BALLS

	24.95	11.95
	19.95	9.95

RUSSELL IRREGULAR FLEECE

PANTS-CREWS	14.95	7.25
-------------	-------	------

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS

GEAR FASHION PRINTS	18.95	8.50
REEBOK DIRECTOR CHAIRS	28.95	14.95
	49.99	22.95

OVER 170 STYLES OF SHOES!!

SATURDAY & SUNDAY, OCT. 10th & 11th

10:00 a.m.-6:00 p.m.

1:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m.

Join the Celebration!

Come on Ft. Riley Blvd. or take South 5th
to By-Pass.

PLENTY OF PARKING AT
500 FT. RILEY BLVD.
OR 601 SOUTH 5TH

Business Hounds

A variety of canine companions inhabit Aggieville businesses, and some have become quite an attraction. See Page 5.

Weather

Sunny and warmer today, high in upper 60s. Wind southwest 5 to 15 mph. Clear tonight, low in upper 30s. Mostly sunny and mild Tuesday, high in mid-70s.

164 0/0/0  7
Kans. State Historical Soc
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
Tigers - 66612
34-10 Saturday - Iowa, dropping K-State's record to 0-5. See Page 6.

Monday
October 12, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 35

Kansas State Collegian

Jackson dispels campaign rumors

By The Associated Press

WINTERSET, Iowa — Democratic presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson on Sunday dismissed "professional guessers" who doubt the viability of his campaign and rejected speculation that his personal life is about to come under attack.

"I sense victory," he insisted. On Jackson's second day as a formal candidate, the Des Moines Sunday Register reported that his campaign was being dogged "by reports that newspapers are about to break stories portraying him as a womanizer."

In an interview with The Associated Press, Jackson dismissed those rumors.

"You stay your course and not dignify that which is irrelevant or not essential," Jackson said. "If you confront it and dignify it, you give it meaning. Experience will teach you that people do not judge you on the home run you hit one day or the error you make the other day, they judge you by your cumulative score."

"For the most part, people judge politicians about like they judge themselves — as human beings."

When Jackson opened his campaign Saturday in Raleigh, N.C., some key supporters said they were concerned that damaging personal revelations were about to be published.

There's been intense scrutiny of the personal lives of presidential candidates since former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado and Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware were forced from the race by embarrassing personal and campaign disclosures.

Jackson said he would be cautious in dealing with rumors because "public figures have to be very sensitive to and disciplined about remaining focused in the face of distraction."

Though Jackson insisted the rumors wouldn't affect his campaign, he conceded they have caused personal pain on a tour on which he is accompanied by his wife and some of his children.

Jackson, an ordained minister, delivered a sermon Sunday at a small Lutheran church in this central Iowa community, using his message to insist that financially pressed farmers and urban factory workers all have a place in his "Rainbow Coalition."

"We're all members of the same family," he said. "Shall we not have the good judgment to see the oneness of the human family? We're all displaced when the plant gate closes and the farm is foreclosed."

More than 1,000 people gathered in rural Greenfield to cheer him Saturday night and the church in Winterset, John Wayne's birthplace, was jammed.

Indian troops fight rebels in Sri Lanka

By The Associated Press

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Indian troops, using heavy artillery and mortars, killed up to 120 Tamil rebels during a weekend offensive on the Jaffna Peninsula, Sri Lankan officials said Sunday.

Fifteen Indian soldiers were also killed in the fighting, according to Indian officials and news reports.

Tamil rebels, seeking to establish an independent nation for their ethnic minority, have been blamed for the deaths of more than 200 people in the past week. Most of those killed were civilians from the Sinhalese community, the majority ethnic group that controls Sri Lanka's government and military.

About 15,000 Indian soldiers have been sent to nearby Sri Lanka in an attempt to disarm the rebels and enforce a July 29 peace plan signed by the Indian and Sri Lankan governments.

A curfew was imposed on Jaffna Peninsula, about 185 miles north of Colombo, during the Indian offensive.

The Sri Lankan military command said 120 rebels were killed in the fighting, throughout the peninsula.

See SRI LANKA, Page 11

Iraq resumes attack Iran retaliates with missiles

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraq resumed its aerial blitz of Iranian oil targets Sunday, severely damaging a Liberian-flagged supertanker. Two crewmen were reported killed and four others missing in the attack.

An Iranian surface-to-surface missile exploded in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, as Iran retaliated for the attack on tankers.

Two Exocet missiles from Iraqi jets crashed into the engine room of the 239,435-ton Rova, setting the ship ablaze, according to gulf-based shipping sources.

It was one of three raids announced by Iraq against tankers along the Iranian coast since Saturday morning.

Shipping sources identified one of the three targets as the Merlin, a 215,925-ton Cypriot-flag tanker under charter to Iran. An Exocet missile crashed into the ship but did not explode and damage was minor, they said. The unexploded missile was still aboard.

The identity of the third ship was not known, the sources said.

Both Baghdad and Tehran reported that a long-range Iranian missile was fired into the Iraqi capital overnight but disagreed where it hit. Iran claimed the missile struck a major military garrison, while Iraq said it landed in a residential area, killing "numerous" civilians. No figures were given.

The attack on Baghdad was the first since two of the projectiles, believed to be Soviet-designed Scud-Bs, hit the city of 4 million last Monday.

In other developments, a convoy of four U.S. reflagged Kuwaiti tankers was moving north up the Persian Gulf under U.S. Navy escort, the 11th since America began the operations in mid-July.

A U.S. spokesman said the convoy had passed the Strait of Hormuz at the gulf's southern tip without incident, and other sources reported it was off the United Arab Emirates coast at midday.

The convoy included the oil tank-ers Sea Isle City and Ocean City, 81,283 and 79,999 tons respectively, and the gas carriers Gas King and Gas Princess, both 46,723 tons.

They were escorted by four U.S. missile frigates and the 8,600-ton amphibious landing dock ship Mount Vernon, entering the gulf for the first time.

Another U.S. Navy ship, similar to the Mount Vernon, was sailing near the convoy. Although witnesses could not immediately identify it, a spokesman for the U.S. forces said it may have been the Raleigh, another landing ship.

The Raleigh's hospital unit was caring for four Iranians wounded in Thursday's clash between U.S. helicopter gunships and three Iranian Revolutionary Guard gunboats in the northern gulf.

U.S. Navy officials reported late Saturday that the four were improving, with one in guarded condition with extensive burns and the other three in fair condition with shrapnel wounds.

Festive games

J. D. Terry, Gretchen Schmoekel and Joe Robels, all of Junction City, try their luck at the ring toss during Saturday's Oktoberfest celebration in Aggieville. Their attempts turned out to be unsuccessful.

Collegian/Mark Leffingwell

Union faces profit loss after team exits Ahearn

By The Collegian Staff

The Union's food service may incur a financial loss of $1,000 for every men's basketball game that will be played in Fred Bramlage Coliseum next fall.

K-State's men's and women's basketball games are currently played in Ahearn Field House, but will move to Bramlage after it is completed in October of 1988.

The expected loss may come from a loss of patronage by many basketball supporters who are older, retired people, said Malley Sisson, food service director for the Union.

In the past, it has become somewhat of a tradition for a number of them to arrive early for the games and get together in the Union Stateroom to dine and visit with one another. Their early arrival also ensures them a parking place, Sisson said.

She is concerned the Union will lose these pre-game customers with the closing of Ahearn.

"We do foresee a decrease of revenue. We just hope it's not all of our (basketball game) revenue," she said.

Less revenue is expected to be lost by the move of the K-State women's basketball games, which have a smaller attendance.

Sisson said the situation has been discussed with Charles Thomas, director of the Coliseum. He suggested the possibility of busing people from the Union to the Coliseum.

Since there will probably be a charge for parking at the stadium, offering a free bus ride to the Coliseum for those who dine at the Union before the game may be an option, Sisson said.

Individuals who bought a season basketball ticket this year will be polled for their ideas on the problem and feasibility of continuing to keep the hot food line open late on game nights, Sisson said.

"It's a year away, but we know we are going to have a problem," Sisson said. "Right now, we are brainstorming."

AIDS patients in wheelchairs lead homosexual rally in D.C.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Thousands of homosexual activists, led by AIDS patients in wheelchairs and bearing signs carrying messages like, "Thank God I'm Gay," marched Sunday to demand protection from discrimination and more federal money for AIDS research and treatment.

U.S. Park Police estimated that 200,000 people participated in the march past the White House and rally near the Capitol. The crowd, carrying balloons and banners and wearing buttons and T-shirts, heard from speakers including Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson and former National Organization for Women President Eleanor Smeal.

"Let's find a common ground of humanity," Jackson told the rally late in the afternoon. "We share the desire for life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, equal protection under the law. Let's not dwell on distinctions."

He brought the crowd to its feet when he called for an end to the AIDS crisis.

"We can fight AIDS and every form of death. Let's give life a chance," he said.

After his speech, Jackson spoke to a number of AIDS patients in wheelchairs near the stage. He shook their hands and said, "God Bless You."

The rally stretched along the mall for more than a dozen blocks.

"Here we are from California, Alabama, Florida, Arizona, Alaska, Seattle and Delaware — east, west, north and south — in numbers too large to ever be denied again," said Eleanor Smeal, former president of the National Organization for Women.

She told the crowd they numbered 500,000 and yelled, "Look at you!"

"Feel the political power of the moment. Spread love and fight hate," she said.

She also said, "We have stopped Bork," referring to federal Judge

Robert Bork, whose nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court appears headed for certain defeat in the Senate. Marchers chanted anti-Bork slogans.

Under skies threatening rain, the rally began with music and a poignant statement from Dan Bradley, a White House aide in the Carter administration, who is suffering from acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Bradley said that what he was most proud of was that "after a lifetime of struggle (and) fear...I had the courage (in 1982) to say, loud and clear, 'I'm gay and I'm proud. I'm gay and I'm proud.'"

Activists say the AIDS crisis, which has hit the homosexual community in the United States especially hard, has spurred an increase in violence and discrimination against the nation's lesbians and homosexual men, who they estimate number 25 million.

Organizers were hoping to use the march and rally Sunday and a

See MARCH, Page 11

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Two children die in area fire

MOUNDRIDGE, Kan. — Two children died in a fire that started in their home's fireplace early Sunday, according to the McPherson County Sheriff's department.

The victims were identified as Brian Galle Jr., 9, and his sister April, 10, both of Moundridge. They were in the two-story home with a babysitter, Marian Sebrant, and her two children, the sheriff's office said.

Sebrant and her son Shane escaped safely. Her 7-year-old daughter Ramie suffered from smoke inhalation, and was in fair condition at a Newton hospital Sunday afternoon.

The sheriff's office said the fire broke out sometime after midnight. Sebrant, who was on the first floor, ran from the house to flag down police officers. Moundridge Police Chief Brent Galle, the victim's uncle, responded to the fire.

Shane Sebrant, who was on the second floor with the other children, broke a window and Moundridge police officers were able to pull him and Ramie Sebrant to safety.

But officers were overcome by smoke before they could reach the Galle children. Brian was found near the broken window, and April was found in her bed.

Gunmen interrupt dinner

ROME — Four gunmen burst into a Rome restaurant and robbed 80 diners of jewels, watches and wallets, newspapers reported Sunday.

Some customers screamed and fainted as the four forced them to hand over jewelry and empty their pockets Saturday night at the Grottino Restaurant, according to the accounts. The papers said the loot was worth thousands of dollars.

The robbers fled in a red Alfa Romeo 2000 reported stolen last week, the newspapers said.

Wayne's widow writes book

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. — The widow of John Wayne has written a new book on the Duke that she says will "set the record straight" and tell a beautiful love story at the same time.

The National Enquirer paid Pilar Wayne $50,000 to excerpt "John Wayne: My Life With The Duke," and is sponsoring a 20-city promotional tour for her, the Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported Sunday.

Wayne described her late husband as "a superhuman being" and "the epitome of a man" who could also be stubborn, sexist, self-centered and irresponsible with money.

Among other disclosures, the book reveals that Pilar Wayne had an abortion during a 1950s affair with Wayne to avoid ruining his career and damaging his reputation while he was in the midst of divorcing his second wife.

The two were married for 25 years but were separated at the time of Wayne's death in 1979 at age 72.

Couple remarry 50 feet in air

MIDLAND, Texas — Love was in the air at the remarriage of Vicki and David Trolinder. But then, so were they.

Fifty feet above the Midland skyline and perched in separate crane truck "buckets," the two were wed Saturday for the second time in eight years.

Vicki Trolinder, 32, said the status of their 1983 divorce had always been "up in the air" and it seemed fitting that the remarriage to David Trolinder, 31, be just the same.

Man's goal to lose 800 pounds

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — Three weeks after getting stuck in a doorway, a man who broke the scales at 1,000 pounds has stopped gorging on junk food for a diet that includes dried fruit and sesame seeds.

It's paid off.

Walter Hudson already has lost four inches around the knees.

He is still far heavier than the heaviest man listed in the Guinness Book of World Records, who is less than 900 pounds.

Hudson has biceps like flabby watermelons. He has a 103-inch waist. That's 8½ feet. His knees are 51 inches around, down from 55. His neck is 22 inches.

The 42-year-old Hudson weighed 212 pounds when he was 12.

Somewhere along the way, he said, he stopped caring what people thought of him, and only started caring again after he got stuck in his bedroom doorway and had to be extricated by rescue workers three weeks ago.

"Sometimes it got real rough," he said Wednesday, explaining that it was so hard to walk that he waited two months at a time to go to the bathroom.

Hudson's plight was widely publicized. He got calls from exercise expert Richard Simmons, Overeaters Anonymous and Dick Gregory, the one-time comedian who runs a weight-loss clinic in the Bahamas.

"I'm absolutely surprised he's not dead," said Gregory, who has taken on Hudson as a client, and hopes to get him to lose enough in three months that he can be taken to the clinic.

Hudson estimated his own weight at 1,200 pounds. Several days ago, Hudson stood on a scale, propped up by three weightlifters. A spring popped on the scale at 1,000 pounds.

He has forsaken his daily Thanksgiving-size meals, when he would devour three or four ham steaks and six large bottles of soda pop for breakfast or lunch. His grocery bill averages about $300 a week.

Hudson said he's tried other diets, but speaks with resolve about this one as he lies on the bed where he has spent much of the last 27 years.

"Mr. Gregory's plan is the best I ever tried because I don't feel hungry," he said.

Hudson hasn't been outside since his family moved from Brooklyn to this Long Island community 17 years ago.

Gregory's long-term goal is to get Hudson down to 190 pounds — losing more than 80 percent of his body weight.

Barbara A. Whitehead, Hudson's niece who helps care for him, said he has always seemed happy.

That's one big sandwich

SYLVESTER, Ga. — More than 2,000 people shared a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, billed as the world's largest, at the 24th annual Georgia Peanut Festival Parade.

The sandwich served Saturday was 14 feet square and required 1,630 pounds of bread dough, 600 pounds of peanut butter and 420 pounds of grape jelly.

Betty Wilson Wojcik, executive director of the Worth County-Sylvester Chamber of Commerce, said a report of the creation will be submitted to the editors of the Guinness Book of World Records.

About 20,000 visitors watched the parade in southwest Georgia, the heart of the state's peanut industry. Georgia produces about 40 percent of the nation's peanuts.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

WILDCAT TIPOFF CLASSIC men and women 3-on-3 basketball tournament Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms are available at Union candy counter, Hollis House and Ahearn 101.

AG ECON CLUB sign-up and $50 deposit for Texas trip due Oct. 14 in Waters 327.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS award applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Acker 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at KSU are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students; the awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTER-VIEWS applicants for 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

WOMEN IN COMMUNICATIONS meets at 7 p.m. in Union 212.

STUDENT HUMAN ECOLOGY ASSOCIATION meets at 4 p.m. in Justin 341.

COLLEGE OF HUMAN ECOLOGY COUNCIL meets at 5:15 p.m. in Justin.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI PLEDGES meet at 6 p.m. in Union 206.

SPORTS CLUB COUNCIL meets at 5 p.m. in Union Student Government Services office.

ENGINEERING STUDENT COUNCIL

meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 213.

TAU BETA PI meets at 3:30 p.m. in Durland 173. Joseph Keithley will be speaking on Keithley Instruments and building a company from scratch.

BUSINESS COUNCIL meets at 4 p.m. in Union 206.

KOREAN STUDENT ASSOCIATION meets at 7:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

KOREAN STUDENT ASSOCIATION meets at 8 p.m. in Union 212 for a film show.

FARMHOUSE LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

TUESDAY

HORSEMAN'S ASSOCIATION meets at 9 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for pictures.

BETA KAPPA NU meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union Little Theatre for a demonstration interview and a question and answer session with Motorola recruiter.

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Station 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

STUDENT DIETETIC ASSOCIATION meets at 7 p.m. in Justin lounge for a discussion on dressing for success.

PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Union 208.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Shellenberger 301.

SOCIETY OF MANUFACTURING ENGINEERS meets at 6:30 p.m. at north entrance of Durland Hall.

Your Support Saves Babies

Support the March of Dimes

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Falsetto's

Homemade Pizza

2 for the price of 1

Free Delivery
539-3830

Bobby J's

Restaurant and Fundrinery

Monday Night

•Spinach Fettuccine with Clam Sauce

or

•Spaghetti

with Meat Sauce

All you can eat!!

$2.99

•Garlic French Bread
3240 Kimball—Candlewood

STRESS

Not Managed Adequately Will Often Be Transformed To Physical Illness

(50-80% of all illnesses are closely associated with and perhaps even caused by excessive and/or poorly handled stress.)

LEARN TO MANAGE YOUR STRESS
CALL 532-6550

Lafene Mental Health Center

Auntie Mac's Parlor

MONDAY'S HIGH ROLLERS
Any call or premium liquor drink
$1.75

Tuesday Import Beer
only $1.25
Pitchers $2.25

Now Serving Sandwiches
Kitchen open til 1 a.m.

616 N. 12th 539-9967

INSTANT REPLAY MONDAY

2-FER STEINS

99¢ LATE NITE NACHOS
(REGULAR), 8-12

Grill open till 1 a.m. nitely!
Open to Public!

IKITE'S
BAR AND GRILL

619 N. 12th, Aggieville

Be a part of the K-State Tradition at Homecoming 1987! Blue Key has planned an exciting week of activities and fun for all K-Staters in preparation for the Homecoming game against Oklahoma this Saturday, October 17. Kicking off the celebration is Union Day this Thursday with activities scheduled all day in the K-State Union Courtyard. Included are the Body Building and Yell Like Hell contests, musical entertainment and balloon give-aways. Manhattan Merchant Discounts will be available all week with the purchase of a Homecoming button. Homecoming bumperstickers will also be on sale. Friday night at 9 p.m., the annual Homecoming bonfire will be held in the old stadium. Special features include Pant the Chant competitions, cheerleaders, Stan Weber, and the burning of the Oklahoma mascot. "Everyday is K-State Day" and this year's special K-State Day will be in the Union on Friday. Come relax, watch the final living group competitions and enjoy the musical entertainment. Saturday's the big day starting with the parade through Downtown and Aggieville at 9 a.m. K-State Ambassadors and Homecoming winners will be announced at halftime during the grand-finale—the Wildcats against the Sooners of Oklahoma! So join the students, alumni and friends who will be showing their purple pride this week during the best K-State Homecoming celebration ever!!

Students Select K-State Ambassadors

An important part of K-State's Homecoming activities is the selection of the K-State Ambassadors. The Ambassadors program, now in its tenth year, combines student representation to the K-State community with the traditional royalty. The K-State Ambassadors represent KSU through the state at various alumni and University functions. This year's ambassadors were Jada Allerheiligen and Mark Buyle. The path to becoming an ambassador involves interviews with students, faculty, staff and alumni. Finalists are selected on the basis of their enthusiasm, knowledge of the university, communication abilities, personal presentation and campus and scholastic achievements. Finally, two students are selected K-State Ambassadors in an all-student election to be held this Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in the Union. Blue Key rewards the Ambassadors for their service to K-State by scholarships presented at the annual Spring banquet. We urge you to be part of the K-State Ambassador program by voting Wednesday, Thursday or Friday in the Union. Remember your fee card!

Blue Key Members '87-'88

Jada Allerheiligen
Bob Avery
Kent Bradley
John Bullock
Mark Buyle
Robin Harnden

Jim Hill
Steven Johnson
Jan Kinsler
Candy Leonard
Roger McClellan
Pat Muir

Dan Owens
Kathy Peirce
John Socolofsky
Libby Turner
Matt Wineinger

Professor receives grant of $330,000

Award to train rural 'special ed' teachers

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

A federal grant of $330,000 has been awarded to a K-State professor for training of rural special education teachers.

Linda Thurston, assistant professor of administration and foundations of education, received the grant for the teacher training project, which started Sept. 1 and continues through 1990.

"This is the first thing we've done for rural special education teachers, but we got the grant because a primary area of KSU teachers is rural areas," Thurston said.

Special education teachers work with different groups of students including speech, behavior and physical disorders, the learning disabled and also gifted children.

The goal of the project is to help prevent the burnout, and social and professional isolation which special education teachers may experience in rural areas, Thurston said.

She said the social and professional isolation teachers feel in rural areas is due to several factors.

"They might be the only special ed teacher in the building. Or there might be two special ed students in one school, three in another and five in another.

"One teacher is hired to teach all of them. They might have to drive 40 miles between schools, and they feel isolated because they never have any professional interaction with other members of their field," Thurston said.

A national study estimated the turnover rate of special education teachers in rural areas is 30 to 50 percent, she said, while 17 percent of rural education programs reported having enough special education teachers.

A Kansas study revealed a 15 percent attrition rate for special education teachers, Thurston said.

"They either quit teaching special ed and go into regular education or they quit teaching altogether," she said. "We estimate 92 vacancies a year in rural Kansas due to attrition alone."

To help improve the quality of training for special education teachers, and help reduce the social and professional isolation, the project will focus on two main groups of people, Thurston said.

The first group includes students currently studying special education, she said. In addition to the regular special education training, these students will take courses dealing with special problems and educational strategies of teaching in a rural environment.

This group also includes regular education teachers already teaching in a rural area who would like to become certified in special education, Thurston said.

"We would simply give them more training in this area," she said. The project will fund 15 people a year to go through this training and each receive a $1,000 stipend for the training, Thurston said.

The second group is certified special education teachers already teaching in rural areas.

Three services will be provided to these teachers through the project, Thurston said.

The first service is a monthly seminar over the telenet system, which will inform the teachers of current issues and ideas in world special education.

"It will be like a continuing education service," Thurston said.

The second service is a Kansas rural special education network. This will also use the telenet, and is a support group hotline.

"The (the teachers) can call the telenet number, and then it will be like a conference call. You can talk to everybody over the phone," Thurston said. "This will allow them to share information and frustrations with others in the field."

The third service is a professional development stipend. Those teachers who want to go to workshops can apply, and 40 teachers will receive $100 stipends each year to enable them to attend conference meetings.

"When they go to these (conference meetings), it's a real upper and a lot of moral support," Thurston said. "And they also receive professional development."

The long-term goal of the project is to provide better education for the special needs of children in rural Kansas by providing more teachers and more professional support for those teachers, she said.

1987 Reagan's worst year

Confrontations increase after Bork

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The likely rejection of Robert Bork as President Reagan's nominee for the Supreme Court marks the low ebb in Reagan's worst year yet on Capitol Hill, and lawmakers say the president has responded to defeats by growing even more confrontational.

The White House apparently has concluded that, having lost control of the Senate in the 1986 elections, it is better to make a stand on principles and go down in martyrdom than to seek compromise from a weakened position.

"They are following a scorched-earth policy," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. "Veto, threaten veto, vote no, filibuster, stall, delay. It's a no-win policy."

The year has yielded a string of losses for the administration, growing ever more visible. The year began badly when Reagan vetoed two major spending measures, the clean water bill and a highway authorization act. Both vetoes were overridden.

Later, Reagan sought to make budget reform a top domestic policy priority. But while campaigning for reform, congressional Republicans complained, the president was sitting out the real budget fight going on in Congress.

The result was that Reagan was forced to sign a renewal of the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law last month in which he had little say.

Added to those failures has been the Iran-Contra hearings, disputes over more aid to the Contras and the sale of Maverick missiles to Saudi Arabia, and the Bork nomination, which some Republicans said wasn't pushed hard enough.

"I don't think they used the tools of the trade in a way to be successful," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa. "If they had done half as much as the left did, he would have been approved."

But more than a White House failure, the Bork vote illustrates a new partisanship on a Capitol Hill where both houses are under Democratic control, said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

"There is a desire to defeat the president on everything up here," he said.

Exhibit of posters to illustrate link between services

By The Collegian Staff

More than 150 posters will be displayed from 9:45 to noon Tuesday in the Union's Grand Ballroom. These posters show joint research projects between the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cooperative Extension Service.

The display is part of the joint conference of the KAES and Extension at K-State Oct. 12-16. The posters will provide information on several research projects being conducted, said Kurt Feltner, associate dean of the KAES.

"Water use efficiency and economic development in small communities will be two of the topics covered in the posters," he said.

Although the KAES and Extension work together to provide information to the public, this is the first year that their annual conferences have been combined.

Clemson University President Max Lennon will be the keynote speaker for the conference.

Rape of student reported to RCPD

By The Collegian Staff

Riley County police are looking for a suspect in the reported rape of a female K-State student Oct. 7, said Sgt. Rodney Jager of the criminal investigations division.

"I hope that we'll have an immediate arrest," he said.

The incident reportedly occurred between 8 and 11 p.m. at a Manhattan apartment, Jager said. He would reveal no other information because of the ongoing investigation.

OPEN FORUM

The Task Force reviewing the counseling, mental and physical health services provided to KSU students invites comments from students, faculty, and staff.

Tuesday, October 13
and Tuesday, October 20
3:30 p.m.

K-State Union, Room 212
For further information contact:
Mike Lynch, 204 Holton Hall, 532-6492

TREAT YOURSELF ROYALLY

Peanut Buster Parfait

Banana Split

99¢ now thru March 20

99¢

Dairy Queen

LET'S ALL GO TO THE DAIRY QUEEN

1015 N. 3rd Manhattan
12th & Moro Aggieville

1120 Moro

One Night Only

PLAIN JANE

Thurs., Oct. 15

$2 pitchers

$1 shots

TROPICAL TAN

$2 sessions

or

$40 tanning membership
bring coupon in for details
—EXPIRES 10-21-87—

WOLF SYSTEM
Sun
CENTER

TROPICAL TAN

FirstBank Center
Second Level
Denison & Claflin
537-0744

MasterCard VISA

THE FUN'S ABOUT TO BEGIN!

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

Kansas State
Basketball
presents:

MIDNIGHT MADNESS TWO

Come Join Coach Kruger, Willie Wildcat,
the K-State Cheerleaders & KSU Pep Band at Ahearn Arena's Final Midnight Practice.

Doors Open 11 p.m.
Pre-Practice Events
include
ICAT, Carol Lee
Donuts, Shooting
Contest, Falsetto's
Pizza, & Student
Season Ticket Plan

OCT. 14

Practice
Starts
at 12:01 A.M.

Sunchase
SIXTH ANNUAL

COLLEGIATE

WINTER

SKI BREAKS

1988

Breckenridge

JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Steamboat

JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Winter Park

JANUARY 2-9, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Vail/Beaver Creek

JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

THE SKI BUS
$79
PERIOD TOP

154

159

172

178

TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS

1-800-321-5911

or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency

Never a dull moment.

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, October 12, 1987 ■ Page 4

Lessons from Vietnam must not be forgotten

Almost a decade and a half after the United States pulled the last of its troops out of Vietnam, the nation finally seems to be coming to grips with its most confusing and painful war.

The media's offering of a barrage of material on a subject signifies the subject is or will be on most people's minds.

The Vietnam war is currently a hot topic in Hollywood. What started with Francis Ford Coppola's "Apocalypse Now" and was further punctuated by Oliver Stone's "Platoon" and other Vietnam war movies has now been picked up by the most mundane of mediums — television.

There is a weekly series titled "Tour of Duty" which is set in Vietnam. Though it has been blasted by the critics, its presence is a statement about the interest in the war. If it is on TV then it is acceptable for national discussion. Finally.

It is good that as a society we pay due attention to the war and its victims: those who died in the war, those who stayed here unable to comprehend what their loved ones were going through and, most of all, those who went through it and are still trying to comprehend it.

However, let us hope we are learning the right things. Rather than subscribing to the idiotic "Rambo" backlash to national impotence, we should concentrate on the horrific "Deerhunter" account of who we are and where we stand in the eyes of others and ourselves.

"Hamburger Hill" raises the question: "How are you gonna act back home after surviving this pointless war?" "Full Metal Jacket" asks: "Are we a peaceful species gone over the edge into violence, or are we a violent species flirting with the noble idea of peace?" Good questions indeed.

But there is the danger of overkill. It is a matter of time before the media runs the war and all it represents into the ground. The thought of the pain, death and frustration becoming trivial is almost as disgusting as the war itself.

Be aware there are those who already feel that way. Many Vietnam veterans lived through it once and have no desire to go back. For some, it has only dragged them through the nightmare once more. For others, however, addressing the war has helped them overcome it or at least deal with it.

Hurray. We are finally easing our conscience a little and people are making money from it. Everybody's happy. But let us not allow the money aspect to become more important than the conscience. If we do not learn from the past, then the past and all it represents is wasted.

Fight for super collider costs more than worth

Bring on the dancing girls, the reports immersed in pots of caviar, anything. Spare no money by God — Kansas has got to get that supercolliding super collider!

Spare no money is the key issue here.

Kansas is among 22 states vying for the supreme position of becoming the possessor of one super collider, complete with jobs for 4,500 during construction and 2,500 after it goes into production.

The idea of many jobs to help boost a sagging Kansas economy sounds good. But, Kansas may be merely looking at the pot of gold at the end of a very expensive rainbow, one full of sweet promise without any solid assurances.

Kansas, like many other states, is wasting money with the hopes of landing "the big one." Of course, it does take risk to build and become stronger. It also takes money spent to increase money received. But the $300,000 the Kansas Legislature appropriated to influence the Department of Energy to locate the site in Kansas is more than should be spent on such a high-risk proposition.

And if Kansas is only spending an average of what other states are spending, think of where the $6.9 million could have been spent.

It's blatantly wasteful to allow the states to spend as much as needed to influence the government. Next time a government project goes up for bid, a basic rule should be established — each state should be able to spend no more than $1,000.

So instead of wasting money trying to influence others, let's be money-wise and make our dollars stretch to serve as many people as possible. Because if the state doesn't win the super collider, Kansas and taxpayers are out $300,000.

Analyzing Holton bill Senate makes $1 million mistake

"They made us many promises, more than I can remember, but they never kept but one: They promised to take our land, and they took it."

—an anonymous American Indian
I can understand how this guy must have felt, as I'm sure a lot of students here at K-State would too if they knew what Student Senate was doing with their money. Senate proved again Thursday night that it refuses to one who asks for money, but now Senate is handing out your money faster than it can take it from your pockets.

Thursday night, Senate OK'd a plan to renovate Holton Hall, appropriating $1.069 million of student funds to the project. But this figure is deceptive because a good chunk of the project is going to be financed, and the total cost with interest is actually more than $1.2 million.

Why should students pay this exorbitant amount of money to renovate a building? Some of you may be wondering what is Holton Hall, or better yet, where is Holton Hall? Well, it's the big old building across the street from Bluemont Hall, not to be mistaken for the president's house. It is the home of such services such as Academic Affairs, the Counseling Center and U-Learn. With the exception of U-Learn, all of these services are funded by the state and staffed by state-

Commentary

KIRK CARAWAY
Collegian Columnist

paid employees. After all, Holton Hall is a state building.

This is where the dispute begins. Why should students have to pay for renovations to a state building? After all, the state has more money than the students. In fact, most students have incomes low enough to qualify for food stamps. Why take money from those who don't have any and give it to people who do? The state is responsible for providing its employees with a place to work, not the students.

The problem started back in 1983 when Senate first created the Student Services Support Fee to be used to renovate Holton Hall. This fee should be renamed the drain-the-students-for-everything-they've-got-and-give-it-to-the-administration fee. At this time, the administration, which usually funds these projects, told Senate it didn't have any plans for Holton and it would take a few years to put it on its priority list. Now it is a few years later and the administration still feeds us the same line. It would be done by now if the administration had put it on its list back in 1983.

When the Senate in 1983 passed the fee, it estimated the renovation would cost $780,000. This was a highly inaccurate estimate that was made by using simple square feet equations. No plans were ever drawn up or studies conducted before Senate voted the funding to the project, a highly suspect move. Senate also didn't give any thought to letting the students vote on whether they wanted this fee or not. As you can see, this estimate was way off the mark. This poor planning has resulted in much of the current troubles with the project.

And were the students ever asked if they wanted their money spent in such a slipshod manner? The answer to this is a resounding no. Another senator and I introduced a bill that would have allowed the students to vote on whether they wanted to spend money on this project. The bill was voted down not once, but twice. It seems senators are afraid

■ See MISTAKE, Page 12

Senators obligated to repair hall

The Holton Hall issue essentially came down to deciding between two principles: not spending more student money on a state building, or keeping with the original intent of an earlier Senate decision and renovating Holton Hall properly.

Both these principles are laudable, but unfortunately, in the case of Holton Hall, they were mutually exclusive. If one wanted to renovate Holton Hall properly and respect the original Senate decision, more student money had to be spent. I actively campaigned in Senate not to spend more student money, but two-thirds of the student senators decided renovating Holton properly was more important. I have to believe their judgment was not entirely in error, and hope to explain today why this is so.

To begin with, the 1982-83 Student Senate made the decision to renovate Holton Hall with student money and passed the student services fee listed on the back of students' fee card. At that time, a very rough figure of $780,000 was thrown out as an estimate of the cost of the renovation. What is important is the original Senate decision affirmed students' commitment to spend their money to renovate Holton — not that the renovation should cost no more than $780,000.

Last spring, K-State architect Larry Garvin came to Student Senate and revealed a plan which would adequately meet the needs of the services located in Holton Hall. He also informed senators the cost of said renovation had escalated to $1.069 million. Three factors contributed to this escalation:

■ Inflation, which alone would require an expenditure of $900,000 to buy in 1988 what

Commentary

DAN OWENS
Collegian Columnist

$780,000 would have bought in 1983; ■ New safety/handicapped regulations, which added $100,000 to the project cost, primarily in the form of an elevator;

■ A detailed study of the user needs in Holton Hall revealed $65,000 more would be necessary to satisfy those needs.

And that just about adds up to $1.069 million or an increase of $289,000 above the original figure of $780,000. After the most thorough debate I have seen in Senate since arriving at K-State in 1982, a bill approving this increase sponsored by student senators Doug Folk, Pat Muir and Jeff Wing was passed in last Thursday's Senate meeting by a vote of 33-14. Construction will begin on Holton Hall next summer and the renovation — funded entirely by the students — should be complete in the fall of 1989.

Last week, Garvin and the actual Holton Hall project architect Mike Blaske held a meeting to discuss the merits of the two plans. Although the turnout for such an important meeting was embarrassingly low, (six senators — Folk, Mary Jo Lampe, Muir, Justin Sanders, Wing and I — attended), ANYONE who attended that meeting would conclude the best buy for the students' money was the $1.069 million plan.

I recognize now my analogy in last week's column likening the $1.069 million plan to a "Porsche" and the $780,000 plan to a "Volkswagen" was fallacious. A better analogy was offered by Justin Sanders in last week's Senate meeting. "It's like opening up a hospital and deciding what will best meet your needs: a proper ambulance or a Volkswagen bus."

My plan to use funds from the infamous Institutional Support Fee to pay for the renovation was overwhelmingly rejected by Senate for two good reasons. First, the administration refused to give up any part of its fee for Holton, and second, even if it agreed to do so, there would be nothing stopping it from raising the fee to pay for the Holton project.

In retrospect, the current Senate inherited a bad decision from the 1982-83 Senate — the decision to use student funds to renovate a state building — but decided the only way to honor that commitment was to increase student funding. I was opposed to honoring that commitment on the principle students shouldn't pay for something it is the state's job to do — like renovate Holton Hall. But a good argument can be made that the effectiveness of Senate will be diminished if past Senate decisions are not respected by future Senates.

I have a pretty good idea why the 1982-83 Senate made the decision it did. Someone from the administration came to Senate dec-

■ See HOLTON, Page 12

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bleser

PHOTOGRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
CAMPUS EDITORS
Jenny Chalk
Chad Sanborn
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR
Judy Lundstrom
FEATURES EDITOR
Susan Staggensborg
AGRICULTURE EDITOR
Janet Swanson
GOVERNMENT EDITOR
Candy Leonard
ARTS/ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR
Becky Howard
SPORTS EDITOR
Jeff Rapp

COPY EDITORS
Peggy Aeschliman
Betty Edwards
Lori Siegrist
STAFF WRITERS
Tom Densel
Jennifer Dorsch
Lori Lindstrom
Alison Neely

COLUMNISTS
Judd Anna
Kirk Caraway
Doug Folk
REVIEWER
Gary Laffler

SPORTS WRITERS
Chase Clark
Bill Lang
Tom Morris
Chris Wilhelm

SPORTS COLUMNISTS

Tom Purin
David Svoboda
PHOTOGRAPHERS
Brad Camp
Jim Dietz
Brad Fathier
Brett Hacker
Gary Lytle

GRAPHIC ARTIST
Mary Ward
ADVERTISING GRAPHIC ARTIST
Alex Menz
EDITORIAL BOARD
Jeff Bleser
Kirk Caraway
Deron Johnson
Becky Lucas
Erwin Seba

ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz
ASST. ADVERTISING MANAGER
Jada Allenheiligen
REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVE
Bill Sherbert
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER
Barry Steffen

SALES REPRESENTATIVES
Dennis Adelsheim
Stacey Durrell
Cathy Doud
CLASSIFIED SALES REPS
Tracy Mayhew
Jackie Clements
Janelle Dennis

DIRECTOR
Dave Adams
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR
Gloria Frelund
NEWS ADVISER
Connie Fulkerson
GRAD. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR
David Svoboda
ADV. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR
Wanda Haynie

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Customers of Mayer Retail Liquor enjoy Maddie, a young dalmatian, who is there almost everyday playing with customers and keeping employees company. Maddie is one of two dalmations store owner Greg Mayer brings to work with him.

How much for dog in window? These loyal canines aren't for sale

By Jan Schwartz
Collegian Reporter

Did you see that doggie in the window?

No, not in the window of the pet store, but in one of the three Aggieville businesses where canines can be found.

Five dogs, ranging in size from a small half Pekingese, half Chihuahua to a 140-pound mastiff, can be found in Taylor's Shoes, Mayer Retail Liquor and Gardner & White.

If you have ever walked by Taylor's Shoes, you may have noticed more than just shoes in the display window. Samantha, Dot Taylor's half Pekingese, half Chihuahua, often sleeps there during business hours.

Taylor, owner of the store, said she brings Samantha, nicknamed Sam, to the store with her because she doesn't want to leave her home alone.

Taylor said she gets offers two to three times a week from people wanting to buy her "shoe dog."

the door and ask "How much for the doggie in the window," just like the song," she said.

Sam has been Taylor's "shoe dog" ever since Taylor adopted her from the animal shelter. Sam was at Taylor's Shoes in Junction City for eight years and has been at the store in Manhattan for three years.

"I have to clean the store windows inside and out," Taylor said. "Inside, from Sam putting her nose and paws on the glass, and outside because of people tapping on the window, trying to get Sam's attention."

Two much larger dogs can be found down the street at Mayer Retail Liquor. Greg Mayer, store owner, also receives many offers from customers wanting to buy his two dalmations.

Dillon and Maddie look like two prototypes from the story "101 Dalmations." Dillon is a full-grown, 13-month-old male and Maddie is a 10-week-old female puppy. Both of them can be found at the liquor store during working hours.

"People will come in the store just to see Dillon and Maddie," Mayer said.

Mayer said he brings the two dogs to the store because both he and his wife work and they thought the store would provide a better environment. Mayer said having people around makes the dogs better behaved.

Dillon has greeted customers at the store since last October, but Maddie is still new to the neighborhood.

Just around the corner and up the stairs from the Mayer's store is Gardner & White, an employee benefit plan company. People passing by can usually look up and see Liberal Lee's huge face looking back at them.

Liberal Lee, nicknamed Libby, is a 140-pound mastiff owned by Clair and Cherry Law. Clair is a partner in the business and Cherry is Gardner & White's regional manager.

The Laws' also own a small black Lhasa apso named Sheba S. who runs around in the offices with Libby.

Cherry Law said Libby did weigh around 170 pounds, but the veterinarian suggested that Libby be put on a diet. The extra weight was making the dog limp.

"We have hand towels in the office and at home that we use to wipe Libby's face off after she eats or drinks," said Cherry Law.

The couple has had Sheba for 11 years and Libby for four years. She first brought the dogs to the office so she could take them outside during the day. Now the dogs expect to go to work every day, she said.

These businesses' owners may receive many offers for their faithful companions, but don't bother asking "How much for the doggie in the window?" because these dogs aren't for sale.

Support research.

American Heart Association

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR
YOUR LIFE

Soviet agronomist walks out on speech by Iowa economist

By The Associated Press

WEBSTER CITY, Iowa — The secretary of the Soviet Politburo cut short a presentation by an Iowa State University economist Sunday, saying he didn't need to learn about capitalism, and asked instead to see a farm or laboratory.

Secretary Viktor Nikonov, who heads a Soviet agriculture delegation touring the United States, said the Soviets were not studying American methods so that they could replace their socialist system with capitalism.

"We're not going to redo your social structure," Nikonov said through an interpreter. "You're not going to redo ours either."

His comments came when he halted a presentation on computer modeling by Iowa State agricultural economist Stanley Johnson, who heads the Center for Agricultural and Rural Development.

"I'd like to see a laboratory or farm," Nikonov said.

The eight-member Soviet agriculture delegation left later in the day for Florida, where they were to visit Walt Disney World on Monday.

Nikonov invited Johnson to make his presentation at a conference on humanitarian development of scientific efforts in the Soviet Union. He said Soviet experts would be available to refute Johnson's assertions.

"There will be neither feathers or down left from your presentation," Nikonov said.

House Agriculture Committee Chairman E. "Kika" De La Garza, D-Texas, who invited the Soviet delegation to the United States, said the Soviets were here to see science, technology and biology and not economic reports.

Johnson said he only offered the analysis "to show you how we view the world. We have great respect for how others view the world as well."

Nikonov, 58, an agronomist, was more at home touring the Garst Seed Co. plant at Slater and the Van Diest Supply Co. near Webster City.

Nikonov is the only Politburo member other than Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to visit the United States since Mikhail Gorbachev rose to power in 1985.

Garst Seed chairman Steve Garst, whose father, Roswell, squired Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev around his Coon Rapids farm nearly 30 years ago, invited the Soviet officials to spend a weekend at his home so he could show them the real Iowa.

"Feel free to come back," Garst said.

Garst told Nikonov and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin that they were not getting a true picture of the state on a two-day visit to Iowa agricultural manufacturing and research companies.

"I'll show you farming without all the photographers," Garst said.

Garst said he hopes Nikonov's visit opens doors to cooperation and trade like a visit by a Soviet agriculture minister in 1955 that led to Khrushchev's visit four years later.

"That was the opening of what we felt was breaking the Iron Curtain," Garst said.

Nikonov stressed in his public statements during his visit that any expansion of agricultural trade with the Soviet Union will have to be two-way. He also said a more open attitude toward trade with American companies should not be regarded as a move away from socialism but as a restructuring to "perfect socialism."

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Dr. Paul E. Bullock
Optometrist

- Individual Eye Health Care
- Eye Glass Frames and Lenses
- One Year Warranty
- Specialized Contact Lens Care
- Tinted (Brown Eyes to Blue)
- Extended Flexible wear
- Bifocal

• HMO/Insurance Accepted
Master Card-Visa-Am. Ex.-Discover
Payment Plans Available

776-9461

Toll Free 1-800-432-0036
404 Humboldt (1 S.W. of Olato)

Contact
NSA!

INNOVATIVE AGENCY

Large Diverse. Known for break-through technology. ISO College Seniors majoring in Math, EE, Computer or Language for professional, meaningful, mutually beneficial relationship. Must be bright and highly motivated. U.S. citizens. Send resume for details. NOC. (No phone necessary.)

The National Security Agency is looking. We're in search of new professional relationships with both Mr. and Ms. Right. What we offer in return is a unique career that may well be the answer to your personal desires.

What we offer is certainly different. At NSA, our threefold mission is critical to our country's security. We process foreign intelligence information. We safeguard our government's communications. And we secure our nation's computer systems. A mission of that proportion requires a diverse range of leading technology and talented professionals.

Currently, NSA is searching for Mathematicians, Computer Scientists, Language Specialists and Electronic Engineers.

Our Mathematicians work with applied and pure math. They apply—and create—a host of advanced concepts from Galois theory and combinatorics to probability theory and astrodynamics.

Computer Scientists discover a variety of projects and technology that is virtually unparalleled. We use literally acres of computers, including hardware from every major manufacturer. Applications include everything from communications software to artificial intelligence.

Language Specialists in Slavic, Near East, and Asian languages contribute to our mission in many ways. NSA linguists tackle the challenges of translation, transcription and analysis. They use both their language skills and their knowledge of world events.

Electronic Engineers also find a vast array of specialties from Signal Processing and CAD/CAM to Speech Processing and Computer Security.

The mission is vital, the variety staggering. And the benefits are also impressive. Our employees enjoy competitive compensation plus the many advantages of the Baltimore-Washington area.

If you're in search of a meaningful career with variety and distinction, look to NSA. Schedule an interview through your College Placement Office. Or write to us at the address below.

NSA will be on campus Nov. 9th and 10th interviewing graduating seniors for Engineering, Computer Science, Math and Language positions.

National Security Agency
Attn: M322 (ABE)
Ft. Meade, MD 20755-6000

NSA. The opportunities are no secret.

An equal opportunity employer.
U.S. citizenship required for applicant and immediate family members.

HOW DO THEY DO IT?

PYRAMID PIZZA'S MONDAY
GLADNESS
Why be mad, when you can be GLAD?

BUY 1
GET 1
FREE
Any size
Pizza!
We deliver...
FAST and Friendly-like.

Hours
Mon.-Thurs.
11 a.m.-2 a.m.
Fri.-Sat.
11 a.m.-3 a.m.
Sunday
11 a.m.-12 a.m.

Delivering All
Day Every Day
For Your Convenience

539-4888
We accept Visa and MasterCard

Offering Thin
Crust or Our
Original Golden
Braided Crust

BUY 1
SMALL 1 TOPPING
PIZZA
"We Pile It On!"

$4.75
(plus tax)
GOOD MONDAYS ONLY
539-4888

BUY 1
GET 1
FREE
Any Size Pizza
539-4888
GOOD MONDAYS ONLY

SportsMonday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, October 12, 1987 ■ Page 6

Fortune leads MU past K-State, 34-10

By Jeff Rapp
Sports Editor

Bad things happened to the K-State football team at the end of every quarter Saturday when the Wildcats took on the University of Missouri Tigers.

A combination of those bad things and Missouri's good fortune led the Tigers to a 3-2 record and a 34-10 victory to open its Big Eight Conference season. The loss dropped the 'Cats' record to 0-5.

Starting with the first quarter — when things seemed to be going deceptively smooth — the 'Cats lost their starting quarterback, Gary Swim.

"I thought the big turnover was when we took the drive right before the first half, after they (K-State) came back and it was 17-10."

—Woody Widenhofer

With MU leading 10-0 and the K-State offense on its own 44-yard line, a glimmer of hope appeared for the 'Cats. Swim, under heavy pressure from the Tiger defense, uncorked a 45-yard pass completion to wide receiver John Williams to give K-State a first down on the MU 11-yard line.

But, as time ran out in the first quarter, both the throwing and receiving end of the K-State's first big play of the day lay huddled in pain on the Omnitrak artificial surface of Faurot Field. Swim had injured an already tender shoulder and would not return to the game. Williams — touted as the fastest receiver in the Big Eight and a definite deep threat — reinjured an ankle that had kept out of the Wildcats' previous contest against Tulsa.

After the first quarter expired, reserve quarterback Tim Hanson scrambled for a gain of one yard — sandwiched between two incomplete passes — and that's as close as K-State would get. The drive was capped by a Mark Porter field goal rather than a touch-

K-State tailback Tony Jordan is caught by Missouri single safety Erik McMillan after Jordan was pushed out of bounds. Jordan gained 15 yards on the play and went on to score one touchdown and carry the ball for 100 yards.

down, and that's something Hanson was not happy about.

"I came in and a pass play was called right off the bat," Hanson said. "The guy (tight end Kent Dean) was open; I just have to get him the ball. That happened all game — I've just got to get people the ball."

Hanson, although not pleased with his play, did guide the 'Cats to what appeared to be only a seven point deficit going into halftime, but that's when the bad thing happened to end K-State's second quarter.

After a 60-yard drive capped by a 7-yard touchdown run by tailback Tony Jordan, the score was MU 17, K-State 10. With only 45 seconds remaining in the half, it appeared as though the 'Cats would make a game of it and would only be behind by seven at the half. That's when MU delivered what just may have been the deadly blow.

Tiger quarterback John Stollenwerck completed 4 of 5 passes, including a 15-yard scoring strike to split-end Craig Lammers, to lead MU to a six-play, 68-yard scoring drive that consumed the final seconds of the half and made the score 24-10.

"That really deflates you right before you go in (to the locker room for halftime)," K-State Coach Stan Parrish said.

"I thought the big turnover was when we took the drive right before the first half, after they (K-State) came back and it was 17-10," Missouri Coach Woody Widenhofer said.

This time at the beginning of a quarter, more K-State misfortune appeared. This misfortune, however, will go down in history.

At the 11:40 mark of the third quarter, Tiger senior halfback Darrell Wallace became Missouri's all-time leading rusher with 2,382 career rushing yards. Parrish said although he would have preferred slightly different circumstances, it was good to see Wallace reach the milestone.

"The little kid is something special," Parrish said of the 5-foot-7, 168-pound Wallace. "I tell you, he's a great player. I'm unhappy (the record) happened against us, but I'm happy for him that he broke the record here, because he has been a great player for (Missouri)."

Staff/Jim Dietz

Heath Perry, sophomore in physical education, Heather Moss, sophomore in business, and Klaus Wuttig, sophomore in industrial engineering, watch the game.

Staff/Greg Vogel

STATISTIC	KSU	MU
Score	10	34
First Downs	17	27
Rushing Yards	207	376
Passing Yards	132	125
Return Yards	0	10
Att.-Comp.-Int.	22-11-2	12-8-0
Total Yards	339	501
Fumbles-Lost	2-1	4-2
Penalties	7-55	4-20

K-STATE	0	10	0	0-10
MISSOURI	10	14	7	7-34

RUSHING—K-State: Jordan, 17-105; Lewis, 10-49; Pickett, 5-37; Henry, 2-18; Wilson, 2-5; Hanson, 3-7; Swim 1-0. Missouri: Wallace, 10-100; Stowers, 16-74; Delpino, 7-55; VanZant, 8-43; Elmore, 4-27; Cameron, 9-29; Cockrell, 2-20; M. Jones, 3-14; Stollenwerck, 11-35; Logan, 1-6; Henningsen, 2-5.

PASSING—K-State: Hanson, 14-6-2-50; Swim, 8-5-0-82. Missouri: Stollenwerck, 11-7-0-118; Cameron, 1-1-0-7.

RECEIVING—K-State: Williams, 4-67; Jordan, 3-21; Dean, 2-26; Hughes, 1-10; Lewis, 1-8. Missouri: Lammers, 4-49; Delpino, 1-24; Wallace, 1-23; Bruton, 1-22; Hagens, 1-7.

Perry emerges from under his blanket to cheer for the 'Cats. The few K-State fans who were on hand were treated to a 34-10 defeat at the hands of Missouri.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Missouri's halfback Darrell Wallace is stopped by K-State defensive tackle Tim MacDonald and linebacker Matt Wallerstedt during one of Wallace's 10 carries for 99 yards to set the rushing record at Missouri.

Staff/Jim Dietz

Tiger running back sets new MU record

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

Missouri's senior halfback Darrell Wallace broke free for a 31-yard touchdown run in the third quarter to become Missouri's all-time leading rusher Saturday in K-State's 34-10 loss.

Wallace had 10 carries for 99 yards in the game to surpass the old record of 2,357 yards held by James Wilder. Wallace ended the day with 2,393 yards, but found it hard to describe his accomplishment.

"To tell you the truth I don't really know what to say. I really can't find the words to express how I feel," Wallace said.

Wallace said with victory his reward was much sweeter.

"I'm honored that it is happening to me. I feel real good about it, and I'm glad it came with a victory. It is a great accomplishment, but it feels a whole lot better when you win because you look around and your teammates are having a good time, the coaches are happy, the home crowd feels good you won the game. Right now everything is going right, everyone is behind you," he said.

On a fourth-down play, and hoping to sustain the opening drive of the second half, Wallace got the call, and said it took a while for his achievement to sink in.

"It was after I got into the end zone that it hit me that I got the record on that run. I really didn't think about it too much while I was running with the ball; I was too busy trying to get into the end zone, but once I got into the end zone I knelt and said a little prayer. Then it hit me that I got the record on that run," Wallace said.

Missouri's Head Coach Woody Widenhofer was pleased with the performance of Wallace in the Tiger's homecoming victory.

"Darrell did a great job putting the ball in the end zone," Widenhofer said. "I was very, very happy to see him break the all-time rushing record at Missouri, simply because he's a very unselfish guy. He is a team guy all the way."

The senior halfback praised his counterpart Tony Jordan on his 100-yard rushing performance and one touchdown for the 'Cats.

"I think Tony Jordan had a good day. I'm surprised he was able to do that much against our defense; he showed everybody that he has a lot of talent."

"We knew that he was going to be a big factor in their offense when he came into the game, and he proved that he was a big factor. He ran the ball with a lot of determination and a lot of confidence."

Widenhofer apprehended driving drunk

By The Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Missouri football coach Woody Widenhofer was cited for speeding and driving while intoxicated several hours after his team's 34-10 homecoming victory this weekend over K-State, police said.

Widenhofer, 44, was stopped at a Columbia intersection about 1 a.m. Sunday, authorities said. He was released after paying a bond of $243.45.

Bob Brendel, Missouri's sports information director, said Sunday night that Widenhofer would have no comment under advice of attorney.

Athletic Director Jack Lengyel issued the following statement:

"I consider driving while intoxicated to be a serious offense. As the legal process reveals the particulars of this situation, we'll review the appropriate action at that time."

Widenhofer played for Missouri in the early 1960s.

Ahearn set to rock again; fans look to sip the sauce

It's time for Mitch Richmond, Will Scott, Steve Henson, Charles Bledsoe and Co. to take center stage once again — and not a moment too soon.

At 12:01 a.m. Thursday, the moment many die-hard K-Staters have been waiting for since last March 14, will be here — basketball will be back in Kruger Kountry.

Ever since the 1986-87 campaign ended on that mid-March day in Salt Lake City, Utah, K-State fans, having tasted some of that sweet post-season nectar, have waited for yet another season to arrive.

They want a full glass of Purple Passion, thank you.

And it's that passion for the men in purple that will return early Thursday as the K-State men's basketball team opens workouts in preparations for the 1987-88 campaign.

Ahearn Field House will be rocking just as sure as Mitch Richmond will be "throwin' 'em down" with that "in-your-face" style that is all his own.

Lon Kruger's 1987-88 squad has reason to be anxious for the new season to begin.

After returning to NCAA Post-Season Tournament play last season and winning their opening round game against Georgia, the Wildcats indeed had something to build on for the future.

What made the post-season berth last season all the more enjoyable is that it came to a team with a first-year head coach who put three juco transfers and a freshman in his starting lineup for most of the year.

And with Kruger, Richmond, Scott, Bledsoe and Henson back for their second seasons in familiar roles, the Wildcats should be even

Svoboda on Sports

DAVID SVOBODA
Sports Columnist

stronger this year.

Missouri, with all its key stars returning from its conference championship club of a year ago, would appear to be the favorite to repeat in 1987-88.

And Kansas — or Danny Manning U — would appear to be a solid choice for second.

But the men in purple, who enter their final season in venerable Ahearn, may just have something to say about how the Big Eight race shapes up before all is said and done.

And the one player likely to speak the loudest is Richmond.

Don't expect Richmond to do anything as flamboyant as Wayman Tisdale and the poor sports he had for teammates did at Oklahoma a few years back.

Do, however, expect Richmond to have a season very similar to the ones Tisdale put together as the all-time leading scorer at OU.

This is the guy that hit 5-of-5 three point shots and scored 34 points in K-State's thrilling 82-79 win over Georgia in the first-round game at Salt Lake City.

This is the same guy that put on a show over the summer in Yugoslavia as a member of the all-star team representing the United States.

This, simply, is a stud in purple. With Norris Coleman off to show his stuff in the NBA, Richmond should be free to run wild this year, much like he did before Coleman's return to the lineup after an NCAA-imposed suspension last season.

Some of Richmond's best games last season came after Coleman was relegated to the bench late in the year, and there's no reason to believe it won't continue this year.

With Manning and Richmond playing in the same state, it's possible that two players from Kansas might be All-Americans in 1987-88.

But Richmond isn't a one-man show, mind you.

With Scott returning to launch his three-point bombs, Bledsoe coming back to pull down key rebounds and block shots, and Henson coming back to run the show, the 'Cats have a strong nucleus.

Add Mark Dobbins, Ron Meyer and Lance Simmons to that list, and you have a team with seven tough front-line players. Pretty good numbers.

Throw names of newcomers like Carlos Diggins, Buster Glover and Fred McCoy (all juco transfers) into the big purple lineup hat, and you have what may be the best K-State team since Rolando Blackman gunned down Oregon State in the early '80s and gave the 'Cats a berth in the "Sweet 16."

That seems like it was eons ago.

But on Thursday morning when Greg Sharpe yells "Heeere come yooour 'Cats" into the microphone and the house comes down at Ahearn, it's likely to be yesterday once more.

Get the cups ready: It's time to sip the sauce once again!

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Laura Haggerty, No. 177, leads the pack halfway through the women's division of the Sooner Invitational cross country meet Friday in Norman, Okla. Haggerty finished the race in second place.

Women take first at meet

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

For K-State cross country coach John Capriotti, a Top-10 ranking for his lady harriers seems to be in order.

The ladies' cross country team defeated Colorado by one point, 34-35, to capture first place honors at the Sooner Invitational in Norman, Okla., Friday.

"We went to this meet ranked 12th and Colorado was ranked eighth," he said. "People before this meet started were saying 'Colorado can't be touched,' and we went out and beat them."

"I think we proved that we belong in the Top 10," Capriotti added. "If anything, this proves just how tough it will be to win the conference title. We're going to be there along with Colorado and Nebraska. It's hard to say right now who the clear cut favorite would be after this race."

Following K-State and Colorado in the meet were Oklahoma State (3rd, 85), Oklahoma (4th, 127) and Kansas (5th, 140).

For K-State, junior Laura Haggerty was the high finisher, taking second place behind Oklahoma State All-American Jackie Goodman. Haggerty posted a time of 10:10.7 to Goodman's time of 9:57.4 on the 3,000 meter course.

"I wasn't surprised how our ladies ran," Capriotti said of the women's performance. "We went out there without Angie Berry, one of our top runners. We responded to the challenge and the ladies just did what they had to do."

Berry missed the meet due to foot problems, which will result in her going in for a foot operation.

For the women's team following Haggerty were Ann Stadler (3rd, 10:14), Alysun Deckert (4th, 10:14.8), Marge Eddy (12th, 10:34), Jenny Faunce (13th, 10:37), Becky Ives (14th, 10:43) and Tammy Van Laeys (16th, 10:50).

On the men's side of the meet, it wasn't exactly what Capriotti was looking for.

The K-State men's cross country team finished the meet tied for second with Kansas at 60. Colorado won the meet with 39 points.

In the men's standings following K-State and KU were, Oklahoma (3rd, 103), Oklahoma State (4th, 131) and Barton County Community College (5th, 167).

For the K-State men, top finisher was freshman Phil Byrne finishing seventh in the time of 25:45 on the five-mile course.

Following Byrne were, David Keller (8th, 25:47), Rob Hays (14th, 26:11.5), Joe Bonneau (16th, 26:23.4) and Daryl Reichard (20th, 26:28).

Players, owners still disagree

By The Associated Press

TYSONS CORNER, Va. — The owners' negotiators walked away from the bargaining table Sunday, dashing any hopes for a quick end to the nearly three-week-old NFL strike. No further talks were scheduled.

Management blamed the breakdown on the players' continuing demands for free agency. The union said it was a deliberate move to put more pressure on the players to break ranks and cross picket lines.

"We're at a roadblock, we're mired down," said Jack Donlan, who had negotiated with union head Gene Upshaw for a little more than five days, the longest single bargaining session of the strike.

In fact, on a day the second round of games were played with non-strikers and replacement players, the two sides seemed as far apart as ever. The 28 player representatives are to meet again Monday in Chicago, as they did a week ago, to plot their course.

It was last Monday's meeting that led to this bargaining. The players, without saying specifically that they would change their demand for unrestricted free agency, approved a resolution which said they wouldn't let any single issue stand in the way.

Spikers down Colorado in short match

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

Only three matches into the Big Eight Conference season, the K-State volleyball team has already won as many conference matches this season as it did all of last season.

Saturday, the Wildcats defeated the Colorado Lady Buffaloes 15-6, 15-13, 15-10 at Balch Fieldhouse in Boulder. K-State now has an 11-4 overall record and a 2-1 Big Eight mark. Colorado dropped to 6-10 overall and 0-3 in the conference.

"This was a big win for us," K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson said. "I didn't expect a three-game match, but maybe that's a sign of our improvement. Colorado has struggled a bit lately, but they've still got a pretty good team."

Serving continues to be a factor in the Wildcat's success. K-State outside hitter Mary Kinsey led the squad in serving against Colorado with four of the team's 10 service aces. For the season, the Wildcats have 168 aces for an average of 3.1 per game, a pace that should enable them to pass the 'Cats' 1984 season record of 282 aces in 120 games (2.35 aces per game).

Kinsey also led K-State's offensive effort against Colorado with 10 kills. Shawnee Call was close behind with nine kills, Valerie Kastens had seven and Kristi Jacquart had six. Jacquart recorded a .455 percentage to raise her season percentage to .355. Jacquart leads the team in hitting percentage and service aces for the season.

"I would have liked to have seen us hit a little better," Nelson said, "but we played well in the other facets of the game. Colorado pushed us in the last couple of games. I was pleased with the poise we showed while fighting off their rallies."

The Wildcat squad will wrap up its current road trip Tuesday night when it faces the Nebraska Cornhuskers in Lincoln.

Giants gain 3-2 advantage

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Kevin Mitchell homered and drove in two runs Sunday and the San Francisco Giants ran past the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3, sprinting to a 3-2 lead in the National League playoffs.

The Giants moved within one victory of their first World Series appearance since 1962, using their power and stealing the Cardinals' speed. Game 6 will be Tuesday night in St. Louis, away from the swirling winds that turned Candlestick Park into a crazy cauldron.

NL Game 5
Giants 6, Cards 3

The Cardinals finally found a way to contain Jeffrey Leonard, who went 0-for-4 after homering in the first four games, but could not control his teammates. This best-of-seven matchup had been billed as power-versus-speed, and the Giants had both.

Twins take win, move toward title

By The Associated Press

DETROIT — Kirby Puckett and Greg Gagne homered, moving the Minnesota Twins within one game of their first World Series in 22 years with a 5-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers Sunday night.

The victory broke a traveling jinx for the Twins — the worst road team in playoff history — and gave them a 3-1 advantage in the best-of-seven series.

Bert Blyleven, 15-12 and the winner of Game 2 at Minnesota, will go against Doyle Alexander, 9-0, Detroit's opening-game loser, in Game 5 Monday.

Detroit's Darrell Evans cost his team two runs with his baserunning and fielding.

Evans was picked off third base by Twins catcher Tim Laudner in the sixth inning with the Tigers trailing 4-3. Two pitches later, reliever Juan Berenguer threw a wild pitch.

In the eighth, Evans, the Tigers' regular first baseman, made an error at third base as the Twins added their insurance run.

Gagne, the Twins shortstop, made a first-inning error that cost his team a run, but so did Tigers right fielder Larry Herndon. And Herndon's fifth-inning fluff proved to be the difference as the Twins, 2-4 here during the season, beat Tigers left-hander Frank Tanana, who contributed to his own downfall with a playoff record three hit batsmen.

Frank Viola, the Twins' opening-game starter, was the winner, although neither he nor Tanana was around at the end. Viola was pitching on three days' rest, and he suddenly seemed to run out of steam in the fifth and sixth innings after retiring 12 in a row in one stretch.

AL Game 4
Twins 5, Tigers 3

The Twins had a 29-52 record on the road this season — worst of any division or pennant winner in history.

Puckett hit a solo homer in the third, and Gagne had one in the fourth. Between the two of them, they were 2-for-23 in the first three playoff games. The Twins scored another run off Tanana, 15-10 during the season, with the help of Herndon's error in right field and a sacrifice fly by Gary Gaetti in the fifth. And Minnesota chased Tanana with a run on pinch-hitter Gene Larkin's RBI double in the sixth.

Steve Lombardozzi made it 5-3 with a two-out single in the eighth.

The Tigers scored their unearned run in the first, got another in the fifth on Kirk Gibson's RBI single, then cut the lead to one run on pinch-hitter Dave Bergman's RBI single. Viola left in that inning.

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Third victory

The K-State Soccer Club's Joe Pecko tackles the ball away from Central Missouri State University's striker Saturday in Memorial Stadium. Despite chilly weather and a brisk north wind, the 'Cats won 4-1, bringing their season record to 3-2.

Exotic food made at K-State feeds birds

By Brenda Badostain
Collegian Reporter

Several zoos seek market purchase

The phrase "that's for the birds" isn't usually meant to be taken literally, but in one particular case, it just might be.

Keith Behnke, associate professor of grain science and industry, in conjunction with Dwayne Ullrey, an animal nutritionist at Michigan State University, has developed an exotic bird food for the San Diego Zoo. Behnke and Ullrey developed the bird food after working on a previous project for the zoo.

About 3½ years ago, Ullrey contacted Behnke to see if he and K-State's grain science department would manufacture a food for a specific monkey at the zoo, Behnke said.

After Ullrey made a trip to the zoo, he told Behnke their monkey food was also being used to supplement the exotic birds' food. Because of this, Behnke said, he and Ullrey decided to come up with a food specifically for these exotic birds.

"The biggest problem with exotic birds is, because of their value, it's very hard to do nutritional studies (on them)," he said. "So they (the zoo) don't really know what the nutritional requirements of these birds are."

The exotic birds' natural foods include fruits, seeds, nuts and some insects, he said.

Most exotic birds, however, usually eat whatever their owners eat, Behnke said.

"It's amazing what these birds are willing to eat," he said. "They (the owners) eat spaghetti, the birds eat spaghetti. They eat pizza, the birds eat pizza."

Ullrey put together the formula for the bird food "and sent the formula or 'recipe' down here, and we (grain science department) manufactured 40 or 50 pounds and that was sent to San Diego," Behnke said.

"Dr. Ullrey felt that he could do a much better job of nutritional management if he could put all the nutritional requirements into one package and use the same kind of processing technique we used with the monkey biscuit," he said.

"It's amazing what these birds are willing to eat. They (the owners) eat spaghetti, the birds eat spaghetti. They eat pizza, the birds eat pizza."
—Keith Behnke

The product was designed primarily for hook-billed birds, he said. These birds include the smaller parrots and parakeets up to the large African gray parrots.

Behnke said after the zoo received the initial test quantity it put several birds on the product to test consumption.

Within a few months of this original shipment, nearly 90 percent of the zoo's exotic bird population was on the test product, he said.

"We've sent, over the last 18 months, 4,000 pounds of exotic bird food to San Diego," Behnke said.

The zoo is continuing to study the birds on the product, he said.

"They're monitoring hatchability — number of eggs laid — and how the parents take care of the fledglings," he said.

Behnke said there have been problems with the parents feeding their young.

The fledglings are not like other chicks in that they cannot eat on their own as soon as they're hatched, he said. The young have to be fed by their parents for five to six weeks.

"What the parents do is eat the food, partially digest it... and then regurgitate it into the fledgling's mouth," Behnke said.

This process cannot be done with most commercial feeds, and as a result, many fledglings have to be raised by humans, he said. The product produced at K-State has evidently solved this problem.

"We don't know how or why. They (zoo employees) haven't really followed up on that," Behnke said.

The product, called Scenic Bird Food, is also being tested at the Los Angeles Zoo and the National Zoo in Washington, D.C., he said. Additional studies are underway at several private breeders across the country.

The project is being funded by the University, he said. There will be a pay-back if the product is commercially successful.

"There will be a royalty payment coming back to the University from commercial sales of the product," he said.

An important aspect of the project, he said, is the fact a Kansas-based company is test marketing the bird food.

The bird food is being test marketed by a company in Marion, Kan., Behnke said.

He said it doesn't matter if the product is sold in California or Florida, "as long as the money flows back to Kansas. Whatever happens (with the product), it's good for the state."

"The technology developed here at K-State or other Regents' institutions can be used to help the economy of Kansas," Behnke said.

Sonic flight anniversary celebrated by Yeager, 64

By The Associated Press

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — In the 40 years since test pilot Chuck Yeager first broke the sound barrier at this remote desert military post, man has gone to the moon and much has changed, not least for Yeager.

The 64-year-old pilot, a little-known captain when his sonic boom first thundered over the Mojave Desert, has become famous and his feats have passed into legend fostered by two books and a movie.

Yet some things have remained the same: Yeager is still flying supersonic.

To commemorate the 40th anniversary of his feat Wednesday, Yeager will pilot an F-4 Phantom in a pass over Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio. Later, he will fly another "hot" plane to his home state of West Virginia for celebrations there.

The prehistoric silt of the dry lake bed that the Bell X-1 landed on that morning of Oct. 14, 1947, has also remained pretty much the same — dry, hard and tough, like Yeager.

"It was being in the right place at the right time, and luck plays a part," Yeager recalled in a recent telephone interview from his home in the Sierra foothills. "I had no idea what the X-1 would bring. You can't predict the future."

The 24-year-old captain had christened the little bullet-shaped, rocket-powered plane "Glamorous Glennis" after his wife and vowed that he would be the man to break the sonic "barrier," if it could be done.

Before his flight, scientists and pilots feared that a plane might disintegrate when it hit the speed of sound, estimated to be about 700 mph, depending on altitude.

One man, British pilot Geoffrey DeHavilland Jr., had already died in the attempt and Bell's civilian test pilot had demanded $150,000 to try to it with the X-1.

Bell balked and on Oct. 14, flying on Army pay, Yeager and the X-1 caused the first sonic boom ever heard and opened the door wide to the "Jet Age."

Because of security precautions, Yeager's fame was slow to grow. That changed dramatically when the flight, and his previous exploits as a fighter pilot in World War II, were extolled in a book by Tom Wolfe, "The Right Stuff," and a film by the same name.

His autobiography became a best seller. He endorses products such as batteries and tires and has a computer flight simulator game named after him.

"Glamorous Glennis" hangs in the National Air and Space Museum at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

Now a retired Air Force general, Yeager works as a consultant for Northrop Aircraft and McDonnell Douglas.

"It's all been fun because I've been able to stay abreast of the new technology," Yeager said.

Buy your 1987-88 Kansas State Campus Directory NOW in Kedzie Hall Room 103

THE ICECREAM

SOCIAL

Ice cream cakes & pies
Freshly baked cookies
Popcorn gift canisters

Open 7 days a week
1439 Anderson 537-7079

South of
McCain Auditorium

Enjoy smooth, creamy

Frozen Yogurt

that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!

—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!

Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Neutius Towers—Aggieville

Wichita
Family Planning Inc.

Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

NON-TRADITIONAL WOMEN STUDENTS:

A Support Group For You, the Transitional Woman

? Support, information, coping tips, direction, self-help, and other women like you.

? Wednesdays, 3:30-4:45 p.m. (starting Oct. 14)

Call Joyce, at the Counseling Center, at 532-6927

SCHLIEBE'S 3rd ANNUAL FITNESS CONTEST

ARE YOU READY?

UPC
UNION PROGRAM
COUNCIL

New Showing
K-STATE
UNION
ART GALLERY

Today through
October
23

Historical Retrospective of KSU from the KSU Archives

Today through
October 30
KSU Art Department
Invitational Sculpture by Brent Kingston

k-state union upc arts

ROCK&ROLL
ROCK&ROLL
CONFIDENTIAL
DAVE MARSH

America's best known rock writer
Is MTV Empty? Tales of rock video madness.
How 16 congressman's wives plan to dictate what records you can buy
And More . . .

October 20, 1987 at 8:00 P.M. Forum Hall, Free Admission

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

While convalescing from a severe mental breakdown, a renowned actress becomes abnormally dependant on her nurse. Directed by Ingmar Bergman. (in Swedish with English subtitles)
Unrated. Wednesday, 7:30
P.M. Forum Hall &
Thursday, 3:30 P.M. Little
Theatre and 7:30 P.M.
Forum Hall.
Admission $1.75.

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

PERSONA

Maybe I'm pregnant. Maybe.
Either way, we want to find out in private.

You should know about new e.p.t. stick test. It's the fast and easy way to find out if you're pregnant. Or not. And you find out in private.

If the stick turns pink, you're pregnant. If it stays white, you're not. It's that simple.

If you have any questions about e.p.t., call us toll free 1-800-562-0266.
In New Jersey, call collect
(201) 540-2458.

e.p.t. The first and most trusted name in pregnancy testing.

Introducing
new e.p.t. stick test.

Movie, stars leave audience breathless

By Gary Leffler
Collegian Reviewer

In her latest role, Glenn Close gives the men of America one very good reason to remain faithful to their wives. That reason is Alex Forrest, Close's character in "Fatal Attraction" who turns a one-night stand into weeks of torment and terror for her lover and his family.

The film perfectly combines the talents of Close and her co-stars Michael Douglas and Anne Archer, leaving the audience breathless. The tension and impact of this film hits the audience head-on and doesn't let them rest, even after the house lights have come up. The film deals with the struggle between love and infidelity, between pleasure and

Close shines as demented mistress responsibility.

Movie Review

In "Fatal Attraction," Douglas plays a successful, happy lawyer named Dan Gallagher. Dan's life is good, if not a little cramped in his five-room apartment. He is married to a caring wife, Beth, played excellently by Anne Archer, and has a smart, (and necessarily) cute daughter. He even has a dog.

So what could be wrong with Dan's life? Nothing actually, but when his wife and daughter leave for the weekend to visit relatives, Dan finds himself having dinner with Alex Forrest, whose company he is representing. Over coffee, Dan realizes he is being seduced and, with only a moment's hesitation, he accepts the offer. Dan and Alex then go off to her place for a weekend of steamy romance.

The weekend comes to an end and Dan returns to his wife. He assumes everything is finished between Alex and him. However, Alex has other ideas. She refuses to be treated as just a good time and presses viciously for Dan to continue their relationship. From here the film flies down a tight, tense path to an ending that is as good as any I've seen this year. The tension was high and the madness complete as I sat there gnawing on my notepad.

The strength of "Fatal Attraction" lies not only in its action and suspense, but also in its depth of character. Alex is not simply an insane woman bent on revenge. She is confused, lonely and cares very much for Dan—too much. Close brings this to life as only she can, making Alex so real that it becomes unsettling at times. This is a character unlike anything Close has played in the past, but she pulls it off without a flaw.

Nothing is frivolous in "Fatal Attraction"; nothing is without meaning. Alex's apartment, for instance, is almost completely decorated in white. Alex also wears white a good deal of the time, striking a curious combination between Western culture's vision of purity and innocence and Eastern culture's vision of death.

Another surprise was the film's excellent use of humor. The beginning especially was generously sprinkled with laughs. While this seems quite unusual for a thriller, it actually worked very well, making the characters more realistic than the typical two-dimensional heroes or stalkers of thrillers. By combining a tight, funny, suspenseful script with quality actors, "Fatal Attraction's" terror was very personal to the audience.

Lion attack leaves girl in hospital

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — A lion being walked through a flea market suddenly grabbed an 8-year-old girl and mauled her, then grabbed her head between its jaws, only letting go after it was shot twice, police and witnesses said.

The girl was in critical but stable condition Sunday, and authorities considered whether to file charges against the lion's owner.

"It grabbed the little girl," said Brian Mason, a witness to Saturday's attack. "I could see the little girl trying to get away and screaming, her body sliding away on the floor."

The lion's owner was holding the lion's chain but could not control the animal, Mason said.

"The lion knocked over an ornament and became excited," said Mason, 27. "He grabbed her and started dragging her across the floor. She was screaming and everybody starting running around."

"It grabbed the little girl. I could see the little girl trying to get away and screaming, her body sliding away on the floor."

—Brian Mason

A security guard accompanying the lion and its owner shot the lion with a .44-caliber handgun but that didn't stop the attack, said police Lt. C.W. Driskell.

"That seemed to aggravate the lion, and it grabbed her by the head," he said. "He then shot the lion again, and they still had trouble getting it to release the little girl."

The lion's 35-year-old owner had operated a booth at the Texas Flea Market for about three months, letting shoppers have their picture taken with exotic snakes and the lion, said Driskell.

Harris County prosecutors will decide what charges, if any, to file against him, police said. The owner was taken to police headquarters where he gave a statement. He declined comment to reporters.

Roxanne Hernandez suffered a cracked skull and part of her brain was exposed during the attack, said paramedic J.W. Hays.

After six hours of surgery at Hermann Hospital, she was in critical but stable condition Sunday, said hospital spokeswoman Barbara Cafferty.

"She is doing well, she is conscious," said Cafferty, adding that it was too early to determine whether there was brain damage.

"All we can do is wait and see," she said.

City health officials and a Houston Zoo veterinarian were called in after the attack and injected the lion with tranquilizers and taped its mouth.

Burmese plane crashes; 49 die

By The Associated Press

RANGOON, Burma — A Burma Airways plane caught fire and crashed about 20 miles short of a popular tourist town in central Burma Sunday, killing all 49 people aboard, including 14 Americans, the government said.

The official News Agency of Burma said 36 foreigners, nine Burmese passengers and four crewmen were aboard.

It was the airline's second disaster in less than four months.

The agency said twin-turboprop Fokker Friendship 27 "caught fire in midair" and crashed southeast of its destination of Pagan, a town whose ancient Buddhist temples attract many foreign tourists.

The brief announcement did not give the cause of the crash.

The agency said besides the Americans, seven Swiss citizens, five Britons, four Australians, three West Germans, two French citizens and one Thai died.

The crash came one day after diplomatic sources reported increased police protection of the U.S. Embassy in Rangoon because of reports that an anti-American terrorist group had entered Burma.

Officials would not speculate on possible links between crash and terrorists, and no further information was available on the alleged arrival of terrorists.

Government sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the plane was on a two-hour, regularly scheduled flight.

Collegian Classifieds Cheap, but Effective

Optometrists

Dedicated to Optometry
in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs. Price, Young, Odle and Horsch

1119 Westloop

537-1118

"MANLY MEN"

In the world of hair fashion, what separates the men from the boys? "Good grooming & serious styling" makes all the difference. Get a great cut.

Only at

TINA'S
Studio 32
FOR HAIR

776-8830

Candlewood

BUSHWACKERS
THE FUNDRIKERY

Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. 9 p.m.

TONIGHT
Eddy Strange
along with Doug Ankerman and ED

Sunset Grille
10 oz. Sirloin $5.65
(price includes potato, bread, & salad bar)

Office 539-4321 531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Tau Kappa Epsilon, Theta Xi, Off Campus

Oct. 13: Theta Xi, Triangle, Boyd, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

ALL POLO MERCHANDISE MUST GO!

BANKRUPTCY LIQUIDATION

ALL MERCHANDISE ORDERED SOLD!

ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR • SPORTING GOODS
WARMUPS • SPORTSWEAR • ETC.

DAYS ONLY! CASH ONLY! NO CHECKS:

T-SHIRTS • MUSCLE SHIRTS
SHIMMELS ASSORTED SIZES & COLORS
99¢ to 1.99 ea.

SUNGLASSES
OVER 25 DIFFERENT STYLES
VALUES FROM $1.99 to $14.99
NOW ONLY 3.99 ea.

OVER 2000 PR. ATHLETIC SHOES MUST GO!

POLO KNIT SPORT SHIRTS
ASSORTED COLORS SIZES 8-18
VALUES FROM $3.99 to $16.99
NOW ONLY 10.99-16.99

OVER 5000 PIECES NAME BRAND SWEATSHIRTS

DESIGNER SWEATSHIRTS
NOW ONLY 8.99-10.99

NAME BRAND ATHLETIC RUNNING SHORTS
VALUES FROM $1.99 to $5.99
NOW ONLY 3.99-5.99

NAME BRAND LONG SLEEVE T-SHIRTS
VALUES FROM $1.99 to $4.99
NOW ONLY 1.99-4.99

ALL MERCHANDISE BELOW WHOLESALE

SWEATSHIRTS
ASSORTED STYLES & COLORS
VALUES FROM $1.99 to $6.99
NOW ONLY 1.99-6.99

SOCKS
TUBE • CREW • POLY-CLOTHES
VALUES FROM $1.99 to $4.99
NOW ONLY 99¢ to 4.99

NAME BRAND BASEBALL SLEEVES
VALUES FROM $1.99 to $1.99
NOW ONLY 4.99-6.99

GOLF • TENNIS • RACQUETBALL • ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR • SPORTSWEAR • T-SHIRTS • SOCKS • SWEATCLOTHES • SPORTING GOODS • JERSEYS • SPORTSBAGS • RUNNING SHORTS

WEDNESDAY • OCT. 14th
10 A.M.-8 P.M.

HOLIDAY INN
530 RICHARDS DR. • FT. RILEY BLV
MANHATTAN, KS.

CASH ONLY • NO CHECKS

DAY ONLY

POLO Adidas ocean pacific

The Art Of It All Gala

Sunday, October 25, 1987
6:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.

Experience the elegance of this premier event of the Manhattan Town Center in celebration of the Manhattan community arts.

A variety of live entertainment will be presented all evening on four stages throughout the Mall.

Performers include:

Kansas State University Orchestra
Kansas State University Concert Choir
Mati Betton & His Big Band All-Stars
(for your dancing pleasure)
Kansas State University Madrigal Singers
Kansas State University Collegium Musicum
Kansas State University String Quartet
Kansas State University String Ensemble
Kansas State University Jazz Combo
Kansas State University Woodwind Quintet
Kansas State University Brass Quintet
Kansas State University Trumpet Choir
Florence Schwab, Harp
Connair Miller, Piano
Doug Benson, Guitar

Relax while strolling through the Mall and delight in a variety of hors d'oeuvres, desserts and cocktails from one of the many thematic food stations.

Tour The Art Of It All Gallery, and view the original works of 18 professional artists.

It will be an affair to remember!

Please reserve _____ tickets for The Art Of It All.

Enclosed is my check for $ _____ payable to:
The Art Of It All Gala (please send to MAC, P.O. Box 74, Manhattan, KS 66502)

Name _____ (Last) _____ (First) _____ (Initial)

Address _____

City _____ State _____

Zip _____ Phone _____

■ Tax deductible donation: $35 per person. All proceeds from The Art Of It All Benefit Manhattan's community arts through the work of The Manhattan Arts Council. ■ Reservations will be held at the west plaza & east entrance. ■ For more information, call 539-3276.

College debaters experience change from high school

By Karen Allen
Collegian Reporter

First-year debaters at K-State spend much of their time adjusting to the differences between high school and college debate. One of the biggest differences between high school and college debate is style, said David Scott, assistant debate coach and graduate in speech. High school teams generally debate policies whereas college teams debate values. "Policy debate is more of a form of public speaking and does not entail the depth of research as value debate," Scott said. "In college debate, you must connect your arguments to a value — it is more philosophical."

The squad competes nationwide against schools, not just regionally. For some members, traveling long distances for a tournament is a new experience. "Debate tournaments in high school were more localized," said Mark Hager, freshman in agricultural economics. In four years of debate at Scott Community High School, Hager traveled only as far as Topeka.

"There is a lot more national competition in college. You have to be prepared at every tournament," he said.

Other debaters agreed the competition is more intense. "College debate is a lot faster.

Teams get more said in the time that they have in each round," said Lynnea Huffman, sophomore in political science education. "Also, in high school you have to show an alternative to your argument. That is not a requirement in college debate," she said.

Several students of the 20-member squad are freshmen, Scott said, adding that some of them were state champions in high school.

Both Scott and Ed Schiappa, director of debate, are pleased with the team's performance this year.

During the weekend of Oct. 2-4, the team participated at the Oklahoma Christian College tournament. The debate team of Hager and Marla Paul, freshman in business administration, placed fifth out of 42 teams. They were competing in the senior cross-examination division.

Schiappa was pleasantly surprised by their success. "Considering that this was a freshman team competing in the senior division, their success is all the more noteworthy," he said.

Schiappa said he hopes to combine his recruitment of new talent with the wisdom of returning veterans for a successful season.

His goal is to rank in the top ten nationally, he said. Schiappa calls his goal "difficult but achievable."

Nuclear power plant inspectors: Human 'smoke alarms' overused

By The Associated Press

PLYMOUTH, Mass. — Donna Vohnoutka passes her hours at the Pilgrim nuclear power plant fighting the boredom that comes with the job of staring into space to see if a fire will erupt.

Vohnoutka, 30, is among dozens of people at Pilgrim who have been needed to do what machines take care of in other plants. For 20 hours a week she watches for sparks or smoke because technical problems and flaws in the fire protection system require human stand-ins.

"Basically, we play human smoke detectors," Vohnoutka said. "We make sure everything's OK. We rove or sit in a room for an hour. There are sheets we do have to sign. It's pretty simple. It's pretty basic. It's pretty boring."

Fire watchers must be on full alert to earn their $6-an-hour wage. Distractions like eating, reading or listening to the radio are prohibited while watching for something to happen, workers say.

"I sing to myself," Vohnoutka said in a recent interview.

Fire watchers are used occasionally at other nuclear power plants, experts say. But more have been employed at Pilgrim than most other plants since 1985, when problems with malfunctioning equipment and poor management began. The troubles shut down the 15-year-old plant in April, 1986.

Robert Pollard, a former Nuclear Regulatory Commission official who developed fire protection guidelines for nuclear plants after the 1975 fire at the Brown's Ferry reactor in Alabama, said Boston Edison appears to have the wrong attitude to the use of fire watchers.

"This is a temporary measure intended to be taken infrequently. My experience is, they're using fire watchers at Pilgrim with apparently little effort to correct the situation that required them in the first place," said Pollard, now with the Union of Concerned Scientists in Washington.

Allen Blough of the NRC, who is overseeing the inspection of improvements at Pilgrim, agreed that the number of fire watchers at Pilgrim is remarkable enough to cause concern.

John Fidler, spokesman for Boston Edison Co., the plant's owner, said the only fire ever to occur at Pilgrim was in a shack outside the plant and it was quickly put out.

"That speaks for itself," he said, adding that the company hired a subcontractor, National Fire and Medical Services, to supply the fire watchers precisely because they are considered temporary.

Boston Edison is nearing its intended restart date in late fall.

Loch Ness mystery goes on, search ends

By The Associated Press

DRUMNADROCHIT, Scotland — The biggest scientific search for the Loch Ness monster ended Sunday with one purported monster picture debunked, three sonar contacts showing something big in the murky waters and the elusive Nessie still a legend.

The three-day expedition proved to be a mix of serious scientific investigation along with the biggest media extravaganza ever to hit the tranquil shores of Loch Ness. About $1.6 million was spent on the expedition.

The hunt ended up focusing on three sonar blips that showed objects in the middle of the 754-foot-deep loch. The most significant blip depicted an object at a depth of about 620 feet, looking like an inverted V. Video film taken by the team meanwhile showed that the famed "gargoyle head" photo of Nessie taken in 1975 by The Academy of Applied Science in Concord, N.H., was really a rotting tree stump about 20 feet below the surface. Expedition leader Adrian Shine, 38, said he couldn't deliver "the media monster" that the more than 300 journalists who flocked to the loch wanted.

Nessie is believed by many to be a prehistoric reptile.

Shine, a London salesman who has conducted research on the loch for 14 years, said he was pleased by the results and encouraged that there was something large, possibly alive and moving in the waters.

"We still think there are some strong sonar contacts on Loch Ness. But I don't think they add up to your media monster," he said.

"A large fish would satisfy me very much — perhaps a very, very large fish," he said.

Darrell Lowrance said the strength of the sonar contact at about 620 feet near Urquhart Castle, a favorite spot for Nessie sightings, made him believe there is something mysterious in Loch Ness.

Lowrance is president of Lowrance Electronics Inc. of Tulsa, Okla., which supplied the sonar equipment and helped underwrite the expedition.

Describing himself as "a doubter," Lowrance said he was surprised that the expedition recorded some mid-water sonar contacts beyond the strength of those given off by fish.

German governor found dead

By The Associated Press

GENEVA — A former West German state governor who was caught up in a bitter political "dirty tricks" scandal and was due to testify this week was found dead Sunday in a fashionable Geneva hotel, city police said.

West Germany's Bild newspaper said Uwe Barschel, who resigned last month as state governor of Schleswig-Holstein, shot himself on his way home from a vacation in the Grand Canary Islands "because there was no other way out."

But Geneva police official Marcel Carrara denied the shooting report, telling a press conference that Barschel "was not killed by a bullet" and that "there was no blood."

Barschel, 43, was scheduled to testify Monday before a state Parliament panel investigating the scandal. He was a member of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Party.

The nationally circulated Stern magazine said one of its reporters found Barschel's body in the water-filled bathtub of his hotel room Sunday afternoon.

According to the report, telexed to other news media, a Stern reporter discovered the body after entering Barschel's unlocked hotel when no one responded to knocks on the door. Unlike the Bild newspaper report, Stern's did not say what the apparent cause of death was.

A guard was posted at the hotel to shoo away reporters and the public from the scene.

The Bild report will appear in Monday's editions of the Hamburg-based newspaper. It was telexed in advance to other news media.

"As Bild has learned from Barschel's inner circle, Barschel for the past two days saw no other way out (from the scandal) than to kill himself," the newspaper said. "Even his wife knew nothing about Barschel's plans."

Geneva police said Barschel was found dead in the Beau-Rivage Hotel.

Barschel resigned the state governor's post on Sept. 25, because of the growing scandal that has dominated West Germany's news media for a month.

The scandal surfaced when West Germany's Der Spiegel magazine published an article containing allegations it said were based on the sworn testimony of Reiner Pfeiffer, an aide in Barschel's press office.

TV Listings

By TV Data

MONDAY OCTOBER 12, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scoby Doo Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00		TBA		My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook World Sports	Little House on the Prairie
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Tennis: WCT Open (Semi-final Round)	Movie: "The Smugglers"
10:00	Jeopardy! Loss or Draw	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore Dick Van	Body Electric Write Course	Andy Griffith Soap
11:00	Password Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Communi. Los Lobos	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News Days of Our	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Muscle Mag.	Movie: "The Prince and the Pauper"
1:00	Lives Another World	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Nature: Where Eagles Fly	Columbus Day Parade	Bodybuilding
2:00	S. Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobles Zoo	Nature Learn to Read		CFL Football	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Baseball P.O. Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scoby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers		Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	3's Company	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravestar	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravestar		Munsters Laverne
5:00	Family Ties NBC News	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook Scuba	Alice Leave/Beaver
6:00	News Wheel-Fortune	News Truth/Conseq.	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Barney Miller	SportsCenter NFL Monday	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00	All Val's Family	All Val's Family	Funny, Don't Look 200	Hill Street Blues	America By Design	Movie: "Anzacs: The War Down Under"	NFL Monday	Movie: "Sex and the Single Girl"
8:00	Movie: "Right to Die"	Movie: "Right to Die"	NFL Football: May be pre-	Movie: "Amer- ican Graffiti"	Oil		Triathlon: Bermuda Interna-
9:00			empted. Los Angeles Raid-		Health Cen- tury	News INN News	tional Cham- pionship	Movie:
10:00	News Best of Car-	News Cheers	ers at Denver Broncos	Barney Miller Late Show	Wild America Business Rpt.	H'mooner Magnum, P.I.	Auto Racing: SportsCenter	"Splendor in the Grass"
11:00	son Ent. Tonight	Diamonds	News Nightline	Dating Game	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie: "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"	NFL Theatre
12:00	David Letter- man	"Happy End- ings"	700 Club	Movie: "First- born"	Sign-Off		NFL's Grea- test Moments	Geo. Explorer

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1-15	16-25	26-35	36-45	46-55	56-65	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16-25	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
26-35	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
36-45	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
46-55	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
56-65	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
66-75	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
76-85	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
86-95	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
96-105	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
106-115	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
116-125	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
126-135	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
136-145	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
146-155	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
156-165	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20
21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

gear up for FALL

K-State Sweatshirts

at  k-state union bookstore

GEAR FOR SPORTS

Sri Lanka

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Indian High Commissioner (ambassador) J.N. Dixit said Sunday night he did not know the exact number of casualties, but that 120 "could be correct." Earlier Sunday, he said 60 Tamil guerrillas were killed.

"We used some heavy weaponry," Dixit said. "We have encountered attacks, but we are on top of the situation. The operation is going on full-scale."

The Tamils have Soviet-designed AK-47 assault rifles and homemade mortars, bombs and landmines. They have a few heavy guns mounted on trucks.

A senior Indian official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Indian troops were searching for Velupillai Prabhakaran, leader of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam.

The Tigers are the most powerful Tamil rebel group. The Jaffna peninsula is their chief stronghold on Sri Lanka.

The July peace accord would give the Tamils some autonomy in the north and east in exchange for ending hostilities. But most Tigers refused to surrender their weapons, officials say.

March

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

planned non-violent protest in front of the Supreme Court building on Tuesday to dramatize their calls for more federal assistance.

"The Reagan administration is allowing millions to die," said one of the marchers, Jim Merriam, an AIDS patient from Miami. Its "response has been an ineffective, insincere commission on AIDS."

Suzanne Phillips of Brooklyn, N.Y., a medical student who works with AIDS patients, carried a bumper sticker reading "Fight AIDS, not people with AIDS."

"I can't do anything for the patients but watch them die. I can't stand it anymore," she said, calling on the Food and Drug Administration to speed the process of approving new drug treatments for AIDS.

Activists began their day Sunday at sunrise on the mall, with the unfurling of a 7,000-pound quilt bearing the names, personal effects and, in some cases, the ashes of those who have died from AIDS.

The quilt bears 1,920 panels made by companions or relatives of people who have died from the disease. Among the panels on the quilt were familiar names: actor Rock Hudson, fashion designer Willi Smith, lawyer Roy Cohn, choreographer Michael Bennett and entertainer Liberace.

When opened, the quilt covered an area of 150 feet by 500 feet on the mall a couple of blocks west of the Capitol.

GARFIELD SAYS:

Watch for traffic.
Always stop at the curb.

Safety Tips From
the National Safety Council

Jewish worshipers flee from tear gas

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Jewish worshipers praying Sunday at the Wailing Wall, the holiest site in Judaism, twice fled tear gas fired by Israeli troops who clashed with Palestinians protesting on the nearby Temple Mount.

More than 500 Palestinians linked arms to try to block the visit of 24 right-wing Jewish extremists who demand Israeli control over the disputed mount.

Seven people were injured and 12 Arabs arrested in the protest, police and Palestinian news reports said.

Scores of Israeli policemen equipped with riot helmets, clubs and gas masks fired tear gas, smoke bombs and warning shots at protesters blocking an entrance to the mount. Some protesters threw stones and then took cover in mosques.

The Temple Mount, captured by Israel 20 years ago, is revered by both Jews and Moslems. Control of the area is one of the most explosive issues in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The rectangular platform in the southeastern corner of the walled Old City is the site of the mosques of Al Aqsa and the Dome of the Rock. Moslems believe the prophet Mohammed ascended to heaven from there.

The mount also was the location of the second Jewish Holy Temple, destroyed by Roman soldiers in A.D. 70, and the Western Wall — known commonly as the Wailing Wall — is its last remnant. Some Jews advocate rebuilding the temple.

The protest on the mount twice disrupted the Sukkot holiday outdoor services of hundreds of religious Jews, many dressed in black and white prayer shawls. The holiday commemorates the fall harvest and the desert wandering of the Jews during the Exodus.

Worshipers fled as tear gas clouds drifted over the wall.

Kedzie 103

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. We desperately need tutors in Algebra. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (35-39)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED

ONE BEDROOM, available Jan. 1, water and trash paid, less than one block from campus. $275 per month, must assume lease. 539-1686. (35-39)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211f)

COMPUTERS

VISUAL COMPUTER—1050, CP/M, two drives, 128K, Hi-res monitor, software includes Wordstar, Multiplan, Basic, $450. Call 238-1073. (32-36)

EMPLOYMENT

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-39)

OVERSEAS JOBS—summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia, All fields. $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

AEROBIC LEADER vacancy at the KSU Rec Complex. Must be a student carrying 6 or more hours. Certification is desired, but not required. Previous teaching experience highly recommended. Must be available Mondays through Thursdays from 5:20-6:30 p.m. Interested individuals are to apply in person at the Rec Complex administrative office during business hours before 12 noon on Thursday, Oct. 8th. (321f)

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (27-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus. no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

POND, PETS, pasture, privacy—6 miles. Need responsible couple. Labor can reduce rent. One of two attached mobile homes. 494-8328. (31-35)

FOUR BEDROOMS, two baths, double-car garage, patio with gas grill. One block west of campus. 776-6882 or 776-2373. (35-39)

LOST CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on I-70 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spaying. Answers to "Abby." 537-0646. (32-39)

FOUND: GOLD ring in Seaton Hall student lounge. Call Afshan, 537-1974 or come to Seaton Hall 169 to identify. (34-36)

FOUND: ONE black and silver tie found in the Quinlan Natural Area on Oct. 6th. To claim, call Gary, 532-5132. (34-36)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE

PHASE LINEAR 1000 noise reduction unit, Kenwood KX-1030 cassette deck, 2 HP-100 speakers, Akai 1810 reel to reel, Technics SL-1310 turntable, Pioneer SA 9500 II amp with matching tuner. Call 764-3937 after 6 p.m. (32-37)

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (321f)

1967 DODGE Polara, $500. Like new 12-gauge Mossberg "Turkey" special, $150. Call after 6 p.m. 776-3576. (32-36)

MONDAYS SHRIMP NIGHT 15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

THE COTTON CLUB

15¢ shrimp $1 draws $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

418 Poyntz

Democratic takes criticism

House minority leader gains visibility

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Marvin Barkis had a joke to tell shortly after the end of last month's special session of the Legislature.

Barkis, the House minority leader, used it to respond to criticism from Republicans that he was responsible for scuttling the session and preventing the passage of any highway improvement program.

"You and those 91 House Democrats," the joke began.

The joke illustrates a very real point.

Analysis

Barkis, D-Louisburg, and the 51 Democrats in the 125-member House have become a more visible force in the Legislature during the past 10 months, and there is now speculation that Barkis may seek higher political office.

Republicans, too, acknowledge Barkis is more visible than he has been in his four years as minority leader, but they question whether the visibility will last and whether he can gain anything politically from it.

"I don't think I've changed,"

Barkis said recently. "My role has changed."

Before the 1987 session began, Barkis was virtually unknown outside his legislative district, which covers the northern two-thirds of Miami County, he conceded.

Barkis and others attribute that fact to the presence of Democrat John Carlin in the governor's office. They said Carlin represented the Democratic Party, leaving Barkis to work behind-the-scenes in the Legislature.

"I wouldn't have had any name recognition outside of my district before this year," Barkis said.

House Majority Leader Joe Knopp, R-Manhattan, added, "Marvin is perceived as one of the titular heads of the Democratic Party. Democratic policy before was blamed on Carlin or credited to Carlin, and now, it's credited to Marvin."

However, the lack of a Democratic governor may not be the only reason Barkis is more visible. Republicans also could have played a role.

Consistently, Gov. Mike Hayden and Republican legislative leaders made Barkis the focus of intense, sometimes personal criticism. During the last regular session this past spring and the six-day special session, which ended Sept. 5, Knopp and House Speaker Jim Braden, R-Clay Center, labeled Barkis an obstructionist.

Barkis contends that Republicans have increased his stature across the state by criticizing him heavily. As an example, he cites the defeat of Hayden's $1.7 billion highway construction initiative, a program he said the people of Kansas didn't want.

"He's using it like a campaign issue," Barkis said of Hayden. "To blame me makes me a hero in Miami County."

"If I were governor I wouldn't have lashed out, tried to blame it on one person or one group."

Kathy Peterson, Hayden's press secretary, said Barkis used his position as minority leader only to express opposition to the governor's proposals and had gained visibility primarily as a spokesman for Hayden's opposition.

"He is the leading partisan, if you will, in the legislative process because there's no Democrat in the governor's office," Peterson said. "It does set him out."

Barkis also said House Democrats sometimes were able to take advantage of disagreement within House Republican ranks by remaining relatively unified. The most notable example perhaps came from the special session, when two highway plans failed to win House approval in the last two days of the session.

"There are divisions along urban and rural lines," Barkis said of the majority party. "They are not a monolith on every subject."

Knopp and Peterson said that in taking advantage of divisions in House Republican ranks, Barkis and House Democrats may have branded themselves as obstructionists. Knopp said much of Barkis' strategy seemed to be to "sit back down and throw stones and whine."

Peterson added, "When you think of Marvin Barkis, what legislative initiative comes to mind? None."

Knopp and Peterson said they doubted Barkis' visibility had added to his political power, describing his image as "negative." But Barkis acknowledges there are rumors of him seeking higher office.

Mistake

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4

you will not agree with their grandiose plans to spend your money.

Some reality did start to show through in debate Thursday night. There were a lot of speeches that began, "I don't think it's right to fund state buildings but..." and you know the rest of the story. An editorial in Friday's Collegian described this decision as "lame-brained," but I think it could be more aptly described as braindead.

There are many other problems that are of more concern to students than Holton Hall. We have one of the most poorly funded libraries of any major university, a frustrating reality for anyone trying to do research. But some people don't know how bad our library is because they have never been able to find a parking place within five miles of campus, a tribute to the parking problem that has plagued K-State almost since the advent of the automobile. These are just a few of the problems that could be helped if Senate hadn't blown all the money.

This decision by Student Senate is an insult to your intelligence and the trust you put into student government. Being a student senator myself, I feel very ashamed to admit to being a part of this process that brought about this folly. Even though I fought hard against this bill, I still feel I owe an apology to the students I represent. I'm sorry, but I couldn't stop it.

However, this is not the end of the battle. A petition drive has been started to give the students the chance to vote on the Holton Hall question during the November election. The petition needs to be signed by 10 percent of the students to put the question on the ballot.

Perhaps Student Senate should take his advice and give the power back to whom it belongs: the people.

Holton

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4

lating no funds were available for Holton Hall and that Holton would be demolished if the students didn't pay for its renovation. Guilt trips beget gold; just ask Jim and Tammy Bakker. If that Senate had possessed any backbone, it would have followed the course which saved Nichols Hall. Students should have refused to fund Holton but declare they would fight tooth-and-nail to save it.

Instead senators have once again found themselves in the ludicrous position of funding the state's work, determining whether an increase in construction outlays is cost-effective and wrestling with unforeseen cost increases and new state regulations — not activities which senators are very qualified to perform. One can only hope future Senates keep the lessons of the Holton Hall issue in mind when the next guilt trip comes tugging at students' pocketbooks.

Call your mummy.

You remember. She was always there when you were frightened. And if you got hurt, she was standing by with bandages. Wouldn't it feel good to talk to your mother again right now?

Calling over AT&T Long Distance Service probably costs less than you think, too. And if you have any questions about AT&T rates or service, a customer service representative is always standing by to talk to you. Just call 1 800 222-0300.

Sure, your schoolwork and your friends keep you busy. But call home and find out what she's wrapped up in.

The right choice.

FREE DELIVERY

UNAM
Restaurant

1304 Westloop

10% off with KSU ID

539-8888 539-0888

The Station
STADIUM
NIGHT
MONDAY

$1 STADIUM BEERS
(32 oz.)

25¢ BAR BURGERS
OR 6 FOR $1.39, 5-12 p.m.

Taco Tuesday
Tomorrow!

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

LAFEMME
(GYN/Family Planning)
CLINIC:

- Available Services
- * Birth Control Information & Prescriptions
- * Pregnancy Counseling & Referrals
- * Pregnancy Testing
- * Routine Gynecological Exams
- * Self Breast Exam Instruction
- * Sexuality Information
- * Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFENE
HEALTH CENTER
"Your Medical Facility"

532-6554

Airport Changes

The Manhattan Municipal Airport is not only undergoing changes but is also making plans for future improvements. See Page 5.

Weather

Mostly cloudy tonight with a 30 percent chance of showers, low 45 to 50. Mostly cloudy Wednesday with a 40 percent chance of showers, high 60 to 65.

Intramurals

Many students are interested in sports but are unable to play on a varsity team. Some of these athletes have turned to intramurals. See Page 9.

Tuesday

October 13, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 36

Kansas State Collegian

Senior Kansas statesman dies at 100

Alf Landon remembered as 'mentor'

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Alf Landon, the former Kansas governor whose presidential hopes were swamped in Franklin Roosevelt's 1936 landslide but who became the grand old man of the Grand Old Party in a long life outside politics, died Monday at his home. He was 100.

Landon, the father of Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., wryly described himself "a lawyer who never had a case, an oilman who never made a million and a presidential candidate who carried only Maine and Vermont."

Landon was hospitalized Sept. 28 at Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center after complaining of internal pain. He was treated for a gallstone and a mild case of bronchitis before returning home Saturday.

A hospital bed had been set up in the library of the family home. His wife, Theo, and housekeeper Rita Dwight said Landon simply stopped breathing at 5:25 p.m.

"I thought we would have him a little while longer," Theo said. "But he had accomplished everything a person can accomplish. He was very proud he made it to 100, and he was so pleased that the president came to see him."

Dwight said she had noticed a change in Landon's breathing pattern early Monday, but said he remained alert and talked with both her and Theo during the day.

Landon's daughter Sen. Nancy Kassebaum had been scheduled to appear Monday night in Waterbury, Conn., but headed back to Topeka after learning of her father's death.

President Reagan issued a statement mourning the death of the GOP elder statesman.

"Alf Landon exemplified the very best in public service. He deeply loved his country and he was motivated by a genuine desire to help his fellow man.... Gov. Landon was a true elder statesman, whose expertise and views were sought and valued by many of us in public life."

And Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, who is seeking the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, called Landon "a friend and mentor."

"He was a legendary Republican who taught generations of politicians what integrity and leadership were all about. Always way ahead of his times, his life was a solid century of achievement."

Political history

Alfred Mossman Landon once described himself, wryly, as "a lawyer who never had a

■ See LANDON, Page 3

Former Kansas Gov. Alfred Landon celebrated his 95th birthday after President Ronald Reagan delivered the 58th Landon Lecture in September 1982. Landon died at his home Monday evening. He was 100. Hospitalized in Topeka on September 28th after complaining of a chest pain, he had returned to his home Saturday.

Lecture series' prestige attributed to Landon

By Candy Leonard
Government Editor
and
Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

The Landon Lecture Series on Public Issues will keep alive the former Kansas governor's commitment to public service. The series is recognized as the most prestigious in the nation.

Alfred M. Landon established the lecture series at the suggestion of former K-State President James McCain in an effort to bring more top-notch speakers to the Midwest. Landon himself delivered the first speech on Dec. 13, 1966.

Funding for the Landon Lecture Series originally came from the administration budget at K-State, not from Landon's pocket. In 1968, J. Robert Wilson and several Manhattan residents began a patron fund for the series. The group now includes more than 450 people, each making a $100 contribution.

More than 20 years after the first address, Nancy Landon Kassebaum gave her lecture in honor of the 100th birthday of the Kansas elder statesman.

"One of the interesting things about Alf Landon was that he was always ahead of his time," said Barry Flinchbaugh, professor in agricultural economics and chair of the Landon Lecture series from 1976-81. "He advocated establishing relations with the People's Republic of China long before Nixon did so. "He (Landon) lent us his good name; we have the most outstanding lecture series in the country," he said. "No university, including Harvard, can hold a candle to it."

The final lecture Landon himself attended was in 1982 when President Reagan spoke at K-State. Prior to that, Landon took an active role in selecting speakers and attending the lectures, said Edward Seaton, chairman of the Landon patrons.

When the series began, most of the speakers were Landon's personal friends or contacts, Seaton said. Landon would have dinner parties in Topeka before each lecture or attend the luncheon after the speech to give remarks.

"And those comments were not always favorable about the lecture," Seaton said. Landon had a "candor and outspokenness," Seaton said. "He spoke straight to the meat of the issue — he didn't mince his words. It was always refreshing to talk with someone who was straightforward."

Flinchbaugh agreed, saying Landon "loved a good argument and always encouraged you to speak your mind whether or not you agreed with him."

"He had a very penetrating intellect; within five minutes you'd get to the meat of the matter," Flinchbaugh said. "He challenged you every minute you were with him."

Landon had a reputation as a "penny

■ See LECTURE, Page 10

115 injured as Amtrak train derails

By The Associated Press

RUSSELL, Iowa — Amtrak's California Zephyr slammed into a railroad crane laying new track Monday, knocking both locomotives and 11 cars of the passenger train off the tracks and injuring at least 115 people, officials said.

"Everything was going smoothly and all of the sudden I heard the screeching of the brakes and everyone went flying," said passenger Mildred Faddis of Oakland, Calif.

"There was debris everywhere. It was terrible."

Amtrak spokeswoman Debbie Marciniak said the railroad's 16-car No. 6 train was headed east toward Chicago shortly after 11:30 a.m. when it hit a crane being used by Burlington Northern, which operates the tracks across southern Iowa.

A preliminary investigation determined that a work crew moved the crane and another car onto the railroad siding to allow the Amtrak train to pass, but an improperly aligned switch put the train on the siding, causing the collision, a spokesman for Burlington Northern said.

At least 112 people were taken to the Lucas County Memorial Hospital in nearby Chariton, said hospital spokeswoman Barbara Riggs, while three of the most seriously hurt, including two railroad workers, were flown by helicopter to hospitals in Des Moines.

She said at least nine of the injured would be hospitalized overnight, but that most of the injured suffered bumps, bruises or broken bones.

Marciniak said Amtrak's records showed 248 passengers and 22 crew members were on the train, but she said that number would not include passengers who failed to show or who bought tickets at the last minute.

Amtrak operates on Burlington Northern tracks across southern Iowa. Burlington Northern had a derrick and crew in the Russell area, but spokeswoman Yvette Brown said she could not confirm the company's equipment was involved.

AIDS threat increases condom awareness

By Kathy Winkhofer
Collegian Reporter

College students experiencing sex is nothing new, but the threat of the AIDS virus is.

K-State and other area schools and businesses are dealing with the acquired immune deficiency syndrome issue actively for the first time this fall.

Robert Tout, director of Lafene Health Center, said students can learn about the syndrome through videotapes and lectures by health educators and staff physicians.

To promote safe sex, condoms are sold inexpensively at the Lafene pharmacy and at the LaFemme clinic, Tout said. Condoms at Lafene are sold by the dozen for $1.50.

"Early last spring, groups were talking about dispensing condoms for a community service but they decided they were too cheap at Lafene," Tout said.

Pat Bosco, associate vice president and dean of student life, said he is not aware of any distribution or plans of distribution anywhere else on campus in the future.

At Bushwacker's in Aggieville, condom machines are set up in the restrooms. A machine was installed in the women's restroom last week, from which condoms may be purchased for $1 each. Rich Smith, manager of Bushwacker's, had no comment on why the machines were installed in the bar.

Student reaction to the machine at Bushwacker's was varied.

"It was kind of a shock to see the

■ See CONDOMS, Page 10

U.S. Supreme Court to hear arguments in censorship case

By Brad Fanshler
Collegian Reporter

The U.S. Supreme Court will begin hearing its first case regarding censorship of a high school newspaper today, involving former students of Hazelwood (Mo.) East High School.

Those involved with high school and college publications will be watching the decision of the Supreme Court closely since it could change the rights of high school and college journalists.

Dave Adams, associate professor of journalism and mass communications and director of Student Publications Inc., will be one of 12 people attending the hearing in Washington, D.C., at the invitation of the Student Press Law

Center.

"I think certainly students have a lot at stake in this case," Adams said, adding a decision against the students in this case would be a step backward in the area of student journalist's rights.

"The high school and college papers came out of the closet in the '60s," Adams said. The Court's decision could force many papers back underground, he said, making them less responsible for their actions.

The Missouri case, Kuhlmeier vs. Hazelwood District, stems from the school principal's action that stopped publication of two pages of the school newspaper. They contained articles dealing with pregnancy and the effects of

■ See CASE, Page 10

Briefly

By The Associated Press

AIDS task force to give report

TOPEKA — The Governor's Task Force on AIDS finished work Monday on the draft of the report it will submit to Gov. Mike Hayden for his consideration when he prepares his Fiscal Year 1989 budget.

The report will include recommendations on how Kansas can best combat the spread of AIDS, and those suggestions could cost the state "big bucks" if all of them are implemented, Lt. Gov. Jack Walker and Rep. Marvin Littlejohn, R-Phillipsburg, said.

"It's going to be tough for the governor and the Legislature to come up with all the money that this program needs," said Walker, who set up the task force last winter.

"It depends on how far you want to go in spending money" but the cost could reach into the millions, said Littlejohn, chairman of the House Public Health and Welfare Committee and a member of the AIDS task force.

Kansas currently has 84 AIDS patients, but nobody knows how many it may have in the future, Littlejohn noted.

While the task force report will not recommend specific amounts of money it feels should be spent, it will suggest increased state funding for education, more sophisticated laboratory equipment for testing for the AIDS virus, testing of prison inmates, guards and employees and payment of the cost of AIDS treatment and long-term health care of patients.

The task force, headed by Dr. W.J. Reals of Wichita, Monday reviewed subcommittee reports that will form the nucleus of its report to Hayden and decided on the final format of its report. It will meet again in late November to study the final version, and hopes to submit its report to Hayden by Dec. 1.

Walker told the panel that in order for the governor to decide which recommendations he wants to endorse and fund in its legislative message its report must reach him by that date.

Reals said the entire task force would meet with Hayden and deliver the report to the governor, but the date for the presentation will be decided when the report is complete.

Monks demonstrate in Tibet

LHASA, Tibet — Nema Tsering sat in a dark corner of the Jokhang Temple, his young face twisted in pain by the thought that Tibetan independence might not be achieved.

The 19-year-old monk tugged at his burgundy robe as it slipped off his bare shoulder, and said sadly, "If the Dalai Lama dies, then there is no hope."

As the novice monk voiced his desire for an end to 37 years of communist Chinese rule in Tibet, more than 20 plainclothes police stood guard over the temple, the holiest in Tibetan Buddhism — making clear that the government will snuff out any independence movement.

Nema Tsering was speaking late on the afternoon of Oct. 7, the 37th anniversary of the Chinese army's advance into Tibet and the day on which many predicted a new outbreak of violent anti-Chinese demonstrations. The day had passed, without a stir.

He attributed the quiet to the police show of force throughout the city, and said trouble would reoccur once the police left.

"I've seen the posters," he said, referring to the pro-independence posters that went up every morning, attracting crowds of Tibetan readers before Chinese officials tore them down.

Artist paints on grain of rice

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. — Many painters think of themselves as starving artists, but David Stevens is one of the few who could actually eat his work. One of his specialties is painting the Statue of Liberty on a single grain of rice.

"At the risk of sounding vain, I think I've got a talent that's out of the ordinary," said Stevens, 29, an unemployed deliveryman whose formal artistic training consists of a single high school art class.

He said he discovered his knack one day about three years ago when he was bored and his wife, who painted ceramics, had her materials out.

Using a quarter-size rock for his canvas, Stevens painted an ocean scene with a bright yellow sunset, a tiny island with palm trees and a galleon.

"I thought with the smallest surface it won't take as long," Stevens said. "In a couple of hours, I'd have a finished product."

Six weeks and several rocks later, he was challenged.

"A guy saw some of the stones and he said, 'That's fine. But the day you paint the Statue of Liberty on a grain of rice, I'll buy it from you,'" he said.

Stevens obliged, though the would-be customer disappeared. Stevens says that, without using a magnifying glass, he can paint the Statue of Liberty — down to the miniature yellow torch — in 15 minutes. It measures one-quarter of an inch tall, and one-sixteenth of an inch wide.

To paint detail, he uses a brush with only two or three hairs. He glues the rice grain to a piece of cardboard to keep it steady.

Iraqi planes raid Greek ship

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraqi warplanes raided a Greek-owned ship Monday, killing at least one crewman in their ninth attack in a week on tankers either leased by Iran or trading with it.

In Iran, the leader of that country's Revolutionary Guards said Iran now produces 70 percent of its own equipment for the 7-year-old war with Iraq, including advanced wire-guided missiles and multiple rocket launchers.

Four Kuwaiti tankers, flying the American flag and under U.S. Navy escort, meanwhile were reported to have reached Bahrain. The island sheikdom is the halfway point on the 550-mile route from the Persian Gulf entrance at the Strait of Hormuz to Kuwait, Iraq's western neighbor at the head of the gulf.

'Wildest' sheriff leaving town

COUNCIL GROVE — The man English newspapers once heralded as "The Wildest Sheriff In The West" isn't feeling too wild these days.

His little apartment behind the county courthouse is littered, on this particular October afternoon, with cardboard boxes. Corky and Danette Woodward's 3-year-old son, Dustin, has eluded his mother's grasp long enough to drag in a garden hose from the front porch.

And although the Woodwards wouldn't be "getting out of Dodge," as they call it, until Tuesday, their phone was quite dead.

"They really love me around here," sighs Woodward, the former sheriff of Morris County.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AG ECON CLUB sign-up and $50 deposit for Texas trip due tomorrow in Waters 342.

WILDCAT TIPOFF CLASSIC men's and women's 3-on-3 basketball tournament Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms available at Union candy counter, Hollis House and Ahearn 101. The deadline for registration is Oct. 23.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS award applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Acker 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at K-State are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students. The awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTERVIEW applicants for 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT'S CABINET meets at 10 p.m. in Student Government Services office.

DAIRY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 7:30 p.m. in Call 140 for a speaker.

FOOD AND NUTRITION meet at 5 p.m. in Justin 115.

STUDENTS AGAINST MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213.

WHEAT STATE AGRONOMY CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 313.

COLLEGIATE FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA meets at 8 p.m. in Waters 135 for yearbook pictures.

BLACK STUDENT UNION meets at 6 p.m. in Union Statroom 1 for a CPC meeting.

SPURS meets at 9 p.m. in Union 213.

AG ECON CLUB meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union Big 8 room for meeting and yearbook pictures.

K-LAIRES meets at 7:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 207.

HORSEMAN'S ASSOCIATION meets at 9 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for pictures.

BETA KAPPA NU meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union Little Theatre for a demonstration interview and a question-and-answer session with Motorola recruiter.

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Statroom 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

STUDENT DIETETICS ASSOCIATION meets at 7 p.m. in Justin lounge for a discussion on dressing for success.

PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Union 208.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Shellenberger 301.

SOCIETY OF MANUFACTURING ENGINEERS meets at 6:30 p.m. at north entrance of Durland.

ALPHA GAMMA EPSILON (STUDENT GERONTOLOGY CLUB) meets at 4:30 p.m. in Umberger 125. Timothy Pottoroff, Kansas Community Service Organization, will describe the community service connections he is trying to develop.

WEDNESDAY

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION meets at 3 p.m. in Union 204 for an informational meeting on earning credit on the British Intercession Tour.

SOCIETY OF HISPANIC PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS meets at 6 p.m. in Durland 152 for a Navy speaker and a pizza party.

Correction

Due to a reporter's error, a paragraph in the story about reserved parking spaces in Friday's Collegian should have read: "The Council of Traffic, Parking and Police operations is collecting information to see if the reserved spaces will be wanted or needed after the trial period."

TACO

TUESDAY

60¢ GIANT TACOS
all you want plus
$1 Margaritas
4-7 p.m.

LUNCH SPECIAL
2 Tacos & Salad Bar
only $2.99
$1 Margaritas

THE COTTON CLUB
418 Poyntz Manhattan

IMPORT BEER TUESDAYS!

•All imports $1.35
•50¢ off all Philly Sandwiches

Open to the Public

KITES BAR AND GRILL

The Station

TACO TUESDAY
featuring those freshly prepared crisp flour shells

$1.25 MARGARITAS
99¢ TACOS
OR 3 FOR $2.75

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

MORTAR BOARD

Congratulations
Deborah Miles

Recipient of the 1987 Mortar Board Scholarship

KSU STUDENT FOUNDATIONS

OozeBall

Congratulations
Mighty Oongas
on their 1st place victory!

The other "Final Four" teams:
2) Diffuse Encephalomalacia
3) Mud Hens
4) Net Hangers

Thanks to all team participants and sponsors for making Oozeball '87 a "muddy" success see you in '88.

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Theta Xi, Triangle, Boyd, Off Campus

Oct. 14: Boyd, Clovia, Edwards, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

ALL Polo MERCHANDISE MUST GO!

BANKRUPTCY LIQUIDATION

ALL MERCHANDISE ORDERED SOLD!

ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR • SPORTING GOODS
WARMUPS • SPORTSWEAR • ETC.

DAYS ONLY! CASH ONLY! NO CHECKS:

T-SHIRTS • MUSCLE SHIRTS
SHIMMELS ASSORTED SIZES, COLORS
99¢ to $3.99 ea.

SUNGLASSES
OVER 25 DIFFERENT STYLES
VALUES FROM $1.19-11.99
NOW ONLY 3.99-4.99

OVER 2000 PR. ATHLETIC SHOES MUST GO!

Polo KNIT SPORT SHIRTS
ASSORTED COLORS SIZES & STYLES
VALUES FROM $2.49-16.99
NOW ONLY 10.99-16.99

OVER 2000 PR. ATHLETIC SHOES
TENNIS • RACQUETBALL • JOGGING
AEROBICS • BASKETBALL • ETC.
NOW ONLY 6.99 AND UP!

OVER 5000 PIECES NAME BRAND SWEATSHIRTS

DESIGNER SWEATSHIRTS
NOW ONLY
8.99-10.99

NAME BRAND ATHLETIC RUNNING SHORTS
VALUES FROM $1.19-11.99
NOW ONLY 3.99-5.99

NAME BRAND LONG-SLEEVE T-SHIRTS
VALUES FROM $1.19-11.99
NOW ONLY 4.99-6.99

ALL MERCHANDISE BELOW WHOLESALE

SWEATSHIRTS
ASSORTED SIZES & COLORS
VALUES FROM $1.19-11.99
NOW ONLY 6.99-16.99

SOCKS
TUBE • CREW • ROLL-UPS
VALUES 12 to 49
NOW ONLY 99¢ & UP!

NAME BRAND BASEBALL SLEEVES
VALUES FROM $1.19-11.99
NOW ONLY 4.99-6.99

GOLF • TENNIS • RACQUETBALL • ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR • SPORTSWEAR • T-SHIRTS • SOCKS • SWEATSHIRTS • SPORTING GOODS • JERSEYS • SPORTSBAGS • RUNNING SHORTS

1 DAY ONLY WEDNESDAY • OCT. 14th CASH ONLY • NO CHECKS
10 A.M.-8 P.M.

HOLIDAY INN
530 RICHARDS DR. • FT. RILEY BLV., MANHATTAN, KS. 1 DAY ONLY

ALFRED M. LANDON: 1887-1987

Leaders remember Landon

By Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

On the night of Alfred M. Landon's death, state and national leaders recalled the former Kansas governor's life, praising his accomplishments.

"Alfred M. Landon was a friend and mentor, a legendary Republican who taught generations of politicians what leadership and integrity were all about," said U.S. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

"Landon's role of civic government is one to be emulated by other politicians," said Joe Knopp, R-Manhattan, majority leader for the Kansas House of Representatives.

"He was one who maintained an active, positive and constructive interest in the process of government," he said.

"...Landon was a friend and mentor, a legendary Republican who taught generations of politicians what leadership and integrity were all about."

—Sen. Robert Dole

Knopp recalled a meeting with Landon shortly after he was elected majority leader in the Kansas house last December.

"I remember how alert and keen his mind was," Knopp said. "Here was a person nearly 100 years old keeping a firm grasp not only about what was happening in Washington, D.C., but at the local level as well."

It would have been easy for Landon to resent the public after his defeat in the 1936 presidential race, but he "learned to accept it gracefully and then encouraged his family to be involved in politics," Knopp said.

The Landon Lecture Series is "one of the more significant programs of the last 20 years at K-State and would not have happened without the personality of Alf Landon," Knopp said.

In a prepared statement, Gov. Mike Hayden said "Landon was a great leader for his country, for his party and for his state."

"As governor, he lead Kansas through the stormy days in the Great Depression, keeping Kansas on an even keel. He left us a legacy of good government, guided by an open mind and a vision for the future."

"Few men have meant as much to me personally as Alf Landon. His endorsement of my gubernatorial candidacy was greatly appreciated, but more important to me than that was his personal friendship with me and my family."

"Alf Landon will always be remembered as a man who embodied the soul of Kansas."

U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, Landon's daughter, flew to Topeka Monday night to be with family members. She has not commented about her father's death, and her press secretary said she would release a statement today.

File/Steve Wolgast

Alfred Landon's last public appearance was with President Ronald Reagan when they celebrated Landon's 100th birthday at the former governor's Topeka home on Sept. 6. In a statement mourning his death, Reagan said, "Gov. Landon was a true elder statesman, whose expertise and views were sought and valued by many of us in public life."

Landon

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

case, an oilman who never made a million and a presidential candidate who carried only Maine and Vermont."

Landon, who also owned four broadcast stations at one time, never shook his national image as one of the country's all-time political losers. Yet he never let jokes about his 1936 landslide loss to Franklin D. Roosevelt get under his skin.

In later years, he even seemed to enjoy being remembered for having carried only Maine and Vermont. He named two ponies he bought for his grandchildren after those states.

"They might have forgotten me if it had been close," he once said.

Landon was never again a candidate, but his keen interest in politics never waned.

And when he was 91, he was thrust back into the political spotlight when his daughter won election to the U.S. Senate in 1978. The proud father called her victory "the thrill of a lifetime."

Although Landon made a fortune drilling for oil, he detested being called an "oilman." He said to him that denoted some fancy dressed eastern "dude" who bankrolled drilling operations but never got any oil on his hands.

Alf was no "dude" and no one ever accused him of being a fancy dresser.

In black riding boots, worn riding pants, a tattered jacket and flop-eared winter cap, he

Landon's services set for Thursday morning

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Former Gov. Alf M. Landon's body will lie in state for 24 hours in the Kansas Capitol rotunda prior to a private family graveside burial service Thursday morning, an aide to U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum said Monday night.

Mike Harper, Kassebaum's administrative assistant in charge of her Kansas City area office, said the family had tentatively decided to have the body lie in state starting Wednesday morning, followed by the private graveside service at Mount Hope

Cemetery in southwest Topeka the next morning.

Harper quoted Sen. Kassebaum as saying she "wants to keep the funeral as simple as possible."

"The tribute to Dad was his 100th birthday," she said.

Harper also said the family requests that no flowers be sent. Rather, it asked for contributions to be made to the Kansas State Historical Society for a special fund which has been established to pay for creating a Landon memorial to be announced later.

was a familiar sight riding his horse, Red, along the Kansas River bottoms near his white colonial home on Topeka's northwest edge.

He still rode Red into his 90s, as frequently as the weather would permit. He loved to chide younger associates about their lack of exercise.

Landon could talk for hours with equal clarity and expertise about old-time politics — he worked in Theodore Roosevelt's Bull Moose campaign of 1912 — or the latest Kansas election. He could fascinate listeners with stories of history as it was made. With his droll wit and ability to recall details of events, Landon could be a spellbinding storyteller.

His support of the Republican Party never wavered, although for two decades after his defeat he was virtually a forgotten man.

He cultivated his role as commentator on national events and in the mid-1950s, the media began seeking his opinions.

"My whole record shows I was something of a maverick," he once told an interviewer. "I've always been free to act as I wanted. It was my own personal decision, and I've never regretted it. I've rather relished my role."

The later years

In his later years, he was looked on as the Grand Old Man of the Grand Old Party. The 1972 GOP National Convention in Miami Beach honored Landon as one of its "distinguished senior citizens."

Four years later, when the convention was in Kansas City, Mo., he got a standing ovation when introduced. The applause, he told the delegates, "warms the cockles of my heart, whatever that means."

Presidents Nixon and Reagan came to Kansas on Landon's behalf to deliver lectures in a series named for him at Kansas State University.

Among others who came calling in Landon's declining years was the People's Republic of China's ambassador to the United States. He wanted to meet the man who had advocated normalization of diplomatic relations with Red China for 20 years before Nixon accomplished it in the early 1970s.

Landon showed no bitterness over his 1936 presidential defeat. He said Roosevelt made overtures to have him join his Cabinet in the late 1930s but he declined on grounds a coalition government would not serve the American people well.

Although Landon visited with Roosevelt, he had scant contact with presidents until Nixon and Gerald R. Ford occupied the White House. Landon was not close to Dwight D. Eisenhower, a fellow Kansan and fellow Republican. He seldom talked about Ike, but did on occasion make it clear he felt military men made poor presidents.

He was a strong admirer of Harry S. Truman, a Democrat, although they were not personal friends.

The Collegian: Something special everyday.

Come as You are Tea
Learn About
Intercession British Travel Course credit in

ART

English

Oct. 14
3 to 5 p.m.
Union 204

For information call:
532-6106 or 532-6716
Department of English
Division of Continuing Education

BRING
THE WHOLE FAMILY!

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

Sunchase
SIXTH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER TRIP

Breckenridge $154
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Steamboat $159
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Winter Park $172
JANUARY 2-9, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Vail/Beaver Creek $178
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency

Never a dull moment.

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, October 13, 1987 ■ Page 4

There is hope: Paul Simon for President

"And yes, it's all right to have an affinity for what was the mother country for all of us, because if a man takes a wife unto himself, he doesn't stop loving his mother because of that. But at the same time, we're all Americans."

—Ronald Reagan

The 26th Amendment to the Constitution guarantees any person 18 years or older the right to vote in an election. It does not, however, guarantee that the American public will learn to curb its desire for the ludicrous display of inanity demonstrated by the above statement. Are we then to be doomed to a succession of righteous — but senile — retired entertainers occupying the White House?

Many people would contest this cynical implication by arguing there seems to be a virtual smorgasbord of potential presidential candidates for the 1988 election. True, but many of these candidates would probably have more success peddling their acts at a circus or at the unfortunately defunct "Gong Show."

Starting at the far right of the political spectrum, one has a hard time discerning between the ideological views of the Republican candidates.

First of all, there's a man who insults our collective intelligence by claiming to be able

Commentary

MICHAEL NICHOLS
Collegian Columnist

to stop hurricanes through devoutness and prayer. This same man solemnly assures us that God himself spoke to him in prayer, requesting that Pat Robertson run for the presidency of the United States. It is difficult to criticize Robertson without offending some people's religious commitments, but it is important to clarify the fact that religious convictions alone qualify nobody to become president. By cloaking himself in the veil of a righteous crusader, Robertson underestimates and offends every sensible American, regardless of religious preference or abstinence.

Then there is a trio of hopefuls whose political views could easily be amalgamated into one monotonous platform: clumsy Vice President George Bush, whose reputation is at zero since the Iran-Contra fiasco; Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, who moronically jokes about invading Central American countries; and ex-football star Jack Kemp, who has become such a devout Reaganite that we should begin to worry if the senility is contagious. Of these three, Dole would probably be the most viable alternative due to his impressive history of political experience.

Moving left on the political spectrum, the situation does not get much better. Since the 1970s, the Democratic party has had a hard time presenting America with able presidential candidates. Names like Jimmy Carter, Walter Mondale and Ted Kennedy are often associated with the terms "inept," "spineless" or "incompetent." Most recently, those seeking the Democratic nomination have had little luck merely trying to remain in contention.

With well-known Kennedy look-alikes Gary Hart and Joe Biden dropping out of the race, the American public is beginning to worry that there will never be a reasonable Democratic candidate for whom to cast a vote. Of those remaining, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis is most fitting for the Kennedy-clone category, while Jesse Jackson lacks the political experience to become president. Rep. Richard Gephardt appears to be an able politician, but he does not bring to mind any innovative thinking or a platform that differs much from any of his fellow running mates.

But there is still hope. From the most conservative district in southern Illinois comes a bespectacled former small-town newspaper publisher whose indispensable bow tie gives him the semblance of an Orville Redenbacher or a Harry S. Truman. Sen. Paul Simon is also an ex-lieutenant governor, five-term congressman, college professor and author of eight books. If he were to become president, Simon would be the first intellectual — frightening as it may seem — to occupy the office since the unlucky presidency of Woodrow Wilson.

Despite being an old-line liberal Democrat, Simon appeals to liberals and conservatives alike. He has strong labor ties and is very popular with blacks and Jews. His voting record is liberal, although he professes to be fiscally conservative. Simon's main issues are illiteracy, unemployment and government spending, where he opposes the billions of dollars continually being spent for military purposes.

Here are a few of his thoughts:

■ On SDI: Simon believes the Strategic Defense Initiative cannot completely succeed and that the costs are astronomical. He contends that we are developing a system which will be the costliest project in history, one which by its nature can never be tested. "Every dollar we spend on weapon development and production that is taken from the poor and needy — or adds to the national deficit — is morally questionable."

■ On federal spending: In 1985, shortly after being elected to the Senate, Paul Simon pushed for measures to cut spending by $60 billion. Defense was his No. 1 target, but he also suggested changes in the entitlement programs for people retiring from the Armed Forces. Simon also favored, much to Reagan's chagrin, greater taxation of large corporations.

■ On unemployment: Simon recently submitted to the Senate the "Guaranteed Job Opportunity Act," which would make the federal government the employer of last resort. The program would be incorporated into the welfare system, eventually replacing it. Simon has tried to allay the fears of employed workers and unions by assuring them that the jobs to be created are expressly prohibited from displacing any worker already employed. His bill also includes special services, most notable of which is an educational component for those unqualified to join the job market. With the unemployment rate currently at 6 percent, the bill would be aiding an estimated minimum of 7.2 million people.

Simon can also be controversial within his own party. Many hard-line liberals were displeased with his book "The Once and Future Democrat," in which he criticized Democrats for being out of touch with the American voter. He is straightforward and does not rely on ambiguities. He is a contradiction as a Democrat. He is not young and preppy, doesn't sleep with models and doesn't even plagiarize fellow politicians' speeches.

Perhaps he can best be described in his own words, as seen in this 1984 quote: "The reality is that people are not liberal or conservative. What people want is practical answers to practical problems. I'm a practical guy, and I think that will come across."

Alfred Landon's spirit won't soon diminish

The nation lost one of the few remnants of a bygone era Monday night when Alfred Mossman Landon died at his Topeka home. He had celebrated his centennial birthday Sept. 9.

More than anything else, Landon was in a sense a political rebel who did what he thought was right and didn't simply abide by what others said or what the current wave of thought dictated.

At the height of his political career, he was an independent leader for independent times. And, despite his landslide defeat at the hands of Franklin Delano Roosevelt in 1936, he remained Kansas' favorite son.

That stunning defeat would never tarnish his character or the favorable way with which Kansans would always view him.

And his death will not change his status as a Kansas institution. His name and, to a certain extent, his ideals live on in his daughter, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum.

Although he was vehemently opposed to her entering the Senate race in 1978, he was jubilant when she won the seat, calling her victory "the thrill of a lifetime." He believed her win was just as significant as his run for the presidency.

Landon's ideals will also survive through the K-State lecture series that bears his name. The Landon Lecture Series on Public Issues, initiated in 1966, is regarded as the most prestigious of its kind nationwide.

Landon provided the necessary inspiration to elevate the series to greatness, and the series has now come to be a proper living and evolving tribute to him. K-State may be proud to have played such an integral role in cultivating the series that so honors its namesake. The University is truly fortunate.

While the rest of the nation joins Kansans in mourning his death, people needn't worry that Alfred Landon will fade from memory or be relegated to history books.

His is a light that won't soon dim.

Deregulating trucking will cost money, lives

Deregulation. It's an interesting term. Over the years, a big push has evolved to deregulate major industries on the basis that it promotes competition, which in turn keeps prices down and consumers happy.

To demonstrate this concept, we have deregulated major industries including airlines and interstate trucking. Now, officials say, it's time to deregulate the trucking industry within the state. The Kansas Corporation Commission has sent a proposal to Gov. Mike Hayden requesting that the Legislature amend the Kansas Motor Carrier Act of 1925 that requires the KCC to set rates, routes and areas for the trucking industry.

A market free of regulation would increase competition and reduce trucking rates, supporters of the proposal say. They seem to be forgetting that once the gates of regulation are opened, the industry will be flooded with carriers scrambling for a piece of the pie. Cut-rate companies will descend on the market, forcing other reputable carriers to "come down or get out." In some cases, these established companies won't survive.

What's so bad about paying lower trucking rates? The saying "You get what you pay for" should ring some bells. Cheap companies attract cheap drivers. When a driver gets paid little, that driver must run harder and faster to make a decent wage. Thus, the drivers begin compromising the safety of themselves and others on the road. And once accidents begin to increase, insurance rates will do likewise, and trucking rates will skyrocket.

Americans need to realize the ignorance of statements such as one recently made by a University of Kansas business professor. Deregulation in Kansas will have the same positive effects that resulted from national deregulation of trucking in 1980, he said. Anyone who has driven on the highways lately or seen the much-publicized "Killer Truck" segment on ABC's "20/20" program would question what those "positive effects" are.

Total deregulation is carrying things too far. If profit margins are cut, carriers will be forced to make cuts — more likely than not those cuts will be in the areas of safety. Legislators must take a long, hard look before they pass another deregulation law. Increased competition may lower rates, but when it comes at the expense of safety, it's not worth it.

High school journalists deserve use of First Amendment rights

As a future high school teacher, I find myself concerned with the possibility of First Amendment rights being removed from the reach of students. Today the U.S. Supreme Court will hear arguments in the Hazelwood School District vs. Kuhlmeier case, a case which began in 1983 at a St. Louis, Mo., high school, and deals with the rights of the students' publications.

In 1983, the student newspaper at Hazelwood East High School published an issue which contained stories dealing with teenage pregnancy and marriage, and the effects of divorce on children. The principal at the school censored the material because he described it as "too sensitive" for the high school audience. The student editors took the case to court. The U.S. Court of Appeals sided with the students, saying the school district had violated First Amendment rights of the students. The court ruled that the student newspaper is a "public forum for the expression of student opinion." The Hazelwood School District appealed the case to the U.S. Supreme Court. The Court accepted the case; today they hear the case's arguments and within 10 months the final decision will be known.

What faces a majority of high school publications advisers is 10 months of frustration and worry. First Amendment rights must not stop at the schoolroom doors, but for now all we can do is educate the public about today's student publications.

Contrary to popular belief, students are not set loose to write articles with disregard for truth, accuracy and good taste. Many schools require a semester of a journalism course before the student can work on the student publication. Most advisers are trained in journalism, including everything from Gutenberg

Commentary

BECKY LUCAS
Managing Editor

to important media legal cases. Students in high school are also taught journalism ethics. The students discuss what may be legal for a newspaper to print, but is in poor taste and should be avoided.

Most teachers describe situations for their students and then discuss the legalities and ethics involved. One example is a picture run in newspapers across the United States. The picture showed grieving family members surrounding an open body bag containing the body of a drowning victim. Multiple drownings in a short time frame prompted the newspaper to use the picture. Due to its emotional content, the editors hoped to impress the importance of water safety to its readership.

Legally what the paper did was fine, but ethically the newspaper ran into some problems. Readers called and complained that the picture was "in poor taste" and "too graphic," not to mention that the photographer had obviously captured a very private moment of grieving for the entire family. Some readers went as far as to cancel their subscriptions. But the question still remains whether or not the picture should have been run. By posing situations including the previous one to students, they are able to learn and grow. When guided by a knowledgeable adviser, the students learn to stay within the boundaries of good taste and good judgment. Many forget that at the age of 16, we actually knew more than most "older people" gave us credit for.

I can remember being in high school, full of enthusiasm for finding facts, thinking that writing was the best thing in the world. In fact, our staff decided to publish an issue which covered everything from abortion, suicide, underage drinking and teenage pregnancy all in one issue. I wrote two articles, one on abortion and a sidebar explaining one girl's experience with an unwanted pregnancy which led her to have an abortion. The stories were all carefully researched, permission from our sources were given, names were changed to protect the sources' identity, and each story was tastefully executed. This is just what we, as students, were needing. We needed the freedom to stretch our wings and try our hand at writing on something weightier than the cafeteria.

We learned from writing, and no one told us we could not write on a certain topic. We were also taught the basic rules and ethical issues before being "turned loose." It would be nice if the world was all peaches and cream, but it is not, and by the time the students reach high school they have learned that, possibly first-hand. Students don't need protecting by the administration. The students need their First Amendment rights in order to learn and grow. It would be a shame to stifle young minds.

So until the arrival of the high Court's decision, advisers can only hope their students will still be able to learn and practice journalism — instead of public relations.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291-020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kottel Hall, phone 333-4555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kottel Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Business Tuesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, October 13, 1987 ■ Page 5

After an Air Midwest flight has landed at Manhattan Municipal Airport Monday night, a Spicer Aircraft employee rushes to refuel the twin-prop airplane so it can continue on to its next stop in Wichita.

Flying high: Airport boosts economy

"Manhattan radio, this is Cessna 21662. I'm 10 east inbound, requesting airport advisory."

More than 100 flights land daily at Manhattan Municipal Airport, all requesting and receiving instructions from the local flight service station. As of July 1, 1988, all of that will change.

"All of our flight information will be out of an automated station in Wichita," said William Fogerson, general manager of the airport. "But that should not compromise safety. We should have the same level of service with the same level of safety."

The station provides pilots with weather advisories and traffic information. Without those local services, Fogerson believes pilots will have to become much more self-reliant.

"Pilots have come to rely on the system too much," he said. "I know that I have a tendency to rely on it when I'm flying."

"We (pilots) are going to have to start keeping a sharper eye out and start using the intercom (general radio frequency) more," said Georgia Lindquist, certified flight instructor for Spicer Aircraft, located at the airport.

"It might be better (the closing of the station) in some respects because it will increase the level of vigilance and communication on the pilots' part," Fogerson said.

"Without the flight service station, we won't be able to have the personal contact that we do with the station," Lindquist said.

Although the station will be closed, weather information will be logged for the weather bureau.

The station provides information for pilots, but it lacks the control a tower would provide.

"The station is an advisory service. It

The airport, located west of Manhattan, has two runways to service incoming aircraft. Officials are studying plans to regionalize the airport and increase its business.

is not mandatory for pilots to report to the station what they are doing. It is for them to report to a tower," Fogerson said. A tower controls the airport's airspace in a five-mile circumference and up to about 3,000 feet above ground.

"According to the FAA, our numbers (of aircraft and services) are not high enough to justify a tower," Fogerson said. The Federal Aviation Administration ranked Manhattan 49 on a point scale of one.

"To get a tower, you have to have one point. It is based on the type and number of aircraft that utilize the airport," he said.

But the size of the airport is something that Fogerson is hoping will change.

Talks between the airport and Fort Riley are ongoing concerning its expansion, he said.

Story by
Janet Swanson

"Regionalization is a concept that would mean an overall general improvement of the airport. The airport would become financially supported by surrounding communities. But, in return, it would need to provide more of a benefit back to the communities," said Fogerson.

All of the regionalization plans are preliminary, and Fogerson expects the discussions to continue for some time.

"It could mean the construction of new buildings, more hangar space and other things. Everything, including the funding, will need to be worked out in detail," he said.

Although neither Fogerson nor Lindquist knows exactly how much the airport contributes to Manhattan's economy, both believe its expansion set in the airport's master plan will have a dramatic effect on the county's economy.

Photos by
Andy Nelson

"It will bring people, business and economic support for the area," Fogerson said.

"I don't think people realize what the airport means to Manhattan. It (the regionalization) could mean a big boost to not only the airport, but Manhattan also," Lindquist said.

"I don't think a lot of people in Manhattan even know how nice our facilities are out here," Fogerson said.

The airport has daily flights to Kansas City, Mo., Salina and Topeka through Eastern's Air Midwest and Capital-Braniff Express.

Fogerson said 40,011 people enplaned (boarded airplanes from the airport) in 1986.

"We deplaned 41,723 people," Fogerson said. "That second number is one that we are always concerned about. I mean, what happened to more than 1,000 people? How did they get back to where they came from? Or did they not go back? Those are questions we need to find answers to."

In addition to the commercial flights, the airport provides service for Fort Riley and individuals.

"With the opening of the (Manhattan Town Center) mall, we have had a lot of different companies flying people in and out," Fogerson said. "Fort Riley's airport can't handle as big as aircraft as we can, so we have a lot of business from them."

Fort Riley's landing strip cannot accommodate jet operations or large aircraft.

The airport's lead-in lighting and strobe systems are extras that many other airports Manhattan's size don't have, Fogerson said.

"In marginally good weather, all of these things help," he said.

Although Manhattan has a smaller airport than the one she worked at for six years in Indiana, Lindquist said the runways are excellent.

"The airport can handle almost any aircraft," she said.

Fogerson cited the K-State-Army football game last month as an example of how often the airport deals with military protocol.

"When they came in here they literally had a book this thick," Fogerson said, holding his hands six inches apart. "It had a schedule for every five minutes of where everyone was supposed to be and what they were supposed to be doing."

"Without the flight service station, we won't be able to have the personal contact that we do with the station."

—Georgia Lindquist

When Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez visited K-State last month to give a Landon Lecture, he arrived at and departed from the Manhattan airport.

"We're used to dealing with the Secret Service and all of that. But, it becomes a project around here. It really is a lot of fun," Fogerson said.

Although the last injury crash at the airport was in 1985, the airport's crash, fire and rescue vehicle gets a regular workout.

"When the Medivac comes in, we have to have the CFR out there — just (as) a precaution," Fogerson said. "We have it out at least once a day."

The CFR holds 1,585 gallons of water and 270 gallons of foam. It can be emptied in three minutes.

"If we ever have a serious fire out here, Manhattan's fire department will be called in," Fogerson said. "Once they get here, it's their baby and we just help. But for those seven minutes it takes for them to get here, it's ours."

LEFT: Richard Walkup, air traffic control specialist, works in the Flight Service Station which is scheduled to be closed July 1, 1988. ABOVE: William Fogerson, general manager of the airport, hopes to upgrade the airport's facilities.

Professor analyzes stock market decline

By Staff and Wire Reports

The stock market closed out a week of record-breaking declines with a broad drop Friday as interest rates kept climbing.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slumped 34.43 to 2,482.21, finishing the week with a record point loss of 158.78, or 6 percent.

Lloyd Thomas, professor of economics, said the decline is a "very small decrease" relatively, considering the market has more than tripled in the last five years.

The increasing high interest rates may be contributing to the current stock market decline by prompting more careful investing by individuals, Thomas said.

"The market has more than tripled since 1982 and has reached a point where people start to get nervous," Thomas said. "People may be thinking it went up so much that it got too high."

The previous largest point decline was Sept. 8-12, 1986, when the average fell 141.03, or 7.4 percent.

Friday's volume on the New York Stock Exchange was sluggish at 158.31 million shares, down from 198.70 million in the previous session.

The Dow Jones industrial average's close of last week was its lowest since it stood at 2,471.94 on July 23.

Analysts said a few buyers moved early in the session into stocks that had recently fallen sharply.

But, enthusiasm was muted by continuing interest-rate worries. Recent increases in interest rates, particularly in the short-term money markets, have prompted talk that the Federal Reserve might soon raise its discount rate again.

The Fed increased the rate it charges on loans to private financial institutions from 5 1/2 to 6 percent on Sept. 4, citing spreading inflationary expectations.

"Interest rates went up because the demand to borrow has been rising," Thomas said. "Banks will raise loan rates, causing people to hold back on their borrowing. (The high interest rate on loans) reduces the desire to borrow and spend."

The Fed tries to maintain its rates in terms of what banks charge their customers and vice versa, Thomas said.

Rates on long-term Treasury bonds kept climbing Friday, pushing close to — or in a couple of instances, reaching — 10 percent.

Some Wall Streeters were disturbed to see the Dow drop below 2,500 on a closing basis, figuring that a level of important psychological support had been breached. Others, however, pointed out the average has not yet closed below the intraday low of about 2,469 it touched on Sept. 22.

Amid the general gloom, activity in takeover situations and rumored targets was brisk.

Telex jumped 9% to 70 1/2. Interests headed by investor Asher Edelman began a $65-a-share tender offer for Telex's stock, and speculation ran high on Wall Street that another, higher bid might be forthcoming.

Advanced Systems, which agreed to be acquired by National Education Corp. through an exchange of stock, climbed 8 1/2 to 34 1/2.

J.P. Stevens rose 5 1/2 to 43 1/2. The company said it knew of no explanation for the activity.

On the downside, NBI fell 1 1/2 to 9 1/2. The company said it expects to post a bigger-than-expected loss for the quarter that ended Sept. 30.

Losers among the blue chips included International Business Machines, down 4 1/2 at 147 1/2; General Electric, down 2 at 58 1/2; DuPont, down 4 at 110 1/2, and International Paper, down 1 1/2 at 48 1/2.

Declining issues outpaced advances by more than 2 to 1 on the Big Board, with 481 up, 1,063 down and 437 unchanged. The exchange's composite index lost 1.68 to 174.64.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 181.63 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell 4.10 to 361.36, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 3.09 at 311.07.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market dropped 1.60 to 438.43.

Homecoming Discounts

Check pages
6, 7 & 8
for Homecoming
Discounts
& save all week!

A Cut Above

Upstairs
1st Bank Center
Denison & Claflin

Full Service Salon
Open Sundays

Mon-Thurs. 9-9
Fri-Sat 9-5
Sundays 1-5

Conveniently located NW corner of campus. Within walking distance of most dorms, fraternities and sororities.

GO CATS!

$2.00 off a haircut when you wear your homecoming button!

537-3200 537-3200 537-3200 537-3200

Diamond Connection
Visa, Mastercard - Layaway

Stop by with Your Homecoming Button & Receive
15% off of Anything in Stock.
(excluding gold chains)

Go Cats!

408 Poyntz 539-3225

GO CATS GO! to "Wildcat Spirit"

SPECIAL

Our #1 design on hoods
All K-State Caps
Game day SPECIALS throughout the store

"WILDCAT SPIRIT"

776-5461 716 N. Manhattan

HOURS 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat. 9:30-8 Thurs., 1-5 Sunday

KSU

HOME
COMING

Sub & Stuff Sandwich Shop

STRUT YOUR STUFF
Show your spirit!

Buy your Homecoming Button in the Union, wear it in, and receive one FREE MEDIUM DRINK

with the purchase of any sandwich
expires 10-17-87

12th & Moro 539-9308

HOMECOMING 87
Here Come The Cats!

Homecoming Buttons & Bumper Stickers on sale all week in the Union.
Buy your button and get these discounts

A Cut Above $2 off haircut & style
Aggie Hair Shapers $3 off haircuts & $7 off perms good w/Kim, Darlene, Julie Alco 20% off any reg. priced item
Arby's 20% off
Bobby's 10% off any food items
Bonanza $4.59 Ribeye
Book Shop 10% discount
Browne's Shoe Fit 15% off
Cafe Royale 2 for 1 on coffees
Campbell's 15% off
Charlie's free popcorn or peanuts w/pitcher purchase
Chef Cafe 15% off any item
Diamond Connection 15% off anything in stock
Duerfeldt's 10% discount on all items
Elkins Motors 10% off parts/services
Fashion Eyes 12% off all merchandise
Fashion Shop 20% off all reg. priced merchandise.
(salon services & hair products excluded)
Functions 10% off any item
G. Thomas Jewelers 15% off any item
Hayes House of Music 10% discount on all music books
ICBY 20% off total purchase
Jud's Children Wear 15% off all items
Kitchens Plus 15% off all reg. priced merchandise

Ladyfoot 15% discount on leather boots
Manhattan Toyota/Mazda Honda 10% disc. on any parts & services
Master Garner 10% off any purchase over $5
Nautilus 10% off aerobic & fitness apparel
New Beginnings discount-discount-discount
Olson's Shoe Repair discount-discount-discount
Pleffley Jewelers 10% off items
Pizza Hut $2.50 off lg. pizza, $1.50 off med. pizza
Popping Rent 1 movie, get one free
Raoul's 10% off meal ticket
Rock-a-Belly Deli free med. beverage w/sandwich purchase
So-Fro Fabrics 10% off any purchase
Spellbinders select your jack & save some jack $10, 20, 30, 40, 50%
Sub 'n Stuff Free med. drink w/purchase of any sandwich
Subs 'n Such Med. drink w/purchase of 1/2 a sandwich (Good w/no other promotions)
Swanson's Buy 2 donuts get 1 free
Tina's Studio $3 off haircuts
University Inn 1 free donut or cinnamon roll
Valentino's Free Coke w/purchase
Vista 10% off order
Westloop Floral 20% off plants or fresh flowers
Palace

Wear your Homecoming Button to the Aggieville Pizza Hut® and we'll give you
$2.50 off any large pizza or $1.50 off any medium pizza

Offer good
Oct. 12-17, 1987

DINE IN or CARRY-OUT ONLY at the
AGGIEVILLE PIZZA HUT

Pizza Hut
539-7666
1121 Moro

TROPICAL TAN

$2 sessions
or $40 tanning membership
bring coupon in for details
Expires 10-21-87

FirstBank Center
Second Level
Denison & Claflin 537-0744

Jackson assumes mainstream position

'New' Jesse heads list of Democratic hopefuls

By The Associated Press

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Jesse Jackson's 1984 presidential race posed a dilemma for black political leaders that was as stark in Alabama as anywhere in the nation.

That dilemma — whether to stand by the first black man to run for president or support a more electable, white candidate — literally split apart Alabama's black community. Elsewhere, black leaders were also torn between Jackson and Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic front-runner with a long history of support for black causes.

As Jackson begins his 1988 campaign, he paces the Democratic field, at least in the public opinion polls, and the "new" Jesse is running a mainstream campaign and striking a more conciliatory tone.

"1984 is behind us. 1988 has nothing to do with tonight. 1988 can stand on its own legs," Jackson said Friday night at a reception in Montgomery designed to heal some of the wounds left by his first campaign.

In 1984, Alabama's black political caucus, the Alabama Democratic Conference, endorsed Mondale because Jackson was late entering the race and lacked a strong organization. Jackson ended up third in Alabama behind Mondale and Gary Hart.

The ADC's decision split the powerful caucus. Older, politically experienced members maintained their allegiance to the group while Jackson's supporters — mostly young and middle-aged professionals — left to form a new political network, the Alabama New South Coalition.

Jackson's 1988 campaign team in Alabama includes many New South members, but Friday night he attempted to pick up ADC support by attending an informal reception with more than 100 members.

"I'd like to think whatever friction existed in 1984 has been ironed out for the better," ADC Chairman Joe Reed said.

Tuskegee Mayor Johnny Ford agreed. "At this point Jackson has the edge" for the ADC endorsement, he said.

Ford backed Mondale in 1984 because, he said, Jackson had no chance.

"This time," he said, "you're looking at a new Jesse Jackson. He's much more mature and he's appealing to a broader base — working class whites."

Ford, president of the World Conference of Mayors and a long-time political force in Alabama, said Jackson has started focusing on economics, which is the No. 1 concern of blacks and whites, and has learned how to sell himself to Southerners, who will choose a third of the national convention delegates next March 8.

"Jesse is more conservative than he was four years ago," Ford said.

Another ADC member, state Rep. John Buskey, agreed with Ford that "this group is probably leaning toward Jesse Jackson. One reason is none of the other candidates have stood out above the crowd."

Buskey said that when the ADC meets Dec. 5 to endorse a candidate, Jackson's campaign can't be dismissed as it was in 1984. "Reverend Jackson has done a better job of organizing. His campaign is being viewed as more serious," he said.

Buskey's brother, state Rep. James Buskey, was one of the Jackson supporters who left the ADC to form the Alabama New South Coalition. The Mobile politician has not, however, jumped on the Jackson team.

"Even though the New South broke with the old organization over Jesse Jackson's candidacy, the New South has gone in a new direction," he said.

James Buskey rates Jackson the front-runner in Alabama, but he said his strength is concentrated in three of the state's seven congressional districts. Because Alabama's delegate selection system is based on congressional districts, Jackson "may get the most popular vote but he won't win the most delegates," James Buskey said.

Also, James Buskey said, "I do not think Jesse Jackson can get the majority of the delegates to the Democratic convention."

Because of that, he said, the New South Coalition must "have lively debate" about the other Democratic candidates when it meets in Mobile next month to make an endorsement.

Reed, however, may have found a way out of the Jackson dilemma for black political groups. He got the ADC members to pass a resolution Saturday that provides a safety hatch if Jackson's candidacy falters.

NOW AT

SPELLbinders inc.
INNOVATIVE INTERIORS
ART APPAREL

Candlewood Center • 3230 Kimball Avenue
Manhattan, Kansas 66502 • tel. 689-7657
Monday - Saturday 10:00-5:00

LADIES TRUCKLOAD SHOE SALE

Over 4,000 Pairs
All On Racks
Priced $9⁹⁰ & Up

Choose from famous Brand Name
Shoes.

Up to
75% OFF

Sale Now In Progress
Thru Sat. Only

Open Mon.-Fri. 9:30 a.m.-8 p.m.
Sat. 9:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

Brown's
SHOE FIT COMPANY

311 Poyntz
Downtown

"Purple and White" Swirl CONES and CUPS at

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

50% DISCOUNT
(on purple & white swirl cones and cups excluding waffle cones)

SATURDAY
to Everyone Wearing
Something Purple!

Enjoy the taste of Ice Cream but with one-fifth the fat and half the calories

Wear your Homecoming button in to receive 20% discount off of your total purchase during homecoming week!

GO CATS!

We'll be cheering you on to a
Homecoming victory!

FREE SAMPLES
EVERY TIME
YOU COME IN

Open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sunday
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers, Aggieville

DINNER FOR TWO

$7.95

YOUR CHOICE

Westloop
Shopping
Center
776-8660

TERIYAKI CHICKEN

DINNER INCLUDES:
Potato, Rice or Vegetable, Fresh Bread & Our Famous Unlimited Soup & Salad Bar.

MR. STEAK TOP SIRLOIN

DINNER INCLUDES:
Potato, Rice or Vegetable, Fresh Bread & Our Famous Unlimited Soup & Salad Bar.

CATFISH

DINNER INCLUDES:
Potato, Rice or Vegetable, Fresh Bread & Our Famous Unlimited Soup & Salad Bar.

TWO DELICIOUS DINNERS $7.95

CHOOSE FROM:
TERIYAKI CHICKEN
MR. STEAK TOP SIRLOIN
CATFISH
DINNER INCLUDES:
Potato, Rice or Vegetable, Fresh Bread & Our Famous Unlimited Soup & Salad Bar.

Westloop Shopping Center

OFFER GOOD 7 DAYS A WEEK
COUPON EXPIRES OCT. 30, 1987
NOT GOOD WITH ANY OTHER DISCOUNTS

Stop by with Your Homecoming Button
& Receive 12% OFF All Merchandise.

410 Poyntz•Downtown 707 W. 6th•Junction City
776-6255 238-45551

Wear your Homecoming button into the store and SAVE!
HOME OF THE HITS!

Mon.-Fri. 12-9
Sat. 10-9
3045 Anderson Sun. 12-8 539-1299

SAVE on Reed & Barton Luxury Stainless
1/3 OFF on 40, 44, 60 and 64-Piece Sets

REED & BARTON
Luxury Stainless

Save on America's finest stainless steel flatware... meticulously designed by Reed & Barton Silversmiths in rich, maintenance-free 18/8 stainless. With its heavy weight, perfect balance and carefree finish, Reed & Barton Luxury Stainless is quite simply the finest stainless flatware you can own.

Choose from 14 classic designs • Sale ends December 31, 1987.

	Reg.*	SALE*
40-Piece Set (eight 5-pc. place settings)	$360	$240
44-Piece Set (40-pc. set plus 4-pc. hostess set)	405	270
60-Piece Set (twelve 5-pc. place settings)	540	360
64-Piece Set (60-pc. set plus 4-pc. hostess set)	585	390

*Prices for Golden Crescendo, Golden Regatta and Golden Rosecliff with 24 Kt. gold accents are slightly higher.

Stop by wearing your Homecoming Button & receive your 15% discount at both locations.

776-9067
Downtown

539-1891
Aggieville

Use our Bridal Registry

Sun shade

Donita Doan, freshman in accounting, uses a card to shade her eyes while practicing for the body building event for Homecoming.

Staff/Jim Dietz

Doan, along with a group of others, was practicing spelling out words with the square cards.

Hurricane disrupts schools, businesses

By The Associated Press

MIAMI — Hurricane Floyd sprang to life in the Gulf of Mexico early Monday, taking aim on south Florida with 80 mph wind and heavy rain. Some coastal residents scurried for shelter, while others cleared stores of batteries, canned food and bottled water.

Floyd grew from a tropical storm to become the season's third hurricane at 8 a.m. and began heading up through the Florida Keys toward southern Dade County at the southern tip of the mainland, spawning at least two tornadoes.

"It's not a strong hurricane," said National Hurricane Center Director Bob Sheets. "We don't expect it to get much worse."

He said Floyd would maintain its strength as it passed just south of Miami during the evening and then would head out to sea.

The center posted hurricane warnings around Florida's southern peninsula from Stuart north of West Palm Beach on the condominium-studded east coast to Venice north of Fort Myers on the Gulf coast, roughly the area from Lake Okechobee south.

At 4 p.m. EDT, Floyd's poorly defined center was estimated at latitude 25.0 degrees north and longitude 80.9 degrees west, 70 miles southwest of Miami. The storm was heading east-northeast at 15 mph.

County officials in south Florida had shut down all schools by mid-morning, telephoning parents and sending the children home.

The storm's central eye passed directly over Key West between noon and 1 p.m., bringing a brief and eerie calm to the island, and began heading up the Overseas Highway that strings the islands together.

THE BOOK SHOP

March right in with your homecoming button for a parade of savings 10% off regular priced items $1 videos—all titles, everyday

3047 Anderson, Village Plaza 537-8025

HOURS- MON.- SAT. 9-9, SUN 9-8

Regents plan seminars; K-State to host students

By The Collegian Staff

Outstanding high school students have the opportunity to do four weeks of intensive studying this summer at K-State thanks to the Kansas Regents Honors Academy.

"It is an opportunity for high school students to exchange views and ideas which would not otherwise be available to them," said Stanley Koplik, executive director of the Kansas Board of Regents.

The Academy brings in notable scholars from around the country to conduct seminars. Last year's Academy included seminars on subjects such as philosophy, sociology and anthropology, Koplik said.

Fort Hays State University was the host for last year's Academy. This year, the Academy will be held June 5 to July 2 at K-State. Koplik said the Academy is to be held annually on a rotating basis at each of the Regents schools.

He said the Academy is supported by the state to give students exposure to Regents schools. It gives students who may be thinking of attending out-of-state schools a chance to experience the state's schools.

"A principal motivating factor of the program is retention of the best and brightest Kansas students for attendance at Kansas universities and colleges," Koplik said. "The Kansas Regents Honors Academy will challenge bright Kansas youths while also providing the opportunity for an early and positive identification with a Regents University."

Expenses including room, board and instructional supplies will be paid by the state, he said. Participants must pay travel costs to and from Manhattan.

If participants want to receive college credit for the seminars, they will pay regular tuition fees, Koplik said.

A Regents Coordinating Committee chooses up to 150 high school seniors to participate in the Academy.

Playing the tunes that made Rock 'n' Roll what is is today!

Restaurant and Fundrinkery

Come Visit Our New Establishment in the Candlewood Shopping Center

FRIDAY • TGIF • LIVE DJ

THE NEW AMERICAN TRADITION

2 for 1 COFFEES

2-6 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

618 N. Manhattan

Monday-Friday 7:30 a.m.-Midnight
Saturday-Sunday 8:30 a.m.-Midnight

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, October 13, 1987 ■ Page 9

'Inexperienced' Twins claim AL crown

By The Associated Press

DETROIT — The Minnesota Twins, bucking inexperience and the odds, beat the Detroit Tigers 9-5 Monday and won their first American League pennant in 22 years behind the pitching of Bert Blyleven and the all-around play of Gary Gaetti.

With the worst record of any World Series team since the 1973 New York Mets and the worst road record of any pennant winner, the Twins took two of three at Detroit to win the best-of-seven playoffs in five games.

Tom Brunansky drove in two runs with a double in Minnesota's four-run second inning, then homered with one out in the ninth — when the Twins scored their final three runs — giving him six extra-base hits in the series, including a pair of homers.

Dan Gladden had three hits, two doubles, drove in two runs and scored three runs as Minnesota's leadoff hitter.

The Twins will open the World

Series at home Saturday against either San Francisco or St. Louis. Game 1 will be the first Series game played in a domed stadium.

The young, high-spirited Twins — only five of whom had previous postseason experience — chased the old veteran, Doyle Alexander, twice a loser in these playoffs, with the four second-inning runs.

Gaetti had five RBI and scored five runs in the series. He hit home runs in his first two playoff at-bats in Game 1, and he provided defensive plays in Games 2 and 4 that saved runs. Perhaps his biggest contribution in this postseason was calling the play in Game 4 that picked the Tigers' Darrell Evans off third base as Detroit was trying to rally in the sixth inning.

Evans also had run-scoring errors in each of the last two games, his Game 5 error allowing the Twins to score their sixth run in the eighth inning.

Blyleven, meanwhile, perpetuated his reputation as a big-game pitcher, allowing five hits in six innings — two by Kirk Gibson and a two-run homer by Matt Nokes in Detroit's three-run fourth inning. Blyleven now is 4-0 in postseason, with one of those victories coming in Game 2 of this playoff at Minnesota. He struck out three and walked two before Dan Schatzeder came on in relief to start the seventh.

AL Game 5 Twins 9, Tigers 5

The Tigers' fourth run came on an eighth-inning homer by Chet Lemon off Juan Berenguer. The home run was the 14th hit in the series breaking the playoff mark set twice in NL series.

Jeff Reardon came on for the final four outs for his second save of the playoffs. He was also the winning pitcher in Game 1.

Reardon fielded Matt Nokes' one-hopper to the mound, took a few steps toward first base and flipped the baseball to Kent Hrbek for the game's final out, touching off the Minnesota Twins' first pennant celebration in 22 years.

Reardon and Hrbek were the first to embrace, but within seconds everyone on the team — including some of the players who were not on the 24-man roster but made the trip to Tiger Stadium — joined the party between first and second bases.

"We did it! We did it! We're in the World Series," players shouted after the Twins' 9-5 victory Monday over the Tigers gave them the American League pennant in five games.

Gladden and Al Newman, two players who joined the Twins during the offseason and collapsed near second base as Detroit fans exited quietly. One fan yelled: "Eighty-five wins, 85 wins and going to the World Series, that's pathetic." But Minnesota players ignored such naysayers and continued hugging, kissing and high-fiving.

Kirby Puckett grabbed Twins owner Carl Pohlad, whose purchase of the team in 1984 kept the Twins in Minnesota, and hugged him for several seconds, saying: "We're in the World Series, Mr. Pohlad. We're in the World Series. We finally did it."

The celebration moved inside the Twins' clubhouse, where a traditional champagne shower took place.

Gary Gaetti, who was named Most Valuable Player of the series, was soaked by Tom Brunansky during an interview with reporters. Brunansky also nailed Gladden with a full bucket of ice and ice water from the trainers room.

The loudest cheer came when equipment manager Jim Wiesner unveiled a T-shirt declaring the Twins as 1987 AL champions.

Shortly thereafter, many wives of Twins players entered the dressing room and exchanged hugs and kisses with their husbands.

"We've got one more step go to," Brunansky said as he spilled a cup of beer down pitcher Keith Atherton's back.

"It's going to take a few days for the significance of this to sink in," Randy Bush said. "We're actually going to the World Series. I've had this dream since I was a kid. Who doesn't pretend, 'Here I am in the World Series.'"

The dressing room scene was more subdued than the one that took place in Texas on Sept. 28 when the Twins won their first AL West title since 1970.

"That was a real release of a lot of pressure, winning the division," Gaetti said. "It was such long, drawn-out process. We had to be aware of what other teams were doing and had to watch the scoreboard."

Bert Blyleven, who won Games 2 and 5, had predicted after his 6-3 victory at the Metrodome in Game 2 that the Twins would not have to return to Minnesota to win the series. This prediction seemed shocking in light of the fact that the Twins' 29-52 road record was the worst of any division or pennant winner in history.

"Momentum was going our way," Blyleven said. "Sometimes you have to be positive. Why look at the negative and say, 'We're only trying to win one out of three on the road so we can come back home and win?' Why have a seven-game series when we're up 2-0?"

K-State offers 'first-class' intramural sports

By Jim Vader
Collegian Reporter

Only a small percentage of athletes get a chance to play collegiate sports, and there are just so many of them with the talent to play on a varsity team.

A proven successful option for K-State students is intramurals and the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area.

K-State offers an extensive list of sports which students are able to participate in ranging from badminton to powerlifting; horseshoes to cross country. Intramurals run throughout the year beginning in late August with flag football and concluding April 15 with a track meet.

Steve Martini, assistant director of recreational services, said K-State's intramurals and free-time recreation program is one of the best anywhere.

"I'm partial, of course, but I think ours is one of the best in the country. I don't think a student could do better for themselves in a recreational services program than (at K-State)", Martini said. "I think from experience, and from seeing other programs, I feel our program offers a lot more."

Martini said K-State's success is due to "first-class" facilities and the amount of time students can be involved in recreational activities.

"Our intramurals are not part of the physical education department like a lot of other schools. Our facilities (weight room, basketball courts, racquetball courts, saunas and showers) are open from 6 a.m. till 11 p.m. The University of Kansas' weight room, for example, is only open from 6 p.m. till 10 p.m.," Martini said.

"I don't think that some students realize how good they have it here,"

Collegian/Jeff Stead

Eric Schmidt, junior in architecture, tries to roll Mark Johnson, sophomore in engineering, during the intramural wrestling finals of

he added. "After they graduate and clubs start asking $100 and more for just an initial fee, and start paying monthly fees, they will then appreciate what they had here."

Student support, though, is the most important factor in making a program such as this work.

"Last year we had 175 flag football teams participate, while (Kansas) had only 125. We also had 275 volleyball teams and 360 basketball teams," Martini said.

"On the participation level, K-State, for a school of 14,000 regular, daytime students, to have 350 to 375 the 158-pound weight class Thursday night at the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex. Johnson won the match in overtime.

basketball teams is unbelievable," he said.

But Martini said the availability of the rec complex might actually keep some people from participating in intramurals.

"Some people don't need to have that competitive level to get out there and get their workout," he said. "Intramurals is getting more and more for specialized persons who want to compete."

There are three full-time employees who take care of the recreation services. Raydon Robel is director of recreational services.

Netters unbeaten

By Staff and Wire Reports

The K-State women's tennis team rolled over Creighton University, 9-0, last Saturday at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Complex tennis courts for its second straight dual match win this season.

The Wildcats dominated the match by tallying nine wins and were not extended to three sets in any of the nine matches. All of the Wildcats played solid tennis, winning by at least four games in all but one match.

K-STATE 9, CREIGHTON 0

Singles

No. 1 Thresa Burcham (KSU) def. Sharon Conner 6-3, 6-4.

No. 2 Sigrid Ivarsson (KSU) def. Denise Zacher 6-2, 6-2.

No. 3 Annika Emtell (KSU) def. Lisa Bendixen 6-1, 6-1.

No. 4 Marijke Nel (KSU) def. Suma Thomas 6-1, 6-1.

No. 5 Valerie Rive' (KSU) def. Pam Kaila 6-1, 6-3.

No. 6 Mistie Bitner (KSU) def. Bridget McCarthy 6-1, 6-1.

Doubles

No. 1 Ivarsson-Emtell (KSU) def. Bendixen-Zacher 6-1, 6-3.

No. 2 Nel-Rive' (KSU) def. Conner-Thomas 6-3, 6-3.

No. 3 Burcham-Bitner (KSU) def. Kaila-McCarthy 6-0, 6-2.

Volleyball team to face tough NU

By The Collegian Staff

Football may not be the only "invincible" sport at the University of Nebraska. The Cornhuskers volleyball team is 16-1 and ranked fourth in the latest national poll.

As if that isn't impressive enough for the K-State volleyball squad, Nebraska is 34-0 against the Wildcats. This is a statistic K-State will be hoping to turn around in the right direction at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Lincoln, Neb. when the 'Cats meet Nebraska once again.

The Wildcats are 11-4 overall this season, possessing a 2-1 Big Eight Conference record. The 'Cats are 6-4 on the road and 5-0 in Ahearn Field House.

K-State is coming off a 15-6, 15-13, 15-10 conference win over the Colorado Buffaloes on Saturday night at Boulder. In Colorado's last outing on Saturday, it defeated Missouri 15-5, 15-1, 15-12.

Nebraska is defending its 1986

Big Eight crown this season. Last year, the Cornhuskers went 10-0 in conference play and easily defeated K-State twice. Nebraska Call leads the attack on the record book with five new entries. Kristi Jacquot has shattered three service ace records and Mary Kinsey has broken two records.

The Wildcats have broken or tied 23 records since the season started. Individually, Shawnee Call leads the attack on the record book with five new entries. Kristi Jacquot has shattered three service ace records and Mary Kinsey has broken two records.

Call leads the Wildcat's offensive attack with 223 kills. Kinsey has 126 kills and Valerie Kastens has 90. Jacquot leads the offense in efficiency with a .355 hitting percentage. Call is hitting .310 and Amy Dodson is close behind with a .306 percentage.

Jacquot, K-State's career service ace leader, is setting the pace for K-State with 48 aces this season. Jacquot needs 7 more aces to break the previous season record of 54 aces set by Kinsey in 1985.

Players offer conditional return to clubs

By The Associated Press

ROSEMONT, Ill. — The striking NFL players offered Monday night to return to work if team owners agree to mediation and arbitration of their contract dispute under certain conditions.

NFL players have been on strike for three weeks, but owners have continued to stage games by using replacement players the last two weeks.

The decision by the player representatives of the 28 NFL clubs followed Sunday's breakdown in contract talks between the NFL Players Association and the NFL Management Council, the bargaining arm for the league's owners.

The conditions mentioned by NFL Players Association executive director Gene Upshaw included:

■ Reinstatement of all strikers to rosters for the rest of the year.

■ That the 1982 Collective Bargaining Agreement would remain in effect until a new contract is reached.

■ All player representatives and alternate player representatives would be protected for the rest of season.

■ All issues currently on the table now would be submitted to mediation. After six weeks, all issues still outstanding would be submitted to binding arbitration.

"The players feel this is the way to end the dispute. If the owners are willing to agree (to the conditions), the players will return to work," Upshaw said.

Upshaw was flanked by more than three dozen players, although a handful of the player representatives left before the news conference without commenting. Boomer Esiason, quarterback of the Cincinnati Bengals, was among the players leaving before Upshaw's announcement.

A spokesman for the Management Council, Peter Ruocco, said in New York that the owners would have no immediate comment on the proposal.

"We haven't seen any proposal. We have no comment," Ruocco said, adding there would not be a comment

Monday night.

Upshaw, asked if this was a last-move kind of offer, said: "I would think so."

"I would say, if the owners decline this, we are out for the duration, out for the year."

Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, had suggested mediation on several previous occasions, but the union said no each time. Upshaw said the difference this time would be that mediation would be followed by binding arbitration. An arbitrator would have the authority to reach a compromise on any point rather than choose one side or the other, as is the case in baseball salary arbitration cases.

Baseball squad to defend flawless campaign record

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

K-State's baseball team will be in action again today against Neosho County Community College after a nine-day rest. The 'Cats were scheduled to play two games over the weekend against Labette and Pratt community colleges, but due to inclement weather and field conditions, the games were rescheduled.

K-State will put its perfect 5-0 mark on the line in a 2 p.m. contest at Frank Meyers field.

The only competitive action the team has seen over the past week has been in regular practice sessions.

"We've had plenty of time off," Head Coach Mike Clark said. "Our pitchers are pretty fresh and we're in as good a shape as we can be in."

"We've worked with our pitchers on breaking pitches and we've gotten a lot of batting practice in, but I'd like to play a few more games. These guys are really competitive and I'd like for them to see some more competition."

At the midway point of the fall season, Clark said this year's squad is deeper in pitching while not quite as powerful in hitting.

"This year's squad is very similar to last year's team," Clark said. "The kids are deeper in pitching this year but I don't think that we'll have quite the pop at the plate."

"I also think that we'll have a different look in our running game this year," he added. "Our base-running is pretty much being dictated by our injuries."

"One thing that I've noticed about this squad is that they have carried over some good points from last season," Clark said. "The last part of last season the team really capitalized on other team's errors really well and so far this season they have continued capitalizing on opponents' mistakes."

Soviet economic group attempts to establish relations with EEC

By The Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The Soviet-led economic group, Comecon, has undertaken a "charm offensive" to establish relations with European Economic Community after ignoring the world's largest trading bloc for 30 years. But, the EEC, which was first to propose diplomatic ties 12 years ago, is in no hurry to welcome Comecon into its midst. The president of the Supreme Soviet, Lev Tolkunov, underscored the new East bloc attitude on his arrival in Brussels Oct. 6 for a weeklong series of talks with members of the European Parliament. "There is not a moment to lose," he said. Countered Niels-Peter Albrechtsen, a spokesman for the Danish government: "Relations with Com-con are not on top of our agenda." Denmark is currently president of the EEC.

When the Soviet delegation arrived in Brussels, at the invitation of the Socialist group in the European Parliament, there were no messages of welcome from either the EEC's governing Council of Ministers or its executive Commission.

Led by Tolkunov, the 10-member delegation of top Soviet politicians made it clear its goal was to help open a new era of East-West business diplomacy.

EEC diplomats say the Soviets are also conducting a quiet campaign in Common Market capitals to speed up talks on a joint declaration of mutual recognition.

Willy De Clercq, the EEC's top trade executive, says he is impressed with what he calls Moscow's "charm offensive."

In a speech last summer, he said the EEC was not "preparing to throw 30 years of caution to the winds and jump into bed with Comecon."

Moscow's Comecon partners are East Germany, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Mongolia, Vietnam and Cuba.

While the EEC wants diplomatic relations with Comecon — which stands for the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance — its main goal is bilateral trade ties with individual Comecon members.

De Clercq told the European Parliament recently he did not believe the EEC and Comecon would ever sign a trade pact. They probably would limit themselves to a statement of mutual recognition and cooperation in such areas as exchanges of economic statistics.

The reason, he said, was that bloc-to-bloc trade talks imply condoning the separation of Europe.

Also, it would give Comecon equal status with the EEC as a supranational organization. The EEC always has maintained Comecon has no common trade policy.

Until recently, the main issue holding up a statement of mutual recognition was Comecon's unwillingness to accept West Berlin as EEC territory.

The Soviets have conceded this point, although a dispute remains over how Berlin's status would be spelled out in a joint EEC-Comecon declaration.

"Negotiations for formal recognition — including the question of Berlin — are in such a positive state that one can hope for ratification by the end of 1987 or the beginning of spring 1988."

Lecture

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

pincher," Flinchbaugh recalled. Although Landon would always pay the bill for the meal, Flinchbaugh would make sure he had a pack of cigarettes for Landon at the restaurant.

Legend dictates that Landon started borrowing cigarettes in the 1936 campaign but never bought a pack on his own, Flinchbaugh said.

"You couldn't find in American history anyone with a record of public service and involvement that he has," said William Richter, head of the political science department and chairman of the Landon Lecture Series from 1981-84.

"I thought on the day of his 100th birthday that it was remarkable he was one-half the age of the Constitution," Richter said.

"We have been very fortunate to have had his presence with us for such a period of years," he said.

A book about the series was scheduled to be printed in conjunction with Landon's 100th birthday but was delayed in the printing process, Richter said. The book "Landon Lectures — Perspectives from the Last Twenty Years" includes the texts of 22 of the lectures.

The lectures now will serve as "a living memorial to Alf," said Charles Reagan, chairman of the Landon Lecture Series.

"It was a way of honoring him; now it is a way of remembering him," Reagan said. "I was absolutely stunned how much he always knew about what was going on — not only in politics, but also about things such as K-State basketball."

Flinchbaugh remarked that it "was just like him to do this after he turned 100 and Reagan came to visit."

"He's always defying the odds."

Condoms

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

machines because you don't usually see those in girls' bathrooms, but I guess we have to get used to it because of AIDS," said Christina Wright, senior in elementary education.

"I don't think it is necessary because having (a condom machine) in a bar's bathroom makes it seem like here is a safe method, so let's go ahead and have sex," said Sharisse Horn, junior in dance.

A survey in the August 1987 issue of Glamour magazine said about one half of all college students say the threat of AIDS has changed their sexual habits. Almost 7 percent say they know someone who has AIDS. The survey said this represents a significant percentage, considering about one one-hundredth of 1 percent of the American population has been diagnosed as having AIDS.

Case

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

divorce on teen-agers.

Student editors took the principal and school district to the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri, but lost the case.

The ruling stated the Spectrum — the newspaper — was an integral part of the school's curriculum, not a public forum, and was not covered by First Amendment protection. An appeals court disagreed and overturned the ruling saying that the Spectrum did serve as a public forum for the expression of student opinion.

Tony Furse, president of the Kansas Scholastic Press Association and journalism adviser at Great Bend High School, also will be following the court's action starting today. Furse said an adverse ruling would change the manner of operation for student presses since the final responsibility for the publication's content would be placed with the adviser instead of with the student editor.

"It would definitely change the way advisers think," Furse said. "I think you would see student newspapers reflecting advisers' personal views."

Adams said a ruling against the students also would challenge the opinion of the 1969 Supreme Court case of Tinker vs. Des Moines Independent Community School District.

In that case, involving students' right to wear a black arm band in protest of American involvement in Vietnam, the Court said "students do not shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the school-house gate."

1120 Moro

One Night Only
PLAIN JANE
Thurs., Oct. 15
$2 pitchers $1 shots

JOYCE'S HAIR
HAIRCUTS
HERS.....$8.50
Includes Shampoo & Style
$10.50
539-TAME or 539-8601
404 Humboldt

FREE DELIVERY

ETNA Restaurant

1304 Westloop
10% off with KSU ID
539-8888 539-0888

New New New

CAR WASH

FOUR BAYS
619 N. 3rd St.
Across from Pizza Hut
Brand new and no waiting

Enjoy smooth, creamy

Frozen Yogurt

that tastes like Ice Cream but with 80% less fat!

—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!

Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Neotilus Towers—Aggville

Dark Horse
Tue.

$1.25 Wells
$2 Pitchers
$1.25 Imports

Bar 539-9081 Office 776-6638

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1977

—TONIGHT—
POP
—A—SHOT TOURNAMENT
2nd Tuesday of Every Month
STARTS AT 8
—ALSO—
$2.25 PITCHERS
1800 Claflin 539-9619

1120 Moro

539-9064

TONITE
Party with KSU Rugby Team
& Bon Ton Soul!
ACCORDIAN BAND
KSU Rugby Benefit & Auction $2.50 tickets 8 p.m.

TV Listings

By TV Data

TUESDAY OCTOBER 13, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo Flinstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	TBA		My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs Teddy Ruxpin	SportsLook Sports	Little House on the Prairie
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Tennis: WCT Open (Final Match)	Movie: "The Major and the Minor"
10:00 Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore Dick Van	Body Electric Congress	Andy Griffith Soap
11:00 Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Psychology Computers	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 Wheel-Fortune	Middy Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	College Football: Notre	Movie: "Flight to Holcaust"
1:00 Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Masterpiece Theatre "The	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	Dame at Pittsburgh
2:00 Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobilee Zoo	Bretts' Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters		Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00 Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flinstones Flinstones
4:00 3's Company	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravestar	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravestar	Water Skiing	Munsters Laverne
5:00 Family Ties	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook Bill Dance	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00 News	News CBS News	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Barney Miller	SportsCenter Sailboarding	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00 Matlock	Houston Knights	Who's Boss? Grow. Pains	Hill Street Blues	Nova	Movie: "Anzacs: The War Yachting: Lib-	Intl. Champ. Yachting: Lib-	Movie: "The Quiet Man"
8:00 Starbuck	Jake and the Fatman	Moonlighting	Movie: "9 to 5"	We the People: Power	Down Under	Water Skiing
9:00 Cr. Story / Baseball P Off	Law & Harry McGraw	Thirtysomething		Story of English	News INN News	Women's Volleyball: Pro
10:00 News	News CBS News	Barney Miller Late Show	Wild America Business Rpt.	H'mooner Magnum, P.I.	PGA Tour SportsCenter	Movie: "The Wings of Ea-
11:00 Ent. Tonight	Hunter	B. Buddies Nightline	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie: "Or-	U.S. vs. U.S.S.R.	Movie: "Countdown"
12:00 David Letterman	"Dangerous Friend"	700 Club	"Conduct Unbecoming"	Sign-Off

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.20	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75
Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____	Phone no. _____
Address _____	Student ID # _____
1 _____	2 _____
3 _____	4 _____
5 _____	6 _____
7 _____	8 _____
9 _____	10 _____
11 _____	12 _____
13 _____	14 _____
15 _____	16 _____
17 _____	18 _____
19 _____	20 _____
21 _____	22 _____
23 _____	24 _____
25 _____	26 _____
27 _____	28 _____
Date ad begins _____	Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____	Category _____

You Can't Pay More than $44.95!

Complete Eyeglasses

SINGLE VISION

$24.95

BIFOCALS

$34.95

Our only Extras: Cox Coating (scratch guard)-$10 and Photo Grey Extra (lenses that darken)-$10.

Payless Optical Outlet

1210 Moro, Manhattan
537-1574

M-F 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

Lottery ticket sales to begin Nov. 12

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Kansas retailers will sell lottery tickets for the first time in the state's history starting Nov. 12, Executive Director Larry Montgomery announced Monday.

Montgomery said lottery officials hope tickets will go on sale initially in 20 or more cities. The name of the first game, which will feature $1, instant-win tickets, will be announced in about two weeks, he said.

The announced date is more than a month after the rough target date of Oct. 1 that the agency had been using during the spring and the summer. However, Montgomery said the average startup time for lotteries in other states was nearly eight months. "Gov. (Mike) Hayden and I have said from the beginning that we wouldn't start until we're ready," Montgomery said, "and then we wouldn't start one day late. "With my appointment on April 15, to the Nov. 12 start date, we have accomplished the startup one month sooner than the average for other states."

Montgomery made the formal announcement at ceremony at the Downtown Ramada Inn in Topeka, in front of a crowd of about 300 lottery officials, chambers of commerce officials and retailers.

Several legislators, the five members of the Kansas Lottery Commission, Lt. Gov. Jack Walker and Secretary of State Bill Graves also were present.

"We're making one more step today," Walker said. "It's all part of a great program, and we're all anxious to get it going."

Montgomery stood by his agency's earlier estimates that lottery ticket sales will generate $72.6 million in the lottery's first full year and $55.7 million during the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1988. The figures were based on a startup date of Oct. 1.

"We still anticipate that is a good figure," Montgomery said of the estimates.

Under state law, 45 percent of the money raised through ticket sales must go back to the public in the form of prizes, and 30 percent will go to the state. The figures were set by the Legislature in its 1987 regular session, when it passed legislation to implement a constitutional amendment voters had approved overwhelmingly in the November 1986 general election.

During the lottery's first three years, the state will use 60 percent of the money it receives for economic development projects, 30 percent to help counties with the cost of state-mandated reappraisal and 10 percent for the prison system. After three years, 90 percent will be used for economic development projects and 10 percent for the prison system.

If the agency's estimates hold, the state would receive almost $21.8 million in revenues annually.

Plans call for the first game to feature $1 tickets with latex patches that buyers scratch away to find out whether they've won a prize.

The prizes will range from free tickets to $2 to $5,000, lottery officials said, but they acknowledged they are still working on the details of the game. In addition, plans call for a single, $100,000 drawing at the end of the game, with people who haven't won anything sending in their old tickets to enter.

Montgomery also said the agency hopes to begin more sophisticated, on-line computerized numbers games during the first week of February.

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11f)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. We desperately need tutors in Algebra. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (35-39)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

ONE BEDROOM, available Jan. 1, water and trash paid, less than one block from campus, $275 per month, must assume lease, 539-1696. (35-39)

LARGE ONE-bedroom. Close to campus. Pets allowed. Available immediately. $120, utilities included. Phone 776-8918. (36-40)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (21f)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 CAPRICE Classic, $400. Call 539-2776. (36-39)

COMPUTERS 08

VISUAL COMPUTER—1050, CP/M, two drives, 128K, Hi-res monitor, software includes Wordstar, Multiplan, Basic, $450. Call 238-1073. (32-36)

EMPLOYMENT 09

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000/month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write J.C. P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

AEROBIC LEADER vacancy at the KSU Rec Complex. Must be a student carrying 6 or more hours. Certification is desired, but not required. Previous teaching experience highly recommended. Must be available Mondays through Thursdays from 5:20-6:30 p.m. Interested individuals are to apply in person at the Rec Complex administrative office during business hours before 12 noon on Thursday, Oct. 8th. (32f)

McDONALD'S AT 815 N. 3rd is looking for hard-working, motivated, energetic people. Breakfast and all-day shift positions are available. Hours are very flexible. Please apply in person. Applications will be taken at your convenience on the 13th and 14th. (36-37)

RETAIL SALES. Full and part-time positions open now for retail and stock positions in exciting new card and gift shop in Manhattan Town Center, 539-5325. (36)

MANHATTAN CABLE TV6 has an immediate opening for a dedicated reliable individual to work as a production assistant, approximately 20 hours per week. Knowledge of video production is essential. Job will include some evening and weekend work. Applicants may inquire at Manhattan Cable TV, 610 Humboldt, Manhattan. No phone calls please. (36-38)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

FOUR BEDROOMS, two baths, double-car garage, patio with gas grill. One block west of campus. 776-6882 or 776-2373. (35-39)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14x70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

NICE 1981 Redman mobile. 14x70, three bedrooms, central air, ceiling fan, big deck. Call 539-7103. (36-39)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND: ONE black and silver tie found in the Quinlan Natural Area on Oct. 8th. To claim, call Gary. 532-5132. (34-36)

LOST: WOMEN'S brown Dexter shoes, size 9. Reward: 532-3083. (36-37)

CAREERS IN PETS

First rate opportunity to become part of the professional staff in a brand new pet store. Petland is looking for people who love animals and think work should be stimulating. Emphasis on animal care and customer service. Positions open include store management, bird and fish department management, pet sales counselors and animal care technicians. Full-service pet center carries birds, dogs, cats, tropical fish and a complete range of pet supplies. Experience helpful but not required. Training provided. Opportunities for advancement through nationwide company.

Apply in person at Petland 1325 Poyntz, Oct. 14, 15 & 16 from 1 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

LUNCHROOM/PLAYGROUND supervisor. 1 1/2-2 hours per day. 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., $3.87/hour. Apply to USD 363, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (913) 537-2400. EOE. (35-36)

ENJOY CHILDREN? Bus driver for KSU Child Care Coop needed immediately, previous experience preferred. Class B license required. Hours 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Apply at 19 Jardine Terrace, Manhattan, Nancy Bolson, director. Closing date Oct. 16th. EOE. (34-37)

EXPERIENCED COOK for group of 60 individuals. For more information or to set up an interview, please call 539-8680 after 6 p.m. or 537-4495 and leave message. (35-39)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts. Others. Information (504) 641-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-59)

NATIVE KANSAS family seeks full-time nanny/ housekeeper to live-in from January to June 1988 in Washington, D.C. area. Caring for two-year-old boy. Transportation, salary, room and board included. Female, non-smoker, send resume to: Mr. and Mrs. Cab Grayson, 4751 N. 34th Road, Arlington, VA, 22207. Call (703) 241-3746. (35-39)

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South America. Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-283-6221. (35-44)

WEEKEND ENTREPRENEUR business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

McDONALD'S AT 815 N. 3rd is looking for hard-working, motivated, energetic people. Breakfast and all-day shift positions are available. Hours are very flexible. Please apply in person. Applications will be taken at your convenience on the 13th and 14th. (36-37)

RETAIL SALES. Full and part-time positions open now for retail and stock positions in exciting new card and gift shop in Manhattan Town Center, 539-5325. (36)

MANHATTAN CABLE TV6 has an immediate opening for a dedicated reliable individual to work as a production assistant, approximately 20 hours per week. Knowledge of video production is essential. Job will include some evening and weekend work. Applicants may inquire at Manhattan Cable TV, 610 Humboldt, Manhattan. No phone calls please. (36-38)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

FOUR BEDROOMS, two baths, double-car garage, patio with gas grill. One block west of campus. 776-6882 or 776-2373. (35-39)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14x70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

NICE 1981 Redman mobile. 14x70, three bedrooms, central air, ceiling fan, big deck. Call 539-7103. (36-39)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND: ONE black and silver tie found in the Quinlan Natural Area on Oct. 8th. To claim, call Gary. 532-5132. (34-36)

LOST: WOMEN'S brown Dexter shoes, size 9. Reward: 532-3083. (36-37)

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on 170 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spaying. Answers to "Abby." 537-0646. (32-39)

FOUND: GOLD ring in Seaton Hall student lounge. Call Afshan, 537-1974 or come to Seaton Hall 169 to identify. (34-36)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

PHASE LINEAR 1000 noise reduction unit, Kenwood KX 1030 cassette deck, 2 HPM-100 speakers, Akai 1810 reel to reel, Technics SL-1310 turntable, Pioneer SA 9500 II amp with matching tuner. Call 784-3937 after 6 p.m. (32-37)

THE RIB-IT Every Tuesday Night All You Can Eat just $3.95 BBQ Ribs & Fries Baked Beans

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

1967 DODGE Polara, $500. Like new 12-gauge Mossberg "Turkey" special, $150. Call after 6 p.m. 776-3576. (32-36)

OKtoberfest Specials! 25% OFF All Student Memberships! Offer Exp. Oct. 31st AND Twenty 30 min. Tan Sessions for $30 776-1750

FOR SALE, refrigerator: only been used one semester, perfect for dorm. 776-7986. (35-39)

GUITAR AMP Peavy special 130 with foot switch. $400 new, $325 or best offer. Call Doug. 539-7491. (35-36)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music DOD Guitar Effects 30% Off 327 Poyntz 776-7983

TWO ACOUSTIC column speakers and mixer. Used for dances and band. Excellent condition. Ask for Clint or Trent. 539-9044. $800. (33-36)

DRUM EQUIPMENT for sale: Ludwig 14" and Ultra-sound 14" snares. Peavy 50W bass amplifier. Boss electric drum pad. Alpine cassette deck. All excellent shape. 539-1697 or 539-2328. (34-36)

PERSONALS 18

WILDCAT TIPOFF Classic—men and women three on three basketball tournament, Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms available at Union candy counter, Hollis House, Ahearn 101. (35-37)

PYRAMID PIZZA

All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m. WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

PHASE LINEAR 1000 noise reduction unit, Kenwood KX 1030 cassette deck, 2 HPM-100 speakers, Akai 1810 reel to reel, Technics SL-1310 turntable, Pioneer SA 9500 II amp with matching tuner. Call 784-3937 after 6 p.m. (32-37)

THE RIB-IT Every Tuesday Night All You Can Eat just $3.95 BBQ Ribs & Fries Baked Beans

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

1967 DODGE Polara, $500. Like new 12-gauge Mossberg "Turkey" special, $150. Call after 6 p.m. 776-3576. (32-36)

OKtoberfest Specials! 25% OFF All Student Memberships! Offer Exp. Oct. 31st AND Twenty 30 min. Tan Sessions for $30 776-1750

FOR SALE, refrigerator: only been used one semester, perfect for dorm. 776-7986. (35-39)

GUITAR AMP Peavy special 130 with foot switch. $400 new, $325 or best offer. Call Doug. 539-7491. (35-36)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music DOD Guitar Effects 30% Off 327 Poyntz 776-7983

TWO ACOUSTIC column speakers and mixer. Used for dances and band. Excellent condition. Ask for Clint or Trent. 539-9044. $800. (33-36)

DRUM EQUIPMENT for sale: Ludwig 14" and Ultra-sound 14" snares. Peavy 50W bass amplifier. Boss electric drum pad. Alpine cassette deck. All excellent shape. 539-1697 or 539-2328. (34-36)

PERSONALS 18

WILDCAT TIPOFF Classic—men and women three on three basketball tournament, Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms available at Union candy counter, Hollis House, Ahearn 101. (35-37)

KD BF dates—Dave and Tim—We had the time of our life—Zabadeeda hehl! Prrr! Prrr! Love Big Gun—Little Gun, Lisa and Mar. (36)

THREE GIRLS from Linn County in blue Buick. How about meeting each other again. Guy in the grey Toyota truck. Please respond. (36)

BLUE MONTE Carlo (Gove) would like to meet you for ice cream. Aggieville TCBY Thursday, 9:00 your 1-70, Silver 300XZ friend. RSVP. (36)

JANA in Poetry class: Roses are red, and violets are blue; I'm unattached, how about you?—Guy in poetry class. (36-37)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

MALE/FEMALE roommate wanted. Private room. One and one-half blocks from campus. $120 per month. 539-3117. (36-39)

SITUATION WANTED 24

HELP. I need transportation. Northview area, 7:30-11:30 a.m. classes. 539-6430. (36-40)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT 25

FOR SALE—Solotex, $450. Ask for John Paul, 539-7751 until 6 p.m. 537-2449 after 6 p.m. (36-39)

ROOM FOR RENT 28

GIRL WANTED to rent room without board, $80/month, bills paid. Close to campus. No pets. 539-8608. (27f)

TRAVEL 29

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunbath Tours sixth annual collegiate winter ski breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure, 1-800-321-5911 today! (35-49)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

"I'd like to call the House Committee on Ethics to order, but apparently someone has stolen the gavel."

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS 1 Hill's companion 5 French soul 8 Russian ruler 12 River in Asia 13 Director McCarey 14 Letter phrase 15 Eternal 17 Speck 18 A founder of Dada 19 "...man — mouse?" 20 Ruby or opal 21 Young child 22 D.C. lobbying org. 23 Lawful 26 Before now 30 Furniture designer 31 Decorative vase 32 Woodwind 33 Bonds securely 35 Tea cake 36 A "piggy" ox

38 Brazilian bird 41 Marsh 42 Roofing slate 45 Jezebel's husband 46 Eroded by age 48 Labor 49 Adam's (water) 50 Logan or Raines 51 Auld lang — 52 Family retreat 53 — over (subside) DOWN 1 Food for the IBM 2 Moslem prince 3 A — in the throat 4 Before the ready 5 On the 6 Table-land 7 Dawn goddess 8 Workers punch it 9 Mountain cap 10 Comedian Johnson 11 Lively dance 16 Plunder 20 Jolt 21 Traveler's schedule

Solution time: 23 mins. Yesterdays answer 10-13

22 Knock the play 23 Varnish ingredient 24 Food fish 25 Engine part 26 Sounds of hesitation 27 Nigerian Negro 28 Lunch ending? 29 Her mate is ruff 31 Indian 34 Feminist org. 35 Rational 37 Country on the Red Sea 38 Some say "welcome" 39 Nautical greeting 40 Son of Adam 41 Office record 42 One type of call 43 Singer Guthrie 44 Chew on amount? 47 Mesh of intrigue

10-13 AVK OOD ZJMMUSC KM CSFFKPB ASMHNZUCM HVU ICNPNB IJD Yesterday's Cryptquip: OUR MODEST SON THE FIREFIGHTER HAD A BURNING AMBITION.

Today's Cryptquip clue: O equals L

CRYPTOQUIP 10-13 AVK OOD ZJMMUSC KM CSFFKPB ASMHNZUCM HVU ICNPNB IJD Yesterday's Cryptquip: OUR MODEST SON THE FIREFIGHTER HAD A BURNING AMBITION.

Today's Cryptquip clue: O equals L

Calvin renovation proposal submitted

By Tom Denzel
Staff Writer

As far as campus building renovations go, Calvin Hall could be the next building on the list.

Robert Hollinger, associate dean of business administration and professor of finance, said the College of Business Administration submitted its proposal to the office of Larry Garvin, director for University Planning, within the last two weeks.

The proposal plans are similar to those of the Nichols Hall renovation, Hollinger said.

These plans include gutting the entire inside of Calvin Hall, leaving just the building's shell.

"This was the most feasible plan we came up with," he said.

Hollinger said legislators seem to be more encouraged and attracted to plans calling for remodeling rather than tearing a building down and then building it back up.

The overall plan for Calvin Hall calls for adding a fourth floor, an elevator and a four-story wing on the south side of the building. Hollinger said the estimated cost of the project is about $7.7 million. He said inflation will alter this figure.

The need for increased office space for faculty and administrative personnel as well as classrooms and lecture rooms is also outlined in the proposal, Hollinger said.

He said the University Planning Department has until July 1, 1988, to submit the proposal to the Kansas Board of Regents. If the Regents approve the plans, they will be presented to the Kansas Legislature for final approval, at which time a funding schedule will be set up.

Hollinger said the College of Business Administration hopes it can get the proposal approved and implemented into the Regents' 1989 or 1990 budget. Realistically, Hollinger said, the request will probably be implemented into the 1991 budget.

If all goes as planned, the initial construction will take about two years, he added.

"We are very optimistic about this project," Hollinger said. "We have completed the initial work and now all we can do is wait."

Collegian/Neal Hinkle

Say cheese

Dale Bryant, associate professor of architecture, makes a photograph of architecture and design students. The picture will be used on a poster to raise money for the American Institute of Architecture Students.

Wal-Mart owner heads wealthiest list

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — America's 400 richest people are worth $220 billion — a whopping 41 percent jump from last year and enough money to wipe out the 1986 U.S. budget deficit, Forbes magazine reports.

No. 1 on the list for the third year is retail king Sam Walton, whose assets from his Walmart discount stores nearly doubled to $8.5 billion. That is more than the gross national product of many Third World countries.

Walton is one of 49 billionaires to top the list, nearly twice as many as appeared there last year. Among the 23 newcomers to billionaire ranks are a reclusive candy-bar fortune heiress, an immigrant cruise-line owner and at least nine dabblers in corporate takeovers.

Rising stock prices and real estate values played key roles in swelling the ranks and fortunes of the wealthy, the magazine says in its latest list of the 400 richest Americans. An advance copy of the article, for the Oct. 26 issue, was released Monday.

Forbes says the total net worth of the richest rich in its latest 400 list jumped to $220 billion, a 41 percent increase over the 1986 total of $160 billion. By comparison, the U.S. budget deficit last year was $205 billion, the U.S. trade deficit was $156 billion and the Pentagon budget was $278 billion.

The average net worth among Forbes 400 members is $550 million.

Once again, the leader is 69-year-old Walton, founder of the Wal-Mart Stores discount chain based in Bentonville, Ark., who as a youth worked for rival J.C. Penney Co. at $85 a month.

The magazine said Walton's increased wealth came almost entirely from the soaring value of Wal-Mart stock. Forbes figures that makes Walton the world's third wealthiest person after two Japanese, Yoshiaki Tsutsumi, who the magazine estimates to be worth at least $20 billion, and Taikichiro Mori, worth $15 billion.

More than 12 percent of the Forbes 400 are billionaires. Japan has the second highest number of billionaires at 24.

After Walton, the Forbes top 10 include John Kluge, 73, German-born head of Metromedia Co., worth $3 billion; H. Ross Perot, 57, Texas investor, worth $2.9 billion; David Packard, 75, co-founder of Hewlett-Packard Co., $2.87 billion; publishing-empire brothers Samuel Newhouse Jr., 59, and Donald Newhouse, 58, each worth about $2.35 billion; industrialist Lester Crown, 62, $2.1 billion; publisher Rupert Murdoch, $2.1 billion; investor Warren Buffett, $2.1 billion; and retailer Leslie H. Wexner, $2.1 billion.

Other well-known members of the Forbes 400 list include Denver oilman Marvin Davis, $1.45 billion; New York real estate developer Harry Helmsley, $1.4 billion; financier

David Rockefeller, $1 billion; Los Angeles investor Kirk Kerkorian, $950 million; Maryland poultry king Frank Perdue, $500 million; designer Ralph Lauren, $350 million; and entertainer Merv Griffin, $300 million.

Some familiar names on the list lost their ranking. Gordon P. Getty, No. 2 in the inaugural 1982 Forbes list and No. 1 in 1983 and 1984, no longer controls the $3 billion family trust because of lawsuits and the Texaco-Pennzoil battle over his company. Forbes estimated his worth at $350 million.

County exhumes bodies, finds little new evidence

By The Associated Press

MARSHFIELD, Mo. — Autopsies on the bodies of six of seven victims of a southern Missouri shooting spree revealed little new information about the deaths, the Webster County Sheriff said Monday.

"There was nothing new that showed up except there was one more bullet in one of the children than we first thought," said Sheriff

Eugene Fraker. "There were two, one right on top of the other."

All but one of the victims' bodies were exhumed Saturday and autopsies performed in order to shore up the case against the accused killer, James E. Schnick.

Schnick, 36, is charged with seven counts of first-degree murder in the shooting deaths of his wife, Julie, 30; her brother, Steve Buckner, 35; Buckner's wife, Jeannette, 36; and the Buckners' four children, Kirk, 14; Dennis, 8; Timmy, 6; and Michael, 2.

All were shot Sept. 25 in rural Elkland.

Authorities originally believed Kirk Buckner was the killer, but they later turned their suspicions to Schnick. An autopsy had been performed earlier on Kirk Buckner, but not the others. The boy's body was not exhumed Saturday.

Fire burns war barracks to ground

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE — A piece of World War II Lawrence history burned to the ground Sunday night when fire destroyed the main building of a one-time prisoner of war camp.

The investigation into the cause of the fire was continuing. No damage estimate has been made, but co-owner Park Heitzel III said the building was destroyed.

Constructed in 1945, the building served as a barracks for German prisoners of war brought to Lawrence during World War II to help with the potato harvest.

At its peak, the barracks housed about 125 prisoners.

GET WHERE YOU WANT TO GO.

You know how far you want to go. You have what it takes to get there. Now, put the degree you've earned and the opportunities you need together. Lead the adventure as a Navy officer.

As a Navy officer, you start with a leadership position in business management, engineering, law, personnel administration, systems analysis or one of many other professional fields. You gain the experience and responsibility it might take years to get in a corporation.

Earn a good salary and receive exceptional benefits including free medical and dental care, thirty days' paid vacation each year, and many tax-free incentives.

Minimum qualifications require that a student be pursuing a B.S. or B.A. degree. Not more than 26 years old and a United States citizen.

For more information stop by and see our representatives at the Student Union on Oct. 13 thru 16, or call the placement office at Holtz Hall to set an appointment or interview on Oct. 14 or 16, or you may call TOLL FREE 1-800-821-5110 for more information.

NAVY OFFICER.

LEAD THE ADVENTURE.

"Diamond rings and all those things, they never sparkle like your smile."

Thompson Twins
King for a Day

Smile enhancement by the professionals

Teeth cleaning from $20

SAGER DENTAL ASSOCIATES, P.A.
514 Humboldt Plaza Hygiene Department 913-537-8823

Yuppie Drink

Once considered boring, coffee is gaining new popularity as the yuppie generation drinks espresso. See Page 7.

Weather

Thirty percent chance for showers or thundershowers today, high in mid- to upper 60s. Sixty percent chance of rain tonight, low is the mid- to upper 40s.

House as the line begins to form for Wildcat basketball season tickets. See Page 9.

Wednesday

October 14, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 37

Kansas State Collegian

Iran bombs school; 32 Iraqis die

By The Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — A missile fired from Iran exploded at an elementary school Tuesday morning as pupils filed into the building for classes, killing 32 people and wounding 218, nearly all of them children, officials said.

Shrapnel, shattered concrete and shards of glass flew through the playground of the Monument of Martyrs school, witnesses said. Textbooks and schoolbags lay strewn about.

The force of the explosion blew down parts of the building, Principal Ismael Ghetan Jassim said, but "Thank God it didn't hit the classrooms complex itself or casualties would have been much higher."

Neighbors said 12 members of one family were killed in the house on which the missile made a direct hit.

Baghdad radio said the missile destroyed 16 other buildings in the heavily populated area when it struck just five minutes before the school bell, but only three of those killed were adults. All but 22 of the wounded were children, the radio said.

It was the fourth Iranian missile to strike the Iraqi capital since Oct. 4, the first to cause major casualties. It spurred fears of a new round of the War of the Cities that killed thousands of people on both sides in its seven years of existence.

Iran has lobbed more than 30 missiles into this city of 5 million people and dozens more have hit other cities.

The official radio quoted a military spokesman as saying: "It is our right and duty to respond to this ugly crime." He said Iran had "declared a war of the cities and so it shall be. It is time for revenge."

Iraq has threatened to "flatten Tehran and other cities" because of Iranian shelling of border towns, and claims to have new long-range missiles that can reach the Iranian

■ See BOMB, Page 11

Staff/Brad Camp

Upwardly bound

Charles Long, associate professor of horticulture, coaches Sue Reynolds, senior in horticulture, as she ascends a tree Monday morning in Quinlan Natural Area during an Arboriculture lab exercise.

Manhattan due for large quake, geologist says

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

Manhattan is overdue for an earthquake of similar intensity to the quake which shook the Los Angeles area recently, said a senior geologist with the Kansas State Geological Survey.

"I'm not afraid to say there probably will be an earthquake in the Manhattan area, but I don't know when," said Frank W. Wilson, senior scientist/geologist with the survey. "And it could be as large as the one in Los Angeles."

Wilson said Manhattan is "probably overdue" for another earthquake.

"(But) to say when that's going to occur, we don't know for sure, because we don't have enough period of record to estimate a return period for it," Wilson said.

Wilson worked on a Nuclear Regulatory Commission study of the potential for earthquakes in Kansas. The study was a necessary part of the preliminary design work for the Wolf Creek nuclear plant near Burlington.

He expects a quake in the Manhattan region because two of the largest earthquakes in Kansas history occurred in this area. Both of those quakes were estimated to be 5.5 on the Richter scale.

The recent Los Angeles earthquake registered 6.1 on the Richter scale.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph. Every increase of one whole number means ground motion is 10 times greater.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers considered the risk of an earthquake great enough to cancel plans to build the Onaga Reservoir on the Vermillion Creek in Pottawatomie County, Wilson said.

Staff/Mary Ward

The Humboldt Fault Zone runs just east of Manhattan. Since 1867, 13 of Kansas' 25 recorded earthquakes have occurred within 50 miles of the fault. The largest of those quakes occurred near Wamego in 1867.

"The Corps of Engineers designed the Onaga Reservoir Dam to withstand an earthquake of the same size that occurred in Manhattan in 1867," Wilson said. "We said the epicenter of that Manhattan earthquake might actually be right under the dam or very close to it — which changed the picture some."

Wilson said the Corps of Engineers determined it was too expensive to build a dam capable of withstanding an earthquake directly beneath it.

The Vermillion Creek, on which the Onaga Dam was to have been built, is the surface trace of the Humboldt Fault Zone, which runs from Humboldt, Neb., to near Wichita.

"Earthquakes in Kansas are most likely to occur along the places

■ See QUAKE, Page 14

Utility becomes 1st to default since '20s

By The Associated Press

CONCORD, N.H. — Directors of Public Service Company of New Hampshire, lead owner of the Seabrook nuclear power plant, voted Tuesday to default on a $37 million debt payment due Thursday.

Public Service will become the first major investor-owned utility to default on a bond payment since the Great Depression. The Washington Public Power Supply System, which defaulted on $2.1 billion in bonds five years ago, is not a utility.

The 13-member Public Service board voted to suspend scheduled interest payments on various bonds, the first of which is due

■ See DEFAULT, Page 11

Censorship case to be close, director says

By Judy Lundstrom
Special Projects Editor

With a group of 20,000 homosexual activists protesting outside, the U.S. Supreme Court heard oral arguments Tuesday in the first case involving censorship of a high school newspaper.

And, for the first time in history, the Court considered closing the doors to the public because of the activity outside.

"There were guards everywhere," said Dave Adams, associate professor of journalism and mass communications and director of Student Publications Inc. "They arrested busloads of protesters."

Adams was one of 12 members of the Journalism Education Association who attended the Washington, D.C., hearing as authorized guests of the Student Press Law Center, the organization representing Hazelwood in the Hazelwood School District vs. Kuhlmeier case.

The protesters were an extension of a Sunday rally at which thousands of homosexual activists marched on the Mall demanding protection from discrimination and more federal money for AIDS research and treatment, Adams said. They had planned an act of civil disobedience on the steps of the Supreme Court building.

Instead of closing the doors completely, Adams said, police allowed only 30 to 40 people into the Court chambers. The room holds about 200, he said.

"We had to go three blocks around the building and in a back door," Adams said. "This was not normal. The court has never been allowed to close its doors to the public."

The case came about when officials at Hazelwood East High School near St. Louis, Mo., censored stories from Spectrum, the student newspaper. The stories dealt with teenage pregnancy and the effects of divorce on children.

Student editors challenged school officials in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri, but lost in a ruling that said because the newspaper was an integral part of the school's curriculum and not a public

■ See TRIAL, Page 11

President Oscar Arias awarded Nobel Peace Prize

By The Associated Press

OSLO, Norway — President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica won the Nobel Peace Prize on Tuesday for a Central American peace plan that he fashioned and persuaded the region's other leaders to adopt. Arias appealed for support of the plan during his Landon Lecture Sept. 21.

Selection of Arias was a surprise, and unusual because the choice was based at least partially on accomplishments after nominations closed Feb. 1. There were 93 candidates, including 15 organizations.

President Reagan, who has called the Arias plan "fatally flawed," said Tuesday: "President Arias fully deserves the Peace Prize for having started the Central American region on the road to peace."

The Norwegian parliament's Nobel Committee cited Arias, 46, as "the main architect of the plan the five Central American presidents signed Aug. 7 and now are putting into effect.

Committee Chairman Egil Aarvik told reporters the award was meant to add impetus and be "a support for the democratic process in the whole region."

Asked whether the committee was trying to influence the peace process, he replied: "It is our sincere wish that it will do so."

Arias, reached on vacation at a Costa Rican beach resort, said the award was "incredible."

"I accept it for Costa Rica, for peace, and not only for Costa Rica but for Central America, where 25 million human beings deserve to live in peace, with optimism, with some hope of progress," he said, speaking in English.

"We must not forget that in this moment, in which the eyes of the world are fixed on Central America, that this little geographic part of the world has suffered," he added, calling for an end to the civil wars in Nicaragua and El Salvador.

Aarvik said his five-member committee did not decide until late September who should get the Peace Prize, which like the other 1987 Nobel awards includes a cash payment of $340,000.

The Central American peace plan is intended to end guerrilla wars in Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala. It requires cease-fires, amnesties and measures bringing greater democracy to be arranged by Nov. 7, when each nation is to report on its progress.

A peace commission is to verify compliance with the plan by Jan. 7, four months after it was signed in Guatemala City by the presidents of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

The Reagan administration supports both

Contra rebels fighting the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua and the centrist government of El Salvador, where a civil war with leftist guerrillas began eight years ago.

Administration officials have criticized the Arias plan, which would require an end to all outside support for rebels, because it does not prescribe penalties for non-compliance.

Arias has not permitted Contras to operate from Costa Rica, which is Nicaragua's southern neighbor and has no army. He proposed the peace plan after taking office in May 1986, but needed another 15 months to overcome objections, mainly from the Sandinistas in Nicaragua.

At the August meeting in Guatemala, Arias would not allow the presidents to break for a meal until they reached agreement.

Since then, Nicaragua has allowed the Roman Catholic radio station and the only

■ See ARIAS, Page 11

Oscar Arias Sanchez

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Two KC men killed in crash

LINCOLN, Neb. — Two men from the Kansas City area were killed Tuesday when a small plane clipped the TV antenna off of a house and crashed into a back yard, bursting into flames, witnesses said.

A third person, who jumped from the plane just after the crash, told witnesses there had been a fire on board the aircraft. The man, who witnesses said was burned on his head and hands, was taken to the burn unit of Saint Elizabeth's Hospital in Lincoln.

Killed in the crash were the plane's pilot, Willis A. Waas, 60, of Kansas City, Mo., and co-pilot, John R. Jacobson, 60, of Overland Park, Kan.

Passenger Bradley J. Baumgart of Prairie Village, Kan., was reported in serious condition Tuesday night.

The men had been in Lincoln on business and were heading back to Kansas City at the time of the crash about 3:30 p.m., said Lancaster County Attorney Mike Heavican.

The plane flew low over a trailer court in northwest Lincoln before crashing into a back yard, witnesses said. The plane fell about two miles from the Lincoln airport.

Jerry Schmeiser, 13, said he was outside when he "saw the plane coming from the south to the north, weaving all over the place with the engine sputtering."

Schmeiser said the plane "nicked the (utility) wires and hit the ground and exploded."

Schmeiser said he ran toward the burning aircraft and encountered the injured survivor.

Detective Robert Marker of the Lancaster County Sheriff's Department said Baumgart forced the left rear door of the plane open after the crash and rolled to the ground.

Pat Miller, Schmeiser's mother, said Baumgart was rolling on the ground when she got to him.

"His face, hair and mustache were all burned," she said. "He dove out of the plane as it came down. He told us there had been a small fire on board, but that's all he remembers."

She said she calmed the man and put cold rags on his hands and face. She quoted him as saying, "I hope they call my wife in Kansas. I've got relatives in Omaha."

Assassination triggers violence

BOGOTA, Colombia — Rioters in the funeral procession for slain leftist leader Jaime Pardo Leal looted stores and at least one person was killed Tuesday as unions called a general strike to protest the assassination.

The death brought to 11 the number of people killed since Pardo Leal, president of the Patriotic Union, was shot to death Sunday night by gunmen who stopped his car on a rural road.

Some airline flights were canceled because of the violence across the country.

At least 460 members of left-wing parties have been killed in the past two years, and relatives of some of the victims have blamed paramilitary death squads.

An estimated 20,000 people joined in the funeral procession from the Colombian Congress building to a cemetery two miles away on El Dorado Avenue.

Dozens of looters, running ahead of the procession, smashed store windows and carried away clothing, electrical appliances and other articles.

Some broke into the Bank of Bogota and fled with several typewriters and pieces of office equipment. About three dozen arrests were reported.

Labor secretary to resign

WASHINGTON — Labor Secretary William E. Brock plans to resign Thursday to become chairman of Sen. Bob Dole's unannounced campaign for the GOP presidential nomination, Republican sources said Tuesday night.

Sources who asked not to be identified said Brock would step down Thursday. The Labor Department said it could not confirm the report.

"I can't give you any confirmation on it," David Demarest, an assistant Labor secretary, said late Tuesday.

However, other sources close to Brock confirmed that he would step down, but declined to give a timetable.

One source, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed that Brock would announce his resignation "soon," but would likely remain in the job "into November."

Brock, a former congressman and senator from Tennessee, and chairman of the Republican National Committee from 1977 to 1981, would bring a reputation as a strong political organizer to Dole's campaign, which runs second behind Vice President George Bush's in the early polls.

Dole is expected to announce his candidacy Nov. 9.

Brock had been approached by several Republican presidential campaigns in recent weeks, including those of Dole, R-Kan., Vice President George Bush and Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., according to close Brock associates.

The Labor secretary has, in personal conversations, expressed interest in heading the State, Defense or Treasury departments if Republicans retain control of the White House in the 1988 election.

There was no immediate word on any likely successor for Brock.

Early speculation on a possible successor centered on Constance Horner, a former director of the Office of Personnel Management.

Senate confirms industrialist

WASHINGTON — Industrialist C. William Verity Jr. won 84-11 Senate confirmation as secretary of commerce Tuesday as lawmakers headed off a threatened filibuster over his push for expanded trade with the Soviet Union.

"He has provided remarkable leadership in the business world in the trade world," Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said in urging support.

Verity, a 70-year-old Ohioan and retired chairman of Armco Inc., the nation's No. 5 steelmaker, succeeds Malcolm Baldrige, who was killed in July in a rodeo accident.

Verity has sparked conservative criticism by pushing for more U.S. trade with the Soviets. He has at times expressed impatience with use of trade levers to promote emigration of Soviet Jews and other human rights concerns.

In hearings this year, however, Verity called himself a supporter of the Jackson-Vanik amendment aimed at opening the door to greater emigration.

Verity also has been critical of controls aimed at halting the export of militarily useful equipment to the Soviets.

"It is Mr. Verity and some of his colleagues who are now literally selling the Soviets the rope with which to hang the free world," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., told lawmakers.

Helms conceded even before the Senate 85-8 vote to invoke cloture, or shut off debate, that critics lacked the support to block confirmation. They had to content themselves with dramatizing their reservations.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BUSINESS STUDENTS interested in being on the open house committee pick up an application in the Dean's Office. Return by Monday.

AG ECON CLUB sign up and $50 deposit for Texas trip due today in Waters 342.

WILDCAT TIPOFF CLASSIC men's and women's 3-on-3 basketball tournament Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms available at Union candy counter, Hollis House and Ahearn 101. The deadline for registration is Oct. 23.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS award applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Acket 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at KSU are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students: the awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTERVIEW applicants for 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION meets at 3 p.m. in Union 204. Informational meeting on earning credit on the British Intersession Tour.

SOCIETY OF HISPANIC PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS meets at 6 p.m. in Durand 152 for a Navy speaker and a pizza party.

UNITED NATIONS COUNCIL meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 204.

GRADUATE SCHOOL RESEARCH AND SPONSORED PROGRAMS meets at 3:30 p.m. in Union 206 for FIPSE grant proposal seminar.

THURSDAY

KAPPA DELTA PI meets at 2:30 p.m. in Bluemont 3 for a reception and tea for active and prospective members.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 3:30 p.m. by the information desk in the Union for a packing class.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS meets at 8 p.m. in Union 203.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

BETA GAMMA SIGMA meets at 8:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures and short meeting.

PRE-VET CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Trotter 201.

PI SIGMA EPSILON PLEDGE MEETING meets at 6 p.m. in Union 203.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers—Aggieville

FREE DELIVERY
HUNAM
Restaurant
1304 Westloop
10% off with KSU ID
539-8888 539-0888

Brother's
KSU
IN AGGIEVILLE USA
TOMORROW
Get crazy with PLAIN JANE
ONE NIGHT ONLY
$2.50 pitchers
$1.50 wells

DARK HORSE
Come Discover
$2 Pitchers
Our
Specials
$1.25 Wells
Bar 539-9081 Office 776-6638

ICAT
Midnight Madness II
TONIGHT
in Ahearn Field House
Doors Open at 11 p.m.
Activities Begin at 11:30 p.m.
including
Shooting Contest for Falso's Pizzeria
Donuts from Carol Lee Donuts
Pre-Party at Kite's
with Willie the Wildcat,
the KSU Cheerleaders,
and the K-State Pep Band
Let's fill Ahearn to start off A Great Year!

TONIGHT
PRE-MIDNIGHT
MADNESS
50¢ Draws
75¢ Wildcattwilly Shots
FREE—Hot Dogs
10 p.m.-Midnight
University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

NOW OPEN
Now that we're open, what do we do you ask? Accessories on the Park is the largest and most prestigious women's accessories store in the Manhattan area. Enough said? Stop by and you'll like it.
Accessories on the Park
ON THE
Mon.-Sat.: 10-6:00, Thur.: 10-8:30, Sun.: 1-5:00
708 N. Manhattan Ave., Aggieville 537-0707

Kansas State
Basketball
presents:
MIDNIGHT
MADNESS
TWO
Come Join Coach Kruger, Willie Wildcat,
the K-State Cheerleaders & KSU Pep Band at Ahearn Arena's Final Midnight Practice.
Doors Open 11 p.m.
Pre-Practice Events
include
ICAT, Carol Lee
Donuts, Shooting
Contest, Falso's
Pizza, & Student
Season Ticket Plan
Practice
Starts
at
OCT. 14
12:01 A.M.

Committee considers regional facility

By Judy Lundstrom
Special Projects Editor

The possibility of a regional waste facility to replace the Riley County Landfill was a topic of the Solid Waste Management Committee Tuesday night.

Seventeen members of the 25-member committee met for the second time since the Kansas Department of Health and Environment issued a landfill closure order because of water contamination in private wells adjacent to the landfill. The committee was mandated by KDHE to devise a new form of solid waste management for Riley County.

County Engineer Dan Harden said Geary County officials have expressed interest in devising a joint waste management plan with Riley County.

Waste officials debate merit of plan

"It's cheaper to deal with 200 tons a day rather than 100 tons," he said. "It appears to me we could benefit in that type of arrangement."

County Planner Monty Wedel told committee members because KDHE had encouraged a joint waste disposal approach, it probably wouldn't be too concerned if the committee needed more time to devise such a plan.

Harden said because the Geary County Landfill is on a site similar to Riley County's, officials were beginning to show concern about contamination problems.

"From talking to their commissioners, they're kind of jumpy about it," said Riley County Commissioner

"It's cheaper to deal with 200 tons a day rather than 100 tons. It appears to me we could benefit in that type of arrangement."

— Dan Harden

Darrell Westervelt, chairman of the committee.

Chuck Murphy, of the Riley County Health Department, said he was concerned that a joint waste plan could result in problems similar to those currently being experienced by the Central Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact, of which Kansas is a member.

If officials decide to put a waste facility in one county, residents of that county may complain that it should be in the other, he said.

One alternative for a waste facility, Harden said, would be to build a transfer station in Riley County. The waste would be collected at the station, then transported to another site. Waste Management Inc., a large refuse collection company, has expressed interest in building a transfer station in Riley County, he said. Committee members decided to listen to the company's proposal at a future meeting.

A crucial topic the committee should cover is educating the public about waste disposal methods, Murphy said.

"We're starting to see that septic tanks can pollute drinking water if not handled properly," he said. "It's a growing issue, and something we need to be aware of."

He said other sources of contamination are farmers, because of their dumping of chemicals, oil and gas on the ground.

"And there's evidence this stuff is ending up in our groundwater," he said.

He distributed a household hazardous waste chart that listed recommended methods of disposal. Many wastes, such as bug sprays, furniture polish, diesel, gasoline and antifreeze were listed as materials that should not be dumped in a landfill.

Harden said the majority of chemicals found in the contaminated groundwater near the landfill came from household products.

Duane Higgins, landfill manager, said the contamination sources could be any number of Riley County residents.

"The way things are now, I'd say we're getting some of this stuff out at the landfill every day," he said. "People need to be educated."

Reagan backs Bork despite 'odds'

By The Associated Press

WHIPPANY, N.J. — A defiant President Reagan declared Tuesday that if Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork is defeated in the Senate, as expected, he'll try to find a new nominee "that they'll object to just as much."

Earlier in the day, in a speech in Somerset, Reagan accused Bork opponents of "distortions and innuendoes" but dropped harsher wording that had been included in an earlier version of the speech.

And he didn't even mention Bork in the formal remarks he delivered in Whippany to the New Jersey Republican State Central Committee.

However, after the speech a woman called out, "We want Bork," and Reagan rose to her words.

"You want Bork, too?" Reagan asked. "So do I."

He told the audience that Bork would stay in the fight even though "we know the odds are against him. What's at issue here is not one man and what happened to him. What's at issue is that we make sure that the process of appointing and confirming judges never again is turned into such a political joke."

"And if I have to appoint another one, I'll try to find one that they'll object to just as much as they did" to Bork, Reagan said, to applause from the crowd.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia was cautioning against just such a move.

In remarks on the Senate floor, Byrd scolded the Reagan administration for not listening to Democratic advice that Bork would be controversial, saying Reagan "could have saved Judge Bork...a traumatic experience."

"It's important that the administration listen to the counsel of some of the people in this body before it sends up another nominee," Byrd said.

Democratic and Republican Senate leaders spent much of Tuesday maneuvering on the subject of when the Bork nomination will be brought to a vote, with the Democrats saying that in light of Reagan's expressed wish for quick action debate should be begun right away and a vote could be set for 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas and GOP Whip Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming indicated that Bork supporters would need at least three days of debate, likely pushing a vote to next week, leaving the question unsettled.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the White House had asked the television networks for time Wednesday afternoon for a Reagan address on Bork.

Former union leader kills self during game of Russian roulette

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — A former president of a powerful transportation union died after he apparently shot himself while playing Russian roulette in his home, police said.

Domenic DiClerico's son, John, found the 64-year-old man lying on the floor of his basement apartment Monday with a .38-caliber revolver beside him, according to Lt. Joseph Witte, who investigated the shooting.

Homicide Lt. James Hansen said DiClerico and his son had an argument over the father's playing Russian roulette moments before he apparently shot himself.

According to Hansen, "The father says to the son, I'm going to play Russian roulette to show you I still have guts."

Krystallos
"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

Manhattan Milling Co.

Purina Pet Foods

- Puppy Chow $14.60/40 lbs.
- Field & Bean $12.25/50 lbs.
- Dow Chow $14.50/50 lbs.
- Hi-Pro $15.50/50 lbs.
- Cat Chow $6.75/20 lbs.
- Cat Chow $12.25/20 lbs.

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

Manhattan Civic Theater presents

Oliver!

October 9, 10, 15, 16
at 8 p.m.

October 17
at 2 p.m. & 8 p.m.

at Manhattan Middle School,
9th & Poyntz

For ticket information
call 776-8591

Southwestern Bell
Telephone

Blue River Pub
YOUR EATING & DRINKING ESTABLISHMENT
Wednesday, Oct. 14
"YYZ" 9:30 p.m.-1 a.m.
Coming this weekend
"Satin Rage"

Next to Tuttle Creek Dam 537-9877

THE JEAN STATION
QUITTING BUSINESS SALE

20% off

Regular Priced Merchandise
ENTIRE STOCK INCLUDED
ALL SALES FINAL
NO EXCHANGES • NO REFUNDS • NO PAYAWAYS

AGGIEVILLE, MANHATTAN
1217 MORO

HOURS: 10-6 M-Sat., 10-8:30 Thurs., 1-5 Sun.

BUSHWACKERS
THE FUNDRINKERY

TONIGHT
2 Fer Steins & Well Drinks

KSU SHOWCASE OF TALENT
Looking For
Stand Up Comedians
For Info Call
Scott Jones
776-7852
Formerly U-Sing
with benefits going to Sunset Zoo.
Business Office
539-9727 539-4321
531 N. Manhattan

Auntie Mac's Parlor

SANDWICHES
Now being served!

Tonight:
$1.50 Well drinks
75¢ Draws
$2 blended drinks
$1 Wine

Thursday:
$1.25 Well drinks

616 N. 12th 539-9967

Scrumptillyishusland

Dairy Queen

"LET'S ALL GO TO THE DAIRY QUEEN"

Dairy Queen
brazier.

1015 N. 3rd St.
Manhattan
12th & Moro
Aggieville

* U.S. Pat. Off. - Am. O.G. Corp. Copyright 1987
Am. O.G. Corp. - Mpls. Minn. Printed in U.S.A.

Finally,
a great pizza
delivered.

1118 Laramie 539-5303
GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special

$10.99/$8.99 plus tax

LARGE MEDIUM COMBO PIZZA

or up to 4 toppings

Original Crust

Plus FREE 20 oz. drink!

4 drinks with large

3 drinks with medium

Offer good Monday through

Wednesday only.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no

added delivery charge). Not valid

with other promotional offers.

Limited Delivery Area.

Large Pizza for a Medium Price

Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for

the price of a medium.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug offer.

On Sunday your choice: either

use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

Offer Expires 10/25/87

Offer Expires 10/25/87

Offer Expires 10/25/87

2 for $9

Receive two medium cheese

pizzas for only $9. Added

ingredients available for only $1

per topping, which covers both

pizzas.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1 for delivery. Limited delivery area.

Offer Expires 10/25/87

Offer Expires 10/25/87

Offer Expires 10/25/87

Hot Slice™

2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas

by the slice for $2!

Combo or Pepperoni

Dine-in or Carryout

Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Offer Expires 10/23/87

Offer Expires 10/23/87

Offer Expires 10/23/87

Eriksen Sports Medicine

Clinic**

- Evaluation, Diagnosis, Treatment, Rehabilitation of sports related injuries and problems
- Determine Body Fat Percentages
- Heat Stress Information
- Information and advice on Fitness, Injury Prevention, Health Effects of Exercise
- MUCH, MUCH MORE

Walk-in Clinic

8-9:30 a.m. Mon.-Fri.

1-2:30 p.m. Mon.

1-2 p.m. Tues., Thurs., Fri.

For Appointments

532-7880

Lafene Health Center

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, October 14, 1987 ■ Page 4

Schools stress competition too highly

There is far too much competitiveness in the high school classroom today. With the cost of attending college rising faster than the general cost of living, the need for scholarship aid will tend to increase competition for grades and higher ACT scores. Even the Japanese secondary education, being held by American politicians as a model for our country, is far more competitive than our own. Beyond the dog-eat-dog aspect of classroom competition, which brings out the worst in most students, is a competitive environment the most productive way to teach?

"No," say Roger and David Johnson of the University of Minnesota's College of Education, two brothers who have been preaching the virtues of cooperative learning for more than 20 years. In 21 out of 26 controlled studies, cooperation by utilizing the "Johnson system" led to significantly higher achievement, while the remaining five showed mixed results or no significant difference.

"Cooperation," said David Johnson, "is the basic phenomenon that distinguishes our species. It's the underpinning for everything." Even a society obsessed with competition requires that people cooperate with one another. We need to be able to cooperate, not only at work, but in our daily lives as well.

"We're trying to change American schools from predominantly competitive places," said Roger.

Still, our public school teachers and administrators continue to foster competition as a means for getting each student to work up to his or her ability. In the process, they are turning out young people sadly unprepared for real life.

"It seems a little late when you have to tell a 40-year-old IBM engineer that he needs to work more effectively in a team," said Roger Johnson.

Of course, some high school teachers pay lip service to an anti-competitive teaching method, but few that I dealt with actually required cooperation in a framework where everyone gained. That would be bucking a system that is firmly entrenched. Of course, there was the old 60-70-80-90 percentage grading scale, accompanied by the encouraging words, "Now everyone can get an A in my class". You soon learned, however, that any test where everybody got an A would be followed shortly by a much tougher one, designed to spread the curve again.

A good example of education run amok is the "enriched program" for the "gifted student," where the good students are removed

Commentary

JUDD ANNIS
Collegian Columnist

from the normal classroom setting and lumped together, supposedly to provide adequate competition and stimulation for each other. In addition to fostering an elitist attitude, these students are denied the enriching experience of helping their slower classmates, as well as losing out on the camaraderie which comes from peers helping peers.

The bright student has his understanding of a subject tested and polished when he sets out to explain a concept to a classmate who is totally lost. If one truly understands something, he can explain it at any level required. The comment tossed about by students that, "Professor X really understands the subject but he just can't explain it" eventually boils down to the fact that Professor X's understanding tends to be superficial or that Professor X doesn't really care if you understand it or not. The bright student and the slower student both gain from the help they are ultimately giving each other.

The benefits of cooperative education go far beyond the academics. In 35 of 37 studies on interpersonal attraction, the Johnsons found that students liked each other more when they worked cooperatively on their class assignments. Ethnic prejudice and ridicule practically disappear and the students enjoy being with each other, which even extends to their free time. To me, that's what really makes this concept worthwhile.

Cooperative learning means more than telling a group of students that they have to work together. It means "positive interdependence," where each one is dependent on the others of the group and is accountable to the rest of the group. The group members share a goal, with each responsible for an essential part of the effort. A group grade is given, making them realize that they will sink or swim together.

The Johnsons have found that cooperating students have a higher regard for schooling, the subject they are studying and for their teachers. The improved self-esteem they experience "comes from peers, from being liked, accepted and connected," said Roger Johnson. Competition, David noted, sends out an entirely different message. "The minute you lose, your value ends. That's a terrible thing to tell a kid," he said, "Or an adult."

I see this evidence of the negative affects of schoolroom competition every time I glance through my high school yearbook. Throughout the pages of smiling faces, I see close friends who didn't want to play the game.

Of course, cooperative education can elicit an outcry of rage from some segments of society. The cornerstone of the free enterprise system is competition, or so they say, while to most, cooperation reeks of communism. If competition is so sacred, though, why do those who so loudly champion the "competitive free enterprise system" constantly try to engage in noncompetitive agreements. Hopefully, we all recognize the value of "cooperation," legal or illegal, in the real world. Isn't it time we gave it a sincere try in education? As the Johnsons are fond of saying, "None of us is as smart as all of us."

AIDS, condoms belong in school curriculum

There is a squabble brewing in Washington, D.C. — one that could cost many lives before, or if, it is ever resolved.

Actually, this is the second round in a debate between Secretary of Education William Bennett and Surgeon General C. Everett Koop regarding when U.S. school children should be educated about AIDS and condoms.

Koop has advocated frank education about sexuality, AIDS and condoms at the earliest possible time in elementary school. His thinking is that school children's sex education should start at the earliest possible age.

This is good not just for a disease as frightening as AIDS, but for times when sexual activity in school-age children is starting earlier all the time. Education should start early so children are thinking about what happens when they do engage in sex.

Bennett has just announced a new booklet from his department that says morality ought to be taught as the main way for reducing the danger of AIDS.

While values and morality should be considered when in a school's sex education program, the health aspects should be uniform nationwide. They should stress the health risks and issues involved when teens experiment with sex.

The education department's booklet and Bennett make a couple of contradictory points.

The first is the "if we teach children about condoms, it will only make them go out and want to have sex" argument. If this is the case, then how can 12-, 13- and 14-year-old girls being pregnant be explained? Sex education in this country is poorly lacking. Could this lack be to blame, or were all of these girls taught about condoms and got pregnant anyway?

In announcing the booklet, Bennett said condoms can "help reduce the risk (of AIDS), but they by no means can be relied upon."

He's right. Condoms are not 100 percent effective in protecting against AIDS or pregnancy, and no competent health expert anywhere would say they are. However, they remain the best deterrent so far for AIDS and are very effective in preventing pregnancy.

What Bennett has done is taken advantage of a potentially disastrous epidemic to push forward a political campaign of teaching morality the Reagan way in public schools. Health issues should be addressed uniformly in all schools and on all topics. Moral issues should be left to each community to deal with in ways its citizens are comfortable.

In an age when losing one's virginity could be fatal, sex education — including education about condoms — should be taken seriously and provided as early as possible.

Arias deserves more than Nobel prize alone

It was announced Tuesday that Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez had won the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to reconcile the many factions in Central America while striving for democracy.

Arias, who spoke at K-State for a Sept. 21 Landon Lecture, is to be applauded for his efforts in formulating a peace plan for Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

The plan, which had been initially called by Reagan "fatally flawed," has been recognized by others for what it is: a peace plan that calls for no outside intervention.

After almost two years of work toward formulating and implementing the plan, Arias deserves more than a Nobel Peace Prize.

He deserves peace.

'Macaroni, Old Mil Light diet' makes losing weight easy, fun

OK, now admit it. In high school, you were convinced you would be one of those adults who followed a proper diet, exercised regularly and never developed those few extra inches around the waist or hips. Now you're facing the realities of a lower metabolism, less time for exercise, and the beginnings of a spare tire. And if you're like me, you've decided it's time to diet. If so, you've probably also discovered why the first three letters of "diet" spell "die."

Now, I'm just like every other weight-conscious person in America. I'm looking for that perfect diet plan. You know the one: where I can eat all I want with no exercise and still lose 10 pounds a week. Health and nutrition experts say that's impossible, but I like to use the old "Well, if they can put a man on the moon..." rationale.

I've read a lot of those popular diet plans that are always being plugged on talk shows, like the "Grapefruit Diet," the "Popcorn Diet," the "Ice-Cream Diet," the "Beanie-Weenie Diet," etc. I think I've discovered the underlying secret to the effectiveness of these diets. They expect the dieter to measure everything out precisely before he or she eats it. By the time the dieter measures out four ounces of skim milk, five tablespoons of Grape-Nuts, a third of a slice of dry toast and a half cup of berries for breakfast, it's almost lunchtime and this poor person has starved away three pounds. The only measuring I've ever done is figuring out how many potato chips will fit on the plate next to the greasy cheeseburger, pork and beans, and pickle spear.

Somebody once told me that rice cakes were a good way to lose weight. So, being the calorie-conscious individual I now am, I bought some. They're not so bad — a little more flavorful than Styrofoam, I guess. But they never seemed to help me lose much weight. I'm not sure why, either, because I ate a lot of them. In fact, it usually took about 30 cakes to fill me up. But I kept running out of peanut butter and Cheez Whiz to put on them.

Commentary

DOUG FOLK
Collegian Columnist

I began to fear that the only way I was going to lose any weight was to (shudder) exercise. The first thing I tried was jogging. Of course, to be properly equipped, I had to buy running shoes and a Walkman. The Walkman turned out to be more of a hindrance than a help. If I played a tape, the batteries wore out after about a half-hour. But if I played the radio, I kept stopping to change the station when a song came on I didn't like (which happens quite frequently in Manhattan). The recent rash of pedestrian accidents also had me concerned for my personal safety. So, having no great desire to overcome these obstacles, I gave up jogging.

The following afternoon I was lying on the couch eating a big bowl of tin-roof-sundae ice cream, deciding what form of physical abuse to attempt next, when an expert came on television and said the real secret to weight loss isn't what a person eats, but how that person eats. In other words, good eating habits — like not eating between meals or before bedtime, going easy on the condiments, etc. — are important. I cringed when I heard that, because I knew that meant my nightly ritual would have to be abandoned. No more lounging in my cushy chair, eating megabowls of popcorn loaded with butter, salt, and Parmesan cheese while watching "Hawaii Five-O" and David Letterman. This was the point where I decided that conventional methods of weight loss were either ineffective or too painful to bear. I had to come up with a new perspective.

After long hours of painstaking research, I developed a revolutionary new theory. The key to a successful diet is finding a plan an individual can adhere to faithfully. Based on this premise I've authored my own diet plan, designed to be sensitive to the financial as well as the dietary needs of the college student. I call it the "Macaroni-and-Cheese and Old-Mil-Light Diet." Basically, it involves eating whatever is in the refrigerator, purchasing foods that are inexpensive (while occasionally looking for the terms "lite," "light," "lo-cal" or "diet" in product names), and preparing an extensive exercise plan that you can tell people you're going to start next Monday. I've been adhering to this plan for several weeks, and I'm happy to report that I haven't cheated once.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (ISSN 291-0240) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kottler Hall, phone 532-4355. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kottler Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

No impasse exists City negotiations resume

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

The Manhattan City Commission adjourned its special meeting Tuesday after determining that no impasse existed between the city of Manhattan and negotiators from the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Both negotiating teams will now resume discussions on the issues of wages and holiday scheduling that have held up the conclusion of a contract between the city and the union, which represents all municipal employees except for fire and police department personnel.

Commissioners had called the meeting after being told an impasse existed. Under Kansas law, when both negotiating parties agree they have reached an impasse, the deadlock can then be resolved by the governing body of the city.

"I think it's obvious there is a difference of opinion as to where we're at," said Wayne Wiancki, president and executive director of Kansas AFSCME.

Wiancki has been the negotiator for union Local 2463, the group representing Manhattan city employees.

Wiancki said he thought the meeting with the commission was called under the ground rules for the negotiations agreed to by the union and the city. Those ground rules allow both parties to refer the last offers made by both sides back to their governing bodies for consideration.

Cornell Mayfield, director of human resources, told commissioners that an impasse, as defined by the state law, did exist. He asked commissioners to rule in favor of the city's negotiating position.

Speaking after Mayfield addressed the commission, Wiancki told commissioners an impasse did not exist between the union and the city.

Wiancki's statement led City Attorney William Frost to advise the commission to adjourn the meeting because both negotiating teams had not agreed an impasse existed.

"I think we have to take what our attorney has told us," said Commissioner Nancy Denning.

Denning then moved for adjournment of the meeting. Her motion was passed unanimously.

City Manager Mike Conduff said the city was under the impression an impasse had existed, and he took responsibility for the misunderstanding between the city and the union.

"I don't know where the process broke down. Obviously, I'm responsible," Conduff said.

Students to campaign for November elections

By Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

Candidates for student body president, student board of publications and Student Senate will soon begin their campaigns to be elected in the general student government elections Nov. 3 and 4.

The filing deadline for candidates is 5 p.m. Oct. 20 in the Dean of Student Life office, Holton 102. Application forms may be picked up in the Student Governing Association office located on the ground floor of the Union.

SGA elections chairwoman Debbie Fields, senior in marketing, said this year's election is unique because it will be the first SGA election with a November polling date.

In the past, elections were held in February.

The election date was changed by Student Senate last fall in order to "give senators more time to get used to being a senator before the marathon meetings of allocations in the spring," Fields said.

One of the Senate's annual jobs is to allocate more than $700,000 in student fees to student organizations and services.

Rules concerning campaign procedures are available in the SGA office. Posters may not be displayed until 5 p.m. Oct. 27, one week before the election. Banners may be hung at 5 p.m. on Oct. 31. Candidates may begin other means of soliciting votes, such as buttons, shirts or personal speeches at any time, Fields said.

There will be a mandatory candidate's informational meeting at 3:30 p.m. Oct. 23 in Union 212. Candidates will draw for their position on the ballot at this meeting.

Senate seats are allocated on a per college enrollment basis. The number of seats available in each college is as follows: Agriculture, four; Architecture and Design, three; Arts and Sciences, 13; Business Administration, eight; Education, three; Engineering, eight; Graduate School, six; Human Ecology, three; and Veterinary Medicine, one.

The Senate seat in the College of Veterinary Medicine is typically the only one the office has trouble filling, Fields said.

Polls will be open in the Union from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Nov. 3 and 4. A validated fall 1987 student ID is required to vote. A polling place for students in the College of Veterinary Medicine will be open from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Trotter Hall.

Pollworkers are needed for both days, Fields said. Volunteers may sign up for one-hour time slots in the SGA office.

In the event that a candidate does not receive a majority of the votes for student body president, a runoff election will be held at on Nov. 11 with the same polling hours.

Taxpayers to receive reminder from IRS about new tax laws

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than 90 million taxpayers are about to get some unexpected greetings from the Internal Revenue Service — a reminder that the new tax law is nothing like they've ever seen.

The IRS announced Tuesday it is spending $7.6 million to mail the brief, six-sided brochures in hopes of reducing the level of confusion when taxpayers begin filing their returns early next year. Those returns will be the first reflecting the new tax law for most people.

Some taxpayers would receive the green and white brochures as early as Tuesday, Ed Pecorella, assistant commissioner in charge of taxpayer service, said at a news conference. By the end of the month, the little documents should be in the hands of most couples and individuals who filed returns for 1986.

The mass mailing, largest ever undertaken by the IRS, is the latest weapon in a campaign by the agency to get people thinking about their 1987 returns long before the April 15 filing deadline.

The brochure includes a tear-out coupon that taxpayers may mail to request a copy of Publication 920, a 55-page, plain-language explanation of highlights of the 1986 tax law. The publication includes a side-by-side comparison of the old and new laws.

The brochure mentions some of those changes: lower tax rates, higher personal exemptions and standard deductions, elimination or reduction of several itemized deductions and new rules that may require students and some other part-time workers to file returns for the first time.

The IRS will have nearly 7,000 employees working in taxpayer service, up 1,300 from this year. But don't wait too long to call them, Pecorella advised.

If reading is not your bag, the IRS is prepared to help another way.

By calling the Tele-Tax number listed under IRS in the telephone book, you may listen to a tape recording, identified as No. 315, that highlights some of the major tax changes.

Ask for tape No. 326 and you get a listing of other tapes on specific topics, ranging from the new requirement that children 5 or older have Social Security numbers, to changes affecting Individual Retirement Accounts.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

Pronouncing English as a Second Language

Foreign Accent Improvement Workshop

An intensive 3 week program to maximize social & educational speaking skills

Nov. 14 & 15, Dec. 3

Evaluation $85 Tuition $450

Enrollment Deadline: Oct. 23

For more information & to register contact:
Junction City Speech & Language Clinic 762-3350

OR

Manhattan 539-6377

Fall Savings
Travelute Western Store

20% off on all Felt Hats

Levis 501 Jeans $16⁹⁸

Levis Saddleman, Wrangler Pro

Rodeo Cowboy Cut & Lee Boot Cut Jeans $15⁹⁸

Flannel Wool & Dress Men's Shirts

Large Selection of Flannel & Dress Ladies' Blouses

One-fourth mile south of Waterville on Highway 77

Mon.-Sat. 9-6 & Sun. 1-5

Try our layaway plan for the holidays!
913-788-2136

FALL COAT SALE
30-50% OFF

RENTAL
TYPEWRITERS

ZENITH COMPUTER AND IBM LETTER QUALITY PRINTER
ALSO AVAILABLE

XEROXING:

enlargements and reductions resume papers
cardstock
11 x 17 poster-size (14 colors)
class hand-outs service

BLUEPRINTING:

blue-line, black-line, sepi, brown-line

SPIRAL BINDING
LAMINATING
BUTTONS (2 1/2")

LOCATED
THIRD FLOOR K-STATE UNION
K-state union
copy center

1225 Main
Aggieville

Woody's ladies

Open M. S.
9:30-5:30
Thurs. til 8:30

Lafene Health Center

Services available

Outpatient Clinic
Lafemme (Gyn) Clinic
Allergy Clinic
Mental Health Clinic
Laboratory
Physical Therapy
Pharmacy
X-Ray Department
Dietary Counseling
In-Patient Hospital
Sports Medicine Clinic
Wart Clinic

Clinic Hours • 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

532-6544

ALL POLO MERCHANDISE MUST GO!

BANKRUPTCY
LIQUIDATION

ALL MERCHANDISE ORDERED SOLD!

ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR • SPORTING GOODS
WARMUPS • SPORTSWEAR • ETC.

DAYS ONLY! CASH ONLY! NO CHECKS!

T-SHIRTS • MUSCLE SHIRTS
SHIMMELS ASSORTED SIZES, COLORS
PUMA USA 99¢ to $3.99 ea.

SUNGLASSES
OVER 25 DIFFERENT STYLES
VALUES FROM $1.99-4.99
NOW ONLY 3.49

OVER 2000 PR. ATHLETIC SHOES MUST GO!

POLO KNIT
SPORT SHIRTS
ASSORTED COLORS SIZES & STYLES
VALUES FROM 30¢-40¢ NOW ONLY 10¢-16¢

OVER 2000 PR. ATHLETIC SHOES
TENNIS • RACQUETBALL • JOGGING
AEROBICS • BASKETBALL • ETC.
NOW ONLY 6.99 and UP

OVER 5000 PIECES NAME BRAND SWEATSHIRTS

DESIGNER SWEATSHIRTS
NOW ONLY 8.99-10.99
COCOA COLA • WEDGWOOD • ESPRIMO • BEVERLY HILLS CLUB • COLOUR

NAME BRAND LONG SLEEVE
T-SHIRTS
FRESH • COCA COLA
HARVEY • COLLEGE
VALUES FROM $1.99-4.99
NOW ONLY 4.99-6.99

ALL MERCHANDISE BELOW WHOLESALE

SWEATSHIRTS
SWEATPANTS
ASSORTED STYLES & COLORS NOW ONLY 6.99 and UP!

NAME BRAND
BASEBALL
SLEEVES
NOW ONLY 4.99-6.99

GOLF • TENNIS • RACQUETBALL • ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR • SPORTSWEAR • T-SHIRTS • SOCKS • SWEATCLOTHES • SPORTING GOODS • JERSEYS • SPORTBAGS • RUNNING SHORTS

1 DAY ONLY
WEDNESDAY • OCT. 14th
10 A.M.-8 P.M.

CASH ONLY • NO CHECKS
HOLIDAY INN
530 RICHARDS DR. • FT. RILEY BLV.
MANHATTAN, KS.

PONY Running adidas ocean pacific

Food Wednesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, October 14, 1987 ■ Page 7

Espresso: For the coffee connoisseur

Tasty. Blah. Sweet. Bitter. Hot. Cold. Chocolate. Mint. Fruit-flavored. One beverage that can be described in many different ways is coffee.

Once considered a boring, old-folk's drink, coffee is gaining new popularity as the yuppie generation drinks espresso, the glamorous, expensive and better-tasting coffee.

The coffee tastes better because of the special way espresso is brewed, said Mitchell Beemer, manager of Espresso Royale. Most of the coffee makers Americans use in their homes allow the water to drip through the coffee grounds, slowly taking with it the oils which cling to the grounds. These oils provide the coffee flavor.

There are different types of oils on the coffee grounds — such as sweet, bitter, caffeine and other coffee flavors, Beemer said.

An espresso machine uses steam pressure to force the water rapidly through the grounds, instead of just letting the water drip through the grounds.

This process ensures only the sweet, good-tasting oils come off the grounds, while the drip process of normal coffee makers allows the bitter oils to come off as well.

Beemer said the steam process works because the sweet oils are the first to come off, and the speed of the espresso machine doesn't allow time for the bitter oils to be used.

Another reason for espresso's good taste is that coffee beans are brown-roasted, an Italian method. Most brands of coffee used in America are black-roasted, and this process burns the oils off, Beemer said.

Espresso Royale, which opened Aug. 4 in Aggieville, is an example of a growing trend in America toward specialty coffee houses and better-tasting coffee. Part of that trend may stem from the yuppie mentality that quality is worth the effort and the price.

Not wanting just the same old, boring brew that their parents and grandparents drank, young, upwardly mobile Americans have embraced specialty coffees as yet another sign of the sophistication which yuppies seem to epitomize.

Another factor contributing to the growing desire for a good cup of coffee may be the campaign by the National Coffee Association, which aims to educate restaurants on how to prepare and serve strong, fresh, hot coffee.

The International Coffee Organization is also attempting to improve the quality of coffee served in the United States. Their objective is to increase the consumption of coffee among the younger generation, which has been brought up with a blitz of soft-drink advertising.

Espresso is an alternative to the cup of coffee many Americans drink every morning, but specialty coffee houses such as Espresso Royale also serve a variety of coffee drinks to suit almost any occasion. These drinks are also fairly easy to make at home.

Some variations of espresso are cappuccino — a blended mixture of coffee and milk with some seasoning added — and cafe au lait, a French drink with equal amounts of coffee and milk, boiled and poured together.

Pot and cup courtesy of Espresso Royale. Tray courtesy of Functions.

Caffe mocha, a mixture of coffee and chocolate topped with whipped cream, is the most popular drink at Espresso Royale, Beemer said. Mint mocha, another popular drink, is the same as caffe mocha except the chocolate has a mint flavor.

Coffees can also feature a fruity flavor, such as peach.

All of these drinks can be served iced, a popular alternative during hot weather.

Coffee can be used as a delectable addition to many foods. For example, pudding, ice cream and cookies can all be given a new personality with a little coffee flavor.

For the many Americans who are happy with their regular cup of drip coffee, a tip for making it perfect every time: Use fresh coffee, cold water and a clean coffee maker. Use one coffee measure (two level tablespoons) coffee to each $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water.

Coffee cookies

6 ounces bittersweet bar chocolate, semisweet chocolate squares or chocolate pieces

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup plus 2 tablespoons unsalted butter

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup light brown sugar, packed

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup plus 2 tablespoons granulated sugar

$\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt

1 large egg

$1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons instant espresso coffee powder

2 tablespoons walnut or peanut oil

1 cup all-purpose flour

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped walnuts

Cut bar chocolate into approximately $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch pieces with a sharp knife; cut squares of baking chocolate into $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch chunks; leave chocolate pieces whole. In a medium-sized bowl, beat butter until smooth. Beat in brown sugar, then granulated sugar and salt. When pale and creamy, beat in the egg, coffee powder and oil. Add flour and stir until just combined. Stir in the walnuts and pieces of chocolate. Refrigerate 15 minutes or longer. Heat oven to 375 degrees. Drop tablespoons of batter onto a lightly buttered and floured baking sheet. Bake 8 to 10 minutes, or until cookies are brown around the edges. Remove from oven and let stand 2 to 5 minutes before transferring cookies to a wire rack to cool. Makes about 45 cookies.

Espresso drinks

Espresso Royale: In an 8-ounce wineglass, dissolve $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon brown sugar in 1 tablespoon each creme de cacao and anisette. Pour in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup hot espresso. Top with whipped cream.

MexExpress: Sugar-frost the rim of an 8-ounce wineglass. Pour in 1 tablespoon each coffee-flavored liqueur and brandy; add $\frac{1}{2}$ cup hot espresso. Top with 2 tablespoons sweetened, whipped cream.

Espresso Shake for Two: Whirl $\frac{1}{2}$ cup espresso, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk, 3 tablespoons coffee-flavored liqueur, 1 tablespoon dark rum, 1 teaspoon sugar and 4 ice cubes in a blender. Pour into tall glasses.

Double-Coffee Float: Pour espresso over ice cubes in a tall glass and top with a scoop of coffee ice cream.

Cappuccino drinks

Orange Cappuccino: Mix $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot espresso, 3 tablespoons Grand Marnier and 1 teaspoon honey. Pour $\frac{1}{4}$ cup frothed milk into an 8-ounce glass or cup, and then slowly pour in espresso mixture. Top with an orange twist.

Chocolate Cappuccino: Stir together $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot espresso, 3 tablespoons chocolate liqueur and $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon brown sugar. Pour into $\frac{1}{4}$ cup frothed milk in an 8-ounce cup or glass. Top with whipped cream; sprinkle with 1 teaspoon grated chocolate.

Story by Ann Iseman

Illustration by Steve Wolgast
and
Chris Assaf

Tipping tastefully: Avoid having lunch on your lap

Today's topic may interest those people who enjoy fine dining, yet either sneak away from the table without leaving a tip or insult the waiter or waitress by leaving too small of a tip.

To tactfully tip your waiter or waitress without embarrassment, follow these guidelines taken from Glamour magazine, "Paying the bill: Who to tip and how much."

Experts such as restaurant critics and owners agree that a 15 percent tip on the before or after-tax total is minimum for adequate service in an average restaurant, and 20 percent is

Food for Thought

SUSAN STAGGENBORG
Features
Editor

standard for good service in a more expensive restaurant.

Another good rule of etiquette is to also tip the waitress or bartender if you have a drink at the bar while waiting for your table. The general rule of thumb is 10 percent if you are sitting at the bar and 15 percent if waited on at your table. If the bill is carried over to your dinner tab, restaurants will give the bar staff a percentage of your overall tip.

On the other hand, if your service was inadequate, slow to arrive or the waitress dumped coffee on your lap, feel free if not cheap, to reduce or zero the tip.

The next question is the method of payment for your tip. Restaurants prefer to be paid in cash, because a credit card company takes two to three percent of the total bill as part of its service charge. The convenience of how to pay is left up to you.

For the real ritzy diners, coat checks and valet parking also take a bite out of your dinner bill. They too require tipping. A dollar per coat is the norm for coat checking, some places have a stated fee, if so you must pay that. There is usually a stated charge for valet parking. If no amount is specified, tip $2 or so, providing there are no new dents or scratches on your car.

If you are really dining uptown, washroom attendants also have their hands out. Most people object to tipping in the bathroom, but if the attendant hands you a towel or performs some other minimal service, a twenty-five cent tip would be adequate.

Finally, if you don't have cash, restaurants will often accept a personal check if you don't have a credit card. They more than likely will not make you wash the dishes as your father often told you. "Something can always be worked out," restaurant managers say.

Remember these guidelines as you dine out in Manhattan. But also remember, McDonald's is one place where you would not tip. Tip as you see fit but do not be among the many cheap tippers. Your next meal may land in your lap.

Voting for ambassadors begins today

Tammy Savaiano

Having the opportunity to share my enthusiasm and pride toward Kansas State University with people both within and outside of the University would be a thrilling honor!

As an ambassador my focus would be on the people at K-State. It is certainly true that the University has an impressive set of academic credentials, activities and opportunities. Nevertheless, if one only knew the facts about our University, they wouldn't be informed about a very important part of K-State — the people. The people here set us apart from other universities. Both faculty and students are genuinely concerned about personal growth as well as academic growth. They realize that individuals have different interests and needs. Thus, they encourage involvement within the individual colleges, campus interest groups and other clubs to allow personal exploration.

Encouraging people to become involved in activities is a priority to me. Through my participation in Ichus Christian Fellowship, Chimes Junior Honorary, Human Ecology Council and the Union Programming Council, I am familiar with the learning that takes place. My exposure to a wide variety of people has facilitated open-mindedness and active listening. I have become a more well-rounded person through my interaction with a wide variety of individuals. Because of the positive experience that I have had, I, in turn, want everyone to have the same opportunity at K-State.

While the University boasts a diverse group of people, a spirit of unity prevails on campus. We call it purple pride! I would be honored to share in this K-State spirit as an ambassador.

Connie Trentman

Look around! K-State is growing and progressing right before our eyes. Our student body is larger and stronger this year. Buildings are being constructed and renovated all over campus. And all eight colleges are better than ever, not only in the academic excellence they offer but also in the faculty and administration behind each college. All of this success at K-State this year gives us more to be proud of now than ever before.

The new ambassadors will have a bigger job this year because K-State has more to tell to prospective students as well as to alumni. They will be representing the feelings of success that we have about our University in order to renew pride and excitement about K-State in our alumni and to nurture hope and optimism in prospective students.

K-State is a unique university that offers the academic excellence of a major university in a warm, friendly atmosphere. These two qualities combine to make K-State one of the best universities in the Midwest. I am so proud and excited to be a part of K-State and would consider it an honor to represent our University as an ambassador.

Jeff Wing

I guess I have been a K-State enthusiast since I was old enough to watch a basketball game on television. I can well remember many celebrations when the Wildcats were victorious. When it came time to select a college where I could further my education, K-State seemed to be the only real choice. It has been a choice I know I will never regret.

K-State has provided me not only an excellent academic education but also a chance to develop my ideas, explore new areas of interests, meet a diverse and interesting group of peers and develop a real sense of belonging.

I would now like to relay my enthusiasm about what I have discovered at K-State to alumni who preceded me and prospective students who will hopefully find many of these same things at K-State in the future.

As a K-State ambassador, I think that I could communicate a positive view of K-State to alumni, prospective students and their parents, and campus visitors. It is only through this communication that people away from the campus can develop and maintain enthusiasm and support for what is happening at K-State.

I would like to become a part of the proud tradition that previous ambassadors have established. I would strive to uphold this tradition by portraying a vocal and enthusiastic advocate for Kansas State University.

Phil Kirk

Kansas State University has had a long tradition of excellence, and today that excellence is showing more than ever. The positive changes taking place on campus indicate that K-State is striving to maintain its reputation as one of the finest universities in the nation. It will be vital for the new ambassadors to enhance the success that KSU has enjoyed over the past few years. The ambassador's role is that of communication and interaction with alumni, parents, current students and, most importantly, the prospective student.

Potential students represent the future of the University. It will be these students who will continue to build on K-State's tradition of excellence.

Alumni also play an important role in the prosperity of the University. They not only provide much needed financial support but also show pride and enthusiasm in KSU by participating in University activities. They also instill this pride and enthusiasm in prospective students.

Parents play an important role in the decisions of their children. By making parents aware of the opportunities that KSU offers, this will make the transition from high school to college much easier for their children.

As an ambassador, I would take great pride in portraying the excellence of KSU and the commitment we have to the state of Kansas. It would be my goal to keep the enthusiasm and pride that K-State displays as it continues its commitment to success and excellence.

Janelle Larson

People are discovering one of the best-kept secrets in the country: K-State. Enrollment has increased, purple pride has returned and morale is high.

Apparently, K-State is doing something right. That something consists of many factors.

K-State is uniquely large enough to offer a variety of curricula and activities, but small enough to have that warm-hearted, personal touch. One has the opportunity to meet a wide variety of individuals with different backgrounds and ideals, but yet still feel like part of a united, friendly campus.

K-State has an outstanding academic record. We rate with the best in the number of Truman, Rhodes and Fulbright scholarships awarded, and many departments are leaders in their fields.

These factors have all led to a burst of enthusiasm and excitement for K-State. This spirit is spreading not only on campus but also with alumni and throughout the state.

This year's ambassadors will face the important task of representing the student body's pride and optimism for K-State's future to as many people as possible — especially prospective students and alumni. The support of these two groups is essential for the continuation of K-State's excellence.

As an ambassador, I would welcome the opportunity to share with others my pride and enthusiasm for our University.

Mark V. Lacy

Kansas State University is entering a new era: an era of progression and image adjustment. Increased enrollment and improved retention over the last two years indicate how our University is using change to exhibit growth and a new sense of direction. This new direction and growth is one of motivation, determination and enthusiasm for an institution that we as students can take pride in.

This is an exciting time to be a student at K-State. The potential for personal growth as well as watching KSU reach its educational, cultural and athletic goals is an indication that there has never been a better time to attend Kansas State. This fact, coupled with K-State's fresh image, demonstrates the need for an ambassador who understands where our University is headed.

The new ambassadors will need to use K-State's new direction to the fullest in the areas of student recruitment and when speaking with alumni. I think I have the ability to be just that kind of ambassador, one who has a strong sense of who the student body is and where the students want to take Kansas State in the future. As ambassador, I would portray KSU in the fashion that the student body wants: a portrayal of pride, excitement and movement into the future.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Top vote-getters to promote K-State

By The Collegian Staff

Voting for K-State's 1987-88 ambassadors starts at 9 a.m. and goes to 5 p.m. today and continues through Friday in the Union.

Students may vote for one female ambassador and one male ambassador. To vote, students must present a validated student identification card or a fee card.

Ambassadors represent the University at various functions on campus and around the state, promoting K-State's goals and programs.

The new ambassadors will be announced Saturday at half-time of K-State's homecoming game against the University of Oklahoma.

GARAGE SALE

Thousands of dollars of home-car-video will be put on sale starting Noon Wednesday, Oct. 14. All items will be sold on a cash basis. No layaway. No returns. All items limited to store stock.

STARTS NOON WEDNESDAY, OCT. 14

Sample List	Reg.	SALE
Maxell UR-90 Blank Cassette Tape	$2.99	99¢
Bring your old turntable needle and get a new one	$55 to 9.95	$9.95 to 99¢
Alpine 36 Watt Amp with Subout	$130.00	$78.00
Demo CDs	$15.00	$7.99
Audio Pulse Speaker Stands	$40.00 pr.	$29.88
American Acoustic Home Speaker	$100.00	$54.00 ea.
Cooustic HS-830 3 1/2 Dash Speaker	$49.95	$18.00 pr.
JVC 25" Color Monitor/Receiver	$649.00	$495.00
Sentry Fold Up Headphones	$12.95	$1.95
JVC Hipower Auto Reverse Dolby Car Deck	$350.00	$197.00
Majestic AM/FM Car Cassette	$79.95	$33.00
Walkman Portable Speaker System	$50.00	$14.50
Sony Walkman AM/FM Cassette	$52.95	$29.88

1126 Moro Aggieville 776-5507

JOB OPPORTUNITIES AT UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

OFFERS PART TIME POSITIONS
MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

EMPLOYEES EARN $8 HR.
LOADING/UNLOADING

SHIFTS AVAILABLE 4:15 a.m.-9 a.m.
WORKING 3-5 HOURS PER SHIFT

UNITED PARCEL SERVICE
is looking for service-minded people to join
the UPS team.

FOR INFORMATION CONTACT
Office of Financial Aid
Fairchild Hall Rm. 104
Equal Opportunity Employer

© 1987 United Parcel Service of America, Inc. All rights reserved.

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, October 14, 1987 ■ Page 9

'Midnight Madness' appears once more

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

This might be a rare example where the sequel is better than the original version.

The K-State men's basketball team will officially begin its 1987-88 campaign at 12:01 a.m. Thursday — the first minute of the National Collegiate Athletic Association allows practices to begin — in Ahearn Field House for "Midnight Madness II."

In Lon Kruger's first season at the helm, the Wildcats went 20-11 — defeated Georgia in a first-round match — before losing to Nevada-Las Vegas in the NCAA tournament. Since then, expectations have run high about this season's edition of the 'Cats.

So high, in fact, that 20 tents have been pitched in front of Ahearn in anticipation of the sale of student season tickets — even though they might not go on sale for another three weeks. Last year, only 14 tents were set up before student tickets were issued.

"Everybody wants to get good seats. Yeah, (this season's) going to be a blast," said Ben Frisch, freshman in political science and member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity. "The games are so intense...you just want to be near the floor."

Frisch's fraternity, currently 6th place in line, has been camping out since Oct. 9 — just a few hours behind the top five campers. Proving that some people will do just about anything for Wildcat basketball tickets, Frisch said the first night in front of Ahearn wasn't an easy one.

"We ran out here at two in the morning," he said. "We were driving by here and we saw some tents, freaked out, and ran over to camp out. We didn't even have tents. We had two mattresses by the door and it was freezing out."

Though many schools hold such sessions, Tory Head, administrative assistant for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics in charge of marketing and promotion, said "Cat fans will watch their team regardless of the situation."

"(Midnight practices are) not such a novelty anymore because so many schools do it, but here at Kansas State...I think people are going to come out to this practice regardless," Head said.

Head also predicts that this year's Midnight Madness will exceed last year's estimated attendance of 4,000 fans.

"We would love to fill Ahearn," Head said, "but we definitely anticipate more than last year."

"I think the anticipation of everybody coming off a (NCAA) tournament berth last year has definitely got the enthusiasm up," he added. "With some 20-odd tents setting out there waiting to buy student season tickets, and these kids don't even know the actual date they're going on sale, my feeling is the enthusiasm is very high, and they're anticipating great things from Coach Kruger and his team."

Kruger said the team is appreciative of K-State's support.

"Basketball crowds, especially the student body support in Ahearn for the last many, many years, has been as good as anywhere in the country."

It's pleasing to see that type of interest."

Kruger said he is as anxious as the fans to get the season underway.

"Everyone in every program, Oct. 15 is a date you point to because you enter the season with high hopes and high expectations, and everyone's feeling optimistic and positive," Kruger said.

Kruger said this edition of the 'Cats will be similar to last season's version.

"We'll be very similar in most ways — running offensively, pressing defensively, keeping pressure on both ends of the floor," he said. "We just hope to be able to execute each area of the game better than last year. If we can do that, hopefully we can make some progress."

Kruger said two big gaps to fill will be the departures of point guard Lynn Smith, and forward Norris Coleman, who elected to shun his last year of college eligibility for the NBA.

"It will be interesting to see...how quickly we find those replacements. That will go a long way in determining what type of year we have," Kruger said.

Doors open for the practice tonight at 11. Local businesses and organizations will give away prizes, an audience basketball shoot will be held, and a presentation of a sportsmanship award — voted on by Big Eight Conference officials — will be presented to the team. Two scrimmages will be staged by the team between the festivities.

Early campers stake ticket claim

By Brad Fanshier
Collegian Reporter

What could prove to be a long wait for student season basketball tickets has already begun outside of Ahearn Field House.

By Tuesday afternoon, 20 tents covered the lawn east of the field house, despite the fact that an official announcement on the starting date of ticket sales had not been made. Ticket manager Carol Adolph said the announcement would be made at the team's first practice at 12:01 Thursday morning, but no details could be given out until then.

Most of the campers did not seem bothered by the prospect of waiting as long as three weeks for tickets.

Stuart Puls, freshman in journalism and mass communications, and Scott Schultz, freshman in crop protection, both campers for Beta Sigma Psi fraternity, are enjoying their time in the tent.

"It's fun just to sit out here in the daytime and watch people go by," Puls said.

"Sitting out here is a change of pace from just going back and forth from class," Schultz said.

Puls said house members sign up for one hour shifts during the day or a night shift from 10 p.m. until 8 a.m. Participation in the camp-out is strongly recommended by house members, he said.

"If you want a ticket, you pretty much have to sign up," he said. "You don't have to tell me twice."

The first tent appeared Thursday shortly after 9 p.m., which is more than two weeks earlier than last year. Kappa Sigma fraternity members set up the first tent on a rumor that Farm-house members were planning to start camping Monday.

"We were the first last year, and we wanted to be the first this year," said Scott Cyphers, freshman in journalism and mass communications.

Ticket committee chairman Doug Folk said no details could be given out about the ticket-buying procedure until the Thursday morning practice.

Kent Trentman, junior in animal science, studies in a tent Monday evening near Ahearn Field House. Trentman is waiting for the sale of season basketball tickets to begin.

Jayhawks could glorify Wildcats

Mid-Week Commentary

TOM
PERRIN
Sports
Columnist

Ever get depressed thinking about K-State football?

Well, cheer up. Just think; you could have a season ticket to games at University of Kansas and be forced to put up with a team that may be even worse.

I admit it. I was a skeptic. I had read and heard about how pathetic KU was this year and how dismal the atmosphere was surrounding the Jayhawk football program. Still, I didn't feel I could make a judgment until I saw KU play at least once. After traveling to Lincoln and watching KU show few signs of life in losing to Nebraska 54-2, I'm convinced.

KU has one bad football team. Not good-bad, either. Awful-bad. The Jayhawks have displayed little, if any, offensive firepower this year en route to a 1-4 record. The KU defense has surrendered 175 points in five games.

November 7 is just around the corner, Wildcat fans. If K-State can keep from getting too beaten up in the next three weeks against Oklahoma, Nebraska and Oklahoma State, the 'Cats could be looking at a chance for victory number one against the hated rivals from Lawrence.

Just the mere mention of KU brings a smile to the face of K-State Coach Stan Parrish, no doubt with fond memories of last year's 29-12 shellacking of the Jayhawks. Still, Parrish isn't quite ready to start the traditional pre-KU hype.

"Well, I'm holding back. We've had a few little talks. I don't want to fuel the fire too early," Parrish said. "We're at the time of the season where the good Lord sometimes works in mysterious ways. A victory over (KU) later would kind of make things all right, wouldn't it?"

Even after denial of the possibility by Athletic Director Bob Frederick, there's still talk that KU Coach Bob Valesente might lose his job — especially if the Jayhawks can't pick up a win against either of its arch-rivals, K-State and Missouri.

While a win over a KU team that has already lost to Kent State and Louisiana Tech wouldn't exactly qualify as a monumental achievement, Parrish does have a point. A victory over KU would certainly mean something.

And with the kind of team KU has, a Wildcat win certainly is not out of reach. The Jayhawks are very young, for one thing. A true freshman, Kevin Verdugo has started at quarterback the last two weeks and another, Frank Hatchett, was the leading rusher in the Nebraska game.

Eleven freshmen are currently running first- or second-team for KU. You don't see good teams using anywhere near that many players without major-college experience. K-State — which has relied heavily on junior-college players for a supposed quick fix — has just four freshmen, two of whom are redshirts, running with the first two units.

But Valesente appears willing to take his lumps (and KU has taken plenty so far).

This year, however, KU has looked terrible.

Spikers defeated

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's women's volleyball team lost to perennial Big Eight Conference champion Nebraska Tuesday night, dropping the 'Cats record to 11-5 overall and 2-2 in the conference.

Nebraska, who has never relinquished the title since the inception of the Big Eight volleyball conference, defeated K-State in three games, 15-3, 15-5, 15-10.

The Huskers — having never lost a home match — have also remained unbeaten by Big Eight competition this season and have a 17-1 overall season record.

Combined with a seventh-place national ranking, K-State head volleyball coach Scott Nelson said the 'Huskers showed persistence against the 'Cats.

"Nebraska played tough. They got us into trouble and just kept after us," Nelson said. "In the first two games, we didn't look like a collegiate volleyball team, but Nebraska deserves a lot of credit for forcing us into some mistakes we don't usually make."

Squad anxious to take floor

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

Even before his team officially takes the floor for the first time this season at 12:01 a.m. Thursday, K-State men's basketball coach Lon Kruger said his team is tired.

"The players are tired of the pre-season conditioning," Kruger said. "They're tired of the running, weightlifting, even though they know it's good for them."

"They've been at it for five or six weeks, and they're ready to play basketball in front of some people."

Here is a player-by-player look, with Kruger's comments, at the 1987-88 Wildcats:

Mitch Richmond, 6-5, senior guard-forward. Averaged 18.6 points and 5.7 rebounds per game last season. "He's very selfish, very team-oriented. He makes the team around him better players."

Ron Meyer, 6-9, senior center. Averaged 3.7 points and 3.1 rebounds last year. "A young man who probably is in the best condition of his life."

Charles Bledsoe, 6-7, senior forward. Averaged 8.5 points and 5.7 rebounds last season. "I think we'll get good leadership from him on the floor."

William Scott, 6-2, senior guard. Averaged 13.9 points per game last season and was one of the NCAA leaders in three-point accuracy. "Shoots the ball as well as anyone in the country."

Mark Nelson, 5-11, senior guard. Shot 100 percent from the field in limited playing time and shot 77.8 percent from the line. "A young man who stepped into the point guard position last year when Lynn Smith was injured and gave us some good minutes."

Mark Dobbins, 6-5, junior guard. Averaged 4.5 points per game and 2.6 rebounds last season. "Is a hard-nosed individual...and just contributes in any way he possibly can."

Carlos Diggins, 6-4, junior guard-forward. Transfer from Butler County Community College in El Dorado. "Very hard-nosed, good worker. He's pretty versatile in that he can play the big guard or small forward spot."

Buster Glover, 6-0, junior guard. Transfer from Allen County Community College in Iola. "Adds a dimension of quickness that we don't really have anywhere else on our ball club."

Fred McCoy, 6-7, junior forward-center. Transfer from Allen County Community College. "A big guy in the middle who is a very good scorer with super hands. Will contribute...in the paint area."

Steve Henson, 6-1, sophomore guard. Averaged 7.5 points and shot 82.6 percent from the free throw line last season. "Did a very good job for us last year as a freshman and contributed a lot of different ways."

Fabio deAlmeida, 6-6, sophomore forward. Redshirt player from Brazil. "Shoots the ball well and works awfully hard."

Other players on the roster are John Rettiger (6-6, freshman forward), Lance Simmons (6-5, junior forward), Todd Stanfield (6-1, freshman guard), John Wright (5-11, junior guard) and Walter Wright (6-1, senior forward).

Cardinals stay alive in NL pennant race

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals finally found a way to win with no hitting. They stopped San Francisco from scoring and pitched their way into Game 7 of the National League playoffs.

John Tudor, Todd Worrell and Ken Dayley shut down the Giants on six hits Tuesday night and the Cardinals held on for a 1-0 victory.

NL Game 6
Cards 1, Giants 0

"I imagine we'll use the same lineup," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said. "Hell, we scored a run. But once again, we're not hitting the baseball."

The Cardinals managed just five hits and their run was tainted, coming after a fluke triple in the second inning. But it was good enough to avoid elimination.

A noisy crowd of 55,331 also got into the action, throwing a cowbell and a drink at Giants left fielder Jeffrey Leonard, who said Cardinals' fans were lousy and called St. Louis "a cow town."

Tudor worked around six hits and two walks in 7½ innings. Worrell came on to finish the eighth and struck out Will Clark leading off the ninth. When pinch-hitter Harry Spilman was announced, Herzog brought in left-hander Dayley and put Worrell in right field.

Dayley struck out pinch-hitter Chris Speier and got Jose Uribe on a grounder to end the game.

Standout defensive plays by center fielder Willie McGee and third baseman Terry Pendleton frustrated the Giants, thwarting their first trip to the World Series since 1962.

The Giants' defense made one mistake, and it was right fielder Candy Maldonado's slip on a line drive by Tony Pena leading off the second that cost them the game. Maldonado sunk to his knees, having lost the ball in the lights, and it sailed over his head for a triple. Jose Oquendo followed with a fly ball to Maldonado in medium right, and Pena ran around catcher Bob Melvin's tag to score.

Board of Education debates proposal over sex education

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The debate over a proposed sex education program in Kansas schools was resumed with renewed vigor Tuesday at a Board of Education public hearing, with supporters saying teenagers need the course and opponents contending that it could undermine student morals.

More than 40 people testified at the public hearing on the regulation that would require school boards to provide human sexuality courses at the elementary and secondary levels, which would include information about sexually transmitted disease.

If the Board of Education passes the regulation, Kansas will be one of five states requiring sex education in its schools.

"Your leadership in this issue was and is courageous, and it has been recognized nationwide," Carolyn Schmitt, representing the Kansas National Education Association, told the committee.

She said KNEA is aware of students' needs for information about sexuality and sexually transmitted disease.

"Some students receive it through home and church," she said. "Too many do not. We cannot allow, and society cannot afford, to educate one more generation of students with such a serious gap in their knowledge."

Schmitt called the proposed regulation "a moral imperative. If even one student dies from lack of information, from lack of knowledge we could have provided, then we have acted immorally in withholding that information."

Belva Ott, representing Topeka Planned Parenthood, said not enough students are learning about sexual behavior in churches. "That's why the schools have to do it," she said.

She said abstinence is the best protection against unwanted pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases, "but that doesn't always happen and that's the real world."

Bob Williams, representing the Kansas Commission for the Prevention of Child Abuse, welcomed the proposed regulation, saying that "teaching a child about human sexuality is the same as teaching a child about sexual abuse."

Richard Funk, assistant executive director of the Kansas Association of School Boards, urged the Board of Education to create an advisory committee to study teacher certification, accountability and curriculum.

Local school board members are concerned about the content of the course, he said. "Do all moral values have to be taught or no moral values?" he asked the board.

Kathy Deremer of Topeka, a mother and former teacher, was critical of the board because it did not include teaching sexual abstinence as part of its guidelines for the proposed program.

"Until you put some meat on the weak bones of this mandate, until you adopt guidelines which would require the curriculum to convey abstinence and monogamy and which wouldn't teach that homosexuality is an acceptable lifestyle, well personally, I'll hold my applause," Deremer said.

V. L. Holsteen, a Topeka clinical social worker, told the committee that the AIDS epidemic could be the worst crisis the nation has ever faced.

He warned the board that sex education must include accurate information. "This does not mean value-free lifestyles nor safe sex, for there is no safe sex with this killer virus taking advantage of promiscuity," he said. "This education must emphasize sexual abstinence as the preferred and really only safe way of avoiding the AIDS virus."

Tasmanian visits K-State

Counselor examines program

By Ann Iseman
Collegian Reporter

Tasmania is the tiny heart-shaped island state of Australia, and Grace Griffith has come from there to the United States to study peer counseling.

One of her several stops in the United States is K-State, which Griffith said has excellent programs in peer counseling.

"I've been to several places and haven't seen a single peer-counseling program like the one here," she said.

Griffith, a student counselor with a master's degree in education, received a Fulbright Fellowship which enabled her to make the trip.

Fulbright scholarships are given to people from other countries who need to see or study something in the United States which cannot be seen or studied in any other place, said Griffith. The award is a combination of grants from the United States and the country in which the recipient lives.

There are no peer-counseling programs at Rosny College in Tasmania, where Griffith teaches, except for the few she started. She plans to use the information from her trip to improve her own programs and to possibly implement some new programs.

After traveling halfway across the United States, Griffith said she has learned that being in a big city like New York is scary and impersonal, and that Midwesterners are friendly and go out of their way to help others.

She also said Americans work hard and don't make enough money for the work they do.

"I am very impressed with Americans. They drive themselves. I was surprised at the hours people worked and the free time they gave up for their students. It's extraordinary," Griffith said.

Griffith has been to Washington, D.C., Maryland State University,

Collegian/Paul Noel

Grace Griffith, a student counselor from Rosny College in Tasmania, Australia, and a Fulbright fellow, discusses with the administration students employed by the University.

Memphis State University, New York, Yale University, the University of Massachusetts, Northeast Missouri State and the University of Missouri at Columbia before coming to K-State last Friday.

Griffith described U-Learn, the phone information system run by students, as "unique."

"My philosophy is that kids will ask their friends first. If they're going to ask their friends, we might as well put them to use and train them to know how to answer," she said.

Griffith is also impressed with K-State's peer-teaching programs, such as the remedial learning skills classes.

This type of program is extremely important and should not be devalued, because it benefits both the students being taught and the students who are trained to do the teaching, she said.

"The benefit to the students being trained (as leaders) is enormous," she said.

Forum

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

the health fee are those living outside a 30-mile radius from campus.

The committee also discussed making two other groups of students exempt: the military, which pays a health fee at Fort Riley, and those students in the Health Maintenance Organization Kansas program in Manhattan, because they are paying twice for the same services.

Setting a minimum limit on the amount of money in the student health fund reserves was another issue discussed. The minimum ensures a certain amount of money will be available to use throughout the summer.

Unbeatable.

When you train to be a United States Marine, you train like nobody else. You sweat. You push. You exceed limits you never thought possible. Because you train to be one thing. Unbeatable! If you've got a taste for winning, contact your Marine Officer Selection Office. They are accepting applications from college freshmen, sophomores, and juniors.

Call 1-841-1821 (collect).

Wichita Family Planning Inc.

Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

Marie's Costumes

Rental Costumes for all Occasions

Ball Gowns—Tuxedos

Wedding Gowns

October Hours

M-S 10-6, Thurs. 10-8:30, Sun. 1-4

1631 Humboldt

539-5200

UPC

UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

ROCK&ROLL ROCK&ROLL CONFIDENTIAL

DAVE MARSH

The stories behind Live Aid, USA for Africa and Sun City—Rock on trial—how congressmen's wives plan to dictate what records you can buy.

DAVE MARSH, former editor of Rolling Stone Magazine—America's best known rock writer will speak on these topics and more.

October 20, 1987

8 p.m.

Forum Hall

Free Admission

K-state union
upc issues & ideas

SAVE TRAVEL TRAVEL TRAVEL BUCKS!

GET YOUR I.D. CARD ON CAMPUS!

Traveling Abroad? Get your International Student I.D. in the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday-Friday. Cost: $10. It's good through December 1988! Save on airfare, tickets, hotels, and lots more!

K-state union
upc travel

COORS LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

Featuring: David Naster and Taylor Manson

Thursday, October 29, 1987

8 p.m. McCain Auditorium

Tickets on sale now in the Union Activities Center and McCain Box Office. Admission is $2. Tickets may also be purchased the night of the show in the McCain Auditorium Box Office.

K-state union
upc select entertainment

PERSONA

While convalescing from a severe mental breakdown, a renowned actress becomes abnormally dependent upon her nurse. Both disturbing and poetic, this is the most controversial film of Director Ingmar Bergman. Unrated.

Tonight 7:30
Forum Hall
Tomorrow 3:30 p.m.
Little Theatre 7:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.75, KSU I.D. Required, Unrated.

K-state union
upc kaleidoscope

PROJECT X

Following orders Isn't the only way to become a hero.

In this suspenseful contemporary thriller, Matthew Broderick stars as Jimmy Garrett, a brash Air Force pilot whose monkeyshines continually land him in hot water. His reassignment to a top-secret training project introduces him to Virgil, a highly intelligent chimpanzee being used in military experiments. When he learns the shocking truth, Garrett also learns that following orders isn't the only way to become a hero.

October 16 & 17, Friday and Saturday 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Union Forum Hall $1.75, KSU I.D. Required, Rated PG.

K-state union
upc feature films

Speaker explores ideological differences

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

Both China and Taiwan have set up different orders than those which previously existed, but in the process they have established different and non-converging ideologies, said Ramon H. Myers, professor at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University.

Myers, the first speaker of a public lecture series on China, talked about the developing and different ideologies of China and Taiwan to about 50 people Tuesday in the Union.

Myers said the principal difference between China and Taiwan is China's society being structured around an uninhibited political center. Taiwan's society is structured around an inhibited political center. The difference between the two is the relationship the political center has with the civil society, he said.

China's uninhibited political center is a group of power holders with enormous power, he said. They gain this power by redistributing and nationalizing property rights and controlling the exchange of goods and services. This enables the center to control civil society.

The inhibited political center of Taiwan, however, doesn't have complete control over society, Myers said. The center is "checked" by different groups in society, making the center fundamentally different.

He said Taiwan has a productive, vital economy and an extremely productive society with an improved distribution of assets.

"There are far more transactions in the civil society in Taiwan," he said. "It's very different in mainland China where the costs of transactions are structured by the state and the cost is also much higher."

Transactions in China structured by the state include the distribution of markets and private property and the manner in which an organizational network is set up, Myers said.

In Taiwan, private markets are allowed to function, private property is distributed widely and private organizations and networks flourish, he said.

"The difference is a set of institutional rules," Myers said.

Mainland China has had two main thought patterns, he said.

The first thought pattern—transformative thought—was dominant during the 1950s. Transformative thought was a drastic institutional thought pattern in which an abrupt and quick change in society was desired, Myers said.

"They (Socialist Party members) wanted to bring about the good society (the ideal socialist society) in a few years instead of 100 years, and they wanted to do it by the way people interacted with one another and the way they worked," he said.

Accommodative thought is the second thought pattern which has prevailed in communist China since 1978, Myers said.

It is a more gradualistic way of thinking, he said. Socialists hope to bring the country closer to socialism in a more gradual way over a period of 100 years or more.

The accommodative way of thinking was adopted because Socialists saw transformative thought was not working, Myers said. The economy was poor, and there was a lot of waste in the economy.

Although there is hope outside of China that it will develop a "capitalist road," he said he is not so optimistic about the situation, and sees the leadership clinging to the uninhibited center.

"I see this leadership dedicated to bringing about socialism."

Arias

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

opposition newspaper to reopen and the three governments facing insurgencies have begun talks with their opponents.

The State Department said the choice of Arias was "well-deserved recognition for his efforts to bring peace and democracy to Central America" and "has our continued support."

House Speaker Jim Wright, a Texas Democrat who joined Reagan in offering a separate U.S. peace proposal for Central America, said the Arias plan "is now bearing the fruits of peace and hope in Central America after so many years of war and despair."

Norway has chosen the Peace Prize winner since the annual Nobel awards began in 1901 under terms of the will of Alfred Nobel, the Swedish chemist who invented dynamite and amassed a fortune. Writer Elie Wiesel won it last year.

On Monday, the Swedish committee chose Susumu Tonegawa of Japan for the 1987 prize in medicine for his discoveries on genes that control the body's immune system.

Bomb

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

capital. Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the missile was aimed at the Iraqi Defense Ministry in revenge for an air raid Monday in Lorestan, a western province where it said a school was bombed.

The Iraqi News Agency quoted the military spokesman, who as usual was not identified, as saying: "The Iranians have exposed their lies by making such a statement, for the primary school they hit, where a number of pupils met martyrdom, was very far from the Iraqi Ministry of Defense."

Iran normally uses Soviet-made

Scud-B surface-to-surface missiles in its attacks and they cannot be aimed precisely.

This one hit a house facing the school, starting a fire and sending debris flying into the schoolyard, the witnesses reported. They said its force undermined the school's foundation and parts of the structure collapsed.

Jassim, the principal, said the pupils had completed a regular morning parade in the yard and most had reached their classrooms.

Default

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Thursday, said spokesman John Cavanagh. Public Service has a 30-day grace period during which it can pay up. During the period, creditors cannot take any action against the company, such as filing for involuntary bankruptcy reorganization, Charles Bayless, the company's financial vice president, said Tuesday.

The suspension was effective Tuesday, Cavanagh said. He would not comment further on the meeting.

"This is a real major event," said Dan Scotto, utility analyst with L.F. Rothschild of New York. "There's been a real strong belief in the analytical community that utilities don't default."

"It's going to send people back to the drawing board and look differently at utilities, the same way people looked differently at utilities after Three Mile Island," Scotto said, referring to the Pennsylvania plant that in 1979 was site of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident. Public Service has been pushed to the brink of bankruptcy by its $2.1 billion investment in the $5 billion Seabrook nuclear plant.

State law prohibits utilities from charging for plants until they operate commercially, and Seabrook, though loaded with nuclear fuel, has been kept from starting by evacuation planning snags and strident opposition.

Company officials have said they expected creditors would file involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against Public Service if the company defaulted. But they hope a bankruptcy judge would encourage creditors to hold off action and give the company's proposed $1.1 billion debt restructuring plan a chance to work.

The plan, one of three steps the company has taken to avoid filing for reorganization under the Federal Bankruptcy Code, essentially would swap old debt for new. The company also is seeking a 15 percent emergency rate increase and is cutting costs.

Without the rate increase, the company says it will run out of cash by the end of the year.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

Trial

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

forum, it was not covered by the First Amendment. Later, the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the ruling, contending the newspaper was a public forum.

Adams said the fact the Court currently has only eight justices could work to the advantage of the students.

"What makes this very real to students is that the Court can tie now," he said. "If there is a tie, the Court of Appeals vote will stand—in favor of the students."

Adams said he was certain the decision would not result in an 8-0 vote.

"My guess is it could be 4-4 or 5-3," he said.

During the hearing, Adams said, "there were strong sentiments expressed on both sides."

Adams said Justice Antonin Scalia seemed to be leaning in favor of the school officials, with associate justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Thurgood Marshall, William Brennan and John Paul Stevens leaning toward the students' side. Chief Justice William Rehnquist seemed undecided, he said.

He said without nominee Robert Bork on the Court, the chances for a vote in favor of the students were greater.

"We assumed Bork would have been against us, because many of his past votes tended to be that way," he said.

The Supreme Court will not rule on the case until December or January, Adams said.

Tonight
Pitchers $2.10
Draws 85¢
On tap: Coors Light,
Budweiser, Old Milwaukee
"Your Discount Beer Barn"
Now Open on Sundays
Rt. 5 537-3133
"The Finest Little Tavern By A Dam Site"

SNIP N' CLIP
HAIRCUT SHOPS®
MIDWEST'S FAVORITE HAIRCUTTERS

WORLD'S GREATEST HAIRCUT $6

OSCAR WINNING CUTS, STYLES, PERMS

Under 12 KIDS KUT $5

OPEN NIGHTS & SUNDAYS. JUST DROP IN!
36 LOCATIONS—VILLAGE PLAZA—MANHATTAN 539-4043

Optometrists
Dedicated to Optometry in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs. Price, Young, Odle and Horsch
1119 Westloop 537-1118

HOMEcoming
87 Here Come The Cats!

Buttons and Bumper Stickers on sale in the Union today!

Buttons $1
Bumper Stickers 25¢
Ambassador voting starts today!

WET 'N' WILD
MOBILE HOT-TUBS
776-0203

HOMEcoming IS THIS WEEKEND MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS NOW!

WE ARE ONLY A PHONE CALL AWAY

Medical advice is as close as your telephone. If you are uncertain whether your condition is something you can take care of yourself or whether you need to see a physician, you can call LAFENE HEALTH CENTER, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Our professional staff will advise you on the best course of action—either home care or medical care at our facility. The next time you are uncertain what to do, call 532-6544—we are only a phone call away.

SAFEWAY

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202

New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

Specials Oct. 14-20

Coca-Cola 99¢
2 liter bottles

Chef Boyardee Pizza 79¢
10 oz. packages, assorted

Old Milwaukee $3.39
12 pack/12 oz. cans

Heinz Keg-O-Ketchup 89¢
Quart bottle

Check cashing with student I.D.

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Boyd, Clovia, Edwards, Off Campus

Oct. 15: Edwards, Ford, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Houseplants Clearance!

HELP!!! Due to unseasonably cool weather, we have been forced to move our HUGE inventory of healthy foliage indoors. All plants in 10" pots or smaller have been reduced by 25% to 50%! Includes low light plants, hanging baskets, blooming plants, cactus, and the latest varieties grown from tissue culture. Please HURRY!!!

Eastside or Westside Market
east of downtown Manhattan on Hwy. 24 • west of 18 by Holiday Inn.

'Persona' demands viewers attention

Swedish film drains audience's emotion

By Ann Iseman
Collegian Reporter

From the very beginning of "Persona," director Ingmar Bergman demands the involvement of the viewer.

Both emotionally draining and intellectually taxing, this is not a film meant for light-hearted entertainment. Bergman doesn't give the viewer a chance to stop thinking; every minute of the film cries out to be interpreted and no absolutes are placed on the interpretations.

A few sequences are dream-like; the characters aren't sure if the events are real and neither is the audience.

Film Review

Other scenes are very real in their effect on the viewer. Scenes of a nail being driven through a man's hand, a man being burned alive as a crowd watches; scenes which are hard to watch without feeling, without grimacing in pain, disgust, or horror. The film revolves around two women: one, a successful actress who recently suffered a mental breakdown, and the other a friendly, unassuming nurse assigned to look after her.

The relationship between these two women is the focus of the film, and the relationship captivates the viewer with its uncertainties.

At the beginning, the actress, Elisabeth Vogler, played by Liv Ullman, seems unable to talk and has withdrawn from the world. The nurse, Alma, played by Bibi Andersson, is unsure of her ability to help the actress. Alma fears she isn't strong enough. She says to the doctor that anyone who can choose not to move or speak at will must possess a great strength.

If so, Liv Ullman, who stars in several of Bergman's films, is a strong actress, for she portrays an emotionally distraught woman with no speaking lines. Despite her silence, the viewer is not lost; her reactions are clear with the help of her moody pantomime.

The viewer may think the director wasn't sober when editing the film, or the viewer may recognize the poignancy which the repetition gives to the scene.

The movie is Swedish, with English subtitles, which does have a negative effect. The viewer may miss some of the moving imagery and fail to appreciate the visual quality of the film while trying to read the lines, many of which are difficult to read because of poor editing.

As the film progresses, the personalities of the two women seem to switch, or merge, or change. The interpretation is dependent upon the personal connotations attached by the individual viewer.

wasn't sober when editing the film, or the viewer may recognize the poignancy which the repetition gives to the scene.

The nurse is talking to the actress about the actress' hate and revulsion toward her own son. During the nurse's monologue, the viewer may have the feeling the nurse is speaking about herself, or about her subconscious fear and guilt as a result of an earlier abortion.

The viewer has the unique experience of seeing each woman's face during the same emotional scene without missing a single expression of either woman.

The ending is inconclusive. The viewer is left to make his own decision: What really happened and what was dreamed?

Rugby club, 'unique' band co-host benefit

By The Collegian Staff

The Bon Ton Soul Accordion Band teamed with the rugby club in a rugby benefit at Brother's tavern Tuesday night.

More than 300 people were expected to attend, said Dave Todd, president of the rugby club. About 200 pre-sale tickets were sold and the club anticipated an additional 100 people throughout the event.

The Bon Ton band has played at the last three rugby benefits.

"People are beginning to associate the band with our club," Todd said. "They play a different sound that most people in Manhattan don't get to hear often."

"People are beginning to associate the band with our club."

—Dave Todd

The group is based in Kansas City, Mo., and specializes in its own Cajun-flavored brand of rhythm and blues. The band, led by accordionist Rich Lucente, has a history of giving unpredictable, unique shows. Much of the band's material is written by Lucente.

Ticket sales cover the cost of the band, Todd said, adding that most of the evening's profits would come from an auction. Manhattan merchants donated various merchandise to be auctioned.

"We have everything from comic books to women's lingerie," said Tim Dougan, social secretary for the club. "We are really pleased with the selection and happy with the patrons for their support."

Money from the biannual auction helps the club meet its $8,000 a year budget.

"Our main source of income is $35 a semester dues from each of the 55 members," Todd said. "Student Senate gives us $540 a year, which pays for things like referees and equipment. The auctions help us pay for tournament entry fees."

Todd said the club was playing in the Heart of America tournament in Kansas City this weekend, adding that money from Tuesday night's benefit would defray the cost of attending.

Cold weather rule effective Nov. 15

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Kansas Corporation Commission reminded consumers Tuesday its cold weather rule, which is designed to avoid cutting off utilities during winter months, takes effect Nov. 15.

The rule, adopted in 1983, allows consumers to inform their utilities that they cannot pay their entire electricity or natural gas bill and reach agreement with the company on a payment schedule. Customers must agree to go on the level payment plan for one year, and must pay one-fourth of their most recent bill, or a minimum $45, plus half of any past due bills.

Customers also must agree to apply for any governmental funds to pay their utilities bills to which they might be entitled.

The cold weather rule is in effect until next March 31.

New members to be honored, inducted into Ag Hall of Fame

By The Associated Press

BONNER SPRINGS — Three farm leaders of the past will be inducted into the Agricultural Hall of Fame at Bonner Springs Friday.

The three people being honored with plaques explaining their importance to agriculture and rural life are John Deere, J. Sterling Morton and Louise Stanley.

Former Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, executive vice president and general manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, will speak at the induction Friday afternoon. The three inductees will join 22 others previously honored for their contributions to agriculture.

Deere, who died in 1886, was a Vermont blacksmith who eventually manufactured plows on a big scale in Moline, Ill., after forming his own company in 1868. The company's products are now sold in more than 100 countries.

Morton, once a reporter for the Detroit Free Press, served as agriculture secretary under President Grover Cleveland and originated Arbor Day.

Stanley, who died in 1954, served as chairman of the Department of Home Economics at the University of Missouri and led a campaign to establish a national Department of Home Economics. She was the first head of the Home Economics Division of the Department of Agriculture.

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Express Your Appreciation!

Recognize Bosses' Day
Fri., Oct. 16

BALLOON
BOUTIQUE

401 N. 3rd
539-0106 Mon-Sat. 8:30-5
We Deliver

Edelaine's
421 Poyntz
776-4498

- Wedding Gowns
- Brides' Rental
- After Five Wear
- Poshable Shoes
- Gloves & Handbags
- Runestone Jewelry

108 M.E.
106 S.W. U.S. Sub

TV Listings

By TV Data

WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 14, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00 " "	TBA	" "	My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook	Little House on the Prairie
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Volleyball: U.S. vs.	Movie: "Sybil"
10:00 Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore Dick Van	Body Electric Write Course	Andy Griffith Soap	U.S.S.R.	" "
11:00 Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Communi. Window on a	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Basketball (International): U.S. vs. Philip-	Movie: "Safari"
1:00 Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Nova	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	U.S. vs. Philip-	" "
2:00 " "	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobles Zoo	McLaughlin Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	Yachting: Lib-World Sports	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00 Baseball P.O.	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00 " "	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravestar	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravestar	Water Skiing	Munsters Laverne
5:00 Family Ties	News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook PGA Tour	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00 News	News	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Barney Miller	SportsCenter Sports	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00 Highway To Heaven	Oldest Rookie	P. Strangers Head Of The	Hill Street Blues	Great Perf.	Movie: "Eyes- itness"	Windsurfing Splash	Movie: "Mid-way"
8:00 Year Life / 30 Baseball P.O.	Magnum P.I.	Hooperman Slap Maxwell	Movie: "The Magnificent"	" "	" "	Top Rank Boxing: Tim	" "
9:00 St. Elsewhere	Equalizer	Dynasty	Seven	" "	News INN News	Witherspoon vs. Mike Wil-	Movie: "Om-ega Man"
10:00 News	News Cheers	News ABC News	Late Show	Wild America Business Rpt.	H'mooner Magnum, P.I.	iams SportsCenter	" "
11:00 Ent. Tonight	Diamonds	Special: Capital to Capital	Dating Game	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie: "The Karate: ISKA"	Sports Karate: ISKA	Movie: "The Dallas Cow-
12:00 David Letterman	Magnet of Santa Mesa	700 Club	"The Mouse that Roared"	Sign-Off	"Prince of the City"	North American Wrestling	boy Cheer-leaders

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.

* No abbreviations, please.

* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.

* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.

* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.

* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.40	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.00
17	2.55	3.55	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

1987

First Annual

Wildcat

Tip-Off Classic

3 on 3 Basketball Tournament

October 31-November 1

Ahearn Field House

West Gymnasium

MEN'S AND WOMEN'S BRACKETS
open to Campus Organizations,
faculty and living groups

Team entry forms and additional information available at:
Union Candy Counter, Ahearn 101 or Hollis House
(corner of Denison and Claflin)

Registration Deadline: October 23
at Ahearn 101 or Hollis House

Sponsored by:

KSU
Student Foundation

ICAT

Students That Back The Cats

American company exports chopsticks overseas to Japan

By The Associated Press

HIBBING, Minn. — A Minnesota factory on Tuesday shipped its first truckloads of chopsticks to Japan, a venture the company president acknowledged would remind some of "taking coals to Newcastle."

About 100 visitors and 45 workers were on hand to applaud the first shipment from the high-tech Lakewood Forest Products Ltd. plant in northern Minnesota's depressed iron mining country.

"It's just kind of festive here today," said Dorothy Ylatupa, the plant secretary. "We're passing out chopsticks and instructions on how to eat with them."

The Japanese discard 130 million pairs of disposable chopsticks daily, a volume that has put a strain on the country's traditional, labor-intensive manufacturing methods, said Ian Ward, president of Lakewood.

In addition, Japan's stock of chopstick-quality wood is dwindling.

"Shipping chopsticks to Japan may sound to some people a bit like taking coals to Newcastle, except that in this case the coals are quickly running out," Ward said.

And the Hibbing plant can beat Japanese chopsticks makers on price by relying on the locally available aspen trees. The wood has a clean, white appearance that the Japanese like, said plant manager Scott Karpinen said.

Lakewood's $5 million plant opened in August 1986 with its owners aiming to eventually produce 7 million pairs of chopsticks daily for sale in the Far East, primarily to Japanese restaurants.

High-speed wood dryers and a computerized cutting system designed by a Danish manufacturer enable the plant to make chopsticks up to seven times faster than traditional Japanese plants, said Karpinen.

Having overcome manufacturing flaws that made the first year's products unacceptable to discriminating Japanese buyers, the plant is now able to produce about 1 million chopsticks a day that are deemed acceptable.

The production process ends with a computerized quality-control check that sifts out rejects with the use of fiber optics, Karpinen said.

Ward said daily production will be stepped up to 7 million within a few months.

Ole Koester, a design engineer for Stormax International, the company from Copenhagen, Denmark, that created the machinery, has said he doesn't know of another plant that has the capacity to produce 1.6 billion chopsticks a year.

The plant also represents a counter-punch to foreign competition that has reduced the number of steel industry jobs in the United States.

Unemployed miners and other Iron Range workers flooded the plant with more than 3,000 applications for the hiring of the first 32-member crew last year.

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. We desperately need tutors in Algebra. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (35-39)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

ONE BEDROOM, available Jan. 1, water and trash paid, less than one block from campus, $275 per month, must assume lease, 539-1686. (35-39)

NICE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments. Very close to campus. Available Nov. 1. Please call 776-9124. (3711)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211)

NICE, LARGE one- and two-bedroom apartments in Westloop area. Please call 776-9124. (3711)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 CAPRICE Classic, $400. Call 539-2776. (36-39)

1979 GPR P13 L.L. full power, tilt, cruise, AM/FM cassette, excellent condition, $2,950, 776-8488. (37-39)

1985 CHEVY S-10, 42,000 miles, air conditioning, four-cylinder, F.I., tilt, cruise, five-speed, AM-FM cassette, $6,500, 257-3440, evenings. (37-38)

EMPLOYMENT 09

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

OVERSEAS JOBS 09

summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000/month. Sightseeing, visa information. Write H.C. P.O. Box 62-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-46)

AEROBIC LEADER vacancy at the KSU Rec Complex. Must be a student carrying 6 or more hours. Certification is desired, but not required. Previous teaching experience highly recommended. Must be available Mondays through Thursdays from 5:20-6:30 p.m. Interested individuals are to apply in person at the Rec Complex administrative office during business hours before 12 noon on Thursday, Oct. 8th. (3211)

ENJOY CHILDREN? Bus driver for KSU Child Care Coop needed immediately, previous experience preferred. Class B license required. Hours 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Apply at L9 Jardine Terrace, Manhattan, Nancy Bolson, director. Closing date Oct. 16th. EOE. (34-37)

EXPERIENCED COOK for group of 60 individuals. For more information or to set up an interview, please call 539-8680 after 6 p.m. or 537-4495 and leave message. (35-39)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts. Others. Information (534) 541-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-59)

NATIVE KANSAS family seeks full-time nanny/housekeeper to live-in from January to June 1988 in Washington, D.C. area. Caring for two-year-old boy. Transportation, salary, room and board included. Female, non-smoker, send resume to: Mr. and Mrs. Cab Grayson, 4751 N. 34th Road, Arlington, VA 22207. Call (703) 241-3746. (35-39)

LOST AND FOUND 14

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on I-70 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spraying. Answers to "Abby" 537-0646. (32-39)

LOST: WOMEN'S brown Dexter shoes, size 9. Reward. 532-3063. (36-37)

FOUND: BICYCLE—Identify and pay for this ad. 537-1703. (37-39)

LOST: WOMAN'S gold ring with small diamond, lost Sunday afternoon somewhere between Seaton and Goodnow or Marlatt. Reward. Call Michelle, 532-5349. (37-39)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

PHASE LINEAR 1000 noise reduction unit, Kenwood KX-1030 cassette deck, 2 HP 100 speakers, Akai 1810 reel to reel, Technics SL-1310 turntable, Pioneer SA 9500 II amp with matching tuner. Call 784-3937 after 6 p.m. (32-37)

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (3211)

FOR SALE, refrigerator: only been used one semester, perfect for dorm. 776-7986. (35-39)

ClassAds

532-6555

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

is looking for full-time and part-time help in their food court. Apply in Management Office behind Service Area B. $3.50 per hour

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South Padre Island, Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-282-6221. (35-44)

Petland

CAREERS IN PETS

First rate opportunity to become part of the professional staff in a brand new pet store. Petland is looking for people who love animals and think work should be stimulating. Emphasis on animal care and customer service. Positions open include store management, bird and fish department management, pet sales counselors and animal care technicians. Full-service pet center carries birds, dogs, cats, tropical fish and a complete range of pet supplies. Experience helpful but not required. Training provided. Opportunities for advancement through nationwide company.

Apply in person at Petland 1325 Poyntz, Oct. 14, 15 & 16 from 1 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

WE SEEK entrepreneur business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

MCDONALD'S AT 815 N. 3rd is looking for hard-working, motivated, energetic people. Breakfast and all-day shift positions are available. Hours are very flexible. Please apply in person. Applications will be taken at your convenience on the 13th and 14th. (36-37)

MANHATTAN CABLE TV6 has an immediate opening for a dedicated reliable individual to work as a production assistant, approximately 20 hours per week. Knowledge of video production is essential. Job will include some evening and weekend work. Applicants may inquire at Manhattan Cable TV, 610 Humboldt, Manhattan. No phone calls please. (36-38)

RETAIL SALES clerk for afternoons and weekends. Sales experience preferred. Bring resume to 1212 Moro, Aggieville. (37-39)

NETWORK MARKETING! The wave of the future! You choose earnings and hours, 776-3759 after 6 p.m. (37-41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-6389. (311)

FOUR BEDROOMS, two baths, double-car garage, patio with gas grill. One block west of campus. 776-6882 or 776-2373. (35-39)

THREE-BEDROOM, unfurnished, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. No pets. Available now. Call 539-5404. (37-41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

NICE 1981 Redman mobile, 14 x 70, three bedrooms, central air, ceiling fan, big deck. Call 539-7103. (36-39)

LOST AND FOUND 14

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on I-70 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spraying. Answers to "Abby" 537-0646. (32-39)

LOST: WOMEN'S brown Dexter shoes, size 9. Reward. 532-3063. (36-37)

FOUND: BICYCLE—Identify and pay for this ad. 537-1703. (37-39)

LOST: WOMAN'S gold ring with small diamond, lost Sunday afternoon somewhere between Seaton and Goodnow or Marlatt. Reward. Call Michelle, 532-5349. (37-39)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

PHASE LINEAR 1000 noise reduction unit, Kenwood KX-1030 cassette deck, 2 HP 100 speakers, Akai 1810 reel to reel, Technics SL-1310 turntable, Pioneer SA 9500 II amp with matching tuner. Call 784-3937 after 6 p.m. (32-37)

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (3211)

FOR SALE, refrigerator: only been used one semester, perfect for dorm. 776-7986. (35-39)

PYRAMID PIZZA

All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m. 539-4888

WE PILE IT ON!

LAST CHANCE...

to join at our annual renewal rate!

Save almost 30% DO IT TODAY!

Nautilus 776-1654

1100 Moro

DANCE, DANCE, DANCE

to the sounds of "Full House"

Well known vocal band

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment 17th & Anderson, 539-7581

1953 MERCEDES kit car, 20 meg disk with tape backup, popcorn cart, amber monitor, 1980 Arrow $800. 539-4121. (37-41)

X-MEN #1, Spiderman #1, Daredevil #1, plus more comics! Buying scrap gold rings/jewelry. Manhattan Coins and Collectables. 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (37-39)

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects 30% Off 327 Poyntz 776-7983

Cuddleskin.

Luxurious satin on the outside cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville Open 7 days

NO PAIN, NO GAIN

Firm and tone muscles. Lose inches the relaxing way. No membership fee—first visit free

Candlewood Plaza 3232 Kimball 776-3308

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

PERSONALS 18

WILDCAT TIPOFF Classic—men and women three on three basketball tournament, Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms available at Union candy counter, Hollis House, Ahearn 101. (35-37)

BLUE MONTE Carlo (Gove) would like to meet you for ice cream. Aggieville TCBY Thursday, 9:00 your I-70, Silver 302X friend. RSVP. (37)

JANA IN Poetry class: Roses are red, and violets are blue; I'm unattached, how about you? —Guy in poetry class. (36-37)

HEY LAMBDA—White roses, pearls and poms we share, a team like ours is a find that's rare, we really are quite a pair. Other teams beware, that Homecoming trophy is ours to share! —The KDS. (37)

AMY—U Big B! Have a wild 19th birthday! We'll go get Steve for you! Love, the Three B's! (37)

JEFF W.—Good luck! I know you'd make a great ambassador! T.J. (37)

TO THE future "Jane Resident." Keep smiling! Love, Mike. (37)

DELT MOM Amy D., Thanks for the awesome time Thursday. I think you're the greatest! —Your special son. (37)

FARMER'S BRANDON, Gid and Stacey—Thanks for such a "swelling" time. You're the best! P.S. Anyone for jogging? Love, KKG's Sarah and Kristi. (37)

SAY HEY, hey, say ho ho. This Sigma Duo is ready to go-o. We hear that the excitement is coming our way. Homecoming '87, what can we say. SN-SSS. (37)

OREGON FIAT—Missing? a lei? Gotta bed yet? —Tire Sh-1. (37)

DAVE—YOU'VE made this past year the greatest. I'm looking forward to forever. Love, Lynda. (37)

JANELLE L.—You're a candidate for Ambassador at K-State, and really I don't think it's just fate. I'm so very excited for you, your qualifications have really shown through. So I want you to keep in mind, this is to send you wishes of the very best kind! Love, Web. (37)

DELTA DAD, Dec. playboy. I'm happy you're my dad. I did miss you at the party! Love—your dot Bambi. (37)

DELTA SIG-DJ—Tall boys are good that is understood. Blue Hawaiians are great, but Ed's Red is top rate. Don't care what I drink as long as it doesn't stink! I can't wait, for our Homecoming date. Your lil' party animal, Deb. (37)

TO THE men of Sigma Chi—Homecoming week is not yet past—tonight's the night we'll have a blast. We'll rock 'n' roll, scream and cheer. Who needs chicks?—We got beer. We'll get together—but no pomp, no float, no yell like hell will escape our throats. B-ball and brew will drown our sadness and we'll keep it going through "midnight madness." And when the smoke has cleared and the party's done—K-State will see who had the most fun. So Sigs let's go for party time, 'cause Tokes are ready and that's no lyin'?? Love, the TKE's. (37)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (111)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (111)

SELF-HYPNOSIS. Improve concentration, memory, recall. Overcome test anxiety, fear of public speaking, etc. Personalized instruction, one 90-minute session required. $140. Greg Potter, Ph.D., 714 Poyntz, Suite A, 537-0076. (33-49)

Hair Shack

415 N. 3rd 776-7421

Affordable Prices!

Sebastian and Redken products used.

RENTALS 21

TYPEWRITERS—CORRECTING and non-correcting. In the Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (3211)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

FACULTY/STUDENTS, have an experienced person type your books, articles, term papers, resumes, theses, dissertations in a fast accurate manner. References furnished. Letter quality printer. Ross Secretarial Service, 539-5147. (34-38)

EXPERIENCED TYPIST: disc storage, letter quality printer, $1.25/page. 537-9205, Dorinda. (35-39)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (37-39)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

MALE/FEMALE roommate wanted. Private room. One and one-half blocks from campus. $120 per month. 539-3117. (36-39)

SITUATION WANTED 24

HELP! I need transportation. Northview area, 7:30-11:30 a.m. classes. 539-6430. (36-40)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT 25

FOR SALE—Solotex, $450. Ask for John Paul, 539-7751 until 6 p.m. 537-2449 after 6 p.m. (36-39)

ROOM FOR RENT 28

GIRL WANTED to rent room without board, $80/month, bills paid. Close to campus. No pets. 539-8608. (2711)

TRAVEL 29

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours sixth annual collegiate winter ski breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure, 1-800-321-5911 today! (35-49)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 — All Over (song)

5 Filthy place

8 Funny

12 Wool, to Caesar

13 Bill's partner

14 Assert

15 Fail to notice

17 Inclination

18 Cake-to-be

19 Card game for two

21 Offense

22 Zhivago's love

23 GI's address

26 D.C. denizen

28 — decimal system

31 Secluded inlet

33 Morning phenomenon

35 French head

36 Molars

DOWN

11 — Johnson

16 Luau garlands

20 Bounder

23 Chew the scenery?

24 He wrote of Lenore

25 Make a higher bid

27 Lincoln is its cap.

29 Schedule abbr.

30 Strong urge

32 Everlasting

34 Oater film

37 Farm tool

39 Row

42 European weasel

44 Breakfast strip

45 Kind of residue

46 Perry's creator

48 Not deranged

49 This, in Seville

50 Cease

53 "La — En Rose"

CRYPTOQUIP

10-14

S J S A - U S A T M K E Q V S

S V S X N A Z X Z E K C E T E

V Z J S C Z A S E N Q M T T T

U E A N Z S T

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: CHILLY MASSEUR IS RUBBING CUSTOMERS THE WRONG WAY.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: S equals E

Quake

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1 where we've had them before," Wilson said.

The area along which those quakes occurred is a series of faults making up the Humboldt Fault Zone.

"If you stripped off those 3,000 feet of sediment and rock and looked at the Humboldt Fault Zone from northwest Shawnee County, it would look like the front range of the Rockies as you drive into Denver," Wilson said.

The dam at Tuttle Creek Reservoir should be able to withstand an earthquake of the intensity he expects, Wilson said.

"Earth-fill dams, like Tuttle Creek, are the most stable in an earthquake, compared to a thin shell arch dam like Hoover Dam," Wilson said.

The worst possible event at Tuttle Creek during an earthquake, he said, would be if the dam settled. This would lead to landslides on the front and back of the dam.

Since Tuttle Creek is a long, flood control dam, it probably would not have a catastrophic breach, because the water level is well below the top of the dam, Wilson said.

Of the two quakes which shook this region, the largest and earliest was April 24, 1867, with an epicenter near Wamego. That earthquake registered 7 on the Mercalli scale.

The Mercalli scale rates the intensity of an earthquake based on the degree to which it is felt and the level of destruction it causes.

The 1867 earthquake was felt over an area about twice the size of Montana. Newspapers reported the quake caused a 2-foot wave to form on the Kansas River at Manhattan.

Wilson said an earthquake like the one in 1867 would register about 5.5 on the Richter scale. No accurate Richter measurement is available for that quake because seismographs, which determine Richter magnitude, were not in widespread use at that time.

The second quake occurred Jan. 7, 1906, and was felt over an area the size of New Hampshire. It produced cracks in walls and toppled some chimneys in Manhattan. Plaster was knocked from walls in both Wamego and Junction City. This earthquake was also rated 7 on the Mercalli scale.

Sudden movement along a fault zone like the Humboldt often causes an earthquake, said David McConnell, assistant professor of geology.

"An earthquake might best be summarized as the shaking of the ground as the result of energy released by displacement along faults in the earth," McConnell said.

Most faults are found along the boundaries of lithospheric plates, he said. The earth is composed of a series of shells: the crust, the mantle and the core. The uppermost part of the mantle and crust make up the lithosphere and move along in lithospheric plates.

Movement of two plates against or past each other creates the major fault zones, like the San Andreas in California, McConnell said.

"The earth is a dynamic system. Those plates are constantly in motion and over the course of geologic time may change direction," he said.

Faults were created within the North American continent as it developed, McConnell said.

"The North American continent itself has been pieced together by taking smaller parts of crust and accreting them together over time," McConnell said. "So there are a number of older boundaries and fault zones within the continent which every so often become reactivated. Consequently, we get areas such as the New Madrid Fault Zone in southeast Missouri, where in 1811 and 1812 they had a series of earthquakes, which are some of the largest reported in American history."

Using historical records is one way to predict the recurrence of earthquakes, McConnell said.

"In places where there are lots of earthquakes occurring, such as the San Andreas, by measuring the time between major earthquakes, they can estimate when the next major earthquake should occur; therefore, scientists can gauge what is called periodicity of earthquakes in that area," he said.

Along the San Andreas, the interval between major earthquakes — those registering higher than 8 on the Richter scale — is 80 to 100 years. The last major earthquake took place in 1906 in San Francisco, McConnell said.

Wilson said the lack of a long historical record for Kansas makes it difficult to determine the return of an earthquake.

"The longer you go without one, the closer you get to the next one," Wilson said. "We are trying to make people aware that if you're planning for a 100-year flood, maybe you ought to plan that there might be an earthquake."

WOLFE'S CAMERA & VIDEO

SALE

63rd Anniversary

Ask For Our Free 8 Page Sale Flyer

Bushnell

FACTORY DEMONSTRATOR BINOCULARS

Some New, Some Demos, all with new warranty

NEW

PRO

PROMASTER $11999

AF-1 Autofocus

Compact autofocus 35mm camera with auto exposure for superb picture quality. Sharp glass lens and built-in flash for indoor photography. Motorized advance so the camera is always ready to shoot.

ZOOM

LENS

VIVITAR $19999

Easy to use 35mm reflex with modern LED metering. Dependable mechanical shutter works even in cold weather. Lightweight zoom from 35-70mm for wide, normal and telephoto pictures. Compact design, perfect to carry everywhere.

NEW

$32999 with 50mm f2

RICOH XR-M motorized SLR

This multi-mode program reflex makes focus and shoot photography easier than ever. The serious photographer will enjoy this camera also. Switching out of program to manual to 1/2000, select spot metering, intervalometer for as few as 1 picture per hour to 1 per second, or motor shooting to 3 fps. Many more exciting extras.

XR-M with 35-70mm Ricoh zoom $38999

Ricoh KR-5 manual SLR $14999

with 35mm f2.8 Kentar, built-in meter

ONLY $11/Mo.*

ON SCREEN PROGRAMMING

AVENTURA II $249

Aventura VHS-HQ video recorder, 14 day/6 event programmable, wireless remote, 110 channel cable ready, Auto power on/off, 32 channel presets to handle all your cable choices.

Aventura II With extended warranty 15 mo. labor, 24 mo. parts. Only $13/Mo.* $279

CANON T-50 with 50mm f1.8 Canon $18999

Just focus and shoot indoors or out. The Canon T-50 sets your exposure automatically and automatically advances the film so you are always ready to shoot. Indoor exposure set automatically with (optional) dedicated flash units. Uses easy to find Canon mount interchangeable lenses.

Includes Canon U.S.A. Inc. limited warranty/registration card.

T-50 Starter set with Sunpak dedicated flash and camera bag, T-50 with f1.8 $24999

28-70mm Zoom instead of 50mm with T-50 only $40 additional.

3M $3999

3M FLASH 35

Compact and Lightweight 35mm camera with built-in flash for indoor pictures. Clamshell lens protector opens to provide lens shade in daylight. Requires no focusing, uses popular ISO 100 and 400 speed films.

MINOLTA TALKER $13999

The Talker is the autofocus 35mm camera that gives spoken assistance as you shoot to guide you to better pictures. Easy to use with auto load and motor advance, auto rewind, built-in flash for indoors, auto exposure.

Telephoto and wide angle lens set $29.99

LOWEST PRICE EVER

Zoom For ONLY $4999

Save $60

100-200mm f4.5

Osawa zoom with one-touch control for fast operation.

With Case $9999

80-200mm f3.9

Fast f3.9 aperture, great for sports.

MAXXUM 5000 $28999

with 50mm f1.7 lens Save $50

Automatic multi-program selection and autofocus make the Maxxum 5000 easy for anyone to use. Just point and shoot, with any AF Maxxum lens it will take care of everything, even winding the film. Full manual override for unusual exposure problems. Auto loading and auto film speed selection features make film changing simple. All new Minolta products include Minolta USA limited warranty.

RED HOT SPECIAL $199

VCR

Front loading VHS video recorder, 14 day/4 event programmable, auto power ON and OFF, Cue, review and still frame, auto rewind at the end of the tape plus auto eject when fully rewound.

$999

Only $36/Mo.

RICOH R-250 With FREE Case

New Ricoh Autofocus Camcorder is only 3.2 lbs, solid state for crisp brilliant color, 9 lux very low light, 2.5X macro zoom lens, electronic viewfinder for accurate viewing and reviewing.

CANON VM-E2 CAMCORDER $1199

Only $46/Mo.

With FREE Case

New 8 lux solid state camcorder, 6X power zoom with macro and autofocus, AFM HiFi sound, flying erase head, auto white balance, electronic viewfinder, auto fade, weight only 3 1/2 lbs. Limited Quantity

SAVE $120 $299

QUASAR 5370

New 3 head recorder plays back special effects on both SP and SLP, Digitune, cable compatibility, direct channel access with 27 function wireless remote, 7 day/2 event programmable.

*With approved credit. Based on 21% A.P.R. with 10% down and 36 monthly payments. Sales tax of 5% included. Other terms and down payment options available.

Wolfe's

CAMERA & VIDEO

635 Kansas Avenue • Phone 913-235-1386
Topeka, Kansas 66601-1437

STORE HOURS

Thursday 8:30 to 8:00

Other Weekdays 8:00 to 5:30

Closed Sunday

5-DIGIT 66612
164 8/0/8  7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS

A True Fan

One of the most supportive fans K-State athletics has ever experienced may be Robert Lipson. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today and tonight with a 50 percent chance of showers or thundershowers, high 70 to 75. Low in the upper 50s.

Midnight Madness II...

The men's basketball season-opening practice, "Midnight Madness II," drew 8,500 fans to Ahearn Field House this morning. See Page 11.

Thursday
October 15, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 38

Kansas State Collegian

Staff/Steve Wolgast, Andy Nelson

Early-morning maniacs

TOP: Mike Holder, Chase County, and Bob Bozworth, Ottawa, celebrate during the 'Cats first basketball scrimmage this morning in Ahearn Field House. RIGHT: Before the practice, Head Coach Lon Kruger asks K-State fans to continue their fanatical support for the last season in Ahearn. Today's official opening of basketball practice drew 8,500 students and supporters for the midnight game. Student season tickets will go on sale Oct. 26.

President to fight 'pressure politics' in Bork nomination

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan on Wednesday decried the battle over Robert H. Bork's Supreme Court nomination as an "ugly spectacle" of high-pressure politics and promised to keep fighting in the face of all but certain defeat for Bork.

"I am determined to fight right down to the last ballot on the Senate floor," Reagan said in a brief Oval Office address.

The speech was made available to the television networks, but only the Cable News Network carried it live, followed by a response in which Democratic Sen. Terry Sanford of North Carolina lashed back.

Senators opposing Bork "are tired of having our integrity impugned," Sanford said, adding that "it is time for that corrosive dialogue to stop."

In the Senate, meanwhile, Democratic and Republican leaders continued arguing over the timing for a vote, with Democrats insisting on quick action and the GOP demanding enough time to make a case for the conservative appeals court judge.

Fifty-four senators are on record against Bork, all but ensuring he will lose when the vote is taken in the 100-member body.

Reagan, however, said that although the public may have heard that the battle over Bork is over, he also had another cause in mind.

"I'm doing this because what's now at stake in this battle must never in our land of freedom become a lost cause, and whether lost or not, we Americans must never give up this particular battle: the independence of our judiciary," Reagan said.

Holding to the tough tone he has used in most recent comments on the issue, Reagan said that when he announced Bork's nomination on July 1, he thought the confirmation process would go forward "with a calm and sensible exchange of views."

"Unfortunately, the confirmation process became an ugly spectacle marred by distortions and innuendoes and casting aside the normal rules of decency and honesty," Reagan said.

Appealing for public support, Reagan listed past issues of controversy and said, "When the chips were down, you and I worked together."

"My agenda is your agenda, and it's quite simple: to appoint judges like Judge Bork, who don't confuse the criminals with the victims."

He said he sought "judges who don't invent new or fanciful constitutional rights for those criminals, judges who believe the courts should interpret the law, not make it, judges in short who understand the principle of judicial restraint."

"That is the standard to judge those who seek to serve on the courts: qualifications not distortions, judicial temperament, not campaign disinformation."

Reagan said the upcoming Senate debate "is to allow sides to be heard. Honorable men and women should not be afraid to change their minds based on that debate."

The president charged that the "tactics and techniques of national political campaigns" had been used against Bork, calling this a "disturbing ... dangerous" development.

Sanford, in his response on behalf of Senate Democrats, took strong exception, saying Reagan's confrontational approach "is not becoming to the constitutional process in which we are engaged."

■ See BORK, Page 14

More people qualify for lunch subsidy

By Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

According to economists, there is no such thing as a free lunch. However, more families now qualify for free and reduced-price meals at schools and day-care centers than last year.

According to Rita Hamman, director of the School Food Service in the Kansas Department of Education, the income guidelines for participation in the food programs went up so that people in higher income levels would qualify.

"There has been a slight increase

New rules allow higher incomes in the number of eligible participants," Hamman said.

Child nutrition programs for educational institutions include the child-care food program for preschool children and the school meal programs which include breakfast, lunch and milk options.

The income eligibility guidelines for all programs are the same and are established annually by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Hamman said.

The program was created in 1946 under the National School Lunch Act. Last year 46.5 million lunches were served through the program. In Kansas, 450 school food authorities administer the program.

Locally, the KSU Child Care Cooperative, Unified School District 383 and Manhattan Day Care Association Inc. participate in the Child Nutrition Program.

"It is certainly helpful to our costs to participate (in the program)," said Nancy Bolsen, executive director for the cooperative located at L-9 Jardine Terrace Apartments.

Daily food items for the cooperative include a morning snack, lunch and afternoon snack, all prepared in Kramer Food Center. Kramer, which has prepared the meals since the cooperative joined the program in January 1986, was selected as the contractor after soliciting bids, Bolsen said.

The KSU Child Care Cooperative, which provides day care for children of K-State students, faculty and staff, has 187 participants in the food program, she said.

There are three categories of families for participation — those qualifying for free meals, reduced-price meals or paid meals, Bolsen said. The amount of federal reimbursement is based on the percentage of enrolled children who are eligible in each category.

"It requires parent participation to fill out the forms, but the co-op receives the benefits of the program," Bolsen said.

Manhattan schools have participated in the school lunch program since 1960, said Li Huang, assistant dietitian for USD 383.

The Manhattan Day Care Association Inc. serves a breakfast, lunch and afternoon snack to 60 children, said Marti Krieger, executive director.

Hostilities continue in gulf; Iraqis mourn bombing victims in march

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — An Iranian gunboat fired on a tanker Wednesday, shipping sources reported, and Iraq said its warplanes raided a ship near Iran's main oil-export terminal in the northern Persian Gulf.

It was the second Iranian attack on a tanker in two days. Iraq's report, if confirmed, would mark the 10th Iraqi raid on ships carrying Iranian oil in a little more than a week.

An Iraqi communique said warplanes raided a "large naval target," the customary term for a tanker, after dark east of the Kharg Island oil terminal and scored "an effective and accurate hit."

In Baghdad, hundreds of thousands of Iraqis marched in a 10-mile-long funeral procession for victims of an Iranian missile attack Tuesday. The long-range rocket exploded at a school, killing at least 32 people, according to official reports.

The United States reaffirmed that its warships will protect only American-registered ships in the gulf, where Iraq and Iran have been at war since September 1980.

Neutral Oman said it would serve as intermediary for the repatriation of four wounded Iraqis rescued after an American helicopter attack on Iranian boats last week. It played the same role last month after U.S. forces sank an Iranian vessel caught laying mines.

The 84,631-ton Liberian-flag tanker Atlantic Peace was reported attacked off the southern gulf port of Dubai about 1,000 yards from where the Saudi Arabian products carrier Petroship B was hit Tuesday.

Salvage executives, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the attacker in both cases appeared to have been an Iranian "warship" seen in the area.

They said the Iranian vessel used only machine guns against the tankers, but Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit in London said 4.5-inch and 35mm shells hit the Atlantic Peace.

Iran does not acknowledge attacking commercial ships, but its armed speedboats and larger craft regularly retaliate for Iraqi air raids on tankers carrying Iranian oil.

Most Iranian attacks are on tankers owned by or serving Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, which Iran accuses of supporting Iraq in the war. The United States has given 11 Kuwaiti tankers American flags and registration so U.S. Navy ships can protect them.

Hospital officials in Baghdad said many of the 218 people reported wounded in the missile explosion had died, but gave no figures. Nearly all the dead and wounded were said to be children.

Chinatown restaurant explodes; 21 injured

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — A Chinatown restaurant was rocked by an explosion just before lunch hour Wednesday, injuring at least 21 people and sending a shower of glass and debris onto the sidewalk.

The blast tore out the front of the Canton Tea House and started a three-alarm fire in the midst of the city's most crowded neighborhood. The blaze was extinguished within a half-hour as buses were rerouted and pedestrian traffic was halted.

The cause was under investigation, but Fire Chief Ed Phipps said he suspected highly explosive propane gas used for cooking leaked from bottles and detonated.

He said scorched gas bottles had been found on the second floor area of the restaurant. The restaurant reportedly passed a recent fire inspection.

Twenty-one people were taken to hospitals, including three firefighters who suffered smoke inhalation and minor injuries and 18 people who were inside the restaurant, either as workers or patrons, officials said. No passers-by were listed among the injured.

■ See EXPLODE, Page 14

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Wolf Creek accident kills one

BURLINGTON — An electrician at the Wolf Creek nuclear power plant was electrocuted and two other workers were injured in an accident at the plant Wednesday night, officials said.

The victim's name was not released pending notification of relatives, said spokesman Lyle Koerber. He said the other workers were treated at a local hospital and released.

The accident did not involve the reactor and there was never a threat that nuclear material would be released from the plant, said Koerber, manager of corporate communications for Kansas Gas and Electric Co.

The plant has been shut down since Sept. 27 for fuel reloading.

The accident occurred in an enclosed switch gear area, which contains electrical switching circuits. An NRC official said the victim had either been cleaning the switch gear or was preparing to do so when the accident occurred.

Chauncey Gould, an operations officer at NRC headquarters in Bethesda, Md., said the victim received 4,160 volts of electricity.

Policeman charged in shooting

ATLANTA — A county grand jury indicted a white policeman Wednesday on a misdemeanor charge of involuntary manslaughter for fatally shooting a black man as he was being arrested at a housing project last month.

The Sept. 10 shooting sparked rallies and marches by part of Atlanta's black community that said the killing had racial overtones.

The charge is punishable by up to a year in jail and a fine of up to $1,000, Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton said. Black community leaders denounced the indictment, saying the charge should have been more serious, but Mayor Andrew Young, who is also black, said it was unusual for a police officer to be indicted at all.

After hearing two days of testimony about the shooting, the grand jury indicted M.L. Long but did not indict Long's partner, R.A. Watson.

The victim, Eddie Lee Callahan, was shot six times, five times in the back, at the Carver Homes housing project while he was being arrested as a car theft suspect.

Crew suspended after accident

OTTUMWA, Iowa — Three members of a Burlington Northern work crew have been suspended, but investigators said Wednesday that it was too early to say whether they were responsible for an Amtrak derailment that injured at least 126 people.

The passenger train struck a Burlington Northern crane Monday and derailed near the tiny southern Iowa town of Russell.

Jim Kolstad, an investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, said at a news conference Wednesday night that evidence indicates a track switch was left in the wrong position. That meant the Amtrak California Zephyr eastbound train was not routed to another track as it should have been to allow it to bypass a stretch of the Burlington Northern line being repaired.

But Kolstad said it was too early to say with certainty that the three crew workers in charge of the switch were to blame for the crash.

Canada debates on sanctions

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Commonwealth leaders Wednesday ended a key debate on South Africa, deadlocked over the imposition of sanctions but agreeing on trying to help black-ruled neighbors.

After a five-hour debate, in which Britain alone argued against sanctions, foreign ministers from nine nations could only decide to draw up proposals focusing on aid to the black front-line states bordering South Africa. They will submit the proposals by Thursday morning.

The Commonwealth comprises Britain and its 48 former colonies.

Commonwealth spokeswoman Patsy Robertson said British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher remained adamant that change in South Africa regarding the dismantling of apartheid will be a "long haul."

By law and custom, apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in South Africa in which the 25.6 million blacks have no vote in national affairs. The 5 million whites control the economy and maintain separate districts, schools and health services.

Workers begin rescue attempt

MIDLAND, Texas — A toddler tumbled more than 20 feet Wednesday into an abandoned well, and rescue workers frantically started digging a second shaft to reach the crying child.

Workers estimated it would be late Wednesday night before they could get to 18-month-old Jessica McClure.

At 7:30 p.m., about 10 hours after she fell in the well, workers said about two feet of solid rock still separated them from the child. They estimated it would take three more hours of digging with a small jackhammer to reach her.

Rescuers said they could still hear the girl crying. Floodlights were set up and a light was dropped into the well to warm it up.

"It is solid rock right now. It is pretty slow-going," paramedic Dave Felice told the Midland Reporter-Telegram. The girl was getting adequate oxygen and was believed to be lying on her back with her knees drawn up in a relatively comfortable position, he said.

The well, in the back yard of a private day-care center operated by Jessica's mother, is only inches wide in the spot where the child fell in. It widens farther down, and then narrows to a 6-inch opening below the spot where the child came to rest.

Reverend wins in tie contest

NEW YORK — It's aqua and hairy, it's "ugly to the touch...ugly in the dark." It's officially the ugliest tie in America and the minister who bought it at a church rummage sale says he knew it would come in handy some day.

"I'd never seen anything like it and I haven't since," the Rev. James Konrad, pastor of the First Congressional Church in Peru, Ill., said in a telephone interview Wednesday. "I thought it was a winner."

"I must confess I didn't buy it with the intent of wearing it in any normal way," added Konrad, who said the tie has made several appearances at Halloween parties.

He was moved by its exquisite ugliness to pay 25 cents for the silk paisley tie that has threads hanging all over it, and he wrestled over whether to enter it in a Father's Day ugly tie contest at a J.C. Penney store in Peru.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ARTS AND SCIENCES CLUBS interested in being allocated for the 1987-88 allocation period contact the Arts and Sciences Council at 532-6900. The deadline is Oct. 22.

BUSINESS STUDENTS interested in being on the open house committee pick up an application in the Dean's Office. Return by Monday.

WILDCAT TIPOFF CLASSIC men's and women's 3-on-3 basketball tournament Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms available at Union candy counter, Hollis House and Ahearn 101. The deadline for registration is Oct. 23.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS award applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Acker 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at K-State are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students; the awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTERVIEW applicants for 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

PRE-VET CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Trotter 201.

BETA GAMMA SIGMA meets at 8:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures and short meeting.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS meets at 8 p.m. in Union 203.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 3:30 p.m. by the information desk in the Union for a packing class.

KAPPA DELTA PI meets at 2:30 p.m. in Blumont 3 for a reception and tea for active and perspective members.

PI SIGMA EPSILON PLEDGE MEETING meets at 6 p.m. in Union 203.

ICTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 8 p.m. in Union 212. Bob Diehl will be the speaker.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERS meets at 1:30 p.m. in Acker 120.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207.

RODEO CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Acker 221.

FRIDAY

POTENTIAL LAW STUDENTS meet at 9 a.m. in Union 204 to hear University of Tulsa Law Professor Tom Holland discuss admissions, what law school is like and career opportunities. Students in all majors are invited to come.

ARMY ROTC meets at 6 p.m. at south end of Old Stadium for physical training run.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Tesfaye Dama at 3 p.m. in Durland 164. The topic will be: "Mathematical Model and Economical Analysis of Solar and Nocturnal Radiation Assisted Heat Pumps for Heating and Cooling."

THE INSTITUTIONAL ADVANCEMENT STAFF DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE meets at 4 p.m. on the patio of Farrell Library to host the 1987 Homecoming Jazz Social for the Division of Institutional Advancement. The concert will be held in the Union Blumont Room if it rains.

Correction

Due to a reporter's error, the Alcohol and Other Drug Education Services Office was misidentified in a story in Tuesday's Collegian.

PAZAZZ
hair designs

Alicia—Tami—Annette—C.P.
Michele—Peggy—Sheila

Phone 537-9825 Open Mon.—Sat. 1140 Westloop Place

Auntie
Mac's Parlor

TONIGHT

Well Drinks

$1.25

Draws

75¢

Pitchers

$2.25

FRIDAY

FREE

HORS D'OEUVRES

SATURDAY

Come in for a pre-game drink

Open at 10 a.m.

Now Serving Sandwiches

616 N. 12th 539-9967

Dark Horse
NEXT TO K-SU

619 N. Manhattan
Last Week
to Party
Under the Stars!

Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

TROPICAL TAN

$2 sessions

or

$40 tanning membership

bring coupon in for details

Expires 10-21-87

FirstBank Center
Second Level
Denison & Claflin 537-0744

THURSDAY

is

IMELDA MARCOS
NIGHT

at

Bobby J's Restaurant
and Fundrinery

Win one pair of shoes every month for three months. Register every Thursday.

Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571
Shoes compliment of Brown's Shoe Fit

Broune's 101st ANNIVERSARY SALE

Founded in 1886 — Downtown Manhattan Opened 1975

ALL DRESSES
25% OFF

ALL COATS

20-30% OFF

CUSTOM FURS
LONDON FOG
MACKINTOSH

ALL WOMEN'S FALL SPORTSWEAR

Includes

Jones New York • Ruff Hewn
• J.H. Collectibles • Folio • Devon • Breckenridge •

20% OFF
REG.
PRICE

REGISTER NOW FOR $50 SHOPPING SPREES TO BE GIVEN AWAY WEEKLY!

Broune's

323 Poyntz

GOLD RING SALE

$60 OFF 18K

$40 OFF 14K

$20 OFF 10K

Jostens Gold Sale. For one week only. Order and save on the gold ring of your choice.

JOSTENS
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING™

K-State Union Bookstore

Thursday Oct. 15, Friday Oct. 16,
and Monday Oct. 19

10 am-4 pm

Deposit of $20.00 Required

Drugs suspected as motive in killings

By The Associated Press

PASCO, Wash. — The lone survivor of an auto body shop massacre that left five men dead rested under guard Wednesday, while police searched for two gunmen who had traded "dirty looks" with their victims in the past.

Police speculated that drug dealing may have sparked the shootings, but stressed they had no firm motive. Drugs, especially cocaine, have long been a problem in this south-central Washington town of 19,000 residents, police Sgt. Andy Anderson said.

The survivor, Jesse Rocio of Pasco, was kept under guard at a hospital while being treated for a minor wound, then was transferred to jail

Survivor of massacre under guard pending a court hearing Thursday on whether he will be held as a material witness, Anderson said.

Anderson said police are concerned about possible retribution by suspects.

Rocio will be held "basically to cover us, to give us time to determine if there is a possibility that he's gonna leave and to determine if there's a risk to his safety," said Anderson.

Rocio said in a telephone interview from his hospital bed that he could think of no motive for the shootings Tuesday evening in Medina's Body Shop on Pasco's industrial east side, where four of the victims were employed.

"I've seen them (the gunmen) before on the street," Rocio said. "One time we had a general argument, but we didn't have a real problem with them."

He said he and the other victims, all Hispanics, had exchanged "dirty looks" with the gunmen in the past, but would not elaborate.

No roadblocks were set up Wednesday, but a bulletin was issued to law-enforcement agencies throughout the region, and police said informants were helping in the search.

Early Wednesday, officers fired tear gas into a Pasco apartment where a brother of one suspect lives, after a vehicle believed to be the getaway car was found parked outside, Police Chief Don Francis said. No one was inside the apartment, however.

"One time we had a general argument, but we didn't have a real problem with them."

— Jesse Rocio

Rocio said the gunmen entered the shop, looked around, then returned with the weapons and started shooting.

"We weren't expecting that at all,"

Rocio said. Police said the assailants entered the front door, which leads into a small office, and then through another door into the body shop.

Rocio, 20, of Pasco, said he was wounded in the side by a ricocheting bullet when he dove under a car for cover.

"When they started shooting I just jumped underneath the car and I stay still," Rocio said, adding that the gunmen left without checking to see if anyone was still alive.

Rocio then drove to the police station for help. He was listed in stable condition at Our Lady of Lourdes Hospital.

Francis said there were no signs of a struggle and the bodies were sprawled on the floor on the side of a car away from the doorway.

He said some of the victims were shot in the head, but it was not known how many shots were fired or if any were shot execution-style after being wounded. A pathologist was called from Seattle to perform autopsies Thursday.

Francis said automatic weapons were used in the shootings, although no weapons were recovered.

The chief said his "immediate assumption" was that the shootings resulted from a sour drug deal, although no drugs were recovered at the scene.

Safety program to alert workers of cancer risks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House on Wednesday moved toward setting up a new program requiring the government to individually notify between 100,000 and 300,000 workers annually that they face a high risk of cancer and other diseases from job exposure to hazardous substances.

Final action on the bill was postponed until Thursday after Democrats beat back an effort by Republicans to replace it with a weaker substitute.

The substitute bill would have required a two-year study first while giving the Occupational Safety and Health Administration more money to enforce new hazard-labeling requirements placed on employers in the past 15 months.

Despite the threat of a presidential veto, labor unions and health groups said legislation is necessary to address the nearly 100,000 deaths and some 350,000 disabling illnesses blamed on occupational hazards each year.

While the notices themselves cannot be used as evidence in civil suits, opponents led by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers claim the process will trigger billions of dollars in liability suits against employers by their workers and former workers.

The substitute measure offered by Reps. James Jeffords, R-Vt., and Paul Henry, R-Mich., was defeated 234-191, with Democrats voting 217-33 against and Republicans voting 158-17 in favor of it.

Having lost the key test vote, Republicans began offering amendments in an effort to weaken some of the provisions of the bill by Democratic Rep. Joseph Gaydos of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee's health and safety subcommittee.

Gaydos' bill would create a new board in the Department of Health and Human Services to determine what workers are most at risk. Once identified, the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health would then be required to notify them of the risks.

Employers would then be required to provide periodic medical examinations of the workers, paying the costs for those currently on their payrolls but free to pass them along to former employees.

NIOSH officials estimate nearly one-fourth of Americans have been exposed to carcinogens and other hazardous substances on the job, and that most of them are unaware of it.

K-State receives grant of $200,000

By The Collegian Staff

K-State has been awarded a $200,000 grant from the Ford Foundation to promote continuing education in rural areas.

The Department of Continuing Education will use the grant to help turn the decline in population and economic prosperity around by promoting education suited for rural areas, said Jacqueline Spears, associate specialist of continuing education sponsored projects.

"We are going to explore a curricula that teaches the basic skills needed in rural areas," Spears said.

She said the department wants to network these ideas among rural educators.

"Over the years there has been a steady decline (in population) in rural areas," Spears said. She said people educated in rural communities usually leave their hometowns and seek work in urban centers upon graduation.

The decline in commodities, corn, wheat and soybean prices and the decline in the natural resource bases have caused the economic collapse in the rural communities, Spears said.

K-State plans to give the money from the grant to rural educators throughout the country in order to benefit students in rural areas.

Spears said K-State has been working with the Ford Foundation in New York, a philanthropic organization, for more than a year. K-State organized a small group to work with the Foundation and submitted a proposal for a grant last June.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
--FREE SAMPLES--
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville

TREAT YOURSELF ROYALLY 99¢
Peanut Buster Parfait
Banana Split
99¢ Oct. 12-16
Dairy Queen
"LET'S ALL GO TO THE DAIRY QUEEN"
1015 N. 3rd Manhattan
12th & Moro Aggieville

Haircuts $6
Perms $35

HAIR AFFAIR
Designs for Men & Women
465 E. Poyntz in Town East Center
776-5488

The Fishbowl, a "K-State Tradition" since 1951, is back!
•TACO NIGHT•
50¢ Tacos Every Thursday Night
105 N. 3rd • Downtown • 539-9904

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
TONIGHT OLD MILWAUKEE NIGHT
Pitchers $1.60
"It just doesn't get any better than this"
•NO DRESS CODE•
•NO COVER CHARGE•
NOW OPEN ON SUNDAYS
THE FINEST LITTLE TAVERN BY A DAM SITE
Rt. 5 537-3133

EMR
What is it?
EMR is a revolutionary skin care system developed in Europe to help minimize: Cellulite, small scars (acne), fine red lines & other minor skin faults.
Call Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-5p.m.
Ask for the Skin Care Dept.
Crum's beauty college
512 poyntz avenue manhattan, kansas
776-4794

The Station

THUR. BIG "C" NIGHT
(that famous mexican beer with a lime on top)
BIG "C" MEXICAN BEERS 99¢
DRINKS (ANY BRAND) - $1.50
1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

HOLD ON TO YOUR HATS!
MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

STUDENT BASKETBALL SEASON TICKETS
GO ON SALE OCT. 26, 8 a.m.
EAST LOBBY OF FIELD HOUSE
$35 each
13 games
There will be a limit of 20 Tickets that may be purchased by one student. A current semester fee card (7 hours or more) must be presented for each ticket desired to purchase. A married student may purchase a ticket at the same price for spouse if proof of marriage is provided.
Sections C and D (east bleachers) are NON-RESERVED seats. All other seats are RESERVED.

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 15, 1987 ■ Page 4

'Empty generation' defies expectation

To hear the Argentine born-again evangelist Luis Palau talk, you would expect that the people who go to see him and hear his message are poor, homeless and faceless.

You'd think they were dirty, little people who push grocery carts and mumble to themselves while shopping for dinner from trash dumpsters, occasionally shouting at their stupid, invisible friend Vern for suggesting they pick the rotten oranges over the 3-day-old filet mignon.

The 2,000 (give or take 500) members of what Palau calls "the empty generation" who assembled in Ahearn Field House Thursday night to hear his message did not fit the description.

In fact, they looked clean and too well-fed in their middle-class prosperity. They also looked very middle-aged. Perhaps it's silly, but since Palau said he wanted to speak to students most of all, I thought there would be more student-age people in the audience.

However, despite their appearances, it would seem they were poor in their wealth, homeless despite their addresses and ZIP codes, powerless in their freedom.

Most of all, the empty people in Ahearn Thursday night were like Johnny Rocco, as played by Edward G. Robinson in the movie "Key Largo."

When asked what he wanted, Rocco said, "More. That's it, see. I want more."

"Will you ever get enough?" Bogart asked.

"No, I don't suppose I will," Rocco replied.

And Rocco was like the Latin American president whom Palau once met with while on a crusade.

Palau said that after exchanging pleasantries and gifts with him, the president asked the staff members in the room to leave so he could meet with the evangelist in private.

The president said he was powerful. He described how soldiers jumped to attention when he passed by them. He said he knew people called him a dictator.

"But, Mr. Palau," the general-turned-president said, "inside I'm just a frightened, 12-year-old boy."

Like Rocco and the Latin American president, these refugees from the Reagan Revolution who assembled in Ahearn had run up against some hard realities. Harsh, brutal, spirit-pulverizing realities, such as the fact that $49,500 a year no longer buys the good life. Or that their 15 minutes of fame occurred

Commentary

ERWIN SEBA
Collegian Reporter

when their pit bull mauled a wheelchair-bound Mormon missionary.

They found — in a world abounding with stories of high-school dropouts making millions from chocolate-chip cookies, and nerds working out of a garage creating computers that outsell those made by IBM — that they wanted more and just couldn't get enough.

In this world, So they turned to the next, where rewards are not given because of fate, chance or timing.

As they died to this world, Palau offered the comforting words Jesus said to his disciples after meeting a rich man who refused to give up his wealth: "Surely it would be easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven."

By telling them the story of the "poor, rich man," Palau wanted them to know the wealth they had not gained did not matter.

It was OK, Palau was saying, to only make $49,500 — because money can't buy you the good afterlife.

When you looked in "Forbes" magazine and found your name was not listed above that of multimillionaire Wal-Mart king Sam Walton, Jesus could take away the hurt you felt. Jesus would take away the hurt and make it all better.

For Jesus to take the hurt away, all a person had to do was to choose rightly in the moment of decision.

And for those accepting the Jesus-as-an-upper-for-the-soul line, Palau led the gathering in a little prayer during the moment of decision. The moment of decision lasted about 15 minutes, so all those who heard the call of the spirit could have time to answer.

As they teetered between two worlds in that moment, did not some see the light (from the streets in the sky paved with gold) breaking through the darkness?

Did they not choose rightly? Some did. They left early.

States musn't abandon regional waste compact

It is not surprising that the states in the low-level nuclear waste compact are not jumping at the chance to have a radioactive waste dump of their very own.

And it is not out of line for the states involved to be concerned about having such a dump. Unfortunately, radioactive waste storage does not have the most impressive safety record imaginable.

But the harsh reality is that this country must build some type of storage facility for these substances. Not only is this mandated by the federal government — the waste dump must be operating by 1993 under federal law — it is also a practical need considering that the waste is being produced without places to store it.

Citizen opposition groups in all five states of the compact are trying to persuade their respective states to pull out of the agreement. But will it really solve any of the problems of storing radioactive waste just by leaving the compact?

If the compact is dissolved, each of the states will more than likely have to build their own storage facilities — considering that it would be very difficult for any of the states to join another compact before the federal government's deadline for states to select a storage site on Jan. 1, 1988.

This will mean a drastic increase in the number of sites that have to be built in the future, it will increase the government's burden of policing those sites and with more sites in operation, there will be more chances for leaks.

And if the states stay in the compact, only one dump will be built every 30 years. Instead of five dumps being built with today's technology, only one will be erected and the next dump to be built will use technology that is 30 years more advanced.

The states in the compact need to stay in the compact and find a way to resolve the issues that stand in the way of their working together.

United Way benefits local agencies, people

Another drive for another charitable organization has begun. Although this is not especially big news, this particular charity is of note to Riley Countians.

The K-State faculty and staff kicked off its annual United Way campaign Sept. 30, and their goal is to raise between $65,000 and $66,000. Nearly $62,000 was collected last year.

What makes the United Way campaign so beneficial is that all the money raised here stays here. Not many other charities can boast of having such a great local impact.

However, the impact is only as great as the community's collective charitable heart. Unfortunately, Manhattan's heart wasn't overly caring last year.

In 1986, the city ranked 13th out of 16 Kansas communities in per capita giving, donating $4.76 per person. In that same year, Topeka and Lawrence donated $20.71 and $9.07 per person, respectively.

In terms of giving, Manhattan shouldn't be too worried about overdoing it.

But there's no reason why this year can't be different. All the money collected assists 17 local agencies, including the American Red Cross, Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Manhattan Inc., Crisis Center Inc., Homecare Inc., Manhattan Emergency Shelter Inc., Salvation Army and United Cerebral Palsy.

Whether they work at K-State or not, Manhattan citizens should support the United Way this season.

After all, they'll be helping a neighbor.

Man in the Street

WHAT IF A CANDIDATE HAS BEEN UNFAITHFUL? OUT.

QUOTED OTHER POLITICIANS? OUT.

SUBVERTED HIS COMPETITORS? OUT.

EVER LIED? OUT.

EVER MADE A STUPID STATEMENT? OUT.

EVER DID A STUPID THING? OUT.

LOOKS FUNNY? OUT.

DO YOU REALIZE THAT IF YOU TAKE THIS FAR ENOUGH, NOBODY WILL GO INTO POLITICS?

YOU ARE CATCHING ON.

UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND. ©1987 THE BUFFALO NEWS

NOW ASK ME ABOUT POLLSTERS.

Letters

Farrell's failings

Editor, Farrell Library has once again succeeded in inconveniencing a student, to put it mildly.

On Sunday evening, I needed to view the Concepts of P.E. lecture slides, as I had a test on them Monday. I inquired at the Audio-Visual Reserves Department, but was turned away rudely by the student assistant (I presume that is what she was) because I did not have my KSU Student ID card with me.

Okay, that's understandable. My student ID tells her who I am, what I look like, what my social security number is, and whether I paid my fees this semester. And, I must admit that there is a small sign which reads, "NO KSU ID, NO SERVICES, NO EXCEPTIONS." But read on.

I proceeded to politely show her three things: My driver's license, my semester fee card, and my social security number card. Now, logically speaking, these items tell her the exact things the my KSU ID does: who I am, what I look like, and whether I paid my $665.65 this semester. When I was refused services again, I asked her point-blank why, and, with a flustered look, she said, "It's policy," and rudely picked up the "NO KSU ID, NO SERVICES, NO EXCEPTIONS" sign and held it six inches from my face.

Now exactly what is a student supposed to do when he/she has temporarily misplaced his/her KSU ID? For me, getting a replacement at 8 p.m. on a Sunday was not possible. So I supplied the next best things, which together proved that I, as a KSU student, had paid the necessary fees entitling me to use the A-V reserve materials. Besides, who on earth would spend an evening viewing slides for a P.E. class if he/she were not actually as an enrolled KSU student?

I wondered if this policy is unique to the already inadequate Farrell Library. After checking at both the Rec Complex and Lafene Student Health Center, I learned that both places will accept other identification (i.e. driver's license and/or fee card) if the student has lost his/her ID.

Having used the library's materials before, I was always treated politely by the A-V staff, and perhaps that is why I became so upset

Sunday night. So it is here that I also wish to apologize for my muttered profanity after the "NO KSU ID, NO SERVICES, NO EXCEPTIONS" sign was thrust in my face.

Jill Warren
sophomore in modern languages

Solve fly problem

Editor, Room 132 Waters Hall sits right above a trash receptacle. There are three windows in the classroom. The two outer ones have air conditioners which are so noisy normal class discussion cannot be heard when they are on. So the center window is opened for circulation. Some days the flies are worse than others. They are dirty and distracting.

A week ago I stopped by the Office of the Vice President for Administration and Finance and asked that a screen be placed over the window in Waters Hall. Again this week I stopped by the office and was assured that "it had been reported."

I have been told by my fellow students that other classrooms have the same problem with flies. Now, really, at a university, and in this technological age, do we have to put up with flies in the classroom?

Or, are we going to wait for a few weeks for a freeze in order to have the problem solved for us?

The flies have been a problem since the beginning of the school year. Surely, somebody has the authority and the ability to correct this problem.

Virginia O. Popejoy
senior in social work

Who really wins

Editor, I was so thrilled to see that K-State's tennis team beat Bethel College. It's really something to be proud of when a state university the size of KSU beats a private, church-related college with 700 students. Being proud of "lashing" a weaker opponent shows fine sportsmanship. Maybe the tennis team should "dominate" Hesston College next. It's a private, church-related junior college with fewer students than Bethel. And perhaps the football team should follow this precedent and only play small colleges. They might win one. But don't go too big...remember Austin Peay.

Bethel may not have played their best against our comparatively large university but they hold their own against equal opponents. K-State should do as well. In the end Bethel students won anyway. Instead of an overpriced, stripped down sports stadium, Bethel just finished building a brand new library. Think about it.

Tim Wall
senior in architecture

Pay for changes

Editor, The letter in the Oct. 7 Collegian regarding ways to change the football program at K-State for the better deserves a reply. Mr. Roger Swanson states he graduated from this institution forty years ago, which is readily apparent from his outdated and chauvinistic opinions. K-State's color has been purple since long before Mr. Swanson was born, so why change now? Besides, there are only three primary and three secondary colors.

Making football a No. 1 priority, with funds to pay for it, would make for the best team money could buy. However, I think the university is here for other reasons; education, enlightenment and learning all we can about our chosen discipline are three that come to mind.

Since Mr. Swanson is an alum, and he doesn't like the shabby appearance of KSU Stadium or the band's uniforms, perhaps he could come up with the bucks to change it. Stan Parrish or Stanley Finck would be happy to take his check.

In regard to the skimpy costumes showing lots of female flesh; that won't make for a better football team, recruits will. Besides, doesn't Mr. Swanson realize that 50 percent of the crowd is female and they might want to ogle the exposed flesh of male yell leaders? Just send the athletic department a check Mr. Swanson. Be an ICAT supporter, and leave your opinions in the past where they belong.

Joe L. Cook graduate in art

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Consortium ties University, industry

Alliance to obtain, retain top faculty

By Paula Selby
Collegian Reporter

The role and responsibility of the newly formed Bluemont Consortium were discussed Tuesday at the League of Women Voters meeting.

The Consortium was formed to promote joint ventures tying together Manhattan, its industries and the University. It is a permanent advisory board that will make recommendations on the University Economic Development Study.

"It (the study) is a feasibility study and a strategy study," said Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement. The study will analyze properties around the Manhattan area for their potential in a mixed-use industrial research park.

The Kansas City firm of Freilich, Leitner, Carlisle and Shortlidge is compiling the study, financed on a 50-50 basis by the University sector and the public sector.

The Consortium has title to all of the reports and recommendations made in the Freilich Study.

Because the group equally represents the University, the Foundation, the Chamber of Commerce, the city and the county, their priorities and concerns are balanced, Krause said.

If the University study shows that a park is feasible, the committee will give a "green light" to the plan. The study will consider 10 sites and make a thorough evaluation of at least two sites for the industrial park, Krause said.

The Foundation, Krause said, has two reasons for becoming involved in the study. First, it is a positive effort for the University, and second, it is a sound long-term investment.

The University hopes to accomplish four objectives through the Consortium. These objectives include the formulation of a comprehensive inventory of the strengths and weaknesses of the University in association with potential economic development; attracting and maintaining top faculty; attracting research dollars on the federal, state and private levels; and defining, sharpening and focusing the University's role in the economic development of Manhattan, Krause said.

The Consortium's study will produce a catalog detailing the city's and University's strengths as a company location, a list of prospective industries to send the catalog to, recommendations of promising sights for the industrial park and recommendations of appropriate uses for the park, said Dick Hayter, Manhattan city commissioner.

"We're looking for this feasibility study to give us a road map (for the rest of the process). This is not a hit and miss activity," he said.

"I am usually terrifically cynical about these things because for each one that succeeds, 10 fail," said Mark Lapping, dean of the College of Architecture and Design. But he is encouraged with the Consortium.

"They (the members of the Consortium) are not quick and dirty people. They know their literature," he said.

Lapping stressed the importance of the area's quality of life.

"As we begin to get focused on economic development, we can't lose sight of investing in our schools, roads, the quality of our water..." Lapping said.

Each speaker emphasized that the outstanding characteristic of this study is its angle as a total community project.

"We (the Consortium) are not sure this is the area to go into, but we're going to find out," Krause said.

The Consortium's board of trustees consists of 16 voting members and two ex officio members. Each of the four groups is represented by four members. The Manhattan city manager and the director of public works of Riley County are the ex officio, non-voting members.

Salvadoran president visits U.S.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan welcomed Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte to the White House on Wednesday and they agreed there can be no lasting peace in Central America without democratic rule throughout the region.

Duarte was offered an enthusiastic official reception as he began a state visit and he showed his appreciation for U.S. support by kissing an American flag displayed on the White House south lawn.

After a ceremony that featured full military honors, Reagan said peace prospects for Central America have been enhanced because of the agreement Duarte and four other area presidents signed two months ago.

"If peace is to prevail, so must democracy," the president said, adding that a successful outcome of the Aug. 7 accord remains "far from certain."

Duarte, in a similar vein, said Central Americans "still have a long way to go" in implementing the peace plan.

He added, "I am convinced that there cannot be peace in Central America without freedom and democracy."

Some administration officials have been privately critical of Duarte for signing the peace agreement, contending that it does not address key questions, such as Soviet-Cuban military ties with Nicaragua's leftist government.

But there was no hint of any discrepancies between the two countries in a day-long series of activities that, in addition to the welcoming ceremony, also included an elaborate luncheon for Duarte hosted by Secretary of State George Shultz and a White House dinner Wednesday night.

Reagan was effusive in his praise for Duarte, a close ally whose country has received hundreds of millions of dollars in U.S. economic and military aid over the past six years.

"El Salvador, under President Duarte's leadership, has proven wrong the cynics, pessimists and detractors of democracy," he said. "Under the most trying of circumstances with your steady hand at the helm, President Duarte, democratic conventions and ideals have been transformed into institutions, laws and practices."

At the conclusion of his remarks, Duarte surprised the gathering of several hundred by descending from the podium and walking 50 yards to a military honor guard, where he kissed the American flag.

Latin American leaders generally avoid such pro-American displays and try instead to mute their identification with U.S. policies, and Duarte himself conceded that the action was a "break from protocol." Many in the crowd, including Reagan, applauded the gesture.

The peace agreement, signed in Guatemala on Aug. 7, obligates all Central American nations where insurgents operate to arrange a cease fire by Nov. 7 and to undertake democratic reform by the same deadline.

Salvadoran government and rebel leaders met last week to discuss ways to end their 8-year-old conflict, but the two sides remain far apart. If a truce cannot be negotiated before the deadline, Duarte has said he will declare a unilateral cease-fire in order to comply with the peace agreement. The conflict is believed to have claimed more than 60,000 lives.

A U.S. official, briefing reporters after Duarte's meeting with Reagan, said the Salvadoran gave an upbeat account of the military situation, saying government forces have "regained and retained" the initiative.

The official, who insisted on anonymity, said Duarte also discussed plans to grant amnesty to most of the 1,000 political prisoners being held in El Salvador. People convicted of kidnapping for money will be exempted from the amnesty offer.

Krystallos

"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

FREE DELIVERY

EL NAMA
Restaurant

1304 Westloop

10% off with KSU ID

539-8888 539-0888

THIS WEEKEND

LIVE BAND

DOW JONES & THE INDUSTRIALS

1st Time at Charlie's

Tonight The Original

$ DAZE $

"Charlie's"

"The Location Is Where You Want To Be 1800 Claflin The Setting Is Where You Need To Be" 539-9619

Houseplants Clearance!

HELP!!! Due to unseasonably cool weather, we have been forced to move our HUGE inventory of healthy foliage indoors. All plants in 10" pots or smaller have been reduced by 25% to 50%! Includes low light plants, hanging baskets, blooming plants, cactus, and the latest varieties grown from tissue culture. Please HURRY!!!

Eastside or Westside Market
east of downtown Manhattan on Hwy. 24 • west K-18 by Holidome

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL

Ice cream cakes & pies
Freshly baked cookies
Popcorn gift canisters
Open 7 days a week
1439 Anderson 537-7079
South of McCain Auditorium

Hair Unlimited

come in for a beautifying experience

1330 Westloop 537-4528

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS

Pre-Enrollment Advising

Begins Monday, October 19

EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261

Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority at the time of pre-enrollment.

Flowers

AGGIEVILLE FLOWERS

HOMECOMING CORSES

$2.50 and up

12th & Laramie
537-9549

Mon.-Sat. 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

جمعية الطلبة العرب
تدعو جميع الأخوة والأخوات
لمشاهدة فيلم عربي بعنوان:
"سك على ماتة"
بطولة: فؤاد المهندس - شربل
الزمان: الجمعة 7:30 - 9:00
المكان: K-State Union # 208
وبعدنا حصة
الدراسة
Film Friday Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m.
Union 208

Dutch Maid
Super Markets

Blue Hills
Shopping Center

1522
Poyntz

Plan your weekend party early!
Kegs To Go

Keg of Old Milwaukee Light	$31.71
Keg of Old Milwaukee	$31.71
Keg of Coors	$43.21
Keg of Coors LIGHT	$43.21
Keg of Budweiser	$43.21
Keg of BUD LIGHT	$43.21

We Stock Cold Kegs

Please call 539-2351 or 539-5346 two days ahead to reserve your choice of beer.

VANDERBILT'S

Levi's

HEADQUARTERS
DISCOUNT
PRICES

SHRINK-TO-FIT

Levi's 501

The original button-fly
501 jeans in shrink-to-fit
sizes. First Quality,
38 & 40 Lengths $18.99

$16.99

Compare to $26.95

VISA

DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100

MasterCard

Men's LINED JEAN JACKETS

Rugged heavy-weight denim with double stitched seams, copper buttons and all the quality and durability
Levi's are famous for.

$44.99

Compare to $79.95

Nobel Prizes given for discoveries; two Americans among recipients

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Two Americans shared the Nobel Prize in chemistry with a French researcher Wednesday, and a West German and a Swiss scientist won the prize in physics for a breakthrough in superconductors that could lead to faster computers and speedier trains.

The discoveries that led to both prizes came by accident when the scientists were looking for something else, said members of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences, which chose the winners.

Each Nobel carries a cash prize of about $340,000, which is divided if more than one laureate is named for each prize.

Chemists Donald J. Cram of the University of California at Los Angeles; Charles J. Pedersen, retired from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Jean-Marie Lehn of the Université Louis Pasteur in Strasbourg, France, won the chemistry prize.

They developed molecules that can link up with particular other molecules, a principle now used in medical testing. Their work could lead to an endless supply of energy by extracting hydrogen from water, said academy member Bo Malmstrom. It could also give insight into crucial biological reactions.

West German Georg Bednorz and Swiss K. Alex Mueller won the physics prize for developing ceramic material that can act as a superconductor at a higher temperature than before.

"This was the start of an avalanche. Hundreds of laboratories all over the world were soon at work with materials similar to those of Bednorz and Mueller," said the prize committee's statement.

Superconductors conduct electricity without losing current to resistance. Their application has been limited because they must be chilled well below minus 400 degrees Fahrenheit.

Higher-temperature superconductors could open the door to quicker computers, high-speed trains that float above their tracks and innovations in generating and transmitting electric power.

Pedersen, 83, who retired 20 years ago, said from his home in Salem, N.J.: "I've never had an experience like this. It's a great honor."

Cram, 68, a professor at UCLA, said: "It really shakes me up. This doesn't happen every day, you know. What I'm delighted about is that the two people with whom I'm sharing it are very fine people."

Lehn, reached in his Strasbourg laboratory, said he was "a bit surprised, but very pleased."

It is the fifth year in a row that an American won or shared the chemistry prize. Thirty-three Americans are among the 109 winners of chemistry prizes since the first Nobels were distributed in 1901.

West German scientists have won the physics prize three years in a row, and it was the second straight year for a Swiss.

Bednorz and Mueller, winners of the physics prize, are researchers at the IBM Zurich Research Laboratory in Switzerland, where Gerd Binnig and Heinrich Rohrer last year won the Nobel prize in physics for their design of the scanning tunneling microscope.

Bednorz, 37, took the telephone call from Stockholm, and the laboratory sent a company plane to pick up Mueller, 60, from a symposium in Naples, Italy, for the celebrations.

"I felt like I was in the clouds, like my feet were not touching the ground," Bednorz told a news conference at the laboratory.

Mueller and Bednorz both cautioned that many problems remained to be solved in the field of superconductivity.

"Experiments with other materials are now necessary to understand the phenomenon better on the theoretical level," said Mueller.

The Nobel announcement said that last year, "Bednorz and Mueller reported finding superconductivity in an oxide material at a temperature 12 degrees Celsius (22 degrees Fahrenheit) higher than previously known."

Scientists had been stuck for more than a decade in trying to raise the temperature to make superconductivity more widely useful. Until now standard superconductors could only be cooled with liquid helium, an expensive process.

But the Bednorz-Mueller work pointed the way to new materials that can be cooled with much cheaper liquid nitrogen, said Gosta Ekspang of the Swedish Academy.

In announcing the chemistry prize, the Academy cited the work of Cram, Pedersen and Lehn in making relatively uncomplicated compounds that perform the same functions as natural proteins.

The ability of molecules to bind to specific other molecules is at the heart of many biological processes, the committee said.

Such selective binding was known in nature and is a prerequisite of life.

K-State gears up for homecoming

By Tom Denzel
Staff Writer

Homecoming activities kicked off Wednesday in the Union with Blue Key members selling homecoming buttons and giving away balloons as students cast their votes for K-State ambassadors.

This year's Homecoming theme is "Hold on to your hats, here come the 'Cats,'" said Kathy Peirce, senior in psychology and member of Blue Key.

"I'm really impressed with how the different groups are playing off this year's theme. I've heard a lot of original ideas," she said.

"It's always a busy week for all participants and Blue Key. Hopefully everyone involved will get something out of this year's homecoming events," said Steven Johnson, Blue Key president and senior in agricultural economics.

Johnson said 16 living groups are participating in the Homecoming competition this year.

"This year's increase in the number of groups participating is an encouraging sign," Johnson said. "I think this shows the commitment, the spirit and enthusiasm of the students at K-State for this great tradition."

"Union Day" events begin at 8 a.m. today in the Union Courtyard. Judging of the spirit banners made by competing fraternities, sororities and residence halls will begin at 10:00 a.m. The preliminaries of the body building competition start at 11 a.m.

"This year we emphasized the use of more music incorporated into the building of the pyramids rather than trying to do more difficult pyramids," Peirce said. "We have also allowed two more spots on the mats when the groups are building their pyramids."

Because of safety factors, the pyramids can only go two people high, she said.

Following body building, a pep rally featuring football Coach Stan Parrish, the football team, the K-State cheerleaders and the pep band will be held and the six K-State ambassador candidates will be introduced.

Preliminaries for the "Yell Like Hell" competition start at 2 p.m.

Ambassador elections continue Friday as "K-State Day" gets under way at 11:30 a.m. with "Yell Like Hell" and "Body Building" finals. Float judging will be from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

A spirit march will start at 9 p.m. Friday night, followed by the traditional bonfire in Memorial Stadium at 9:30 p.m. Groups will yell cheers in the "Pant the Chant" contest to conclude the evening's pep rally.

Seventeen floats are expected

■ See HOME, Page 14

High potassium diet may lower stroke risk

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — A diet rich in potassium from fruits and vegetables protects arteries from the ravages of high blood pressure and dramatically lowers the risk of stroke, animal studies show.

"You get tremendous protection from strokes by eating more fruits and vegetables," Dr. Louis Tobian of the University of Minnesota said Wednesday.

A single extra helping of fruits or vegetables daily might cut stroke risk by as much as 40 percent over an extended period, Tobian said at the American Heart Association's annual meeting on high blood pressure.

Tobian and his colleague, Tokuchiro Sugimoto, showed in stroke-prone rats that high blood pressure damages the endothelium, a single layer of cells lining arteries in both rats and humans. That damage can lead to obstruction or rupture of arteries.

They also showed that the damage can be almost completely eliminated if rats with high blood pressure are given diets rich in potassium.

Strokes afflict 500,000 Americans each year, killing 155,000 of them, according to the heart association.

Most fruits and vegetables are good sources of potassium, Tobian said in an interview. Among the best are bananas, strawberries, potatoes, and orange and grapefruit juice. Skim milk is another good source, he said.

Since the advent of the modern, junk-food era, Tobian said, American diets have been low in potassium, especially among blacks and young people who may consume a lot of fast food.

"I'm worried about the young singles or marrieds so involved in their careers that they just pick up one junk food after another," he said. "I think there's going to be a price paid down the line."

He noted that some studies have shown that bachelors die earlier than married men. He thinks one reason might be that bachelors eat less balanced diets than do married men, and bachelors may therefore be getting an insufficient amount of potassium.

Potassium does not lower blood pressure, Tobian said, but it prevents elevated blood pressure from damaging the arteries.

In the research presented Wednesday, Tobian and Sugimoto showed that potassium given to rats with high blood pressure can prevent the growth of muscle cells near the inner arterial lining.

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
Live Entertainment with
"Full House"
9 p.m.-1 a.m.

More Friday More Saturday
Seafood Festival Breakfast Buffet
5:30-10 p.m. only $11.95 8-10 a.m. only $2.99

Weekend Specials
• 6 oz. Petite Filet with 3 shrimp scampe and choice of vegetable or potato—only $10.95
• 12 oz. 'Mesquite Smoked' K.C. Strip with red wine sauce and choice of vegetable or potato—only $14.95

University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 587-7531

Students Are Welcome!

GREAT COMMISSION CHURCH

Statement of Faith:

We believe the Bible to be the inspired, the only infallible, authoritative Word of God.

We believe there is one almighty, perfect and true God: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, eternally coexistent personalities of the same essence.

We believe in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, in His virgin birth, His sinless life, His substitutionary death, His bodily resurrection, His ascension to the right hand of the Father and His personal return in power and glory.

We believe in the personality of the Holy Spirit, and in His ministry of convicting and regenerating sinful men, and indwelling, sealing and empowering believers.

We believe in the fall of man from the state of innocence in which he was created to one of total depravity in which he is devoid of spiritual life, and incapable, apart from divine power, of pleasing God.

We believe in the justification of the sinner by grace through faith alone.

We believe that the church universal is composed of all true believers and that its members should assemble themselves together in local churches for worship, prayer, fellowship and teaching with a view to being equipped to fulfill the Great Commission.

We believe in the bodily resurrection of the saved to immortality, and in the conscious eternal suffering of the lost.

10:30 a.m. Sundays
University Inn (17th & Anderson)

LIVING ETHICAL WILLS
Union State Room #3
12:00 Noon
TODAY

This series gives an excellent opportunity to receive the "bequest" of a campus leader, in terms of what she/he hopes to leave humanity as guiding principles for life.

Diane Urban
Asst. Dean of Students and Student Attorney

Sponsored by
CUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES

WYOMING REDS

...the great new look for men featuring oversized mountain-eering shirts, pull-on pants, coordinated tops and bottoms. In brighter colors or stone-washed, pales, all in heavy cotton twill.

BORCK Brothers
1100 Westway Place (913) 537-8436
Westway Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat. 9:30-5:00 Thurs.

ICAT

For students to be eligible to sit in the ICAT Section for men's basketball games, they must become a member of ICAT by Friday, October 16 at 5 p.m.

Come out and cheer on the women's tennis team as they take on Nebraska at 9 a.m. on Friday at the Rec Center Courts. Support all of our Non-Revenue Sports—BE THERE!

HOLIDAY STYLE

The moment she saw that diamond, this Mr. Right could do no wrong.

DANENBERG'S
Holiday JEWELERS
Own A Masterpiece

OPEN LATE TONIGHT

425 BOWTIE MANHATTAN 913-776-7821

InFocus Thursday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 15, 1987 ■ Page 7

Lipson displays his tickets from his 50 straight Big Eight road games.

Robert J. Lipson is a man with a Wildcat's

DEDICATION

Robert Lipson anxiously watches last week's Missouri game with K-State's mascot, Willie the Wildcat.

Robert J. Lipson has been described as one-of-a-kind, loyal, friendly, enthusiastic — even unbelievable. Though he doesn't claim to be K-State's No. 1 sports fan, one would be hard-pressed these days to find a more supportive booster.

He shuns using his car unless there's a K-State road game or, less importantly, an emergency. Otherwise, he bicycles to his various destinations.

Describing himself as a general laborer — "whatever (work) I can find" — Lipson can't really afford to travel as often as he does, but last week at Columbia, Mo., marked the 50th consecutive Big Eight Conference road football game he has attended. When Oklahoma comes to town Saturday, it will mark the 100th straight conference game Lipson has witnessed.

Lipson, 37, is in constant contact with K-State players, coaches and athletic department officials, whether it be at practices or at games. He said he uses this "influential leverage" to inspire the Wildcats to prevent the disaster he calls losing. "I am no different than anyone else, who goes to a home game," Lipson said. "But I do believe that even to be a sports fan, or whatever you do, you've got to do it to the fullest or don't do it at all."

He isn't married, but as those closest to Lipson agree, this University is fortunate in that the current love of his life is Wildcat athletics.

"His loyalty is as absolute as anything connected with the University," football coach Stan Parrish said. "In Robert's eyes, we have a chance to win every game we play."

"Robert is a one-of-a-kind K-State booster," added K-State athletic director Larry Travis. "He's going to be there come rain, sleet, snow — whatever — because he loves Kansas State athletics. I wish we had a lot more people with his perception of what needs to be done."

"Robert is probably the most loyal, never-say-die fan I've been acquainted with," said former basketball coach Jack Hartman.

Lipson's string of road games began in 1973 when K-State lost 25-18 to the University of Kansas in Lawrence. His streak was jeopardized in 1975 when, while hitchhiking to a game in Boulder, Colo., the car he was riding in broke down in Denver. Lipson, though, managed to catch the second half of the game.

Parrish rewarded Lipson on his 50th road trip by allowing him to ride to Missouri with the team.

Since Lipson began his attendance streak, there's one obvious question: Why would a person go to such extremes to catch K-State football when the 'Cats have a combined 43-115 record during that time span?

"First, I wanted to see what the other seven Big Eight Conference campuses looked like. Second of all, I consider it mandatory attendance," Lipson said.

"See, if you're a sports fan, you go to the home games. It's sort of mandatory, right? Well, when you play against a Big Eight team, it's just as mandatory. I've been in those stadiums so many times, it's like a home

"We were coming down the runway to go onto the field, and there were all Oklahoma people around. (Lipson's) yelling at the Oklahoma people: 'Parrish is gonna kick (OU football coach Barry) Switzer's ass.' He gives his all for K-State," Parrish said.

Lipson, who hails from New York state, developed his love for sports by following "Big Apple" teams. Just ask him; he's proud of his Mets, Jets, Giants and Yankees.

"We had the World Series and Super Bowl champions in the same year, and they'll never get to say that out here. And, damn it, us New Yorkers are proud of that. Us New Yorkers are winners, and we would not stand for, or tolerate, this kind of losing back home. You just listen to us New Yorkers, and you'll start winning back here."

Lipson came to Manhattan in the fall of 1972, attracted by K-State's biology department. He attended school through the fall of 1974, then took some time off "for precious relief from the torment of studying." Twenty-six semesters later and 10 credits shy of a degree, Lipson's still around.

To use the old cliché, he said coming to K-State was a chance to have his cake and eat it, too.

"This place had the best fans in the world and had what I wanted academically," Lipson said. "The fans here are the greatest. I don't give a damn what anybody says."

In addition to boosting the spirits of current team members, Lipson has used his "influential leverage" to help recruit athletes, before the National Collegiate Athletic Association shut down such practices this year. One such example is K-State's record-setting tailback, Tony Jordan. "I at least played a hand in (getting Jordan here)," Lipson said. "I said, 'Hey, us New Yorkers can help make this place a winner.' I told Tony Jordan he was going to be better than (former Oklahoma running back) Marcus Dupree."

Jordan agreed.

"He played an interesting role in getting me to come to K-State," Jordan said. "He came out (to Rochester, N.Y.) and visited me and wrote my parents telling them how good a school K-State is. We still talk, and he comes to all the games. He's the best thing here."

During his travels around the con-

■ See ROBERT, Page 13

Lipson packs his cheering aids before departing for Missouri.

game. You play in the same stadiums every year. You should go to them," he said.

Lipson said current fans at K-State need to take an example from the Wildcat basketball fans of the mid-1970s. "They were actually the greatest fans ever," he said.

What Lipson said he attempts to do at road games is to make the 'Cats into "fanatics."

"...I say, 'Come on, let's kick their ass. Come on, I can't hear you.' I want to get the team absolutely hysterical after they come out of the locker room on a road game."

Parrish said Lipson's enthusiasm does have an inspirational effect on his squad — even when it's in an intimidating place such as Norman, Okla.

While listening to the 'Cats and watching action on the field, Lipson cheers on K-State during the Missouri game. To celebrate Lipson's 50th consecutive Big Eight Conference road game, he was allowed to ride with the football team to Columbia.

Occupying his usual spot on the sidelines, Lipson watches a 'Cat workout. Lipson is in constant contact with players and coaches.

Photos by
Brett Hacker

Story by
Tom Morris

Hundreds honor Landon

Private burial ceremony planned

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Hundreds of Kansans came to the Capitol Wednesday to pay their last respects to Alf M. Landon, who served them as governor a half-century ago but whose role as an elder statesman transcended his political accomplishments.

The body of Landon, who died Monday just one month after his 100th birthday, was brought to the Statehouse for the last time shortly after 9 a.m., the start of a 24-hour period for him to lie in state.

The 1936 Republican presidential nominee and governor of Kansas in 1933-37 will be buried Thursday morning in Mount Hope Cemetery about a mile south of his Topeka home. It will be a private burial service with only family members and casket bearers present. A retired bishop of the United Methodist Church will preside.

Landon was the first former Kansas governor to lie in state in the Capitol since Democrat George Docking, who died in 1964. Other former governors who have died since then were not brought to the Capitol according to the wishes of their families.

The last time Landon was at the Statehouse was in August 1986, when he went there to commemorate the 50th anniversary of his speech accepting the GOP presidential nomination. He went mainly to allow the event to be photographed and stayed only a few minutes.

The casket bearing Landon's body, an American flag draped on it, was carried by an eight-member military honor guard up the south steps of the Capitol to the second floor rotunda.

About 100 state employees, reporters, photographers and members of the public watched as the casket was placed on a stand near the south edge of the rotunda railing, flanked by American and Kansas flags.

At 10 a.m., Gov. Mike Hayden, assisted by two Army generals, state Adjutant Phil Finley and National Guard Commander Dan Karr, placed state and presidential wreaths in front of the casket.

The White House sent the presidential wreath, and Hayden presented the other wreath on behalf of the people of Kansas.

"Please join me in a moment of silence," Hayden said, the only words spoken during the brief ceremony. He then stood with head bowed for about 30 seconds.

The audience, which had swelled to about 300 by that time, then began filing past the casket, after signing a guest book.

Hayden and his wife, Patti, were the first to sign the book. Attorney General Robert T. Stephan followed the Haydens in passing by the Landon casket, followed by other state officials, workers and members of the public.

A funeral home spokesman said about 2,000 people had viewed the closed casket by Wednesday afternoon.

Honor guards representing the Kansas Army National Guard, Kansas Air National Guard and Kansas Highway Patrol will attend the casket throughout the 24 hours it remains in the Capitol.

Among those who came to the Statehouse Wednesday were John Cobb "Jack" Landon, the former governor's son who lives in Colorado Springs, and Judy Markley, Landon's secretary the past 27 years. Some of Landon's 10 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren were also expected to come to the Capitol at various times during the day.

A family spokesman said U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum and Margaret Anne Mills, Landon's two daughters had no plans to come to view the casket Wednesday. However, Sen. Kassebaum is expected to come to the Capitol Thursday.

"I think it's something (laying in state) he would have enjoyed very much," Jack Landon said. "I think he would be proud and happy. He would be especially pleased to see school children come here, because he thought so much of young people. I'm pleased to see so many people here."

The casket will be removed from the Capitol Thursday morning.

It will be taken back down the south steps, where Landon delivered his speech in August 1936 accepting the GOP presidential nomination. Then taps will be played and the flag folded and presented to his wife, Theo Cobb Landon.

The family funeral procession will then proceed to the cemetery about four miles southwest of the Capitol for the private burial service. If it rains, the private funeral service will be held in the chapel at First United Methodist Church two blocks north of the Capitol on Harrison Street.

A former minister at the church, retired Bishop Eugene Frank of Fairway, Kan., will preside at the service.

Hayden's staff moved Landon's picture from the governor's suite of offices, where pictures of all former governors hang, to the hallway outside the entrance to the governor's office. Flowers from Hayden's staff were placed below his picture.

Although the family requested contributions be sent to a memorial fund established at the Kansas State Historical Society, about a dozen floral arrangements were placed at the east side of the rotunda. Among those sending flowers were Kansas' five members of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Campus Briefly

Architects receive awards

Two K-State graduates have been named award winners in a contest sponsored by the American Society of Landscape Architects in Washington, D.C. The graduates competed in the national event with students from 55 other eligible ASLA chapters.

Mohammed Nuru, Nigeria, won one of two Undergraduate Awards in Design for "Kafin Ganye Ranch". The project is a master plan for a resort in Kenya.

Marcia Sloan, Mullinville, Kan., won an Undergraduate Commendation in Design award for "Jerash Jordan," her analytical work of the archeology of the city of Jordan.

All winning projects will be on display Oct. 31 through Nov. 3 in Baltimore, Md., during the ASLA annual meeting.

Tom Musiak, head of the landscape architecture department, said these honors bring the total number of K-State awards to 15, which is one-third of all awards presented in the history of the ASLA Student Awards Program.

Nichols assumes new role

The head of the Department of Speech, Harold Nichols, has been elected national president of the recently created Association for Theatre in Higher Education.

Last year, Nichols headed a committee which wrote the association's bylaws. Nichols will head the new group through December 1988.

A K-State faculty member since 1971, Nichols was named head of the speech department in 1984. He received his bachelor's degree from Iowa State University and his master's and doctorate from Indiana University. He is also regional chairman of the American College Theatre Festival.

Looking for an apartment? Check Collegian Classifieds

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS

Pre-Enrollment Advising
Begins Monday, October 19
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261

Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority at the time of pre-enrollment.

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

1120 Moro
539-9064

Listen to this!

PLAIN JANE

Will be jammin'

TONIGHT ONLY!

$2 cover
1.50 wells
$2.25 pitchers

GET INVOLVED

APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE FOR OPEN HOUSE COMMITTEE

PICK UP APPLICATIONS IN THE DEAN'S OFFICE, CALVIN HALL DUE BY
OCT. 19th

JOB OPPORTUNITIES AT UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

OFFERS PART-TIME POSITIONS
MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

EMPLOYEES EARN $8 HR.
LOADING/UNLOADING

SHIPPING AVAILABLE 8:45 a.m. - 5 p.m.
WORKING 3-5 HOURS

UNITED PARCEL SERVICE
is looking for
service-minded people to join
the UPS team.

FOR INFORMATION CONTACT
Office of Financial Aid
Fairchild Hall Rm. 104
Equal Opportunity Employer

CANDLEWOOD SHOPPING CENTER

3200 Block of Kimball Ave. Across from Cico Park
Come Discover Candlewood Shopping Center.

Over 2000 Movies
Open 7 days a week
Free Memberships

Oct. 31—ALL HORROR MOVIES
$1.00
776-7544

3254 Kimball in Candlewood Shopping Center
Also located: 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

JOHNSON RETAIL LIQUOR
3256 Kimball 776-7111

- Cold kegs in stock
- Chilled beer, wine and wine coolers
- Large selection of spirits

Compare our prices
&
SAVE

Close to KSU football stadium.
Call for everyday low prices.

SCHLIEBE

WORKOUT CENTERS

OKTOBERFEST SPECIALS

25% OFF ALL STUDENT MEMBERSHIPS
offer expires Oct. 31st
776-1750

Inquire about our Incredible Halloween Specials!
10-50% off our unique clothes!
varies from item to item

MON-SAT 10-5 • 3230 Kimball • 539-7657

THE CUTTING EDGE

Family Hair Center

Perms, Haircuts, & Products for Everyone

Appointments Preferred
539-5329

3250 Kimball Ave., Manhattan, Ks.

Dr. John G. Hollingsworth

3246 Kimball
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
(913) 537-2580

- General Dentistry
- Emergencies seen immediately

Have you had your teeth cleaned this semester?
Call now for an appointment

CHIROPRACTIC FAMILY HEALTH CENTER

We specialize in:

- Sports Injuries
- Headaches
- Backaches
- Neck Pain
- Lower Back Pain
- Whiplash

We accept most insurance

call 537-8305
DR. MARK J. HATESOHL

1st Visit
Free

coupon

Slender You No-Sweat
The Slender You No-Sweat Workout increases your flexibility, and reduces stress as you take off inches.
Exercise doesn't have to be painful and exhausting to be effective. Pay as you go. No membership fee required.

Call Slender You Today
Your First Visit's Free 776-3308

Education panel makes no stand on exams' future

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Legislative Educational Planning Committee, struggling over what to do about the state's minimum competency tests, failed Wednesday to make a recommendation to the Kansas Board of Education about the future of the exams.

But the committee will continue to study the issue at its meeting next month in an effort to reach a consensus about what the tests should do, who should take them and what purpose they should serve.

Testimony before the committee last month showed that many teachers and school administrators did not know what to do with the test results. In many cases, teachers ignored the test results or did not inform their students of them. The tests are given to Kansas students in the second, fourth, eighth and 10th grades.

"I don't think they're worth a hoot unless it does something for the pupil," said Rep. Denise Apt, R-Iola. Test results should be used as a tool to identify students who need remedial help, she said.

"These results have not been used very much for remediation," said Rep. Jess Harder, D-Buhler. "Teachers and schools already know which kids need remediation."

Educators and legislators became concerned about the low grades of 10th graders in the math portion of the test. Only 68 percent of those students passed when the tests were given during the last school year.

The state began minimum competency testing in 1980, when the Legislature funded the program for five years. The Legislature renewed the program for another five years in 1984. Lawmakers eventually will have to decide if the program should be continued beyond 1989.

Apt said public concern about education quality prompted the Legislature to mandate the tests seven years ago.

"It was a grassroots accountability request," she said. "At that time, that was the tenor across the nation."

Apt urged the committee to recommend that the tests be continued and the scores be sent to students' parents. She also said teacher-parent conferences should be set up to discuss each student's test scores.

But Sen. Gerald Karr, D-Emporia, said many working parents would not be able attend a conference with teachers to discuss the test scores.

"The people who are going to go to those conferences are those whose kids are doing pretty good or whose kids are in a whole lot of trouble," he said.

He suggested the tests could be used as a research tool to determine how Kansas students are doing generally, rather than to identify individual students who need extra help from teachers.

Education need expands

Colleges develop local ties

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A consultant for the Kansas Board of Education predicted the state will see an "explosion of need for adult education" in the years ahead.

Shirley McCune, senior director of Midcontinent Regional Education Laboratory in Denver, said at a press conference Wednesday that the community colleges today represent the model closest to what public education will be like in the future — schools with closer ties to industry and the local business community. Courses, she said, will have a more direct application to the job market.

Because some of these types of colleges have developed close links with the communities they serve, the schools are sensitive to local needs, she said. That puts them in a position to provide the type of training that is in demand, she added.

"The community will be part of the school," she said.

Community colleges tend to place a greater emphasis on performance rather than academic credits, she added.

McCune also said that education in the future, especially adult education, will place a greater emphasis on technology.

"We've been able to ignore technology," she said, and let only a few people deal with it. But today society needs "technology literate" adults, she said, and those are the ones who will be enrolling in adult education programs. "The jobs of teachers change when you add technology," she said, and additional training for both teachers and administrators will become increasingly important in the years ahead.

"The world has changed dramatically in the last few years and we have a tremendous catch-up job," she said. "We're still teaching facts but we're not teaching kids how to use facts."

McCune is working with a number of states and schools in their long-term planning efforts.

She said Kansas will see a decline in its student population over the next 10 years because of outmigration of working people from the state. Kansas currently does not have enough jobs for all the people who want to live in the state, although the outmigration is not as bad as in other Mid-west states, she said.

"The population is increasingly made up of those over 65," she said.

Kansas needs more small businesses and small industry to stem economic decline, she said. "Agriculture-related industry is still going to be fairly limited in growth," she added.

The predicted decline in the student population will mean the cost of education per student will increase, she said, but added: "The loss of students could be a blessing in that it'll give administrators time to examine the curriculum."

McCune also said local school boards and government agencies will be investing more in early childhood development programs.

"Families are under stress, kids are under stress," McCune said, estimating that 20 percent of Kansas children live in poverty.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Coors LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

David Naster

Date: Thursday, October 29, 1987
Time: 8 p.m.
Where: McCain Auditorium
Admission: $2

Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Box Office or at the Activities Center, third floor of the K-State Union.

k-state union
upc eclectic entertainment

"The most sought after performer on college campuses today" —Variety

TAYLOR MASON

Taylor Mason is comedy, music and ventriloquism.

Do it out of respect for the dead.
And the living.

THE AMERICAN HEART
ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR
YOUR LIFE

American Heart
Association

This space provided as a public service.

Manhattan
Civic Theater
presents
Oliver!

October 9, 10, 15, 16
at 8 p.m.

October 17
at 2 p.m. & 8 p.m.

at
Manhattan Middle School,
9th & Poyntz
For ticket information
call 776-8591

Southwestern Bell
Telephone

RUSHWATERS
THE TUNING
TONIGHT

All
Mixed
Drinks
$1.50

531 N. Manhattan

Office:
539-4321

Bar:
539-9727

UPC
UNION PROGRAM
COUNCIL

Coors LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

featuring David Naster and
Taylor Mason
date: Thursday, October 29, 1987
time: 8:00 p.m.

where: McCain Auditorium

Tickets on sale NOW from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at K-State Union Activities Center and Noon-
5 p.m. at the McCain Auditorium Box Office

Admission: $2

For more information call 532-6571

k-state union
upc eclectic entertainment

Midday Arts
presents

A Preview of the Musical
SOUTH PACIFIC

by the K-State Players

Oct. 21

12:00 Noon
Union Courtyard

ROCK&ROLL
ROCK&ROLL
CONFIDENTIAL
DAVE MARSH

America's best known rock writer, and a former editor of Rolling Stone Magazine.

October 20, 1987 at 8 p.m.

Forum Hall, Free Admission

A lecture that will change the way you hear music for the rest of your life.

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

MATTHEW BRODERICK
PROJECT X

Following orders isn't the only way to become a hero.

COLOR BY DELUXE
PRODUCED BY ASSOCIATION WITH AMERICAN FILM AND AMERICAN ENTERTAINMENT NETWORK
PG PARENTS STRONGLY CAUTIONED
SOME MATERIAL MAY BE INAPPROPRIATE FOR CHILDREN UNDER 17
© 1987 TWENTIETH CENTURY FOX FILM CORPORATION

Tomorrow and Saturday, Forum Hall 7 & 9 p.m.
$1.75 KSU ID required, unrated

k-state union
upc feature films

PERSONA

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Today!
Little Theatre 3:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
7:30 p.m.
$1.75 with KSU ID

Suffering from a severe mental breakdown, a renowned actress becomes abnormally dependant upon her nurse.

This is perhaps Director Ingmar
Bergman's most controversial film.
(Swedish film with English subtitles)

ASK surveys lawmakers

Results show familiarity with group

By Karen Allen
Collegian Reporter

In a recent Associated Students of Kansas survey, more than 75 percent of the state legislators who responded said they were "very familiar or quite familiar" with the ASK organization. Kent Bradley, senior in nutritional science and student body president, released the findings of the poll last week.

Bradley said a survey is done annually by the ASK staff, but he wanted to conduct it on a personal level this year in order to receive higher-quality answers.

The survey allowed Kansas lawmakers to evaluate the methods by which ASK becomes acquainted with the views of students from across Kansas. Legislators remained anonymous in the survey.

"Most of the responses were suggestions on how to improve what we're offering," Bradley said. "We can gear our lobbying efforts for the January session around their suggestions."

ASK is a lobbying organization representing all students who attend the six regents institutions. Bradley was interested in surveying the effectiveness of the group because he serves as a member of its board of directors.

Sixty-two percent of the legislators completed the survey, and 47 percent of those responding think ASK is representative of the views of a majority of the students. Bradley would like to see that number increase.

"SGA (Student Governing Association) will continue to put an emphasis on communication with the student body," he said, indicating his goals for the ASK group at K-State this year. He added that ASK would, in turn, relay those views to the legislature.

Another change will be the increased emphasis on students contacting their legislators back home, Bradley said. In the survey, the legislators made it known they wanted to continue to hear from their constituents.

The legislators were asked to give some background information about themselves for the poll. The survey showed 39 percent of the respondents had served 10 or more years in the legislature, and only 10 percent had served less than two years. Bradley found a correlation between the comments and the ages of the legislators.

"Most of the responses were suggestions on how to improve what we're offering. We can gear our lobbying efforts for the January session around their suggestions."

—Kent Bradley

"The younger ones tended to be more positive and the older more negative," he said, referring to their opinion of ASK's work at the state level. "This is a good trend—lately, we have been doing things right."

The older legislators remember the years when education was not the sole concern of the group, Bradley said. He explained ASK was more issue-oriented in its former years, such as when it lobbied for the legalization of marijuana.

"We have learned that we have to keep (ASK) issues in perspective with everything else in the state or we lose credibility," he said.

Only two legislators could correctly identify a member of ASK's board of directors, and Bradley said he was concerned about what that meant.

"It's proof on paper," Bradley said. "They don't know who is directly forming a policy that will affect them."

Although several concerns about ASK's performance were expressed, Bradley said he was pleased with the response to the survey.

"It definitely increased awareness among the legislators," he said. "The questions were serious and to the point. We have some good suggestions on how to improve."

Library programs, peer evaluations on Senate agenda

By The Collegian Staff

Student senators will hear a status report about Farrell Library during their regular meeting. The Student Senate meeting begins at 7 tonight in the Union Big 8 room.

"I will be addressing Senate about the status of the library," said Brice Hobrock, Dean of Libraries. "I will be discussing some new programs in the library and other concerns like the amount of space that is available for students in the library."

One highlight of Hobrock's speech will be the details about a new electronic information access system to be installed in the library.

Hobrock said this system will contain all the information now stored on index cards, thus making the process of locating books easier for library users.

ing the process of locating books easier for library users.

Senate will hear first readings on a bill proposed by the Academic Affairs Committee. The bill makes a statement about peer evaluation. The committee opposes the practice of faculty evaluations of each other at the end of the semester.

Senate will be voting on four final revisions to its constitution and bylaws. Senate also will be voting on finance appeals from two campus organizations: the FONE Crisis Center and Student Governing Association.

Senate will be voting on an allocation requested by a group of students from the College of Architecture and Design.

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian Classifieds

NEW THIS WEEK

STING
LOVE & ROCKETS
SUPER TRAMP
TOMMY SHAW
54-40

1204 MORO—AGGIEVILLE

MAYER RETAIL LIQUOR

We Have Everything Necessary for a Successful Homecoming:

•Plenty of Cold Kegs in Stock
•Large Selection of Beer,
Wine, Wine Coolers & Schnapps
•Variety of Sale Items

Stop by and see Dillon
& Maddie

521 N. 12th 539-5269
1 block S. of Kite's—Next to Southern Sun

1337 Anderson

Pizza by the slice 99¢

12" & 14" Whole Pizzas

Starting at $4.99

Call ahead at 537-0715
Ready in just 10 minutes!

Try our Kwik Kwencher
32 oz. Insulated Refillable Cup just 49¢

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Edwards, Ford,
Off Campus

Oct. 16: Ford, Goodnow,
Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

HOMECOMING

'87

Hold On To Your Hats
Here Come The Cats

UNION DAY

HOMECOMING SPECIALS

at the K-State Union

October 15

Union Day Events

9:00a-5:00p Ambassador Elections in K-State Union (Please bring fee card)
8:00-9:00a Spirit Banners hung
10:00a Banners judged
10:30a Entertainment
11:00a Body Building
12:00p Entertainment
12:30p Pep Rally
12:45p Introduction of Ambassador Candidates
1:00p Entertainment
2:00p Yell Like Hell
3:00p Entertainment
3:15p Announcements

K-State Union Stateroom Food Service

Daily

Caramel Apples, 75 cents each, 11:00a-1:00p.
Strawberry Shortcake at Condiments, $1.25.
Small Crowns at Bakery Showcase, $1.75.

Thu. 15 October

Enchiladas $2.10, 10:30a-1:30p.
"KSU" Cookies at Dessert Counter, 50¢.
Caramel Apple Bar, 95¢ each, 1:00-3:00p.

Fri. 16 October

"KSU" Cookies at Dessert Counter, 50¢ each.

K-State Union Recreation

Thu. 15 October

BOWLING, 8:15a-5:00p 60¢ per game
PURPLE PIN BOWLING, 8:15a-5:00p. Get a strike with purple head pin and win a FREE game.
TABLE TENNIS, 8:15a-10:30p 55¢ per hour
BILLIARDS, 8:15a-10:30p 85¢ per hour

K-State Union Bookstore

Thu.-Sat. 15-17 October

Josten's Ring Special
K-State Sweatshirts $3.00 off -15 Oct. only-

K-State Union Program Council

Thu. 15 October

UPC Kaleidoscope Films Presents: The film, "Persona," 3:30p, Little Theatre; 7:30p, Forum Hall, $1.75.

Fri. 16 October

UPC Feature Films Presents: The film "Project X," 7:00p and 9:30p, Union Forum Hall, $1.75.

Sat. 17 October

UPC Feature Films Presents: The film "Project X," 7:00p and 9:30p, Union Forum Hall, $1.75.

K-State Union Information Desk

Thu. 15 October

25¢ popcorn all day.

K-State Union Copy Center

Thu.-Sat. 15-17 October
4¢ copies

k-state union

host to kansas state university

'Late Night with Lonnie' rocks Ahearn

Midnight crowd welcomes season

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

Maybe someone should call some veterinary medicine students because at 12:01 a.m. today, there were about 8,500 rabid fans in Ahearn Field House.

"Midnight Madness II" officially started the 1987-88 K-State men's basketball campaign in fine fashion. Last year's season-opening event drew about 4,000 fans.

It was a chance to preview last season's National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament qualifiers.

Also, it was an opportunity to mark the beginning of the end for Ahearn before moving next season to the Fred Bramlage Coliseum.

The coliseum, located just south of KSU Stadium, will replace the site that has seen more Big Eight Conference championships won than any other facility in the conference.

"Ahearn crowds are the best in the country, no question about it, but this group can set new standards in enthusiasm...I'm proud and happy for you that you can enjoy a historic year in Ahearn Field House."

—Lon Kruger

By 11:30 p.m., the bleachers on the west and east sides of Ahearn were packed. Fans lubricated their larynxes with chants of "Tastes great, less filling" and "KU sucks." They even managed a "wave" in the rectangular structure.

The Wildcats took the floor at precisely one minute past midnight and began a series of layups and monster dunks before pregame introductions. Though sophomore guard Steve Henson, junior guard-forward Charles Bledsoe, senior center Ron Meyer, senior guard Will Scott and senior forward Mitch Richmond received large rounds of applause from the crowd, the biggest ovation was saved for Coach Lon Kruger.

Kruger, in his first year at the Wildcats' helm, guided K-State to a 20-11 overall record and the second-round of the NCAA West regionals. "Ahearn crowds are the best in the country, no question about it, but this group can set new standards in enthusiasm," Kruger told the audience. "This is the last year in Ahearn. I'll tell you what, I'm proud and happy for you that you can enjoy a historic year in Ahearn Field House."

K-State's Purple squad, led by Richmond's 20 points, cruised past the White team, 53-38, in the 20-minute scrimmage.

"I think that comes from being a year older," said Kruger of Richmond's performance. "He's a leader. He knows it. The other players know it."

Bledsoe paced the White team with 12 and Meyer added 10. Three players — Fred McCoy, Lance Simmons and Mark Dobbins — chipped in eight points apiece for the Purple team.

Overall, Kruger said the performance was about what he expected. "It's difficult to say (how they did). They dribble too much in this situation. They get a little bit more optimistic offensively in shot selection. We're looking at conditioning, things like that," he said.

"But I think there's going to be good competition at each spot. I think that's healthy," Kruger added. "We'd like to play a lot of people anyhow, and it looks like we'll be able to do that without falling off at any spot."

During a break in the scrimmage, K-State received a sportsmanship award as voted on by Big Eight officials. This was one of the highlights of Kruger's morning.

"That's something we're proud of. We're proud of the type of people we've got in our program, and our crowds handle themselves well," Kruger said. "I think that's something all programs and all coaches have to be conscious of today because crowd control has got to be on our minds at all time."

Before the opening practice last year, Kruger said he "had a lump in his throat" because it was his first year coaching at K-State. He said this season's initial practice was no different.

"This year is special because of the significance of the last year at Ahearn," Kruger said. "Whatever year you line up, you're anxious and excited about the start of the season. If I don't feel that excitement, I'd question whether or not I should be doing this."

Charles Bledsoe looks to the basket as Mitch Richmond leaps to try and block his shot during the "Midnight Madness" scrimmage this morning in Ahearn Field House. The Purple team, led by Richmond's 20 points, defeated the White team, with Bledsoe scoring 12 points, 53-38.

Staff/Andy Nelson

'Cat fans 'psyched' for season

By Jeff Rapp
Sports Editor

Amid the basketball hullabaloo surrounding Ahearn Field House for the second edition of Midnight Madness, more than 8,000 representatives of the K-State student body formed a massive, raucous, fanatical bond.

The crowd, it seemed at times, was one huge entity — rather than thousands of separate personalities.

When individually asked about why they attended, these separate personalities agreed on one thing: Wildcat basketball is where it's at.

Mitch Holthus, 1979 graduate of K-State and "The Voice of the Wildcats" on WIBW-AM radio and the Wildcat Network: "(Midnight Madness) kind of sums it up about how people feel about K-State basketball. In one year's time, I think it's a credit to (head coach) Lon Kruger and what he's done in restoring the pride of K-State basketball. You can see the anticipation (the fans) have."

Troy Milsap, senior in education: "This is what K-State basketball is all about. We're going to be No. 1 in the Big Eight. We're going to chew KU up and spit them out."

Dave Tritsch, junior in business administration: "I'm damn glad to be here. I really enjoy going to K-State and I think basketball is our definite strong point. I think it's a strong plus this year that we don't have Norris Coleman back. (K-State) is so much better as a team without Coleman wanting his own personal (attention). Personally I think K-State is going to win the Big Eight."

Mark Thompson, sophomore in pre-law: "I think (Midnight Madness) is a super idea. It gets the fans involved and really gets the fans up and they look forward to this."

Monte Stull, junior in marketing: "It's really great to see everyone excited about basketball, because basketball is my favorite sport. I'm glad to see all these people out here this late at night. I think it's a good idea."

Pete Kunkel, junior in pre-physical therapy: "I was impressed with the whole thing. I thought the school spirit was impressive and thought the 'Cats really looked good."

Cardinals claim league pennant, to battle youthful Twins for title

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals, the best do-or-die team in baseball history, came alive on Jose Oquendo's three-run homer and behind the pitching of Danny Cox to win the National League playoffs Wednesday night, beating the San Francisco Giants 6-0 in Game 7.

The Cardinals earned their 15th World Series trip, third in the last six years, by winning the final two games at home before raucous crowds of 55,331. St. Louis and the Minnesota Twins, making their first World Series appearance since 1965, play Game 1 Saturday night at the Metrodome.

Cox allowed eight hits and extended the Giants' scoreless streak to 22 innings, a playoff record. He also ended their chance at reaching the World Series for the first time since 1962.

Oquendo's homer off Atlee Hammaker capped a four-run second inning and sent Busch Stadium into a frenzy as the Cardinals came charging out of the dugout to greet the utility player who had just hit the third home run of his career — all against the Giants.

St. Louis is 8-2 in seventh games, winning more Game 7s than any other team. The New York Yankees are next at 5-5. This was the first Game 7 in NL playoff history since the best-of-seven format began three years ago.

The Cardinals, who were outhit, outhomered and outplayed in the field for the first six games, were humming. Everything they did worked, while the Giants could do little but watch.

NL Game 7
Cards 6 Giants 0

Only Jeffrey Leonard, the series Most Valuable Player, made a contribution for the Giants by going 2-for-3. But even his luck ran out in the sixth inning when he hit a line drive that Gold Glove shortstop Ozzie Smith deflected in the air and then caught on the carom.

Leonard earned a $50,000 bonus for being named MVP.

Leonard, who homered in the first four games, tied a playoff record with 10 hits in 24 at-bats.

The Cardinals finished with 12 hits and five walks off seven pitchers. They put the game away in the bottom of the sixth on a two-run single by Tom Herr, the only batter reliever Craig Lefferts faced. By then, the crowd was wild, whirling white towels as the celebration drew closer.

Cox, who pitched the game that clinched the NL East title for the Cardinals, had been hit hard in losing Game 4. But he had little trouble on the cool, clear night and did not walk a batter, struck out five and was helped by three double plays.

St. Louis, which had batted a combined .183 against Giants' left-handers through six games, got rolling in the second inning against Hammaker, who got a no-decision in Game 3.

Terry Pendleton singled with one out in the second, the first hit in nine at-bats from the right side for the switch-hitter, and took third when Tony Pena singled. Pendleton hurt his left side on the slide and stayed in the game, but was removed later.

Willie McGee followed with an RBI single that brought up Oquendo, the eighth-place hitter who got to start four games when Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog was forced to juggle his lineup in the series because of an injury to Jack Clark.

This time, Oquendo played the slugger's role by sending a 3-2 pitch over Leonard and the left-field fence for his second home run this season. The Cardinals rushed onto the field to cheer Oquendo, with Vince Coleman jumping into Clark's arms halfway to home plate.

The homer was just the second in the playoffs for St. Louis, compared to nine for San Francisco. The Giants had outhomered the Cardinals 16-8 while winning the regular-season series 7-5.

The Giants' last chance at catching the Cardinals may have been in the top of the third, when Jose Uribe and pinch-hitter Eddie Milner opened with singles. But Mike Aldrete grounded into a double play and Kevin Mitchell struck out, cutting off whatever momentum San Francisco may have had left. The Giants made a playoff record 10 double plays in the series to St. Louis' five.

The Cardinals also got to display some of their speed, which had been considered their greatest asset at the start of the series. Coleman and Pena stole bases, giving St. Louis — which led the majors with 248 — two in the playoffs while being caught three times.

Herr, 2-for-19 in the first five games but with four hits in the final two, clinched it with his two-run single. Scott Garrelts walked the bases loaded with two outs and Herr singled up the middle.

Leonard set a playoff record for total bases with 22. His 10 hits tied the NL record set by Terry Puhl of Houston in 1980 and matched in 1985 by Smith, whose leaping catch kept Leonard from getting the mark by himself.

Leonard was the second straight player from the losing team to be named MVP of the playoffs. Houston's Mike Scott was named MVP last year against the Mets.

The Cardinals and Twins both finished below .500 last season.

Manning 'very close' to choosing NBA draft

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Danny Manning, the superstar forward of the University of Kansas basketball team, was close to turning professional last spring but says he's glad he didn't.

"I'm glad I stayed. I had my moments (of doubt). But it should be a great year," Manning said in an interview published Wednesday in The Kansas City Star.

Manning was asked repeatedly about his plans in the days leading up to the May 8 deadline for declaring eligibility for the National Basketball Association draft. He brushed such questions aside and left the impression there was no doubt that he would return for his senior year this season.

On the day he went to Coach Larry Brown to tell him he would remain at KU for his final year, Manning had Brown believing he planned to turn pro.

"I thought sure he was there to tell me he was going out," Brown said this week. "He was ready."

Manning said he didn't dwell on the matter until a few days before the deadline. "I just didn't want to harp on it ... but I was close to leaving. Very close."

Manning said it was his mother, Darnelle, who convinced him to stay at Kansas.

Mrs. Manning, a kindergarten teacher, told The Star that she and her husband, Ed, an assistant coach at KU, left the college-or-pro decision up to their son. Manning's mother acknowledged she did a little nagging on the subject, however.

"The most important thing to me was the education," she said. "Danny will be 35 years old someday, and those legs will be tired."

She chuckled at the recall of Danny's rebuttal. "He said, 'Mom, I'll make a lot of money, and I can buy a school if I want to.' But he needs to understand how important a degree can be, because in life you don't know what's going to happen."

Manning said a couple of things would have cinched his turning pro. If Brown had gone to a head coaching job in the NBA, which had been rumored last spring, or if Kansas had not recruited well, Manning said he would have left.

"It got old, those box-and-one zones (defenses), people hanging on me and beating me," he told The Star. "I didn't want to stick around if we didn't have a legitimate shot at a national championship."

Kansas signed some inside help for Manning, especially 6-foot-10 junior college transfer Marvin Branch.

Manning, with a chance to become the No. 1 pick in the 1988 NBA draft and the No. 1 all-time Big Eight scorer and rebounder, also was swayed by his opportunity to play in the 1988 Olympics.

Manning has 2,009 points, 652 behind Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma (1983-85).

"Ever since I was cut from tryouts when I was in high school (1984), I've wanted to represent my country," Manning said. "I've followed the Olympics since first grade."

Staff/Greg Vogel

Tearful injury

Debora Alfaro, junior in pre-veterinary medicine, is helped after she was injured in a car-motorcycle accident at 16th Street and Fairchild Avenue Wednesday. Alfaro was riding her motorcycle south-bound on 16th Street and Randall Tauscher, senior in business administration, was west-bound on Fairchild Avenue when the accident occurred. She was transported to Memorial Hospital where she was listed in stable condition.

Wheat mosaic hurts fall crop

By The Associated Press

Wheat streak mosaic has backed southwest Kansas farmers into a corner leaving them several undesirable options, according to a Kansas State University expert.

William G. Willis, Cooperative Extension Service plant pathologist, says it's getting awfully late to replant wheat, although some farmers could do that without serious yield losses. But they would have no fall pasture and limited spring pasture.

Replanting would require producers to work under their old wheat, says Willis. He said herbicides might work if they contained fast-acting paraquat. But there are no guarantees because of the lateness of the season, he said.

As the plants slowly die, curl mites, which carry the disease, could move to the tips, where they could be picked up by the wind and then infect the second crop.

"You would need to delay replanting long enough for the infected plants to die before the second planting emerged," Willis said.

A second option, pasturing out the wheat and planting a spring crop, faces government farm program and insurance constraints. The mosaic-infested wheat also would produce less forage.

Collegian Classifieds Cheap, but Effective

They're here.

Introducing California Raisin figurines. Only 99¢ each.

You've seen 'em. You've heard 'em. And for a limited time, when you buy any two Rise 'n Shine™ biscuits or any dessert at a participating Hardee's restaurant, you can get these cute California Raisin™ figurines.

But don't wait to hear about 'em through the grapevine. Because at this price, they'll be going fast.

We're out to win you over.

Hardee's

* Plus tax. * At regular price. Offer good while supplies last. ©1987 Hardee's Food Systems, Inc. ©1987 CALRAB

Trade deficit lowers First decline in 5 months

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's persistent trade deficit showed its first decline in five months as it narrowed slightly to $15.7 billion in August, but an unexpected dip in U.S. overseas sales clouded the improvement, the government said Wednesday.

The Commerce Department said the merchandise trade deficit, the shortfall between imports and exports, was down from the record $16.5 billion gap posted in July.

Despite the one-month improvement, acting Commerce Secretary Bruce Smart said the deficit "continues on an unacceptably high plateau," with the United States still buying nearly twice as much as it sells.

For the first eight months of 1987, the trade deficit has been running at an annual rate of $171.1 billion. Short of a major turnaround in the months to come, the deficit appeared certain to exceed last year's record $156.2 billion shortfall.

Imports overall fell by 4.2 percent in August, to $35.9 billion, with America importing less from nearly all its major trading partners.

"This is an encouraging sign," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Brothers in New York. "The question is, will it continue? The (August) figures aren't conclusive enough to suggest that we're on the road to recovery in the trade deficit."

The August import gains were partially offset by a 3.7 percent decline in exports, to $20.2 billion, their lowest level since February. A drop in overseas sales of U.S. commercial aircraft was blamed in part for the decline.

The export figures were a disappointment to economists who had been encouraged by a marked rise in exports in recent months, as U.S. products become more competitive from the two-year 40 percent decline in the value of the dollar.

Analysts had anticipated a slight improvement in August anyway, noting that the deficit is usually larger than usual each July, partly due to a heavy influx in car imports in that month. The figures are not adjusted for seasonal fluctuations.

Many economists as well as administration officials continued to argue that the trade deficit is improving more rapidly than the monthly figures suggest — largely because higher import prices tend to mask the fact that import volumes have been decreasing for most of the past year, while export volumes have been increasing.

The trade figures focus only on "current" dollar amounts and are not adjusted to remove the effects of inflation. Nor do they reflect trade volumes.

"For some time now, the real deficit has been falling in constant dollars, which more accurately measures physical volumes shipped," said U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter.

Helping to nudge the deficit down in August was an improvement in the shortfall with Japan, to $4.9 billion from $5.1 billion in July.

The trade balance with Western Europe also narrowed, to $2.5 billion from $3.9 billion in July. But the trade deficit with Canada, the nation's largest trading partner, widened in August to $939.1 million, up from $645 million in July.

Imports of passenger cars from Japan showed no significant change in August, staying at the July level of $2 billion. Car imports from Canada dropped to $375.8 million from $556.5 million in July. Auto imports from all other countries was down to $1.1 billion, from $1.5 billion in July.

In agricultural trade, the only area where the United States has consistently maintained a surplus, that surplus declined to $411 million in August, down from $535.8 million in July.

TV Listings

By TV Data

THURSDAY OCTOBER 15, 1987

	KSNT 22	WIBW 10	KTKA 40	KSHB 41	KTWU 11	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00		To Be Announced		My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs Teddy Ruxpin	SportsLook	Little House on the Prairie
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Auto Racing: CART Laguna	Movie: "Sybil"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore Dick Van	Body Electric Congress	Andy Griffith Soap	Seca 300 Bicycling
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Psychology Exercise/Billie	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Top Rank Boxing: Tim	Movie: "Lust for Gold"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Tenko	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	Witherspoon vs. Mike Wil-
2:00	Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobilee Zoo	Living Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	iams Scuba World	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones
4:00	3's Company	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravestar	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravestar	Water Skiing	Munsters Laverne
5:00	Family Ties	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook Horse Mag.	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News Truth/Conseq.	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Barney Miller	SportsCenter SpeedWeek	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00	Cosby Show	Tour Of Duty	St. Hammer The Charm-	Hill Street Blues	Adams Chron- icles	Movie: "Pir- anha II: The	Drag Racing: NHRA Nation-	Movie: "Mid-way"
8:00	Cheers / Base-	Wiseguy	Movie: "The Survivors"	Movie: "Di- ner"	Mystery/Lord Peter Wimsey	Spawning"	Tractor Pull Superbouts
9:00	LA Law	Knots Landing			DeGrassi High Newton's	News INN News	Marvelous NHL Hockey: "Doomsday	Movie: Flight"
10:00	News	News Cheers	News M*A*S*H	Barney Miller Late Show	Wild America Business Rpt.	H'mooner Magnum, P.I.	Boston Bruins at Los An-	geles Kings
11:00	Ent. Tonight	Adderly	B. Buddies Nightline	Dating Game	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie: "Prince of the City"	IMSA GTO Series
12:30	David Letter- man	"Soggy Bot- tom, U.S.A."	700 Club	Movie: "Cow- boy"	Sign-Off

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75
Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____	Phone no. _____
Address _____	Student ID # _____
1 _____	2 _____
3 _____	4 _____
5 _____	6 _____
7 _____	8 _____
9 _____	10 _____
11 _____	12 _____
13 _____	14 _____
15 _____	16 _____
17 _____	18 _____
19 _____	20 _____
21 _____	22 _____
23 _____	24 _____
25 _____	26 _____
27 _____	28 _____
29 _____	30 _____
Date ad begins _____	Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____	Category _____

Robert

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

ference, Lipson has come to love Boulder, Colo. — his favorite road destination — because of the snowball wars he's witnessed there. He doesn't have a least-favorite stop, but he is an ardent KU hater.

"My favorite quote is: 'The Jay-hawks are a bunch of turkey buzzards,'" Lipson said. His prediction for the intrastate rivalry Nov. 7? "Stan Parrish is going to stomp (Kansas coach) Bob Valesente's ass right into the ground."

Lipson predicts future success for current K-State coaches Parrish and men's basketball mentor Lon Kruger.

On Kruger: "He has the very best strategy in the nation for a last-second shot. He's gifted like that."

On Parrish: "Stan Parrish is going to start winning here, and I'll tell you why. Stan Parrish is a mean, tough, son of a bitch, just like (Indiana basketball mentor) Bobby Knight, Jack Hartman or (the late Alabama football coach Paul) 'Bear' Bryant. It takes (a man like that) to get the job done."

As for the future, how long Lipson stays in Manhattan depends on when K-State's athletic program pays its debt to Lipson. It began with the free ride to Columbia, but that's only the tip of the iceberg, Lipson said.

"These people owe me something for all these years and all I've put into it," he said. "The players owe me something by giving me 100-percent consistency. The players have to take into consideration how we feel."

When K-State's teams lose, they hurt people like Robert Lipson, who desperately wants to win.

Collegian Classifieds Cheap, but Effective

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

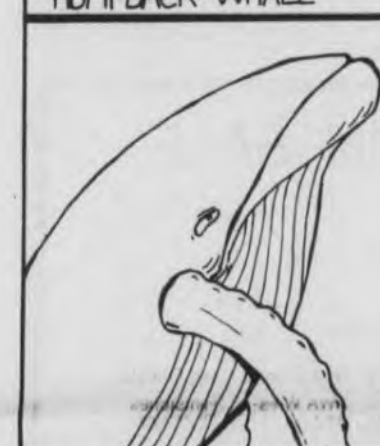

MOUNTAIN GORILLA

BIGHORN SHEEP

HUMPBACK WHALE

FULL SERVICE GAS ATTENDANT

Vanishing species.

Kedzie 103

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. We desperately need tutors in Algebra. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (35-39)

DO YOU let people spend your money without asking you first? That's what Student Senate is doing with $1.2 million of student funds. Sign the Holton Hall referendum petition to give the students the right to vote on this issue. Call 532-7777 for details. (38-42)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

ONE BEDROOM, available Jan. 1, water and trash paid, less than one block from campus, $275 per month, must assume lease, 539-1686. (35-39)

NICE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments. Very close to campus. Available Nov. 1. Please call 776-9124. (3711)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (2111)

NICE, LARGE one- and two-bedroom apartments in Westloop area. Please call 776-9124. (3711)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 CAPRICE Classic, $400. Call 539-2776. (36-39)

1979 GRAN Prix L, full power, tilt, cruise, AM/FM cassette, excellent condition, $2,950, 776-8488. (37-38)

1985 CHEVY S-10, 42,000 miles, air conditioning, four-cylinder, F.I. tilt, cruise, five-speed, AM/FM cassette, $6,500, 257-3440, evenings. (37-38)

VW 1600 cc Bug engine, complete, 1600 cc rebuilt shortblock, IRS Bug transmission, import auto repairs at J & L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, St. George. (38-51)

1983 CHEV Celebrity, excellent condition, $4,000, must see to appreciate. Call 537-0681. (38-42)

COMPUTERS 08

APPLE 2C-128K, new monitor and keyboard, two drives, Imagerwriter printer, all software included. Call Jason, 539-2321. (38-40)

EMPLOYMENT 09

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive Inn is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write J.C. P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (38-48)

EXPERIENCED COOK for group of 60 individuals. For more information or to set up an interview, please call 539-8680 after 6 p.m. or 537-4495 and leave message. (35-39)

NATIVE KANSAS family seeks full-time nanny/housekeeper to live-in from January to June 1988 in Washington, D.C. area. Caring for two-year-old boy. Transportation, salary, room and board included. Female, non-smoker, send resume to: Mr. and Mrs. Cab Grayson, 4751 N. 34th Road, Arlington, VA 22207. Call (703) 241-3746. (35-39)

ClassAds

532-6555

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts. Others. Information (504) 641-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-59)

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South Padre Island, Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-282-6221. (35-44)

WE SEEK entrepreneur business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

MANHATTAN CABLE TV6 has an immediate opening for a dedicated reliable individual to work as a production assistant, approximately 20 hours per week. Knowledge of video production is essential. Job will include some evening and weekend work. Applicants may inquire at Manhattan Cable TV, 610 Humboldt, Manhattan. No phone calls please. (36-38)

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER
is looking for full-time and part-time help in their food court. Apply in Management Office behind Service Area B. $3.50 per hour

RETAIL SALES clerk for afternoons and weekends. Sales experience preferred. Bring resume to 1212 Moro, Aggieville. (37-39)

NETWORK MARKETING! The wave of the future! You choose earnings and hours, 776-3759 after 6 p.m. (37-41)

BABYSITTER NEEDED immediately in my home for 15-month-old. Light housekeeping and some meal preparation. Good health, non-smoker, references required. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and some evenings. Call 539-4915; leave message. (38-42)

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (38-39)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service office. We offer student pay plan, job variety and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat, wear appropriate attire and be able to obtain a Food Handler's card. (38-44)

GARAGE AND YARD SALES 11

SEARS Two-drawer metal file cabinet, metal TV cart, wicker hamper, four-drawer wood chest, two large pieces denim luggage (softside—Bloomington's best—used once). Art studio, canvas stretchers 12" thru 35", wall system (flexible), miscellaneous other. Saturday, 9 a.m., 1634 Fairchild. (38-39)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (311)

FOUR BEDROOMS, two baths, double-car garage, patio with gas grill. One block west of campus. 776-6882 or 776-2373. (35-39)

THREE-BEDROOM, unfurnished, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. No pets. Available now. Call 539-5404. (37-41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

NICE 1981 Redman mobile, 14 x 70, three bedrooms, central air, ceiling fan, big deck. Call 539-7103. (36-39)

LOST AND FOUND 14

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on I-70 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spaying. Answers to "Abby." 537-0646. (32-39)

FOUND: BICYCLE—Identify and pay for this ad. 537-1703. (37-39)

LOST: WOMAN's gold ring with small diamond, lost Sunday afternoon somewhere between Seaton and Goodnow or Marlett. Reward: Call Michelle, 532-5349. (37-39)

FOUND: LADIES watch—Saturday night at Bushwacker's. Call Rhonda at 539-7571 to claim. (38)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

10 p.m.-1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays
Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (3211)

NEW Aggie Bike Station

Bicycle Sales & Service
8-6 Mon.-Sat.
Behind Hardee's in Aggieville

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

Hayes House of Music
DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

FOR SALE, refrigerator: only been used one semester, perfect for dorm. 776-7986. (35-39)

Pronouncing English as a Second Language

Foreign Accent Improvement Workshop
An intensive 3 week program to maximize social & educational speaking skills

Nov. 14 & 15, Dec. 3
Evaluation $85
Tuition $450

Enrollment Deadline: Oct. 23

For more information & to register contact:

Junction City
Speech & Language Clinic
762-3350,
Manhattan 539-6377

PYRAMID PIZZA

All Slices 99¢
after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

1993 MERCEDES kit car, 20 meg disk with tape backup, popcorn cart, amber monitor, 1980 Arrow 8000. 539-4121. (37-41)

X-MEN #1, Spiderman #1, Daredevil #1, plus more comical! Buying scrap gold rings/jewelry, Manhattan Coins and Collectables. 1130 Laramie. 539-1164. (37-39)

SUN CONNECTION

NOW SELLING $2 SESSIONS
1126 Laramie 776-2426

Cuddleskin

Luxurious satin on the outside cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville
Open 7 days

DANCE, DANCE, DANCE

to the sounds of
"Full House"

Well known local band

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

RECORD SALE: Cars, outfield, lots more at 1010 #A Gardenway or call 537-0248 between 9-5 p.m. (38)

COUCH FOR sale. Good shape. Call 539-9424. (38-39)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music
DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

TRAVEL 29

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours sixth annual collegiate winter ski break to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lift/tickets/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure, 1-800-321-5911 today! (35-49)

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case. Peavy bass amplifiers. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

PERSONALS 18

PHI KAPPS—There's no doubt about it who will be #1. With the Alpha Chis and Phi Kapps, our team will stand above. Love, the Axs. PS. Thanks for the 5:30 a.m. wake up call. (38)

PHI TAUS Marc M. and Mr. Hate: You can't live to a liar, but we still hate cats in red boots. Ain't that special? The truckdrivers. (38)

BARRY H.—Happy birthday!! Hope it's a great one! Love, your friend and neighbor. (38)

KATIE B.—211 211 211 211! Hey! Wow! Yeah! Have a super wonderful day! We love ya! C.C. and L.R. (38)

16 DAYS and counting until God calls Chris S. home. Will he succeed "real well?" (38)

DELTYWOODY—"Dad, can I borrow the car this weekend?" "Paych!! I think it is time for the daigun party!! Thanks for keepin me laughin. You are the best Dad! Luw always, your dot Deb. (38)

MUIR STAFF: Remember supporters about Sunday night. On winning this race we have set our sight. We need your help so that everyone knows. See you on Sunday at Rip and Mo's. (38-39)

CRAIG—PARTY hearty we will do, just because I love you. Happy 21st. Love, Pam. (38)

JUST YOU wait, Kansas State. Just you wait, it's Union Day, and we will Shirley rate ("Shirley"?). We'll be tired out from working, oh-ho-ho it will be worth it? ("Shirley"?). Just you wait, because the Sigma Nu's are Great! (38)

SPHAGHETTI SQUASH Father—Just wanted to see if you would notice someone gave you a Personal. When do traffic lessons begin? Your ever-faithful follower. (38)

G-Phis—Aggie Lou was a lot of fun. We had champagne for breakfast on the way to number one. We pumped, built bodies and yelled like hell. Today's the day we know we'll do it. The day is getting closer, we'll party all night long. With a combo of ATOs and G-Phis, there's no way we can go wrong! ATOs. (38)

PHI DELT bodybuilders Shawn, Justo, Dave and Tom—Thanks for all your "support." I'm sure we'll come out "on top." Love, Kelly, Julie and Angie. (38)

TRI DELT Karen—Happy birthday dot! Your mommy loves you!! (38)

THETA AND DUJ is number 1, you'll find that out when all is done. Body building will be great and yell like hell will surely rate. With a team like ours, we can't lose and our float will be front page "news." (38)

SILVER 300ZX friend: See you there! Blue Monte. (38)

HEY YOU women of Sigma Tri, together we'll make the others cry. Today we'll build and today we'll yell, let's go out there and give them hell. And when this weekend is done, our team will be number 1. Luw, the men of Sigma Nu. (38)

FOUND: ONE calico cat found flattened on I-70 on Oct. 5th, answered to "Abby" with its last gasping meow and had short, tar-stained tummy-hair. Also had no front claws, or paws for that matter. To recover, please call 539-2318. (38)

HEY PHI DELTS—The Tri Delts think you guys are righteous dudes! Let's get crazy today! Love, the Tri Delts. (38)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (111)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (111)

SELF-HYPNOSIS. Improve concentration, memory, recall. Overcome test anxiety, fear of public speaking, etc. Personalized instruction, one 90-minute session required. $140. Greg Potter, Ph.D., 714 Poyntz, Suite A, 537-0076. (33-49)

RENTALS 21

TYPEWRITERS—CORRECTING and non-correcting. In the Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (3211)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

FACULTY/STUDENTS, have an experienced person type your books, articles, term papers, resumes, theses, dissertations in a fast accurate manner. References furnished. Letter quality printer. Ross Secretarial Service, 539-5147. (34-38)

EXPERIENCED TYPIST: disc storage, letter quality printer, $1.25/page. 537-9205, Dorinda. (35-39)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (37-39)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

MALE/FEMALE roommate wanted. Private room. One and one-half blocks from campus. $120 per month. 539-3117. (36-39)

ROOM FOR rent. Share large house, one-fourth utilities. Some furnishing available. Low rent. Move in immediately. 539-6247, ask for Jon. (38-42)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share house: $160/month, gas/electric paid. 537-4083 after 7 p.m. (38-42)

SITUATION WANTED 24

HELP! I need transportation. Northview area, 7:30-11:30 a.m. classes. 539-6430. (36-40)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT 25

FOR SALE—Soloflex, $450. Ask for John Paul, 539-7751 until 6 p.m. 537-2449 after 6 p.m. (36-39)

TRAVEL 29

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours sixth annual collegiate winter ski break to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lift/tickets/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure, 1-800-321-5911 today! (35-49)

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

WAS ALAN MAD AT YOU WHEN HE FOUND OUT YOU STOLE HIS TIRES?

NO...NOT REALLY.

BOY, I'M SURPRISED. I FIGURED HE'D BE FURIOUS. I GUESS HE'S MORE LEVEL-HEADED THAN I THOUGHT.

I TOLD HIM YOU TOOK IT.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

THE AMERICAN BASSELLOPE: A STRANGE AND MYSTERIOUS BEAST WITH AN UNCANNY POLITICAL SIXTH SENSE FOR THINGS THAT YOU AND I CAN ONLY GUESS AT!

ZING!

GARY HART HAS ENDED HIS CELIBACY.

BEH PARDON?

Garfield

By Jim Davis

SPLAT

CLANK!

THEY MUST BE RUNNING OUT OF AMMO!

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

THEY DID?

THE ONE WHO WAS RUNNING AROUND TELLING EVERYBODY THE SKY WAS FALLING?

TOOK HER AWAY, HUH? LOCKED HER UP, HUH?

GOOD!

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Inter-lock
5 Verdi master-piece
9 Truck part
12 American Indian
13 Performs
14 Corrida cheer
15 Warner Brothers character
17 Actor
18 Gladdens
19 Terminated
21 Spielberg character
22 Shot the breeze
24 Fort Knox contents
27 Bit of wordplay
28 "The idiot box"
31 Literary snippets
32 Fury
33 Game show prize
34 "I like it Hot"

DOWN

1 Method
2 And the rest, for short
3 Davenport
4 Hoisted
5 Tots up
6 Debtor's letters
7 Calendar abbr.
8 Crooked
9 Burgundy champagne drink
10 Healthful plant
11 Crook
16 Nonetheless
20 Catch
22 Panelist
23 Freshly
24 Oven fuel
25 Yoko
26 Soon-to-be ex-official
27 One type of dream
29 Golden Gate sight
30 Before
35 Yale student
37 Floor refinishing aid
39 Noted artist-inventor
40 Project
41 Remainder
42 Iowa city
43 Swift planes
44 Take in: colloq.
45 Got an A on
46 Supplements
49 Paint type
50 "It's—Right with Me"

Solution time: 27 mins.

GLAD STY COCA
LANA COO AVER
OVERLOOK BENT
BATTER ECARTE
SIN LARA
APO SEN DEWEY
COVE DEW TETE TEETH BET SAN
REOS SIB
SECRET TEASES
ORAN OVERCAST
OLLA AIR ONTO
TELL TEN NEAP

Yesterday's answer 10-15

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11

12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30 31

Robert

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

ference, Lipson has come to love Boulder, Colo. — his favorite road destination — because of the snowball wars he's witnessed there. He doesn't have a least-favorite stop, but he is an ardent KU hater.

"My favorite quote is: 'The Jay-hawks are a bunch of turkey buzzards,'" Lipson said. His prediction for the intrastate rivalry Nov. 7? "Stan Parrish is going to stomp (Kansas coach) Bob Valesente's ass right into the ground."

Lipson predicts future success for current K-State coaches Parrish and men's basketball mentor Lon Kruger.

On Kruger: "He has the very best strategy in the nation for a last-second shot. He's gifted like that."

On Parrish: "Stan Parrish is going to start winning here, and I'll tell you why. Stan Parrish is a mean, tough, son of a bitch, just like (Indiana basketball mentor) Bobby Knight, Jack Hartman or (the late Alabama football coach Paul) 'Bear' Bryant. It takes (a man like that) to get the job done."

As for the future, how long Lipson stays in Manhattan depends on when K-State's athletic program pays its debt to Lipson. It began with the free ride to Columbia, but that's only the tip of the iceberg, Lipson said.

"These people owe me something for all these years and all I've put into it," he said. "The players owe me something by giving me 100-percent consistency. The players have to take into consideration how we feel."

When K-State's teams lose, they hurt people like Robert Lipson, who desperately wants to win.

Collegian Classifieds Cheap, but Effective

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

MOUNTAIN GORILLA

BIGHORN SHEEP

HUMBACK WHALE

FULL SERVICE GAS ATTENDANT

Vanishing species.

Kedzie 103

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST YOU? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11f)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. We desperately need tutors in Algebra. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (35-39)

DO YOU let people spend your money without asking you first? That's what Student Senate is doing with $1.2 million of student funds. Sign the Holton Hall referendum petition to give the students the right to vote on this issue. Call 532-7777 for details. (38-42)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

ONE BEDROOM, available Jan. 1, water and trash paid, less than one block from campus, $275 per month, must assume lease, 539-1686. (35-39)

NICE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments. Very close to campus. Available Nov. 1. Please call 776-9124. (37f)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 112 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (21f)

NICE, LARGE one- and two-bedroom apartments in Westloop area. Please call 776-9124. (37f)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 CAPRICE Classic, $400. Call 539-2776. (36-39)

1979 GRAN Prix LX, full power, tilt, cruise, AM/FM cassette, excellent condition, $2,950, 776-8488. (37-39)

1985 CHEVY S-10, 42,000 miles, air conditioning, four-cylinder, FI, tilt, cruise, five-speed, AM-FM cassette, $6,500, 257-3440, evenings. (37-38)

VW 1600 cc Bug engine, complete, 1600 cc rebuilt shortblock, IRS, Bug transmission. Import auto repairs at J & L Auto Service, 1494-2388, St. George. (38-51)

1983 CHEVY Celebrity, excellent condition, $4,000, must see to appreciate. Call 537-0861. (38-42)

COMPUTERS 08

APPLE 2C-128K, new monitor and keyboard, two drives, ImageWriter printer, all software included. Call Jason, 539-2321. (38-40)

EMPLOYMENT 09

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full and part-time openings. Apply in person. (29-38)

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

EXPERIENCED COOK for group of 60 individuals. For more information or to set up an interview, please call 539-8680 after 6 p.m. or 537-4495 and leave message. (35-39)

NATIVE KANSAS family seeks full-time nanny/housekeeper to live-in from January to June 1988 in Washington, D.C. area. Caring for two-year-old boy. Transportation, salary, room and board included. Female, non-smoker, send resume to: Mr. and Mrs. Cab Grayson, 4751 N. 34th Road, Arlington, VA, 22207. Call (703) 241-3746. (35-39)

ClassAds

532-6555

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts. Others. Information (504) 641-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-59)

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South Padre Island, Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-282-6221. (35-44)

WE SEEK entrepreneur business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

MANHATTAN CABLE TV has an immediate opening for a dedicated reliable individual to work as a production assistant, approximately 20 hours per week. Knowledge of video production is essential. Job will include some evening and weekend work. Applicants may inquire at Manhattan Cable TV, 610 Humboldt, Manhattan. No phone calls please. (36-38)

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

is looking for full-time and part-time help in their food court. Apply in Management Office behind Service Area B. $3.50 per hour

RETAIL SALES clerk for afternoons and weekends. Sales experience preferred. Bring resume to 1212 Moro, Aggieville. (37-39)

NETWORK MARKETING! The wave of the future! You choose earnings and hours, 776-3759 after 6 p.m. (37-41)

BABYSITTER NEEDED immediately in my home for 15-month-old. Light housekeeping and some meal preparation. Good health, non-smoker, references required. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and some evenings. Call 539-4915; leave message. (38-42)

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (38-39)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service office. We offer student pay plan, job variety and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat, wear appropriate attire and be able to obtain a Food Handler's card. (38-44)

GARAGE AND YARD SALES 11

SEARS Two-drawer metal file cabinet, metal TV cart, wicker hamper, four-drawer wood chest, two large pieces denim luggage (softside—Bloomington's best—used once). Art students, canvas stretchers 12" thru 35", wall system (flexible), miscellaneous other. Saturday, 9 a.m., 1834 Fairchild. (38-39)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

FOUR BEDROOMS, two baths, double-car garage, patio with gas grill. One block west of campus. 776-6882 or 776-2373. (35-39)

THREE-BEDROOM, unfurnished, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. No pets. Available now. Call 539-5404. (37-41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

NICE 1981 Redman mobile. 14 x 70, three bedrooms, central air, ceiling fan, big deck. Call 539-7103. (36-39)

LOST AND FOUND 14

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on I-70 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spaying. Answers to "Abby." 537-0646. (32-39)

FOUND: BICYCLE—Identify and pay for this ad. 537-1703. (37-39)

LOST: WOMAN's gold ring with small diamond, lost Sunday afternoon somewhere between Seaton and Goodnow or Mariati. Reward. Call Michelle, 532-5349. (37-39)

FOUND: LADIES watch—Saturday night at Bush-wacker's. Call Rhonda at 539-7571 to claim. (38-39)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

LATE NIGHT BREAKFAST GRILL

10 p.m.-1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays
Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

NEW Aggie Bike Station

Bicycle Sales & Service
8-6 Mon.-Sat.
Behind Hardee's in Aggieville

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7631

RECORD SALE: Cars, outfield, lots more at 1010 #A Gardenway or call 537-0248 between 9-5 p.m. (38)

COUCH FOR sale. Good shape. Call 539-9424. (38-39)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Inter-lock
5 Verdi master-piece
9 Truck part
12 American Indian
13 Performs
14 Corrida cheer
15 Warner Brothers character
17 Actor
18 Gladdens
19 Term-inated
21 Spielberg character
22 Shot the breeze
24 Fort Knox contents
27 Bit of wordplay
28 The idiot box
31 Literary snippets
32 Fury
33 Game show prize
34 — Lake

DOWN

1 Method
2 And the rest, for short
3 Davenport
4 Hoisted
5 Tots up
6 Debtor's letters
7 Calendar abbr.
8 Crooked
9 Burgundy-champagne drink
10 Health-ful plant
11 Crook

Solution time: 27 mins.

GLAD STY COCA
LANA COO AVER
OVERLOOK BENT
BATTER ECARTE
SIN LARA
APO SEN DEWEY
COVE DEW TETE TEETH BET SAN REOS SIB
SECRET TEASES
ORAN OVERCAST
OLLA AIR ONTO
TELL TEN NEAP

Yesterday's answer 10-15

FOR SALE, refrigerator, only been used one semester, perfect for dorm. 776-7986. (35-39)

Pronouncing English as a Second Language

Foreign Accent Improvement Workshop

An intensive 3 week program to maximize social & educational speaking skills

Nov. 14 & 15, Dec. 3

Evaluation $85
Tuition $450

Enrollment Deadline: Oct. 23

For more information & to register contact:

Junction City
Speech & Language Clinic
762-3350,
Manhattan 539-6377

PYRAMID PIZZA

All Slices 99¢
after 5 p.m.

WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

1993 MERCEDES kit car, 20 meg disk with tape backup, popcorn cart, amber monitor, 1980 Arrow $800. 539-4121. (37-41)

X-MEN #1, Spiderman #1, Daredevil #1, plus more comic! Buying scrap gold rings/jewelry, Manhattan Coins and Collectables. 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (37-39)

SUN CONNECTION

NOW SELLING $2 SESSIONS

1126 Laramie 776-2426

Cuddleskin

Luxurious satin on the outside cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville
Open 7 days

DANCE, DANCE, DANCE

to the sounds of

"Full House"

Well known local band

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7631

RECORD SALE: Cars, outfield, lots more at 1010 #A Gardenway or call 537-0248 between 9-5 p.m. (38)

COUCH FOR sale. Good shape. Call 539-9424. (38-39)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Inter-lock
5 Verdi master-piece
9 Truck part
12 American Indian
13 Performs
14 Corrida cheer
15 Warner Brothers character
17 Actor
18 Gladdens
19 Term-inated
21 Spielberg character
22 Shot the breeze
24 Fort Knox contents
27 Bit of wordplay
28 The idiot box
31 Literary snippets
32 Fury
33 Game show prize
34 — Lake

DOWN

1 Method
2 And the rest, for short
3 Davenport
4 Hoisted
5 Tots up
6 Debtor's letters
7 Calendar abbr.
8 Crooked
9 Burgundy-champagne drink
10 Health-ful plant
11 Crook

Solution time: 27 mins.

GLAD STY COCA
LANA COO AVER
OVERLOOK BENT
BATTER ECARTE
SIN LARA
APO SEN DEWEY
COVE DEW TETE TEETH BET SAN REOS SIB
SECRET TEASES
ORAN OVERCAST
OLLA AIR ONTO
TELL TEN NEAP

Yesterday's answer 10-15

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7631

RECORD SALE: Cars, outfield, lots more at 1010 #A Gardenway or call 537-0248 between 9-5 p.m. (38)

COUCH FOR sale. Good shape. Call 539-9424. (38-39)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Inter-lock
5 Verdi master-piece
9 Truck part
12 American Indian
13 Performs
14 Corrida cheer
15 Warner Brothers character
17 Actor
18 Gladdens
19 Term-inated
21 Spielberg character
22 Shot the breeze
24 Fort Knox contents
27 Bit of wordplay
28 The idiot box
31 Literary snippets
32 Fury
33 Game show prize
34 — Lake

DOWN

1 Method
2 And the rest, for short
3 Davenport
4 Hoisted
5 Tots up
6 Debtor's letters
7 Calendar abbr.
8 Crooked
9 Burgundy-champagne drink
10 Health-ful plant
11 Crook

Solution time: 27 mins.

GLAD STY COCA
LANA COO AVER
OVERLOOK BENT
BATTER ECARTE
SIN LARA
APO SEN DEWEY
COVE DEW TETE TEETH BET SAN REOS SIB
SECRET TEASES
ORAN OVERCAST
OLLA AIR ONTO
TELL TEN NEAP

Yesterday's answer 10-15

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7631

RECORD SALE: Cars, outfield, lots more at 1010 #A Gardenway or call 537-0248 between 9-5 p.m. (38)

COUCH FOR sale. Good shape. Call 539-9424. (38-39)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (34-38)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Inter-lock
5 Verdi master-piece
9 Truck part
12 American Indian
13 Performs
14 Corrida cheer
15 Warner Brothers character
17 Actor
18 Gladdens
19 Term-inated
21 Spielberg character
22 Shot the breeze
24 Fort Knox contents
27 Bit of wordplay
28 The idiot box
31 Literary snippets
32 Fury
33 Game show prize
34 — Lake

DOWN

1 Method
2 And the rest, for short
3 Davenport
4 Hoisted
5 Tots up
6 Debtor's letters
7 Calendar abbr.
8 Crooked
9 Burgundy-champagne drink
10 Health-ful plant
11 Crook

Solution time: 27 mins.

GLAD STY COCA
LANA COO AVER
OVERLOOK BENT
BATTER ECARTE
SIN LARA
APO SEN DEWEY
COVE DEW TETE TEETH BET SAN REOS SIB
SECRET TEASES
ORAN OVERCAST
OLLA AIR ONTO
TELL TEN NEAP

Yesterday's answer 10-15

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case. Peavy bass amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

PERSONALS 18

PHI KAPPS — There's no doubt about it who will be #1. With the Alpha Chis and Phi Kappas, our team will stand above. Love, the Axs. P.S. Thanks for the 5:30 a.m. wake up call. (38)

PHI TAUS Marc M. and Mr. Hale: You can't live to a liar, but we still hate cats in red boots. Ain't that special? The truck drivers. (38)

BARRY H. — Happy birthday!! Hope it's a great one! Love, your friend and neighbor. (38)

KATIE B. — 211 211 211 Hey! Wow! Yeah! Have a super wonderful day! We love ya C.C. and L.R. (38)

16 DAYS and counting until God calls Chris S. home. Will he be saying "real well?" (38)

DELTOODOO — "Dad, can I borrow the car this weekend?" Paych!! I think it is time for the daquiri party!! Thanks for keepin me laughin. You are the best Dad! Lu always, your dot Deb. (38)

MUR STAFF: Remember supporters about Sunday night. On winning this race we have set our sights. We need your help so that everyone knows. See you on Sunday at Rip and Mo's. (38-39)

CRAIG — PARTY hearty we will do, just because I love you. Happy 21st. Love, Pam. (38)

JUST YOU wait, Kansas State. Just you wait, it's Union Day, and we will show the "Shirley?" We'll be tired out from working, oh-ho-ho will it be worth it? ("Shirley!") Just you wait, because the Sigma Nu's are Great! (38)

SPHAGHETTI SQUASH Father — Just wanted to see if you would notice someone gave you a Personal. When do traffic lessons begin? Your ever-faithful follower. (38)

G-PHIS — Aggie Lou was a lot of fun. We had champagne for breakfast on the way to number one. We've pumped, built bodies and yelled like hell. Today's the day we know we'll do well. The day is getting closer, we'll party all night long. With a combo of ATOS and G-Phis, there's no way we can go wrong! ATOS. (38)

PHI DELT bodybuilders Shawn, Justo, Dave and Tom — Thanks for all your "support." I'm sure we'll come out "on top." Love, Karin, Kelly, Julie and Angie. (38)

TRI DELT Karen — Happy birthday dot! Your mommy loves you!! (38)

THETA AND DU is number 1, you'll find that out when all is done. Body building will be great and yell like hell will surely rate. With a team like ours, we can't lose and our float will be front page "news." (38)

SILVER 3002X friend: See you there! Blue Monte. (38)

HEY YOU women of Sigma Tri, together we'll make the others cry. Today we'll build and today we'll yell, let's go out there and give them hell. And when this weekend is done, our team will be number 1. Lux, the men of Sigma Nu. (38)

FOUND: ONE calico cat found flattened on I-70 on Oct. 5th, answered to "Abby" with its last gasping meow and had short, far-stained tummy-hair. Also had no front claws, or paws for that matter. To recover, please call 539-2318. (38)

HEY PHI DELTS — The Tri Delts think you guys are righteous dudes! Let's get crazy today! Love, the Tri Delts. (38)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11f)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11f)

SELF-HYPNOSIS. Improve concentration, memory, recall. Overcome test anxiety, fear of public speaking, etc. Personalized instruction, one 90-minute session required, $140. Greg Potter, Ph.D., 714 Poyntz, Suite A, 537-0076. (33-49)

RENTALS 21

TYPEWRITERS—CORRECTING and non-correcting. In the Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

FACULTY/STUDENTS, have an experienced person type your books, articles, term papers, resumes, theses, dissertations in a fast accurate manner. References furnished. Letter quality printer. Ross Secretarial Service, 539-5147. (34-38)

EXPERIENCED TYPIST: disc storage, letter quality printer, $1.25/page. 537-9205, Dorinda. (35-39)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro, 537-7294. (37-39)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

MALE/FEMALE roommate wanted. Private room. One and one-half blocks from campus. $120 per month. 539-3117. (36-39)

ROOM FOR rent. Share large house, one-fourth utilities. Some furnishing available. Rent. Move in immediately. 539-6247, ask for Jon. (38-42)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share house: $180/month, gas/electric paid. 537-4083 after 7 p.m. (38-42)

SITUATION WANTED 24

HELP: I need transportation. Northview area, 7:30-11:30 a.m. classes. 539-6430. (36-40)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT 25

FOR SALE—Soloflex, $450. Ask for John Paul, 539-7751 until 6 p.m. 537-2449 after 6 p.m. (36-39)

TRAVEL 29

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours sixth annual collegiate winter ski breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure. 1-800-321-9911 today! (35-49)

CRYPTOQUIP

10-15

G J V V D M L Z Z M Z T S V A E Z Z

B Z S M N L A S S Y H K M W Y H K D

* F J D Y I J V V E M W J M ' D G W E

Y ' T I J V V Z N J F L A B Z L

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: EVER-PERSONABLE ELECTRICIAN WAS A LIVE WIRE AT BOSS'S PARTIES.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals T

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

WAS ALVIN MAD AT YOU WHEN HE FOUND OUT YOU STOLE HIS TIRE?

NO...NOT REALLY.

BOY, I'M SURPRISED I FIGURED HE'D BE FURIOUS. I GUESS HE'S MORE LEVEL-HEADED THAN I THOUGHT.

I TOLD HIM YOU TOOK IT.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

THE AMERICAN BASSELOPE: A STRANGE AND MYSTERIOUS BEAST WITH AN UNCANNY POLITICAL SIXTH SENSE FOR THINGS THAT YOU AND I CAN ONLY GUESS AT!

ZING!

GARY HART HAS ENDED HIS CELIBACY.

REG PARDON!

Garfield

By Jim Davis

SPLOP

CLANK!

THEY MUST BE RUNNING OUT OF AMMO!

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

THEY DID?

THE ONE WHO WAS RUNNING AROUND TELLING EVERYBODY THE SKY WAS FALLING?

TOOK HER AWAY, HUH? LOCKED HER UP, HUH?

GOOD!

Shuttle ready to give lift

Disabled get about with ease

By Shawn Dorsch
Collegian Reporter

Trying to make it from Throckmorton to Thompson halls in 10 minutes is a considerable feat, but making it while on crutches becomes a challenge few consider possible. K-State offers a service for students and faculty which makes this task surmountable.

The Shuttle Bus Service is a state-funded operation serving temporarily or permanently physically limited students and faculty members of K-State without charge.

Gretchen Holden, coordinator for students with physical limitations, said the shuttle runs almost non-stop from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The shuttle operates on campus and runs from building to building, including residence halls and Jardine Terrace Apartments, Holden said. The shuttle cannot go off campus, but arrangements can be made with students who live off campus to meet in one of the campus parking lots or some other designated location.

Mark Innes, freshman in history, is the driver of the shuttle bus.

Most of the shuttle users are temporarily disabled and live in the residence halls, Innes said.

The shuttle used now is only one year old, he said. It is fully carpeted, has an electric wheelchair lift and "a stereo better than most cars."

"I can get a handicapped person in the van in three minutes," he added.

As the students get on the shuttle, Innes keeps a log of when and where to pick up the students. The log changes every day.

Hope Alexander, freshman in family counseling, leaves the K-State Shuttle Bus after riding home from a day of classes. The Shuttle Bus serves physically limited students and faculty at no charge.

Innes said he isn't just the shuttle driver. He also helps the students to classes, if needed, and he will pick up tests and assignments for them.

The busiest shuttle runs are from 11:20 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Innes said.

Although Innes works about 10 hours a day with no lunch break, he finds time to do homework between the runs. To fit classes into his day, he schedules them in the evenings.

Holden said since the shuttle began its operation in 1982, every shuttle driver has been disabled. Innes lost a leg when he was 5 and uses an artificial limb.

"We are very fortunate to have someone like Mark," Holden said. "He's very good with the handicapped. I've had a lot of students tell me, 'No matter how my day is starting out, Mark always manages to get a smile on my face.'"

"Slow down, take your time and be careful," are Innes' words of wisdom for his passengers.

"I like this job," Innes said. "Not too many people get paid to help others."

Holden said the shuttle service is very important to the University because there is no other form of transportation such as a city transit bus offered to the handicapped.

"I've had notes from students that say they would have to drop out of school if it weren't for the shuttle," Holden said.

Home

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

to be in the Homecoming parade at 9 a.m. Saturday starting at the intersection of Fourth Street and Poyntz Avenue. K-State President Jon Wefald and his wife Ruth Ann will be the parade's grand marshals.

Kickoff time for the football game between the Wildcats and the Oklahoma Sooners is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. At halftime, K-State's new ambassadors will be presented and the winners of the overall Homecoming competition will be announced.

The judges for this year's homecoming events are Lon and Barbara Kruger, K-State men's basketball coach and his wife; Charlie Bush, Manhattan businessman; Thomas Isenhour, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; Ruth Ann Wefald; Dorsey Travis, wife of K-State Athletic Director Larry Travis; Craig Renfro, assistant athletic director; and Scott Johnson, cheerleading sponsor.

Bork

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

He said one mark of a great leader is not only being gracious in victory but gracious in defeat.

Sanford said now that "Judge Bork's nomination appears doomed, we hear cries of 'lynch mobs' and 'distortions.' But it was not for political reasons that the nomination of Judge Bork was rejected. It's time for that corrosive dialogue to stop and time for profound respect for the constitutional process to begin."

He said senators, including some Republicans, have decided to oppose Bork after making careful evaluations of his qualifications.

"To suggest that they have been swayed by anything but conscientious intellect is slanderous," Sanford said.

The decisions of officials at ABC, CBS and NBC against interrupting afternoon programs to carry Reagan's remarks were criticized by White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

"Having devoted hours of broadcast time to the Senate hearing, they have suddenly gone blind to the president's address. That view of their public responsibility is sadly inadequate," Fitzwater said.

Explode

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Twelve people were hospitalized, six of them in serious condition.

Witnesses said the fire began in the back of the building near the kitchen and spread to the front.

"I heard a big explosion and glass flew across the street. The building was shaking. We were all scared. I didn't go out. We thought it was a bomb," said Paul Lee, co-owner of New Lin Wah, a grocery store across from the restaurant.

Patrons left half-full plates in the dining room when they fled into the street. Some tables were tossed about while others remained neatly set for lunch.

Muni bus driver Norman Green said he was driving near the two-story restaurant when the explosion "blew the window right out across the street in front of me."

"If I had been going a few miles per hour faster, I would have been caught," Green said. "When the explosion occurred, I just hit the floor and told everybody 'just get to the back.'"

Green said he saw about 10 people run out of the dining room after the explosion. "You just got to feel for the people in the kitchen, though. I'd imagine they got the worst of it," he added.

CLIP, KEEP
& SAVE
ALL WEEK

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE LARGE
TWO TOPPING PIZZA

WE DELIVER ALL DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

$7.99

539-4888
"We Pile It On!"

Mark Samuel Moore
President, Pyramid Pizza

Now Accepting Visa & MasterCard

PYRAMID PIZZA

Now Serving Thin Crust

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE MEDIUM
TWO TOPPING PIZZA

WE DELIVER ALL DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

$6.50

539-4888
"We Pile It On!"

Mark Samuel Moore
President, Pyramid Pizza

Now Accepting Visa & MasterCard

PYRAMID PIZZA

Now Serving Thin Crust

JOYCE'S HAIR FADERS

PERM SALE

Gals	Reg.	Now
Apple Pectin	$40	$30
Axiom	$45	$35
Warm & Gentle	$48	$38
Feels So Lively	$35	$25

Guys

Curly	$25
Body	$28
Partial	$20

All Perms Include Cut and Style

539-TAME or 539-8601

404 Humboldt Expires 10/22/87

AL-BASHA الباشا

GREEK & MEDITERRANEAN FOOD

1209 Laramie St.

(with coupon) Buy Gyro Sandwich and get the second at 1/2 price! EXPIRES 10-26-87	(with coupon) Buy 4 sandwiches get 1 FREE! EXPIRES 10-26-87
---	---

HOURS: 11 a.m.-2:30 p.m.
4 p.m.-9 p.m.

MOST DELICIOUS TREAT IN TOWN

Artistic Gifts
Gift Shop

318 Thurston M-F 9-5, Sat. 10-4
Manhattan 539-0329

Looking for that certain gift, something different, something special. Come to us. We'll treat you right with the perfect gift.

10% off anything over $5 with this ad

Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Kick-Off Special!

9 pieces of chicken original recipe or extra crispy chicken for only $6.79 with coupon

901 N. 3rd
3002 Anderson
Offer expires Oct. 25

We Do Chicken Right.

You may wear your new haircut well . . . but that shouldn't be all you can afford to wear!

$5 haircut with coupon

539-2921 1129 Westloop on the west side

FASHION SHOP

A Buck a Bind for spiral or velo binding with a card stock cover.

Only one coupon per visit
Expires 10/22/87

kinko's
Great copies. Great people.

Mon.-Thur. 7:30-Midnight
Fri. 7:30-7
Sat. 9-5
Sun. 10-Midnight

1110 Laramie 537-7340

BRING THIS AD

$5 OFF HAIRCUTS

$10 OFF PERMS

ask for RENE

new BEGINNINGS
HAIRSTYLING AND TANNING

A NEW CUT
A NEW STYLIST
NEW BEGINNINGS

Time Square 3rd & Thurston 537-1003 • 1107 N. 3rd.

EXPIRES NOV. 5, 1987

Crum's beauty college

1/2 OFF Haircut

Mon.-Fri. 10:30 a.m. Appointments ONLY with this coupon
Expires 10-22-87
776-4794

512 Poyntz Ave. Manhattan, Kansas 66502

Outdoors Together

Seven boys and their fathers spent a weekend together at Rock Springs Ranch learning the "sport of men." See Page 9.

Weather

Cloudy this morning with a 50 percent chance of showers or thunder-showers, becoming partly cloudy during the afternoon, high 65 to 70.

game line, 66612
foot of senior placekicker
Mark Porter. See Page 11.

Friday
October 16, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 39

Kansas State Collegian

Landon laid to rest Thursday

Staff/Steve Wolgast

During the 19-gun salute to former Gov. Alfred M. Landon at an outdoor ceremony at the capitol Thursday, Landon's son John Cobb Landon consoles Landon's widow, Theo, as his daughter, U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, reacts to the ceremony. Landon was buried during a private graveside ceremony at Mount Hope Cemetery in Topeka.

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The family of former Gov. Alf M. Landon buried him Thursday after a brief Statehouse ceremony and a graveside service honoring the late patriarch of the Republican Party, perhaps the most famous politician in Kansas history.

Burial took place after a 10-minute, private ceremony at Mount Hope Cemetery, about a mile from Landon's northwest Topeka home. The services were attended only by family members and a handful of very close friends. Retired Methodist Bishop Eugene Frank of Fairway, a former minister at the Landons' church, presided.

Earlier in the day, a crowd of about 300 people gathered for an outdoor ceremony on the south side of the Capitol in cool and sunny weather. They watched as Landon's casket was lowered from a bier that stood on the spot where Landon made his speech accepting the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1936.

Landon received the Republican nomination two years after he won his second two-year term as governor, serving in 1933-37. He died Monday, a little more than a month after his 100th birthday.

"Kansas has lost a great friend," Gov. Mike Hayden, one of eight honorary pallbearers, said, making the only remarks at the outdoor ceremony.

"President and Nancy Reagan asked me to come and convey their condolences to the Landon family. Because I'm from Kansas, it's a great honor."

—Marlin Fitzwater

The late governor received a 19-gun salute from four 75-millimeter pack howitzer artillery pieces stationed on the southwest side of the Capitol grounds. State Adjutant Phil Finley presented the American flag that had draped the casket as it had laid in state Wednesday and Thursday to Landon's widow, Theo.

An 11-car funeral procession then left the Statehouse grounds just after 10:30 a.m.

Those attending the outdoor ceremony included Landon's daughter, U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum; President Reagan's press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater; state Attorney General Robert T. Stephan; Secretary of State Bill Graves; State Treasurer Joan Finney; Insurance Commissioner Fletcher Bell; state House Speaker Jim Braden, and Senate President Robert Talkington.

"President and Nancy Reagan asked me to come and convey their condolences to the Landon family," Fitzwater, an Abilene native, said before the outdoor ceremony began. "Because I'm from Kansas, it's a great honor."

Besides Hayden, former Govs. John Carlin, Robert Bennett, John Anderson Jr. and Edward Am acted as honorary pallbearers.

Other pallbearers were longtime Landon friends Andy Gray, husband of Georgia Neese Gray, a former U.S. treasury secretary; Elon Torrence, a former Associated Press newsman who covered state government for 35 years, and AP Topeka Correspondent Lew Ferguson.

The outdoor ceremony took place during the public memorial.

Staff/Andy Nelson

■ See FUNERAL, Page 3

Regents eliminate VP post

By Staff and Wire Reports

WICHITA — The Board of Regents approved a K-State executive reorganization plan Thursday eliminating the vice presidency for educational and student services, reducing President Jon Wefald's immediate subordinates from four to three.

Charles E. Reagan, assistant to the president, said the student services responsibilities had been consolidated with those of the vice president for institutional advancement.

The change would provide "good continuity" in handling students from the time they are recruited in high school until the time they become alumni, he said.

"We have a very lean administration," Reagan said.

William Sutton, who had served as vice president for educational and student services since 1985, resigned this summer to return to full-time teaching in the biology department.

Also at the meeting, the Regents heard a report from their academic affairs staff member John Welsh concerning a national study on the impact of selective admissions policies. The board is considering adopting more restrictive admissions standards for K-State and six other state institutions.

Welsh said statistics showed a change to a more selective admissions policy didn't affect enrollment numbers.

He said the quality of students improved as

■ See REGENTS, Page 14

NFL strike ends; union to file suit

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The 24-day NFL strike ended Thursday when the union capitulated and went to court instead of trying to fight the club owners at the bargaining table.

Teams began reporting back en masse even without a new contract agreement, but left after being told they had missed the deadline to play — and get paid — for this weekend's games, and again would be replaced by non-union players and their teammates who went in earlier.

"It was unfair to the players to continue to sacrifice any more," said union head Gene Upshaw, who said player representatives from all 28 teams voted to end their strike.

Upshaw said the union would pursue its aims in an antitrust suit filed against the league in Minneapolis.

"We tried bargaining, now we'll let the courts decide," he said.

The union statement came almost five hours after teams started reporting amid chaos and confusion in city after city.

The deluge started in late morning, shortly after a telephone discussion between Upshaw

■ See STRIKE, Page 10

Contras to request cease-fire talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The political directorate of Nicaragua's Contra rebels offered Thursday to go to Managua for direct talks with the leftist Sandinista government to arrange a cease-fire by a Nov. 7 deadline.

The surprise announcement, made at a brief Capitol Hill news conference, means that "we are starting today the hardball game" in testing Sandinista commitment to a five-nation peace accord signed Aug. 7, said Alfredo Cesar, a member of the directorate of the Nicaraguan resistance.

"So far the Sandinistas have been able to comply with the easy part of the plan," by reopening some news media outlets and taking other steps required by the peace plan, Cesar said.

Another member of the directorate, Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, read a statement saying the group would "send to Managua a delegation at the highest level to demand of the Sandinista front a direct dialogue with the resistance, to lead to an immediate cease-fire as is contemplated in the peace agreement."

Chamorro said the leaders of the four other Central American countries that signed the accord had been briefed on the offer, and all "told us of their decision to support it."

The statement said that the resistance "does not embrace the amnesia" ■ See CONTRAS, Page 14

Italian plane crashes; no word on survivors

By The Associated Press

BARNI, Italy — An Italian airliner carrying 37 people on a flight from Milan to West Germany slammed into the northern foothills of the Italian Alps during a heavy rainstorm Thursday night, authorities said.

There was no word on whether there were any survivors at the crash site on Mount Crezzo. One witness said he saw "a ball of fire" from where the plane apparently went down.

Driving rain, heavy fog and rough terrain hampered rescuers' efforts to reach the twin-engine turboprop plane, which crashed near Barni, a small town about 40 miles north of Milan.

Air traffic controllers lost contact with Flight 460 of the state-run Alitalia subsidiary ATI about 7:30 p.m. (2:30 p.m. EDT), 15 minutes after it had taken off from Milan's Linate Airport for Cologne, West Germany, said airline spokesman Roberto Panico.

Right before the plane vanished from the radar screens at 7:29 p.m., pilot Lamberto Laine radioed the ■ See CRASH, Page 14

Faculty members present research to state legislators

By Julie Key Collegian Reporter

A group of faculty members working on projects with potential economic importance presented their research to the state Legislature's Joint Committee on Economic Development Thursday.

"The committee was interested in learning how the University is contributing to the economic development of the state of Kansas," said Robert Lowman, dean of the graduate school.

K-State is well known for its excellence in agricultural research, Lowman said. But, its expertise is not limited to agriculture.

He said engineering and natural sciences are having increasingly more research being completed, which will make significant contributions to the economy of the state in the future.

■ See MEETING, Page 12

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Group overthrows Ivory Coast

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — A group led by President Thomas Sankara's chief adviser declared him "a traitor to the revolution" Thursday and seized the government, the poor West African nation's official radio announced.

It was the fifth coup since Burkina Faso, formerly called Upper Volta, became independent of France in 1960.

Sankara, an army captain, overthrew Jean-Baptiste Ouedraogo on Aug. 4, 1983, with the help of Capt. Blaise Compaore, who led the coup Thursday.

The "Popular Front of the 15th of October" seized the government to "halt the restoration of neocolonialism being undertaken by the traitor to the revolution," the radio said in a broadcast monitored in Abidjan.

A person answering the telex at the presidential palace Thursday night in Ouagadougou, capital of Burkina Faso, said the city was quiet and Sankara's whereabouts was not known. The person, who would not provide identification, also insisted there were no casualties.

According to a communique read on the Burkina Faso radio, the country's borders were closed, a 9 p.m.-5 a.m. curfew imposed and Sankara's National Revolutionary Council dissolved. It declared Friday a holiday so the nation could celebrate the former president's ouster.

'Disease notification' bill passes

WASHINGTON — The House voted Thursday to establish a new $25 million program for the government to individually warn hundreds of thousands of workers each year that they face a high risk of cancer and other disabling diseases from exposure to hazardous substances on the job.

Voting 225-186 largely along party lines, Democrats pushed the "high-risk occupational and disease notification" bill through the House despite a threatened veto from President Reagan and vehement objections from business groups fearing massive liability suits.

Republicans succeeded in attaching an amendment by Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., that would automatically include health-care workers in the high-risk group because of their possible exposure to the AIDS virus.

Dannemeyer said his amendment would designate up to 4 million health care workers who would automatically be included in the "high-risk" group because they might have to deal with AIDS patients during their careers.

For all other workers, the bill would establish a nine-member panel of medical and scientific experts in the Department of Health and Human Services to determine which groups are most at risk.

Milwaukee fire kills 6 children

MILWAUKEE — Fire killed six children as they slept early Thursday in a crowded home where electric space heaters were being used because the gas had been shut off, bringing to 18 the number of people who have died in inner-city fires in three weeks.

The mother of five of the six children was away from home, hospitalized after giving birth to another child two days earlier. Neighbors who tried to rescue the children were driven back by heat and smoke.

"Superman couldn't have gotten in there without melting," fire Capt. James Groth said.

'Make my day' plan debated

TOPEKA — A Kansas attorney told the interim Committee on Judiciary Thursday that Kansas already has a "make my day" law, but a jury must determine if a person used reasonable judgment in using deadly force to protect his property.

Rep. Norman Justice, D-Kansas City, has proposed that Kansas laws be expanded to allow people more latitude in using deadly force to protect their property.

But Jim Clark, executive director of the Kansas County and District Attorneys Association, said Kansas law permits a person to use deadly force to protect a household.

"The only test is reasonableness," Clark said. "It's up to a jury as to the reasonable test. Ultimately, it's a jury question."

The proposal has been called the "make my day" law after a movie in which a character played by Clint Eastwood uses the phrase.

Justice recounted for lawmakers the night earlier this year when he shot at a man who was stealing his car.

He was in his bathroom when he saw his car, parked in the driveway, back up. He told his wife to call "911," he said, and then retrieved his revolver.

"I speculated for a moment whether or not to fire. So my decision was to prevent my car from being ravished," he told the interim Committee on Judiciary, which is considering a proposal that would allow people to use deadly force to protect property.

Former sheriff faces DUI charge

COUNCIL GROVE — Former Morris County Sheriff Marilyn G. Woodward has been charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and transporting an open container, both misdemeanors.

The charges were filed by Attorney General Robert Stephan following an investigation which led to Woodward's Oct. 2 resignation.

Woodward and his wife, Danette, became engulfed in controversy after they made a tape of themselves making love and mistakenly returned the tape to a video store, along with the rented camera and video recorder. The film was copied and distributed throughout the county.

The film prompted the investigation by the attorney general's office.

Stephan alleges that on Aug. 29, Woodward drove while intoxicated and carried an open container of alcohol in his car.

72-year-old to be queen

ARCATA, Calif. — A 72-year-old woman who graduated in 1937 from Humboldt State University will be crowned Homecoming Queen in Saturday's football game against St. Mary's College.

"They said I had nothing to do but accept the crown, but now I've learned I have to make a short speech at a luncheon on the campus before the game," said Kathryn Haley Murray. "I'm not much for speeches, but I'll tell them what it was like when Humboldt State was just a small school."

She said she believes there were 26 in her graduating class, compared to a student body at the two-year college now estimated at 6,000.

Murray stayed in Eureka after getting her degree and taught kindergarten before retiring five years ago.

She now performs volunteer duty three days a week in the college library.

St. Mary's is in Moraga, a San Francisco suburb.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ARTS AND SCIENCES CLUBS interested in being allocated for the 1987-88 allocation period contact the Arts and Sciences Council at 532-6900. The deadline is Thursday.

BUSINESS STUDENTS interested in being on the open house committee may pick up an application in the Dean's Office. Return by Monday.

SINGLE PARENTS/DISABLED HOMEMAKERS $300 scholarships available in Bluemont 407, Holton 101 or Financial Aid office. For more information call 532-6561.

WILDCAT TIPOFF CLASSIC men's and women's 3-on-3 basketball tournament Oct. 31—Nov. 1. Registration forms available at Union Information Desk, Hollis House and Ahearn 101. The deadline for registration is Oct. 23.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS award applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Acker 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at K-State are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students; the awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY INTERVIEW applicants for 1988 clinic can make appointments now in Eisenhower 113B.

TODAY

POTENTIAL LAW STUDENTS meet at 9 a.m. in Union 204 to hear University of Tulsa Law Professor, Tom Holland, discuss admissions, what law school is like and career opportunities. Students in all majors are invited.

ARMY ROTC meet at 6 p.m. at south end of Old Stadium for physical training run.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Tesfaye Dama at 3 p.m. in Durland 164. The topic will be "Mathematical Model and Economical Analysis of Solar and Nocturnal Radiation Assisted Heat Pumps for Heating and Cooling."

THE DIVISION OF INSTITUTIONAL ADVANCEMENT meets at 4 p.m. at the quadrangle north of Farrell Library to host the 1987 Homecoming Jazz Social for the Division of Institutional Advancement. The concert will be held in Union Bluemont room if it rains.

SATURDAY

INTERNATIONAL CLUB meets at 6:30 p.m. in the International Center for a potluck dinner.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8:30 p.m. at ATO house.

SENATE INTERNS meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union Big 8 room.

45 Years Serving America's Children

Support the
March of Dimes
Birth Defects Foundation

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
--FREE SAMPLES--

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville

HAPPY 21ST

KARIN WYNN

MAYER RETAIL LIQUOR

- ☆Cold Kegs in Stock
- ☆Chilled Beer, Wine & Wine Coolers
- ☆Large Selection of Spirits

All Your Homecoming Needs

521 N. 12th 539-5267
1 block S. of Kite's—Next to Southern Sun

Bar 539-9081 Office 776-6638

GO CATS

619 N. Manhattan Ave.

Dark Horse welcomes back 16 years of Alumni.

SATURDAY

Open at 10 a.m. for the parade.

Watch college football at it's best all afternoon!!

YOU'LL GET A BANG OUT OF IT!

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

We're outstanding in our field

and you're invited to join us during Fall Field Days
October 17 & 18
10-6 Saturday, 12-4 Sunday

Fall is the ideal time to plant and our plant professionals will gladly help you choose your favorite shade and ornamental trees from our Growing Field. Bring the entire family to Fall Field Days and discover why Fall is for Planting!

Field located 7 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24 then 2 mi. north on the Flush Rd.

Horticultural Services
• Garden Center •

Mon.-Sat. 8-6, Friday 8-7:30, Sun. 10-6
776-5764

2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

Homecoming
1987
Bonfire

Tonight at 9:30 p.m.
Old Stadium
KSU Pep Band
KSU Cheerleaders
Stan Weber, Stan Parrish and Team
Pant the Chant Contest
Pre-Bonfire
Spirit Parade
Starting at 9 p.m. Friday

Starting at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in Durland Hall parking lot. Come and join the pep band for a parade to the bonfire!

Don't Forget Ambassador
Voting Today in the Union!

Theo Landon listens intently with her son John Cobb Landon as State Adjutant General Phil Finley presents her with the American flag which draped Landon's casket as it had laid in state Wednesday and Thursday in the rotunda of the state Capitol.

Funeral

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

after about 2,100 people filed past his casket as it laid in state on the second floor of the Capitol on the north side of the rotunda Wednesday and into Thursday morning. Landon was the first Kansas governor to lie in state since Democrat George Docking, who died in 1964.

"I'm a great admirer of his," said Emmett Dusham, a retired Topeka engineer, who came to pay his last respects to Landon Thursday with his wife, Margaret. "I think people respected his beliefs. Everyone up to the president admired him and listened to him and what he had to say."

At about 10:15 a.m., eight Kansas National Guardsmen, followed by the eight honorary pallbearers, carried Landon's casket out of the rotunda and down the south steps of the Capitol.

The casket was lowered on the bier, and the guardsmen held the flag over it during the 19-gun salute. The crowd on the grounds remained silent, and, as smoke hung in the air, a lone trumpeter sounded taps. Flags at the Capitol stood at half-staff and were to remain so until midnight Thursday.

More than 2,100 people paid their final respects to the former governor and 1936 Republican party presidential nominee.

After Finley presented the flag to Theo Landon, and the guardsmen carried the casket down the steps to a waiting hearse, Hayden and his wife, Patti, as well as Fitzwater offered their condolences to the Landon family, and the ceremony ended.

"I think everyone related to him," said Mary Hess, a retired Wichita school teacher who now lives in Topeka and attended the ceremony. "He was a fair and honest person. He does represent Kansas."

Gov. Mike Hayden was among the honorary pallbearers which included former governors John Carlin, Robert Bennett, John Anderson Jr. and Edward Arn.

Police determine reported incident not sexual assault

By The Collegian Staff

Riley County Police have determined an incident involving a K-State student was not a rape, said Capt. Larry Woodyard of the criminal investigations division.

A story concerning the incident was reported in Monday's Collegian.

He said the evidence gained in the investigation of the incident did not meet the statutory definition of rape.

"There was no rape," Woodyard said. "There was some question by a young woman about her involvement with a young man but there was no rape."

The information provided to the Collegian may have been based on the initial report of the incident, he said.

In the initial report, police use the description of the incident as given by the person reporting it. It requires an investigation of the incident to determine if a crime has been committed. That investigation also determines the nature of the crime, Woodyard said.

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Put your degree to work
where it can do a world of good

The toughest job
you'll ever love

PEACE CORPS

Your first job after graduation should offer more than just a paycheck.

If you're graduating this year, look into a unique opportunity to put your degree to work where it can do a world of good. Look into the Peace Corps.

PEACE CORPS INTERVIEWS
Oct. 22nd-23rd
Holtz Hall
Sign Up Now!
Call Jim Akin at 532-6506
for more information

Krystallos

"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

Brother's
KSU
IN AGGIEVILLE USA

Join us for a weekend Sensation!

FRIDAY & SATURDAY

Live Entertainment with

"Full House"

9 p.m.-1 a.m.

More Friday

Seafood Festival

5:30-10 p.m. only $11.95

More Saturday

Breakfast Buffet

8-10 a.m. only $2.99

Weekend Specials

•6 oz. Petite Filet with 3 shrimp scampe and choice of vegetable or potato—only $10.95

•12 oz. 'Mesquite Smoked' K.C. Strip with red wine sauce and choice of vegetable or potato—only $14.95

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

- Haircuts
- Perms
- Manicures
- Ear Piercing
- Facial Waxing
- Nail Tips

539-6001
1318 Westloop

SUNDAY

Burger Blitz Mania

All You Can Eat!

Baby Burgers, Fries & Salad Bar

$2.99

5:30-8:30 p.m.

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Costume Alley

OPEN
TODAY

Costumes starting at under $10

OVER 5000
ACCESSORIES

- Make-up
- Rubber Masks
- Pre-made costumes or create your own!
- Colored Hairspray
- Wide variety of costumes

Popeye & Olive Oyle, Mr. & Mrs. Santa, Mr. & Mrs. Satan, Playboy Bunny, Priest & Nun, Marx Bros., Martha Washington, Raggedy Ann, Angel & Devil, Bumble Bees, Clowns, Doctor & Nurse, Wizard of Oz characters, Kermit, Uncle Sam, M*A*S*H Couple, Pumpkin People, Cop & Prostitute, Cowboy & Indian, Witches, Chickens, Gorillas, Bears, Geisha Girl, Gangster, Boy Scout, Belly Dancer, Carter, Conehead, E.T., Khomeni, Nixon, Reagan, Flapper Dresses, French Maid, Yoda & more.

Located in the alley behind Brother's
Open Mon.-Sat. 1-8 p.m.

McCall's Shoes

Bootworks

FOR FALL '87

SEE OUR ENTIRE COLLECTION!

DAKOTA
IN DISTRESSED
KHAKI

SILVERADO
IN DISTRESSED
KHAKI

PROUDLY DESIGNED BY

Dexter

MADE IN USA

McCall's
Shoes

313 POYNITZ, DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

Put Yourself in our Shoes NEW HOURS: 10 a.m.-9 p.m. MON.-FRI., 10 a.m.-6 p.m. SAT., 1-5 p.m. SUN.

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 16, 1987 ■ Page 4

Tessy: Horrible monster from Tuttle

Dear Jeff,

I am writing you this letter in reference to the recent rash of automobile accidents involving bicyclists and pedestrians. The other day I was driving my white, 1961 Ford Fairmont two-door down Mid-Campus Drive. I was late for a chemistry test, but I do not believe I was speeding. Nor was I distracted by the radio (my car came with an Electrolight AM car radio as standard equipment when my great uncle Horace bought it off the showroom floor.) The disc jockey was reading the instructions from a home-birthing pamphlet he had obtained at a "When Safe-Sex Fails" seminar. Nevertheless, as I was driving along — obviously minding my own business — this bicyclist comes zooming along at 100 mph and cuts right in front of me. Naturally I slammed on my brakes and swerved the car away from the mad cyclist.

Before I could stop the car to tell the individual what I thought of his driving skills and his probable heritage, he had already cut in front of two other cars, ran one stop sign and caused four pedestrians to drop their books. He is obviously a menace!

I was almost involved in the eighth accident since school started. This made me wonder what can be done to stop the large number of incidents? Am I missing out on a conspiracy to scare motorists? Are there valid reasons for the escalating number of accidents? Do you have to be a maniac to operate a bicycle on the K-State campus? Do some pedestrians have to walk out in front of a certain number of cars each semester in order to keep a scholarship? Do joggers get a better workout if they run in pairs in the middle of the street?

Is there anything I can do to solve the current auto/autoleless relationship?

Commentary

JEFF SCHRAG
Collegian Columnist

Signed,
Ready to Drive Offensively

Dear Offensive Driver,

Even though I can understand the anxiety you are now feeling, I must admit that I may be more a part of the problem than a part of the solution. Whenever I drive on campus, I drive. I don't put on the brakes and hesitate if someone is about to step off of the curb. Sometimes I even cut through a crowd of people who are crossing the street in a steady stream. My rationalization is that since my car would do a lot more damage to the person I hit than the person would do to my car, he or she should stop and let me go first. It is a twisted "survival of the fittest" theory. On the other hand, I know that when I am walking on campus I have the right-of-way. I don't usually hesitate to cross the street — even if a car is coming. This is not because I am tough. It is because most drivers are afraid of hitting someone and having the word "murderer" written on the back of their driver's license. It is a twisted way of looking at guilt attribution.

I think your problem is that you always see yourself as an underdog. If you are walking, you see the cars as all-powerful, so you let them have the right-of-way. But if you are driving, you are afraid of hitting someone and getting sued for the ownership of your valuable 1961 Ford Fairmont. Make up your mind! Wear a helmet while you walk if it makes you feel better. Apparently, bicycles are what made you upset in the first place; maybe you could form a club — the walkers and drivers united against the bicycle riders. You could print up buttons that read "Have you clothes-lined a bicyclist today?" You could make those little yellow suction-cup car window signs that say "Bicyclist on bumper." Or, you could always crawl through the steam tunnels under campus to get to your classes. But if you choose the tunnels, don't complain about rats cutting in front of you — they have the clear right-of-way!

Dear Jeff,

I was reading in the newspaper the other day that some fools spent more than $1 million to go to Scotland in order to look for the Loch Ness monster. Something tells me that the local business community around Loch Ness doesn't do anything to solve the mystery surrounding "Nessy the monster." Why doesn't Manhattan start a rumor about "Tessy the horrible monster from Tuttle Creek?"

I know local businesses could benefit from a few million-dollar expeditions. But think of the benefits to K-State. Instead of a few classes on oceanography, the administration could start a whole department based on the study of monsters in murky lakes — murky-lakeography. K-State could be the first Big Eight school to have scuba-diving as an inter-collegiate sport. Maybe the big, purple mobile in the Union courtyard could be replaced with a giant specimen tank to hold all the monsters the scuba diving team would catch. At Homecoming it would be much more interesting to watch greys swim away from a monster in a "Swim like Hell" contest, than to watch an ordinary "Yell Like Hell" contest.

This could be the gimmick that the office of admissions has been looking for. How can I best proceed on my new idea?

Signed,
A Man With a Plan

Dear Plan Man,

You are a morbid person. I bet you are one of those fellows who plays Dungeons and Dragons — aren't you? I like your idea and think it would benefit the local economy, just like the Iran-Iraq war is benefitting the Persian Gulf. The best part of your plan is to remove the unsightly mobile from the Union. You are, however, forgetting one important thing — monsters like Nessy (or Tessy) don't really exist. The Union would have one big, empty tank sitting in its courtyard. Maybe you could turn the specimen tank into a dunk tank, taking nominations for professor of the week to sit on the little stool above the water. Students could pay $1 per throw to try and dunk the honorary individual. The money raised could help offset the costs of the Holton Hall renovation. Sounds like the whole team could win.

Reagan's stubbornness over Bork ridiculous

The bitter end.

That is the point to which President Reagan is prepared to fight over the Robert Bork nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Someone obviously forgot to tell him the battle was lost several days ago when the 51st senator came out publicly against Bork. However, despite the overwhelming opposition to Bork from both the U.S. public and the ranks of senators, the president has vowed to fight on.

And on.

And for what? To prove he's not the incompetent, lame-duck leader most everyone has come to believe he is? If that's his intent, his personal, confrontational and biting comments will get him nowhere, except maybe knocked down another notch or two in the public opinion polls.

As if his attacks weren't enough, Reagan has vowed to nominate someone just as controversial as Bork when Bork is formally rejected. That's certainly not the proper approach of a president trying to regain his credibility.

Although his self-inflicted wound is bad enough, what's worse is that Reagan isn't just further damaging his already tainted presidency. He's also jeopardizing the chances of the Republicans to retain the White House in 1988.

All Republican hopefuls — and Vice President George Bush in particular — are surely nervously watching Reagan to see what he'll do or say next.

The president's actions over this nomination have gone far in cementing the image that he is not in control in Washington. In fact, after the Iran-Contra scandal, Reagan promised to take a "hands-on" approach to government and quit allowing aides and would-be heroes run the country.

And that is certainly an honorable and worthwhile promise.

But if the Bork nomination is his idea of "hands-on" leadership, he should pass the controls to someone else.

No 'business as usual' to prevent oppression

"Business as usual." "Keep it in the black." Phrases that are used to signify a status quo in business and a preferred status.

Rotary Club International gave Wichitans a glimpse of the business as usual last week when it hosted a group of South African businesswomen. During the trip, Jane Wiltshire, a corporate planner for a South African conglomerate, talked to the Wichita Eagle-Beacon. She spoke volumes in a very short story in the paper's Monday business section.

Wiltshire said she has found "business is business wherever you go." A chilling prospect when you consider South African business is built on the broken backs of the black majority there.

While in Wichita, Wiltshire's group swapped business ideas with several companies including Pizza Hut and Boeing Military Airplane Co. It is hoped they somewhat impressed the idea of racial equality on her.

Wiltshire also said she found some differences between American and South African business and life in general. This is where the real insights into that country's thinking took place.

The biggest difference being "because of a lack of skilled labor in South Africa, 'there's one of me doing a job that perhaps a small department would be doing here,'" she said. It is hard to find skilled labor when a substantial majority of a country's work force is pushed into unskilled labor positions, because they are denied access to other sectors of the economy.

Another difference is "South Africans tend to have an inferiority complex because the country is '...so far away from everyone.'" This might not be caused by geographic location, though. Very few countries, openly oppress their people as does South Africa. An inferiority complex might be a good condition for some South Africans to have.

Wiltshire's trip fulfilled part of the charter of the Rotary Club's exchange program of promoting international understanding. She has shown part of the thinking that has perpetuated the current oppressive environment in South Africa.

Letters

Lowlife thief

Editor,

There is a lot to be said for the "old days." For example, in the old days they used to hang horse thieves. I don't want to debate capital punishment; I just want to make a point. They were pretty disgusted with horse thieves in the old days, weren't they?

Now I might have gotten myself hung back then for some other offense, but it wouldn't have been for stealing. My father made it perfectly clear at a very early age that no one in his family would ever steal. Period.

This letter is directed at the unfortunate, lowlife thief who stole the rear wheel from my bicycle. I use the term "thief" because that is what you are. I use the term "lowlife" because it is synonymous with thief. And I use the term "unfortunate" because it is unfortunate that either your parents were too lazy and uncaring to teach you respect for other people's property, or you have chosen to disregard the lesson and instead adopt the mentality of "...if it good, me take; if it bad, me leave."

One would think that as difficult as it is to endure the rigors of college life that a common bond might form among the students thereby fostering a mutual respect for each other's individual rights and privileges. (In case you're not a college student, omit the word "college" and replace "the students" with "people.") And if you are a college student, how does it feel to be the one person out of 18,000 who would stoop to stealing from me, another student?

You keep the wheel; I'm sure it will make a fascinating toy for you. And if you ever wish to learn about respect for other people's property, come see me. I'll try my best to explain it in a language you can understand.

Densel Kimbrough
sophomore in pre-design

Tests necessary

Editor,

Re: Judd Annis' column "Schools stress competition too highly" in Wednesday's Collegian. I was glad to see your headline because I thought that perhaps someone was finally going to stick his neck out and condemn the push for athletic prowess at the high school level. I was not disappointed to see that you were, instead, taking up argument of a much more important issue.

You are probably right; there is too much competitiveness in today's classroom, which, in many cases, brings out the worst in students. However, eliminating this competition for grades would not eliminate competition for higher ACT scores or college scholarships. The fact would remain that colleges need some basis on which to offer awards.

The assumption that competition necessarily breeds resentment is a fallacy. I graduated from a class in which two of our 40 members were National Merit Scholars. In another class, I might have graduated second or third, rather than fifth. But do I resent their superior achievements? Certainly not — the reason being quite simple.

They were, in every sense, "model" students. They readily took the opportunity to discuss literature or ethics — anything, so long as it bred camaraderie and offered them a chance to share their knowledge with others. Really good students are willing to share ideas.

They are not, however, willing to give away what they have worked for. In most high schools, lab courses are at least part of a collective format. Students work collectively on lab experiments, and what generally happens? Two or three of five lab partners do all the work while the remaining few copy down the data to hand in for a "collective" grade.

They obviously haven't learned a thing; to give them the same overall grade as their partners would be an injustice. That's why they are tested. Will all five of them score the same grade on an exam over the material?

The best system is a system that strives for a balance of cooperative participation and individual accomplishment. If the highly competitive Japanese education system turns out such good students, why doesn't our American competitive system do the same?

The fact is, it does. There are hundreds of amazing American students at Kansas State.

Luke Sobba
sophomore in English

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Pilot dies in crash

Plane goes down in desert

By The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — An Air Force plane that Pentagon sources said was a top-secret Stealth fighter crashed in a rugged desert area, killing the pilot.

The Air Force confirmed Thursday that there was a fatal crash Wednesday evening but wouldn't say what type of plane had gone down. But a Pentagon official in Washington who asked not to be named described the plane as a Stealth fighter, similar to a plane that crashed in 1986 in California.

The source refused to discuss the conditions under which the plane disappeared, and it could not be learned immediately whether the plane was on a training exercise or a flight test.

Nellis Air Force Major Victor Andrijauskas said the pilot was killed when the plane crashed on the Nellis Air Force gunnery range about 8:45 p.m. Wednesday. The crash was about 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas and 50 miles south of a secret air base where the Air Force is known to test the Stealth fighter.

Andrijauskas refused to say what kind of plane crashed, but said the pilot was the only crew member aboard. The pilot's name was withheld until the family is notified.

The spokesman said the pilot was assigned to Nellis, but refused to say what fighter wing he was attached to. Nellis is the largest fighter wing training facility in the United States.

Emergency crews responded and secured the area, Andrijauskas said.

A dispatcher for the Bureau of Land Management said the BLM was notified of a fire in the area Wednesday night, and called the Air Force, which operates the sprawling range. The dispatcher, who refused to give her name, said Air Force officials asked the bureau not to say where the fire was or how big it was.

The Air Force generally releases the type of aircraft and the number of crew members aboard within hours of a crash. Andrijauskas refused to comment on the unusual secrecy.

The plane was last tracked on radar at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday about 100 miles northwest of here, said Major Victor Andrijauskas of Nellis Air Force Base.

Andrijauskas would not say where the plane was from or release any other details. He said emergency crews are in the vicinity searching for the aircraft.

The Air Force generally releases the type of aircraft and the number of crew members aboard when crashes occur. Andrijauskas refused to comment on the unusual secrecy.

The area of the crash is about 100 miles south of a secret base where the Air Force is known to be testing Stealth fighter aircraft.

Senate hears library report, considers funding requests

By Jill Conger
Collegian Reporter

New features and needed improvements of Farrell Library highlighted a speech presented by a library administrator to Student Senate Thursday.

"I am accustomed to visiting the Senate to discuss improving the library," said Brice Hobrock, Dean of Libraries, in his open period address.

One of the obstacles for the library is inflation, he said.

"This inflation is effecting the cost of periodicals, which means that the library isn't receiving as many periodicals as they did in the past," Hobrock said.

He explained the library has a $500,000 budget for purchasing periodicals, many of which are purchased in Europe.

"Due to inflation and the foreign market, the cost of the periodicals has increased, and with our budget, we weren't able to purchase as many periodicals," Hobrock said. "The result was that we bought 6,000 fewer books."

Hobrock also told the Senate about a new electronic library system, and said he is asking the Legislature for $200,000 to install the new system.

"This system would condense everything presently in the library catalog onto a universal data switch," Hobrock said. "This would allow students to have access to the library catalog from anywhere on campus."

The final concern expressed by Hobrock was the lack of space for students, staff and books in the library. Hobrock said the library should seat 3,600 people rather than the 970 seats available now.

Senate heard first readings of a resolution opposing faculty peer evaluations. Senate moved to vote on this resolution a week early in order to give a recommendation to Faculty Senate this week. Senators were opposed to the resolution because no guidelines had been formed for the evaluation procedure.

Senate also heard first readings on two final allocation appeals.

The FONE Crisis Center is requesting an additional $2,889.52 to cover the costs involved with its telephone system. The Student Governing Association is appealing its allocation due to a record-keeping error.

In new business, Senate approved a bill financing two architecture student's trip to the National American Institute of Architecture Students forum. The students were awarded $433 for their trip in November.

BOOK SALE

PERSONAL GROWTH, METAPHYSICS, NEW AGE

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17

UFM HOUSE - 1221 THURSTON

IT'S NOT TOO LATE

Run for Student Body President
Student Senate
Board of Student Publications

Filing Deadline is
Oct. 20

Applications available
in the SGS Office

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Ford, Goodnow,
Off Campus

Oct. 19: Goodnow,
Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Aquarium Sale

10 gallon tank, all glass

$8.98

WEEKEND Fish Special
3 for $1
Zebra Danio
Gold Platy
Leopard Danio
Piranhas
$4.99 each

1 FREE GOLDFISH

with this coupon

Good through 10/18/87—one coupon per person

Parakeets
all colors
Sale
$8.98
Reg. $14.99

GREEN

Open Monday Thru
Saturday 8 to 5:30
Sunday Noon to 5:30

1105 Waters
539-4751

THUMB

"Across from ALCO"

JOB OPPORTUNITIES AT UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

OFFERS PART-TIME POSITIONS
MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

EMPLOYEES EARN $8 HR.
LOADING/UNLOADING

ups
SHIP MAIL 5:15 a.m. - 9 a.m.
WORKING 3-5 HOURS

UNITED PARCEL SERVICE
is looking for service-minded people to join
the UPS team.

FOR INFORMATION CONTACT
Office of Financial Aid
Fairchild Hall Rm. 104
Equal Opportunity Employer

The Sound Shop

1204 MORO

WEEKEND SPECIALS—3 DAYS ONLY

ALL YAMAHA
CAR STEREO
20% OFF

DENON DRA 5420
AM/FM Cassette
High Power
reg. $500 ONLY $365.00

DENON DRA 355
STEREO RECEIVER
55 Watt
$325.00 $268.00 (DEMO)

NAKAMICHI BX125
"State of the Art"
CASSETTE DECK
SAVE $100.00

SONY SPORTS
WALKMAN
WM-45
$89.95 $64.95

USED EQUIPMENT
Specially Priced
Save $

AUDIO CONTROL
D-520 EQ
5-Band Stereo
$65.00

AUDIO TECHNICA
AT201
phono cartridge
$17.95

DBX 110
Subharmonic
Synthesizer
$50.00

YAMAHA
AM-FM Tuners
Selected Models
20% Off

STUDENT FINANCING!

Toddler cries, talks while rescue team digs through rock

By The Associated Press

MIDLAND, Texas — A frightened toddler trapped for more than a day 22 feet down an abandoned well talked to her mother and cried Thursday as anxious rescuers pounded their way through solid rock with jackhammers.

Eighteen-month-old Jessica McClure fell into the well about 9:30 a.m. Wednesday while playing with other children at a private day-care center run by her aunt and her mother.

"The only thing I heard her say is, 'Mommy.' The rest is just crying and moaning," said Midland Police Cpl. Jim White.

Early Thursday night, rescuers had drilled a horizontal shaft to within two feet of the toddler, but there was no prediction when they would reach the child because of the hardness of the rock, Midland police Sgt. Jeff Haile told a news conference.

"At some points, it's harder than granite," Haile said, quoting a federal Mine Safety and Health Administration official, Dave Lilly, from Carlsbad, N.M.

Workers had drilled a 3-by-3-foot shaft 28 feet deep next to the well, then began working up toward the child. Progress was slowed by solid rock that kept breaking drill bits.

"We're drilling...in hard rock. It's breaking carbide bits, diamond-tipped bits, every tip known to the industry," Haile said earlier Thursday.

The rescuers, Haile said, were beginning to feel anxiety about their efforts.

"They're working just as hard now as they have and they will continue till they drop. Nobody's lost hope, but they're starting to feel pressure on the time," he said.

Doctors at first said the child could last as long as 36 hours, or until 9:30 p.m. Thursday, but Dr. Chip Klunick, emergency room doctor at Midland Memorial Hospital, said Thursday night she could survive longer.

"If the child is not injured severely, she could probably go about four days without water," he said. "She is dehydrating, but not at too extensive a rate."

Gathered at the site were friends and neighbors who waited and prayed with Jessica's parents, Chip, 18, and Reba Gayle McClure, 17. She is their only child.

The little girl, described by an uncle as "a fighter," slept during the night Wednesday after heaters were installed to blow warm air into the 8-inch-wide entrance of the well in the backyard of her aunt's house.

Jessica had not had anything to eat or drink since she tumbled into the well, and doctors at the scene considered lowering a bottle to the girl because of concerns about dehydration.

"But then we thought, we don't want to fill her stomach if she has internal injuries or is going to require surgery when she comes out," said Klunick. "She could have any kind of injuries down there. We just don't know."

Jessica remained alert Thursday afternoon. "She's crying, she's humming, she's singing," Haile said.

A special microphone was dropped into the shaft to communicate with the girl, and a camera was lowered so the child's face was briefly visible.

The well, about 8 inches in diameter at the top, widens farther down until it narrows to a 6-inch opening below the spot where Jessica came to rest.

By late morning, workers had reached the casing pipe entering the well near Jessica and had switched to smaller, more precise equipment to burrow their way through. A mining expert flown in from Carlsbad, N.M., by a Midland businessman arrived at the scene with special equipment.

"The closer they get, the more vibrations, the louder the noise. The poor little thing is scared," said White.

Students learn 'write stuff' in lab

By Sally Neary
Collegian Reporter

For two hours a week, students needing help with their writing skills may receive it in the writing laboratory course offered by the English department.

Writing laboratory is a two-hour credit/no credit course. The credits do not count toward graduation and are not used in determining students' grade point average. However, if students are required to carry a certain number of hours, the two hours of credit do count.

The writing lab course began in 1957 when the remedial English course was no longer required at K-State. The purpose of the course was to help students who lacked good writing skills.

Currently, there are 99 students enrolled in the course. Students may be referred to the lab by an English composition instructor or by any departmental instructor. Students also may enroll themselves if they need help in writing.

Enrollment for the course occurs the first two weeks of the semester in Denison 102. Jane Clark, director of the writing lab, said during the two weeks, teachers diagnose and recommend students to the lab.

"Teachers can recommend students to the lab, but they can't force them to come to our office," Clark said.

"As time allows, we diagnose their problems. We talk about the student's motivation, needs and seriousness about working on writing."

The majority of the students are from the English composition classes. However, many students, especially the self-referred and the technical writing students, are upper level or graduate students.

Those teaching the lab are Clark, the English department's graduate teaching assistants, temporary instructors and regular instructors. The lab instructors must currently teach or have taught an English Composition I or Composition II class.

There are five students to every lab instructor. Instructors sit beside the student in a one-on-one situation.

"The student should feel in control of the writing," Clark said.

Instructors help students at any stage of the writing process. If the student needs help getting started, instructors may help generate ideas by talking to the student about his or her interests or hobbies. Others may need help organizing, developing paragraphs or using smooth transitions in their writing.

Students also have the opportunity to sign up for a separate walk-in session. During the session, instructors may help students for a 20-minute time period.

"As the semester moves along, we try to push them more and more on their own," Clark said.

Clark said the course is "a lot more than looking at a sheet of paper." She said the instructors also listen to the problems students experience throughout the semester. The instructors don't try to be counselors, but they can refer students to someone if they are having emotional or physical problems.

"It's a real thrill to see a student who you've worked with every week, and see his papers go from D's to B's," Clark said.

Clark said she finds it satisfying when previous students come back to let the instructors know they are going to graduate, or when current students in the course stop by to say how they did on a paper.

The best lab instructors are those who care about students and are sensitive to their needs, fears and frustrations, Clark said. The instructors need to be experienced with the basics of English as well as familiar with other subjects. Instructors should also be imaginative and innovative when a student needs ideas and suggestions.

K-STATE PLAYERS

SOUTH PACIFIC

McCain Auditorium
8:00
Box Office Open Mon.-Fri., 12-5
CALL 532-6398

OCT. 22, 23, 24

AVANT LA PIECE

TROPICAL TREATS

Blumont Room—KSU Union—Oct. 23 & 24
CALL 532-6580

Chinese Hawaiian Cabbage Salad
Malay Vegetable Pickles
Spicy Pork on Hundred Layer Sesame Buns
Grilled Mahi-Mahi with Ginger Butter Sauce
Mushroom and Potato Curry with Accompaniments of Deep Fried Onion Rings, Chopped Green Onions, Peanuts, Coconut, Sliced Tomatoes and Raisins
Beet Root Raita
Portuguese-Hawaiian Sweet Bread
Pineapple Macadamia Bread
Tropical Fruit Compote

Tickets may be purchased at the K-State Union Food Service Office for $8 the week prior to the event. Phone reservations will be taken for tickets only if payment is made for the tickets 2 days prior to the date for which you reserve. Please contact K-State Union Food Service Office at (913) 532-6580 for additional information.

Students Are Welcome!

GREAT COMMISSION CHURCH

Statement of Faith:

We believe the Bible to be the inspired, the only infallible, authoritative Word of God.

We believe there is one almighty, perfect and true God: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, eternally coexistent personalities of the same essence.

We believe in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, in His virgin birth, His sinless life, His substitutionary death, His bodily resurrection, His ascension to the right hand of the Father and His personal return in power and glory.

We believe in the personality of the Holy Spirit, and in His ministry of convicting and regenerating sinful men, and indwelling, sealing and empowering believers.

We believe in the fall of man from the state of innocence in which he was created to one of total depravity in which he is devoid of spiritual life, and incapable, apart from divine power, of pleasing God.

We believe in the justification of the sinner by grace through faith alone.

We believe that the church universal is composed of all true believers and that its members should assemble themselves together in local churches for worship, prayer, fellowship and teaching with a view to being equipped to fulfill the Great Commission.

We believe in the bodily resurrection of the saved to immortality, and in the conscious eternal suffering of the lost.

10:30 a.m. Sundays
University Inn (17th & Anderson)

FREE DELIVERY

HUNAM Restaurant

1304 Westloop
10% off with KSU ID
539-8888 539-0888

the SOUND SHOP

NEW THIS WEEK

STING
LOVE & ROCKETS
SUPER TRAMP
TOMMY SHAW
54-40

1204 MORO—AGGIEVILLE

VANDERBILT'S

Levi's

HEADQUARTERS DISCOUNT PRICES

SHRINK-TO-FIT

Levi's 501

The original button-fly 501 jeans in shrink-to-fit sizes. First Quality, 38 & 40 Lengths. $18.99

$16.99

Compare to $26.95

Men's LINED JEAN JACKETS

Rugged heavy-weight denim with double stitched seams, copper buttons and all the quality and durability Levi's are famous for.

$44.99

Compare to $79.95

Compare to $26.95

VISA

DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)

OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100

MasterCard

HOMECOMING 87

Here Come The Cats!

Homecoming 1987

"Everyday is K-State Day!"

EVENTS

11:15 FarmHouse Quartet

11:30 Yell Like Hell Finals

11:30 Group 1

11:36 Group 2

11:42 Group 3

11:48 Group 4

11:54 Group 5

12:00 Entertainment

Sigma Sigma Sigma/Sigma Nu

Kappa Alpha Theta/Delta Upsilon

Kappa Kappa Gamma/FarmHouse/Alpha Gamma Rho

Moore Hall

12:15 Announcement of Yell Like Hell Finals

12:20 Entertainment

Gamma Phi Beta/Alpha Tau Omega

Kappa Delta/Lambda Chi Alpha

Goodnow/Putnam

Phi Delta Theta/Delta Delta Delta

12:45 Kappa Pickers

1:00 Body Building Finals

1:00 Group 1

1:06 Group 2

1:12 Group 3

1:18 Group 4

1:24 Group 5

1:30 Pridettes

1:45 Announcement of Body Building Finals

Announcements

Don't Forget to Vote for Ambassadors!
(bring fee card)

Homecoming buttons & bumper stickers on sale in the Union

BLUE KEY
National Fraternity

EntertainmentFriday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 16, 1987 ■ Page 7

Play marks revival of Ebony Theatre

By Jackie Wendt
Collegian Reporter

"Happy Endings" signals a new beginning for the recently revived Ebony Theatre.

After a two-year absence from K-State, the Ebony Theatre, a black acting troupe, has been started anew by Barbara Baker, senior in journalism and mass communications, and Shirlyn Henry, sophomore in speech. The group's first production will be "Happy Endings," a play by Douglas Turner Ward.

"We got together and simply decided to revive it," Baker said. "We looked through plays with black producers, got 'Happy Endings' and got it going again."

Baker, Henry, Marlene Reed, graduate in special education; Terry Jones, senior in political science; and Martin Grizzell, freshman in English, are the five members of the Ebony Theatre. Greta Spears, junior in journalism and mass communications, is the group's president and Andrea Shelton, graduate in student counseling/personal services, helps with promotions.

All of the group's members are volunteers.

"We had auditions, but not many showed up even though we advertised," Baker said. "Basically we asked friends and solicited volunteers to help us out."

Baker, who directs "Happy Endings," said the play takes place in the 1960s during the civil rights movement. One of the characters, Junie, is not active in the civil rights movement, but criticizes his two aunts for being domestic workers. The play begins with the two aunts crying because the couple they work for, the Harrisons, are getting a divorce. Later, it turns out that it is the two aunts who actually run the Harrison's household. It is also the aunts who help Junie with his college education and provide him with good food.

"The two aunts are very strong women, despite the domestic worker label," Baker said.

Baker said the Ebony Theatre plans to perform "plays that deal with black history, black drama, black families and black playwrights."

"I think even though The K-State Players put on great plays, it's important to have minority plays with minority cultures," Baker said. "It helps others with their college educations by giving students insights to other cultures."

Baker said the Ebony Theatre's goals are to take the group's productions on the road to Junction City or Fort Riley and to do two more productions at K-State in the spring semester. "Freedom to Love" may be performed this semester in November or December.

"We will be looking to perform plays that have universal themes," Baker said. "They should have a message or an important statement about black people."

Martin Grizzell, who plays Junie in "Happy Endings," said he thinks there will be a great response from the black and white population in Manhattan to

■ See EBONY, Page 14

Vi, played by Marleen Reed, and Junie, played by Martin Grizzell, rejoice after learning the outcome of their employers' relationship. Ellie, played by Shirlyn Henry, sophomore in speech, and Arthur, played by Terry Jones, senior in political science, express their joy in the background.

ABOVE: Reed, graduate student in special education, lectures Grizzell, freshman in English, about the sorrow he should be feeling concerning the divorce of their employers. RIGHT: Felicia Bradley, freshman undecided, recites a poem before the start of "Happy Endings." The play is being performed tonight and tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in The Purple Masque Theatre.

Photography by Neal Hinkle

Spotlight

EVENTS

"Happy Endings," 8 p.m., Oct. 16-17, Purple Masque Theater.
Preview for "South Pacific," noon, Oct. 21, Union Courtyard.
"South Pacific," 8 p.m., Oct. 22-24, McCain Auditorium.
Dave Marsh on "The Rock and Roll Industry," 8 p.m., Oct. 20, Union Forum Hall.

FILMS

K-State Union

"Project X," 7 and 9:30, Friday and Saturday, Union Forum Hall.
"American Pop," (R), 7:30, Wednesday, Oct. 21, Union Forum Hall; 3:30, Thursday, Oct. 22, Union Little Theatre; and 7:30, Thursday, Oct. 22, Union Forum Hall.

Commonwealth Theaters
Westloop Cinema 6

"Hamburger Hill," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2.
"Stakeout," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.
"Like Father, Like Son," (PG-13), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.
"Surrender," (R), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday

at 2:10.
"Pick-up Artist," (PG), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.
"Dirty Dancing," (PG-13), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.
Campus
"The Lost Boys," (R), daily at 7 and 9; Saturday and Sunday at 3 and 5.

Seth Childs Cinemas

"Suspect," sneak preview at 7:10 Saturday.
"Someone to Watch Over Me," (R), daily at 7:15 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20 and 4:45.
"The Principal," (R), daily at 7:10, 9:35; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10 and 4:40. No 7:10 showing on Saturday.
"Summer School," (PG-13), daily at 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 and 4:35.

"Fatal Attraction," (R), daily at 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2 and 4:30.
"Hell Raiser," (R), daily at 7:25 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday at 2:25 and 4:45.
"Three O'Clock High," (PG-13), daily at 7:30 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:35 and 4:35.

Internships: not traditional education

By Jackie Brazzle
Collegian Reporter

Traditional learning — sitting in the classroom — is how most students receive their education, but “experience-is-the-best-teacher” methods of learning — internships — are a valuable resource for many students at K-State.

Internships “help students to project to that time when they graduate,” said Mark Lapping, dean of the College of Architecture and Design.

Interns gain self-confidence, good communication skills and a detailed knowledge of business operations, said Marlene McComas, coordinator of the internship program in the Department of Clothing, Textiles and Interior Design.

Employers also benefit from internship programs.

An internship multiplies the employers’ effectiveness, said Neil Anderson, associate department head of surgery and medicine in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Resource for students, employers

“The employer can take the time, slow down and talk to people because they have someone to help out,” he said.

Employers get a lot of exposure within the college, too.

Employers are getting a “window to the university” because they can see firsthand what a student is or is not learning, said Ken Gowdy, associate dean of engineering.

Also, internships offer the employer a chance to evaluate a young person “for a short time for a relatively small investment,” said John Riley, assistant director of resident instruction for the College of Agriculture.

All colleges at K-State, except the colleges of Business Administration and Education, have formal internship programs.

Three examples are the Co-op program in the College of Engineering, the Direct Field Experience Program in the College of Human Ecology and the House Officer program in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Gowdy said the Engineering Co-op Program is a joint work-study program sponsored by K-State and industry.

Students alternate between work in industry and academic study on campus. A pair of students is matched to a single position in industry. While one student is working, the other is attending classes.

This alternation continues throughout a 3-year period, with both students completing five work periods.

Work responsibility increases with the importance of the assignments given, Gowdy said. Each student has to do individual projects within the company and the student usually works 40 hours a week or more.

National studies show 50 percent to 60 percent of Co-op students accept permanent employment with one of the Co-op companies, Gowdy said.

The Directed Field Experience program is used throughout the College of Human Ecology.

The program is required and is usually taken with a class or professional seminar. The participant must be of junior or senior standing to qualify. Academic credit of from 3 to 8 hours is given, depending on the department, and most internships are paid.

In the Department of Clothing, Textiles and Interior Design, students have to go through interviews before taking internships.

McComas said she works with the companies beforehand to help coordinate the internships.

Each student has to do a variety of required work for the department while in the internship. This includes weekly reports summarizing their experiences, a self-evaluation and evaluations of the course.

The House Officer program is designed for people who are in their first year after graduation from the College of Veterinary Medicine, Anderson said.

They do entry-level work for veterinarians, and then go on to work having more responsibility, he said.

House officers are on duty eight hours per week, but may work at night and on weekends on a rotating basis.

Anderson said the House Officer program is a usual or preferred route to becoming certified in order to work in one of the specialty areas of veterinary medicine.

“The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the American Heart Association.”
When people want to honor a loved one

THE AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

Danger, tension elegant mix in newest romantic thriller

By Gary Leffler
Collegian Reviewer

Lately it seems there has been an unusual number of thrillers released for the viewing public to enjoy — “The Fourth Protocol,” “The Big Easy,” “No Way Out,” “Fatal Attraction” — the list is long. So it was with a mild case of thriller fatigue that I went to see “Someone To Watch Over Me.” However, this romantic-thriller captured my attention and entertained me with a strong mix of story line, acting and cinematography.

Movie Review

From the opening credits, “Someone To Watch Over Me” takes the audience on a trip filled with strong images. The film begins with a slow pan across Manhattan’s East Side, the camera hovering somewhere between the concrete and asphalt of the streets and the tops of the skyline. The east side has never looked more stylish or more artistic.

Tom Berenger, fresh off his academy award-nomination performance in “Platoon,” plays newly christened detective Mike Keegan of the NYPD. He is assigned a “babysitting” job protecting Claire Gregory, played by Mimi Rogers. Claire has witnessed the murder of a close friend and, unfortunately for her, the killer knows this.

Mike Keegan is delighted to finally be a detective and is admittedly somewhat overwhelmed by Claire’s Manhattan townhouse. He’s also taken with Claire herself. The trouble is, of course, he’s married.

Mike’s wife, Elly, is also a cop. Elly professes again and again that she needs no help from Mike — in her work or daily life. When Mike asks her to stay at his mother’s house while he is pulling night duty (their Queens neighborhood is not the safest in town) she refuses.

Contrasting to this is Claire’s desperate need to be cared for — to be protected. This need stirs something in Mike that hasn’t been tapped for some time and eventually he is hooked.

The remainder of “Someone To Watch Over Me” moves along swiftly and elegantly. The outstanding cinematography and compositions of director Ridley Scott give the film an added depth and character that extends beyond the plotline and characters.

Berenger is wonderfully believable as the detective struggling between his love and duty to Elly and his attraction to the intrigue, glamour and helplessness of Claire. Berenger strikes just the right balance between ruggedness, shyness, naivete and silent strength.

His characterization brings the contrast of Manhattan and Queens to its height as he escorts Claire to a reception she must attend. His response to the bombardment of socialites is warm, funny and all too true: “These people are a bunch of screaming squirrels.”

“Someone To Watch Over Me” effectively mixes dangerous tension and romance as it leads its audience through a lush and stylish maze of concrete and steel. It may not be a nail-biter like “Fatal Attraction,” but it’s definitely not just another thriller to add to the already lengthy list.

UNITED ARTISTS
UA SETH CHILDS CINEMAS
SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD.
Sneak Preview Saturday at 7:10 p.m.
Suspect
SOMEONE TO WATCH OVER ME (R)
Daily 7:15, 9:30; Sat/Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:45
THE PRINCIPAL (R)
Daily 7:10, 9:35; Sat/Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:40
Sat. NO 7:10 Show
SUMMER SCHOOL (PG-13)
Daily 7:20, 9:25; Sat/Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:35
FATAL ATTRACTION (R)
Daily 7, 9:30; Sat/Sun. Mat. 2, 4:30
HELLRAISER (R)
Daily 7:25, 9:40; Sat/Sun. Mat. 2:25, 4:45
THREE O'CLOCK HIGH (PG-13)
Daily 7:30, 9:20; Sat/Sun. Mat. 2:35, 4:35

Cinemax Exclusive Premiere
Blake Edwards
A FINE MESS
Ted Danson
Howie Mandel
Watch this madcap comedy — or the maid gets it!
Cinemax
ENTERTAINMENT TO THE MAX
Manhattan Cable TV
610 Humboldt 776-9239

BLUE KEY
National Security Agency
THANK YOU
For helping to make Homecoming 1987 such a success!

Farmhouse Quartet Kappa Pickers K-State Pridettes Sonny Ballard Bill Muir Dr. Jack Riley Anita Pankake Norman Fadder Tropical Tan Tim Balfour Dr. Dave Mugler Pat Bosco Alpha Lambda Delta Theta Xi Fraternity Dean Isenhour Ruth Ann Werfeld Nancy Travis Craig Renfro Lon Kruger Barb Kruger Scott Johnson Belinda Shelly Wakeman Deb Fields Kerry Weddler Art Thomas Leslye Schneider Wally Brockhoff Scott Scrogin Amy Butten-Renz James Rezac Barbara Stowe Stephen Kellner Barb Rabel Larry Viterna Stan Fink Pat Beeler Barb Pretzer	KQLA Sally Routson Dave Adams Diane Dollar Torey Head The KSU Alumni Assoc. Harry Marsh Jan Ray Ted Varney Beth Harstenstein Dorothy Smith Sylvia Murphy Barry Steffen Bailey Moving & Storage Mortar Board Chef Peters Chimes Junior Honorary Caroline Paine Reba Shavely KSU Police Dept. KSU Physical Facilities Refuse Control Ken Buyle Stan Weber KMKF Wildcat Marching Band Anne Edwards Dick Edwards Ford-Lincoln-Mercury Elkins Motor Company Murdock Chevrolet-Cadillac-Oldsmobile Goetsch-Irvine Chrysler-Plymouth Todd Johnson Jill Hofmann John Mugler Patty Rice Todd Gentry	Bayer Construction Co. Bayer Cut Stone Inc. Spurs Sophomore Honorary KSU Cheerleaders Willie the Wildcat Caitlin Edvy Beta Pledge Class Carrie Behner Doug Brown Amy Tumpos Pat Daniels Kent Williams Micah Penlow Julian Flick Amy Campbell Lisa Pfannenstiel Shawna Prosser John Nett Lorraine Sullivan Michelle Franglister Michael Sweeney Sam Ory Colton McArthur Emma Diaz Shera Smith Karen Vawter Kelly Daharsh Denise Glenn Mary Ward Burke Jones Lara Fralisher Brittany Graves Kim Gersch Russ Ewy Scott Thompson Angelique Jackson Bridget Borders Carrie Longwell
--	--	---

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

AGGIEVILLE FLOWERS
SWEETHEART ROSES
$6.00 a dozen
Flower Bundles $4.00
12th and Laramie
10-5:30 M-Sat. 537-9549

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
Join us this weekend at the “Finest Little Tavern By A Dam Site”
NOW OPEN SUNDAYS 12 to 12
Rt. 5 537-3133

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE INFORMATION 538-1291
IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 762-4094
CAMPUS
HEART OF AGGIEVILLE
THE LOST BOYS R
Today at 7 & 9
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 3 & 5
WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center
HAMBURGER HILL R
Today at 4:30-7:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2
STAKEOUT R
Today at 4:30-7:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2
LIKE FATHER LIKE SON PG-13
Today at 4:40-7:10-9:20
Matinee Sat. & Sun. 2:10
SURRENDER PG
Today at 4:40-7:10-9:20
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:10
PICKUP ARTIST PG
Today at 4:45-7:20-9:25
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:20
DIRTY DANCING PG-13
Today at 4:45-7:20-9:25
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:20

Now the Best Pizza in Town Has the Best Price!

DOMINO'S PIZZA

Two Pizzas for Only $5.99!

Now you can have two delicious 10" pizzas for the price of one. They're custom-made with your choice of toppings on each; they don't have to be the same! And we use only the freshest ingredients and 100% real cheese.

You're not seeing double. It's just our latest way to say that Domino's Pizza Delivers. And we deliver at no additional charge in 30 minutes or less. That's the Domino's Pizza guarantee.

No coupon necessary.

Call Us! Manhattan 539-0561
517 N. 12th Street
Hours: 4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs. 4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.

Domino's Pizza Delivers® Doubles.

Prices do not include tax. Our drivers carry less than $20.00. Limited delivery area.

Menu	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE *	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI 	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA™ 	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

*DELUXE — 5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.
VEGI — 5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.
EXTRAVAGANZZA™ — A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

© 1987 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

InFocus

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 16, 1987 ■ Page 9

Frank Drake and son Brian brave the cold to listen to the instructor.

Not a typical weekend in October, the winds were brisk with the thermometer looming in the lower 40s — what many hunters would say is perfect weather.

For seven boys and their fathers it was a weekend together, learning the "sport of men." Dressed in hunter's garb, guns in hand, men and boys were prepared to experience the great outdoors. Together.

Safety. This was the topic stressed to all of the beginning hunters. Students were to get a taste of the basic etiquette of hunting so they can join their fathers on upcoming fall weekends.

The group of 12-year-old boys and their fathers participated in the Upland Game and Duck Hunting group, one of the most popular sessions offered at the Hunting, Fishing, Fur Harvesting School at Rock Springs Ranch. Many of the boys experienced trap and duck shooting for the first time, others had hunted before with their fathers.

Frank Drake and his son Brian, Salina, heard about the school from a neighbor who had attended the year before. The neighbors attended the school together this year.

"Brian is getting at the age where he wants to shoot," Drake said. "I want him to learn the right way."

"I wish they had something like this when I was a kid," Drake said. "You tend to develop bad habits when you learn on your own; therefore, emphasize the safety first," he said. "It's better for them to know than not to know."

The boys had a beginner's unknowing look of confidence when stepping up to trap shoot. A last glance at their father's proud faces gave them the determination to hit the clay target which would soon fly steadily above their poised guns.

The fathers always had a gleam of pride in their eyes, regardless if their boys hit the skeet on target or not. A pat on the back with a reassuring "good job," kept the boys' confidence high.

Drake said this is good preparation for his son's hunter's safety course. He plans to buy his son a gun, after he passes the hunter safety course, to encourage him, he said.

Another father-son pair had been hunting together, but like the other fathers, David Adkins wanted his boy to learn the safety of shooting a gun and basic hunting rules.

Adkins and his son Eric traveled from Holton to participate in the school for their first time.

"Eric is real safety conscious," Adkins said.

This showed in the careful way he handled his gun prior to shooting. "The most important thing, I think, is safety," Eric said.

Hunting is obviously a team sport, best when between just father and son.

"Usually just my dad and I go hunting,"

'Like father, like son'

Spencer Tomb, associate professor of biology, gives instructions on duck hunting to students near a pond at Rock Springs Ranch. Tomb was a volunteer instructor at the Hunting, Fishing and Fur Harvesting School October 10-11. The group took shelter from the bitter north wind among the cattails along the bank of the pond.

Eric said. "I like to hunt quail and pheasant."

After a session at the trap shooting station the group moved to the duck pond to get a few tips on duck calling and dog training.

The group settled along the banks of the pond, hoping somehow the bank would block the wind.

"Calling (duck calling) is not that hard; it's kind of fun," said Spencer Tomb, associate professor division of biology, and volunteer instructor. "You want to sound exactly like they do."

After demonstrating the various types of duck calls, Tomb then turned the calls over to the students. By the time the students figured out which end to blow on the calls, they had a sound similar to that of a duck.

The final station for the avid hunters was the turkey shoot. The hunters arrived, anxious to have a gun in their hands again.

A turkey target was set along the bank of a hill, and the fathers took their turns at the target first.

The fathers could be seen above the tall grass which covered the wooded area, but when the boys took their turns, all that was visible was the top of their heads and the barrels of the guns.

rels of the guns.

After taking their turns, the boys proudly displayed their target, almost as if they had actually brought home the bird. Comparing notes like storytelling old men, the boys pointed to the exact mark where they "got" the bird.

Turkey-shooting instructors, Gene Brehm, Department of Wildlife and Parks, and John Garrard, Kansas 4-H Shooting Sports, volunteered their day to teach the boys about the sport of turkey hunting.

"We want to teach them good habits before they learn bad ones," Brehm said.

Children ranging in ages 12 to 18 attended classes that included training and experiences in bow hunting, dog training, fishing, methods of harvesting fur bearers, upland game and duck hunting, shooting techniques and game calling.

The classes were not to certify or issue licenses, only to give safety and hunting tips from various instructors in the hunting field.

Upon leaving, all agreed, there's no place like home. Taking with them the skills they learned and the memories of the weekend they spent together, "just me and dad."

RIGHT: John Garrard, instructor from the 4-H Shooting Sports state commission, celebrates after 11-year-old Jeff Calhoun, Salina, hits a clay target at the trap range. BELOW: Fathers and sons walk back to camp after a day of shooting, game calling and dog training.

Turkey-shooting instructor Gene Brehm, Department of Wildlife and Parks, helps a student with the proper shooting position.

Story by Susan Staggenborg

Photography by Brad Fanshier

Collegian/Chris Assaf

Stacking up for spirit

Competing in the opening round of the Body Building competition Thursday in the Union Courtyard, members of the Sigma Nu fraternity and Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority build a pyramid. Most groups also competed in "Yell Like Hell" later in the afternoon.

Strike

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1 and management negotiator Jack Donlan ended without accord on a back-to-play agreement. Many player reps claimed they had been told by the union that management might waive the 1 p.m. Wednesday deadline to report for this week's games.

"We sent the players back. They are ready to play, they want to play," Upshaw said.

When they arrived, however, they found management telling them, in effect, "thanks, but no thanks," and most left as quickly as they had arrived.

The fallout from management's hard line was immediate.

"Some people are very, very bitter," said Harry Carson, captain of the Super Bowl champion New York Giants, one of the many teams to walk in, then walk out when they found they wouldn't be paid. "And it's not just here, it's across the league."

"It seems kind of petty," said Eric Dickerson, the star running back of the Los Angeles Rams.

Much of the chaos stemmed from the union's apparent misunderstanding that the owners would adjust the deadline.

B'nai B'rith Hillel
at K-State

invites you to Shabbat Services
Tonight 8 p.m.
Manhattan
Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave.

Simchat Torah Celebration

"Purple and White"
Swirl CONES and CUPS
at

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

50% DISCOUNT

(on purple & white swirl cones and cups excluding waffle cones)

SATURDAY
to Everyone Wearing
Something Purple!

Enjoy the taste of Ice Cream but with one-fifth the fat and half the calories

GO CATS!

We'll be cheering you on to victory against Oklahoma

FREE SAMPLES
EVERY TIME
YOU COME IN

Open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sunday
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers, Aggieville

So what's cookin'
for Sunday Brunch

Choose your favorite kind of omelette
cooked right in front of you.
Enjoy our all-you-can-eat brunch from 10:30 a.m.-2 p.m.
only $6.95

University Club
Restaurant & Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS

Pre-Enrollment Advising
Begins Monday, October 19
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261

Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority at the time of pre-enrollment.

HOMECOMING
87 Here Come The Cats!

Homecoming Day Schedule

9 a.m. Parade
1:30 p.m. KSU vs. OU Football Game
Halftime Presentation of Ambassadors
Spirit Competition
Winners Announced

TODAY:

Last day of ambassador voting!

CAMPUS
RENT-ALL

Mon.-Thurs. 10 a.m.-8 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 10 a.m.-9 p.m.
Sun. Noon-5 p.m.
PHONE: 539-8786
1122 Laramie Street
Manhattan, Kansas 66502

HALLOWEEN VIDEO HORROR MOVIE
SPECIAL

RENT TWO VIDEO TAPES DURING OCTOBER
AND GET A HORROR MOVIE RENTAL OF YOUR CHOICE
NO MEMBERSHIP REQUIRED *This offer not valid with any other.
Daily, weekly, monthly rental on TVs, VCRs, stereos, typewriters & appliances

GOLD RING SALE

$60 OFF 18K
$40 OFF 14K
$20 OFF 10K

Jostens Gold Sale. For one week only. Order and save on the gold ring of your choice.

JOSTENS
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING

K-State Union Bookstore
Thursday Oct. 15, Friday Oct. 16,
and Monday Oct. 19
10 am-4 pm
Deposit of $20.00 Required

TGIF!

Homecoming Celebration
Join the Alumni this Weekend
FREE Sandwich Bar at 11 a.m.

Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues.
Next Week

James Lee Reeves
& Steve Marmel

RUSHWACKER'S
THE FUNDRIKERY

531 N. Manhattan

539-4321, 539-9727

Rough schedule kicks off with No. 1 OU

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

Without a doubt, there isn't a college football team in the country with a tougher schedule than K-State will face in the next three weeks.

Beginning Saturday against Oklahoma at KSU Stadium, the Wildcats will meet the Sooners, Nebraska at Lincoln and Oklahoma State at Stillwater, respectively. All three are nationally ranked and part of the only seven undefeated, untied NCAA Division I schools.

"I don't know if any team will play any three tougher games in a row, particularly a team that's 0-5 and has been struggling. It's going to be a tremendous test of our character to hang in there and try to improve," Coach Stan Parrish said.

K-State, 0-5 overall and 0-1 in the Big Eight Conference, is coming off a 34-10 loss to Missouri at Columbia. Oklahoma, 5-0 and 1-0, is ranked No. 1 in the nation and destroyed Texas, 44-9, last week at Dallas. So what can Parrish say about the Homecoming matchup Saturday against the Sooners?

Parrish is just telling his players to do their best and to try to stay healthy.

"I've been coaching for 20 some years now, and I think (Oklahoma is) the most talented football team I've ever seen," Parrish said. "They have everything in every position. They have great depth, great speed and great strength. They have a legitimate shot at winning the national championship."

Kickoff is 1:30 p.m. Saturday at KSU Stadium.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said his Sooners would prepare for this game "the same as if it was for Oklahoma State or Nebraska." But he made it publically known a few years back that Manhattan isn't his favorite stop on the conference tour. And he's finding it hard to get motivated for Saturday.

"Obviously (K-State is) struggling. They're short on talent compared to a lot of teams in the Big Eight," said Switzer of the team that has now lost 10 straight. "I can't make someone out of something they're not."

Oklahoma is a team loaded with talent. "They have 17 pro prospects on their team. That should tell you something right there," Parrish said.

With the best offensive line Switzer said he has ever coached, the Sooners and their wishbone offense have scored 262 points in their first five games — the most in the same time span since the 1917 OU squad recorded 344. Oklahoma leads the nation in rushing offense (432.2 yards per game), total offense (529.0), and scoring offense (52.4).

Though Missouri rushed for 408 yards against the 'Cats with its wishbone attack, Parrish said there's no comparison.

"(OU's) wishbone is the best in the country," Parrish said.

He also said there is no comparing OU to the last Top 20 team K-State played when the 'Cats lost 38-13 to Iowa the third game of the season.

"This team is vastly superior to the University of Iowa," Parrish said.

Take your pick from OU's bevy of offensive standouts, but it all starts with junior quarterback Jamelle Hollieway. He's already the Sooners' all-time leading rusher with 2,093 yards. In games he's started, Oklahoma is 26-1.

If OU has to pass the ball, it looks to All-American candidate Keith Jackson. The 6-foot-3, 248-pound tight end averages 28.9 yards per reception with just eight receptions.

On defense, Oklahoma tops the national statistics in total defense (170.2 yards per game) and scoring defense (5.2 points per outing). The Sooners have only surrendered 26 points this season and picked off seven passes last week against the Longhorns.

Leading OU defensively is the secondary, featuring strong safety David Vickers — a transplanted quarterback — and free safety Rickey Dixon. Linebacker Dante Jones, who has had the almost insurmountable task of replacing Brian Bosworth, tops the Sooners in tackles with 47.

One positive note for K-State is that only one defensive back, Willie Halliburton (strained knee), will miss Saturday's game. Quarterback Gary Swim (shoulder separation) and defensive end Mark Austin (bruised shoulder) went down with injuries against Missouri, but are available for the matchup with Oklahoma.

K-State's highlights from last week include: the return of wide receiver John Williams (four catches, 87 yards); Tony Jordan's best rushing performance of the season (105); and linebacker Lorne Whittle's team-leading 20 tackles. He previously had six stops for the season.

NOTES: Estimated attendance for Saturday is 25,000...OU leads the series 57-11-4 and has won 16 straight against the 'Cats...K-State's last win against Oklahoma was in 1970 in Norman.

Staff/Andy Nelson

Much of K-State's scoring could come from kicker Mark Porter Saturday when the 'Cats play the Oklahoma Sooners. Porter enters the game with a flawless record connecting on seven-of-seven extra points and five-of-five field goal tries.

Placekicker's flawless percentage could be tested against Sooners

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

The Oklahoma Sooners' defensive unit led the nation last year not only in media attention, but in six out of 11 categories.

Oklahoma is even stronger defensively this season and about the only hope of scoring for K-State in Saturday's homecoming contest may come from the foot of senior placekicker Mark Porter.

Porter enters this weekend's contest with a flawless record. He has connected on seven-of-seven extra point kicks and five-of-five field goal tries. Porter, though, explained that kicking is as much luck as it is confidence in his ability.

"This year I'm more comfortable in what I'm doing," he said. "My concentration is better than what it has ever been, but to have not missed any field goals is pretty lucky also."

Porter admitted he has become a different type of kicker than he has been the past few years.

"I went to some camps this summer and learned that I have just one job to do and one job only and that is to kick the ball through the uprights," Porter said. "Last season and the seasons before I wanted to do so much for the team that it messed up my concentration and I would miss my kicks."

Porter said the losing streak the Wildcat's are going through doesn't affect his concentration.

"No. Like I said, 'I have one job and one job only to do and that is to put the ball through the uprights,'" he said.

Kicking the ball pretty much comes naturally to Porter. Porter was born in Kansas and then moved to California and quickly got into the sport of soccer.

"I remember playing soccer from second through eighth grade," he said. "Then when we moved back to Kansas I was getting ready to enter the ninth grade. I saw some guys on the football field trying to kick some field goals and I said to myself 'Shoot, I can do that better than they can.'"

"I started launching some long range shots and the coach came over and asked me to be on the team," he added.

As for a certain style, Porter tries to emulate the Kansas City Chiefs' placekicker Nick Lowery.

"He concentrates and has the perfect form for a field goal kicker," Porter said. "I got a chance to meet him this summer at a field goal kicking camp and watched him very closely."

Porter's longest field goal was a 42-yarder against Tulsa, Oct. 3.

Ruggers travel to KC for tournament

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The K-State rugby squad will field two 25-man teams at The Heart of America Invitational Rugby Tournament to be held Saturday and Sunday at Swope Park in Kansas City.

The K-State A-side will play the St. Louis

Bombers from St. Louis, Mo., while the Wildcats' B-side will play the University of Kansas' A-side. K-State has never played against the St. Louis squad, which is the St. Louis area club-side champion.

The top three seeds in the 29-team field include The Kansas City Blues, The Kansas City Rugby Club and the St. Louis Falcons. Teams from seven states will be represented at the tournament.

"We look pretty strong for the weekend," said Dave Todd, club president. "We are going to lose three of our players who are in the military because they have to be in the field and Mike Powers, our team captain, will be out with a shoulder injury that he suffered in last week's match, but we should still be able to field two competitive teams."

Spikers try to keep Ahearn streak alive

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

Trying to keep a five-game home winning streak alive, the K-State volleyball team will face two Big Eight Conference rivals today and Saturday at Ahearn Field House.

K-State, 11-5 overall and 2-2 in the Big Eight, faces the University of Colorado at 7:30 tonight in Ahearn. In their last meeting earlier this season, K-State defeated Colorado 15-6, 15-13, 15-10 in Boulder. Colorado, 4-10 overall and 0-3 in conference play, is looking forward to the rematch with K-State.

"Statistically, we beat Kansas State, but we made some mistakes that took us out of the match," Colorado volleyball coach Brad Saindon said. "K-State beat Kansas in five games and I'm sure they'll give us a battle."

Jennifer Sherlock and Stephanie Salgado both had their best match of the year against Kansas State. They're both coming along quickly and have contributed a lot to this team," Saindon said.

Being undefeated in Ahearn, K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson is also looking forward to the match and knows how important it is to win at home in the tough conference race.

"It's tough to do well in the Big Eight if you can't win at home," Nelson said. "Most of the conference teams have been winning at home. Nebraska is the only team winning on the road."

"Colorado is going to be a tougher team this time. I think they feel they are better than when they played against us before. It should be a closer match," Nelson said.

Colorado is led by Tina Murray and

Lisa Soulliere. Murray leads the team in kills (128), service aces (28) and digs (153). Soulliere is the team's top blocker with 47 total blocks. She has 55 kills and a .138 hitting percentage, which is second-best on the team, behind Sherlock's .154 percentage.

After playing the University of Kansas on Friday night, Iowa State will travel to Manhattan to take on the Wildcats at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Ahearn.

The Cyclones, 12-7 overall and 3-1 in conference play, edged by K-State 15-13, 15-11, 17-15 in Ames, Iowa earlier in the season. Iowa State lost its first conference match last Tuesday to seventh-ranked Nebraska in three games.

"Iowa State is going to be a kind of scary match," Nelson said. "They look so much like us. Our offenses and defenses are similar. It should be quite close between us."

"They (Iowa State) beat us earlier in Ames. We need to win this so we will at least split with them," Nelson said.

Iowa State is led by senior Linda Evans. She is ranked third in the Big Eight in kills (279) and second in digs (253). She also leads the team with 26 aces and is the second most accurate hitter on the team with a .279 percentage. Dana Burson leads the team in blocking with 85 blocks, which is the third-highest total in the conference. She has 102 kills and 83 digs.

Wildcat player Shawnee Call is K-State's offensive answer to Iowa State's leader, Evans. Call leads the 'Cats with 235 kills and 191 digs. Call is hitting .301. K-State player Kristi Jacquart leads the team with 50 service aces and is the top percentage hitter with a .342 percentage.

Sports Briefly

J.V. basketball tryout scheduled

Tryouts for the 1987-88 K-State Wildcat junior varsity basketball squad will take place Monday, Oct. 19 in the Ahearn Field House gymnasium area.

Any male full-time student interested in trying out should report to the gym accordingly, dressed for basketball practice.

Soccer sees action in Iowa tourney

K-State's men's soccer team will be in action this weekend, as it travels to the Northern Iowa soccer tournament in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The Wildcats will be a part of a 12-team field, including teams such as the University of Kansas, the University of Missouri, the University of Minnesota, the University of Nebraska, the University of Iowa and Iowa State University.

Last year, K-State took second place in the tournament and the 'Cats record stands at 3-2 on the season.

Women's golf team in second place

The K-State women's golf team finds itself second among a three-team field after the first 18 holes of the Wichita State Invitational being played at the par 74, 5,900-yard WSU Golf Course.

K-State carded an 18-hole team total of 267 which is 14 shots behind first-day leader The Wichita State University, which fired a score of 253. The University of Missouri-Kansas City is in third at 297.

Individually for K-State, freshman Chris Adams had an 84 to top the team. Adams' total also places her second in the medalist race, behind first-round leader Christy Hedrick of Wichita State who carded an 81.

Other K-State scores included Jill Zientara 91, Keli Blake 92, Beth Holmberg 99 and Lisa Lugar 105.

The final round of 18 holes is slated to begin Saturday at 9 a.m.

Tennis team to host 'Big Reds'

The K-State women's tennis team returns to action today and Saturday with two key Big Eight Conference matches slated.

Today at 9 a.m. the Wildcats meet Nebraska at the Washburn Complex Tennis Courts. Then, on Saturday, K-State entertains Oklahoma in another 9 a.m. start.

In its last action of the fall on Sunday, K-State cruised past Creighton by a 9-0 score.

Wayne Supak, graduate in mechanical engineering, demonstrates the wheat hardness tester to the State Legislature's Joint Committee on Economic Development.

Meeting

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Donald Rathbone, dean of the College of Engineering, told the committee that now is an ideal time to complete plans for an entrepreneurial incubator facility.

The incubator will act as a forum for the development of ideas and technology for industry.

"If the state of Kansas is serious about economic development, they must fund things like this incubator," said Rathbone.

Kenneth Klabunde, head of the department of chemistry, said the incubator is a way to get his research from laboratory to the factory and make it more attractive to businesses.

Klabunde is researching the single-atom chemistry of metal in commercial processes and its uses in industry and manufacturing.

Faculty members from the departments of agronomy, biology, grain science and industry, and community development in the division of cooperative extension also gave presentations to the committee.

Lowman cited a chemistry and biochemistry study that has the potential to revolutionize the refining of petroleum based fuels. It could increase production savings to the United States and Kansas industry.

These research programs are mostly funded by extramural funds, he said.

Tension, interest rates elevate causing stock prices to slide

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Interest rates edged higher Thursday as the White House tried to quell nervousness in the financial markets that might choke off the nation's economic growth.

The lenders who have sent interest rates soaring lately appeared unconvinced after Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said inflation fears were "overblown" and predicted interest rates would fall.

The stock market was not reassured. Stock traders, who dislike high interest rates, dumped their holdings late in the day as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks lost 57.61 points to close at 2,355.09.

The big loss, fifth largest in the history of the index, came just a day after the biggest point loss in the Dow's history, a 95.46-point decline.

High interest rates hurt the economy by raising the cost of all kinds of consumer and business borrowing. If the recent surge in rates continues — something many economists doubt — it could push the economy into recession.

"All of this uncertainty is absolutely awful for business planning," said Michael Niemira, an economist for PaineWebber Inc. in New York.

Chemical Bank of New York raised its prime lending rate half a percent to 9 1/2 percent. None of the other big New York banks followed suit immediately.

Another key interest rate edged higher after breaking into double digits on Wednesday for the first time in two years.

The yield on the 30-year Treasury bond climbed to 10.18 percent by 3:30 p.m. EDT from 10.16 percent late Wednesday.

Treasury bond yields are determined by the price that lenders — that is, buyers of bonds — are willing to pay for the fixed-income investments. Low prices mean high yields.

The upset in the financial markets began Wednesday after the Commerce Department reported a higher-than-expected trade deficit in August. That raised fears about the sturdiness of the dollar and kicked off sharp declines on stocks and bonds.

Nervous investors fear that a sharp decline in the dollar in response to the trade deficit would raise import prices and thus push up inflation.

Interest rates soared Wednesday as bond owners dumped their holdings at fire-sale prices.

Following bonds down, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks suffered its biggest point drop ever, losing more than 95 points. Thursday the market was down only slightly at 3:30 p.m., but slipped further later.

Traders are supposed to respond to changes in the economy, but they can cause changes, too, especially when their nervousness pushes interest rates higher than they would otherwise be.

TV Listings

By TV Data

FRIDAY OCTOBER 16, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scoby Doo Finestones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00 " "	TBA	" "	My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook Horse Mag.	Little House on the Prairie
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Women's Volleyball: Pro	Movie: "Born to Dance"
10:00 Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore Dick Van	Body Electric Africans	Andy Griffith Soap	Vintage Baseball Film	" "
11:00 Password Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Painting	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News 30 Days of Our	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	NHL Hockey: Boston Bruins	Movie: "Columbus: The
1:00 Lives Another World	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Mystery/Lord Peter Wimsey	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	at Los Angeles Kings	Forbin Project
2:00 Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobles Zoo	Kitchen Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	Arm Wrestling	Tom & Jerry
3:00 Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scoby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	Championship Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00 3's Company	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravest	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravest	Water Skiing	Munsters Laverne
5:00 News NBC News	News CBS News	News ABC News	Sesame Street	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	SportsLook Magic Years	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00 News Wheel-Fortune	News Truth/Conseq.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	SportsCenter Magic Years	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00 Rags to Riches	Beauty and the Beast	Full House I Married	Friday the Thirteenth	Wash. Week Wall St. Wk.	Movie: "The Eiger Sancel"	NFL Great NFL Great	Movie: "Earthquake"
8:00 Miami Vice	Dallas	Max Headroom	Movie: "Jaws"	MacLaughlin Pacific	" "	" "	" "
9:00 Private Eye	Falcon Crest	20/20	" "	Innovation Market	News INN News	World Series Scuba World	" "
10:00 News Tonight Show	News Cheers	News M*A*S*H	Late Show	Wild America Business Rpt.	H'mooner Magnum, P.I.	Harness Racetrack SportsCenter	Night Tracks: Power Play
11:00 Ent. Tonight	Stephen King's World	B. Buddies Nightline	Movie: "Dra-cula"	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie: "The Sign-Off"	AWA Wrestling	Night Tracks
12:00 David Letterman	Solid Gold in Concert	700 Club	" "	" "	" "	Auto Racing: Rally of the	" "

SATURDAY OCTOBER 17, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Gummi Bears Smurfs	Hello Kitty Mighty Mouse	Care Bears My Little Pony	Kidsongs LovelyLocks	" "	U.S. Farm Report	SportsCenter Fishin' Hole	Bonanza
8:00 " "	Muppet Babies	Pet Monster Puppies	Popples Get Along	Adventure Adventure	Charlando People-People	Bill Dance	National Geographic Explorer
9:00 Fraggle Alvin	Pee-wee Play. Viesnaries	Little Wizard Ghostbusters	Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig	Cliffhangers Old House	Minority Busi-Movie: "Char-lie Chan in Egypt"	Tractor Pull Magic Years	NWA Super Bouts
10:00 ALF C. Power	Popeye & Son Teen Wolf	Flintstones Bugs	Visionaries Power	Motorweek Animals	lie Chan in Egypt	Sports SportsCenter	NBA Super Bouts
11:00 Tom & Jerry Stan Parrish	Storybreak Bob Valasente	Coll. Football College Football	Wonder Woman	Painting V. Garden	Soul Train	Saturday: Col-Women's	Pre-Game College Football
12:00 Can't Take It Wild Kingdom	News Your Question	ball: Iowa at Michigan	Movie: "King Kong vs. Godzilla"	Sesame Street	Kung Fu	Bowling: AMF Virginia Open	ball: Teams to be Announced
1:00 Control Siskel & Ebert	College Football: Wisconsin	" "	Star Trek	Bodywatch Wonderful	at Notre Dame	Drag Racing: IHRA U.S.	" "
2:00 " "	" "	College Football: Southern California	Battlestar Galactica	Collectors Calligraphy	" "	College Football: Teams to	World of Audubon
3:00 " "	" "	Cal at Washington	Buck Rogers	Focus/Society Focus/Society	Good Times	be Announced	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies
4:00 " "	Back Yard CBS News	" "	Black Sheep Squadron	Health Century	Bustin' Loose Charles in	" "	World Championship Wrestling
5:00 Hee Haw	Mama It's a Living	Guinness Rec. B. Buddies	Star Trek: Next Gener.	Lawrence Welk	It's a Living Mama	College Football: Teams to	" "
6:00 227	Sister Sam Everything's	World Series: Game One	Werewolf Beans Baxter	Wonder-Works: The	Stellar Awards	be Announced	Movie: "Car-bine Williams"
7:00 Golden Girls Amen	Leg Work	" "	Chance Duet	Austin City Limits	" "	" "	" "
8:00 Hunter	West 57th	" "	Rich & Famous	Country Ex-Cliffhangers	News INN News	College Football: Rediscove	Cousteau's Rediscove
9:00 News Saturday	News Star Trek: News	" "	The Sheriff Friday the	Movie: "Lust for Life"	H's Heroes Movie: "The State at"	ball: San Jose State at	Night Tracks: Chartbusters
10:00 Night Live	Next Gener. At the Movies	Movie: "A Star is Born"	Thirteenth Solid Gold in	Penn & Teller	Bridges at Tokyo-Ri	Fresno State	Night Tracks
11:00 Fri. the 13th Series	" "	" "	Concert NCTV Hour	Sign-Off	SCTV	College Foot-	" "

SUNDAY OCTOBER 18, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 James Ken-nedy	Jerry Falwell	Jimmy Swag-gart	Superfriends	" "	R. Schuller Heritage-Faith	SportsCenter PGA Tour	Tom & Jerry and Friends
8:00 L. Lundstrum	Discovery Herald-Truth	Kenneth Copeland	All Star Wrestling	Sesame Street	Sunday Mass Popeye	SpeedWeek Racing	Cont'd Andy Griffith
9:00 Schuller Jimmy Swag-	Oral Roberts Larry Jones	It Is Written Week With	Wild, Wild West	Mister Rogers Special	Visionaries Power	Sportstalk This Week in	Good News Movie: "The Birds"
10:00 gart World Tom.	CBS News Sunday Morn-	David Brinkley Business	Black Sheep Squadron	Sesame Street	Superman Lone Ranger	Sports SportsCenter	" "
11:00 Control NFL Live	ing NFL Today	All Star Wrestling	Star Trek: Next Gener.	Wonder-Works: The	Cisco Kid Rawhide	Sunday Clay Pigeon	" "
12:00 NFL Football: NBC Regional	NFL Football: New Orleans	Movie: "The Deflection of the Slave Girl"	Movie: "The Slave Girl"	Washington Wall St. Wk.	TBA	Bowling: High Rollers Tour-	Movie: "Car-bine Williams"
1:00 Coverage Saints at Chicago Bears	Simsa Ku-dirka	WWF Wrestling	Movie: "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid"	One on One Interests	Movie	Formula One Grand Prix of	" "
2:00 " "	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "
3:00 NFL Football: NBC Regional	TBA Pvt. Benjamin	Cousteau's Channel Is-	the Mermaid	One on One Interests	Movie	Formula One Grand Prix of	" "
4:00 Coverage Eight Is Enough	" "	lands: Human Tide	Movie: "Father Goose"	Vintage Years Vistas	" "	Mexico Hydroplane	Sanford NWA Super
5:00 " "	CBS News NEWS	News Football	Goose	Bradshaw on the Family	Movie	Racing: Silver Sports	Bouts Leave/Beaver
6:00 Our House	60 Minutes	Disney Movie: Shaggy Dog	21 Jump Street	Wild America Nature	" "	NFL Prime Time	Movie: "Sha-mus"
7:00 Family Ties	Murder, She Wrote	World Series: Game Two	With Children In Prison	Nature	Twilight Zone At the Movies	NFL Theatre: Fabulous Fil-	" "
8:00 Movie: "Eight Is Enough: A Love"	Movie: "Con-spiracy of Love"	" "	Tracey Ullman Mr. President	M. Theatre: The Bretts	Star Search	Billiards: Nine-Ball Team	National Geographic Explorer
9:00 Family Reunion	" "	" "	Marblehead	Great Perf.	News	Challenge, mixed doubles	plorer
10:00 News Sports M.	News Marblehead	" "	Mama Hardcastle	TV Classics	Darkside Lou Grant	SportsCenter Sunday	Sports Page Jerry Falwell
11:00 Entertainment This Week	Rich & Famous	Movie: Two on a Guillot-	Dating Game	Sm'l Planet Tony Brown	Movie: The Two Mrs. Car-	NFL Prime Time	World Tom.
12:00 Baseball Gene Scott	Sign-Off	" "	Lou Grant	Sign-Off	" "	NFL Great Sportstalk	Jimmy Swag-gart

Religious Directory

Manhattan Jewish Congregation
Shabbat Services 8 p.m.
1st and 3rd Friday
Religious School
9:30 Sundays
Rides Available
Sponsor B'nai B'rith Hillel at K-State
1509 Wreath Ave. (temple)
539-8462
Campus Adviser,
David Margolies 532-6154

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
801 Leavenworth
537-0518
Worship 8:30 & 11 a.m.
Church School 9:30 a.m.
• College Outreach (Tuesdays, K-State Union)
• Weekday programs for youth
• Nursery available
Senior Minister
Rev. Dr. Philip S. Gittings III

The Assembly
Manhattan's First Assembly of God
Sunday Praise Hours
10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.
• Sunday School—9:30 a.m.
• Collegiate Bible Class
• Transportation available
Office 537-7633
Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave.
Mike Wall, Pastor. 537-7967

GREAT COMMISSION
Church of Manhattan
Campus Bible Study
Sunday Worship
10:30 a.m. Sundays
at University Inn

Come Share the Spirit!
Lutheran Campus Ministry
Worship 11 a.m. Study 9:45 a.m.
Sundays Danforth Chapel (campus)
Lutheran Student Movement 5 p.m.
Sunday - Lutheran Student Center
Don Fallon, Pastor
1021 Denison 1539-4451

WILSONVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH
WORSHIP 8 and 10:30 a.m.
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Kennedy's Classroom
Sun. Eve. Worship 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd, and 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups)
6 p.m. 2nd and 4th Sundays
Office at 2607 Allison Ave.
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)
9:45 a.m. Church School
8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services
John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

STUDENTS WELCOME! COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH
8:30 a.m. First Worship Service
9:30 a.m. Sunday School
11 a.m. Second Worship Service
6 p.m. Training Hour
7 p.m. Evening Worship
2221 College Heights Rd. 537-7744

LIVING WORD CHURCH
Sunday 10 a.m.
Wednesday 7:30 p.m.
Campus Group
776-0940
(1 mile south on Hwy. 177)

BLUE VALLEY MEMORIAL UNITED METHODIST
Sunday School 9:15 a.m.
Morning Worship 10:30 a.m.
835 Church Ave. 539-8790

Trinity Presbyterian Church
Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
• Nursery Provided
• Handicap Accessible
• Rides Available
Pastor James Cramer
1110 College Ave. 539-3921

Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m.
Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4079
FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Sunday School — 9:45 a.m.
(Collegiate Class)
10th & Poyntz 537-8532

First Baptist Church
SUNDAY WORSHIP 11 a.m.
CHURCH SCHOOL 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hills Rd. 539-8001

ST. LUKE'S LUTHERAN CHURCH
WORSHIP Sat. 6 p.m.
Sun. 8 and 10:45 a.m.
SUNDAY SCHOOL 9:30 a.m.
COLLEGIATE FELLOWSHIP as scheduled
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

St. Isidore's
Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses
9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday - 5 p.m.
Daily Mass - 4:30 p.m.
711 Denison 539-7496

Crestview Christian Church
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Collegiate Sunday School 9:30
776-3798
4301 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan
former Luckey High School Juliette St. and Piene
Worship 9 a.m.
Sunday School 10:15 a.m.
776-0259 Nursery provided 537-8526

CHRISTIAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
A Ministry Of The Church Of Christ
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Classes 9:30 a.m.
& Wed. 7:30 p.m.
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Church School—9:45 a.m.
Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.
Disciples of Christ
115 Courthouse Plaza 776-8790

COME AND WORSHIP! MANHATTAN CHURCH OF THE NAZARENS
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Worship Services 10:50 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Study & Prayer Wed. 7 p.m.
10th & Fremont 537-4936

College Avenue United Methodist Church
welcomes college-aged students
Sundays School discussion topic during October
SEXUALITY and CHRISTIANITY:
How do they fit together?
9:30-10:30 a.m. every Sunday
1609 College Avenue COME JOIN US!!

Kedzie 103

ClassAds

532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128 (11f)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. We desperately need tutors in Algebra. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (35-39)

DO YOU let people spend your money without asking you first? That's what Student Senate is doing with $1.2 million of student funds. Sign the Holton Hall referendum petition to give the students the right to vote on this issue. Call 532-7777 for details. (38-42)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED

ONE BEDROOM, available Jan. 1, water and trash paid, less than one block from campus, $275 per month, must assume lease. 539-1686. (35-39)

NICE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments. Very close to campus. Available Nov. 1. Please call 776-9124. (37f)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (21f)

NICE, LARGE one- and two-bedroom apartments in Westloop area. Please call 776-9124. (37f)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE

1978 CAPRICE Classic, $400. Call 539-2776. (36-39)

1979 GRAN Prix L.J. full power, tilt, cruise, AM/FM cassette, excellent condition. $2,950. 776-8488. (37-39)

VW 1600 cc Bug engine, complete, 1600 cc rebuilt shortblock, IRS Bug transmission, import auto repairs at J & L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, St. George. (38-51)

1983 CHEV Celebrity, excellent condition, $4,000, must see to appreciate. Call 537-0881. (38-42)

COMPUTERS

APPLE 2C-128K, min monitor and keyboard, two drives, Imagewriter printer, all software included. Call Jason, 539-2321. (38-40)

EMPLOYMENT

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write J.C. P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

EXPERIENCED COOK for group of 60 individuals. For more information or to set up an interview, please call 539-8680 after 6 p.m. or 537-4495 and leave message. (35-39)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts. Others. Information (504) 641-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-39)

NATIVE KANSAS family seeks full-time nanny/ housekeeper to live-in from January to June 1988 in Washington, D.C. area. Caring for two-year-old boy. Transportation, salary, room and board included. Female, non-smoker, send resume to: Mr. and Mrs. Cab Grayson, 4751 N. 34th Road, Arlington, VA. 22207. Call (703) 241-3746. (35-39)

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South Padre Island, Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-262-6221. (35-44)

WE SEEK entrepreneur business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

FASHION SALES OPPORTUNITY

MAURICE'S

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

If you are enthusiastic, ambitious, have sales experience and are looking for an opportunity in fashion retail, you will want to join our new Maurice's in Manhattan Town Center.

We are looking for part-time sales associates who are able to work mornings, afternoons and evenings. Ten to 30 hours per week and a competitive salary and benefits package.

Apply in person at Maurice's, 116 South 4th St. EEOC.

NETWORK MARKETING! The wave of the future! You choose earnings and hours, 776-3759 after 6 p.m. (37-41)

BABYSITTER NEEDED immediately in my home for 15-month-old. Light housekeeping and some meal preparation. Good health, non-smoker, references required. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and some evenings. Call 539-4915, leave message. (38-42)

RETAIL SALES clerk for afternoons and weekends. Sales experience preferred. Bring resume to 1212 Moro, Aggieville. (37-39)

MANHATTAN

TOWN CENTER

is looking for full-time and part-time help in their food court. Apply in Management Office behind Service Area B. $3.50 per hour

NEED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion! Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 East Poyntz, 9-9. (39-47)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service office. We offer student pay plan, job variety and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat, wear appropriate attire and be able to obtain a Food Handler's card. (38-44)

SELL AD space, earn big $, experienced only, call Scott at College Design 1 (314) 227-0082, leave name, number and university. (39-40)

TACO BELL needs friendly, energetic people to work lunch or dinner shifts. Apply from 1-5 p.m., 1155 Westport. (39-40)

GARAGE AND YARD SALES

SEARS Two-drawer metal file cabinet, metal TV cart, wicker hamper, four-drawer wood chest, two large pieces denim luggage (softside—Bloomington's best—used once). Art, students, canvas stretchers 12" thru 35", wall system (flexible), miscellaneous other. Saturday, 9 a.m., 1834 Fairchild. (38-39)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

FOUR BEDROOMS, two baths, double-car garage patio with gas grill. One block west of campus. 776-6882 or 776-2373. (35-39)

THE AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

This space provided as a public service.

THREE-BEDROOM, unfurnished, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. No pets. Available now. Call 539-5404. (37-41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

TWO-BEDROOM Great Lakes, includes appliances, washer, dryer. $4,500. 537-7873. (30-39)

NICE 1981 Redman mobile, 14 x 70, three bedrooms, central air, ceiling fan, big deck. Call 539-7103. (36-39)

LOST AND FOUND

LOST: CALICO cat at Lawrence or Topeka Hardee's rest area on I-70 Oct. 4th. No front claws. Short tummy hair from spraying. Answers to "Abby." 537-0646. (32-39)

FOUND: BICYCLE—Identify and pay for this ad. 537-1703. (37-39)

LOST: WOMAN's gold ring with small diamond, lost Sunday afternoon somewhere between Seaton and Goodnow or Marlatt. Reward: Call Michelle, 532-5349. (37-39)

FOUND: OUTSIDE on steps at Willard, one long-sleeved button-down sweater with pockets. Check with business office in Willard. (39-41)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE

TYPEWRITER AND computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

Dollar A Bag

Outside Sale.

All Clothes inside

25% off

Paperbacks 5/$1,

Albums 3/$1

45s 5/$1, everything else in store 15% off

Fri. & Sat., 10/16 & 17

10-5

GRANDMA'S TRUNK

THRIFT SHOP

431 South 5th

(rain cancels outside sale)

FOR SALE, refrigerator: only been used one semester, perfect for dorm. 776-7986. (35-39)

1953 MERCEDES kit car, 20 meg disk with tape backup, popcorn cart, amber monitor, 1980 Arrow $800. 539-4121. (37-41)

DANCE,

DANCE,

DANCE

to the sounds

of

"Full House"

Well known local band

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment

17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Gregor's

Serving after the game family-style pan-fried chicken, seafood, prime rib, steaks, veal and more!

For reservations call

776-1234

Cuddleskin.

Luxurious satin on the outside

cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville

Open 7 days

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects

30% Off

327 Poyntz 776-7983

FRIDAY

Fried Chicken or

Spaghetti w/meat sauce

all you can eat

$3.95

with salad bar

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

The Chef

111 S. 4th

Musical Instruments

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

Junction City

Speech & Language Clinic

762-3350,

Manhattan 539-6377

The Chef

111 S. 4th

Musical Instruments

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

Cuddleskin.

Luxurious satin on the outside

cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville

Open 7 days

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects

30% Off

327 Poyntz 776-7983

FRIDAY

Fried Chicken or

Spaghetti w/meat sauce

all you can eat

$3.95

with salad bar

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

The Chef

111 S. 4th

Musical Instruments

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

Cuddleskin.

Luxurious satin on the outside

cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville

Open 7 days

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects

30% Off

327 Poyntz 776-7983

FRIDAY

Fried Chicken or

Spaghetti w/meat sauce

all you can eat

$3.95

with salad bar

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

The Chef

111 S. 4th

Musical Instruments

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

Cuddleskin.

Luxurious satin on the outside

cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville

Open 7 days

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects

30% Off

327 Poyntz 776-7983

FRIDAY

Fried Chicken or

Spaghetti w/meat sauce

all you can eat

$3.95

with salad bar

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

The Chef

111 S. 4th

Musical Instruments

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

Cuddleskin.

Luxurious satin on the outside

cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville

Open 7 days

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects

30% Off

327 Poyntz 776-7983

FRIDAY

Fried Chicken or

Spaghetti w/meat sauce

all you can eat

$3.95

with salad bar

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

The Chef

111 S. 4th

Musical Instruments

PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case, Peavy bass

amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)

Cuddleskin.

Luxurious satin on the outside

cuddly brushed cotton on the inside for warmth.

UNDERCOVER

1224 Moro, Aggieville

Open 7 days

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects

Regents

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
did the level of instruction, according to the survey, which involved 413 four-year public universities.

Concerns about selective admissions being a restriction to minority students appear largely unfounded according to the study, Welsh said.

An open admissions policy doesn't guarantee minorities more access to universities, he said. A 10 percent exemption from open admissions could be focused toward minorities.

Reagan said K-State would not use the 10 percent exemption solely to accommodate minority groups.

Stanley Z. Koplik, regents executive director, asked that the board consider altering its proposed college preparatory curriculum to allow a substitution for the two units of foreign language the regents were considering as a possible requirement. He suggested allowing the two units to be a combination of foreign language, computer science, or theory and appreciation of art or music.

Reagan said K-State submitted a separate proposal to the Regents which would require students who had not met their foreign language requirement in high school to make it up in their first year at college.

About 60-70 Kansas high schools wouldn't be able to immediately offer the two foreign language units. But they could meet the requirement if the proposed curriculum was amended, Koplik said.

Reagan said the Regents were moving in the direction of selective admissions but he did not know when they would make a decision on the proposal.

The new admissions standards, if adopted, would be phased in over four years, he said.

If a drop in enrollment was caused by the new admissions standards, Reagan said, it was uncertain if the Legislature would be willing to make up the difference from the state budget.

Representatives of faculty senates and the student bodies of the seven regents institutions expressed continued reservations about a change in admissions policies.

In other action, the Board of Regents voted to reduce its fiscal 1989 state general fund request by $8 million.

Crash

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

control tower, "We are in emergency," the news agency ANSA reported, adding that nothing else was heard from the plane.

News agencies and state-run RAI television quoted some officials as saying the plane apparently struck the 2,300-foot level of Mount Crezzo, near Lake Como. Local officials said the exact site had not been pinpointed.

"I heard a very loud noise, like a plane flying very low, and shortly thereafter a blast that shook the hotel," said Cinzia Barni, 25, daughter of the owner of the Italia Hotel. "I ran outside and a boy told me that he had seen a flash of light on the mountain."

At the Madonna Refuge, an inn at about 3,280 feet elevation in the vicinity of Mount Crezzo, proprietor Franco Villa said he was eating dinner with his family when they heard a loud noise. Running to the window, they saw "a ball of fire" on the mountain, followed by the sound of an explosion, he said.

The plane was carrying 34 passengers and three crewmembers, Panico said. He said the plane, an ATR 42, was on a special flight carrying mostly employees of a German firm.

ANSA said five passengers were believed to be Italian, while the others were believed to be German. The three crewmembers were Italian, it added, and were identified as Laine; co-pilot Pierluigi Lampronti and flight attendant Carla Cornegiani. Panico said no passenger list was immediately available.

The crash site was a sparsely populated area between the southern two forks of popular Lake Como, about 16 miles from the Swiss border.

Spokesmen for the fire departments in the towns of Lecco and Como, both about 30 miles north of Milan, told The Associated Press that no dwellings appeared to have been hit in the crash.

They said rescue crews were combing the mountainous area by foot and four-wheel drive. Ambulances and helicopters were spotted on standby in fields in this town.

Contras

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
ty" offered by the Sandinistas or the current political process in Nicaragua.

"Rather, it makes an extra effort" toward a cease-fire that could enhance the peace process and stop bloodshed in the country," Chamorro said.

The group has asked Nicaraguan Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, a leading critic of the Managua regime, to serve as an intermediary in arranging the trip and setting up the talks.

Ebony

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7
the production.

"We will have a good response from the white population because very few know anything about black theater. It will be a good cultural exchange," Grizzell said.

Baker said The K-State Players has been willing to help the Ebony Theatre, and everyone has been helping with publicity and props. Baker also said she thought "Happy Endings" would have a good turnout.

"Happy Endings" is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16 and 17 at The Purple Masque Theatre. Three black poetry readings will be performed before the play begins.

The Station
TGIF

TGIF TERRIFIC BUFFET
JOIN MANHATTAN'S
TGIF TRADITION!

No membership needed
For restaurant & bar!
Open To Public!

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

JUST WHEN YOU THOUGHT CRAB LEGS WERE TOO EXPENSIVE

ONLY $11.95

CLAWS
IS BACK
AT THE ALL NEW
CRAB LEG BUFFET
FRIDAY • AT

The COTTON CLUB

Over 8 Varieties
of Seafood plus Frog Legs
SATURDAY NIGHT SPECIAL
Prime Rib
& Spiced Shrimp
only $11.95

Reservations Suggested
539-9431

Sorry—no coupons, discounts or certificates

This Friday
and Saturday
"Rope Burn"
$2 members
$3 guests

The Ranch
SALOON

—A Class B Private Club
3 mi. East Hiway 24
539-4989

The Tradition of Homecoming wouldn't be complete without a Fishbowl!

Stop by for the Homecoming
Celebration Specials

105 N. 3rd • Downtown • 539-9904

OPEN FORUM

The Task Force reviewing the counseling, mental and physical health services provided to KSU students invites comments from students, faculty, and staff.

Tuesday, October 20
3:30 p.m.

K-State Union, Room 212

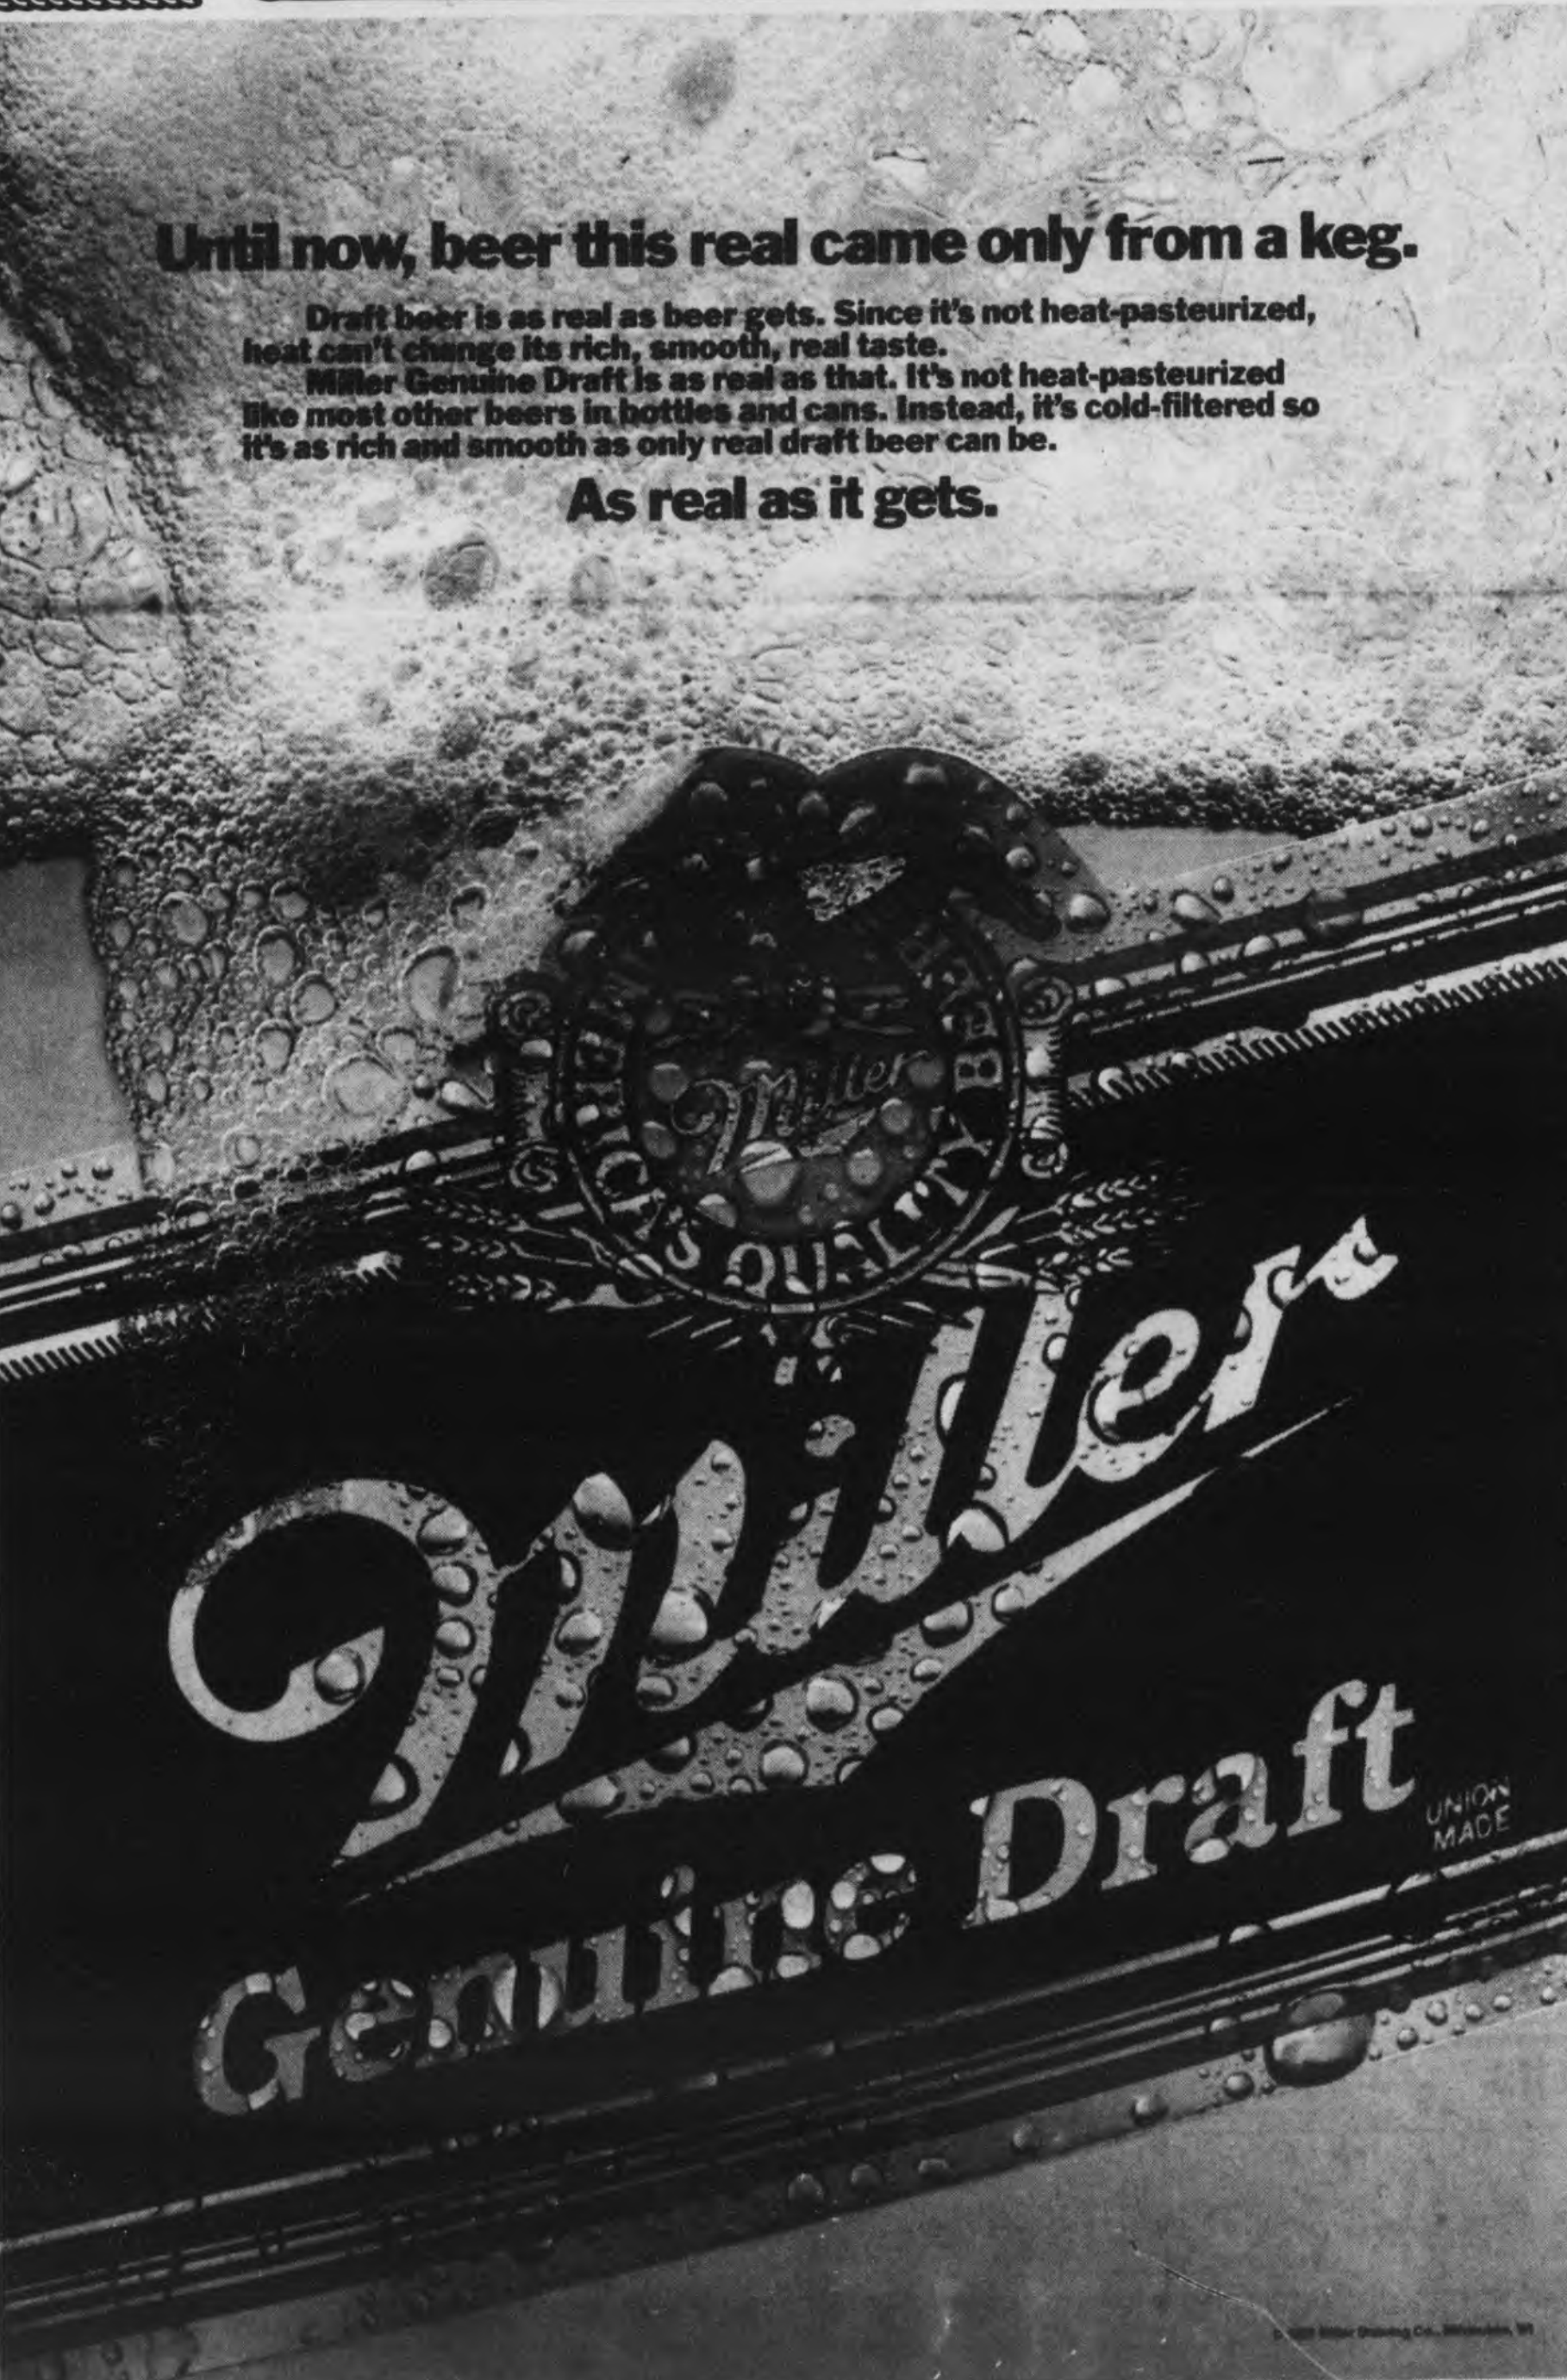

For further information contact:
Mike Lynch, 204 Holton Hall, 532-6492

Until now, beer this real came only from a keg.

Draft beer is as real as beer gets. Since it's not heat-pasteurized, heat can't change its rich, smooth, real taste.

Miller Genuine Draft is as real as that. It's not heat-pasteurized like most other beers in bottles and cans. Instead, it's cold-filtered so it's as rich and smooth as only real draft beer can be.

As real as it gets.

Miller
Genuine Draft
UNION MADE

Ambassadors

The 1987 Homecoming activities ended Saturday with the naming of the ambassadors and the spirit competition standings. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly sunny, breezy and cold, high 53 to 58. Clear tonight, low 28 to 33. Sunny Tuesday, high 49 to 54.

aged several years. OU seldom previously accomplished. See Page 6.

Monday
October 19, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 40

Kansas State Collegian

Residents: Company provides bad water

By Judy Lundstrom
Special Projects Editor

Water problems seem to have become a way of life for some Riley Countians.

Last summer, the Kansas Department of Health and Environment mandated the closure of the Riley County Landfill because tests proved "beyond a reasonable doubt" that the landfill was responsible for private water well contamination.

Now, while county officials are negotiating with affected residents' attorneys and water lines are being constructed to provide them with city water, others in the county say they also need city water because of similar problems.

These water problems, however, don't stem from the landfill, but from a privately owned Manhattan water company, say some residents who live southeast of downtown Manhattan, across the Kansas River.

Complaints range from low water pressure to bad taste, they say.

"It's a disgrace," said Helen Vathauer, a resident of the Fairmont Addition, a community of about 500 outside the city limits. "No water company should be allowed to operate in this condition."

Vathauer's is one of 115 residences and businesses serviced by the Fairmont Heights Water Co., a private company purchased in 1979 by Everett and Virginia Stille. Some residents say they have had problems ever since.

"My biggest complaint is the pressure," Vathauer said. "I can stand the taste of the water. It's the pressure I hate."

Vathauer said she has given up complaining to the Stilleys.

"Mrs. Stille told me, 'You might as well quit calling me, because what you've got is all you're gonna get,'" Vathauer said.

The Stilleys, however, said they get few complaints from customers about water pressure or taste.

"The only complaint I've had in the last year and a half is on the meter readings," Everett Stille said.

Because of the smell and taste, few people on the Fairmont Heights Water Co. line drink the water, said customer Gerald Grimes.

"It tastes terrible," he said. "We don't drink it. (Now) We get our water in St. George."

Grimes said the water sometimes has a "gassy" smell, and at other times smells like chlorine.

Stille said the bad smell comes from magnesium tubes in the hot water tanks.

"If they'd take them out, it would eliminate their odor," he said.

Fire protection

Katie Smith, Fairmont Community Task Force chairwoman, has been lobbying for city water in the area for more than a year. Although she has a private water well, she said she is still concerned about the quality of water in the area. Furthermore, she said, city water is needed in the community for fire protection.

Currently, the community has no fire hydrants. The only form of fire protection is a pickup that carries a 200-gallon water tank, she said.

"If there's a fire, the city will not cross the river," Smith said. "Anything that catches fire out here will burn down."

On July 1, 1985, a house across the street from Smith burned to the ground.

"We called the Manhattan Fire Department twice, and they wouldn't come," she said. "The only thing that came was a Hunters Island truck and ours."

One resident of the house was able to get out. The other, a 23-year-old man, died later at the University of Kansas Medical Center. Officials said the man's injuries may not have been fire related, but they refused further comment.

Del Petty, Riley County Rural Fire chief, said the Manhattan Fire Department crosses the river only upon his request. But, he said, it will not be a first responder.

In the 1985 fire, he said, the house burned so fast it would have been useless to call the Manhattan Fire

Fairmont Heights Water Co. owner Everett Stille stands in the pump-house of his system that supplies water to 115 customers. The pump-house is located in the Fairmont Addition at the intersection of Messenger Lane and Elliott.

Department.

Petty said installation of fire hydrants would be possible if city water is piped to the area, but only if the water lines are large enough.

"From a fire standpoint, I'd love to have them there—they'd be quite an asset," he said.

While city water would result in a decrease in the cost of fire insurance, the cost of installing the system could be expensive, Petty said.

"To say the lower insurance would or wouldn't offset that cost would take some type of study," he said.

Source of controversy

Virginia Stille said the water complaints stem from an incident in their neighborhood two years ago and has nothing to do with her and her husband.

"This whole thing started over trying to prove our water was contaminated by Shilling Asphalt," she said.

The Shilling Asphalt Co. is located on the Kansas River south of the Highway 177 viaduct in Manhattan. A controversy developed two years ago when residents living near the plant feared it was contaminating their water.

Tests taken by KDHE indicated contaminants in some private wells, but at levels they said required nothing more than further monitoring.

Stille said he is satisfied with the test results.

"The water in the Fairmont Area is as pure as the water we're drinking here in the city of Manhattan," he said. Coliform tests are taken from his wells every two weeks, Stille said. Records show that the water is in compliance with state standards.

Stille wrote KDHE Feb. 4, 1987, to complain about the harassment he was getting.

"The Stilleys are operating Fairmont Heights Water Co. properly in regulation with the state health regulations and have never hesitated one minute to do what is required on the

■ See WATER, Page 9

Pat Robertson's barrage shocks GOP

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE — A weekend conference of Republican leaders from 13 Western states started out as polite as a tea party, a gathering to allow seven announced or prospective GOP presidential candidates to present their views.

Then came Pat Robertson.

And the so-called 11th Commandment — thou shalt not speak ill of another Republican — went out the window Friday when the former television evangelist included his fellows in a barrage of acid criticism.

Robertson blasted the party's frontrunner, Vice President George Bush, as "a whiny loser" for suggesting that Robertson backers are "kamikazes" who might break open the GOP.

"Things are heating up," observed Republican National Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf Jr. "It's going to get a little rough and tumble."

Heat up, it did.

In a 35-minute speech, Robertson did not mention his targets by name but seemed to blister first lady Nancy Reagan, President Reagan, White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker, and a dozen others as he described what a Robertson presidency would be like.

He blasted teachers who strike, Planned Parenthood, anti-apartheid activists, welfare and other conservative targets, but incensed many of the Republicans by seeming to criticize Nancy Reagan on the same day she entered a hospital for a mastectomy.

Robertson noted that his own wife, Dede, is anti-communist and added:

"I want to set your minds at ease. She has never suggested that I make an accommodation to the Soviet Union in order to win the Nobel Peace Prize."

A number of party leaders were aghast. Fahrenkopf said: "I can't accept that. It's wrong. ... I think that he should apologize."

Robertson spokesman George Vinett confirmed that Robertson had Nancy Reagan in mind, but hadn't known she was about to undergo surgery.

But Saturday in Portland, Ore., Robertson denied he was talking about Nancy Reagan. "There's no apology necessary. I didn't say anything wrong," he insisted.

With varying degrees of vehemence, GOP presidential hopefuls rapped Robertson's remarks, as did many of the state Republican leaders attending the conference.

Oregon's national committeeman, Peter Murphy of Eugene, called it "a very cheap shot. I didn't like it. I guess since he's playing catch-up, in his first appearance in the Northwest, that he felt he had to come up with some thunder."

Murphy, who is uncommitted in the nomination battle, said Robertson's showing drove some potential supporters to his rivals, most notably Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole. Pat Burnaroos, a party activist and Bush supporter from Stanwood, Wash., said many on the conference floor were "totally appalled."

Jim Sommers of Seattle added: "It's getting awfully low. We've got enough problems without eating our young."

Warning to Bork supporter draws criticism

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A telephone warning from a Senate Judiciary Committee aide to a black law professor supporting Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork was "reminiscent of the ugly tactics of the Ku Klux Klan," Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., said Sunday.

Humphrey, a Bork supporter and a member of the committee, called for an investigation of the incident as the Senate prepared to debate the nomination this week.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said debate on Bork could start Tuesday, but indicated he might remove the nomination from the agenda if arguments go on too long.

John T. Baker, an Indiana University law professor, had been scheduled to testify before the Judiciary Committee in support of Bork on Sept. 28, but withdrew after receiving a telephone call from committee aide Linda Greene the night before, according to a published report Sunday.

Humphrey called on Committee

Chairman Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., "to conduct an immediate investigation to determine whether this aide was acting under instructions or encouragement of her superiors."

"This intimidation of a witness, whether friendly or unfriendly to the nominee, is offensive, unethical and unfair," Humphrey said in a statement. "Intimidation of a black witness is reminiscent of the ugly tactics of the Ku Klux Klan."

Greene, who is also black, said she knew Baker and warned him to expect a tough examination of his academic career and scholarship, but she denied her intent was to dissuade him from testifying, according to The New York Times. She characterized it as a call to a professional associate whom she regarded as a friend.

"I told him, 'People are playing hardball,'" Greene said. "I asked him if he was prepared to go through the tough questioning he was going to get."

Baker told the newspaper that Greene, counsel to a Judiciary sub-

■ See BORK, Page 10

Two senators urge residents in halls to run for offices

By Michelle Engemann
Collegian Reporter

Jeff Wing and Doug Oetinger are "campaigning" to get students involved in the University by encouraging them to run for Student Senate.

Wing, junior in economics, and Oetinger, senior in business administration, are working to inform students about the opportunities in student government and the upcoming November elections. They are encouraging students to run for Senate positions or to serve on a Senate committee.

"Jeff was trying to get more people involved (in Student Senate) and was asking around to see if anyone was going to run this year," Oetinger said. "We got to thinking that there just aren't a lot of people who know much about it."

He said a lower percentage of residence hall students run for Senate because they are not informed about Senate or the procedures for running for an office. Last year, 15 students from residence halls ran for Senate positions. Six of them were elected, and only three of them continue to live in residence halls. Oetinger explained that students in the residence halls are less likely to know someone involved with Senate. This "campaign" has been informing students about Senate through posters, letters and meetings.

Oetinger and Wing are staff assistants in the residence halls. Wing is a student senator for the College of Arts and Sciences, and Oetinger is on the Senate finance committee. They have offered to help any students who are interested in running for a position in the Nov. 3 and 4 student government elections.

"We're going to follow up and offer them assistance in any way possible as far as deadlines are concerned," Wing said.

Part of their informal "campaign" was sending nomination forms to other residence hall staff assistants, asking for recommendations of people who might be potential candidates. These 130 nominees were then contacted by letter and informed of the opportunities and responsibilities of Student Senate.

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Shultz urges Shamir to take risk

REHOVOT, Israel — Secretary of State George P. Shultz indirectly chided right-wing Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Sunday, urging him to take the risk to explore new options for peace.

"No one helps the chances for peace by doing nothing," Shultz said. "Those who are reluctant to explore new ideas or even revisit old ones have an obligation to offer something different as an alternative to the status quo."

His remarks in a speech at the Weizmann Institute in Rehovot were seen as a prod to Shamir, although he did not mention the prime minister by name.

Shultz's mission of peace, which began Friday, met with a setback when a group of eight Palestinian leaders refused to meet him.

Violent protests continued in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza City against Shultz's visit, the Arab-owned Palestine Press Service said. A 12-year-old boy was wounded in the protests, the agency said.

Shamir has opposed a proposed international conference on Middle East peace that has won the endorsement of the Arabs, the Soviet Union and his left-leaning coalition partner Foreign Minister Shimon Peres.

Collision kills 14 in Turkey

AKSEHIR, Turkey — Two buses collided head-on near here early Sunday, killing 14 people and injuring 26 others, the Anatolia news agency reported.

The semi-official agency said a bus carrying people home from a wedding rammed into another bus near the village of Karahuyuk outside Aksehir, which is 310 miles southeast of Istanbul.

The Konya-Istanbul highway was closed to traffic for 5½ hours due to the collision, Anatolia said.

First lady's outlook 'excellent'

WASHINGTON — Doctors told President and Nancy Reagan on Sunday that the final tests from her breast cancer surgery show there has been no spread of her cancer and that the "prognosis for full recovery is excellent," a White House spokesman said.

"Mrs. Reagan is recovering remarkably well from surgery," Reagan's physician John Hutton said in a statement. Hutton said Nancy Reagan's 12-physician team is "completely satisfied with her progress in every respect."

The president traveled by helicopter to Bethesda Naval Medical Center early Sunday morning to await the final test results from Saturday's surgery.

Hutton's statement, distributed by White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, said the first lady "feels good and her vital signs are strong and stable." It said she was feeling "very little pain" and was receiving a mild analgesic medication to deal with it.

Hutton's statement said, "Final laboratory analysis of tissue and lymph nodes removed during yesterday's surgery confirm there is no further malignancy or evidence of other disease."

"No further treatment is expected, other than normal routine examinations. Mrs. Reagan's prognosis for full recovery is excellent," the statement added.

Girl's rescue 'tribute' to spirit

MIDLAND, Texas — The rescue of 18-month-old Jessica McClure from an abandoned well was a tribute to the American spirit, Vice President George Bush said Sunday during a visit to the hospitalized toddler and her parents.

"This is what America is," said Bush. "The rock was hard and they couldn't get through, but they heard the voice and they wouldn't give up and for 60 hours, they dug."

Jessica, who spent 58 hours wedged in the narrow shaft, remained in serious but stable condition Sunday. She continued to improve, was no longer dehydrated and her right foot had regained a healthier pink color, Midland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman Laurie Johnson said.

The foot had had reduced blood circulation because of the way Jessica was jammed in the well, and doctors said they still couldn't say for sure if they would be able to save the foot from gangrene, which could force them to amputate.

"Her foot alternates between looking real good and looking dusky (from poor circulation)," Dr. Chip Klunik said Sunday, adding, however, that this was normal.

"You're dealing with some dead tissue and some tissue that's injured but salvageable," he said.

Dr. Shelton Viney said more surgery on Jessica's foot was planned for today.

"We will see if the foot is still viable...and see what kind of progress we're making," Viney said Sunday, adding that he was more optimistic about saving the foot than he was Saturday.

KU student's arm reattached

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — Doctors reattached the left forearm of a 21-year-old University of Kansas student who was injured in a motorcycle accident in Lawrence Saturday night.

Barbara Beery, assistant director of nursing at the University of Kansas Medical Center, said John T. Hinshaw was in serious condition Sunday, but awake and talking with his parents.

"The arm has a good blood supply, things are looking good right at the moment," she said. "But it's difficult to tell after a traumatic amputation...how things will turn out."

Beery said a surgical team headed by Dr. George Richardson reattached the arm in a 12-hour operation.

Witnesses reported seeing two motorcyclists racing, and police said Hinshaw, of Hutchinson, had been briefly chased on his motorcycle by a KU police officer shortly before his motorcycle collided with a car at a Lawrence intersection at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Talk about company loyalty

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Retirements are a daily occurrence at Stockham Valves & Fittings, but there has never been one like Fred Carter's.

The machinist retired Friday after 40 years and five months of work — all without ever missing a day or coming in late. "I've never heard of such a thing," said Hugh Bryant, Stockham's manager of corporate training and communications.

Carter, 63, of Birmingham said he has been blessed with good health and a "lovely wife."

Was he ever tempted to stay at home and miss a day of work?

"Lots of times, especially when it was snowing," he said. But after awhile it became a matter of pride that he not miss a day of work or come in late, he said.

Our three-year and two-year scholarships won't make college easier.

Just easier to pay for.

Even if you didn't start college on a scholarship, you could finish on one. Army ROTC Scholarships pay for full tuition and allowances for educational fees and textbooks. Along with up to $1,000 a year. Get all the facts.

For more information, call the Military Science Department at 532-6755/6754 or stop by the Military Science Building on campus.

ARMY RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

KSU MARKETING CLUB

PROUDLY PRESENTS

BANK 4

UNION BIG 8 ROOM

OCTOBER 19, 1987

7 P.M.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SGA ELECTIONS COMMITTEE poll-workers are needed for Student Government elections Nov. 3 and 4. Sign up in SGS office by Friday.

SINGLE PARENTS/DISABLED HOMEMAKERS $300 scholarships are available in Bluemont 407, Holton 101 or Financial Aid office. For more information call 532-6561.

ARTS AND SCIENCES CLUBS interested in being allocated for the 1987-88 allocation period contact the Arts and Sciences Council at 532-6900. The deadline is Thursday.

BUSINESS STUDENTS interested in being on open house committee pick up an application in the Dean's Office. Return by today.

WILDCAT TIPOFF CLASSIC men's and women's 3-on-3 basketball tournament Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms are available at Union information desk, Hollis House and Ahearn 101. The deadline for registration is Oct. 23.

CENTER FOR BASIC CANCER RESEARCH, DIVISION OF BIOLOGY applications are available in Ackert 131. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT FILING FORMS are now available in the SGA office in the Union. Filing deadline is Tuesday.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS award applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Ackert 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at K-State are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students. The awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

TODAY

ALPHA PI MU meets at 7 p.m. in Durland Industrial Engineering library for a pledge meeting.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI PLEDGES meet at 6 p.m. in Union 206.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA meets at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

BETA ALPHA PSI meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 212. Yearbook pictures will be taken after the meeting.

JACK TAYLOR FOR PRESIDENT staff meeting at 9 p.m. at 1100 Fremont.

TUESDAY

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Statroom 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

KSUARH EXECUTIVES meet at 10 p.m. in KSUARH office.

PRE-VET CLUB/COMMUNITY SERVICE COMMITTEE meets at 7:30 p.m. in Call 140.

HOME ECONOMICS EDUCATION INTEREST GROUP meets at 6 p.m. in Bluemont 343 for a discussion on entrepreneurship. Yearbook pictures will follow the meeting.

SIGMA DELTA PI-SPANISH CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213. Beatriz de la Pedraja will speak about Colombia.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

GOLDEN KEY NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 212 for a general meeting and yearbook pictures.

Correction

Due to an editor's error, a headline in Friday's Collegian incorrectly stated that the Ivory Coast government was being overthrown. The government overthrown was in Burkina Faso.

Collegian Classifieds Cheap, but Effective

LAST CHANCE
1213 MORGAN, AGGIEVILLE
776-8451

CHEAP MONDAYS & TUESDAYS!
80¢
DRAFT BEERS
★
$2.50 PITCHERS
★★

PLUS... $1.55
IMPORT BEER
OF THE WEEK!!!

SCHLIEBE WORKOUT CENTERS

PRESENTS

OUR

3rd ANNUAL

"Manhattan's Most Physical Contest"

Prelims are Nov. 12, 13 & 19
Finals are Nov. 20

All Competition Held at 9 p.m.
AT

BUSHWACKER'S

Accept the Challenge
CALL TODAY!

776-1750

TROPICAL TAN

$2 sessions
or $40 tanning membership
bring coupon in for details
—Expires 10-21-87—

FirstBank Center
Second Level
Denison & Claflin 537-0744

BRING THE WHOLE FAMILY!

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

Professor looks ahead Wind makes electricity

By Brenda Badostain
Collegian Reporter

Kansas has excellent winds that could be used for a future source of energy, said Gary Johnson, professor of electrical and computer engineering.

The idea Kansas winds are strong enough for energy generation was discovered as a result of a study done by the K-State and The Wichita State University departments of electrical engineering.

The study was done from October 1983 through September 1984, he said.

Johnson said the two departments monitored the winds at several sites in the state which might make good wind farms. These sites included a small town south of Topeka, two small towns southeast of Wichita and a site near Tuttle Creek Reservoir.

A wind farm is a collection of several wind turbines over a large area, Johnson said.

At the time the study was finished, he said, the problem was that Kansas didn't need any extra electricity.

"We (Kansas) don't need anymore generation right now. Whether it's coal-fired generation or another nuclear plant, we just don't need anymore right now," he said.

When K-State and WSU started the project, it looked like there would be a need, sooner or later, for more electrical energy generation in Kansas, he said.

"The demand (for electricity) had been growing rapidly in the state," he said. "And it really looked like, even with Wolf Creek, that we wouldn't have anymore (electricity) than we just barely needed and (the state would) really need some more pretty quick."

"We're talking about maybe half a square mile or a square mile of area that's just covered with wind turbines," he said.

California has more wind farms than other states, Johnson said. Their electrical generation capacity from wind farms is equal to a third of all forms of electrical generation in Kansas. Kansas' total electrical capacity is 6,000 megawatts. California has about 2,000 megawatts just in wind power.

Johnson said there is a potential for the use of wind power in the state of Kansas.

"Within the next five years, we're (Kansas) going to need some more (electrical) generation. And I'm hopeful that it will be wind turbines," he said.

K-STATE PLAYERS

Rodgers & Hammerstein's

SOUTH PACIFIC

Oct. 22-23-24

8:00 p.m.

McCain Auditorium

532-6398

M-F

12-5

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL
Ice cream cakes & pies
Freshly baked cookies
Popcorn gift canisters
Open 7 days a week
1439 Anderson 537-7079
South of McCain Auditorium

Lafene Health Center

Services available

Outpatient Clinic
Lafemme (Gyn) Clinic
Allergy Clinic
Mental Health Clinic
Laboratory
Physical Therapy
Pharmacy
X-Ray Department
Dietary Counseling
In-Patient Hospital
Sports Medicine Clinic
Wart Clinic

Clinic Hours • 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

532-6544

BOOK SALE

Wednesday

OCTOBER 21

Farrell Library Lobby

8:30 - 4:30

200 BOOKS AVAILABLE TO BE READ AT CLARK HALL

PROCEEDS TO SUPPORT THE LIBRARY

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
--FREE SAMPLES--
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Neutiles Towers-Aggieville

Eriksen Sports Medicine Clinic

- Evaluation, Diagnosis, Treatment, Rehabilitation of sports related injuries and problems
- Determine Body Fat Percentages
- Heat Stress Information
- Information and advice on Fitness, Injury Prevention, Health Effects of Exercise
- MUCH, MUCH MORE

Walk-in Clinic

8-9:30 a.m. Mon.-Fri.

1-2:30 p.m. Mon.

1-2 p.m. Tues., Thurs., Fri.

For Appointments
532-7880

Lafene Health Center

PLATOON LEADERS CLASS

The first training ground for the majority of Marine Corps Officers is college. Commissioning programs require a bachelor's degree, and that's really the first test of your abilities. So, the official Marine Corps policy is stay in school. PLC is the officer training program open to college freshmen, sophomores and juniors. It doesn't interfere with school activities or studies. There are no drills to attend or uniforms to wear during the school year. All training is done during the summer months at Quantico, Virginia. Travel costs to and from Quantico, meals, textbooks, etc. are furnished free of charge by the government. You will also be paid for the time spent in training. As a member of PLC, you may opt to

P.L.C.

THE FEW.
THE PROUD.
THE MARINES.

receive $100 a month for a nine-month school year. In exchange, you'll take on additional active duty obligations. You may receive this financial assistance for up to three years, for a total of $2,700. If you don't opt for the $100 a month, your Marine training doesn't obligate you in any way. Upon graduation from college you may be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant and be ordered to active duty for the duration of your commitment. If you've got what it takes to make it as an officer of Marines, you've got a career with many advantages. A career with reward, satisfaction, challenge and variety.

1st Lt. Gary Trotnic and SSgt. Jack Morrissey, your Marine Corps Officer Selection Team representatives, will be on the Kansas State University campus from October 20th to October 22nd. We will be glad to answer any questions you may have about the Marines, or military service in general. Or, call 841-1821 (collect) to arrange your personal interview.

Cymbal sunning

Band member Theresa Guyon, freshman in journalism and mass communications, works on a tan with the aid of her cymbal during Saturday's football game against OU at KSU Stadium.

Staff/Gary Lytle

Bar 539-9081
Office 776-6638

$1.25 Imports
$1.25 Wells
$2 Pitchers

TOGA TOGA TOGA
On Wednesday

RENT A VCP OVERNIGHT

FOR $4.78

and get a movie rental

FREE!

Mon.-Thurs. Only

HOURS: Mon.-Thurs. 10-9, Fri.-Sat. 10-10, Sun. 12-7
South Addition-Village Plaza Shopping Center

Finally,
a great pizza
delivered.

1118 Laramie

539-5303

GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special

$10.99/$8.99 plus tax

LARGE MEDIUM

COMBO PIZZA

or up to 4 toppings

Original Crust

Plus FREE 20 oz. drinks!

4 drinks with large

3 drinks with medium

Offer good Monday through

Wednesday only.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no

added delivery charge). Not valid

with other promotional offers.

Limited Delivery Area.

Offer Expires 11/1/87

Large Pizza for a Medium Price

Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for

the price of a medium.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug of offer. On Sunday your choice either use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

Offer Expires 11/15/87

KSU

GODFATHER'S PIZZA

Offer Expires 11/15/87

2 for $9

Receive two medium cheese

pizzas for only $9. Added

ingredients available for only $1

per topping, which covers both

pizzas.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1 for delivery. Limited delivery area.

Offer Expires 11/15/87

KSU

GODFATHER'S PIZZA

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Hot Slice™

2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas

by the slice for $2!

Combo or Pepperoni

Dine-in or Carryout

Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Offer Expires 11/13/87

KSU

GODFATHER'S PIZZA

Offer Expires 11/13/87

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, October 19, 1987 ■ Page 4

Everyone should enjoy the 'good life'

The Kansas sun beats down fiercely on this Shawnee Mission household as a Kansas City television station reports during a pause in the Iran-Contra playoffs that the "comfort index" registers a mean 110 degrees today. I sit underneath an imitation Casablanca ceiling fan in my room which is air-conditioned to a cool 72 degrees, typing away (or should I say "processing away") on my latest material acquisition — a dual disk-drive home computer. On my right sits a cup of instant coffee prepared in the microwave; on my left a compact disc player fills the room with African music from Paul Simon's latest project, "Graceland."

It was a slow day/ and the sun was beating/ on the soldiers/ by the side of the road.
There was a bright light/ a shattering of shop windows/ the bomb in the baby carriage/ was wired to the radio.

These are the days/ of miracle and wonder/ this is a long-distance call.
The way the camera follows us/ in slo-mo/ the way we look to us all.
The way we look to a distant constellation that's dying in the corner of the sky.
These are the days/ of miracle and wonder and/ don't cry baby, don't cry.
I read that people are starving in Ethiopia, and I have just transferred funds by phone from my money-market demand account to a fund for the hungry located somewhere in Switzerland. Hopefully, Bubba will have my BMW washed and waxed by 3 p.m. so I can make the protest against South Africa this afternoon.

Before the protest, I hit the McDonald's drive-through and stop by my sister's to spend some quality time with my niece and nephew, but they're more interested in the "Smurfs" home video/box of cereal than in playing with the toys I brought — a Nerf ball and a Slinky. What an old fogie I am. Moving on, I cruise to my ATM machine by the highly reflective, trend-setting glass and steel towers of the Corporate Woods office park along College Boulevard while Laurie Anderson lyrics fill my car:

Commentary

DAN OWENS
Collegian Columnist

"Hey pal, how do I get to town from here?"

And he said: "Well you just take a right/ where they're gonna build that new shopping mall;

Drive up past/ where they're gonna put in the freeway;

Turn left at what's gonna be the new sports center; and keep going 'til you hit the place where they're thinking of building that drive-in bank.

You can't miss it."

And I said: "This must be the place." Golden city, golden town/ and long cars in long lines/ Great Big Science! and they all say: "Hallelujah, yodel-lay-hee-hoo! every man for himself."

Big Science, Hallelujah! Big Science, every man for himself.

The protest goes well and fortunately takes place away from that poor part of Kansas City that people in southern Johnson County whisper about when describing how they got lost between church, lunch on the Plaza and the Chiefs football game. I run into an old friend now employed by a Big Eight accounting firm, and we discuss the plight of the blacks in Africa before heading to Westport for happy-hour margaritas and some taped NFL football on the big screen. As the two-minute warning entertains us with Stroh's Light ads and John Madden, I think about how sad it is the rest of the world doesn't enjoy the good things in life we Americans do.

AIDS education policy needs implementation

The Kansas Board of Education faced up to the facts last May in its adoption of the policy requiring instruction about AIDS. The board should implement its policy by approving the proposed regulations when it meets Nov. 9-10.

The policy was adopted after the board acknowledged, along with the rest of the United States, that the only way to limit the spread of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome is through education.

On Oct. 13, the board held hearings on proposed regulations which will implement the policy. The Kansas chapter of the National Education Association rightly spoke in favor of the regulations which would require information about sexually transmitted diseases, particularly AIDS, be included in the human sexuality classes.

The Kansas Association of School Boards spoke against the regulations because the state would be requiring local school districts to teach the classes. The association told the board that local school systems should only be encouraged to offer the courses.

Right to Life of Kansas had promised not to put in an appearance at the meeting. It broke its promise, and the group's legislative director once again stated Right to Life's long standing opposition to any sex education courses in schools.

The opposition of the Kansas Association of School Boards and Right to Life of Kansas to the regulations seemed based on assumptions from a simpler, safer time.

Both groups seem ignorant of a few facts.

Those facts are:
■ AIDS is contracted by having sex.

■ Heterosexuals and homosexuals are at equal risk of contracting AIDS.

■ When you get AIDS, you die. If you don't know these three facts you are more likely to get AIDS. Education board president Bill Musick told board members that their decision on the regulations would be the most important of their tenures.

It may also be the most important decision they make for the children of Kansas.

Reagan's cancer ordeal may create awareness

Nancy Reagan's loss of a breast is a traumatic test of courage, and the thoughts and prayers of the nation should be with her. But, as is often the case when someone's tragedy becomes the nation's news, public reaction may create positive results.

Breast cancer is a leading killer of women in the United States. An estimated 130,000 new cases are expected this year.

Now, as the media cover the progress of the first lady's recovery, women may learn about monthly self-breast exams and other procedures which can help them save not only their breasts from cancer — but themselves from an early death.

Letters

Football policy

Editor,

I am a K-State student and an avid football fan. A month ago I took my family to the Austin Peay game. Due to working two jobs it is impossible for me to attend all the home games. Being a working student/parent I am outraged at a policy of the athletic department.

My son is not quite two years old and barely talks beyond your normal "mommy," "daddy," "bye-bye." This is not a consideration at the front gate. I was charged $15 per ticket for my wife and I, and with Willie Nelson there I understand that. But to charge a toddler $15 to go to a football game and a concert is ridiculous.

First of all, there may be a few exceptions, but I don't know of any 2-year-olds that will sit in a bleacher for a two-hour football game, and a concert in the rain which follows. Any parent who thinks this is possible is dreaming. My son doesn't even know what football is, let alone have an interest in the game. But the irritating factor is that the personnel at the gate stated, "If they walk, they have to pay."

Even having to pay didn't bother me, until I found out that there are no children's prices and that an additional $15 was needed. Due to the simple fact that my son walked up to the front gate, full price was demanded. If we had carried him we would not have had to pay full price. This is ridiculous, and I believe to pay $45 to go to a football game is outrageous. For the Farm Aid Benefit I wouldn't have minded. But the Farm Aid apparently will not see any of this money. Besides that fact, Junior got grumpy and we had to leave the game at the end of the third quarter, go home, get a baby-sitter, return to watch K-State lose the game, and sit in the pouring rain watching Willie RUSH through his great hits.

I think the athletic department blew it. Admission requirements based on the motor skills of a human is a bad idea. The only reason we bring Junior is for the half-time show, the crowd, and Willie the Wildcat. As a devoted K-State fan I am sorry to say that the athletic department better change its policy fast; I will not pay full price ever again. Especially to watch a not-so-great football team lose. I think that I am entitled to $15 back from K-State, and am seriously considering filing suit. But I don't have the time. I would, however, truly love to hear the great reason why this policy is in effect, and what great excuse the athletic department will use to make this policy justifiable. Thanks for listening.

Chris Harris
junior in accounting

Chilly climate

Editor,

Much has been written about the "chilly climate" for women on university campuses across the nation. This "chilly climate" refers to subtle differences, usually unintentional, in the treatment of men and women, with women often being ignored, denigrated or treated with lowered expectations, both in and out of the classroom.

The recent offending Collegian editorial (which used the exclusive terms "man" and "he" throughout in referring to all human beings,) and the subsequent attacks on the woman student who bravely called attention to it are examples of this "chilly climate." The harm of exclusionary language is that it supports sexist and exclusionary attitudes and behaviors. We can no longer afford, as a university or as a society, to discourage the development of the talents of any of our citizens by sending subtle messages that some do not belong or are inferior — just because of their gender.

We all make choices in the language we use. Why choose to use language that hurts and excludes? Why not choose to use language that expresses the dignity of another human being? As an enlightened institution, we need to foster this important moral concept amongst ourselves. On a practical level, we need to teach our students the skills they will need to negotiate successfully in a professional world of both males and females. We therefore support the young woman who insisted on being counted as part of the human race, and we applaud President Jon Wefald for instituting at K-State standards that discourage exclusionary language.

Barbara Steward
chair,

Commission on the Status of Women
and 84 others

Reread article

Editor,

It would seem that Frank Takacs was in too much of a hurry to defend HIS country, HIS president and to denigrate an "outsider" that in his haste he did not read the whole article on the two K-State-New Zealand exchange students. If he had read the article, I'm sure he would not have taken offense to any of my comments. He would have realized that Ann Iseman, in writing the article, had made the most of the comments of two different people from two separate interviews. Iseman had anticipated that the readers' interests would lie in how people in another country view America and Americans. I consider that she anticipated the readers' interests correctly as "what do New Zealanders think of America and of President Reagan?" is one of the more frequent questions I am asked.

I had no reason to expand on the New Zealand-America nuclear issue because I had not even mentioned it in my interview. Karna Peterson, the AMERICAN exchange student, had commented on it. I consider the nuclear issue to be too complex and too heated a topic for it to be dealt with in a light article about an exchange program.

I urge Takacs to reread the article and to learn something about an exchange program from which K-State benefits. I hope that in the future he will not be so quick to criticize just because one is an "outsider."

P.S. Takacs may be interested to note that New Zealand is not part of Southeast Asia and therefore could not have been part of SEATO. New Zealand was, however, part of the ANZUS treaty.

Helen McGlone
graduate in foods and nutrition

Letters to the editor pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be type-written or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielzer
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
CAMPUS EDITORS
Jonny Chaulk
Chad Sanborn
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR
Judy Lundstrom
FEATURES EDITOR
Susan Staggensborg
AGRI/BUSINESS EDITOR
Janet Swanson
GOVERNMENT EDITOR
Candy Leonard
ARTS/ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR
Becky Howard
SPORTS EDITOR
Jeff Rapp
COPY EDITORS
Peggy Aeschliman
Betty Edwards
Lori Siegert
STAFF WRITERS
Tom Denzel
Jennifer Dorsch
Lori Lindstrom
Alison Neely
COLUMNISTS
Judd Amis
Kirk Caraway
Doug Folk
REVIEWER
Gary Leffler
SPORTS WRITERS
Chase Clark
Bill Lang
Patti Paxson
Jodi Swengel
Debbie Whitson
Mike Krueger
Mike Nichols
Jeff Schrak
Tom Morris
Chris Wilhelm

SPORTS COLUMNISTS
Tom Purris
David Svoboda
PHOTOGRAPHERS
Brad Camp
Jim Dietz
Brad Fanshier
Brett Hacker
Gary Lytle
GRAPHIC ARTIST
Mary Ward
ADVERTISING GRAPHIC ARTIST
Alex Meyer
EDITORIAL BOARD
Jeff Bielzer
Kirk Caraway
Deron Johnson
Becky Lucas
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Gontz
ASST. ADVERTISING MANAGER
Jada Allenheiligen
REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVE
Bill Sherbert
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER
Barry Steffen
SALES REPRESENTATIVES
Donna Adelhardt
Stacey Darrell
Cathy Doud
CLASSIFIED SALES REPS
Tracy Mayhew
Jackie Clements
Janelle Dennis
DIRECTOR
Dave Adams
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR
Gloria Fiedland
NEWS ADVISER
Connie Fulkerson
GRAD. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR
David Svoboda
ADV. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR
Wanda Haynie

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kodzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kodzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Government claims coup attempt by Filipino rebel soldiers foiled

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — The government said it foiled a coup attempt Sunday after rebel soldiers stole an armored vehicle. President Corazon Aquino said martial law was "not yet necessary" despite continuing instability.

The rebels stole the personnel carrier from army headquarters and drove it undetected to Santo Tomas University despite a full military alert. The six-man crew abandoned the vehicle about a mile from the president's residence and escaped with a machine gun and ammunition.

Acting Manila Gov. Jejomar Binay said renegade Lt. Col. Reynaldo Cabautan had planned to launch an attack on the presidential compound from a campus staging area. Cabautan, sought since a coup attempt in January, denied any role in the theft.

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno said the incident could have been staged to embarrass a government still seeking to restore public confidence after 53 people died in a coup attempt Aug. 28.

The August military mutiny was the gravest threat to Aquino since she was swept to power in a February 1986 civilian-military rebellion that ousted President Ferdinand Marcos.

Another opposition source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said rebels planned to mount a "military operation" but it failed after someone tipped off pro-government forces.

Troops and tanks rushed to the presidential palace and the university area, and security was increased at military installations in the capital.

During a radio broadcast, Aquino said she was asked if she would declare martial law in the face of Communist insurgency and threats from military opponents.

"I believe that during these times, those measures are not yet necessary," she said. "It is hard to go back to martial law days where we saw so many abuses."

The comments were taped Saturday, before the latest incident, but were broadcast Sunday night over government radio.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Cabautan said the incident Sunday points to widespread military opposition to Aquino.

"I'm sure there are lots of small organizations in the armed forces as well as in the civilian sector that intend really to topple the government and establish a new, genuine, true democratic government that will be responsive to the people's interest," Cabautan said in a hideout in central Luzon, the island that includes Manila.

"So what happened this morning must be a group of individual soldiers whose sentiments could not be stopped any more. And I'm sure there are lots of this kind in the armed forces," he said.

The incident began early Sunday when the V-150, a light, wheeled vehicle with a machine gun mounted on the turret, drove out of Fort Bonifacio.

Music students run to benefit groups

By The Collegian Staff

Nearly 400 students spent part of Sunday running to raise money for various musical organizations on campus.

The students, representing the marching band, orchestra, concert choir and men's glee club, were taking part in the seventh annual Music Run, said Stanley Finck, director of bands and assistant professor of music.

The students raise money by getting pledges for each lap they run in one hour, he said.

"It's a way of getting to the people who want to support the (musical) groups," Finck said.

"I don't know who came up with the idea (of the Music Run)," he said. "It was just a way of raising money for the various musical organizations."

Finck said the money raised by the band is used for travel expenses such as buses, motel rooms and food.

"We (the band) couldn't travel without it (the money raised), and travel is an important part of our recruitment process as far as getting kids involved," he said.

The K-State orchestra hopes to put on a concert at the end of the year with the money it raises, said Adrian Bryttan, director of bands and assistant professor of music.

"We want to do an outdoor pops concert on campus," he said.

"Like something under the stars where people can bring blankets. I'd like to have a light show. Something like a laser show."

Leroy Burke, coordinator of the Music Run, said an estimated $20,000 will be raised for the bands this year.

Eight schools compare knowledge of soils

By The Collegian Staff

Judging teams from K-State and seven other schools spent four hours tromping through the mud last Thursday while competing in a land judging contest held at Rock Springs 4-H Center.

The teams' four members evaluated four pits that were dug 9 feet long, 5 feet wide and 6 feet deep. They spent 55 minutes at each pit describing its physical appearance, color and structure, along with its position in the landscape. Participants described five to six different layers of the soil in the pit.

Their evaluations are recorded on a score card and given to the judges. The judges compare the teams' scores, and the team with the most correct evaluation wins.

"Riley County has real variable soil," said Mickey Ransom, assistant professor of agronomy. "Its forms are a wide variety of apparent soils. It's a very complex county."

The nation is divided into seven regions for the competitions. The top three winners of K-State's region, No. 5, qualify to compete in the national contest held in April.

"K-State does have a competitive soils team," Ransom said. "We were second in regionals last year, and sixth out of 18 in the nationals."

Collegiate soils judging is sponsored by the American Society of Agronomy.

Iowa State placed first in the competition and K-State finished fourth. Other schools that competed were the University of Minnesota, North Dakota State, South Dakota State, University of Nebraska, University of Missouri and Southwest Missouri State University.

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS

Pre-Enrollment Advising Begins Monday, October 19
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261

Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority at the time of pre-enrollment.

Optometrists

Dedicated to Optometry in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs Price, Young, Odle and Horsch

1119 Westloop

537-1118

JOB OPPORTUNITIES AT UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

OFFERS PART-TIME POSITIONS MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

EMPLOYEES EARN $8 HR. LOADING/UNLOADING

SHIFT AVAILABLE 4-15 a.m.-9 a.m. WORKING 3-5 HOURS

UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

is looking for service-minded people to join the UPS team.

FOR INFORMATION CONTACT
Office of Financial Aid
Fairchild Hall Rm. 104
Equal Opportunity Employer

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND

Hours

Mon.-Thurs.
11 a.m.-2 a.m.

Fri.-Sat.
11 a.m.-3 a.m.

Sunday
11 a.m.-12 a.m.

BUY 1
GET 1
FREE Any size
Pizza!
We deliver...
FAST and
Friendly-like.

Delivering All
Day Every Day
For Your Convenience

Offering Thin
Crust or Our
Original Golden
Braided Crust

SportsMonday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, October 19, 1987 ■ Page 6

Top-ranked OU too much for Wildcats

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

The outcome was predictable, No. 1-ranked Oklahoma crushed K-State 59-10 Saturday at KSU Stadium, but the score isn't indicative of the Wildcats' performance against the Sooners.

K-State, 0-6 overall and 0-2 in the Big Eight Conference, managed to do several things well against OU — a 55-point favorite — which sports writers and coaches have tabbed the mightiest in the land. For example:

■ The Wildcats scored a touchdown against OU, something North Carolina, Tulsa and Iowa State were unable to accomplish this season.

■ When K-State burned the Sooners on a 81-yard scoring pass from Gary Swim to John Williams, it was the second-longest pass completion against the Oklahoma defense in the school's 92-year history.

■ K-State's 10-point performance was the most allowed by Oklahoma since a season-opening 69-14 defeat of North Texas State. In their five previous games, the Sooners had allowed only 26 total points — a 5.2 points per game average.

■ The 'Cats picked up 270 yards in total offense against the nation's best defensive unit and had no turnovers. Prior to Saturday, OU's defense had allowed its opponents an average of just 170.2 yards per game.

Even though his team had dropped its 11th consecutive game, K-State Coach Stan Parrish said he was proud of the Wildcats' efforts.

"I had nightmares...about what (the score) could be if you lay the ball on the ground and don't play hard," Parrish said. "I thought for 30 minutes, we really battled our butts off."

"We hit a home run on 'em that they don't often give up. We had a couple of real nice sustained drives. It's just a God's shame the score has to be that when the kids played as hard as we did," he added.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer, who saw his Sooners move to 6-0 overall and 2-0 in the Big Eight, said he wasn't surprised by K-State's performance.

"I want to congratulate Kansas State. They played a very physical, tough, scrappy football game. Stan (Parrish) told me his guys were going to play, and play hard, and they did. I thought they played exceptionally well," Switzer said.

It looked from the beginning that a rout was on as OU jumped out to a 14-0 first-quarter lead on a 20-yard run from Anthony Stafford and a 28-yard scoring toss from quarterback Jamelle Holieway to Carl Cabbiness.

K-State then responded with a 68-yard scoring drive and pulled within 11 after Mark Porter converted a 22-yard field goal.

Oklahoma built its lead to 28-3 in the second period after Holieway scored on a one-yard run, and Lydell Carr plunged over from two yards out. One play later, Swim hit Williams with the 81-yard scoring toss and burned All-Big Eight defensive back Ricky Dixon in the process.

"They score because Ricky (Dixon) tries to make a great play going for the interception instead of tackling the receiver, and they get their score that way," Switzer said.

Williams, though, didn't see it that way.

"All the Oklahoma defensive people are supposed to be the top, the best in the nation, but to me they were nothing," Williams said. "Ricky Dixon isn't as good as people say he is because on one-on-one, I had him beat all day. Because of their defensive pressure, Swim didn't have time for the long toss. If he could have got me the ball, I would have had three touchdowns today."

Oklahoma, after building its lead to 31-10 before halftime, completely shut down K-State in the second half while scoring two touchdowns apiece in the third and fourth quarters. The 'Cats had only 86 yards of offense the final two periods.

K-State missed a scoring opportunity in the final quarter when Porter missed his first field goal of the year, a 46-yard attempt into the wind.

"It was a pretty tough kick. I just tried to overkick it," Porter said. "It's over with now. We'll just try to get another streak started."

Observers may have noticed the 'Cats weren't intimidated by OU's national ranking — especially Matt Wallerstedt. The 5-foot-10, 230-pound linebacker from Manhattan led K-State in tackles with 17 and taunted Oklahoma throughout the game.

Wallerstedt said he always plays that way.

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

K-State Coach Stan Parrish disputes a pass interference call with a referee during the second quarter Saturday.

"Hey, I'm 5-10, I've gotta be emotional," he said. "I don't really have any respect for Oklahoma football because I don't really think they're a class act....I just had the opportunity to make some big plays. Maybe that was a little something to put in their face."

"(Wallerstedt's) short and slow, but he's got a heart as big as (K-State's weight room)," Parrish added. "The only way they're going to get him off the field is to carry him off. He's only going to make the young guys better."

K-State's players agreed: OU may be the best team in the nation now, but the Sooners can be beat.

"They're not supermen; they're not gods," Cat quarterback Gary Swim said.

"They're explosive, but I think once they get against a good passing

■ See No. 1, Page 7

Staff/Brett Hacker

University of Oklahoma halfback Bernard Hall returns a punt as K-State's Dewayne Baziel tries to tackle him. Hall gained 43 of the Sooners' game total 101 return yards on the play.

Oklahoma quarterback Holieway doesn't mind lack of playing time

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

After leading the Oklahoma Sooners to a 59-10 rout of K-State Saturday, University of Oklahoma quarterback Jamelle Holieway said he doesn't mind sitting on the bench.

Holieway — with the game obviously in hand — was benched by OU coach Barry Switzer for six of the Sooners' 14 offensive possessions, but said he enjoys watching his predecessor in action.

"No, it's not (depressing to sit on the sidelines)," Holieway said. "It's a good feeling to sit over there and see, when I'm not in, the second string quarterback do just as well as I can."

Pretty unselfish thoughts considering Holieway, a potential Heisman Trophy or All-American candidate, admits his lack of playing time hurts his chances for receiving national honors.

"It (not playing) does (hurt his chances for recognition) but, I'm a team player and whatever the team needs I'm going to do," Holieway said. "That's the way I look at it. Everybody practices hard during the week, and everyone wants to play and showcase what they can do. Everyone's going to get their run.

Everyone is going to get their shot to do what they want to do. I'm having fun and that's the bottom line."

When it comes to having fun though, Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer said Holieway is the best player on the team.

"Jamelle Holieway had a great game," Switzer said. "He's the best player, there's no question with the things he can do — break tackles, make big plays. Charles Thompson has great quickness and speed but he's not Jamelle Holieway. Jamelle and Charles threw the ball really well today."

"We played everybody we brought. We had to play both quarterbacks. We played Holieway the second half and gave Charles most of the fourth quarter."

Which quarterback was playing may not have made a difference, as they both led Oklahoma down the field with ease. Holieway doesn't mind sharing the spotlight with Thompson either, knowing they both have their good qualities.

"We have our own styles," Holieway said. "Charles is real fast and I'm slow. He's real quick, but I'm probably a little bit stronger than he is. But he gets the job done and I'm happy."

Wouldn't Holieway be much happier to have a few postseason honors bestowed upon him, though?

"If it comes, it comes," Holieway said of the national honors. "If we keep on winning...I just have to be at my best all the time."

But hasn't Holieway at least talked with Switzer about the possibility of becoming a Heisman candidate and the extra playing time he needs to get the voters' attention?

"No, we haven't," Holieway said. "It's all there...he knows it's there and I know it's there. But he's the head coach and he has the last say."

Modesty may not be one of Holieway's best attributes, but he is quick to give credit to other members of the team for his success.

"Our best weapon is the offensive line," Holieway said. "They're devastating...tremendous quickness, speed, power and smarts. They don't make dumb mistakes. If it wasn't for the offensive line I couldn't be a Heisman or a candidate, nothing."

"We have so many weapons, especially on defense. Our defense is really good," Holieway said. "They are the ones that keep us in the game, get us the ball in easy field position. We just run it up."

Cockiness and confidence appear to be good words to describe the Sooners' feelings about being the No. 1 ranked team in the nation. And if someone doesn't agree, they have no qualms with speaking openly about their abilities.

"We can go out there and play with anybody and do well," Holieway added. "We don't make a whole lot of mistakes and try to beat ourselves. A lot of teams beat themselves when they have a great team."

But did Holieway feel he and the team played like the No. 1 team in the nation Saturday?

"No (we didn't)," Holieway said. "I only completed two passes today; that's the problem. Last week against Texas I think we did, though."

With 102 yards rushing on 15 carries and 523 yards for the season, Holieway is saving his best until Nov. 21 when the Sooners take on Nebraska for what could be not only the Big Eight championship but also the national championship. And he wants all eyes and ears to stay tuned for his performance.

"Just wait 'til Nebraska," Holieway said. "You will see then...a scary performance. We are going to dig into Nebraska too. We're going to come in with something funky and new."

Staff/Steve Wolgast

K-State's first play of the game gave the 'Cats only one yard as Rick Lewis (44) is brought down by Oklahoma's Troy Johnson (80) and Kert Kaspar (46). K-State had 270 yards of total offense.

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

Although he spent much of the game watching from the sideline, Oklahoma quarterback Jamelle Holieway rushed for 102 yards.

Netters defeated twice by Big Eight competition

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

In its first Big Eight Conference competition of the season, the K-State women's tennis team was handed two setbacks Friday and Saturday at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area tennis courts. The Wildcats were upended by the University of Nebraska, 5-4, on Friday and then fell to the University of Oklahoma by an 8-1 count Saturday.

Friday's action saw K-State's women split the singles matches with Nebraska while winning only one of three doubles matches. Nebraska was victorious at the top three singles spots and in the two doubles matches, while K-State won the last three singles matches and the third doubles contest.

"It was a real close match and we hated to lose it," Coach Steve Bietau said.

Against Oklahoma, K-State was only able to win one match. At

No. 4 singles, Marijke Nel defeated Bernadette Brennan, 7-5, 1-6, 6-2.

"I was really pleased with our team," Bietau said. "We were competitive in eight out of nine matches. This is the most trouble we've given Oklahoma that I can think of."

"There really wasn't much difference in our 8-1 loss and our 5-4 loss," he added. "We had several close matches against Oklahoma and I was pleased for the most part with our performance."

Bietau said his squad faced its toughest opponents to date.

"This is the first real competition we've faced. We've had matches but we hadn't really been tested. I think that we played very competitive against two of the tougher teams in the conference, put up a good fight, and came out of it with an idea of things we need to work on," Bietau said.

Nebraska 5, K-State 4

Singles

No. 1 — Lidiko Guba (Nebraska) def. Theresa Burcham 6-3, 6-2.
No. 2 — Donita Holmen (NU) def. Sigrid Ivarsson 6-4, 6-2.

No. 3 — Nancy Tyggum (NU) def. Annika Emtell 2-6, 6-0, 6-1.

No. 4 — Marijke Nel (K-State) def. Meghan Quinn 6-4, 6-0.

No. 5 — Valerie Rive (K-State) def. Jenny Deidrich 7-6, 6-1.

No. 6 — Mistie Bitner (K-State) def. Mary Jo Young 6-1, 7-6.

Doubles

No. 1 — Guba-Young (NU) def. Ivarsson-Emtell 6-4, 6-4.

No. 2 — Tyggum-Holmen (NU) def. Nel-Rive 6-2, 7-6.

No. 3 — Burcham-Bitner (K-State) def. Deidrich-Quinn 7-5, 7-6.

Oklahoma 8, K-State 1

Singles

No. 1 — Julie Vaughn (OU) def. Burcham 6-0, 7-5.

No. 2 — Susan Campbell (OU) def. Ivarsson 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

No. 3 — Anne Gibbons (OU) def. Emtell 7-6, 6-0.

No. 4 — Nel (K-State) def. Bernadette Brennan 7-5, 1-6, 6-2.

No. 5 — Pam Ridgley (OU) def. Rive 6-1, 7-6.

No. 6 — Debbie Ridgley (OU) def. Bitner 6-0, 6-4.

Doubles

No. 1 — Campbell-Gibbons (OU) def. Ivarsson-Emtell 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

No. 2 — Ridgley-Ridgley (OU) def. Rive-Nel 6-4, 6-2.

No. 3 — Vaughn-Brennan (OU) def. Burcham-Bitner 6-0, 6-0.

Golf squad takes second at WSU meet

By Staff and Wire Reports

K-State's women's golf team finished second out of three teams Saturday in the Wichita State Invitational contest at the par 74, 6,508-yard WSU Golf Course.

K-State fashioned a final round team total of 282 to go along with an opening round score of 267 for a 36-hole total of 549. That total put the Wildcats 48 strokes behind host The Wichita State University, who nabbed first place with a two-day team total of 501 (253-248). Missouri-Kansas City rounded out the field with a score of 594 (297-297).

Top K-State finisher was Jill Zientara who placed seventh with 18-hole rounds of 91-91 for a 182 total. Right behind her in eighth place was Chris Adams with an 84-100 for a 184 total. Other K-State scores included Keli Blake (92-93=185), Beth Holmberg (99-98=197) and Lisa Lugar (105-118=223).

Medalist for the invitational was Wichita State's Christy Hedrick who carded rounds of 81-89 for a 170.

No. 1

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

team they can be beat," added senior defensive tackle Tim MacDonald. "If you can get someone who can control the ball more, they're going to have problems."

Linebacker Lorne Whittle, after his second start of the season, said the Sooners wouldn't even finish the season undefeated.

"They're going to get beat real quick," Whittle said. "They're not an unbeatable team. The just wore us down. But they're going to be sore. They'll know we played them a good game."

Rugby team weathers long tourney weekend

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

K-State's rugby squads played in the Heart of America Invitational tournament Saturday and Sunday at Swope Park in Kansas City and had a tough time of it as they each played three matches in the two-day tournament.

K-State's B-side was successful in its first match, beating University of Kansas 3-0, but was then handed back-to-back setbacks in the double-elimination tournament. The A-side dropped its first game to the Omaha Goats, 12-8, before routing the Fort Leavenworth rugby club 28-0.

The B-side's losses came at the hands of the Des Moines and the Oklahoma City squads. The B-team lost 35-0 and 15-0, respectively.

"Our younger guys played really well this weekend," K-State's rugby club president Dave Todd said. "Our A-side played better on Saturday than it did on Sunday, but the younger guys played well both days."

Two rookie players cited for their tough play were wing forward Darrel Loder and scrum half Tim

STATISTIC	K-STATE	OU
First Downs	13	30
Rushing Yards	108	540
Passing Yards	181	44
Return Yards	0	101
Att.-Comp.-Int.	31-16-0	10-2-0
Total Yards	270	562
Fumbles-Lost	0-0	1-0
Penalties	7-50	7-50
OKLAHOMA	14 17 14 14—59
K-STATE	3 7 0 0—10

RUSHING — K-State: Lewis 5-12, Jordan 11-50, Wilson 1-1, Swim 4-(-11), Henry 4-4, Pickett, 6-29, Hanson 1-2; Oklahoma: Hollaway 15-102, Carr 11-53, Collins 7-53, Stafford 9-51, Thompson 13-55, Mitchell 7-149, Anderson 8-43, Stiel 2-2, Cabbiness 1-7, Parham 1-3.

PASSING — K-State: Swim 24-10-0-140, Hanson 7-4-0-41; Oklahoma: Thompson 3-1-0-16, Hollaway 7-1-0-28.

RECEIVING — K-State: Dean 4-38, Lewis 3-14, Wilson 2-13, Tolbert 2-5, Williams 1-81, Blades 1-20, Hughes 1-18; Oklahoma: Cabbiness 1-28, Mitchell 1-16.

Cavanaugh. "Loder and Cavanaugh) played some excellent rugby for us this weekend," Todd said. "In fact, everybody in the B-team pack played really well."

The A-side did not play as aggressively the second day, and K-State was eliminated from the tournament after losing a 19-6 decision to the Kansas City Colts in their final game.

"Everybody played good ball on Saturday, but it was hard for our A-side to get motivated for an early morning game on Sunday after playing tough on Saturday," Todd said. "Our B-team played really well all weekend but they were just outmanned."

"I'm not really sure why, but we (A-side) just can't seem to play Sunday morning rugby," he added.

K-State did not suffer any injuries during the weekend and will prepare this week for a trip to Omaha next weekend where they will have three matches. The club side will play the Omaha Goats, the collegiate side will take on Creighton University and the C-side will take on the Goats' B-side.

Twins win again to take big lead

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Randy Bush and Tim Lardner sparked another night of fourth-inning hanky panky and the Minnesota Twins defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 Sunday night for a 2-0 lead in the World Series.

Bert Blyleven pitched seven innings, allowing six hits and two runs, while the Twins, whose seven-run fourth keyed a 10-1 mismatch in Game 1, again got their 55,257 fans shouting early at the Metrodome.

World Series Game 2

Twins 8, Cards 4

Gary Gaetti's homer in the second inning off Danny Cox set the crowd screaming and by the time Minnesota combined six hits, including a two-run single by Tim Lardner, and two walks in the fourth, the crowd was singing "My Baby Does The Hanky Panky" and it was 7-0.

The white sea of homer hankies signaled the Cardinals' surrender, and Lardner completed the Twins' scoring with a 420-foot home run to dead center in the sixth.

The Cardinals scored two runs in the eighth off reliever Juan Berenguer, and Jeff Reardon threw the ninth.

Minnesota's 56-25 home record was the best in baseball and the Twins seemed stronger than ever in blowing away the Cardinals, whose 49-41 road mark was tops in the majors. Of the 37 teams that have taken a 2-0 lead in the World Series, 27 have gone on to win.

Game 3 is scheduled for Tuesday night in Busch Stadium with Minnesota's Les Straker, 8-10, facing left-hander John Tudor, 8-2.

The Cardinals headed home shell-shocked and with a five-game losing streak in the World Series. They lost the last three in the 1985 Series and have been outscored 37-7 during their drought.

Blyleven, who won twice in the American League playoffs and is 5-0 in postseason play, easily decided Cox in the first Series meeting of pitchers born outside the United States.

Blyleven, a native of Holland, looked comfortable at home and gave up just three hits through the first six innings. He struck out eight and walked one.

The British-born Cox, regarded by Manager Whitey Herzog as the Cardinals' best big-game pitcher, seemed rattled in foreign territory and yielded seven runs on six hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Volleyball team can't extend streak

By Chase Clark
Staff Writer

Sometimes no matter how many different combinations of ingredients a cook uses, the cook just can't find the right combination to create that special mouth-watering recipe.

Such was the case with K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson against Iowa State on Saturday evening.

The weekend started out on a good note with the Wildcats defeating the University of Colorado, 15-9, 15-9, 11-15, 15-9, Friday night in Ahearn Field House. But then the bottom fell out on the string of seven straight wins in Ahearn Saturday. K-State lost to Iowa State, 11-15, 16-14, 11-15, 10-15, for the second time this year to drop to 12-6 overall and 3-3 in Big Eight Conference play.

K-State defeated Colorado in three games last Saturday in Boulder, but found Friday's match to be much more difficult for several reasons.

Missing from the match Friday was the leadership of K-State player Shawnee Call. She missed the match because of personal reasons.

"(The difference) was obvious from the start of the match," Nelson said. "I saw less communication out on the court. I tried not to coach them too much at first and just try and let them get into whatever rhythm they would get into as a team."

"Once we got into the second game our communication improved. Lynda Harshbarger (17 kills, 8 digs, 4 service aces) came in and played well just as she has all year long," Nelson said. "Mary Kinsey (15 kills, 13 digs) got tougher and tougher as the match went on. Kristi (Jacquart) had a couple of clutch blocks for us that got us some movement after we had been stuck. She hit real smart."

Jacquart broke her fourth serving record at K-State against Colorado. She recorded five service aces in the match and broke the record for the most aces in a season. She has 55 aces this season and 138 in her career.

Colorado battled back several times to overcome an early deficit but was only able to hold on to the momentum and record a win in the third game. Nelson said they are a better team than they showed.

Kelley Carlson and Mary Kinsey block a spike during K-State's volleyball game against Iowa State Saturday in Ahearn Field House. Iowa State defeated the 'Cats, leaving them 3-3 in Big Eight conference play.

"Tonight, they put a lot of pressure on us and were more consistent than in the last match," Nelson said. "They played real well. If they become more consistent they will have success."

Even with Call back for the Iowa State match, K-State found itself battling to stay alive in the match the whole night against the Cyclones.

The Wildcats quickly found themselves behind in the three games they lost and weren't able to keep pace with Iowa State's nearly flawless performance.

"Iowa State played outstanding volleyball," Nelson said. "That's the best any of the conference teams have played against us this year. Against a team like Iowa State or Nebraska, we have to play our best to win.

"Except for game two, (Iowa State) pretty well stayed within their system. We were always battling back. We'd get behind several quick points in a row...we'd try to stop their momentum and maybe gain a couple of points...then it would go back and forth for a while, and all of a sudden they'd go on another little spurt," Nelson said.

No place for playoff in college football

University presidents and athletic directors don't often see eye-to-eye.

A president must have the interests of the entire university at heart when he makes decisions, and an athletic director, by the nature of his job, has the interests of only his specific programs to be concerned with.

But, in a surprising show of unity, presidents and athletic directors in schools across the land have come to an important agreement over the past two weeks — college football does not need a post-season playoff system.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association's Presidents Commission, comprised of 44 presidents from the 105 member schools in NCAA Division I-A, voted unanimously Sept. 30 to oppose a Division I-A playoff because "it would not be in the best interests of intercollegiate athletics," according to University of Maryland Chancellor John Slaughter.

And this past Thursday, the Division I-A Directors Association, comprised of all 105 athletic directors at Division I-A schools, voted by a 2-1 margin to oppose a proposed playoff program.

These moves on the part of university presidents and athletic directors should have a significant impact when the NCAA holds its annual convention in January 1988 in Nashville, Tenn.

College football simply doesn't need a playoff system — it never has, and it never will.

Although Slaughter and new NCAA Executive Director Dick Schultz conceded that the issue is not dead, the two disagree on whether there will ever be a playoff system. Schultz says he thinks such a change is inevitable. It's worked in college basketball, and it would work in college football, so the reasoning goes.

Slaughter said his group's vote sends a "clear signal" that university presidents are opposed to "messing with a good thing." He doesn't discount the fact that the issue will be raised in Nashville, but said that the presidents will make it clear where

Svoboda on Sports

DAVID SVOBODA
Sports Columnist

they stand.

"I don't think it's the feeling of the commission to tell them not to introduce it," Slaughter said of the possible introduction of a playoff motion at the Nashville convention. "But we're sending a very clear signal as to what our feelings are."

"We believe it's a matter that is likely to come up for consideration. We want everyone to be very clear where we stand."

And where the commission stands is right where it should.

The current system, which allows

Division I-A schools to play 11 regular season contests and participate in a post-season bowl game to close out the year, is a sound one.

And, regardless of whether one believes that Associated Press writers and United Press International's board of coaches are capable of choosing a No. 1 team in the land, the system simply doesn't need to be toyed with.

"There are enough games," Slaughter said. "There are enough post-season opportunities. We believe there is nothing to be gained other than satisfying the egos of a few people who will be able to say 'I won the game that identified me as the champion.'"

"I think it's a sort of hollow and meaningless designation. We believe football has matured to the level where there are ample opportunities for teams to demonstrate their abilities."

The current Division I-A system, with its regular-season competition and post-season bowl games, gives the AP writers and coaches voting in the UPI poll an ample opportunity to decide which team is worthy of being given the title "National Champion."

That mythical designation is the biggest problem some have with the current system. All other NCAA sanctioned sports, they complain, have tournaments or playoffs that lead to a national champion determined on the playing field, court, course, mat, pool, etc.

But, as was demonstrated just last year when NBC opened its rather sizeable bank vault and dumped a great deal of it in the laps of Penn State University and the University of Miami to play in the Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 2 to determine "a true national champion," whether or not the NCAA sets up a playoff system, a way will be found to get the best two teams in the nation together at season's end.

The NCAA, in fact, went out of its way to move the game to the day after the traditional end of bowl games — New Year's Day — to give the fans a chance to settle in for "the" game of the year.

College basketball's playoff system has been successful because it is one of the most unique systems of its type anywhere in the world.

Selection committee choices of the 64 teams to participate in the NCAA Division I-A post-season basketball tourney give 64 schools a chance to feel a sense of euphoria found rarely elsewhere.

The bowl game selection committees give fans and schools much the same opportunities. And, regardless of the many plans spoken of that would include the traditional bowl games in a variety of proposed playoff systems, it's the feeling that goes along with being "Orange Bowl Champion," or "Independence Bowl Champion" that makes these contests so special.

Possibly lucrative television contracts, foolish arguments about the credibility of the present system and other speculation aside, the NCAA needs to heed the advice of its presidents and athletic directors and leave well enough alone.

K-State ambassadors announced

2 juniors honored at game

By Jim Vader
Collegian Reporter

K-State's 1987 Homecoming activities culminated Saturday afternoon with the announcing of the University's new ambassadors and the standings in the overall Homecoming spirit competition.

Janelle Larson, junior in animal science and industry, and Mark Lacy, junior in business administration, were named ambassadors in front of 27,200 people at halftime of K-State's football game against University of Oklahoma. Past K-State Ambassadors were also presented to the crowd and were on the field when the new K-State Ambassadors were announced.

Winners of Homecoming competitions which started Wednesday and ended Saturday were:

■ Float competition (fraternities and sororities) — first place, Gamma Phi Beta and Alpha Tau Omega; second place, Kappa Kappa Gamma, FarmHouse and Alpha Gamma Rho; and third place, Kappa Delta and Lambda Chi Alpha.

■ Float competition (residence halls and independents) — first place, Putnam and Goodnow Halls; second place, Boyd and Marlatt Halls; third place, Ford and Haymaker Halls.

■ Body Building — first place, Pi Beta Phi and Theta Xi; second place, Delta Delta Delta and Phi Delta Theta; third place, Alpha Delta Pi and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

■ "Yell Like Hell" — first place, Pi Phi and Theta Xi; second place, Tri Delta and Phi Delta; third place, Kappa, FarmHouse and AGR.

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Jada Allerheilgen, senior in journalism and mass communications, shares in the celebration with Janelle Larson, junior in animal science and industry, as she is named to replace Allerheilgen as ambassador.

■ "Pant the Chant" — first place, Tri Delta and Phi Delta; second place, Pi Phi and Theta Xi; third place, Gamma Phi and ATO.

■ Spirit Banner — first place, Gamma Phi and ATO; second place, Pi Phi and Theta Xi; third place, Alpha Xi Delta and Pi Kappa Alpha.

■ Overall standings for Greek houses division — first place (tie), Pi

Phi and Theta Xi and Tri Delta and Phi Delta; second place, Gamma Phi and ATO; third place, Kappa, FarmHouse and AGR.

■ Overall standings for non-Greek division — first place, Goodnow and Putnam; second place, Boyd, Marlatt and West; third place, Ford and Haymaker.

Senator announces plans for candidacy at campaign kick-off

By Karen Allen
Collegian Reporter

Pat Muir, senior in agricultural economics, announced his candidacy for student body president at a kick-off campaign rally Sunday night.

"If elected, I will remind every student, potential student, administration (member) and faculty member of our legacy and our potential," Muir said.

Muir said his top priority as president would be to maintain student input to the administration, adding that he believes the administration has a moral obligation to keep the lines of communication open.

"The administration is moving so fast," he said. "Student input has to move with it, especially now that the Margin of Excellence plan may make money available for student projects that has not been there in the past."

The Margin of Excellence plan was adopted by the Board of Regents to improve the quality of education at the six state Regents schools through increased funding.

Muir said he believes that being involved in student government for the last 18 months has strengthened his ties with the administration.

"I began my career (in student government) with (University President Jon) Wefald," he said. "We have an excellent working relationship. The administration is where things happen, and I am willing to fight for student input."

Muir served as special projects coordinator for former president Steven Johnson. Muir is currently a student senator and the student representative to Faculty Senate.

Farrell Library funding should be a priority of the administration, Muir said, adding that the $450,000 allotted by the Margin of Excellence plan for improvements to the library does not cover new book and periodical purchases.

He doesn't support the admissions policy recently proposed by the Board of Regents that would require all incoming freshmen to meet one of three requirements to be admitted to either K-State, the University of Kansas or The Wichita State University. The policy states that a student must have either taken a college-prep curriculum, received a 23 on their ACT or have been in the top one-third of their graduating class.

TV Listings

By TV Data

MONDAY OCTOBER 19, 1987

	KSNT 2	WIBW 15	KTCA 10	KSHB 13	KTWU 11	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scoby Doo	Special	Bozo	Nation's Bus.	B. Hillbillies
7:30				Flintstones	Mister Rogers		SportsCenter	Bewitched
8:00		TBA		My Little Pony	Sesame	Smurfs	SportsLook	Little House
8:30				Brady Bunch	Street	Teddy Ruxpin	Harness Rac-	on the Prairie
9:00	Hour Maga-	$25K Pyramid	Ghostbusters	Who's Boss	Sesame	H's Heroes	Hydroplane	Movie: "Johnny
9:30	zine	Card Sharks	G.I. Joe	Mr. Belvedere	Street	Twilight Zone	Racing: Silver	"Johnny
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss	M.T. Moore	Body Electric	Andy Griffith	Waterskiing	Eager
10:30	Lose or Draw		Mr. Belvedere	Dick Van	Write Course
11:00	Password	Young and the	Love Connec.	Dyke	Communi.	Geraldo	Aerobics	Perry Mason
11:30	Wheel-Fortune	Restless	Ask Dr. Ruth	Green Acres	Mio Paese		Getting Fit
12:00	News	Midday	All My Child-	Beaver	Sesame	News	College Foot-	Movie: "Ar-
12:30	Days of Our	Bold/Beautiful	ren	I Love Lucy	Street		ball: Tennes-	tists and Mo-
1:00	Lives	As the World	One Life to	Andy Griffith	Nature	Van Dyke	see at Ala-	dels
1:30	Another World	Turns	Live	B. Hillbillies		Andy Griffith	bama
2:00		Guiding Light	General Hospi-	Brady Bunch	Nature	Beaver		Tom & Jerry
2:30	Santa Barbara		tal	Zoobilee Zoo	Learn to Read	Ghostbusters		and Friends
3:00		Donahue	Scoby Doo	Smurfs	Cooking	Jem	AWA Wres-	Flintstones
3:30	Oprah Winfrey	Thundercats	Thundercats	Ghostbusters	On Aerobics	Transformers	ting	Flintstones
4:00		Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game	Jetsons	Square 1 TV	G.I. Joe	Hydroplane	Munsters
4:30	3's Company		P. Court	M. Bravestar	3-2-1 Contact	M. Bravestar	Racing: Col-	Laverne
5:00	Family Ties	News	ABC News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame	Facts of Life	SportsLook	Alice
5:30	NBC News	CBS News	ABC News	Facts of Life	Street	WKRP	Sportstalk	Leave/Beaver
6:00	News	News	M*A*S*H	WKRP	MacNeil / Leh-	Cheers	SportsCenter	Andy Griffith
6:30	Wheel-Fortune	Truth/Conseq	Newlywed	Gimme Br.	rer Newshour	Barney Miller	NFL Monday	Sanford
7:00	ALF	ALF	MacGyver	Hill Street	America By	Movie: "Hooper"	NFL Monday	Movie: "Mag-
7:30	Val's Family	Val's Family		Blues	Design		NFL Monday	nificent Ob-
8:00	Movie: "Strange	Movie: "Strange	NFL Football: Washington	Cousteau's Rediscovery	Oil		Bodybuilding session"
9:00	Voices	Voices	Redskins at Dallas Cow-	of the World	Studebaker	News	Volleyball: USA Cup	Movie: "All
9:30
10:00	News	News	boys	Barney Miller	Wild America	H'mooner	final match	That Heaven
10:30	Tonight Show	Cheers		Late Show	Business Rpt.	Magnum, P.I.	SportsCenter	Allows
11:00		Diamonds	News	MacNeil / Leh-			NFL Theatre: Fabulous Fil-	National Geo-
11:30	Ent. Tonight		Nightline	rer Newshour
12:00	David Letter-	Magnet of Santa Mesa	700 Club	Dating Game	Movie: "White Heat"	Movie: "Shampoo"	NFL Great	graphic Ex-
12:30	man						NFL Great	plorer

FREE DELIVERY
HUNAM
Restaurant
1304 Westloop
10% off with KSU ID
539-8888 539-0888

Wichita
Family Planning Inc.
Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services
Free Pregnancy Testing
Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

"Her loveliness I never knew until she smiled at me."
Henry Hartley

Teeth cleaning from $20

Smile enhancement by the professionals

SAGER DENTAL ASSOCIATES, P.A.
514 Humboldt Plaza Hygiene Department 913-537-8823

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Classified Categories

- 01 Announcements
- 02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished
- 03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished
- 04 Automobiles for Sale
- 05 Automobile Rentals
- 06 Card of Thanks
- 07 Child Care
- 08 Computers
- 09 Employment
- 10 Financial Services
- 11 Garage and Yard Sales
- 12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent
- 13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale
- 14 Lost and Found
- 15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
- 16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
- 17 Musical Instruments
- 18 Personals
- 19 Pets and Pet Supplies
- 20 Professional Services
- 21 Rentals
- 22 Resume/Typing Services
- 23 Roommate Wanted
- 24 Situation Wanted
- 25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
- 26 Sublease
- 27 Welcome
- 28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20
21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Water

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

system," Stilley said in the letter. "We would appreciate what you can do for us and to get those old women who are causing trouble with both us and your department off our backs."

At the request of several residents, KDHE conducted a number of chemical tests on the water in May and June. While the tests detected small levels of trihalomethane (THM) compounds, the levels were below the state maximum contaminant level. THMs are suspected carcinogens that form when natural organics in water react with chlorine used as a disinfectant.

Some residents said they didn't care what the tests showed. They still won't drink their water.

Steve Burnett, employee of Wayne's Body Shop, said he brings drinking water from town.

"It tastes terrible," he said. "We don't drink any of it."

Arthur Hansen said during the last week of August, his water smelled so bad he couldn't drink it.

"It smelled like a dead rat was in it," he said.

Hansen said he would love to have city water.

"We'd like to have the pressure and clean water that the city has, even if it costs a bit more," he said. "Plus, if we get city water out here, then we'll get fire hydrants and our insurance will go down."

Other residents agreed.

"We want to get on city water," Grimes said. "We're hoping if we get city water, maybe we could get a fire hydrant or two out here."

Jake Busch, owner of J & J Convenience Mart and Deli, said he was forced to install a water softener because of the deposits in his water.

"Before I put a softener on it, it tasted pretty bad," he said. "You couldn't even make a decent cup of coffee."

"I think it tastes good," Stilley said of the water. "I can taste chlorine in our water, but not to the extent that it's offensive."

He said he is not on the Fairmont Heights line, but only because it would be too expensive to pipe it to his house on Crestline Drive.

One customer who doesn't want city water is A.S. Casey. At 1,200 feet above sea level, he said he is in the "worst place around" for pressure.

"The pressure is not city water pressure, but it's adequate," he said. "We very seldom go under 25 pounds (per square inch)."

The state minimum requirement is 20 pounds per square inch.

The main reason Casey said he doesn't want city water is because of the cost. To get city water, the area will have to be annexed by the city, he said.

"I think a lot of these people don't understand the amount of added costs that will be put on to each individual property owner during a year's period of time," he said.

As for the quality of his water, Casey said it is hard, but "that's just a fact of life. All it takes is a water softener."

Officials' concerns

Riley County Commissioner Wilton Thomas wrote a letter to Katie Smith last week expressing concern about all the water in the area.

"There is no doubt that a problem exists," the letter said. "With regard to the water quality, there is general agreement that in the community the water is hard and that as delivered to the faucet on occasion at least it contains sediment or other foreign materials which make it very unappetizing in appearance."

One alternative would be to apply for a Community Development Block Grant next year to pay for a study and possible solution of the problem, Thomas wrote in the letter. Commissioners applied for such a grant last August, but it was denied.

Another choice would be to organize a benefit water district to secure an acceptable water supply, develop a satisfactory delivery system and set up a method of payment.

A third choice, the letter said, would be to do nothing.

"From the comments numerous people have made to me, I question if this is an acceptable choice," Thomas said. "To the extent that the health hazards now exist or may develop if nothing is done, this is surely not a choice that I could recommend."

As for his customers, Stilley said their complaints about low pressure are not valid.

"We are above the state allowed water pressure," he said.

In a letter dated May 22, KDHE told Stilley's a 4-inch line should improve pressure.

"You should be aware that your system is probably substandard from a public fire protection standpoint while it may be able to provide sufficient quantities of safe domestic use water," the letter said.

KDHE wrote the Stilley's again July 21, saying, "We cannot agree with your request to delay the 4-inch line improvements...we request you move forward with these improvements, as previously agreed to, this summer."

Stilley, who has 4-inch pipes on all but about a one-mile stretch of the line, said last week the agreement with KDHE was that he would make the improvements if he could get financing. So far, he said, he has not been successful.

"We'd like very much to put the 4-inch lines in," he said.

But, he added, estimated cost for the line is $22,000.

"So we've got 22,000 reasons why it hasn't been corrected."

The residents who want to get on the city water line "have no idea what they're talking about," Stilley said.

City water would cost much more because of hookups and taxes, he said.

And when it comes to fire protection: "I'd say our fire department is pretty much on the ball," Stilley said. "They do as good a job as any fire department can be expected to do."

ClassAds

532-6555

Kedzie 103

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

MONDAYS SHRIMP NIGHT
15¢ shrimp
$1 draws
$2.75 pitchers
4-7 p.m.
THE COTTON CLUB
418 Poyntz

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

TANS TO GO
Appointments or Walkins
Call for Specials
1214C Moro
on Cobblers Lane, Aggieville
776-7874

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

Pronouncing English as a Second Language
Foreign Accent Improvement Workshop
An intensive 3 week program to maximize social & educational speaking skills

Nov. 14 & 15, Dec. 3
Evaluation $85
Tuition $450
Enrollment Deadline: Oct. 23
For more information & to register contact:

Junction City
Speech & Language Clinic
762-3350,
Manhattan 539-6377

DO YOU let people spend your money without asking you first? That's what Student Senate is doing with $1.2 million of student funds. Sign the Holton Hall referendum petition to give the students the right to vote on this issue. Call 532-7777 for details. (38-42)

RECREATION CAREER Day—Oct. 21, in KS and U rooms of Union, exhibits 10-12. (40-42)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02
NICE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments. Very close to campus. Available Nov. 1. Please call 776-9124. (371f)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03
FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211f)

NICE, LARGE one- and two-bedroom apartments in Westloop area. Please call 776-9124. (371f)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04
VW 1600 cc Bug engine, complete, 1600 cc rebuilt shortblock, IRS, Bug transmission. Import auto repairs at J & L Auto Service, 1494-2388, St. George. (38-51)

1983 CHEV. Celebrity, excellent condition, $4,000, must see to appreciate. Call 537-0881. (38-42)

MUST SELL 1970 Chevrolet Impala, 17,750 miles. Excellent condition, $300. Call 539-2421. (40-44)

COMPUTERS 08

APPLE 2C-128K, new monitor and keyboard, two drives, imageview printer, all software included. Call Jason, 539-2321. (38-40)

EMPLOYMENT 09

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000/month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work, electronics, crafts. Others information (504) 641-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-59)

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South Padre Island, Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-282-6221. (35-44)

WE SEEK entrepreneur business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

NETWORK MARKETING! The wave of the future! You choose earnings and hours, 776-3759 after 6 p.m. (37-41)

BABYSITTER NEEDED immediately in my home for 15-month-old. Light housekeeping and some meal preparation. Good health, non-smoker, references required. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and some evenings. Call 539-4915; leave message. (38-42)

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 East Poyntz, 9-9. (39-47)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service office. We offer student pay plan, job variety and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency. Must be clean, neat, wear appropriate attire and be able to obtain a Food Handler's card. (38-44)

SELL AD space, earn big $, experienced only, call Scott at College Design 1 (314) 227-0082, leave name, number and university. (39-40)

TACO BELL needs friendly, energetic people to work lunch or dinner shifts. Apply from 1-5 p.m., 1155 Westport. (39-40)

JOIN OUR "Nanny Network" of over 600 placed by us in the Northeast. One year working with kids in exchange for salaries up to $250/week, room and board, airfare and benefits. We offer the Best Choices in families and location. Contact Helping Hands, Inc. at 1-800-544-NANI for brochure and application. Featured on NBC's Today Show and in Oct. 1987 Working Mother magazine as nationally recognized leader in Nanny placement. Established in 1984. (40)

FLEXIBLE PART-TIME and full-time day positions open now. Apply in person at Pinata. Ask for Kim. (40-42)

Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings
30% OFF
327 Poyntz 776-7983

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Touch
5 Insert a new sound track
8 Identical
12 Hodge-podge
13 Eskimo knife
14 One type of bargain
15 RBI or ERA
16 British soldiers
18 Sauce basis, often
20 Evening party
21 Twitches
23 Popular street name
24 Artist's pigment
28 Tell the D.A.
31 Use the "plastic money"
32 Pueblo Indians
34 Biodegradable acid
35 Oppose boldly
37 Traffic signal

DOWN
39 Shoe width
41 Pompano's kin
42 Party tidbit
45 "Don Giovanni" and "Carmen"
49 Lake Winnipeg feeder
51 Verdi heroine
52 City on the Oka
53 Period
54 "On Your —" (musical)
55 Lean and sinewy
56 Nothing

11 Alleviate
17 Runner
19 Half of grand-father's noise?
22 People of the Sudan
24 Baseball's Carew
25 Female sheep
26 Protector tree
27 It's used in jewelry
29 To the — degree
30 Narrow ship channel
33 What a cad deserves?
36 Annual 38 Imagine
40 Slender
42 Exult
43 It goes before form
44 Break —
46 — Act (1715 law)
47 Arabian gulf
48 Fencer's cry
50 Son of Gad

Solution time: 25 mins.

IRE ORES TOES
SAL DOME EARP
MYSTIQUE XRAY
SEEVYOU SPA
RUE RISQUE
LAGOS SEX URN
ETAL TED BIGD
NOT CHE ROPES
OPAQUE TEX
ARC IDEALS
QUIT REMARQUE
ETNA AKIN UNE
DEAR BEDS ADD

Saturday's answer 10-19

CRYPTOQUIP

10-19
R X K Y T C V C G K R V K W
X A A K Y H W V : " K P X R
A X G H Q H R R , R C W C P
K ' T A X G Q H R R .
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: TO PAY A FEW OF HIS BILLS, CRAFTY CHEF WROTE A POT BOILER.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals C

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

"Steak knife... I mean, scalpel."

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

International people unite to eat, enjoy worldwide cuisine

By Stacy Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

Bulgogi from Korea, Kohssay from Ethiopia and chicken from Singapore.

There is only one place at K-State serving cuisine from around the world — the International Potluck Supper. About 125 people attended the supper, sponsored by the International Club, Saturday night at the International Student Center.

"This is one place where you can come in one evening and have the world represented," said Cindy Yc Hong, senior in engineering technology and president of the club.

Foods from the countries of Malaysia, Jordan, India and the United States were also served at the supper.

"A lot of Americans are afraid of joining (the club), but more American people are coming. Americans are foreign too," said Yun Hui Rorie, senior in environmental design. "A lot of the Americans who have joined the club are those who have traveled, because they've experienced other cultures."

Bernd Foerster, professor of environmental design, is a veteran patron of the international suppers.

Collegian/Sarah Bradshaw
Stefan Ding, graduate in business, and Habib Zehtab, senior in electrical engineering, converse while eating at the International Potluck Supper.

Bork

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

committee headed by Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, played a role in changing his mind, but he said there was no intimidation or harassment.

Peter Harris, Metzenbaum's chief aide, said Sunday that Greene's statement to the newspaper — that neither Metzenbaum nor other committee members knew of her call or urged her to make it — was accurate.

He quoted Metzenbaum, who is strongly opposed to the nomination, as saying, "This shows how desperate the White House has become."

"The issue is Judge Bork's record and views, not a private conversation between two longtime friends," he said in a statement.

Byrd, D-W. Va., announced Friday that he would open debate on the nomination Tuesday unless the Senate makes that impossible by arguing over the need for invoking the War Powers Act due to developments in the Persian Gulf.

The senator has said there's no reason for a lengthy debate because 54 of 100 senators already have announced their opposition to the nominee.

Humphrey, however, vowed Sunday to "stand against the herd" to make sure Bork gets a full hearing in the Senate.

PHI BETA SIGMA FRATERNITY BUDWEISER

presents

THUNDER MARCHDOWN '87 All Greek Step Show

Sat., Nov. 7, 1987

Houston Street Ballroom • 427 Houston St.

Post Game Party Begins at 5 p.m.

Step Competition Begins at 9 p.m.

$3 in advance • $4 at Door • $3 Greeks in Colors

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Goodnow,
Off Campus

Oct. 20: Goodnow,
Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Ladies . . . let us repair those worn & broken heel caps—while you wait!

Also, polishing, refinishing and dyeing

OLSON'S

1214-C Moro Aggieville
on Cobble Lane

From here to Infinity:
An orthopedic technician available to help aid your comfort.

OPEN FORUM

The Task Force reviewing the counseling, mental and physical health services provided to KSU students invites comments from students, faculty, and staff.

Tuesday, October 20
3:30 p.m.

K-State Union, Room 212

For further information contact:
Mike Lynch, 204 Holton Hall, 532-6492

WE ARE ONLY A
PHONE CALL AWAY

Medical advice is as close as your telephone. If you are uncertain whether your condition is something you can take care of yourself or whether you need to see a physician, you can call LAFENE HEALTH CENTER, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Our professional staff will advise you on the best course of action—either home care or medical care at our facility. The next time you are uncertain what to do, call 532-6544—we are only a phone call away.

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

LET'S TALK ABOUT IT . . .

Aggieville Merchants Association Representatives will be speaking on October 22 at Noon in the Union Catskeller. They will discuss the KU—K-STATE game situation.

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

ROCK & ROLL ROCK & ROLL CONFIDENTIAL

DAVE MARSH

America's best known rock writer

October 20, 1987
at 8:00 p.m.

Forum Hall
Free Admission

A lecture that will change the way you hear music for the rest of your life

Midday Arts
presents

A Preview of the Musical

SOUTH PACIFIC

by the K-State Players

Oct. 21

12:00 Noon
Union Courtyard

AMERICAN POP

The State of the Art
in Living Animation.

An animated journey tracing the growth of America and its music as seen through the lives of four generations of an American musical family. The film follows the family from turn-of-the-century burlesque through today's New Wave rock 'n' roll. Wednesday, October 21, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall and Thursday, October 22, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre and 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall All Shows $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated R.

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Coors LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

Featuring David Naster
and Taylor Mason;
Thursday, October 29,
1987; 8:00 p.m.;
McCain Auditorium

David Naster is a comedian who uses impressions with comedy percussion and many other humorous talents. Naster has appeared with George Burns, Yakov Smirnov, and Morey Amsterdam.

Also appearing is Taylor Mason, who presents laughter with music and ventriloquism. He can make anyone laugh with his special talents! Mason has opened for concerts such as Tina Turner and Crystal Gayle. He has also appeared on Comedy Tonight and Robert Klein's Time on the USA Cable Network.

k-state union
upc eclectic entertainment

Mall Business

Many Aggieville merchants believe the opening of the Manhattan Town Center will help, rather than hurt, their business. See Page 3.

Weather

Partly sunny and cold today, high 45 to 50. Clearing and colder tonight, low mid-20s. Mostly sunny and cold Wednesday, high 45 to 50.

member Laura Haggerty has made an improvement since her transfer from the University of Iowa. See Page 5.

Tuesday
October 20, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 41

Kansas State Collegian

Dow Jones average plunges 500 points

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market plunged out of control Monday in a selling panic that rivaled the Great Crash of 1929, pushing the Dow Jones average down more than 500 points, draining more than $500 billion from the value of stocks and sending shock waves around the world.

"Whether today was a financial meltdown or not... I wouldn't want to be around for one worse than this," said John Phelan, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange.

Experts analyze market decline/Page 3

The Dow's plunge to 1,738.74 left it 22.6 percent below Friday's level, a one-day loss far larger than the 12.8 percent drop on Oct. 28, 1929, known as Black Monday, or Oct. 29, 1929, when it fell an additional 11.7 percent.

The Dow average's worst percentage decline ever was on Dec. 12, 1914, early in World War I, when it lost 24.4 percent of its value.

The market fed on itself in wave after wave of selling in the busiest trading day ever on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow industrials fell 508.00 points to 1,738.74, a loss of nearly 1,000 points since the market's peak Aug. 25.

The latest decline left the Dow industrial average about 36 percent below its peak of 2,722.42 on Aug. 25 and at its lowest point since April 1986.

The collapse of prices caused long-term damage to the health of stock exchanges and probably destroyed some of the confidence that underpins the growth of the world economy, analysts said.

"We're having extreme panic in the marketplace. It's like Armageddon," said Alfred E. Goldman, director of market analysis for A.G. Edwards & Sons in St. Louis.

Analysts were reluctant to compare Monday's plunge with the stock market crash that helped set off the Depression of the 1930s, but they said there were fears in the market that a possible recession in the United States could snowball into a worldwide downturn.

"In a nutshell, this thing could go further. There's a domino effect here," said Leonard Grimaldi, executive vice president of Amivest Corp. in New York.

"This is a dangerous day to say the least,

and we are not alarmists here," Grimaldi said.

Earlier Monday, panic selling gripped stock exchanges in Tokyo, Hong Kong, London, Frankfurt, Amsterdam and other financial centers, with records set for one-day losses.

The rout was all the more stunning because there did not seem to be any major news event that caused it. A selling trend that picked up speed in the middle of last week simply gained unstoppable momentum and turned into a frenzy.

Underlying the market's decline were continued fears over inflation, rising interest rates and a weakening dollar. The United States is the world's largest debtor and has made extremely slow progress in reducing its trade deficits.

The volume of trading soared to 604.4 million shares, dwarfing the record of about 330 million shares set Friday. Shares that lost in value outnumbered gainers by 48 to 1.

President Reagan discussed the market fall with advisers, and the administration emphasized that the U.S. economy is healthy.

"I think everyone is a little puzzled because — I don't know what meaning it might have — because all the business indices are up," Reagan said. "There is nothing wrong with the economy."

The stock market's plunge brought out political recriminations elsewhere in Washington.

House Speaker Jim Wright dismissed as "balderdash" the Reagan administration assertion that Democrats' work on a tax increase package has helped put the stock market into a tailspin.

Panic selling probably was boosted by fears of conflict with Iran.

The United States destroyed an Iranian offshore platform, formerly used for oil drilling, in the central Persian Gulf on Monday in retaliation for a missile attack on a U.S.-flagged tanker.

Other financial markets emerged relatively unscathed by the turmoil in stocks.

The Dow's history

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones industrial average, which took a record drop of more than 500 points Monday, is the oldest and best known measure of trends in American stock prices.

The average, which was originated in the late 19th century by Dow Jones & Co. Inc., publishers of the Wall Street Journal, is made up of 30 blue chip stocks such as International Business Machines, General Motors and American Telephone & Telegraph.

It is calculated by adding up the prices of its 30 component stocks and then dividing the sum by a divisor that has been adjusted periodically to reflect events such as new stocks being added to the average or stock splits for companies on the list.

Iran vows revenge U.S. attacks oil platforms

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — U.S. warships destroyed two Iranian oil platforms in the Persian Gulf on Monday and Navy commandos raided a third.

Iran said the Americans had begun a "full-fledged war" to which it promised "a crushing response."

President Reagan called the 85-minute attack "a prudent yet restrained response" to Friday's missile strike on U.S.-flagged tanker off Kuwait. The missile was believed launched from the nearby Faw Peninsula, which Iran has conquered in its 7-year-old war with Iraq.

The Pentagon said no Americans were injured in Monday's operations. Tehran said the attack wounded some Iranian "civilian crewmen" but did not mention fatalities.

The White House said gunfire wiped out two platforms at one location and U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the battle area was the Rostam oil platforms.

After some initial confusion, Tehran said the two platforms hit were at the Reshadat, or Rakhsh, field 75 miles east of Qatar and 60 miles from the Iranian coast. Rakhsh and Rostam are about 20 miles apart.

Staff/Mary Ward

The discrepancy between the Iranian and U.S. reports could not be immediately resolved. On all except very detailed maps of the gulf, the two fields appear to be very close.

The oil platforms, which have an underwater pipeline running to Iran's coastal Lavan island, are among many permanent drilling rigs in the central gulf. Iran is known to have used some for helicopter and armed speedboat attacks on commercial shipping.

Before darkness fell, salvage tugs and other craft reported columns of smoke rising from the offshore rigs. U.S. warships were warning other craft away from the area, shipping executives in the gulf said.

At 1:30 p.m., the four destroyers ■ See GULF, Page 8

Police continue investigation in Aggieville stabbing incident

By Jeffrey J. Bielser
News Editor

Riley County Police are still looking for a suspect in the stabbing of a K-State student Friday in Aggieville.

Marvin Peck, freshman in engineering (major unspecified), was stabbed once in the right shoulder about 11 p.m. in the 600 block of North Manhattan Avenue, said Capt. Larry Woodyard of the Riley County Police Department. Peck was treated and released at Lafene Student Health Center.

Police are seeking a black male, 16 to 18 years old, 5 feet 4 inches to 5 feet 8 inches tall, 130 to 160 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes, who is suspected in the stabbing, according to the police report.

Two other individuals were with the suspect at the time of the incident. They are described as a black male, between 19 and 22 years old, 6 foot 3 inches tall, 210 to 220 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes; and a white male between 17 and 18 years old, 5 feet 8 inches to 5 feet 10 inches tall, 150 to 170 pounds, with black hair and no description of eye color.

The stabbing was preceded by a "verbal confrontation" inside Hardee's Restaurant, 606 N. Manhattan Ave., and then the stabbing took place in front of Espresso Royale, 618 N. Manhattan Ave., Woodyard said.

Peck said he and a friend were in Hardee's when a verbal exchange between them and the other group first took place.

After Peck and his friend left the restaurant, they went outside to find the three suspects waiting, Peck said. The two groups exchanged more words and then Peck and his friend began to walk away.

As they were walking north along Manhattan Avenue, Peck said, the shorter white male bumped the shorter black male into Peck. Peck shoved back, knocking the black male into the white male.

He said he thought the white male might be mad, so Peck turned to face him and that is when he was stabbed by the shorter black male.

"I didn't know I had been stabbed at first," Peck said. "I thought I had been hit with something (made of) steel."

It was only after seeing the suspect with a knife in his hands running across the street toward the northeast, he said, that he suspected he had been stabbed.

Peck said he did not tell his friend at first, because he feared the friend might chase the suspects. Instead, Peck and his friend went to Kite's Bar and Grille, 619 N. 12th St., where he met some friends who took him to Lafene. He received eight stitches in the right shoulder.

Woodyard said police are continuing the investigation into the incident.

Arc sparks

Welder Larry McCoy makes sparks while repairing a piece of pipe Monday on a fence along Mid Campus Drive. The job took McCoy about 45 minutes before he moved on to another bend.

Staff/Andy Nelson

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Age limits dancer's agility

NEW YORK — Mikhail Baryshnikov says his career as a classical dancer is drawing to a close as he approaches 40. "But at the same time, you know, life is getting more interesting in a way."

"I do much less stupidity," Baryshnikov said in an interview with Cosmopolitan magazine released Sunday. "I gave up smoking three years ago. I don't drink any more either. I talk to my dog more and more."

Turning 40 in January "sounds so horrible," Baryshnikov said. But while age is limiting his ability to dance classical ballet and has made him more prone to injuries, "It's normal, it's life," he said.

Author knighted by French

JACKSON, Miss. — Jean Charpentier, cultural attache to the French Consulate at New Orleans, has bestowed a knighthood on Mississippi author Eudora Welty for her contributions to literature.

Charpentier named her Chevalier Eudora Welty as nearly 300 people watched Sunday in the Old Capitol Museum. He told her, "The citizens of Mississippi...and of France, we are very proud of what you do."

After kissing each of her cheeks, he pinned the Chevalier de l'Ordre des Arts et Lettres medal to her dress.

Miss Welty told him, "My debt to your country, sir, has been deep before now. France has been to me what she has been to many another lover of literature and human letters, to many another writer the world over."

Organized labor to rise again

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — Ed Asner, former two-term president of the Screen Actors Guild, said organized labor is rising in status "from the ashes of the Reagan administration."

Asner, who was best known as television's Lou Grant and now the star of "The Bronx Zoo," received the Eugene V. Debs Award on Saturday from the Eugene V. Debs Foundation in Terre Haute. The annual award was presented to him for his public service work.

An outspoken critic of U.S. foreign policy, Asner also appeared at a news conference in Indianapolis, where he called upon President Reagan to cut off U.S. aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Pop Star donates to auction

TOKYO — Pop idol Michael Jackson wound up a month-long concert tour in Japan on Monday by donating for a charity auction a number of personal items, including T-shirts, a windbreaker and glasses he wore during concerts.

"Michael Jackson gave us a total of 30 personalized items, some of which will be sent to us from the United States," said Tamaki Obana, secretary general of the Japan Federation of UNESCO Associations.

The items will be sold Oct. 30 in Tokyo at an auction to raise funds to educate children in Third World countries, she said. Sales of Jackson's personal items have raised thousands of dollars for charities in the United States.

Goetz sentenced to 6 months

NEW YORK — Subway gunman Bernhard Goetz was sentenced Monday to six months in jail, ordered to undergo psychiatric treatment and fined $5,000 by a judge who rejected recommendations that he be allowed to go free.

Goetz, who shot four youths on a subway nearly three years ago, stood impassively as acting state Supreme Court Justice Stephen G. Crane sentenced him on the single gun possession count on which he was convicted.

The crime carries a maximum penalty of seven years in prison, though first-time offenders like Goetz rarely go to jail.

Goetz also was sentenced to five years of probation and 280 hours of community service at New York University Medical Center.

"A non-jail sentence for Mr. Goetz would invite others to violate the gun law," Crane said. "Whether you agree with the law or not, it is the law and it was the law on Dec. 22, 1984, and it remains the law."

Asked if he wished to say anything before the judge pronounced sentence, Goetz said, "No. I have nothing to say."

After the sentence was passed, Goetz stood silent, showing no emotion.

Crane said Goetz could choose his psychiatrist. In its presentencing memo, the Probation Department had suggested "intensive supervision coupled with indefinite psychiatric intervention," but no jail time.

Mating dogs present danger

TOPEKA — Two dogs mating near an airport runway at Forbes Field were killed last month by security officers who feared the dogs posed a danger to a plane carrying President Reagan.

The incident has prompted letters of complaint to the White House, and threats on the life of the man who ordered the dogs killed.

"We did what we had to do," said Marvin Hancock, deputy director of the Metropolitan Topeka Airport Authority. "We were told anything that moves has to be removed."

Hancock said airport security officers were combing the grounds Sept. 6 just before Reagan was scheduled to arrive in Air Force One. Reagan was in Topeka for a pre-100th birthday celebration for former Gov. Alf Landon, who died last week.

Bloomingtondale's visits Kansas

WICHITA — If Pam Morris has her way, Kansas-bred buffalo meat will soon be given a home where New Yorkers roam.

Morris' company was among 80 Kansas firms meeting with Bloomingtondale's buyers this week. The firms hope to make their homegrown products part of a special display next year at the posh New York-based department store chain.

"This is tender," said Michael Regina, a food buyer for Bloomingtondale's, forking up a mouthful of Butler County buffalo on Monday. "It's delicious."

Morris, who lives in Rose Hill, was pleased with the prospect that the shaggy beasts raised and slaughtered by the company she co-owns, The Best Butcher, might grace plates in both Manhattan, Kan., and Manhattan, N.Y.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SGA ELECTIONS COMMITTEE poll workers are needed for Student Government elections Nov. 3-4. Sign up in SGS office by Friday.

SINGLE PARENTS/DISABLED HOMEMAKERS $300 scholarships are now available in Blumont 407, Holton 101 or Financial Aid office. For more information call 532-6561.

ARTS AND SCIENCES CLUBS interested in being considered for the 1987-88 allocation period contact the Arts and Sciences Council at 532-6900. Deadline is Thursday.

WILDCAT TIPOFF CLASSIC men's and women's 3-on-3 basketball tournament is Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms are available at Union Information Desk, Hollis House and Ahearn 101. The deadline for registration is Oct. 23.

CENTER FOR BASIC CANCER RESEARCH, DIVISION OF BIOLOGY applications available in Acker 131. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT FILING FORMS are now available in the SGA office in the Union. Filing deadline is today.

TODAY

SOCIETY OF MANUFACTURING ENGINEERS meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 209 for yearbook pictures.

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

KSUARH EXECUTIVES meet at 10 p.m. in ARH office.

PRE-VET CLUB/COMMUNITY SERVICE COMMITTEE meets at 7:30 p.m. in Call 140.

HOME ECONOMICS EDUCATION INTEREST GROUP meets at 6 p.m. in Blumont 343 for a discussion on entrepreneurship. Yearbook pictures will follow the meeting.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA meets at 7 p.m. in Willard 218.

KSU AMATEUR RADIO CLUB meets at 8:30 p.m. in Union 203. Please bring copy of constitution.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

SIGN LANGUAGE GATHERING meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union 202. All sign language users are welcome. Future regular meetings may be discussed.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

Notice

The UPC Issues and Ideas sponsored lecture "Censorship in the Rock 'n Roll Industry," scheduled to be given by Dave Marsh at 8 p.m. tonight has been cancelled.

K-STATE PLAYERS

Rodgers & Hammerstein's

SOUTH PACIFIC

Oct. 22-23-24
8:00 p.m.

McCain Auditorium

532-6398

M-F

12-5

Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

$1.25 Imports
$1.25 Wells
$2 Pitchers

Don't forget... Animal House
TOGA Party on Wednesday!

Haircuts

HERS..... $8.50

Includes Shampoo & Style

$10.50

539-TAME or 539-8601
404 Humboldt

Schnapps & Hopps Special

All day Wednesday

The Ranch

SALOON

3 mi. East Hwy 24
539-4989

A Class B Private Club

FILING DEADLINE

IS TODAY

For: Student Body President
Student Senate
Board of Student Publications

Due by 5 p.m. in Holton 102

PHARMACIST

Full-time or part-time variable shifts, weekend rotation. Duties involve unit dose, IV services. The Saint Mary Hospital is a full service, acute care hospital.

THE SAINT MARY HOSPITAL
Manhattan, KS
(913) 776-1981
Personnel Dept.

the saint mary hospital
Equal Opportunity Employer

KWIK SHOP

CONVENIENCE STORES

1337 Anderson

Pizza by the slice 99¢

12" & 14" Whole Pizzas

Starting at $4⁹⁹

Call ahead at 537-0715
Ready in just 10 minutes!

Try our Kwik Kwencher
32 oz. Insulated Refillable Cup refills 49¢

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Goodnow,
Off Campus

Oct. 21: Goodnow, Haymaker,
Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

RUSHWACKERS

THE FUNDRIKERY

DISCOVER THE FUN

Comedy Invasion

Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.

Tonight

James Lee Reeves
along with Steve Marmel

Show 9 p.m. Tickets $2

Office Bar
539-4321 539-9727

IT'S ALMOST TIME!

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

Business Tuesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, October 20, 1987 ■ Page 3

Market's decline reduces chance of lowering deficit

By Janet Swanson
Agri/Business Editor

Although the stock market's plunge Monday was nearly 10 percent greater than on Black Monday in 1929, experts say it's not yet time to panic.

However, they do say to expect significant changes.

"Americans lost more than $800 billion on paper in one day," said Lloyd Thomas, professor of economics. Paper money is a loss of money based on the market.

Because of the drop, Thomas believes the feasibility of the Gramm-Rudman Act, which would eliminate the country's deficit, is no longer there.

"It's dead in the water. It only makes sense to throw it out," he said.

The stock market, Thomas said, is a sideshow to the real economy. Its loss will prompt consumers to be more conservative and spend less money, thereby creating a larger deficit.

"The deficit will get larger and the government will have to step in and take a bigger portion of it," Thomas said. "I think this underlines the folly of (President) Reagan's earlier deficits."

Its drop will also prompt a higher gold value, lower dollar value and even higher interest rates.

"It is possible that we haven't seen the bottom of the market," said Rick Kramer, security manager for Sabatka Financial Advisory Services in Manhattan. Sabatka is listed with the Securities Exchange Commission as an interest adviser.

Thomas and Kramer both do not believe the dramatic fall means a recession is imminent.

"Banks may be more exposed now (than in past years), but they are still stronger than they were in the crash of 1929," Thomas said. During 1929, more than 2,000 banks closed, compared to the slightly more than 100 failings last year.

Kramer believes the market will regain its strength, but not until late this year or possibly early 1988.

"It is going to take more than one to two days, or even a week of stabilization to cause people to jump back in and start buying," he said.

In order to stabilize the market, Marvin A. Thompson, K-State's director of internal audit, said the market may shut down for a day or that the market's future is dependent upon the factors which caused its decline.

Major factors playing a role in the drop include high interest rates, the trade deficit, increased selling of mutual funds, the threat of economic recession and the Japanese market.

"All of these things combined made investors jittery," Kramer said.

"I think people could read what

The Dow's Downward Decline

Staff/Mary Ward

two. But, Thomas doesn't believe that should be considered an option.

"If they were going to close it, they should have after the first hour today to let everyone think about what was going on," he said. The stock market fell more than 200 points in its first 90 minutes of trading, with more than 100 million shares traded during the day.

Kramer said many investors are just getting out of the market and waiting for it to stabilize, especially those with certificates of deposits.

"A lot of people are selling their mutual funds and moving them to money markets. It's causing some institutions to have to liquidate some stocks for funds," Kramer said.

"Some people buy bonds because they don't see them as being that volatile, but they are," he said. He added was going to happen. The Japanese market was down today as well," Thompson said. Tokyo's Nikkei Stock slipped 709.43 points Monday.

Early Monday, some Japanese companies had expressed a desire to reduce and pull out some of their American investments.

The drop's snowballing effect can also be attributed to technical sales, said Thomas.

"Some stocks are set up so if they drop past a certain point, they are automatically sold," he said. Thus, a declining market drops that much lower.

Vinton Puckett, registered investment adviser, agreed with Kramer, saying panic selling was a main cause of the drop.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Companies use sweepstakes as promotional gimmick, ploy

By Janet Swanson
Agri/Business Editor

Winning a sweepstakes takes more than just entering, it also takes a lot of luck, said William Adams, assistant professor of journalism and mass communications.

"Your chances of winning a grand prize are way less than winning the lottery. And, a study done a few years ago said that your chances were five times greater to be hit by lightning than to win the Pennsylvania state lottery," he said.

"They offer you a chance to win by returning the entry form. Its growing popularity can be tied to lotteries. People like to take chances and gamble."

New cars, homes, exotic vacations and cash prizes are lures used in sweepstakes to increase sales and profits.

"Most people feel obligated to make a purchase when they enter a sweepstakes. They don't feel good about taking something for free," Adams said.

That trait is one that companies sponsoring sweepstakes use to their advantage.

"A lot of the sweepstakes are sponsored by magazines. It's a way to boost subscriptions," Adams said.

The majority of magazines are sold at a lower price in sweepstakes mailings than at the newsstand, but are more expensive than renewing through the magazine.

In an article in the March 1986 issue of Sky magazine, Don Jagoda, owner of a sweepstakes clearing house, said sales are indirectly affected by sweepstakes.

"A sweepstakes usually has no direct bearing on sales. Indirect, yes. Direct, no, because of the fact you can't require a purchase as part of the entry," he said.

If companies were to require a purchase, they would become a lottery and would be illegal in many states.

Sweepstakes are tightly controlled and regulated, said Charles Pearce, associate professor of journalism and mass communications.

"They have to publish a list of their winners. But, the problem is that many believe they have a better chance of winning if they subscribe, and that's not true," he said.

Sweepstakes are legal in Kansas because participants are not required to purchase anything or pay an entry fee.

"This office does not encourage persons to enter contests which require entry fees, since most people may not be aware of the very small possibility they have of winning anything to recoup their investment," said Brenda L. Braden, Kansas deputy attorney general in the criminal division.

Sweepstakes are just an advanced form of junk mail, Adams said.

"They (companies) are getting past the stage of junk mail by enticing people to sift through all of their fliers and stuff to find the stickers they need to place on their entry," he said.

Many of the awards, Adams said, are usually donated from dealerships and travel agencies.

"The grand prize, usually a house or its equivalent in cash, is put up by

■ See CHANCE, Page 8

Illustration/Brad Camp

The opening of the Manhattan Town Center is also expected to eventually bring more customers into Manhattan and the Aggieville shopping area.

Shop owners see mall as benefit

By The Collegian Staff

Many Aggieville merchants believe the opening of the Manhattan Town Center will help, rather than hurt, their business.

"The mall is going to be a positive aspect of Manhattan commerce," said John Levine, part owner of Varney's Book Store. Levine hopes that the center will draw people into town and into Aggieville.

The mall, scheduled to open Oct. 26, is anchored by Dillard's and J.C. Penney Co. Inc. It also has more than 80 individual stores and a food court.

"Initially, we will probably feel a crunch (due to the mall's opening)," said Bill Jacoby, executive director of the Aggieville Merchants Association. "People will be running out to see the new mall, but eventually they will get over the newness."

Local beauty salons may be hurt by the chain salons that will open in the mall, Jacoby said. Customers may prefer to use a chain salon once the mall opens.

Scot's Ltd. is the only store leaving Aggieville to relocate in the mall. But, the store front won't remain empty for long, Jacoby said there are about six stores on the waiting list to occupy its space.

The Jean Station is another Aggieville store that is closing, but it is not reopening in the mall, Jacoby said. The owner has been ill, and the store's manager has found another job. Rather than try to find another manager, the owner has chosen to close the store.

Aggieville is a perfect test market for The Espresso Royale, a new Aggieville Italian-style cafe, Jacoby said. The store is owned by a company out of Chicago.

Margin loans, accounts use securities as collateral

Commentary

STEPHEN P. HARRISON

Guest Columnist

Almost anything today can be bought on credit. It's the American way of doing business. If you want to buy an automobile, you contribute part of the purchase price and borrow the rest from a bank or credit institution. The same thing happens if you decide to buy stocks or other securities on "margin." A margin loan, or margin account as it is commonly called, is similar to a bank loan except the collateral is securities, instead of property.

Why would anyone want to make an investment with borrowed money? Actually, it's done quite often. Since buying a home, real estate or even a business is generally done with borrowed funds, buying securities with partially borrowed money is not unusual or unduly risky if you understand margin.

The margin account allows you to purchase more shares of a security than you could buy with your own funds alone. Additionally, by using securities you already own as collateral, you can use your margin account to get a cash loan. It's done simply and quickly with no red tape and at very competitive rates. You are not limited to spending the money for investments, either. The choice is yours to do home repairs, buy a car, pay your taxes or educate your children.

The interest you pay on your margin account is not a fixed rate. It is tied to the Broker's Call Rate, which is generally lower than the prime rate and may fluctuate over the life of your loan. It is calculated on the actual daily balance of your account and posted to your account monthly. This way, you can see exactly how much your interest is each month and get a year-to-date total.

Your collateral does not have a fixed market value, and it fluctuates daily. But if the amount of the loan on your account exceeds 65 percent of the value of the securities, you will be asked for a payment to bring the account to a 65 percent level.

This is called a "house maintenance call" and is due within three business days. You will be notified of the amount and date due. If you are unable to deposit sufficient funds or securities to meet this call, a portion of your securities will be liquidated until your account reaches the necessary 65 percent level. It is important to understand and discuss this with your broker before entering into a margin agreement.

Margin accounts are closely monitored by the Federal Reserve Board, which, along with other agencies, determines the stocks you can borrow against and how much your broker may loan you on these stocks. Security brokers, dealers and members of national securities exchanges are regulated by the Federal Reserve, which establishes initial margin requirements and defines eligible, ineligible and exempt securities.

In other words, the Fed tells your broker which securities are "marginable" and can be used as collateral for your loan. At this time, any "listed" stock, or stock that is traded on the New York, American or major regional exchange, that trades for $5 or more, is eligible for margin. Over-the-counter stock eligibility is also determined by the Federal Reserve. Other marginable securities include GNMAs, unit trusts, U.S. treasury issues and mutual funds.

If you believe a margin account would be appropriate for your needs, visit your financial adviser to discuss it. Most brokerage firms don't charge a fee for this service. If you decide to open a margin account you will be asked to sign a margin agreement. Be sure to read and understand this agreement before signing it. Just as in making a regular loan, there are risks involved in maintaining a margin account.

Keep in mind that although profits may be greater in trading on margin by allowing you to buy more securities, the loss potential is just as great. Margin accounts should be considered only by those whose investment objectives and financial abilities are compatible with this type of investing.

Stephen P. Harrison is an investment representative with Edward D. Jones & Co., a national investment firm with an office serving the Manhattan area.

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, October 20, 1987 ■ Page 4

Campus should bar CIA's recruitment

There is a very well-known national organization today that can claim being involved in numerous counts of murder, torture and a variety of similar atrocities. This group can also claim to have assassinated foreign leaders and overthrown democratic and constitutional governments during the past 30 years. Perhaps the most disgusting facet of this organization is that it is formally sponsored by our government, being a full-fledged federal agency. This notorious organization is none other than our own Central Intelligence Agency.

It can be argued that little is achieved through a rhetorical abuse directed at the CIA, or at any other governmental agency for that matter. Those who criticize our government's actions or policies are often ignored for appearing politically naive or guilty of impractical ideological expectations. Regardless of bias, though, it is necessary to accept the CIA for what it really is — mainly an organization with an unrelenting history of criminal activity.

What is the purpose in condemning the CIA in such a fashion?

On Oct. 29, the CIA is going to begin recruiting at K-State. We are only one of approximately 200 colleges and universities visited by the CIA yearly, but in my opinion, that's one too many. The following are a few instances which exemplify the nature of CIA activities, serving as viable reasons why they should be denied the opportunity to recruit members at the University:

■ In 1954 the CIA reversed the tide of social reforms in Guatemala by overthrowing a democratically elected president, setting the country into thirty years of repressive military rule which took the lives of more than 100,000 Guatemalans. Code-named "Operation Success," CIA involvement in Guatemala was one of the earliest criminal enterprises conducted by the Agency in Central America. More details of this can be found in a July 1986 issue of The Progressive, in which former CIA agent Philip Roettinger regrets his tragic involvement in the Guatemalan coup.

Commentary

MICHAEL NICHOLS

Collegian Columnist

■ Ellen Ray's book "Dirty Work 2: The CIA in Africa," gives a detailed account of the CIA breaking international laws to support the racist South African government. Illegal shipments of weapons, military equipment and technology worth millions of dollars, were conducted by the CIA from 1963 until the present. Little does it seem to matter that the shipments violated a United Nations embargo sponsored by the United States itself.

■ It is a known fact that in 1973 the CIA carried out a bloody coup in Chile. Democratically elected president Salvador Allende was assassinated and thousands were imprisoned or tortured, or they merely disappeared. The dictatorship of Augusto Pinochet, installed by the CIA and sponsored by American military aid, remains in power today — more than 14 years later.

Most recently, the CIA has indiscriminately defied international law by supporting the terrorist activities of the Contras in assaulting the Nicaraguan people. American support of the Contras through the CIA has violated international law on 15 counts, according to a decision reached by the International Court of Justice on June 27, 1986. CIA involvement in Nicaragua became embarrassingly public in October 1984 with the discovery of "Psychological Operations in Guerrilla Warfare," a handbook compiled by the CIA to train its Contra puppets. Among other things, the manual instructs the Contras in conducting selective violence to "neutralize" Nicaraguan officials, the hiring of professional criminals to "carry out selective jobs," carefully choosing assassination victims to create martyrs for the cause and blackmailing Nicaraguan citizens into collaborating in terrorist activities.

All of the above are blatant violations of several international laws, but comprise only a small number of illegal activities conducted by the CIA. The Reagan administration has ignored the ruling of the World Court and has taken no substantial steps in punishing those responsible for the "murder manual" mentioned above. By cloaking itself in the guise of a respectable federal agency, the CIA can very easily use the recruiting services of universities such as ours to find new members.

The issue presently at stake is not the right of the CIA to visit this campus, but instead the fact that it may be allowed to use our recruiting facilities as an employment agency. Any group, organization or institution should be allowed to present its views at a university, which is theoretically a haven for free speech and educated debate. However, this university would be degrading its commitments to higher learning and providing its students with a great disservice if it allowed an agency, with the tainted criminal reputation of the CIA, to recruit members on campus. As the University of Massachusetts Daily Collegian pointed out in a March editorial, "The CIA is neither law-abiding nor does it conduct legitimate public business...Something is wrong when the CIA is allowed to operate above and beyond the letter of the law."

As law-abiding citizens with an interest in preventing our government from conducting crimes against humanity, we must try to curtail CIA transgressions of international law. Stopping CIA recruitment on our campus may seem negligible, but it is a start. A group of concerned students will be meeting at 7 p.m. on Oct. 25 in Union 206 to continue what was started at the University of Massachusetts last November, where CIA recruitment was successfully defeated.

Little Jessica McClure brought out best in U.S.

For one trapped little girl, the world held its breath for 58½ hours. And for one little girl, the world cheered when she was rescued from the deep, vertical hole that had held her captive.

Jessica McClure, the 18-month-old from Midland, Texas, captured the attention of the nation and the world when she fell into an abandoned well late last week.

Although the hundreds of volunteer workers who labored through the night to get her out were often discouraged, hope was never abandoned.

And that endurance when all seemed to be lost shows once again how, when the chips are down, Americans can unite and succeed in the face of adversity. There are some people who believe that can never be done, and it's satisfying when they are proven wrong.

And now, as Jessica undergoes more surgery, the nation is still concerned with her welfare.

As Vice President George Bush said, Jessica is a tribute to the American spirit.

But more than that, Americans are a tribute to themselves, their heritage and their caring.

After all, in a time when war in the Persian Gulf and a plunging stock market dominate the headlines, it's unique that one little girl could command as much attention as she did.

But command it she did with her zest and determination. Jessica McClure's is a spirit all of America should emulate.

Here's wishing Jessica a full recovery and a rich life.

Students have chance to influence decisions

Last year, Student Senate grappled with the idea of changing the method of representation selection from the different colleges to the different types of housing, because some believed that members of greek organizations were represented better than students living in residence halls or off campus.

After much debate and indecision — and a veto by the student body president — the final verdict was that representation would remain the same.

Today is the day things can change. Filing deadline for the Nov. 3-4 student elections, which include the positions of the student body president, four members of the board of student publications and 49 student senators, is today at 5 p.m. in the Dean of Student Life Office, Holton 102.

Students residing either in residence halls or off campus should not feel they are lacking a networking organization greek have, because they have the same networking options open. Residence hall members need only spread the word they are running, explain the worthy reasons they are doing so, and suddenly they have a networking system larger than any greek system.

Off-campus students have the same options. They should visit greek houses during Wednesday formal dinners and talk to friends in residence halls, apartment complexes or sororities and fraternities.

But those who are genuinely interested in running shouldn't say "I didn't run because I didn't have a chance." They do, and they'll never know if they don't try.

So go ahead: Make someone's day and register to run for an office in the November election. The worst thing that could happen is that you'll be elected and become involved in something important.

Regents owe students, parents language requirement rationale

The Kansas Board of Regents is currently considering entrance requirements consisting of a minimum number of semesters of study in various areas, including two years of a foreign language. This is in line with the recent trend among state universities, including the University of Tennessee, which have already adopted similar language requirements.

There has been protest from the smaller high schools, which aren't able to offer any foreign language study, that the requirement would be unfair, yet there has been little or no discussion of the need for foreign language study for college-bound students. The Regents' reasons, if they have any, have not been publicized, so we are left to wonder what they are up to once again.

The reasons that seem to surface among educators, both at the high school and college levels, from time to time revolve around the fact that our world is "growing smaller" and business is becoming more international. They say there's a good chance that many of today's graduates will have to interact with foreigners on their turf. Some of the same thinking went into metrification, theorizing that because most of the world used the metric system, we must change to it also.

It has seemed apparent for some time that American youth graduate with an incredible ignorance of geography. Most of them can locate Canada to the north of us and Mexico to the south, but if they're called on to point out Grenada or Zambia, forget it. As an illustration, how many of us know where the Persian Gulf is, and where Iran and Iraq are in relation to the Persian Gulf?

But there is more to the study of foreign language than studying the geography or culture of a particular country. The reasons for pursuing it must be more precise. We are asking young people to be able to read or speak the language of another country, so the first

Commentary

JUDD ANNIS

Collegian Columnist

question that occurs is, "Which language? Which country?"

For example, some students decide by their junior year in high school to become chemists, physicists or engineers. Even that momentous decision must be prone to change, for some statistics show less than 50 percent of graduate engineers stay in the profession their entire working lifetime. This prospective scientist or engineer would now be asked, additionally, to decide which language he or she will have to be conversant in if he or she is to be successful. Considering the present interchange of technology should he or she study Japanese? Looking even further into the future, perhaps it should be Chinese. With the Soviet Union's new "openness" policy growing in leaps and bounds, one might put his or her money on Russian.

The decision for that incoming high school junior is much more personal. He or she must pick a language to fit his or her career choice and pick it carefully, for the hours allocated may squeeze out additional science, math, history, political science or literature courses.

The response from some educators will be that it makes no difference what language you study — it is good discipline. However, mathematics is considered by some to be good mental discipline, so perhaps an additional two years of math would serve the same purpose. How about two years of Latin for real mental discipline?

The same educators who want a foreign language in everyone's future will readily admit that many freshmen entering college can't write an intelligent English sentence without butchering English grammar. They will also admit that it is very difficult to teach a foreign language beyond a few tourist-type phrases without a firm grounding in English grammar.

A friend who babysits recently gave me a good example of the irony this problem can create. One of the children she babysits, a fourth grader in the Manhattan school system, is able to proudly recite all the vowels in the Spanish language. When asked to recite the English vowels, however, the child couldn't remember all of them.

The point is that if two years of a foreign language is important enough to require it before entrance is permitted to K-State, someone better be able to answer the question, "which foreign language?" Then, we need to ask the future employers of these potential college graduates whether they would rather hire someone with a good working knowledge of the English language or someone who could muddle through both English and Spanish.

Instead of so much emphasis on the study of the foreign language itself, I would be much more in favor of an increased student exchange program. Students wishing to participate could spend one year here, getting the basics of the language they know they are going to use, and then a year studying in the foreign country. What better way to actually learn and become "internationalized" at the same time?

The Kansas Board of Regents owes students and parents alike an explanation of their rationale.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Letters to the editor pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116 or mailed to the Collegian.

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, October 20, 1987 ■ Page 5

Big Eight considers varsity soccer status

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

Amid the competition for the University of Northern Iowa Soccer Tournament championship this past weekend, considerations were being made about making soccer a Big Eight Conference varsity sport.

The K-State Soccer Club took third place at the tournament with the two-goal performance of Kip Saxon, with a 4-1 win over the University of Iowa.

Also scoring goals for the 'Cats in their win over Iowa were Ron Johnson and Dave Nicodemus, who each had one.

The University of Kansas was the winner of the tournament defeating Missouri 2-1 in the championship match.

K-State was seeded No. 2 in the tournament behind KU. In K-State's first game, Rob Healy scored two goals and Joe Pecko added another as the 'Cats cruised to a 3-0 victory over Palmer University.

In the second game, K-State defeated the University of Northern Iowa 4-1 with Scott Zimmerman turning the hat trick scoring three goals and Ron Johnson scoring one more for the 'Cats.

In the third game, the University of Missouri caught the 'Cats a little flat-footed, defeating K-State by the score of 4-1. Patrick Bonefil scored the only goal for the 'Cats.

Despite taking third, head coach Ian Anderson felt that the Big Eight was the real winner of the tournament.

"The coaches from the Big Eight teams at the tournament (University of Kansas, University of Missouri, University of Nebraska, Iowa State University and K-State) had a chance to discuss the possibility of making soccer a varsity sport in the Big Eight," he said. "Right now the Big Eight is the only major conference in the nation that does not have soccer played on the varsity level. "After this weekend, though, I'd have to say that it seems very likely that Big Eight could have varsity soccer in the very near future."

Anderson felt if this year's team was to have a chance to play on the varsity level, it would be relatively easy for them to set up a schedule and to also have a winning season.

"Right now we're going to be playing a 14-game schedule," he said. "The NCAA states that for qualification in the postseason tournament, a team has to play at least 18 games. If the Big Eight decides to go varsity with soccer, that is already 14 games right there. Add a few games with UMKC (University of Missouri at Kansas City) and Wichita State and there's 18.

"We also have a record of 7-3-1 and that's not bad at all considering that we've played some varsity teams," he added. "If we turn the program into a varsity program we'll be able to recruit the kids that we need."

As for the rest of the Big Eight, Anderson stated there are some teams that need to be pushed a little harder in working toward the varsity level.

"It looks like (the University of Kansas), (the University of) Missouri and ourselves are ready to go (on the varsity level)," he said. "Nebraska and Iowa State just restructured their club programs and that might have set them back a little bit.

"Colorado, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State have been ready for a while and there should be no problem there. But the support is there (for soccer) and it's evident that soccer is a popular sport and I hope that everything goes as planned."

Anderson's plan includes meeting with Athletic Director Larry Travis in the next few weeks to go over the final details of a proposal for the Big Eight next April.

"Mr. Travis and myself are meeting next week and we'll get all the details worked out by mid-November," he said.

Herzog taunts Twins

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Whitey Herzog jabbed at the Minnesota Twins Monday while the St. Louis Cardinals tried to stop them from running away with the World Series.

"I don't think they would win the American League East with the way they're constituted," Herzog said of the rampaging AL West champs, who have a 2-0 lead.

"I don't think they could win the National League East," he said. "I'm talking about playing the whole season. But this is seven games."

Game 3 is Tuesday night with St. Louis ace John Tudor opposing Les Straker.

The Twins, who worked out in light rain at Busch Stadium during Monday's off day, didn't want to get into a war of words with Herzog but they did disagree.

"He's grasping at something. I don't know what," Minnesota third baseman Gary Gaetti said. "Would they win the American League East? Would they win in the American League at all?"

First baseman Kent Hrbek brushed off the charges quickly.

"Too bad we're not in that league," Hrbek said.

The Cardinals took Monday off and regrouped — not that Herzog wanted it that way.

"I've always said you shouldn't have off days during the playoffs," Herzog said. "It's ridiculous."

"When you have two starting pitchers and two off days, that's a hell of an advantage," he said. "You can get by using five of your nine or 10 pitchers. That doesn't give a true criteria of the strength of your team."

Frank Viola and Bert Blyleven, the Twins' only consistent starters, won the first two games. Straker, hit hard in Minnesota's lone loss to Detroit in the American League playoffs, goes last in the three-man rotation.

"They've won six out of seven and Viola and Blyleven have won all six," Herzog said. Reliever Jeff Reardon actually won one of them after taking over for Viola.

The Twins are the only team to reach the World Series despite being outscored during the regular season. Viola was second in the league with a 2.90 earned run average; the next-best ERA on the team belongs to reliever Juan Berenguer at 3.94.

Twins Manager Tom Kelly side-stepped any debate about his team.

"For our pitchers, I guess it's OK," he said of the off days.

Asked whether a lesser team can win the best-of-seven World Series, he said: "That's probably true."

"I don't care to try to figure it out," he said. "It is set up that way, and I don't try to think about it."

Kelly said Joe Niekro, the 21-year knuckleballer, could make his first World Series appearance in Game 4.

Speaking of fans and attitude, K-State not doing poorly at all

Of fans, class and sportsmanship: "The fans here are the greatest. I don't give a damn what anybody says."

That phrase, uttered by superfan Robert J. Lipson in a recent Collegian article, might have made some not-so-avid Wildcat backers chuckle. But he does have a point.

Oklahoma, the top team in the nation according to the Associated Press (writers') and United Press International (coaches') polls, drew 27,200 people Saturday to KSU Stadium.

It doesn't sound like much, considering one of the best teams in the nation was featured. Unlike at Nebraska or Iowa, though, where sellouts are commonplace, K-State must compete with professional teams within easy driving distance of Manhattan.

In addition, the 'Cats have competition from the University of Kansas. Fans wanting to see college football from the Topeka and Kansas City areas would find the shorter drive to Lawrence much more suitable. Hey, why drive 2 1/2 hours to see a team lose when one can see the same result with only a 45-minute drive?

In this writer's opinion, drawing more than 25,000 to KSU Stadium would be equal to

Tom on Tuesday

TOM MORRIS
Sports
Writer

attracting more than 50,000 at Lincoln, Neb., or Iowa City, Iowa.

One final note about Saturday's crowd: Besides watching the Wildcats produce a four-quarter effort against OU, it was pleasing to hear the crowd back K-State for a full game. Coach Stan Parrish, after weeks of pleading, finally got his wish.

Can we talk? Let's talk about class and sportsmanship.

Remember Austin Peay State, the Division I-AA school K-State lost to in its season opener? Remember how the Governors reacted after the win and how silly some of the players looked when it appeared they were trying to rape the 50-yard line?

Well, the Governors have gone on to bigger and better things including a loss to Division II Tennessee-Martin. UTM, in turn, lost to Murray State, which lost to Western Kentucky, which lost to Division I Gardner-Webb — Division I of the NAIA, that is.

Oklahoma didn't rape and pillage the 50-yard line after its win Saturday. But when the Sooners began lounging on the benches and laying on the astroturf in the fourth quarter, they didn't earn a nod of respect from the Wildcats.

If the cockiness jinx holds up, OU could be heading for hard times very soon.

Another prime example of this would come from last year's Fiesta Bowl matchup which had Miami and Penn State playing for the national title.

Miami's players, if you'll remember, arrived for the game dressed in combat fatigues, staged a walkout during a pregame banquet, and were highly quotable before the game. Penn State, on the other hand, dressed in suit and ties. The Nittany Lions also limited their pregame efforts to the practice field instead of seeing who could get quoted the most by the press.

Laura Haggerty listens to coach John Capriotti during practice Monday afternoon in Memorial Stadium. Capriotti is one of the reasons Haggerty transferred to K-State from the University of Iowa.

Haggerty likes scenery change

By Ann Iseman
Collegian Reporter

For some people all that is needed to make an improvement is a change of scenery. Such is the case for K-State cross country member Laura Haggerty.

For Haggerty, junior in geology, the move came about two years ago when she decided to transfer from the University of Iowa to K-State. Haggerty was red-shirted, as required by the NCAA, and used the time off to allow a recurring shin injury to heal.

"I had a lot of injuries at Iowa and wanted to get away from it," she said. "They (Iowa) have a different philosophy there, and I didn't react well to it."

In the first meet of the season, the Iowa State Invitational, Haggerty had the opportunity to race against her former teammates and the result was just what she wanted it to be — a first-place finish.

"I was very nervous going into (the race)," Haggerty said. "I didn't want my first race to be a flop."

Haggerty said running against her former teammates was an incentive but believed she would have run the same, regardless of their presence at the meet.

At the invitational, Haggerty also did something no one else expected and that was to beat Renee Doyle of Iowa. Last season, Doyle placed seventh in the NCAA cross country championship. Haggerty's talent, though, was just what cross country coach John Capriotti was looking for.

"She is an up-front runner, which is what we desperately needed," Capriotti said.

Laura Haggerty, who has struggled with injuries during her collegiate career, stretches out prior to practice.

"We have a few, but we needed another one."

"Laura beat (Doyle)," he added. "(Haggerty) hasn't really trained for two years, and to do that good in her first meet is just amazing."

Haggerty's left shin injury has been "up and down," but she said it is healed now. She said she is taking precautions such as running on softer surfaces, running on heels more than toes during "easy runs", and not running "all out" every day.

"When I'm not running in a race or running fast, I change my form to put less stress on it," she said.

Capriotti said Haggerty's injury, a stress fracture, is a common injury among cross country runners and is hard to heal. Although Haggerty couldn't run in meets last year, Capriotti wanted to train her. When her shin started bothering her, he decided to "lay off" and let the injury heal.

Now that Haggerty's shin is healed, Capriotti wants to make sure it stays that way. Good training, he said, involves good communication.

"She wants to come out every day and run hard. I try to control her intensity," Capriotti said. "I pay very close attention to how she's feeling day-to-day. If the ankle is sore, I tell her to go easy."

Haggerty and Capriotti both share the common bond of hailing from the south side of Chicago. And it was knowing Capriotti that brought Haggerty to K-State. Capriotti said that the biggest opponent battling Haggerty now is Haggerty.

"She is very determined, very talented. Her biggest opponent is herself," Capriotti said. "If she stays healthy and trains consistently over the next several months, she can be a great one. As far as training goes, she has just scratched the surface."

This past weekend, Haggerty did not compete in the Mid-America Open in Columbia, Mo., where the K-State women's team took first place.

ICAT receives priority

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

For Craig Renfro, this year turned out better than expected.

Renfro, director of the Mike Ahearn Scholarship Fund, saw the ICAT membership increase this year by almost 10 times.

ICAT (I Contributed A Twenty), which had a membership of 85 after being formed last year, has nearly 800 members now, with about one-fourth of those joining in the last week.

"We had that final drive for membership ending last Friday," Renfro said. "We don't have all the numbers added up, but it's looking like we are going to be around the 800-member mark."

The ICAT club was established as a means of support for the Mike Ahearn Scholarship Fund.

"The Ahearn Fund is basically aimed at the alumni," Renfro said. "This is aimed at the undergraduate who wants to help the athletic department and also get a chance to meet the athletes, coaches and everybody else involved with the team."

"This way, after they graduate they can think about whether or not they want to keep on contributing to the department."

The main reason for the ICAT club and the Ahearn Fund is to help generate funds for the intercollegiate athletic program at K-State. The most significant need is to fund student-athlete scholarships, Renfro said.

"We want these kids to see how their money is being used and what it's being used for exactly," he said.

Renfro said seven students — Scott Scroggin, senior in mechanical engineering; Michelle Herl, senior in radio and television; Stacy Smith, senior in marketing; Garth Gardiner, junior in animal science industries; Ted Orth, senior in education; Von Hallauer, junior in marketing and Kirk Johnson, senior in agricultural economics — have helped him with the ICAT drive in the past few weeks.

"Without the help of these people we wouldn't have had the numbers we now have," he said. "They've gone out and talked about ICAT and gotten people interested and they've joined."

Some students — including those who said they would rather support an "I Saved A Twenty" club — have recently complained that ICAT members receive preferential treatment when basketball tickets are sold.

Candidates must file today for November student elections

By Candise Leonard
Government Editor

Students wanting to run for a position in the upcoming student government elections must put their name in the hat today. According to Sally Routson, coordinator of student activities, the filing application deadline for all candidates is 5 p.m. in the Dean of Student Life Office, Holton 102.

"Most people wait until the last day to file," Routson said. "So far, we've had fewer (candidates) than normal come in."

The positions to be chosen in Nov. 3-4 elections include student board of publications (four members), student body president (one), and student senators (49).

Members of the board of student publications are responsible for selecting the editor and advertising manager of the Collegian each semester as well as the editor of the Royal Purple yearbook, said Dave Adams, director of Student Publications Inc.

"We have students on our board of directors because it's a student-owned corporation," Adams said. "We are owned and operated essentially by students."

The board consists of four students — three faculty members and one ex-officio member — who each serve a one-year term.

"It helps to have some knowledge of journalism, but it's not necessary," Adams said. "Any student who wants to see the continued good or betterment of our publications (should run for election)."

Routson echoed Adam's sentiment, and said students who want to do something for the benefit of others should get involved in the upcoming election.

"Student government gives students the opportunity to do something for themselves as well as benefit the entire University by their service," Routson said.

She said she also views the election itself as a learning experience, saying students have fun putting up posters on campus and speaking to different groups during the campaign.

"If a student is unsure about running, I suggest they come in and ask me any questions they have," Routson said. "Student senators have office hours all day and would also be willing to answer any questions or tell about their experiences."

She said the students who are not elected would later have the chance to become a Senate intern, cabinet officer, member of a standing committee or apply for an appointment to a University committee.

Routson said in addition to student body president, each college will be electing its own senators. The Senate positions are allocated to each college in the following manner: Agriculture — four; Architecture — three; Arts and Sciences — 13; Business — eight; Education — three; Engineering — eight; Graduate School — six; Human Ecology — three; Veterinary Medicine — one.

Collegian wins regional pacemaker

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's student newspaper, the Collegian, has been named one of four pacemakers for the Midwest region, it was announced Monday by the Associated College Press.

The award is for the fall 1986 and spring 1987 semesters. The editors were Chris Stewart and Jonie Trued, respectively.

The award marks the fourth consecutive year the Collegian has been named a regional pacemaker, and the second consecutive year that it was the only Kansas newspaper given the award.

The Collegian is now eligible for one of four national pacemaker awards to be announced at ACP's national convention in St. Louis

Nov. 1.

The Collegian last received a national pacemaker award in 1984.

To be eligible for the regional pacemaker award, the publication must be judged a five-star All American by the ACP. Other Midwest region pacemakers are the Daily Eastern News at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston, the Daily Iowan at the University of Iowa in Ames and the MATC Times at Milwaukee Area Technical College. The MATC Times will compete in the two-year division.

The papers were professionally judged by members of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, said Dave Adams, director of Student Publications Inc. and adviser to the Collegian.

Pennsylvania couple turns in lottery ticket to claim $46 million sweepstakes winnings

By The Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A bookkeeper and a plasterer who live together turned in their winning $46 million lottery ticket Monday and said they would use their record jackpot to travel, help their relatives, and perhaps even get married.

Donald R. Woomer and Linda K. Despot of Hollidaysburg, Pa., met with reporters at a suburban motel-convention center after they were handed a check for the first installment, $1.4 million, by state Revenue Secretary Barton Fields.

The couple, who bought the ticket in the state's Super-7 game jointly, will receive similar payments annually for the next 25 years.

The two, who have lived together for five years, repeatedly said they had no firm plans for the money, except to travel, possibly to see some NASCAR races, and to help family members. They said they expected to continue living in central Pennsylvania.

"I hope our lifestyle changes, but not us," Ms. Despot said.

Asked if they would be getting married, Ms. Despot nodded her head and said: "It's looking good."

The jackpot surpassed by $5 million a prize of $41 million won in

New York state's lottery in August 1985, said Jim Scroggins, executive director of the Pennsylvania Lottery. The world's largest, about $100 million, is offered in Spain, state lottery officials said.

Woomer, 55, who is separated but not divorced from his wife, said he didn't know what legal arrangements would be worked out with her. Asked if she likely would get some of the prize, Woomer said: "I imagine so."

Ms. Despot, 37, a bookkeeper for a car dealer, said she was getting ready for work Thursday morning when the winning numbers, drawn the night before, were announced on the radio station she had on. She wrote the numbers down and Woomer, a self-employed plasterer, checked them. "He hasn't gone to work since," she said.

Woomer said he was getting dressed when she brought the numbers to him. He had bought 25 of the $1 tickets and when he got to the sixth or seventh one he told her, "I think we have a winning number. She said don't do that to me. ... She started crying."

"At first we were in a state of shock," she said. "Then we got our thoughts together and knew we had to get an attorney fast."

TV Listings

By TV Data

TUESDAY OCTOBER 20, 1987

	KSNT (2)	WIBW (3)	KTKA (3)	KSHB (3)	KTWU (3)	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scoby Doo Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:30	"	TBA	My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs Teddy Ruxpin	SportsLook Sports	Little House on the Prairie
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Road Racing: U.S. National	Movie: "Seven
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore Dick Van	Body Electric Congress	Andy Griffith Soap	Triathlon: Bermuda Internat.	Women
11:00	Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Psychology Computers	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News Days of Our	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Auto Racing: Formula One	Movie: "Web of Evidence"
1:00	Lives Another World	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	M. Theatre: The Bretts	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	Grand Prix of Mexico	"
2:00	"	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobilee Zoo	Mod. Maturity Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	Auto Racing: Rally of 1,000	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scoby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	"	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravestar	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravestar	Hydroplane Racing	Munsters Laverne
5:00	Family Ties NBC News	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook Bill Dance	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News Wheel-Fortune	News Truth/Conseq.	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Barney Miller	SportsCenter World Series	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00	Matlock	Houston Knights	World Series: Game Three	Hill Street Blues	Nova	Movie: "Honeyuckle	Muscle Mag.	Movie: "War Wagon"
8:00	J.J. Starbuck	Jake and the Fatman	"	Movie: "The Aviator"	Ring of Truth	Rose	Jet Skiing: World Cham-	"
9:00	Crime Story	Law & Harry McGraw	"	"	Story of English	News	Surfing: O.P. Pro Champ.	Movie: "Heiter Skelter"
10:00	News Best of Car-	News Cheers	NEWS	Barney Miller Late Show	Wild America Business Rpt.	H'mooner Magnus, P.I.	PGA Tour SportsCenter	"
11:00	son Ent. Tonight	Hunter	M*A*S*H Nightline	Dating Game	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie: "Battle	Cheerleading: H.S. Champ.	Movie: "The Devil at 4
12:00	David Letterman	People Based on True Story	700 Club	Movie: "Battle of Britain"	"	Beyond the Stars"	Yachting: Lib-Racing	O'clock"

They're here.

Introducing California Raisin figurines. Only 99¢ each.

You've seen 'em. You've heard 'em. And for a limited time, when you buy any two Rise 'n Shine™ biscuits or any dessert at a participating Hardee's restaurant, you can get these cute California Raisin™ figurines. But don't wait to hear about 'em through the grapevine. Because at this price, they'll be going fast.

We're out to win you over.

Hardee's

Coors LIGHT. COMEDY COMMANDOS

"Naster carries a sackful of pizzazz and kept the audience howling" - Variety

TAYLOR MASON

Is comedy, music and ventriloquism

DATE: Thursday, October 29, 1987
TIME: 8:00 p.m.
WHERE: McCain Auditorium
ADMISSION: $2.00

Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Box Office or at the Activities Center, third floor of the K-State Union. Ticket sales will begin Monday, October 12th.

k-state union
upc eclectic entertainment

Rats' responses to alcohol researched

By Sally Neary
Collegian Reporter

Just how does alcohol taste to a rat?

Stephen Kiefer, associate professor of psychology, and students in the psychology department are trying to answer that question by doing research with rats as subjects.

Kiefer, who received two three-year grants of $105,000 and $95,000 from the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, is currently working on two alcohol-related projects.

The first project involves determining how the brain controls the intake of alcohol.

"It's not so much the effect of alcohol on the brain," Kiefer said, "but how we know when to drink alcohol, when not to, and what we can learn from it, having consumed it."

"The project involves brain mechanisms, specifically looking at the particular part of the brain and trying to figure out if that part of the brain in any way controls alcohol intake, at least for rats."

In his second project, Kiefer is trying to determine what alcohol tastes like to a rat.

"Our data suggests that for a rat, alcohol has a sweet quality to it," he said.

In the laboratory, the rats are given different concentrations of alcohol solutions to see how much they drink.

"If they drink enormous amounts of it, they must like it a lot," Kiefer said. "If they won't drink it at all, they obviously don't like it at all."

With the use of a videotape, researchers can focus on the rats and analyze their mouth and tongue movements. Kiefer said these movements are very stereotyped.

"You can sit down and view a videotape of the rat's responses and actually score different kinds of mouth movements and tongue movements," he said.

After much analysis a pattern develops which shows whether the rats like the alcohol. The mouth and tongue movements are broken down into two general categories of responses: ingestive and aversive.

The ingestive response is comparable to a human's response to a favorable taste. When humans want to consume something, they move the taste to the back of the mouth in order to swallow it.

The aversive response is comparable to a human's response to an unfavorable taste. Humans tend to push the tongue up on the throat to prevent the substance from entering the stomach.

After the videotape is viewed, the different responses are scored to see how many ingestive responses and how many aversive responses are recorded.

"Ultimately what we want to do is manipulate their experience with alcohol and see if their response to the taste changes," Kiefer said.

He said the rats' initial response to alcohol is aversive. However, the question is whether the response changes when the rats become addicted.

The University of Indiana's medical school is researching that question by using selectively bred alcohol-preferring rats, Kiefer said. A second group of non-preferring rats also is used.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial. call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

DO YOU let people spend your money without asking you first? That's what Student Senate is doing with $1.2 million of student funds. Sign the Holton Hall referendum petition to give the students the right to vote on this issue. Call 532-7777 for details. (38-42)

NETWORK MARKETING! The wave of the future! You choose earnings and hours, 776-3759 after 6 p.m. (37-41)

BABYSITTER NEEDED immediately in my home for 15-month-old. Light housekeeping and some meal preparation. Good health, non-smoker, references required. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and some evenings. Call 539-4915, leave message. (38-42)

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.85 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 East Poyntz, 9-9. (39-47)

TWO NEW pair Levi's 501's. Waist—31, length—32. Washed once. $15 each. Call 776-2104. (40-41)

NEW Aggie Bike Station
Bicycle Sales & Service
8-6 Mon.-Sat.
Behind Hardee's in Aggieville
Pronouncing English as a Second Language
Foreign Accent Improvement Workshop
An intensive 3 week program to maximize social & educational speaking skills
Nov. 14 & 15, Dec. 3
Evaluation $85
Tuition $450
Enrollment Deadline: Oct. 23
For more information & to register contact:
Junction City
Speech & Language Clinic
762-3350,
Manhattan 539-6377

AGR's—YOU guys are such a blast, Homecoming is over, wish it would last. We partied and pined under the stars, you men are awesome, here's to the AGR's. —The men of Farmhouse. (41)

THETA MARTHA—Your mom will be revealed tonight. She's excited cause you're out of sight. Love, Mom. (41)

THETA SHANNA—Follow the blue and don't hesitate. Your mom loves you and just can't wait! Theta love, Mom. (41)

KELLY B—A clue from your Dad. Being from southern Kansas, I now live in the north and above others. Dusk till dawn will be a blast. More clues to follow. Love, your Kappa Sig Dad. (41)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

RECREATION CAREER DAY—Oct. 21, in KS and U rooms of Union, exhibits 10-12. (40-42)

BOYD HALL bake sale Wednesday, Oct. 21st in front of the Union. (41-42)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

NICE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments. Very close to campus. Available Nov. 1. Please call 776-9124. (3711)

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY, one-bedroom furnished apartment. All bills paid. Call 537-2590. (41-43)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (2111)

NICE, LARGE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments in Westloop area. Please call 776-9124. (3711)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

VW 1600 cc Bug engine, complete, 1600 cc rebuilt shortblock, IRS Bug transmission. Import auto repairs at J & L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, St. George. (38-51)

1983 CHEV, Celebrity, excellent condition, $4,000, must see to appreciate. Call 537-0881. (38-42)

MUST SELL 1970 Chevrolet Impala, 17,750 miles. Excellent condition, $300. Call 539-2421. (40-44)

1979 TOYOTA Celica five-speed, sunroof, new paint, great shape. 537-8944, ask for Murray. (41-44)

EMPLOYMENT 09

OVERSEAS JOBS—summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-K52, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts. Others. Information (504) 641-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-59)

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South Padre Island, Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-282-6221. (35-44)

WE SEEK entrepreneur business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service office. We offer student pay plan, job variety and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat, wear appropriate attire and be able to obtain a Food Handler's card. (38-44)

FLEXIBLE PART-TIME and full-time day positions open now. Apply in person at Pinata. Ask for Kim. (40-42)

CALIFORNIA JOB opportunity—Do you like kids and childcare? Room, board, salary provided. Respond to HELP 4 PARENTS, 415-322-3816, 770 Menlo Ave., Suite 219, Menlo Park, CA 94025. (40-75)

RETAIL SALES clerk for afternoons and weekends. Sales experience preferred. Bring resume to 1212 Moro, Aggieville. (41-44)

FULL OR part-time mail clerk needed for growing company. Involves some lifting and fulfillment of orders. Contact Norreen at 539-0555. (41-43)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

THREE-BEDROOM, unfurnished, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. No pets. Available now. Call 539-5404. (37-41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator, Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND OUTSIDE on steps at Willard, one long-sleeved button-down sweater with pockets. Check with business office in Willard. (39-41)

FOUND 14-CARAT gold woman's bracelet in Micro-forms department. Also, women's all-weather turquoise coat and faded jean jacket found two weeks ago. Items can be claimed on first floor circulation Farrell Library. (40-42)

FOUND NAVY blue sweatshirt near Hollis House. Contact Throckmorton 414 or 532-6176. Marie. (41-43)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (3211)

1953 MERCEDES kit car, 20 meg disk with tape backup, popcorn car, amber monitor, 1980 Arrow 5800. 539-4121. (37-41)

THE COTTON CLUB
TACO TUESDAY
60" Giant Tacos
$1 Margaritas
4-7 p.m.
418 Poyntz
LUNCH SPECIAL
2 Tacos & Salad Bar $2.99

TANS TO GO
Appointments or Walkins
Call for Specials
1214C Moro
on Cobblers Lane, Aggieville
776-7874

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢
after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON!
539-4888

The RIB-IT
Every Tuesday Night
All You Can Eat just $3.95
BBQ Ribs & Fries
Baked Beans
111 S. 4th
Downtown
MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16
1974 TS-185 Suzuki Enduro motorcycle. Engine was rebuilt in 1982... runs and looks great. Stop looking for a parking spot on campus. $200 firm. Call Jeff at 537-4058, evenings. (41-43)
RALEIGH TRI-LITE aluminum, technium 12-speed bicycle. Three months old, bought new for $460. Moving, will sacrifice. Call evenings after 6 p.m. or weekends, 776-3526. (41-45)
1981 KAWASAKI LTD 250. Looks and runs great. $430 or best offer. 776-3896. (41-43)
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17
PEAVY BASS guitar with hardshell case. Peavy bass amplifier. Excellent condition. Call 776-3084 evenings. (38-42)
Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings
30% OFF
327 Poyntz 776-7983
PERSONALS 18
GIRL IN yellow Ford Fiesta—Wanna go to Laramie this weekend? Girl in red Chevy. (40-41)
SSS DANIELS sisters: Third quarter party was great, shots of "Jack" knocked us back. Can't wait for KU-K-State. Gary, Dave, Kelly and Davee. (41)
MR. TEASY Butt—Thank you so much for the roses and help and being you. They reminded me of those strange yellow skies—Your Alien Girl. (41)
KAPPA SIGMA Todd L. Clue—I have a quarter, can I have a chip? Hawaii. (41)
SMURF—HAPPY 20th from your Bestest Buddy! Luv, Kimmer. (41)
JON—HAPPY 23rd! I've spent your last six birthdays with you. I'll spend the next six with you for the rest of our lives! Let's cook a chicken! Love you always, Diane. (41)
MURRAY AND Buck. Roses are red. Violets are blue. What are bandidos? We have no clue. Tawn and Kess. (41)
TO THE women of KKG—Homecoming with you was so fun, it couldn't have been better even had we won. We hope we have revealed we are the partying kind. So if you have an idea, keep us in mind. Love, The men of Farmhouse. (41)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20
PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (111)
PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (111)
SELF-HYPNOSIS. Improve concentration, memory, recall. Overcome test anxiety, fear of public speaking, etc. Personalized instruction, one 90-minute session required. $140. Greg Potter, Ph.D., 714 Poyntz, Suite A. 537-0076. (33-49)
LAUNDRY DONE. For services available and charges, please call 537-1618. (41-44)
RENTALS 21
TYPEWRITERS—CORRECTING and non-correcting. In the Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (3211)
ROOMMATE WANTED 23
ROOM FOR rent. Share large house, one-fourth utilities. Some furnishing available. Low rent. Move in immediately. 539-6247, ask for Jon. (38-42)
ROOMMATE WANTED to share house. $160/month, gas/electric paid. 537-4083 after 7 p.m. (38-42)
ROOMMATE—ONE block from campus. $120/month plus utilities. Call 539-3117, top floor. (39-42)
TWO FEMALE roommates to share three-bedroom apartment. Available Jan. 1. $160/month. 539-2034. (40-44)
FEMALE ROOMMATE—Very nice apartment, one block from campus, own room, one-half rent, utilities. 776-4204. (42-46)
RESPONSIBLE WORKING woman or graduate student needed to share house south of High School. $195. Call Mary Lou, 532-5566 or 537-8663. (41-44)
TRAVEL 29
LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tour's sixth annual collegiate winter ski breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure, 1-800-321-5911 today! (35-49)

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Temple's former husband
5 Snub-nosed dog
8 Nose of an airplane
12 Prima donna
13 Coach Par-seghian
14 Lhasa priest
15 Seine sights
16 Roofer's need
18 North Carolinian
20 Contest submission
21 Lunch ending?
22 Quilting
23 Glides
26 Highland cloths
30 River in Brazil
31 Girl of song
32 Director McCarey
33 Small pastry
36 U.S. missile
38 Squabble
39 Letter opener?
40 Impassive one
43 Import taxes
47 Moslem cap
49 Divide
50 Sea eagle
51 Randy's partner
52 Medley
53 Sorrows
54 Sphere
55 Computer fodder
DOWN
1 Mine access
2 Arizona river
3 Affirm
4 Serving of bacon
5 Metal plate
6 Soviet river
7 Pikelike fish
8 Apes' domain?
9 Engrossed
10 Hebrew measure
11 Cautious
17 Squint
19 Dawn goddess
22 Shopper's need
23 Pose
24 Wood sorrel
25 Swiss river
26 Asian festival
27 "My Children"
28 Education org.
29 Mayday's cousin
31 Church bench
34 Clans
35 "Motion"
36 Make public support
37 Camera
39 Indian title of address
40 Fret
41 Source of poi
42 River in France
43 Nicholas II, e.g.
44 FDR's pet
45 Glass in fusion
46 Greek portico
48 Indian

CRYPTOQUIP
10-20
TPX GP YQW RPY WPKV
XHRD'C JBDD CKVFDVW?
UKCG PYDB Q UPHBG
STDSJHBF QSSPKBG
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: SAID MOTORIST, IN ACCIDENT: "I WAS CARELESS, SO NOW I'M CARELESS."

Crossword
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11
12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30 31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54 55

Today's Cryptoquip clue: P equals O

Gulf

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1 moved to within about 6,000 yards of the two platforms, said Fred S. Hoffman, the Pentagon's chief spokesman.

Ten minutes later they broadcast a warning: "Reshadat, Reshadat. This is the U.S. Navy. We will commence firing on your position at 1400 hours. You have 20 minutes to evacuate the platform."

Iranians on the platforms were then seen scrambling into a small boat and sailing away from the area, Weinberger said.

An 85-minute barrage of 1,000 rounds of 5-inch gunfire destroyed the platforms.

Gulf radio monitors said they overheard an Iranian voice saying, "U.S. warship, U.S. warship, let me evacuate the injured before you shoot again."

The attack caused Iranian personnel to abandon another platform about five miles away from the site of the first attack.

"After this platform was abandoned, U.S. Navy men went aboard, looked around, destroyed some radar and communications equipment and then left," Hoffman said.

In a later disclosure, Hoffman said a small part of the second platform was left after the shelling and "it was then decided to finish that off," so a demolition team was sent aboard. "There are now only three pilings left," he said.

Weinberger said the warships destroyed the two platforms in retaliation for the attack on the Sea Isle City, a U.S.-flagged tanker in Kuwaiti territorial waters Friday. The attack injured 17 crew members and blinded the American captain. The American-owned Sungari was hit in a similar attack Thursday.

Hours before Monday's attacks, U.S. military sources said metal shards from Chinese-made Silk-worm missiles found aboard the Sea Isle City and the Sungari proved that the Iranians were responsible for the strikes.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei vowed that his country will "definitely take decisive retaliatory action," according to a broadcast report by the official Islamic Republic News Agency.

Khamenei spoke after a special session of the Supreme Defense Council, which decides Iran's military strategy in war with Iraq.

"Reagan, by this action, has made a big mistake," he said, according to the broadcast monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said Kamal Kharrazi, head of Tehran's War Information headquarters, called on Iranians to mobilize to counter "U.S. aggression and give a suitable response to the Reagan administration."

Kharrazi was quoted as saying the Iranians will deliver "a crushing response for the criminal attack" on the platforms.

He said the United States now was in a "full-fledged war" with Iran.

U.S. warships are in the gulf to escort 11 U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti tankers to protect them from Iran, which considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq. The escort operation began in July.

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

THE AMERICAN HEART
ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

This space provided as a public service.

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1962

—TONIGHT—
POOL TOURNAMENT
CASH
PRIZES
ALSO—TONIGHT
MOVIE NIGHT
MOVIE TO BE ANNOUNCED
AT
CHARLIE'S
1800 CLAFLIN 539-9619

Chance

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3 the companies. But it's just figured in as part of their advertising budget," he said.

But, using a sweepstakes as a promotional tool isn't that expensive and doesn't take that much of the budget.

"Sweepstakes are a promotional item that's not that expensive. Companies probably put less than $1 million into them," Adams said. Jagoda agrees with Adams.

"It's a unique promotion in that you can identify all costs associated with it up front. There are no hidden costs, no surprises," he said.

But more important, Adams said, is that in some cases the prizes aren't awarded each year.

"They don't say they will award the prizes every year. In some they are only awarded every four years," he said. "The companies wouldn't be doing it if they weren't making any money."

Toll-free 800 numbers are beginning to be as productive as sweepstakes for some companies, Adams said.

"All you have to have is a group of minimum wage workers to work in the mailroom or on computers inputting the information back into the system," he said.

Clearing houses form the sweepstakes by grouping companies with similar products to promote at the same time. Although the two big sweepstakes are Publisher's Clearing House and Reader's Digest, hundreds more are offered to consumers.

"The majority of consumer products don't because you would buy them any way. But, products like perfume, jewelry, unusual items do," said Adams.

Sweepstakes can be placed into five main categories: instant-winner games, match-and-win games, automatic-entry sweepstakes, qualified-entry sweepstakes and multiple-entry sweepstakes.

Games that involve game pieces or cards must not only comply with Kansas' lottery statute, but also with the Trading Stamp Act, said Braden.

A lottery as defined by the statute requires that prizes be awarded on the basis of chance for which consideration has been given. The consideration is usually money. Only the state-sponsored lottery is allowed in Kansas. Most sweepstakes are gimmicks and offer prizes that have no real value, Adams said.

"You can be sure that if you get a letter that says 'You have just won...' Well, you can be sure that you haven't won much of anything," he said. "A lot of them are just pure scams."

Besides the profits that clearing houses gain from organizing sweepstakes, Adams said that most of them sell their mailing lists for a sizeable sum of money.

"It's a way to find a list of people in a particular interest area," Adams said. "You can request to have your name taken off of a mailing list."

You're in charge.

If you want a challenge. If you want to be part of a take-charge outfit. Then it's time you joined the United States Marines. We'll give you responsibility. We'll put you in charge. We'll give you the kind of experience you just can't find anywhere else. Take charge now. College freshmen, sophomores, and juniors can call 1-841-1821 (collect) to see how they can stay in school and still get this kind of experience.

PAZAZZ
hair designs

Alicia—Tami—Annette—C.P.
Michele—Peggy—Sheila

Phone 537-9825 Open Mon.-Sat. 1140 Westloop Place

STRESS

Not Managed
Adequately Will Often Be Transformed To Physical Illness

(50-80% of all illnesses are closely associated with and perhaps even caused by excessive and/or poorly handled stress.)

LEARN TO MANAGE YOUR STRESS
CALL 532-6550

Lafene Mental Health Center

PLATOON LEADERS CLASS

The first training ground for the majority of Marine Corps Officers is college. Commissioning programs require a bachelor's degree, and that's really the first test of your abilities. So, the official Marine Corps policy is stay in school. PLC is the officer training program open to college freshmen, sophomores and juniors. It doesn't interfere with school activities or studies. There are no drills to attend or uniforms to wear during the school year. All training is done during the summer months at Quantico, Virginia. Travel costs to and from Quantico, meals, textbooks, etc. are furnished free of charge by the government. You will also be paid for the time spent in training. As a member of PLC, you may opt to

P.L.C.

THE FEW.
THE PROUD.
THE MARINES.

receive $100 a month for a nine-month school year. In exchange, you'll take on additional active duty obligations. You may receive this financial assistance for up to three years, for a total of $2,700. If you don't opt for the $100 a month, your Marine training doesn't obligate you in any way. Upon graduation from college you may be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant and be ordered to active duty for the duration of your commitment. If you've got what it takes to make it as an officer of Marines, you've got a career with many advantages. A career with reward, satisfaction, challenge and variety.

1st Lt. Gary Trotnic and SSgt. Jack Morrissey, your Marine Corps Officer Selection Team representatives, will be on the Kansas State University campus from October 20th to October 22nd. We will be glad to answer any questions you may have about the Marines, or military service in general. Or, call 841-1821 (collect) to arrange your personal interview.

Costume
Alley

ORDER
EARLY

Costumes starting at under $10

OVER 5000
ACCESSORIES

- Make-up
- Colored Hairspray
- Rubber Masks
- Wide variety of costumes
- Pre-made costumes or create your own!

Popeye & Olive Oyle, Mr. & Mrs. Santa, Mr. & Mrs. Satan, Playboy Bunny, Priest & Nun, Marx Bros., Martha Washington, Raggedy Ann, Angel & Devil, Bumble Bees, Clowns, Doctor & Nurse, Wizard of Oz characters, Kermit, Uncle Sam, M*A*S*H Couple, Pumpkin People, Cop & Prostitute, Cowboy & Indian, Witches, Chickens, Gorillas, Bears, Geisha Girl, Gangster, Boy Scout, Belly Dancer, Carter, Conehead, E.T., Khomeni, Nixon, Reagan, Flapper Dresses, French Maid, Yoda & more.

Located in the alley behind Brother's
Open Mon.-Sat. 1-8 p.m.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES AT UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

OFFERS PART-TIME POSITIONS
MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

EMPLOYEES EARN $8 HR.
LOADING/UNLOADING

SHIFT AVAILABLE 4:15 a.m.-9 a.m.
WORKING 3-5 HOURS

UNITED PARCEL SERVICE
is looking for service-minded people to join
the UPS team.

FOR INFORMATION CONTACT
Office of Financial Aid
Fairchild Hall Rm. 104
Equal Opportunity Employer

Something New

It may be Greek to you, but the gyro sandwich is nothing but flavorful and is growing in popularity. See Page 7.

Weather

Sunny today but chilly, high in low to mid-50s. Clear tonight, low in mid-30s. Mostly sunny Thursday and warmer, high 60 to 65.

pet- ing at the Olympic meet in the javelin throw for a spot on the 1988 U.S. Olympic Team. See Page 9.

Wednesday

October 21, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Jet crash kills nine in Indiana

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — An Air Force jet lost power short of a runway at the Indianapolis International Airport on Tuesday, clipped a bank building and exploded in a fireball into a crowded seven-story hotel, killing at least nine people.

The dead were found in the lobby and first-floor meeting rooms of the Ramada Inn Airport hotel, where the A7-D Corsair came to rest. The accident occurred at 9:15 a.m. and firefighters — some of whom saw the crash — were on the scene within two minutes.

The pilot, identified as Maj. Bruce L. Teagarden, 35, of Las Vegas, Nev., ejected at about 800 feet, Mayor William Hudnut said at a news conference. Teagarden was treated and released at Methodist Hospital.

"The only thing I saw was devastation," said a witness, John Mentzer. "If anyone was in the lobby area they are gone. It was like a napalm bomb. The heat, the flames. It collapsed the whole front of the building."

Indianapolis Fire Capt. Gary Campbell said the bodies were charred beyond recognition.

At Ramada Inn headquarters in Phoenix, Ariz., spokesman Dave Thompson said there were 155 rooms in the hotel and 105 registered guests. "About half of those had checked out before the crash occurred," he said.

Authorities originally said 14 people died in the crash, but later revised that figure. However, Robert Spitzer of the Indianapolis Airport Authority said it was possible some bodies had not been found at mid-afternoon.

Authorities conducted a room-to-room search after fires were put out for additional dead and injured. Up to 25 people were initially unaccounted for, according to Robert Duncan, an attorney for the Indianapolis Airport Authority.

Some of the 25 were trapped in the back of the hotel and later managed to get out safely.

Campbell said at least six people were injured — the pilot, two firefighters and three other people. At least five victims of the dead were in the lobby, he said.

Tom Murray, 41, of Indianapolis was at Wishard Hospital in very critical condition after surgery for burns over 90 percent of his body. Two others, including a firefighter, were hospitalized in fair condition. Two people

■ See CRASH, Page 12

Reservoir gains new outlet pipe

Phillip West, employed by The Corps of Engineers, prepares for a ride out of the stilling basin of the Tubes at Tuttle Creek Reservoir. The Tubes are being repaired after sinkholes formed at the site during the summer. It is expected to take at least three weeks to complete the project.

By The Collegian Staff

The Corps of Engineers is replacing the outlet pipe in the stilling basin at the Tuttle Creek Reservoir.

The pipe failed after sinkholes formed at the site during the summer, allowing water and debris to settle around the pipe.

"We are drilling holes along the base of the wall and replacing the one 24-inch pipe with 19 smaller pipes," said Dale Forge, project manager.

The new pipes are made of stainless steel and are expected to be a permanent replacement, Forge said.

The water in the basin was taken out of the area by four pumps that pushed the water downstream. After the project is completed, the gates will be slowly reopened and the area refilled overnight, he said.

It is expected to take at least three weeks to complete the project, and its cost is not known. Traffic in the area will not be affected during the work.

Forge said this was the first time such repairs have had to be done to the area.

Iran vows to 'make the U.S. regret'

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iran will strike back and "make the U.S. regret" the Navy shelling that destroyed two oil platforms in the Persian Gulf, Iranian leaders said Tuesday.

Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian Parliament and one of Iran's most powerful leaders, said his vow of retaliation was "not a threat, but a reality."

Prime Minister Hussein Musavi said "compromise is impossible" and "we will retaliate" for the U.S. attack, Iran's official news agency reported. Musavi was quoted as saying that "after we deal our reprisal blow, we will call it quits."

The 12th U.S.-escorted convoy set out Tuesday, one day after the artillery attack on the Iranian platforms, moving south from Kuwait on the 550-mile voyage out of the gulf.

It included two reflagged Kuwaiti tankers — the 80,000-ton Ocean City and the 46,000-ton Gas King — and the guided-missile frigate USS Ford, the Pentagon said.

An Iranian shuttle tanker reported sighting a mine in a busy channel 40 miles off Iran's coast, shipping executives said. They did not say if any action was taken.

Sources in Kuwait said eight to 10 artillery rounds exploded at Umm al-Aish, a Kuwaiti oil-drilling camp near the Iraqi border.

Kuwait's Defense Ministry confirmed that artillery shells fell in the area but said there were no casualties or damage. The Kuwait news agency quoted a ministry spokesman as saying the shells apparently were fired "during artillery duels between Iran and Iraq," which have been at war seven years. The warfront is about 25 miles away.

Gulf shipping executives, speaking on condition of anonymity, said commercial traffic in the waterway appeared normal after Monday's attack by U.S. Navy destroyers on Iranian oil-rig platforms in the south-central gulf.

Shells demolished two platforms in the Rostam oilfield in an 85-minute bombardment. The 25-30 Iranians on the platforms were given time to evacuate first. Iran's oil minister said the attack caused about $500 million damage.

U.S. military sources said three of the destroyers, brought into the gulf for the attack, had sailed back out through the narrow Strait of Hormuz to rejoin their Navy battle groups in the Arabian Sea.

The fourth ship, the missile destroyer Kidd, is part of the Navy force escorting 11 Kuwaiti tankers registered in the United States and flying the American flag.

On Tuesday, "only mangled metal and charred remains were apparent...and smoke could still be sighted," a shipping source said, quoting a report from one of his company's vessels that passed near the destroyed rigs.

U.S. military sources said a third platform, which the Iranians abandoned and U.S. Navy commandos later raided, was close to those destroyed and not five miles away, as the Pentagon had said earlier.

President Reagan called the attack "an appropriate and proportionate response" to Iranian missile attacks last week that hit a U.S.-owned tanker and a reflagged Kuwaiti ship.

Both vessels were near Kuwait's main oil terminal at the head of the gulf and the missiles were believed to be Chinese-made Silkworms fired from Iranian-occupied Iraqi territory about 50 miles away.

Reagan discounted the possibility

■ See GULF, Page 12

Blue chip stocks rally on Tuesday; others floundering

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Blue chip stocks rallied Tuesday, rebounding from Monday's historic collapse, but the rest of the market continued to flounder in its second straight session of record trading volume.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 102.27 to 1,841.01, topping its previous record point gain of 75.23 on Sept. 22.

That left the Dow with a long way to go, however, to recoup its unprecedented 508-point loss in Monday's session, or the overall 938-point drop it took from its peak in late August through Monday's close.

And broader market measures were less robust. Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 stocks, the market gained $60.12 billion in value Tuesday after falling more than $500 billion Monday.

Big Board volume reached 608.12 million shares, surpassing Monday's record 604.33 million total.

Analysts said there were signs that some of investors' biggest worries were easing.

Interest rates fell sharply in the credit markets, with yields on short-term Treasury bills tumbling nearly a full percentage point.

That was attributed partly to a "flight to safety" by investors moving their money into the securest possible place. Yet the drop in some key interest rates also served to relieve a source of pressure on all the securities markets.

Two New York banks that had raised their prime lending rates from 9 1/4 to 9 3/4 percent last week cut them back to 9 1/4 Tuesday morning.

Brokers said traders were also

■ See MARKET, Page 12

Local youth sentenced to life in prison

By The Associated Press

JUNCTION CITY — A Manhattan youth was sentenced to life in prison Tuesday for the murder of a taxi cab driver, who died from his injuries in May.

Associate District Judge George

Scott sentenced Stephen Stratton, 19, for the death of Chuck Primm.

Primm was stabbed more than 25 times Jan. 4 in a rural area of Geary County after he drove two men from Manhattan to Junction City. Primm died May 24 at the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, Kan.

Stratton pleaded guilty last month to charges of first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit aggravated robbery. Scott sentenced Stratton to 1-5 years on the robbery charge.

A second defendant, Jerry Thomas

Odell, also of Manhattan, is serving a sentence of 15 years to life following his conviction in May for second-degree murder.

He received 5-20 years for his conviction on a charge of conspiracy to commit aggravated robbery.

Senate responds

Faculty discusses policy

By Susan L'Ecuier
Collegian Reporter

The Faculty Senate decided Tuesday to draft a detailed response to the Board of Regents staff policies regarding selective admissions. Faculty Senate President John Keller will appoint an ad hoc committee for this purpose.

The motion and approval to form the ad hoc committee followed debate by the Senate over its official response to one of three options of selective admissions proposed by the Regents. The options detail which of the three largest universities in Kansas — the University of Kansas, K-State or The Wichita State University — would be allowed to adhere to selective admissions policies put forth by the Board of Regents.

During discussion, Keller, professor of regional and community planning, said he believes the philosophical basis for selective admissions really includes several different levels.

"There is a real and true and deeply felt need somewhere on the staff that we ought to do this in order to bring rationality to the system."

—John Keller

"My feeling is that it's political. My feeling is that it's split among the Board. My feeling is that there is a real and true and deeply felt need somewhere on the staff that we ought to do this in order to bring rationality to the system," Keller said.

Mark Lapping, dean of the College of Architecture, said the issue is a result of attempts to eliminate remediation programs and therefore free capital resources within Regents institutions.

"It's purely fiscal in inspirations," Lapping said.

David Cox, professor of biochemistry, said whatever type of response the Faculty Senate makes "is certain to be interpreted as self-serving."

Both Cox and Kenneth Gowdy, associate dean of engineering, said K-State should mirror KU's admissions policies so that a selective admissions by KU does not label it as the elite university in Kansas.

In other business, the Faculty Senate discussed the proposed policy for reporting, investigating and disciplining faculty members and research staff who engage in academic misconduct. A quorum was called for a vote on the proposed policy, but not enough faculty were present and the proposed policy was not passed.

Jennifer Leeds, director for the Associated Students of Kansas, addressed the Senate on the activities of that organization.

No action taken on ordinance to ban pit bulls from Manhattan

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

The Manhattan City Commission took no action Tuesday on an ordinance banning pit bulls from the city.

Commissioners directed City Attorney William Frost to determine if amending the existing vicious animal ordinance would be a better means to regulate pit bulls in Manhattan.

"There have been a number of challenges in courts to breed-specific ordinances," said Commissioner Richard Hayter.

Mayor Gene Klingler, who in the past has expressed personal support for a specific ban of pit bulls from the city, spoke in favor of amending the city's statute.

"If we can enlarge the ordinance, we may be able to get vicious Dobermans as well as vicious pit bulls," Klingler said. "My ardor for a pit bull ban hasn't faded."

Frost told the commissioners the difficulty in amending Manhattan's vicious animal ordinance was in defining the term "vicious."

"You have to set forth what specifically constitutes a 'vicious' animal," Frost told the commission.

The ban was one of two types of ordinances controlling pit bulls being adopted by several Kansas cities and towns, Frost said.

The other type of ordinance widely adopted is one which requires pit bulls to be muzzled and the owner to carry insurance in case the dog attacks a person, Frost said.

"I would like to see a combination of the two," Klingler said.

Frost submitted a pit bull ban ordinance at the request of the commission in former meetings.

In related action, the commission also considered an ordinance regulating kennels within the city limits. All businesses which board, breed or sell animals would be defined as a kennel under this ordinance, Frost said.

Kennels would be allowed only in areas which are zoned for such businesses. The commission will vote on this issue at its next regular meeting.

Commissioners asked if pet shops would be covered by the kennel ordinance and requested a separate ordinance for pet shops from city staff.

"Technically, (pet shops) are included in the ordinance," Frost said. "The question is how do you define a pet shop as opposed to a kennel?"

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian Classifieds

snip n' clip MIDWEST'S FAVORITE HAIRCUTTERS
HAIRCUT SHOPS®

WORLD'S GREATEST HAIRCUT
$6

OSCAR WINNING CUTS, STYLES, PERMS

Under 12 KIDS KUT $5

OPEN NIGHTS & SUNDAYS. JUST DROP IN!
36 LOCATIONS—VILLAGE PLAZA—MANHATTAN 539-4043

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
is now open
on Sunday from 1-5 p.m.
Everyday low price Levi 501, 517, 505

Levi's Red Tag $19.98 up to 36" length
776-6715 Mon-Sat 9-5:30
2 miles east of Kmart, Hwy. 24 Thurs. 9-8:30
Manhattan, KS 66502 Sunday 1-5

Wichita Family Planning Inc.
Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

NU WEIGH An Exerciser's Dream
BODY TONING SYSTEMS

NO

- STRENUOUS EFFORT
- STRAIN
- FATIGUE
- SWEAT
- AGE FACTOR
- MEMBERSHIP FEE

FIRST SESSION FREE

In only two 50 minute sessions per week you shed inches with our body toning program.

Call 537-0817 to set up your appointment to start losing inches and firming up.
298 N. Tuttle Creek Blvd.

Pumpkins!

All sizes and shapes! Some with "scar-faces" made by scratching in their features while they were still growing! Some with faces painted on. All with character!

Homegrown Sweet Potatoes
New Crop Nuts! 2 5 pounds $1.00 SPECIAL!
Shelled English Walnuts & Almonds!

Eastside & Westside Markets
east Hwy. 24 west K-16
OPEN 9-5 DAILY.

TROPICAL TAN

$2 sessions OR
$40 tanning membership
bring coupon in for details
DON'T MISS YOUR LAST CHANCE
Expires 10-21-87

FirstBank Center
Second Level
Denison & Claflin 537-0744

WYOMING RED'S

"WYOMING REDS"

...the great new look for men featuring oversized mountain-creeper shirts, pull-on pants, coordinated tops and bottoms. In brighter colors or stone-washed pales, all in heavy cotton twill.

Locally Owned

BORCK Brothers
1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-4434
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon-Sat; till 8:30 Thurs.

1987
First Annual
Wildcat
Tip-Off Classic

3 on 3 Basketball Tournament
October 31-November 1
Ahearn Field House
West Gymnasium

MEN'S AND WOMEN'S BRACKETS
open to Campus Organizations,
faculty and living groups

FREE: Reebok t-shirt for each participant

Team entry forms and additional information available at:
Union Candy Counter, Ahearn 101 or Hollis House
(corner of Denison and Claflin)

TODAY: Information table in Union

Registration Deadline: October 23
at Ahearn 101 or Hollis House

Sponsored by:
KSU Student Foundation ICAT
Students That Back The Cats

SCOT'S LTD.
IS MOVING

Sweaters from $19.99	Fall Skirts from $24.99
Wool Pants from $29.99	Dresses from $49.99

60-70% OFF
Selected
Fall and Summer
Merchandise

Moving Sale Starts
Thurs., Oct. 22nd

Relocating to Manhattan Town Center
Oct. 26

1223 Moro Aggieville M-S 10-6
Thurs. 10-8:30
Sun. 1-5

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, October 21, 1987 ■ Page 4

Encourage others to drink responsibly

On Sept. 25, the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house held a drink-off in an Aggieville tavern during the Little Sister Olympics. This blatant disregard of University policy followed an incident that had happened just a few weeks before in association with the same house. It was at a party there that a woman drank enough alcohol to kill herself. She had to be carried home, and if someone had not looked over her and gotten help when she could not be revived, she would have been dead by morning. Yes, dead. That is the sobering fact of the matter. Alcohol can kill.

Whether the house provided the alcohol or directly encouraged drinking at the drink-off is not the main issue I would like to discuss in this forum today. But in the light of the backlash they had to face because of all the allegations, whether true or false, I would have assumed they would refrain from placing themselves in the same possible situation, if not for being concerned for the people involved, then for the potential liability of their chapter and the sponsors involved.

In a drink-off, which was even advertised in the Collegian, the goal is typically to drink the most beer, to drink beer the fastest, or to drink the most beer the fastest (or soft drink, which I hear was offered, but not chosen as a main selection). This is quite a proud athletic event for any olympics, especially a little sister olympics! (Please take that last statement with its intended sarcasm.)

One thing I figured they would take into consideration, besides the danger or the liability, is that the activity was in violation of the University Activities Board Alcohol Policy for Student Organizations. This house is registered with the UAB. The policy states: "All student organizations are encouraged to pursue actively, non-alcoholic programming and to develop and implement alcohol awareness and responsible consumption programs for their members and guests."

And: "Advertisement for any student organization event shall note the availability of non-alcoholic beverages as prominently as alcohol." Plus: "Promotional materials including advertisement for any student organization event, shall not encourage any form of alcohol abuse..."

And still more specifically: "No function or event shall include any form of 'drinking contest' in its activities or promotion, nor should the function or event encourage, in any direct or indirect manner, excessive consumption of alcoholic beverages by persons of legal age who may be in attendance."

I have a feeling the UAB would not approve this for persons who aren't of legal age either.

They, on Sept. 25, then openly disregarded the alcohol policies they had agreed to follow. A reply that "we didn't know" is not a valid excuse. That would be similar to saying "I forgot armed robbery was a crime." True

Commentary

DOUGLAS OETINGER

Guest Columnist

or not, it doesn't lessen the violation committed or the liability of the person — or group.

But surely there is some reason behind the rules. I mean, a rule with no reason serves no purpose. There are several good reasons, though, and their purpose is obvious: to protect all students who go to K-State. They are rules we should be proud to have and very willing to follow.

One reason is liability. These days, anyone can sue for anything, and they often do, especially negligence. The costs can be extreme, and all members of the group can be named. The groups that sponsored the event — Bud Light, Pyramid Pizza and KQLA — shoulder the same liability and responsibility.

Another reason is a person's well-being. Alcohol seems to be innocuous — harmless. People think it can do little more than make you act funny and leave you with the infamous 3.2 flu. And though this is the typical result, it can be worse, and the chances (of people drinking more) are greater when alcohol (consumption) is a sanctioned or encouraged event. Too much alcohol can kill anyone. But not everyone has the same tolerance and often the same person may not have the same tolerance at different times. What this means is that different amounts can kill different people and that the same person could die from an amount that only made him or her sick a week before.

This is especially dangerous in a contest. If a 110 pound person would try to keep up with someone who weighed 200 pounds, the 110 pound person could ingest enough alcohol to be fatal while the other person may appear fine.

The final reason that these rules were implemented is because of the peer pressure that can be involved in a person's decision to drink. Almost everyone strives to be accepted or to be the best. And when a person is encouraged to drink to be "the best," that drive can be pushed to deadly limits.

Some people may think that it is the individual's fault since it was his or her choice to take the drink. After all, no one put the gun to anyone's head. That is true, and everyone who would drink to excess should carry the heavy portion of the guilt for their activities. But, the organization could be said to have given the people access to the gun and explicit directions of how to put it to their heads and use it.

We must realize the power we can have over others. We must know that we can inadvertently help someone drink too much, as well as stop someone from drinking too much. The gate swings both ways. We should expend more effort trying to get more people to pull the gun away from their heads and keep themselves out of danger.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not for prohibition, and I don't think drinking is bad, unless it is abused — then it becomes a danger to all those involved. Yes, even I drink, and it would be hypocritical for me to say that others shouldn't. But responsible drinking should be encouraged. Also, education in alcohol and its effects should be furthered — these last two incidents have proven this. All students should also become familiar with the alcohol guidelines of the state, University and their own organization.

Saying that no one was injured by this activity, and so it was OK, is like condoning drinking and driving — as long as no one gets hurt. And waiting for the death of a student to spur action on this would be tragic and needless. Whatever happens, drinking will go on. Since it will, let's be responsible for our actions, and more importantly, let's be careful out there.

Douglas Oetinger is a senior in business.

Proposed legislation takes life for granted

Rep. Norman Justice, D-Kansas City, is proposing that Kansas laws be expanded to allow people to use deadly force to protect their property.

The law currently allows people to use deadly force in self-defense, but Justice is asking that people be allowed to kill other people when there is no obvious threat of violence.

There are many scenarios which can be used to back arguments for and against this proposal, which has been called the "Make My Day" proposal. But the real issue is deciding what is a threat.

Someone breaking into a house with the intention of stealing is a minor threat. Violence will probably occur only if the thief is confronted.

However, someone who breaks into a house to commit a violent crime is an obvious threat.

Telling the difference is easy. Just remember, most murderers carry a gun or a knife in their hand, not a VCR. The law says people can defend themselves; Justice's proposal offers nothing new in terms of personal protection.

The proposal, if adopted, would mean Kansas places human life below material objects.

All those would-be Dirty Harrys out there should consider one thing: Taking a human life, no matter how worthless you may deem it, is for real. Killing someone over a VCR or a car is absurd.

Being robbed is a humiliating experience which can be alleviated when insurance replaces the possessions. Taking a life is permanent. Those who cannot give life should be slow to take it away.

Bluemont Consortium must take precautions

A new organization has recently developed in Manhattan — the Bluemont Consortium.

The Consortium is a permanent advisory board formed to promote joint ventures tying together Manhattan, its industries and the University. The group will make recommendations on a study that will analyze properties in the area for their potential in the development of an industrial research park. In the event the group determines a park is feasible, the study will consider 10 sites and make an evaluation of at least two sites for the park development.

The Consortium sounds like a good idea — especially to University officials. Benefits they are counting on include the formulation of a comprehensive inventory of the strengths and weaknesses of the University in association with potential economic development, attracting and maintaining top faculty, and attracting federal, state and private research dollars.

These benefits sound great, but before the Consortium gives the go-ahead on the development of an industrial park, it must take precautions. While no business venture comes with a guarantee of success, the success rate of this undertaking could be in jeopardy from the start. Indications are that similar endeavors in other cities with universities have a high rate of failure.

Members of the Consortium should be concerned about these figures. It is crucial that the feasibility study include a comprehensive study of why these failures occurred. Then and only then will the Consortium be in a position to make a responsible decision.

How to win the White House on the GENERATIONAL THEME

MAIN THEME: (PICK ONE)

- RESTLESS YEARNING FOR CHANGE.
- YEARNING RESTLESSNESS FOR CHANGE.

THINGS YOU CAN IMPLY VAGUELY YOU ARE AGAINST.

- MONEY
- SUPER-POWERFUL ORGANIZATIONS
- UNRESTRAINED AMBITION

IT WON'T BE DIFFICULT TO DEMONSTRATE A NEW APPROACH TO OLD QUESTIONS.

- OLD STYLE
- NEW STYLE
- PEACE THRU STRENGTH
- PEACE THRU FLEXIBLE STRENGTH.

THINGS YOU WILL NEED:

- MONEY
- SUPER-POWERFUL ORGANIZATION
- UNRESTRAINED AMBITION

SUB-THEMES: CAUTION IS ADVISED ON WHAT YOU ACTUALLY TALK ABOUT

- STRESS
- AVOID
- SHUTTING DOWN THE WAR MACHINE.
- SHUTTING DOWN THE POLLUTION MACHINE.
- ENDING THE CORPORATE RAPE OF U.S. AND WORLD RESOURCES.
- THAT RESTLESS, RESTLESS YEARNING FOR CHANGE.

DO'S & DON'TS

- DO BE THE YOUNGEST
- I, ALBERT GORE JR., HAPPEN TO BE ONLY 39.
- DON'T HAVE A WIFE WHO HATES ROCK MUSIC
- DARN!

Legal drinking age of 21 lacks logic, consistency by Congress

You probably haven't seen or heard anything about it in the news recently. Maybe you consider it a dead issue. But raising the drinking age really bothered me when it was first suggested, and it isn't any more acceptable to me today.

People told me the only reason I was worried about it back then was because it might affect me personally, and that I wasn't really concerned with the concept. Well, as it turned out, the change in drinking age never affected my status, and I still think it was a mistake — one that needs to be corrected.

The proposal was forced through the U.S. Congress largely by an extremely visible lobbying effort spearheaded by Mothers Against Drunk Driving. The issue was portrayed as an emotional one, and legislators had their backs against the wall. How could they vote in a way that would be viewed as "pro-drinking"? How could they justify opposing a proposal that was promised to save lives? Simple.

First of all, the main argument upon which most legislators based their decision was illogical and inconsistent. To say that raising the drinking age three years will save X number of lives is meaningless. Why three years? Why not six years? Wouldn't that save even more lives?

Why not prohibit the consumption of alcohol altogether? Wouldn't that solve the problem completely (by their logic)? If saving lives is the primary concern, then why not raise the driving age? I'm sure statistics could be produced to show that would save even more lives. Or why not ban automobiles? Additionally, the people of the United

Commentary

DOUG FOLK

Collegian Columnist

States should be extremely concerned that the central government has discovered a way to rob the states of all their power. As was true with lowering the speed limit, the central government used funding as a way to force states to comply with their decisions. The framers of our Constitution attempted to prevent the central government from becoming too powerful by reserving certain rights for the states. These rights are now all but lost.

The real issue, however, boils down to flaws in the basic concept of raising the drinking age to 21. The root of these flaws is hypocrisy. Although you may have already heard several of the following arguments, they are still quite valid.

If an individual is responsible enough to serve in our nation's armed forces and mature enough to make that decision on his or her own, why is this person not mature enough to make his or her own decisions about drinking, and responsible enough to accept the consequences of any abuses of that action?

It just makes no sense. The government counters that people under 21 who serve in the armed forces are allowed to drink. Well, I'm sorry, but that even further compounds the hypocrisy. Simply because these individuals choose to join the service, that justifies giving them an illegal reward? That's stretching logic far beyond its limits.

Similarly, the concept of age as a criteria for receiving any of the rights to a priority, a United States citizen is entitled (including being tried as an adult in the courts) is ludicrous. There is obviously no way to test each individual to find out if they are capable of handling the responsibilities that go along with a specific right (although a watered-down exception to this is the system of testing drivers before issuing them licenses).

The government must, therefore, designate an age at which a citizen receives all of the rights — and accepts all of the responsibilities — which are guaranteed to the people of this nation by its laws.

If 18 is too young for this, and if getting alcohol out of the high schools is a priority, then perhaps an across-the-board age of 19 is the solution. Whichever age is chosen, we should realize there will certainly be cases where individuals are not mature enough to assume these responsibilities. But we must also realize this occurs with the present system. Fairness and consistency must be the ultimate goal. It's time to correct the mistake.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 332-6535. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

K-State employees may still receive tuition assistance

By The Collegian Staff

K-State classified employees still have time to apply for fall semester tuition assistance worth three semester hours of undergraduate fees.

Eligibility for the program is based on work history and a shown need for the education, said Sylvia Murphy, office assistant IV, College of Agriculture.

"We really stress the commitment aspect part of it."

—Sylvia Murphy

She said since fall 1978, applicants for tuition assistance must be full-time University employees who have worked continuously for one year prior to enrollment. They are also required to remain permanent employees while enrolled in school. They are required to work a minimum of four hours per day and 20 hours per week.

Educational need is a new guideline added this year, Murphy said. The course work must reason-nably relate to the duties of the position and help the employee to accomplish assigned duties. A supervisory consent must accompany each application.

Of the 21 applications already submitted, nine have been selected for the program by the office of resident instruction.

The tuition program is funded through the office of administration and finance. A specific amount of money is allotted annually from the University's general fund. This amount varies yearly as determined by George Miller, vice president for administration and finance, Murphy said.

If an individual withdraws from a class, a refund is made to the general fund with no chance of it being re-awarded. Barring illness, the employee is ineligible for any tuition assistance the next semester.

"We really stress the commitment aspect part of it (the program)," Murphy said.

Applications for the tuition assistance program are available at Personnel Services in Anderson 228. The deadline for submitting them is Dec. 10.

Publishers produce bland picture of American history in textbooks

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Many widely used American history texts are bland and deprive students of the richness of their past because publishers have knuckled under to interest groups and state authorities, a report by a panel of experts concluded Tuesday.

Publishers, worried first and foremost about sales, are producing books marked by "cowardice, commercialism, condescension and crassness," said the 78-page report, "American History Textbooks: An Assessment of Quality."

The report, sponsored by the Educational Excellence Network based at Columbia Teachers College, said the blandness pervading history texts applies to both content and language, and is made worse by "readability scales," formulas commonly used by publishers to keep vocabulary and sentence structure simple.

The report, written by Teachers College researcher Gilbert T. Sewall, was one of the harshest indictments yet of publishers who have been repeatedly accused by critics of "dumbing down" their product and contributing to the erosion of school standards.

It urged publishers to reduce the size of texts which have grown to 1,000 pages or more, eliminate glitzy but irrelevant illustrations, emphasize primary source materials and hire better writers.

Accusing publishers of bending too far to the demands of interest groups, the report said textbooks should stop acting as "cheerleaders for minorities and special causes at the expense of central stories that mark the nation's political and economic development."

A panel of five college history professors — two historians, two editors, a public school teacher and a middle school principal — reviewed 11 widely used American history texts: three elementary-level, four junior high and four high school.

Those favorably reviewed included "The United States Past to Present," an elementary text by D.C. Heath and Co.; "American History," by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc., at the junior high level; and the high school text "A History of the United States," by Ginn and Co.

But the report blasted the elementary best-seller "The United States and Its Neighbors," published by Silver Burdett Co., as "lifeless, monotonous, without feeling; accordingly, a bus schedule and the Vikings are treated with equal passion."

Most junior high texts were harshly criticized. "American Spirit: A History of the United States," published by Allyn and Bacon Inc., is condescending and reads as if written by committee, said the report.

Several high school texts drew favorable reviews. But one, "Triumph of the American Nation," by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, "suffered from a compulsion to 'mention' at the expense of weaving a national story," according to the report.

Publishers named in the report were not provided advance copies of the criticisms, and the majority of those contacted said they therefore were not in an immediate position to comment.

Open 7 days a week HUNAM Restaurant
Free Delivery 11 a.m.-1 a.m.
Call 539-8888 or 537-0886
1304 Westport 539-8888
(10% off with KSU ID)

PLEDGE MOMS
Personalize your pledge daughter's gift with a custom made basket.
15% DISCOUNT on quantity orders from your house.
FREE DELIVERY IN MANHATTAN also available in Aggieville
539-7499
B.A.S.K.E.T. WORKS

TACO DINNER $1.77
reg. $2.25
Two Tacos, refried beans, salad with pico.
BURRITO 88¢
reg. $1.30
Taco Hut's own white flour tortilla, filled with refried beans, beef, cheese and sauce—served piping hot.
SANCHO 88¢
Reg. $1.30
Taco Hut's own white flour tortilla, filled with our special seasoned ground beef, crisp green lettuce, sharp cheese, tomatoes and Taco Hut sauce.

Check It Out! fastest, friendliest service
Good Wed. thru Sat.

TACO HUT

QUALITY SILKSCREENING—FRIENDLY SERVICE—COMPETITIVE PRICES—QUALITY SILKSCREENING—FRIENDLY SERVICE—COMPETITIVE PRICES

TEE'ZERS
Aggieville's Newest Fun Store
620 N. Manhattan 776-5621

Come in and register for our WEEKLY GIVEAWAY
This Week: KSU FOOTBALL BEAR
Last week's winner: Trisha Ott
MYLAR BALLOONS only $1.90

B.A.S.K.E.T. WORKS
DISTRIBUTOR

Dr. Paul E. Bullock
Optometrist

- Individual Eye Health Care
- Eye Glass Frames and Lenses (One Year Warranty)
- Specialized Contact Lens Care
- Tinted (Brown Eyes to Blue)
- Extended/Flexible Wear
- Bi Focal

HMO/Insurance Accepted
Payment Plans Available
See your eyecare professionals annually.
776-9461
Toll Free 1-800-432-0036
404 Humboldt (1 blk. W. of Dillard's)

Manhattan Milling Co.

Purina Pet Foods

- Puppy Chow $14.60/40 lbs.
- Field & Farm $12.25/50 lbs.
- Dow Chow $14.50/50 lbs.
- Hi-Pro $15.50/50 lbs.
- Cat Chow $6.75/40 lbs.
- Cat Chow $12.25/20 lbs.

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

Pronouncing English as a Second Language

Foreign Accent Improvement Workshop

An intensive 3 week program to maximize social & educational speaking skills
Nov. 14 & 15, Dec. 3
Evaluation $85 Tuition $450
Enrollment Deadline: Oct. 23
For more information & to register contact:
Junction City Speech & Language Clinic 762-3350
or
Manhattan 539-6377

College of Arts & Sciences
Student of the Semester

Applications available
at Eisenhower 117
Due Fri., Oct. 30th
Apply Today!

CHI OMEGA,
Homecoming week has come and past, And it looks as though we finished last. On the float all week we pumped & tucked, In bodybuilding finals we really got "at!"
A spirit banner we didn't make, And our loaf of bread float looked fresh baked. The Mexican theme in our skit didn't last, So who brought the beaners to our Saturday night blast? Pant the Chant was quite a spectacle, 'Cause we didn't want to act too respectable. Come Saturday morning we had our fill, When out of the hat rolled "THE DEATHMOBILE." I guess what we're really trying to say, Is that Homecoming week got better each day. It just didn't matter so we had another beer, But what do we do now without the Chi-Os here? From the very beginning FUN was our theme, Congrats go out to the winning teams! We had spirit & laughter & cheer, But of course we didn't forget the beer!!
—The Men of ΣΑΕ

SAFEWAY

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202

New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

Specials Oct. 21-27

Jeno's pizza (assorted).....89¢
Pepsi Cola.....99¢
2 liter bottle
Coors Lt. Reg. & Extra Gold....$4.99
12/12 oz. cans
Lay's Potato Chips.....$1.39
10 oz. bag
Tree Top Apple Juice.....2 for $3
64 oz. bottle
Check cashing with student I.D.

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Goodnow, Haymaker, Off Campus

Oct. 22: Haymaker, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

LAFEMME
(GYN/Family Planning)
CLINIC:
Available Services
• Birth Control Information & Prescriptions
• Pregnancy Counseling & Referrals
• Pregnancy Testing
• Routine Gynecological Exams
• Self Breast Exam Instruction
• Sexuality Information
• Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFENE
HEALTH CENTER
"Your Medical Facility"
532-6554

Brother's KSU
IN AGGIEVILLE USA

Tomorrow and Friday
THE CLIQUE

Their last engagement this semester.

Don't miss 'em!

Come in tonight for $1 shots

IBM TYPEWRITERS

ZENITH COMPUTER AND IBM LETTER QUALITY PRINTER ALSO AVAILABLE

XEROXING:
enlargements and reductions résumé papers
cardstock
11 x 17 poster-size (14 colors)
class hand-outs service

BLUEPRINTING:
blueprint, blackline, sepia, brownline

SPIRAL BINDING
LAMINATING
BUTTONS (2 1/2")

LOCATED
THIRD FLOOR K-STATE UNION
K-state union
copy center

K-State club to begin living history project in area grade schools

By The Collegian Staff

Elementary school children in the Manhattan-Ogden school system will soon have the advantage of learning about the past from someone who has actually lived it.

The K-State Student Gerontology Club is starting a new project called the living history project.

The project will utilize senior citizens from the Manhattan area to recount their first-hand experiences to the students, said Ann Daniels, graduate student in human development and family studies and president of the club.

Daniels said she thought of the idea for the project when she saw it being used in Kansas City, Kan.

The living history project in Kansas City has a coordinator who arranges a schedule for the senior citizens to talk about their experiences to the children.

When the instructors are teaching a subject which occurred in the past, such as the Great Depression, they can get together with the project coordinator and arrange to have a speaker who is familiar with that time in history, Daniels said.

Daniels said Nancy Thompson, director of elementary special education in the Manhattan-Ogden school system, has approved and agreed to review the living history project.

"We are now looking for a coordinator for the program, and we hope to get it started by the spring semester," Daniels said.

It's easier for students to understand about their past, and it seems more real for them when they get to speak to someone who actually experienced the past, Daniels said.

In the living history project, "people get to share the information they've collected over a lifetime with another generation," Daniels said.

She said too few children of this generation get to talk to their grandparents, so they don't have a living link to the past.

By allowing the students to view the past through someone else's eyes, "the living history project helps defuse the generation gap," Daniels said.

K-State chosen as test site Science Helper to assist educators

By Janelle Poole Collegian Reporter

K-State's Center for Science Education has a mission to improve the teaching of elementary science in public schools.

With the arrival of Science Helper, that mission is closer to being completed, said Larry Enochs, associate director of the Center of Science Education.

The University has been chosen as the rural representative of five test sites within the United States for Science Helper, a collection of 1,000 hands-on science and mathematics activities, written lesson and activity guides stored on compact disks, Enochs said. The compact disk read-only products are the first of their kind designed specifically for educators.

Materials on the disk are stored by grade level, science process skills, academic subjects and keywords. The lessons are stored in text form as they originally appeared in books, he said.

Enochs said K-State was chosen as a test site for two reasons.

First, "The faculty has expertise in science education and an interest in rural science education," Enochs said.

Second, the University's rural location was also primary to its selection.

Kansas rural educators will benefit from this program, said Hilary McLellan, K-State's coordinator for the project.

"Science education is more difficult for rural educators because less resources are available," McLellan said.

She said the test program will incorporate two teachers and one principal from 10 rural school districts across the state. These representatives will train for the CD-ROM resource. They will then take the training to educators within their respective districts.

"We will be training in science education how to implement these ideas in hands-on kinds of activities," McLellan said.

The center has received internal funding to purchase necessary equipment for the project. A grant from the Bureau of Graduate Research for $1,500 has also been given to the center to cover the cost of the disk and reader. The reader costs about $1,000 and the disk costs $195.

"Additional funding (from the University) has been requested to strengthen this project and cover a wider area to include more educators," Enochs said.

The University will not directly receive any income from the project, Enochs said.

However, some revenue could be generated from the training seminar's registration fees, McLellan said.

The science education faculty has scheduled a target date of Dec. 1 to begin the project, which has been estimated to last for two years, Enochs said.

THE AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION MEMORIAL PROGRAM
WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE
American Heart Association
This space provided as a public service.

Edelaine's
421 Poyntz
776-4498
• Wedding Gowns
• Tuxedo Rental
• After Five Wear
• Bridal Shoes
• Gowns & Handbags
• Rhinestone Jewelry
DUS MA
1006 N. 3rd St., 1st Fl.
Manhattan

Come to Scrumptilyshusland for all your favorite Dairy Queen Treats!
Dairy Queen
brazier
Manhattan
12th & Moro Aggieville
1015 N. 3rd Manhattan
Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. Am. D.Q. Corp. © 1972 Am. D.Q. Corp.

Marie's Costumes
Rental Costumes for all Occasions
Ball Gowns—Tuxedos
Wedding Gowns
October Hours
M-S 10-6, Thurs. 10-8:30, Sun. 1-4
1631 Humboldt
539-5200

Ladies... let us repair those worn & broken heel caps—while you wait!
Also, polishing, refinishing and dyeing
OLSON'S
1214-C Moro Aggieville on Cobble Lane
From here to Infinity.
An orthopedic technician available to help aid your comfort.

HEALTH FAIR '87
Wednesday, October 28, 1987
9 a.m.-2 p.m.
KSU Union Main Ballroom
Featuring:
—HEALTH SCREENING —HEALTH EDUCATION
—Life Style Profile (computerized) —Nutrition —Physical Fitness Assessment —Alcohol and Other Drugs
—Blood Pressure —Cancer
—Vision and Glaucoma Testing —Aids
—Dental Assessment —Much More
BLOOD CHEMISTRY PROFILE ($7 Charge)
NOTE: DO NOT eat for 12 hours prior to test. Continue taking any medication as ordered.
FLU VACCINATION ($6 Charge)
FREE & OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
Sponsored by the Lafene Health Center
KSU and Manhattan Communities

K-STATE PLAYERS
Rodgers & Hammerstein's
SOUTH PACIFIC
Oct. 22-23-24
McCain Aud. 8 p.m.
M-F CALL 532-6398 12-5

Horticulture Club
PUMPKIN SALE
Thurs. Oct. 22-Fri. Oct. 23
UNION and outside WATERS HALL
(between Waters & Farrell Library)
If bad weather, sale 1st Floor Waters
9-5 p.m.
WE'RE THE CHEAPEST PLACE IN TOWN!
Perfect for dorm rooms!

carouse! Moonlight Sale
Mon.-Sat. 10-6
Thurs. 10-8:30
Sun. 1-5
Fall Fashions... 50% to 70% OFF
10% off All regular priced Fall Merchandise
Sweaters... FROM 9.99
Oversized Shirts... FROM 5.99
Turtlenecks... 2 FOR 9.99
Sweatshirts... 9.99 (Maxx, Esprit)
Corduroy Trousers... 9.99
THURSDAY ONLY
1215 Moro • Aggieville • 539-4511

Discover Your Major at MAJOR DECISIONS
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1987
11:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
UNION COURTYARD
• Information
• Your questions answered
• Materials
• Resource people from every college
• Exposure to all programs
• Graduate studies
Something for everyone - Especially for students still seeking a major
Sponsored by Golden Key National Honor Society

FoodWednesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, October 21, 1987 ■ Page 7

TRYPOΣ

Greek gyros give cultural flavors of Mediterranean

It may be Greek to you, but the gyro sandwich is nothing but flavorful. Although gyros are still unknown to some people, the sandwich is growing in popularity.

The gyro (pronounced YEE-ROW) is a Greek sandwich made with a lamb-and-beef mixture topped with tomatoes, onions and a sauce called Tzatziki and served on pita bread.

The key to the flavor of the sandwich is in the meat. Gyros may be served with chicken, beef or lamb, but the best meat is the lamb-and-beef mixture because it has the best flavor and is the one people like most, said Asad Hudhud, owner of Al-Basha, a Greek and Mediterranean food restaurant in Manhattan.

Hudhud buys the meat and some of the other products for the restaurant from Kronos-Central Products Inc., a company in Chicago that specializes in Greek food. The meat is in the form of 10- or 20-pound cones with a hole in the middle to allow for a type of cooking unique to gyros.

The cone of meat has to be cooked by a special machine. It is placed on the machine's stick, and the machine cooks the meat from the outside in. The machine also rotates the cone of meat, allowing the meat to be shaved off as orders are placed.

Pita is a round, flat bread without yeast that is commonly eaten throughout the Mediterranean area.

Tzatziki, a creamy white sauce, is made of sour cream, cucumber, lemon juice, garlic, salt and pepper. This sauce completes the one-of-a-kind flavor of the gyro.

Hudhud said the gyro has been successful with the Manhattan community.

"Everybody who comes in likes it or loves it," he said.

Hudhud's brother Ahmed, who works at the restaurant, said the gyro has been popular in the United States since around 1958, but has only become popular in Kansas within the past five years.

Hudhud said some people who come into the restaurant have already eaten a gyro in a different city.

"In Chicago and New York — the big cities — there are hundreds of restaurants, and you can choose anything," he said.

In addition to gyros, other popular Greek food includes hommos, falafil, tabbouleh and baba ghanouj. For dessert, choices consist of three rich pastries called kataifi, flogeres and — the most popular — baklava.

Internationally, baklava is the most well-known Greek pastry. It is made with a tissue-thin dough called filo. Filo looks and feels like baked sheets of paper, crackling and crumbling at a touch. Baklava is a multilayered filo pastry with nuts and honey syrup, cut in triangles or diamonds.

Greek cuisine is a mixture of Athenian, Macedonian and Persian foods. Most of the herbs and flavorings used in Greek recipes are those that originated in the Mediterranean or in Western Asia.

Herbs commonly used in Greek and Mediterranean cooking are garlic, oregano, basil, parsley, sage, rosemary and thyme. Olive oil is also an important flavoring and is found in almost every part of Greece. It is used as a flavoring over boiled vegetables and is spread over a slice of bread for a snack. When cooking with olive oil, it is a good idea to dilute it with a flavorless oil such as soy or corn oil.

Another flavor featured in Greek cuisine is lemon. Lemon is the most important fruit flavor of Greek cooking and is used to flavor fish, meat and fowl.

Because of the type of cooking that the gyro meat requires, preparing gyros at home may be difficult. However, specialty shops have many exotic foods available through importers of Greek food, and many supermarkets now have a gourmet food section to allow more exotic food to be prepared at home.

Recipes

Tzatziki

16 ounces plain yogurt
1 cucumber
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon white vinegar
Salt and white pepper to taste
Line a strainer with a towel or coffee filter. Spoon in yogurt and allow to drain up to 6 hours. Peel, seed and grate cucumber; drain on paper towels. Combine all ingredients in a bowl and refrigerate at least 2 hours.
Yield: 2 cups.

Kota Yahnina

1 chicken (about 3½ pounds)
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons olive oil
4 onions, chopped
1 cup crushed tomatoes
¼ cup tomato sauce
1 tablespoon tomato paste
½ cup dry white wine
1½ cups water
Wash chicken and cut into pieces. Season with salt and pepper. Heat oil in a large pot, and brown chicken on all sides. Add onion and saute until tender. Add tomatoes, tomato sauce and tomato paste. Simmer for 5 minutes. Add wine and water and simmer for 45 minutes or until chicken is tender.
Serves 4.

Baklava

Nut mixture:
4 cups coarsely ground walnuts
2 cups coarsely ground almonds
4 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
3 tablespoons melted butter
Combine nuts, sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves in a large bowl. Stir 3 tablespoons melted butter into mixture and set aside.
1 pound filo dough
1 pound (4 sticks) unsalted, melted butter
2 cups Siropi syrup
Place filo between sheets of waxed paper. Cover with a slightly dampened towel to prevent filo from drying out.
Brush bottom and sides of an 18-inch by 12-inch jelly-roll pan with melted butter. Place 8 filo sheets on bottom of pan, brushing each with melted butter. Take an additional 4 filo sheets and place in pan, allowing sheets to drape over each of the 4 sides of pan. Brush these with melted butter.
Pour 2 cups of nut mixture into filo-lined pan and spread evenly. Fold over the overlap-

Cutting boards courtesy Kitchens Plus

Siropi

Syrup for Baklava

2 cups sugar
1½ cups water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2-inch piece of lemon rind
2-inch piece of orange rind
In a small saucepan, combine sugar and water. Bring to a slow boil, stirring occasionally until sugar is dissolved.
Add lemon juice, lemon and orange rinds, and cook over medium heat for 10 minutes. Let cool.
Yield: 2 cups.

ping filo sheets, brushing with butter, to envelop the nut filling.

Repeat layering process 2 more times, to form 3 nut layers.

Top pastry with remaining filo dough, and generously brush top layer with melted butter. Use pastry brush to gently go around the edges of the pan and tuck in filo.

Score through top layers of pastry with a sharp knife, making 6 strips lengthwise. Then cut 10 strips diagonally to form diamond-shaped pieces.

Pour remaining melted butter over top of pastry. Sprinkle some water over top of pastry. (This keeps the filo from flying off during baking.)

Bake pastry in preheated 325-degree oven

Story by Stacey Schumacher

Photograph by Steve Wolgast

Eating the foods you hate: 'Try it you'll like it'

Remember all the foods you hated to eat when you were a child? Somehow, Mom always fixed them for supper.

There are always foods that people flat-out refuse to eat. As a child, you put up a real fight — even refused to eat for weeks — when asked to try spinach, brussels sprouts or liver.

I think it all started with the Beaver Cleaver generation, when mothers tried casserole recipes they clipped out of Good House-

Food for Thought

SUSAN STAGGENBORG
Feature
Editor

keeping magazine. Mothers wanted to be thrifty with their dollars, stretching a pound of hamburger a mile and serving it in mysterious — and sometimes unrecognizable — forms.

Mother would lovingly scoop onto your plate a rutabaga-and-sauerkraut casserole she "just had to try" and which was "chock full of vitamins."

You would pick and "herd" the food around your plate, hoping it would suddenly disappear. Or when your father wasn't looking, you would give it to the family dog.

There are only a few corners on a plate where food can be positioned and look like it has been partially eaten. I have seen food under the rim of the plate, under the knife, or stuffed neatly between the folds of a napkin.

I was always the last one to finish eating. With food still on my plate, I was told: "You are to stay there until you finish everything on your plate." And stay I did. For a long time. The lights would be turned off in the dining room. There I sat, staring at the last lump of sweet potatoes which had started to harden on my plate.

I think my father would eventually get tired of my stubbornness and let me get down from the table. But I could rest assured we would have sweet potatoes again, and I would be left sitting in the dark. Again.

I'm sure everyone has been through this at some time in their lives. Some people still won't eat foods that they hated as children.

I've heard the expressions "Liver...gross," or "I'd rather eat dirt than spinach." People are adamant about the foods they hate. They close their eyes and ears to any suggestion that their idea of bad food is wrong.

So, remember your childhood days and the numerous evenings you spent sitting alone in the dark, hearing "Eat it, it's good for you."

'American dream' searches for music

By Ann Iseman
Collegian Reporter

Animation lovers and music lovers. For these people, at least, "American Pop" is entertaining. Otherwise, this 1981 release, although innovative and creative, fails to fulfill expectations. One might expect a musical extravaganza with an interesting story line thrown in or a captivating story with some interesting music thrown in; this is not the case.

Instead, the viewer is treated to history according to popular magazines and cheap novels, a story line so full of typical, typical, typical that the viewer gets the uncomfortable feeling that it has all been heard and seen before. Deja vu at its worst. The music, however, is a treat. Although the film is not technically about music, it does depend on music for its personality, and the music doesn't fail. The film covers four generations, more than 80 years of an American family searching for the American dream. This family's dream is about music. Burlesque, jazz, cocktail, LSD-inspired and rock 'n' roll — all types of music are there. The film includes the actual music from such artists as Bob Seger, The Mamas and Papas, Jimi Hendrix, Jefferson Airplane and Elvis Presley. The film's animation is also a treat. Rotoscope, a method in which the live action is filmed and then animation is drawn over it, makes the characters and their movements more realistic and pleasurable to watch. The film is about the American dream, and the writer/director/producer, Ralph Bakshi, leaves no doubts about his opinion: The American dream is not real. The four men in the film, each searching for that elusive something called success, each seem to ignore the very paths which might lead them there. Instead, they focus on the mafia, war, drugs, rebellion and violence. In fact, the film itself focuses on these negative aspects of America, failing to include anything positive about America and its musical tradition. Perhaps it is this negativism which leaves the viewer with a sour taste in the mouth, or maybe it is just the idea that success is impossible without giving up happiness. Yes, most Americans equate success with happiness, as did the heroes of the film, but they were not allowed both; Bakshi saw to that. Although the story line is disappointing in its predictability, the music is a memorable treat and the animation is a pleasurable innovation. "American Pop" might be enjoyed if expectations are not too high and the viewer is looking for a visual and musical treat.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Optometrists

Dedicated to Optometry
in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs Price, Young, Odle and Horsch

1119 Westloop

537-1118

PHARMACIST

Full-time or part-time variable shifts, weekend rotation. Duties involve unit dose, IV services. The Saint Mary Hospital is a full service, acute care hospital.

THE SAINT MARY HOSPITAL
Manhattan, KS
(913) 776-1981
Personnel Dept.

the saint mary hospital
Equal Opportunity Employer

UNDECIDED? LOOKING FOR A MAJOR WITH A VERY STRONG MARKET FOR GRADUATES?

Investigate bakery science

Learn about the opportunities available in the baking industry at a seminar presented by the Young Baking Executives in Room 212, K-State Union, at 3 p.m. on October 29.

Executives presenting the seminar represent ADM Milling, Anheuser Busch, Manildra Milling, Pillsbury, American Bakers Association, and Interstate Bakeries.

The first 50 people attending the seminar will win a free box of Zinger snack cakes.

Introducing the fashion look that bombed in 1943.

Skyriders by Lee

Inspired by the 101st; they're cut loose and comfortable in soft, stonewashed denim
at —

the casual encounter
—men's fashion clothing—
1208 Moro in Aggieville

OPEN 10-6 Mon.-Sat.
10-8:30 Thurs.
1-5 Sun.

PLATOON LEADERS CLASS

The first training ground for the majority of Marine Corps Officers is college. Commissioning programs require a bachelor's degree, and that's really the first test of your abilities. So, the official Marine Corps policy is stay in school. PLC is the officer training program open to college freshmen, sophomores and juniors. It doesn't interfere with school activities or studies. There are no drills to attend or uniforms to wear during the school year. All training is done during the summer months at Quantico, Virginia. Travel costs to and from Quantico, meals, textbooks, etc. are furnished free of charge by the government. You will also be paid for the time spent in training. As a member of PLC, you may opt to

P.L.C.

THE FEW.
THE PROUD.
THE MARINES.

receive $100 a month for a nine-month school year. In exchange, you'll take on additional active duty obligations. You may receive this financial assistance for up to three years, for a total of $2,700. If you don't opt for the $100 a month, your Marine training doesn't obligate you in any way. Upon graduation from college you may be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant and be ordered to active duty for the duration of your commitment. If you've got what it takes to make it as an officer of Marines, you've got a career with many advantages. A career with reward, satisfaction, challenge and variety.

1st Lt. Gary Trottnic and SSgt. Jack Morrissey, your Marine Corps Officer Selection Team representatives, will be on the Kansas State University campus from October 20th to October 22nd. We will be glad to answer any questions you may have about the Marines, or military service in general. Or, call 841-1821 (collect) to arrange your personal interview.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES AT UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

OFFERS PART-TIME POSITIONS
MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

EMPLOYEES EARN $8 HR.
LOADING/UNLOADING

SHIFT AVAILABLE 4:15 a.m.-9 a.m.
WORKING 3-5 HOURS

UNITED PARCEL SERVICE
is looking for service-minded people to join
the UPS team.

FOR INFORMATION CONTACT
Office of Financial Aid
Fairchild Hall Rm. 104
Equal Opportunity Employer

VANDERBILT'S

Levi's
HEADQUARTERS
DISCOUNT
PRICES

PREWASHED

Levi's 501

- Black Prewashed 501's for those who can't wait to get them on. Classic straight leg, button fly styling.
- Grey
- Blue

$19⁹⁹

Compare to $29.95

Men's
LINED JEAN JACKETS

Rugged heavy-weight denim with double stitched seams, copper buttons and all the quality and durability Levi's are famous for.

Compare to $79.95

$39⁹⁹

DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100

Hansen to try for Olympic status

By Jackie Wendt
Collegian Reporter

A tough test awaits for one K-Stater this summer in Indianapolis. Ray Hansen, assistant track coach, will be competing at the Olympic Trials in the javelin throw for a spot on the U.S. Olympic Team.

Hansen said in order to qualify, he must complete the meet as one of the top three javelin throwers.

"If I could throw the javelin 10 feet to get on the Olympic team, then what I'd like to throw would be 10 feet," Hansen said. "My real goal, however, is to throw 270 feet which would put me as one of the top three javelin throwers in the United States."

It was at the Olympic Sports Festival in July that Hansen qualified for the Trials.

"From April of last year until July 1 of this year, competitors are given the opportunity to qualify," Hansen said. "They set up a certain standard — a distance to throw — and once you hit the mark, you're invited."

So far, Hansen said, about 20 to 25 others have also qualified for the Olympic Trials. However, Hansen said he believes he will be one of the top five competitors in the javelin throw.

"The five you would think would be on the team if you were a betting man would be Tom Petranoff, Duncan Attwood, Brian Crouser, Mike Barnett and myself," Hansen said.

To help prepare for the upcoming Olympic Trials, Hansen said his training will be to "run a lot, throw a lot and lift a lot."

Coming up on his second year as a full-time assistant track coach at K-State, Hansen was a two-time All-American javelin thrower for the Wildcats. He qualified for the NCAA Outdoor Championships in the event in each of his four years of competition and holds the school record in the old javelin, with a toss of 283 feet.

Hansen said he got his start in javelin throwing when he was a sophomore in high school.

"I was just clowning around and picked up a javelin one day," Hansen said. "I threw it and I outbeat the other javelin throwers on the school team."

Hansen, who hails from Monroe, La., attended college in northeast

Raymond Hansen, assistant track coach, practices his javelin throwing skills Tuesday afternoon at the R.V. Christian Track. Hansen will be competing for a spot on the U.S. Olympic Team.

Louisiana for 1½ years before he transferred to K-State in 1981. He was Big Eight Champion in the javelin in 1982 and 1984.

Hansen said the Olympic Trials will have no effect on his coaching position at K-State.

"I love K-State," Hansen said. "If there is a future here, I'd love to stay."

Hansen said his talent is a "gift from God".

Member benefits available to all

Mid-Week Commentary

TOM
PERRIN
Sports
Columnist

Hand the athletic department a little credit on this one.

Giving ICAT (I Contributed A Twenty) members the opportunity to receive preferential seating for men's basketball games had to be one of the brighter moves the department has made in recent years.

Sure, some who aren't ICAT members may be a little peeved about having to wait in line behind ICAT people for reserved student tickets. Nonetheless, everyone has had an equal opportunity to join the organization that bills itself as a group of "Students That Back The Cats."

If you didn't put down your $20 to join ICAT, you have to wait an extra week for reserved basketball tickets that won't be as good as ICAT seats. It's as simple as that. If you want the advantages, you've got to pay the price. Welcome to the real world.

"Everybody has had an ample opportunity to join," said Matt McMillen, a field representative for the athletic department who works with ICAT. "It's just like any donor program. You're going to get certain benefits over those who are not contributors."

The major benefit of joining ICAT is the preferred seating. Not the only benefit, but certainly the biggest perk. Some of the other ICAT bonuses include discounted bus trips to K-State road games, meetings with coaches and social activities.

"But, I'd be a fool to say the preferred seating wasn't a big draw, because it was," said McMillen, a 1985 K-State graduate.

The purpose of ICAT isn't to support the basketball team, but rather to provide needed scholarship money for K-State's non-revenue sports, which are among the worst-funded in the Big Eight Conference.

The athletic department's use of a successful and widely-followed basketball team as a means of support for financially-strapped sports like track, baseball and golf was pretty damn smart. Creative solutions solve problems.

"We hope people aren't just joining for the preferred seating," McMillen said. "We have 14 sports at K-State and we want to support them all."

Last spring when ICAT was started, around 100 students became members. At the beginning of the current semester, when a membership drive using better basketball tickets as a drawing card was started, membership totals rose over 835.

The main reason people joined ICAT shouldn't be much of a mystery. Now, these students are getting a well-deserved return on their investment. ICAT members who have camped out (or gotten other ICAT members to camp out for them) could begin purchasing basketball tickets at 8 a.m. today. The remainder of the student tickets will go on sale Monday.

The ICAT seats, located in sections A and B, are among the best student seats at Ahearn Field House. Around 700 seats in those two sections will belong to ICAT members. Still, the seats are not the very best that students can buy. The general admission seats located in section C at mid-court are even better, and the first group of non-ICAT campers will have first crack at G.A. tickets Monday.

"Tickets are the same as they've been for the last umpteen years," ticket office manager Carol Adolph said. "We have not changed the number of non-reserved and reserved tickets."

Sports Briefly

Wallace back in practice

K-State inside linebacker David Wallace began his comeback from a knee injury when he ran lightly during the Wildcats' Tuesday practice.

Wallace suffered a the injury in the first quarter of the Tulsa game, and was expected to be lost for the season. However, a few days after the game, it was announced that he might return.

"He started running tonight," K-State Coach Stan Parrish. "It'll probably be a couple of weeks before we get him back. He has a good chance of playing in the KU game."

Wallace logged 57 tackles in three-plus games, and was on pace to break the K-State single season tackle record of 178 before he went down.

Defensive back Marcus Miller, who separated a shoulder in last Saturday's game against Oklahoma, missed Tuesday's workout. Parrish said Miller has a "50-50 chance" of playing this week against Nebraska.

Golf team finishes eighth

The K-State women's golf team finished eighth among a field of eight teams in the Kansas Jayhawk Invitational which concluded here today at the Par 72, 7,210-yard Alvarado Golf Club.

K-State carded 18-hole scores of 381-376-386 for a 54-hole total of 1,143. Winning the team title was the University of Missouri with a final score of 985. The University of Nebraska finished second at 994 followed by host the University of Kansas at 1,003.

Individually for K-State, the top finisher was sophomore Jill Zientara, who carded rounds of 88-88-94 for a 54-hole total of 270. Besides Zientara, Chris Adams notched a 274 (93-86-95), Keli Blake tallied a 293 (95-100-98) and Beth Holmberg fired a 306 (105-102-99).

Gaining medalist honors was Lisa Luigs of Missouri who shot rounds of 76-74-89 for a 54-hole total of 234.

Public tickets on sale

Public season tickets for K-State's men's and women's basketball are now on sale and should be purchased as soon as possible, K-State Athletic Director Larry Travis said Monday.

Applications for ticket renewals have been mailed and should be returned to the K-State Ticket Office by Nov. 4. Others interested in purchasing tickets need to contact the ticket office.

"We're anticipating a sharp rise in the number of student tickets sold this year," Travis said. "With that being the case, there will be fewer tickets available for the general public."

Spikers dominate Jayhawks

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's volleyball team defeated the University of Kansas 15-6, 15-10, 12-15, 15-12, Tuesday night in Allen Field House.

The win moved the Wildcats' record to 13-6 overall and 4-3 in the Big Eight Conference. Kansas dropped to 8-14 overall and 2-6 in the conference.

"This was a real big match for us," K-State Coach Scott Nelson said. "We've been struggling a little bit, losing two out of our last three matches. We played real solidly early and KU seemed to be a little error-prone."

Of the one game the 'Cats lost in the match, Nelson said composure was the key. He said the match was up in the air until near the end of the fourth game.

"In the third game, we lost our poise and concentration. It continued to be tight in the fourth game...but we were able to break through and win the match."

Nelson said the play of junior Shawnee Call — who led the 'Cats with 17 kills and 24 digs — plus two other of his players was a big factor.

"The play of Shawnee Call, plus the outstanding setting of Kristen Martin and Leslie Krull helped us break the tie and win the match," Nelson said.

Senior Kristi Jacquart had six kills in nine attempts with no errors, for a lofty hitting percentage of .667.

Jacquart also had three service aces to move her total to 61 for the season and to a K-State career record of 146.

The match marked the fourteenth straight in which Jacquart recorded at least one ace. Senior Kelley Carlson also tallied three aces.

St. Louis back in Series with 3-1 victory at home

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Vince Coleman's two-run double in the seventh inning rescued St. Louis from the brink of elimination and rallied the Cardinals past Minnesota 3-1 Tuesday night, cutting the Twins' World Series lead to 2-1.

No team has overcome a 3-0 deficit in the World Series and the Cardinals avoided that position by scoring three times in the seventh against reliever Juan Berenguer.

Les Straker, a 10-year minor leaguer, outdueled St. Louis starter John Tudor for six innings, shutting out the Cardinals on four hits. But St. Louis struck when Berenguer took over to start the seventh.

On the coldest night of the fall in St. Louis, the record crowd of 55,347 came to life when the Cardinals revived their World Series chances. Jose Oquendo and Tony Pena opened the seventh with singles and Terry Pendleton, batting for Tudor, bunted the runners into scoring position.

Coleman, just 1-for-11 in the Series, sliced an 0-2 pitch barely inside the left-field line that made it 2-1. Coleman then stole his second base of the game and scored on Ozzie Smith's single that finished Berenguer.

Berenguer, the Twins' ace reliever in the American League playoffs, was again hit hard by the Cardinals. He gave up two runs on three hits in Minnesota's 8-4 victory in Game 2.

Tudor and the Cardinal finally found a way to shut down the Twins, who scored 18 runs on 21 hits in the first two games. Tudor allowed one run on four hits in seven innings and Todd Worrell finished with one-hit relief.

Yet even with Tudor pitching well, it appeared it might not be enough on a night when the temperature was to drop into the upper 20s. Tudor issued his only two walks of the game starting the sixth and Tom Bryunansky hit an RBI single.

Game 4 will be Wednesday night when Frank Viola, who won Game 1, will start for the Twins. Rookie left-hander Greg Mathews will start for St. Louis.

Of the 37 teams that won the first two games in the World Series, 27 went on to win it.

World Series Game 3
Cards 3, Twins 1

But in the last two years, Kansas City and the New York Mets each fell behind 2-0 and rallied to win in seven games.

Straker and Tudor matched zeroes through five innings.

Tudor retired the first six Twins and escaped trouble in the third by striking out Straker in his first major-league at-bat. Straker failed to bunt with a runner on first, and the mistake was magnified when Dan Gladden followed with a two-out single. Tudor got Greg Gagne on an inning-ending fly ball.

The Twins, who had scored 13 runs in the fourth innings of Games 1 and 2, went down 1-2-3 this time and that brought the loudest cheer from the relieved crowd. Tudor finished the fifth by fanning Straker with a runner on third, again on three pitches.

The Cardinals again came out running against Straker, who has trouble holding runners on base and is prone to jitters. Straker committed the 17th balk in Series history in the second inning when he did not hold his set position, something St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said the Twins' pitchers do not do.

Coleman reached on Gagne's two-out throwing error in the third, stole second and went to third on a grounder before Herr grounded out, making him 0-for-10 in the series.

Straker worked around McGee's one-out double in the fourth and Herr's leadoff single in the sixth, which ended an 0-for-21 slump in the World Series.

Both dugouts had heaters in use as the game started with the temperature at 49 degrees and it dropped to 44 within the first hour. That was in sharp contrast to the climate-controlled Metrodome at Minneapolis, where the first two games of the Series were played.

Cardinals third base coach Nick Leyva wore white gloves against the cool temperatures, but the weather didn't seem to bother a standing-room-only crowd of 55,347, a stadium record.

The Cardinals drew more than 3 million fans this year to join the Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Mets, each in much larger markets, in an elite group. Cardinals fans couldn't quite match the noise level of Twins fans, who waved hankies, blew whistles and yelled their lungs out in indoor comfort in Games 1 and 2, but they did wave their own white hankies in support of the Cardinals, who trailed 2-0 in the best-of-seven series.

Several radio stations have been distributing small hand towels since the Cardinals clinched the National League East title.

Several thousand towels inscribed, "We Believe," were given away at a rally.

Reagan proposes budget compromise

President considers possible tax increase

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, after ordering the start of $23 billion in automatic spending cuts under the Gramm-Rudman law, said Tuesday he would prefer cutting the deficit through a budget compromise with Congress and indicated for the first time he might consider a tax increase.

Reagan's remarks came after a meeting with his top economic advisers and followed calls from the bipartisan congressional leadership for action in the wake of Monday's stock market crash.

"I presented in my budget a program that provided for $22 billion in additional revenue, which was not necessarily taxes. And I'm willing to look at whatever proposal they might have," Reagan said in response to a question about whether he'd compromise with the Democrats, who propose a tax increase to reduce the deficit.

"I am willing to be a participant in anything that can bring us together," the president said, telling reporters he was immediately ordering his aides to open discussions with the leaders of the House and Senate.

The revenues in the president's budget included some government asset sales along with taxes that the administration considers "user fees."

After Reagan's statement, White

House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater appeared to try to soften the president's remarks.

"He does not envision tax increases as a part of the (deficit) solution. He said he's willing to hear their proposals (from Congress) but he does not envision a tax increase as being a part (of the final package)," he said.

Fitzwater said Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III and White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker Jr. would hold the discussions with Congress and the president did not see himself as personally taking part.

Nonetheless, lawmakers embraced the president's announcement.

The chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., called the president's announcement that he would negotiate with Congress "good news for the country."

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., also said he welcomed the news, but chastised the president for blaming the government's red ink on decades of Democratic control of Congress.

"I believe that it's time to stop pointing fingers and cool the rhetoric if progress in those talks is to be made," Byrd said.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he hoped the meeting would come quickly. "I hope that his statement will reassure American investors that we're going to deal with this problem, and our economy is essentially strong and sound," Dole said.

The $23 billion in spending cuts Reagan ordered are required under the Gramm-Rudman law because the president and Congress have failed to reduce the budget deficit.

James C. Miller III, director of the Office of Management and Budget, announced that 10.5 percent would be withheld from Pentagon programs and 8.5 percent from non-defense agencies, as each category absorbs half of the reductions required by the Gramm-Rudman law.

Miller said that could mean furloughs at the Justice Department, layoffs at the State Department and delays in developing a space station.

Those could be averted under the law if Congress and Reagan settle on an alternative deficit-reduction plan before Nov. 20, the date the cutbacks become permanent.

"I believe that it's time to stop pointing fingers and cool the rhetoric if progress in those talks is to be made."

—Robert Byrd

For now, the cutbacks are temporary, with the money held in escrow and agencies making temporary adjustments. From AIDS research to law enforcement and military readiness, government programs could lose about one-tenth of their budget for fiscal 1988, the 12 months which began Oct. 1.

But in testimony before the House

Budget Committee, at a meeting featuring sharp and partisan exchanges, Miller said Reagan wasn't ready to convene the budget "summit" that lawmakers have been demanding all year — more emphatically after Monday's stock market crash.

"It's a very bad situation, I think, right now," Miller said. "And I don't think the president is in a mood to do that (call a summit) although he might change his mind."

Under the law, the Office of Management and Budget computes the across-the-board Gramm-Rudman cutbacks based on a formula designed to spread the cuts around.

The law this year cuts $11.5 billion each from domestic programs and from the Pentagon, although within those broad categories specific areas were exempted. No cuts will come from huge areas of the budget, including Social Security, welfare and veterans benefits and the military payroll.

The non-exempt portion of the military budget will lose about 10.5 percent and domestic programs about 8.5 percent, Miller said, figures similar to estimates released last week by the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office.

The administration is more optimistic than the CBO in its prediction of the fiscal 1988 deficit. Under the calculating rules of Gramm-Rudman, the administration's deficit estimate is $163 billion, compared with $179 billion estimated by the congressional agency.

The Gramm-Rudman cuts envision a deficit of about $144 billion in the fiscal year which began Oct. 1, as an interim step toward a balanced budget in fiscal 1993.

GOODSON AUTO TRIM
Tailor Made Seat Covers
Tanneau Covers
Boat Covers
Window Tinting
Convertible Tops
Vinyl Tops
Complete Auto, Truck & Boat Upholstery
201 Sarber Lane
(behind Wal-Mart)
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
Phone 776-7679 Res. 776-7614

BRIDAL GIFT REGISTRY
We are pleased to announce that the following couples have registered with us.
Marcia Schilling & Dan Cook
Linda Harrington & Tom Duckworth
MIDWEST APPLIANCE SERVICE
201 TUTTLE CREEK BOULEVARD
MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66502
PH. 776-9454

A Counter-Intelligence Cabaret
Featuring Inciteful Songwriter
Dave Lippman
And His Arch-Nemesis
★George $chrub★
Wednesday, October 21, 1987, 8 p.m.
at Bonkers—$4/door, $3.50/advance
Sponsored by: Students in Solidarity With Central America

Daily 9 to 9, Sunday 11 to 6 3007 Anderson Ave.

ALCO

Prices Good thru Sunday, Oct. 25

DISCOUNT STORE

SWEATS!

6⁸⁸ Shirts or Pants

SWEATS FOR EVERYONE
Terrific assortment of rainbow colors to choose from. Acrilan® acrylic/cotton fleece sweats to exercise or play in all year round! Sizes S-M-L-XL.

TV Listings

WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 21, 1987
	KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies
8:00		TBA		My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook	Little House
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's the Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Volleyball: USA Cup	Movie: "Love is Never Silent"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's the Boss Mr. Belvedere	M.T. Moore Dick Van Dyke	Body Electric Write Course	Andy Griffith Soap	Final match Scuba
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connect. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Commun. Breast Cancer	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Edmonton Eskimos at Sask.	Movie: "Strategy of Terror"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Nova	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	katchewan Roughriders	Tom & Jerry and Friends
2:00		Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobilee Zoo	McLaughlin Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	Drag Racing: IHRA U.S.	Flintstones
3:00		Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones
4:00		Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravestar	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe M. Bravestar	Hydroplane Racing	Munsters Laverne
5:00	Family Ties	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook PGA Tour	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News Truth/Conseq.	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Barney Miller	SportsCenter Sports	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00	Highway To Heaven	Oldest Rookie	World Series: Game Four	Hill Street Blues	Kansas: The Drive-In Blues	Movie: "The Return of the Pink Panther"	Gymnastics: Rhythmic Invitational	Movie: "Rio Lobo"
8:00	Year In The Life	Movie: "Sadie and Son"		Job to be Done	Movie: "True Grit"
9:00	St. Elsewhere				Mark Russell It's Your Turn	News	PBA Bowling: Treasure	Movie: "Helter Skelter"
10:00	News	News Cheers	News	Late Show	Wild America Business Rpt.	INN News	Coast Senior SportsCenter
11:00	Ent. Tonight	Diamonds	M*A*S*H Nightline	Dating Game	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie: "Bad Boys"	Sports Karate: ISKA	Movie: "Goldengirl"
12:00	David Letterman	"An Uncommon Love"	700 Club	How to Murder Your Wife			U.S. Middle-Arm Wrestling

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS
Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY
* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
* No abbreviations, please.
* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.20	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75
Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____
Address _____ Student ID # _____

1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20
21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Film Developing Special!

COUPON

ONE DOLLAR OFF

DEVELOPING & PRINTING

Good on developing and printing standard size prints from 110, 126, Disc or 35mm color print film (C-41 process only). Coupon must accompany order (not valid with any other coupon offer). Offer good for a limited time only. 1X-2527

MUSSELMAN'S
Apple juice 100% pure all natural. Quality you can taste.
99¢ 64 fl. oz.

BRACHS
1¹⁸ Per Lb. PICK-A-MIX
Large variety of chewy or hard candy. Mix your favorites.

FIDDLE FADDLE
2 FOR 1⁰⁰ FIDDLE FADDLE
Glazed popcorn clusters with peanuts or almonds. 6 1/2 oz. box.

Institution closed, resumes business as Topeka Savings

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Topeka Savings Association was closed Tuesday by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. because it was insolvent, federal officials said.

But a new savings and loan association will open Wednesday morning under the name Topeka Savings, A Federal Savings and Loan Association, according to Paul Olkhovsky, spokesman for the FSLIC.

Federal officials closed Topeka Savings at 4 p.m. Tuesday, the normal closing hours for the savings and loan, Olkhovsky said. The new association will open at the normal hours Wednesday, he added.

"We closed it at its usual time and will reopen it at its usual time," he said.

The new association will assume all the assets and liabilities of Topeka Savings, he said.

"The new association will also maintain the same hours as its predecessor and all deposits will remain insured by the FSLIC to the maximum allowed by law," Olkhovsky said. "All accounts have been transferred in full to the new association."

He said customers do not need to be alarmed, since accounts are still insured for up to $100,000. They will still be able to write checks, he said, and all contractual terms will continue.

The Topeka savings and loan was placed in the federal "management conservatorship program," Olkhovsky said, which means the FSLIC owns the association.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington, D.C., which regulates the savings and loan industry and chartered the new Topeka association that opens Wednesday, has approved a contract with Franklin Savings and Loan Association of Ottawa, Kan., to manage the day-to-day operations of the new savings and loan association.

"The bank board put the Topeka institution in the management conservatorship program because it was insolvent," Olkhovsky said.

In mid-1980, Topeka Savings began reporting operating losses as a result of its mortgage loan portfolio and above-average operating expenses.

He said the association attempted to increase yield through adjustable rate lending, loan discount programs and buying and selling the loans of other savings and loan associations.

"Confronted with continuing losses in 1983, the association began investing in large real estate acquisition and development loans on projects located outside the association's primary market areas," he said.

Police find Arizona girl in Missouri after she leaves treatment center

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — An Arizona woman told police Tuesday that a girl found curled up in the fetal position in a bathroom at Springfield Regional Airport last weekend is her 17-year-old daughter.

The mother said she recognized a photograph of the girl when it was shown on a local television news program in Mesa, Ariz., said Sgt. Dan Wilson. He said authorities decided not to release the girl's name because she is a juvenile in Arizona.

The girl, who authorities said can't speak or care for herself, apparently walked away from a residential treatment center in Scottsdale, Ariz., late last week. The mother told police her daughter may have left to seek attention and that she reverts to a mentally incapacitated state when under stress or when she is not on medication.

Wilson said police aren't sure whether the girl traveled to Springfield by herself or with another person.

An airline flight that originated in Phoenix landed in Springfield about 5 a.m. Sunday, just before authorities found the girl. Mesa is part of the Phoenix metropolitan area.

Mary Beth Doe, the name given to her Monday, likely will remain at a local hospital until her mother takes her back to Arizona, said Perry Epperly, chief juvenile officer for Greene County.

"My conversations with the mother today indicated to me she will come to Springfield," Epperly said. "She wants someone from the (Scottsdale) hospital staff to accompany her."

Authorities had suspected the girl might be from the Phoenix area.

In addition to the plane flight to Springfield that originated in Phoenix, police found a torn section of newspaper from the Oct. 11 Arizona Republic among her belongings. The clipping listed several want ad notices for babysitting.

Two suitcases and a duffel bag filled with clothes and food were at her side when she was found.

A note found with her said, "I placed my beautiful child in your secure arms to rest." The 21-line note asks God to care for the child.

The note is signed, but police said only the first name on the scrawled signature — Katherine — can be read.

Fernando Vender, a spokesman for the Arizona Department of Economic Security, said computer records failed to show any case in Arizona of a retarded teen named Mary Beth with a mother named Katherine receiving state care.

Kedzie 103

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (175)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irwin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

DO YOU let people spend your money without asking you first? That's what Student Senate is doing with $1.2 million of student funds. Sign the Holtz Hall referendum petition to give the students the right to vote on this issue. Call 532-7777 for details. (38-42)

RECREATION CAREER Day—Oct. 21, in KS and U rooms of Union, exhibits 10-12. (40-42)

BOYD HALL bake sale Wednesday, Oct. 21st in front of the Union. (41-42)

SADD MEMBERS remember meeting Oct. 22nd at 5:30 p.m., Union room 207. New members welcome! (42-44)

HAVE YOU always wanted to be in pictures? SADD members now is your chance! Picture for Royal Purple at 6:45 p.m., Oct. 22, room 202 Fairchild. (42-44)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

NICE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments. Very close to campus. Available Nov. 1. Please call 776-9124. (371)

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY, one-bedroom furnished apartment. All bills paid. Call 537-2590. (41-43)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211)

NICE, LARGE one- and two-bedroom apartments in Westloop area. Please call 776-9124. (371)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

VW 1600 cc Bug engine, complete, 1600 cc rebuilt shortblock, IRS Bug transmission. Import auto repairs at J & L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, St. George. (38-51)

1983 CHEV. Celebrity, excellent condition, $4,000, must see to appreciate. Call 537-0881. (38-42)

MUST SELL 1970 Chevrolet Impala, 17,750 miles. Excellent condition, $300. Call 539-2421. (40-44)

1979 TOYOTA Celica five-speed, sunroof, new paint, great shape. 537-8944, ask for Murray. (41-44)

1966 WILDCAT Buick in good condition. White with maroon interior. Call 6-8 a.m. (913) 944-3570. (42-46)

COMPUTERS 08

HAYES MODEM, 1200 baud. Year old, as new, awesome. 537-4069, after 7 p.m. $300. (42-44)

EMPLOYMENT 09

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000 month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work, electronics, crafts. Others. Information (504) 641-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-59)

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South Padre Island, Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-282-6221. (35-44)

WE SEEK entrepreneur business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

BABYSITTER NEEDED immediately in my home for 15-month-old. Light housekeeping and some meal preparation. Good health, non-smoker, references required. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and some evenings. Call 539-4915, leave message. (38-42)

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 East Poyntz, 9-9. (39-47)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours) including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service office. We offer student pay plan, job variety and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat, wear appropriate attire and be able to obtain a Food Handler's card. (38-44)

FLEXIBLE PART-TIME and full-time day positions open now. Apply in person at Pinata. Ask for Kim. (40-42)

CALIFORNIA JOB opportunity—Do you like kids and childcare? Room, board, salary provided. Respond to HELP 4 PARENTS, 415-322-3816, 770 Menlo Ave., Suite 219, Menlo Park, CA 94025. (40-75)

RETAIL SALES clerk for afternoons and weekends. Sales experience preferred. Bring resume to 1212 Moro, Aggieville. (41-43)

FULL OR part-time mail clerk needed for growing company. Involves some lifting and fulfillment of orders. Contact Norreen at 539-0555. (41-43)

ACCESSORIES ON the Park is taking applications for part-time positions to work weekends and through the holidays. Apply in person 708 N. Manhattan Ave. (42-47)

LOOKING FOR part-time babysitter with transportation. Evenings and some weekends. References please. 537-1205. (42)

ON-CAMPUS travel representative or organization needed to promote Spring Break trip to Florida. Earn money, free trips, and valuable work experience. Call Inter-Campus Programs at 1-800-433-7747. (42-44)

$10-$60 weeklyup mailing circulars! Rush self-addressed stamped envelope. Dept. AN-70CC-CUI, 9300 Wilshire, Suite 470, Beverly Hills, CA 90212. (42-58)

PART-TIME SITTER and house cleaner needed. Call 456-9676 after 5 p.m. (42-44)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

NICE 1981 Redman mobile. 14 x 70, three bedrooms, central air, ceiling fan, big deck. Call 539-7103. (42-47)

HOUSE FOR sale. Two bedrooms, hardwood floors, appliances, new hot water heater, attached garage, large yard. Call 539-2860. (42-43)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND: 14 CARAT gold woman's bracelet in Microforms department. Also, women's all-weather turquoise coat and faded jeans jacket found two weeks ago. Items can be claimed on first floor circulation Farrell Library. (40-42)

FOUND: NAVY blue sweatshirt near Hollis House. Contact Throckmorton 414 or 532-6176, Marie. (41-43)

THETA TAMU—Welcome to our family! I'm glad you're my granddaddy! Love, Grandma. (42)

THETA JENNIFER: Mom and dot we became last night, part of our tradition of the pansy, stars and golden kites! Love always, Mom. (42)

THETA TAMU—Welcome to our family! I'm glad you're my granddaddy! Love, Grandma. (42)

THETA JENNIFER: Mom and dot we became last night, part of our tradition of the pansy, stars and golden kites! Love always, Mom. (42)

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

- 1 Word ignored in indices
- 4 — canto
- 7 Word on a gift card
- 8 Tim Conway, for one
- 10 — It on Rio
- 13 Ladd-Loren film
- 16 He ran in '56: inits.
- 17 Actress Baker
- 18 Tokyo, at one time
- 19 Surrounds
- 20 One of the Barry-mores
- 21 Praises
- 23 Enemy agents
- 25 Prehistoric tomb
- 26 Tree trunk

DOWN

- 1 Waiters' needs
- 2 "Ecce —"
- 3 Corrected
- 4 Non-metallic element
- 5 Author Zola
- 6 Thepeak like thith?
- 7 Piece of floating sea ice
- 8 Musical "tails"
- 9 Stick together
- 10 Bus. degree
- 12 Nests of pheasants
- 14 Sights
- 15 —, "Voyager"
- 19 Rude shelter
- 20 Gaming cube
- 21 Not serious
- 22 Toward the rear
- 23 One type of loser?
- 24 Phonograph record
- 25 Tongue stealer?
- 26 Infants
- 28 Postpone indefinitely
- 29 Small bay
- 30 Uncanny
- 31 Ponce de
- 32 Social worker?
- 34 Chow follower
- 35 On one's guard

Yesterday's answer 10-21

CRYPTOQUIP

10-21

LUUIJWDLWD SLF WRBBD

YIN LC NMLJDP UIWDMCD

YJFBM: S M SLC LW

MPM AIV ARBJVMC

Yesterday's Cryptquip: HOW TO PAY FOR YOUR WIFE'S KNEE SURGERY? JUST OPEN A JOINT CHECKING ACCOUNT.

Today's Cryptquip clue: W equals N

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

It was a stupid idea, Harry. You just had to charge in and buy a convertible.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

KCC allows KPL to decrease rates in upcoming year

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Customers of the state's largest utility will see a slight decrease in their monthly gas bills because of a formal order the Kansas Corporation Commission issued Tuesday.

The KCC allowed KPL Gas Service Co. of Topeka to reduce the rates it charges for natural gas 0.5 percent starting Jan. 1, 1988. The KCC also allowed the company to make permanent a rate reduction of 0.6 percent that the utility implemented on a temporary basis in April.

The average KPL residential customer should save about $5 a year because of the KCC's decision. Tuesday's written order formalizes a tentative decision the commission reached during an administrative meeting three weeks ago.

KPL asked the commission for permission to reduce its rate in February, citing savings on federal income taxes, as well as reductions in expenses on bonds and preferred stock.

The KCC also approved a new "economic development rate," one company officials have said is designed to stimulate economic growth in KPL's service area and increase the number of its customers.

The rate applies new industrial or commercial customers who purchase 3,000 cubic feet of gas in any single month during a year's time.

Those customers will receive discounts equal to 50 percent of KPL's profit margin.

Market

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1 encouraged that policymakers of the leading industrialized countries were reacting with concern to the markets' recent slide.

A sense of panic in the markets Monday was attributed in large measure to fears that those policymakers would be unable to settle on a mutually acceptable strategy for dealing with international trade and debt problems.

Even with those positive developments, brokers said the market had to absorb a formidable amount of selling, stemming in part from mutual-fund redemptions and liquidation from "margin" accounts in which investors holding stock financed with borrowed money declined to put up additional collateral.

The smaller stocks traded at the American Stock Exchange and in the over-the-counter market were particularly hard hit. The Amex market value index fell 24.34 to 258.16, and the NASDAQ composite index for the OTC market lost 32.46 to 327.75.

Gulf

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1 of war with Iran, declaring: "They're not that stupid." Adm. William Crowe, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff, predicted Iran would use the "silent hand" of terrorism or mines.

The attack on the platforms, which American officials said were being used for military purposes, was the third U.S. strike at Iran in a month.

Helicopter gunships disabled a landing craft caught laying mines Sept. 21, and on Oct. 8 sank an armed speedboat and disabled two.

In Tehran, Rafsanjani said Iran would retaliate "according to our responsibilities in the coming days and we'll make the U.S. regret its action."

"This is not a threat but a reality," he said. "We have proved this in action and we stand by our policy, which is an Islamic principle." Rafsanjani's speech to the Parliament was broadcast by Tehran radio.

Crash

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1 ple were treated and released.

The pilot was about 15 miles south of Indianapolis when his engine failed and he could not restart it, authorities said. Spitler said Teagarden approached the airport from the southwest in a light fog but overshot the runway.

"He was going to circle around to his right and come in on a different runway," Spitler said. But he was unable to maintain enough altitude and told controllers, "'I'm looking for an open field. I've got to get out,'" Spitler said.

The abandoned plane hit the roof of a Bank One branch, then skipped across the road and exploded into the motel. No rockets or ammunition were on board, Spitler said.

"The largest portion I saw is approximately 20 feet inside the lobby," said Campbell, adding that the aircraft is a "crumpled up mass of metal with hydraulic lines. There's a lot of bits and pieces laying around."

Fred Roesener, director of security for Bank One, said it was "amazing that no one was hurt" when the plane hit the bank. The roof, he said, "peeled itself back like the lid on a sardine can."

Teagarden, stationed at Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., was flying from Pittsburgh to Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma on a training mission, according to Indianapolis Police Detective Norm Matthews.

FREE DELIVERY

HUNAM

Restaurant

1304 Westloop

10% off with KSU ID

539-8888 539-0888

Schnapps & Hopps Special

All day Wednesday

The Ranch

SALOON

3 mi. East Hwy 24

539-4989

A Class B Private Club

Krystallos

"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24

(Off the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)

Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

Consumer Relations Board

Let the CRB help solve all of your contractual agreements.

Information on landlord-tenant relationships. Leases, inventories & roommate agreements; consumer credit; door-to-door sales, mail order fraud & much more.

SGA Office, Union Courtyard

532-6541 call or drop by

RUSHWACKERS

THE FUNMUNKERY

TONIGHT

2 Fer Steins and Well Drinks

NEXT WEDNESDAY

Special Comedy Invasion

DAVID NASTER

One Night Only

Tomorrow

Schnapps Promo

All Mixed Drinks $1.50

Bus. 539-9727 Off. 539-4321

531 N. Manhattan

Enjoy smooth, creamy

Frozen Yogurt

that tastes like Ice Cream but with 80% less fat!

--FREE SAMPLES--

I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!

Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily

Noon-11 p.m. Sundays

Nautilus Towers-Aggieville

Auntie Mac's Parlor

SANDWICHES

Now being served!

Tonight:

$1.50

Well drinks

75¢ Draws

$2 blended drinks

$1 Wine

Thursday:

$1.25

Well drinks

616 N. 12th 539-9967

Open Campus Forum

(Open to Public)

"The Future of Higher Education: Quality & Accessibility"

October 22, 7 p.m.

Union Big 8 Room

HERO

FOR A HOT TIME

CALL

776-0203

WET 'N' WILD

MOBILE HOT TUB

KMKF NIGHT

at

National Video®

All Movies

50¢

Thurs., Oct. 22nd—4-9 p.m.

1123 Westloop 537-0089

NATIONAL VIDEO

BRING THE STARS HOME TONIGHT!

Offer good Manhattan Store only. Offer excludes Platoon. Normal store policies apply. Return time 6 p.m.

KMKF 101+

UPC

UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

REPO MAN

In this surreal satire of the world of auto repossession, Harry Dean Stanton stars as an angry, fiercely moralistic repo man who lives by a code that considers those who fail to make their car payments as out-and-out thieves. Also starring Emilio Estevez!

FRIDAY and SATURDAY - MIDNIGHT - Forum Hall Rated R.

k-state union

upc kaleidoscope

PLANTING IN THE DUST

Little Theater Oct. 24, 7:30 p.m.

discussion and reception following

no charge

a critically acclaimed dramatic monologue about farming, land stewardship, and rural life. It is powerful, yet entertaining, and has been hailed throughout the midwest as an outstanding presentation.

a one-act play by Nancy Paddock

American Baptist Campus Ministry

Midday Arts

presents

A Preview of the Musical

SOUTH PACIFIC

by the K-State Players

Oct. 21

12:00 Noon

Union Courtyard

k-state union

upc arts

American Graffiti

is back!

Take a trip back to 1962 and the world of sock hops, hot rods, drive-ins and Wolfman Jack! Starring Richard Dreyfuss, Ron Howard, Cindy Williams and McKenzie Phillips.

SATURDAY, 2 p.m. and SUNDAY, 2 and 7 p.m.

Rated PG, Forum Hall.

k-state union

upc feature films

AMERICAN POP

The State of the Art in Living Animation.

Tonite!

7:30 p.m.

Forum Hall

Thursday!

3:30 p.m.

Little Theatre

7:30 p.m.

Forum Hall

Rated R.

An animated journey tracing the growth of America and its music through the lives of four generations of an American musical family!

K.S.U. I.D. Required at all movies.

Admission:

$1.75 at all showings except

$1.50 Saturday 2 p.m. and Sunday 2 & 7 p.m.

Let's Talk About It . . .

Ellie Brandt, President of the Aggieville Merchants Association will be present to discuss actions concerning the KU—K-State weekend.

THURS., OCT. 22 NOON—UNION CATSKELLER

k-state union

upc issues & ideas

"LA BAMBA"

(Rated PG-13)

WIN 2 FREE All-you-can-eat Tostada Dinners & 2-16 oz. drinks from the K-State Union food service. (Good only October 27 from 4-6:30 p.m.)

DRAWINGS will be held at 7 p.m. on Friday October 23 and 7 & 9:30 p.m. on Saturday, October 24.

IT'S A FIESTA!

Showtimes are Friday, October 23, and Saturday, October 24, 7 & 9:30 p.m., all shows in Forum Hall.

Guardianship

A special group of Kansans must depend on another person for their health and welfare, as decided by the courts. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly sunny today and a little warmer, high in low to mid-60s. Wind southwest 10 to 15 mph. Clear tonight, low in mid-to upper 30s.

Busch defeated Team 6-5 in one overtime... the All University soccer title. See Page 9.

Thursday
October 22, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 43

Kansas State Collegian

When neatness counts

Survey: Campus scenery essential

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

True or false: The quality of education people will receive is the primary reason they choose to attend the college or university they do.

False, according to a recent study conducted by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. The study revealed that the physical appearance of a campus is the No. 1 reason why people pick a certain school.

The Carnegie Foundation's survey of high school seniors found that 50 percent of the students listed campus visits as the most important factor in selecting a college or university.

When the students were asked what influenced them the most during the campus visit, 62 percent cited the appearance of the grounds and buildings.

"If it's a clean-looking, nice-looking facility, people are less likely to abuse it," said Ed Rice, general manager of Physical Facilities.

"It mentally gets you down when you're in run-down, shabby places."

Watering and mowing, shrub maintenance, snow clearance, and floral care are all part of maintaining the physical appearance of K-State's campus, said Arthur Sykes, director of General Services.

"We've added a lot (of flowers) within the last couple of years. They add a lot, like the grass and the islands in the parking lots. It adds a lot of color," he said.

Thirty-five percent of the campus is currently irrigated via underground irrigation systems.

"We hope to have 100 percent (underground irrigation) eventually, because it's less labor-intensive. You can put it on timers, and it runs automatically," Sykes said. "Hoses have to be laid out by hand, and that's time-consuming."

He said about 2½ miles of hose are used right now to water the grounds. The cost of installing underground irrigation systems is the reason the entire campus doesn't have it, he said.

■ See UPKEEP, Page 10

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

Michael Reasoner of University Physical Facilities trims small branches from a crabapple tree earlier this week. Fifteen people are hired by grounds maintenance to maintain 300 acres.

Taking pride in a 'trashy' job

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

Ask him what he does for a living and he'll say with pride, "What do I do? Pick trash." Don't snicker.

Weldon White, gardener, picks trash eight hours a day, five days a week on the K-State campus. He has been picking trash for three years.

"The main reason they picked me is because they wanted somebody who'll take pride in it. Well, I take pride in it — picking paper," he said. "I don't care what anybody else says. I take pride in trying to keep my buildings clean."

White walks through campus daily with his "jabber" and a yellow bag, picking up the "smaller stuff." Smaller stuff includes paper, cans and bottles.

"It's a jabber, that's what I call it.

I use a yellow bag that's got a hole in the bottom of it, 'cause it's easy to dump," he said. "If you get pop in there, you don't get dumped."

White and William Nowland, gardener, cover much of the campus picking trash. They clean the area around Seaton Hall and the Union, making their way to Anderson Avenue. Then they walk the section of campus along Manhattan

■ See TRASH, Page 10

Stock investors shake off panic; Dow ascends 186

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Investors flocked back to the world's stock markets Wednesday, shaking off a trillion-dollar panic and sending indexes to record gains in New York, London and Tokyo.

The Dow Jones industrial average, climbing halfway back from Monday's historic 508-point collapse, rose 186.84 points to 2,027.85. The index had risen a record 102.27 points Tuesday.

The partial recovery in New York on Tuesday contributed to record point gains Wednesday in indexes on the Tokyo and London stock exchanges. The improved attitude carried over into trading in the United States.

"They're bouncing. They're really bouncing," said Andrew Lanyi, managing director at Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. Inc.

Analysts speculated that investors may have been pleased by world leaders' response to the market's panic, which erased more than $500 billion from the value of U.S. stocks and more than $1 trillion from world stocks in 24 hours.

The Dow industrials' plunge Monday wiped out 22.6 percent of the index's value — a bigger one-day decline than during the crash of 1929.

West Germany took a small step this week to hold down its interest rates, and President Reagan and leaders of Congress recommitted themselves to whittling away the federal budget deficit.

Reagan said Wednesday he has not eased his opposition to higher tax rates and his chief budget adviser said flat out that the president "is not going to take a tax increase."

Nevertheless, economists said there was no major news event to account for either the plunge or the partial recovery.

"What happened in the market was a classic case of a financial panic," said Shafiqul Islam, a senior fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations in New York.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones by a 8-to-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange in very heavy trading. That contrasted with Tuesday, when the Dow industrials gained but losers outnumbered gainers 5-to-2.

Stocks also gained on the American Stock Exchange and in the over-the-counter market, reversing sharp losses both Monday and Tuesday.

"Today it's a much broader rally. You're getting buying from all of the country and the world," said Peter DaPuzzo, head of stock trading for Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc.

Plane near-collisions rise nearly 50 percent

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The number of near-collision reports involving commercial aircraft jumped nearly 50 percent during the first nine months of this year, according to Federal Aviation Administration figures.

There was disagreement Wednesday, however, among aviation safety experts on the significance of the increase on air safety.

The chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board said the sharp rise in near collisions shows that travelers were exposed to an "increased risk" of an aerial collision during the past summer, but the head of the FAA called the statistical jump "not in itself very meaningful."

According to the FAA, the agency received 857 near-collision reports from pilots during the first nine months of the year, a 37 percent increase over last year. The number of such reports involving planes carrying revenue-paying passengers increased even more sharply, from 258 last year to 383 this year, up 48 percent.

During the busy summer months — June through August — there were 159 near-collision reports involving at least one commercial plane, an increase of 50 percent over the summer of 1986. The sharpest increase — 69 percent — came in August when there were nearly two such incidents reported a day, according to the FAA figures.

"If you look at near midair collisions, they continued throughout the summer at very high levels," said Jim Burnett, chairman of the NTSB. "Somehow we're going to have to get a handle on that."

He said the levels represented "an increased risk" of a mid-air collision to air travelers despite efforts by the FAA during the summer to reduce such risks.

Anonymous donor's scholarship will aid physically limited

By Julie Key
Collegian Reporter

An anonymous Arizona woman has set up a scholarship for the physically limited at K-State.

The fund has been created with a real estate gift valued at $24,500, said Mark Moore, KSU Foundation vice president for major gifts. The scholarship will amount to about $1,000 a year.

He said the first recipient will not be chosen until the real estate is sold and the Foundation is able to invest the assets.

The Foundation is working to get the house on the market, Moore said. He said there is a chance the scholarship will be available next year.

The woman who established the scholarship spent many years with handicapped individuals, including family and friends, Moore said.

During those years, she gained a deep appreciation for the deter-

■ See GIFT, Page 11

Over-80 population anticipated to approach 101 million by 2020

By Jackie Brazzle
Collegian Reporter

Concern for the growing number of elderly people has gone beyond U.S. borders and spread to less developed countries. Even though less developed countries do not have high-aged populations now, they will have in the future, said Marvin Kaiser, head of the Department of Sociology, Anthropology and Social Work.

"There is ample evidence that the growth in the number of older persons is an issue that cuts across all countries," he said.

Last summer, Kaiser was invited to work with the Agency for International Development. After gathering data on AID activities concerning aging trends in less developed countries, he made recommendations for AID's direction in dealing with the aging trends.

AID, an agency in the State Department, assists less developed countries such as Bangladesh, Congo, Haiti and Honduras. Kaiser said this is the first time AID has been involved with aging.

He said AID received a mandate from Congress to develop a research agenda for countries where they AID works. Kaiser's job was to help direct AID in how they ought to carry out that mandate.

Kaiser said they put together a statement on what AID ought to be doing. The statement, "Aging in the Developing World: AID's Response to an Emerging Problem," has five sections.

The statement examines the importance of aging as an individual and developmental issue, describes the situation of the aged in AID-assisted countries, and lays out a series of principles and recommendations that will guide AID in its future research on aging.

Kaiser said this problem will soon become a concern for these less developed countries.

"The growth in the absolute number and the percentage of the world's aged population is well-documented," Kaiser said. "The number of the world's 60-and-over population has grown from 375.8 million in 1980 and is expected to grow to 975.6 million by the year 2020. The rapid increase in those 80 years of age and older will be even more dramatic, increasing from 35 million in 1980 to 101 million by 2020."

The potential for a large, aged population in the near future has critical policy implications, Kaiser said. He said the individual needs of rapidly increasing numbers of older peo-

■ See AGING, Page 10

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Man shot while toting toy gun

TOPEKA — A police review board is investigating Wednesday's fatal shooting of a man who pointed what turned out to be a toy gun at an officer, a spokesman for the Topeka Police Department said.

But the department is not expected to push for a local ban of toy guns as a result of the incident, said Lt. Bud Brooks. Brooks said the department's review board normally conducts inquiries following a fatal shooting. He said the officer, whose name will not be released, likely will be relieved of duty until the panel issues a report.

The victim was identified as Francisco Almaraz, 29.

Police responded to a call from residents in northeast Topeka early Wednesday who reported a domestic disturbance. Brooks said shots were fired as police approached, and Almaraz barricaded himself in the house. Police made telephone contact with him and he came to the door several times, holding what appeared to be a handgun, Brooks said.

Almaraz then came out of the house and pointed the handgun at the officer, Brooks said. The officer then fired his shotgun once, striking Almaraz in the chest. He was pronounced dead at St. Francis Hospital.

Morris County sheriff resigns

COUNCIL GROVE — The acting sheriff in Morris County resigned Wednesday, and because the department has no undersheriff, state law provides that County Clerk Michelle Yadon becomes sheriff.

Yadon said the department's sole deputy, however, will handle the department's daily operations.

Willard Buffin Jr. said he resigned his position as acting sheriff to take a job with the Butler County Sheriff's Department. Buffin had been the department's undersheriff until Oct. 2, when he replaced M.G. Woodward.

The state attorney general's office had been investigating Woodward. Morris County Attorney Michael Powers said he requested the investigation after he received several reports from area residents concerning Woodward's behavior.

Tuesday night, Republican party leaders narrowed the number of candidates for sheriff to five. A meeting was scheduled later this month to select a candidate. That name will be given to Gov. Mike Hayden, who will make the final appointment.

It's time to name that snake

HILLSBORO — A 43-inch, 2.5-pound prairie rattlesnake coiled in its cage in Tabor College's science hall is the focus of a campus-wide contest and celebration.

The snake, which was found near Lakin in 1960, will have a 30th birthday party next month. Some zoologists and herpetologists have expressed belief the longest life for such a snake previously was 19 years, three months and 10 days.

"Just looking at it, it doesn't act any slower or any different than a snake that would be in its prime, so to speak," said Max Terman, chairman of Tabor's biology department. "We suspect reptiles have a different aging process than humans. It could outlive you and me or it could go next week."

The sex of the snake is undetermined. Snakes usually are sexed after death because dissection is the surest way, Terman said.

The sexlessness of the snake may pose a challenge to people entering a Student Activities Board contest to come up with a name. Contestants have until Wednesday to submit names.

Rare birds visit state refuge

LYONS — Fifteen rare whooping cranes flew into a wildlife refuge in central Kansas Wednesday on their annual migration to Texas.

Personnel at the Quivira Wildlife Refuge said they spotted the cranes — 13 adults and two juveniles — on the big salt marsh at the refuge early Wednesday morning.

The group of birds, larger than any sighted at the refuge in recent years, represents more than 10 percent of the whooping crane population.

Karen Carlidge, assistant manager of the refuge, said the birds would probably rest and feed for the remainder of the day before continuing their migration from the Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada to the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf Coast.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said a record production of 23 or 24 chicks have lifted the number of the endangered birds in the main flock to 133 this year. A smaller or foster flock that migrates between New Mexico and Idaho numbers about 30 birds.

Murder suspect released

WICHITA — A teen-age murder suspect was released from the Sedgwick County Jail Tuesday 10 days after a judge ruled that his confession had been illegally obtained and couldn't be used in court.

Assistant District Attorney Mike Jennings said the suspect, Luis Antonio Beltran Rivera, 17, admitted on June 20 that he shot and killed Ramon Nieto and dumped Nieto's body under a bridge in northwest Sedgwick County.

Rivera was arrested in Reno County and ordered to stand trial for second-degree murder in Sedgwick County. He said he killed Nieto in self-defense, Jennings said.

District Judge Keith Sanborn ruled on Oct. 9 the confession was invalid because it was given after Rivera had asked in written Spanish to see a lawyer.

Jennings said a Spanish-speaking employee of the Sheriff's Department read the note and mistakenly thought it said, "I'll speak to you before I speak to an attorney." Other interpreters said later the note actually said, "I'll speak to you before an attorney."

Vacancy filled in state House

TOPEKA — Gov. Mike Hayden announced Wednesday that he has formally appointed a former assistant state attorney general to fill a vacancy in the state House.

Also, House Speaker Jim Braden, R-Clay Center, announced his appointments of a chairman and a new member of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Administrative Rules and Regulations.

Barbara P. Allen, a Prairie Village Republican, will fill a seat left vacant by the resignation of former Rep. Ron Fox, also R-Prairie Village, who left the Legislature to become the executive director of the state Mined-Land Reclamation and Conservation Board.

Allen, 26, is active in the Johnson County and state Republican parties, and her mother, Marjorie Powell Allen, was a congressional candidate in 1984. The Johnson County party's precinct committee members elected Barbara Allen to fill the seat last week.

Her appointment is effective immediately, and she resigned her position, effective Tuesday, with the attorney general's office to become a legislator.

Campus Bulletin

TODAY

OLD LAMBDA CHI LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8:15 p.m. at Lambda Chi house.

PI SIGMA EPSILON PLEDGE MEETING meets at 6 p.m. in Union 205.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF BLACK ENGINEERS meets at 5 p.m. in Durland 152. Guest speaker will be Kevin Kilstrom from Amoco.

DELTA TAU DELTA LITTLE SISTERS meet between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Delt house to pick out your composite pictures.

WILDLIFE SOCIETY meets at 7 p.m. in Acker 221.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Herbert Lee Songer, Jr. at 2:30 p.m. in Blumont 368. The topic is: "A Comparison of the Relationship Between the Quality of Effort and Intellectual Development of College Students."

PRE-NURSING STUDENTS meet at 10 a.m. in Union 212 for Nurses' Day at K-State. Representatives from seven schools of nursing will be there to answer questions.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

MEXICAN/AMERICAN COUNCIL OF STUDENTS meets at 7 p.m. in Union 202. Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

ALPHA EPSILON DELTA meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 203. Stan Werner, lab supervisor at the Peterson Clinic, will speak on the latest findings in the area of AIDS.

ALPHA EPSILON DELTA meets at 9:15 p.m. in Calvin 202 for yearbook pictures.

ROCK CLIMBING CLUB meets at 8:15 p.m. in Union 207.

STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK meets at 5:30 p.m. in Union 207.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206. Yearbook pictures follow at 8 p.m.

RODEO CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Acker 221.

COLLEGIATE 4-H meets at 5:30 p.m. at Luckey High School Gymnasium.

ICAT BASKETBALL TICKET SALES are from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Ahearn ticket office.

EATING DISORDER SUPPORT GROUP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 204.

SOCIETY OF WOMEN ENGINEERS meets at 7 p.m. in Ward 135. Guest speaker is Kevin Kilstrom from Amoco. Pizza will also be provided.

FRENCH CLUB meets at 6:30 p.m. at Espresso Royale in Aggieville for a scavenger hunt.

ICHTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 8 p.m. in Union 212. Randy Sly, pastor of Westview Community Church, is the speaker.

AG FALL FOLLIES TEAM MANAGERS meet at 7 p.m. in Waters 137.

DELTA UPSILON LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

ARTS AND SCIENCES COUNCIL meets at 7 p.m. in Catskeller.

FRIDAY

ARMY ROTC meets at 6 a.m. at Memorial Stadium field for P.T. run.

Correction

Due to a reporter's error, a story in Wednesday's Collegian about classified employee tuition assistance misstated the period for which tuition assistance is available. Tuition assistance is still available for the spring semester. In addition, 13 of the 21 applications have been approved.

TansToGo

776-7874

Call for our specials.
Appointments and walk-ins
1214C Moro—Aggieville

Blue River Pub

YOUR EATING & DRINKING ESTABLISHMENT PRESENTS

—Next Thursday, Oct. 29

SHEER DELIGHT

Female Strippers

—Remember Blue River Pub's Grill is open all night—
Next to Tuttle Creek 537-9877

PRICEBREAK SALE!

AUTHENTIC FORENZA
SPORTWEAR
& OTHERS

NOW $9.99-13.99 SWEATER CLEARANCE!
An outstanding selection of fall styles in wool-blend & ramie/cotton blends (S-M-L) VALUES $36-49

NOW $10.99 CURRENTS® energie®
KNIT HAREM PANTS & LEGGINGS (S-M-L) VALUES $16-18

NOW $8.99-10.99 Lasting Impressions® & OTHERS
MINI-MANIA!
Mini-skirts in twill & wool-blends! (Junior 5-13) VALUES $18-32

NOW $8.99-10.99
10 & 15-BUTTON HENLEY TOPS (S-M-L) VALUES $16-18

IN MANHATTAN

OPEN HOURS:
Mon.-Fri. 10 am - 9 pm
Saturday 10 am - 6:30 pm
Sunday Noon - 5:30 pm

• FREE LAYAWAYS
• RETURN & EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES

TOWN EAST CENTER

DESIGNER AND NAME BRAND FASHIONS FOR LESS!!

Fashion Company

The Fishbowl, a "K-State Tradition" since 1951, is back!
•TACO NIGHT•

50¢ Tacos Every Thursday Night
105 N. 3rd • Downtown • 539-9904

Sunchase
SIXTH ANNUAL

COLLEGIATE WINTER

SKI TRIP

1988-1989

Breckenridge
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Steamboat
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Winter Park
JANUARY 2-9, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

Vail/Beaver Creek
JANUARY 3-10, 1988 • 5 or 7 NIGHTS

TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS

1-800-321-5911

or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency

Never a dull moment.

Staff Illustration/Steve Wolgast

Weather draws flies inside, 'swatters' out

By Nancy Chartrand
Collegian Reporter

The common housefly is a pest that most people tend to ignore, but this fall in Manhattan a different type of fly has prompted locals to draw their flyswatters in defense.

"I believe that these particular flies are called face flies," said Donald E. Mock, extension specialist in livestock entomology. "The female flies get protein for egg development from the mucus in and around the eyes and nostrils of livestock. The females also lay their eggs in cattle manure."

Cattlemen reported an increase in the number of face flies this summer, he said. He attributed the increase to cyclical weather patterns. The fly population usually begins to decrease around Sept. 10, but until late September their numbers were still increasing.

"In 1980, the face fly population was low due to the hot, dry weather. Since that time, their numbers have been increasing," Mock said.

Face flies pose no health threats to humans, but they create problems for cattlemen by transmitting pinkeye among cattle.

Pinkeye is a contagious form of conjunctivitis in which the eyeball and the mucous membrane lining the eyelid become red and inflamed. The cattle then tend to stand close together, attempting to shield themselves from the flies. Some farmers fear this, Mock said, because they believe it keeps the cattle from grazing.

"As days' lengths begin to shorten and temperatures cool, the flies go into a dormancy called diapause," Mock said. "Basically, it is a stage of arrested activity that allows them to sustain cooler temperatures."

This explains why the flies are still active, even though the weather has gotten colder. However, they do begin to change their behavior.

"Instead of laying eggs, the flies begin to take shelter in such things as granaries, attics and under house shingles," Mock said. "It seems that some buildings are more heavily infested than others. It must be some factor of heat radiation which causes them to enter some homes more than others."

Nurses Day to host 7 Kansas schools at K-State today

By The Collegian Staff

Representatives from seven Kansas nursing schools will be at K-State today to participate in Nurses Day.

The day is an annual event that gives students a chance to visit with different nursing schools around the state and get information on nursing as a career, said Phoebe Samelson, health profession adviser.

Each university will have a table set up from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Union 212. At 10:30 a.m., an informal panel of representatives will give students a chance to find out about salaries, specializing and how the nursing profession is changing, Samelson said.

She said there is an "acute nursing shortage."

Due to decreased enrollment, Kansas nursing schools did not fill last year, Samelson said. Because of this, universities now must heavily recruit students.

K-State has an active pre-nursing program of about 100 students, she said.

Nurses Day lets the students see the selection of programs available to them in Kansas, Samelson said.

The participating universities are Fort Hays State University, Marymount College in Salina, Pittsburg State University, St. Mary of the Plains in Dodge City, the University of Kansas, Washburn University and The Wichita State University.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

NEW THIS WEEK

- ALARM
- HOUSEMARTINS
- THE LEATHER NUN
- HEARTS OF FIRE SOUNDTRACK
- SCREENING BLUE MESSIAHS
- JENE LOVES JEZEBEL
- BEATLES CD's
- ABBEY ROAD, LET IT BE

1204 MORO—AGGIEVILLE

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

Live Entertainment

"The Myth"

Friday & Saturday
9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Dinner Specials

Seafood Festival

Friday—5:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.
only—$11.95

Prime Rib Special

Saturday—5:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.
only—$11.95

17th & Anderson, 539-3858

University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment

McCall's Shoes

Warm Dry Feet ... FOR WINTER IS A TREAT!

BOOM CHUCKA (women's)
Red or blue waterproof rubber
Warm fur lining

KENNEBUNK (men's, women's, child's)
Blue waterproof rubber bottoms
Tan fur lined leather uppers

SPORTO

NEW HOURS: 10 a.m.-9 p.m. MON-FRI, 10 a.m.-8 p.m. SAT, 1-5 p.m. SUN.

313 Poyntz
Downtown
Manhattan

VANDERBILT'S

Levi's HEADQUARTERS DISCOUNT PRICES

PREWASHED

Levi's 501

•Black •Grey •Blue

Prewashed 501's for those who can't wait to get them on. Classic straight leg, button fly styling.

$19.99

Compare to $29.95

Men's LINED JEAN JACKETS

Rugged heavy-weight denim with double stitched seams, copper buttons and all the quality and durability Levi's are famous for.

$39.99

Compare to $79.95

DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100

Finally, a great pizza delivered.

1118 Laramie

539-5303

GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special

$10.99/$8.99 plus tax

LARGE MEDIUM COMBO PIZZA

or up to 4 toppings

Original Crust

Plus FREE 20 oz. drink!

4 drinks with large

3 drinks with medium

Offer good Monday through Wednesday only.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no added delivery charge). Not valid with other promotional offers. Limited Delivery Area.

Offer Expires 11/11/87

Large Pizza for a Medium Price

Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug offer. On Sunday your choice: either use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

2 for $9

Receive two medium cheese pizzas for only $9. Added ingredients available for only $1 per topping, which covers both pizzas.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1 for delivery. Limited delivery area.

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Offer Expires 11/15/87

Hot Slice™

2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas by the slice for $2!

Combo or Pepperoni

Dine-in or Carryout

Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Offer Expires 11/13/87

Offer Expires 11/13/87

Offer Expires 11/13/87

Offer Expires 11/13/87

Offer Expires 11/13/87

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 22, 1987 ■ Page 4

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Robertson lacks needed presidential diplomacy

God, apple pie and the American flag are about the only things Pat Robertson did not blast out of the water at a recent conference of Republican leaders.

Robertson lashed Planned Parenthood, anti-apartheid activists, welfare and other topics on the conservative hit list. In the same 35-minute speech, he also seemed to attack most of the Republican Party — starting with the president and continuing down.

Comments like those he made are not completely unheard of during a political campaign. Even though the main topic of discussion should be the issues, sometimes the Republican and Democratic parties break down into name-calling. Usually the name-calling is directed toward the other party.

But Robertson, who offended a large part of the Republican Party with his attacks, is a Republican.

It is understandable that presidential candidates from the same party, vying for the nomination, will criticize each other's stand on the issues, but Robertson calling Vice President George Bush "a whiny loser" is not.

The job of the president is one of the most important positions in the world. The president, figuratively speaking, has his finger on a button that can destroy the world. And the American people need to know the character of the person whose finger will eventually be resting on that button.

Look at what Pat Robertson has shown us about his character. He has, in one speech, succeeded in making most of the Republican Party angry — people who tend to share similar views on the issues. Can you imagine how he will get along with leaders of other nations, who may have significantly different points of view?

Considering the damage President Reagan has done to America's image with the rest of the world, the next president will need a very diplomatic personality — not a caustic one. So far, Robertson has not shown that diplomacy is his strong point.

Votes make difference; learn about candidates

Students have a test coming up in November, and this one has nothing to do with a classroom.

Student Governing Association elections will be Nov. 3 and 4. Now is the time to start studying the issues, so when students know who the candidates are they can cast an informed, intelligent vote.

The votes students cast for student body president, student representatives, and any special questions on the ballot will directly affect their pocketbook for at least the next year. And their choices could affect students for a much longer time.

Elections provide voters with the chance to select people they think will do the best job for them or for the interests they hold dear. Elections are used to send messages to those representing us on the quality of representation — they can either be a pat on the back or a boot out of office.

However, elections can only perform this service when the electorate has studied the issues of the times to know who will best fill the role as representative for the constituent. This has been made easier with open government laws, more aggressive reporting of political issues and by the candidates themselves when they are seeking support.

Examples of this are meetings conducted by candidates during their campaigns, sponsored debates for the student body president candidates, voting records of incumbent candidates that are open for inspection in the SGA office and regular coverage of Student Senate meetings by the Collegian.

What this means is students have a ready supply of information about the candidates and the issues — all they have to do is put in a little study time, not for a grade, but for the future of K-State.

Wal-Mart, Wall Street: For Walton, it's relative

Easy come, easy go.

That was undoubtedly how Wal-Mart guru Sam Walton must have felt Monday as he watched the Dow Jones average plunge in the single greatest drop in the stock exchange's history. Although Walton was by no means the only one affected, his personal losses were among the most noteworthy.

That's because he lost $3 billion. Yes, $3 billion.

But, lest we shed too many tears for the discount store demigod, it's important to remember he still had $5 billion stashed away for a rainy day — or better yet, a Wall Street crash.

Nonetheless, Walton's widely acclaimed frugal lifestyle probably eased his fears a bit while he watched the Dow dive. Walton owns a modest home in Arkansas and drives an old truck that has been around the block more than a few times.

It's easy to believe that even if Walton had lost it all Monday, he really wouldn't have taken it too hard. He's one of a rare breed of billionaires who hasn't lost his perspective on what's important in life.

And it's a safe bet that old truck never looked better on Monday.

Letters

Misinterpret war

Editor,

In the Collegian's Oct. 12 issue, the Collegian editorial board made what I believe is a naive assessment of the new television series dealing with the Vietnam War, "Tour of Duty." The board interpreted the emergence of this show as a positive sign that this country is finally "showing interest" in the Vietnam War, and seemed to advocate the idea that — now that a representation of Vietnam has been brought back into American living rooms — America as a society is ready to come to terms with what this war was all about.

Hardly, from the few times I've seen the show. The board's sarcastic quip, "Hurray, we are finally easing our conscience a little, and people are making money from it. Everybody's happy," states the truth of the matter right in the face.

Do you suppose the main characters, a half dozen or so U.S. Army soldiers, are ever going to get killed? Sure, some Hollywood extras will be written scripts to die. And a hell of a lot of North Vietnamese soldiers are going to bite the dust in the overrated "bad guy" tradition. But the main characters will get wounded umpteen times, overcome all obstacles and fight on in accordance with the all-American "never say die" legacy left by those such as John "the Duke" Wayne.

Remember "Hogan's Heroes," the 1960s sitcom about American and Allied soldiers in a German POW camp during World War II? Remember the real World War II, the real German military, the Nazis, Adolf Hitler, concentration camps, the gassing and burning of millions of Jews? Now think of how asinine a representation of that situation we Americans, myself included, accepted as we laughed at the zany antics portrayed on "Hogan's Heroes."

Although "Tour of Duty" contains only a bit of corny humor to create a phony variety of tone, and is packed with pain and misery, I fear it will be passively integrated into American minds already desensitized to violence by the likes of "Rambo" and Chuck Norris vs. Everyone They Think is Scum on Friday the 13th," et al., and that Americans will end up on a hero-worship trip of the series' main characters, and will accept everything portrayed in the show as how Vietnam really was — English-speaking peasants living in bamboo huts deep in the countryside and all.

Kale Baldock
graduate in English

Respect individuals

Editor,

There has been news lately of the recruitment of merit scholars and discussion of the merit (no pun intended) of the open admissions policy at K-State. I have always been interested in high levels of scholarship in education and have often worried about the poorly prepared students who appear in college classes. This should be a concern, and I applaud the successful recruitment of recognized student scholars to K-State.

On the other hand, I am also troubled with the possibility of creating an elitist atmosphere in which students who are not recognized for their scholarship feel uncomfortable at best and unwelcome or unwanted at worst. Preparation — or lack of it — is a multifaceted problem and often out of the control of the students or their parents. The obvious problem lies with minorities and those from rural schools with restricted curriculum offerings.

I often work with students who have not had the advantages of decent educational preparation. I also see these students overcoming their "handicap" with equal or better success than those who received college preparation. History is full of accomplished people who were considered average and who simply needed the opportunities offered by a university to discover their interest and their talents.

Being interested in arts education, this is of particular concern. This field is pitifully lacking in our educational system. Very few people realize the invaluable contribution of the arts to educational processes such as developmental learning, problem solving, decision making techniques, creative thinking, philosophical inquiry and quality of life issues, as well as more well-known areas of motor development, injury prevention or entertainment.

But how many students entering college are even aware of these areas and their possible application? Is it not worth investing in people who are searching for meaning and direction in their lives as well as those who have been lucky enough to have had scholastic preparation? While I agree that exceptional academic records need to be recognized, I also hold that those who have not, for whatever reason, reached such goals by the age of 18 should also be encouraged and given the opportunity to develop their unique capacity to contribute positively to society.

I hold that it is the job of a true university to help students prepare to discover and develop thinking processes with which to cope with human values and issues, both in a personal and social realm. This should apply to each and every student regardless of background. The individual should be treated and respected as that — an individual.

Luke Kahlich
associate professor of dance

Support changes

Editor,

I have several questions concerning the recent exchange of letters in the Collegian between Leigh Ann Wheeler and various male defenders of the generic usage of man and men:

1. By my count, the Collegian has thus far published six letters on the subject, two by Ms. Wheeler and four by men attacking her and her arguments. I know that at least one faculty member has written in support of Ms. Wheeler's position, but that letter has not been published by the Collegian. Why such a lack of balance?

2. I find Ms. Wheeler's two letters to be both persuasive and considerably more reasonable in tone than those of the (male) men who saw fit to take issue with her. She avoids personal attacks while Professor Clark labels her "condescending" and decries her position as "self-righteous ignorance." Professor Keiser calls her comments "arrant nonsense" while Mr. Gunther suggests that she and others who oppose sexist language can be dismissed as people "uncomfortable with their own sexuality." Why such shrillness? Why do the men in this dialogue have to resort to ad hominem attacks and snide innuendo?

3. Like any defender of the status quo against change, Professor Clark sees his English usage as "natural" and any alternative as artificial and political. Why so? I find it equally reasonable to regard sexist usage as a political artifice, sustained by the same interests and practices which have consciously or unconsciously kept women in "their place" for centuries.

4. Finally, both Clark and Gunther attempt to trivialize the issue, to suggest that Wheeler is making too much of a relatively minor matter. If that is so, why should they be so upset?

The issue of sexist versus non-sexist language is hardly a novelty. It has been a matter of public discussion and scholarly research for over two decades. Many professional organizations have issued guidelines on how to avoid sexist usage. The fact that some of us wittingly and unwittingly continue to practice language habits which demean, discomfort or disadvantage women is a far cry from defending such habits as "truth" or "good writing," as Clark appears to do in his second letter.

I believe that Wheeler's thoughtful comments deserve to be listened to, not shouted down.

William Richter
professor of political science

Many thanks

Editor,

Our thanks to you for promptly printing our request for a solution to the fly problem in Waters Hall classrooms. Thanks, also, to those responsible for a clean up of the trash area and for placement of screens on the windows.

Virginia O. Popejoy
senior in social work

United Way

Editor,

I was very pleased to open the Oct. 16 issue of the Collegian to the editorial page to find an editorial supporting the Riley County United Way. You and/or your staff did a fine job of presenting the facts and challenging our campus to do more. The tone was just right.

On behalf of the KSU United Way Campaign Advisory Committee and myself, I thank you for your interest and commitment to our cause. In addition, I also want to say that Sally Neary did an excellent writing job on an earlier United Way article. It's a pleasure to work with such a talented group of people.

Clifford G. Schuette
chairman, KSU United Way

Letters to the editor pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged.

Bill may increase voting places to 4 by fall '88 election

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate will consider a bill tonight to increase the number of polling places for Student Governing Association elections beginning in fall 1988, said Kent Bradley, student body president and senior in nutritional science.

The bill will not be voted on until next week's Senate meeting. If adopted, the bill would mandate putting voting booths in Farrell Library and Ackert Hall in addition to the polling places in the Union and the Veterinary Medicine Center.

Bradley said addition of the two polling places is intended to increase the participation of voters who live on the north side of campus.

"Ackert and Farrell were chosen because they have ample lobby space...and they are along the 'traffic lanes' on campus," Bradley said.

However, Bradley also said the locations of the two additional voting areas may be changed. He said senators have suggested placing the added polling places in Derby Food Center and Dykstra and Umberger halls.

Doug Folk, Senate vice chairman and junior in electrical engineering, said changes in the location of polling places will be discussed tonight.

"I think the polling places have to be located in 'neutral' areas. A neutral area would be one where there is not a high concentration of one group or another," Folk said.

Folk said he was concerned about Derby Food Center being a polling place because of the high concentration of residence hall people who would use that voting area.

To prevent students from voting twice, the bill would require each voter to present his or her fee card and a picture identification card. The back of the fee card would then be stamped with an indelible ink.

Bradley said one of the problems faced in increasing the number of polling places was finding the additional poll workers required to monitor the new voting areas.

Folk, who will preside at tonight's meeting because of the absence of Senate Chairwoman Michelle Benoit, said Senate will also vote on a constitutional change creating the position of vice president in the executive branch of SGA.

The new vice-president's office would perform the duties of the chief of staff to the student body president, and the vice president would become president if the president was unable to complete his or her term of office.

Want to party outdoors? Get permit before playing music

By Jodi Swengel
Staff Writer

Outdoor parties and loud music seem to go hand-in-hand, but anyone planning an outdoor event needs to be aware of the legal consequences involved.

A permit needs to be obtained from the Riley County Police Department for any outdoor event where amplified music will be used — including live bands or disc jockeys.

The permit is called "Permission for Outside Amplification of Music." It originated when the city adopted an ordinance prohibiting amplified music at outdoor events. Alvan Johnson, director of the RCPD, said the permit has been in effect for more than 25 years.

The application for the permit includes filling out information about the event — such as time, nature of the event, location and size. The permit also gives guidelines to ensure other city ordinances are not violated. The permits are free and people can apply for them at the Riley County Police Department.

The permit lasts only until 10:45 p.m. because the city "Quietude" ordinance goes into effect from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. This city ordinance prohibits any loud music or noise during this period of time.

Johnson said he recommends informing the neighbors before the party to explain the nature of the party, so they can be aware of it.

"People having parties should 'police' their own party to make sure it does not get out of hand and no ordinances are violated. By doing this, hopefully the police will not have to be involved," he said.

If complaints of loud music are reported, a police officer will respond. The police procedure for answering a noise complaint is contacting the people having the party and requesting that the music be turned down.

"Normally, by contacting the person the problem is solved," Johnson said. "If the police need to come back to the party a second or third time a citation could be given."

The possible penalty for not complying with the permit or failing to have one is a 30-day jail sentence and/or a $100 fine.

No one requesting this permit has ever been turned down, Johnson said.

He also said the overall cooperation of people having parties has been good this semester.

Iran renews threats against U.S., reprisal plans not limited to Gulf

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — A convoy of reflagged Kuwaiti tankers and American warships steamed south Wednesday past the two Iranian oil platforms destroyed by U.S. Navy artillery. Iran renewed its threat of reprisal.

Shipping sources in Kuwait reported a loud explosion off the southern coast, near the Mina Saud oil port, but said they did not know the cause.

Iraq said its aircraft raided two tankers off Iran — one Tuesday night and the other Wednesday night — but neither strike was confirmed by gulf-based shipping executives.

A senior Iranian diplomat said the response to Monday's attack on the oil platforms would "not necessarily be limited" to the Persian Gulf region, where Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980.

"Iran has several plans under consideration and will soon act to make the United States pay for its actions," Ali Ahani, the Foreign Ministry's director for political affairs, told reporters in Bonn, West Germany. "The United States will regret this action."

Ali Akbar Velayati, the Iranian foreign minister, sent a letter to the United Nations claiming the U.S. attack violated the Security Council's unanimous cease-fire resolution of July 20, and demanded a council protest.

The convoy is expected to complete the 550-mile trip out of the gulf Thursday.

It is the 12th in the three months since U.S. warships began escorting Kuwaiti-owned tankers, registered in the United States and flying American flags, to protect them from Iranian attack. The convoys have logged more than 7,000 miles.

Iran began regular attacks last year on ships owned by or serving Kuwait. The Iranians accuse Kuwait of receiving arms shipments for its neighbor Iraq and otherwise aiding Iran's enemy.

The reflagged supertanker Bridge-ton hit a mine July 24 on the first voyage up the gulf and the products carrier Sea Isle City was badly damaged by an Iranian missile last week near Kuwait's main oil terminal.

Saudi Arabia said there was no basis for early speculation by some shipping executives that an Iranian missile may have landed near its Khafji oil terminal south of Kuwait.

Holiday Savings

TRAVELUTE WESTERN STORE

Big Savings on all Goose Down
Men's & Ladies' Coats—Tempco & Comfy

Large Selection & Savings on Boots
Justin Ropers for $75

Big Stock of Wrangler, Levi's, & Lee
Jeans for men & women

Try our layaway plan for Christmas

One-fourth mile south of Waterville on Highway 77
Mon.-Sat. 9-6 & Sun. 1-5 913-785-2136

K-STATE PLAYERS

Rodgers & Hammerstein's

SOUTH PACIFIC

Oct. 22-23-24

McCain Aud. 8 p.m.

M-F CALL 532-6398 12-5

PHARMACIST

Full-time or part-time variable shifts, weekend rotation. Duties involve unit dose, IV services. The Saint Mary Hospital is a full service, acute care hospital.

THE SAINT MARY
HOSPITAL
Manhattan, KS
(913) 776-1981
Personnel Dept.

the saint mary hospital

Equal Opportunity Employer

Falsetto's Pasta House

COUPON

Student Discount Night
Bring your Student ID and receive

10% Off
your meal ticket

Thurs., Oct. 22 Only

OPEN: M-Sat. 4-10 p.m., Sun. 11 a.m.-9 p.m.

Now Open to the Public.

Across from the Holidome 537-8443

PASTA

Don't let winter take your car by surprise

On Oct. 28, the Collegian will run a car care special. This section will include tips on how to winterize your car and where you can buy the things you need.

For All You Late Night Operators . . .

You've been operating all night with your friends. All the pizza places are closed? And you're hungry. What do you do? Your friends pull through and remember that Pyramid Pizza is open until 2 a.m. weeknights and 3 a.m. weekends. You call. You eat. Yumm. Show them what good times are all about. Tonight, let it be Pyramid.

COUPON
1 Medium 2 Topping Pizza	2 Medium 2 Topping Pizza
$6.50	$10.50
539-4888	539-4888
This Coupon void with other promotions	This coupon void with other promotions

Pyramid Pizza. Open when you really want it.

Progress made in funding $4 million raised, more expected

By Kenny Harrison
Collegian Reporter

Within the next two years, students from all parts of the state, ranging from grade school to graduate students, will be able to receive educational telecasts by satellite from the Kansas Educational Communications Center.

The center, which will be located at K-State, was approved by the Kansas Board of Regents in August 1986.

"The center has been making a great deal of progress. Just one year ago we started with no state support, no federal funding and no concrete planning for programming," said Robert Lowman, associate dean of the graduate school and chairman of the communications center committee.

He said the program has already received funding of $4 million and is still in the process of gathering an additional $2 million. The money will be used to help cover the cost of the building and to have one of the center's three studios operating. Although those funds do not cover the cost of the entire project, Lowman is still optimistic the additional money will be raised.

"I am very confident we will raise the additional money," he said. "We will attempt to get money from all of our channels."

The center has a new director, more federal funds and has added a new section for the Department of Journalism and Mass Communications, Lowman said.

He said the radio and television section will be able to do more than it has in the past.

If the center is able to raise additional funds, the JMC department will be able to replace some or all of the equipment currently being used by radio and television students, said Paul Prince, member of the center committee and associate professor of journalism and mass communications. He added this will provide more opportunities for JMC students.

"One clear advantage to the new center will be internships and part-time jobs," Prince said. "These can be done right on campus. Currently students have to be sent to different areas to receive internships."

Along with the radio and television section of the building, the center will have an added dual purpose, Lowman said. A majority of the center's intent will be production and distribution of education by satellite. Distribution will be furnished by two satellite uplinks, each having a different frequency, he said. The uplinks will enable the center to reach any one of the Regents schools.

"Eventually, we will have mobile production," Lowman said. "A truck with a satellite uplink will travel to remote sites and have the capacity to broadcast live."

Lowman said people around the state have been very enthusiastic about the center. He said school districts have already been calling to find out when the programming will begin.

Completion of the project is expected for the fall of 1989, he said. The committee is in the process of hiring an architect to work on the center's campus location and will make the selection early in November.

Ag student seeks national FFA office

By The Collegian Staff

Melanie Mainquist is looking forward to an opportunity to learn more about agriculture across the United States.

Mainquist, junior in animal sciences and industry, is the Kansas nominee for a national Future Farmers of America office. The national FFA nominating committee will make the final selection of officers and will also determine what office each nominee will fill.

Each state nominates a person to run for a national office, said Earl Wineinger, FFA executive secretary. Officers for the 1987-88 term will be announced during the national convention Nov. 11-14.

"Qualifications to be eligible for a national office are pretty rigid. They must have received their American Farmer degree. Only about one in 1,000 receive it (the degree)," Wineinger said.

American Farmer is the highest of four degrees that can be achieved in the FFA program. Mainquist said it is usually completed after high school because of its requirements.

Mainquist, who served as state vice president in 1985-86, said she is looking forward to meeting people in other states if she is elected.

"Each state runs their FFA program a little different," Mainquist said.

"Also, there is such a diversity of agriculture in the United States," she said.

First lady to leave Bethesda today; pleased

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Nancy Reagan will return to the White House on Thursday, five days after the surgical removal of a cancerous left breast, President Reagan announced Wednesday.

"I will leave here to pick up Nancy and bring her home," a beaming president told reporters as he left the White House for Bethesda Naval Medical Center.

Reagan was barraged with queries about the turmoil in the stock market and budget woes, but he brushed most queries aside until he could make his announcement about his wife. "That's not as happy as bringing her home," he said of the questions.

Earlier, the first lady got a wicker basket full of flowers from Soviet first lady Raisa Gorbachev, her spokeswoman said.

Elaine Crispin, Nancy Reagan's press secretary, said Raisa Gorbachev sent "a lovely basket of assorted flowers, irises, carnations, all different colors."

The two first ladies met during their husbands' initial summit in Geneva in 1985.

The spokeswoman described Nancy Reagan as anxious to get back home and to write of her hospital experiences in her diary.

The president and Nancy Reagan were having dinner once again in her suite at Bethesda Naval Medical Center. Lamb chops, snow peas, potatoes, green salad and poached fruit were on the menu, Elaine Crispin said.

The press secretary said Nancy Reagan spent part of the day with "her feet up, keeping busy reading all her cards."

GO AHEAD ... GO OUT TONIGHT ...

YOU CAN AFFORD IT!
$1.50 PITCHERS
$1.00 MUFF DIVE SHOTS

BAR OFFICE
539-9081 776-6638

TONIGHT
Well Drinks $1.25
Draws 75¢
Pitchers $2.25

FRIDAY
FREE HORS D'OEUVRES

Now Serving SANDWICHES

616 N. 12th 539-9967

HAPPY 21st
Jim "The Whopper" Foote

First Semester Special
Everyone Welcome

Now $27

Dr. Eric J. Wisdom D.D.S.
Family/Dentistry

- Dental exam
- 2 x-rays
- Complete cleaning

1445 Anderson
776-1771
333-1771
Toll Free
Call for Appointment

Our Permanent Waves Are Different. They're Done by Experts

The Hair Experts
Design Team

WHERE YOU'RE AN INDIVIDUAL NOT JUST PART OF THE CROWD

1209 Moro 776-4455 Manhattan

TONIGHT
The "Original" Dollar Daze
$1 Cover All Day & All Night $1 Pitchers

This Fri. & Sat.
Rock 'n' Roll from K.C.
THE ANSWER
Exclusively here at Charlie's
Next Sat.—"Halloween Monster Bash"

College of Arts & Sciences
Student of the Semester

Applications available
at Eisenhower 117

Due Fri., Oct. 30th

Apply Today!

"GUARANTEED TO BOOST THE PULSE RATE!"
'The Hidden' is a thriller with substance! If you thought 'Terminator' was cool, then go see 'The Hidden!'

—Ron Givens, Newsweek on Campus

It killed 37 people, robbed 6 banks, 2 liquor stores, a record shop and stole 2 Ferraris. Now the fun starts. It just took over a police station.

THE HIDDEN
A new breed of criminal.

NEW LINE CINEMA CORPORATION — HERON COMMUNICATIONS, INC. — MICHAEL MITZNER
A ROBERT SHAYE PRODUCTION — KYLE M. LACHMAN — THE HIDDEN
Written by JACK SHLODER — MICHAEL SOOHI — STEPHEN HAYNER — BOB HUNT
Directed by ROBERT SHAYE — MICHAEL MITZNER — JACK SHLODER

OPENS FRIDAY OCTOBER 30th AT A THEATER NEAR YOU

THE JEAN STATION

QUITTING BUSINESS SALE

20% off

Regular Priced Merchandise
ENTIRE STOCK INCLUDED
ALL SALES FINAL
NO EXCHANGES • NO REFUNDS • NO PAYAWAYS

AGGIEVILLE, MANHATTAN
1217 MORO

HOURS: 10-6 M-Sat. 10-8:30 Thurs. 1-5 Sun.

HOLIDAY STYLE

A Fine Quality Diamond Engagement Ring
A Brilliant Beginning

Quality is important in a Diamond Engagement Ring. When you shop for this special ring, ask us about the 4C's—Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat-weight—the characteristics that determine the quality and rare beauty of a diamond. Today, selecting a quality Diamond Engagement Ring means spending about 2 months' salary, for the best quality diamond you can afford. Come in and see our wide selection of fine quality Diamond Engagement Rings in elegant settings.

DANNENBERG'S
Holiday
JEWELERS

OPEN LATE TONIGHT

425 POYNTZ MANHATTAN 913-776-7821

InFocus Thursday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 22, 1987 ■ Page 7

The Kansas Guardianship Program, a statewide effort started in 1978 involving approximately 320 volunteer guardians and 685 wards, pro-

A special group of Kansans, those declared by the courts as unable to meet essential requirements for physical health or safety, or to manage financial resources, depend on another special group of Kansans — guardians and conservators — for their well-being and legal representation.

The Kansas Advocacy and Protective Services office in Manhattan administers the Kansas Guardianship Program, a statewide effort involving approximately 320 volunteer guardians and 685 wards.

In 1978, the KAPS office worked to initiate a pilot project in Wichita and Topeka to recruit "very special adults — wise, caring, with high levels of integrity, concerned about the rights of the 'weak' and willing to advocate for and protect the welfare of those who cannot do most things for themselves."

In 1983, the Kansas Legislature enacted significant laws to personalize and individualize the guardianship program as well as safeguard the rights of wards.

Don Daniels, Topeka, is the guardian of five wards, four of whom are severely mentally retarded. The fifth is moderately mentally retarded.

Daniels, a 1974 K-State graduate in mathematics, became a guardian three years ago at the appeal of his pastor at the Countryside United Methodist Church in Topeka. After provides companionship as well as personalized protection for the welfare of those unable to take care of themselves.

volunteering and receiving his court appointment to be a guardian, Daniels was trained by the staff at the KAPS office in Manhattan.

The training sessions include making the guardian aware of the legal duties and procedures for dealing with the various systems the ward may be associated with, said Jean Krahn Nickel, coordinator of the Kansas Guardianship Program at KAPS.

According to state law, guardians shall "assure that personal, civil and human rights of the ward are protected."

Four of Daniels' wards are residents of the Kansas Neurological Institute in Topeka, a state-run intermediate care facility with 400 residents. The other, Terry Truhe, resides at Pioneer Village in Topeka — a privately owned, less restrictive intermediate care facility for individuals who have certain levels of independent skills such as personal self-care and verbal abilities.

As a guardian, Daniels must file a monthly report to KAPS stating his personal involvement and activities with each ward. He also must complete a yearly report for the Shawnee County District Court outlining the status of the guardianship and the annual financial account for his conservatees.

Daniels also serves as the conservator for two of his wards, which differs from his guardianship duties. As conservator, he has the choice to maintain their bank accounts or authorize spending by the institution. When the ward's only income is Social Security payments, however, he said it is easier to let the KNI and Pioneer Village keep those records. Although he doesn't write the checks, he makes sure the funds are not misused.

"Terry likes to ride bikes, so when his account had sufficient funds for buying a bike, I approved it," Daniels said.

Truhe, 34, is at the educational level of a second grader and has been institutionalized for quite some time, Daniels said.

"He suffers from seizures — until he can self-medicate himself, he'll be at Pioneer Village," he said.

Truhe is currently in a training program to learn how to take the proper medication.

"He can carry on a pretty good conversation. It's quite enjoyable spending time with him," Daniels said.

During his visits to Pioneer Village, home for 60 individuals, Daniels often takes Truhe shopping.

"He smokes a pipe and always seems to be out of tobacco when I get there. Terry really enjoys the shopping trips," he said.

Guardianship: A special way to help others

Bonnie Alexander, activity therapist aid II at the Kansas Neurological Institute, works with Johnnie Reynolds, one of Daniels' wards.

Nickel said the Kansas Guardianship Program evolved because in many situations, there was little or no contact between the guardian and the ward.

"If you're making decisions on behalf of someone else, you need to have contact with that person. To be a legal advocate, you have to visually see the circumstances the ward is under," Nickel said.

Daniels visits his wards several times a month to check on their general welfare and physical condition.

"The institutions are pretty good about taking care of them. I haven't had to intercede or make an issue about anything," he said. Occasionally, Daniels has requested that worn items of clothing be replaced.

Even though they are non-verbal, his four wards at KNI, all in their early 20s, recognize Daniels when he visits them.

"One likes to hold hands, another likes me to scratch his back," Daniels said. "They understand at different levels what you're saying."

In matters of determining guardianship, the family of the ward has the first right to custody. For whatever reason, the parents of Daniels' wards chose not to care for them.

"The parents have little or no contact; in some cases they (KNI) don't know where the parents are," Daniels said. "Occasionally, there's a birthday card."

Although Daniels' own family has met the wards, they do not have much contact with them. His two children — Stacie, 9, and Eric, 7 — are "like all kids, a little bit scared around handicapped people. They really don't realize the condition the wards are in," Daniels said.

The impact on his family, however, has been a positive one.

"It's allowed the kids to be exposed to the developmentally disabled. They're nothing to be feared or shunned, just different. They don't have the capabilities we do, but that doesn't make them any less important as human beings."

Daniels said he has gained a better awareness of the fears and prejudices most people have toward developmentally disabled individuals.

■ See GUARDIAN, Page 10

Guardian Don Daniels takes Jerry Desbien (walking) and Johnnie Reynolds back to their rooms at the Kansas Neurological Institute.

Don Daniels visits with ward Jerry Desbien. Daniels said Desbien's favorite activity is looking through magazines when the two get together.

Daniels visits his wards at KNI and Pioneer Village several times a month to check on their general welfare and physical condition.

Story by
Jennifer Dorsch

Photos by
Brad Fanshler

Shultz heads to Moscow for arms talks

By The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Finland — Secretary of State George Shultz set out for fog-shrouded Moscow by train on Wednesday and said he was certain he would make headway on nuclear arms control in two days of talks with Soviet officials.

But he was guarded about arrangements for a third Reagan-Gorbachev summit.

"I think we and the Soviets both agree meetings between the top leaders are very desirable," Shultz told a news conference in the Finnish capital.

But, he said, summits must be well-prepared "and produce substantive results." Shultz said his team of experts were in "a serious and constructive frame of mind."

Shultz and his entourage of senior American specialists on Soviet affairs, security agents and reporters had planned to fly in two U.S. Air Force jets to the Soviet capital.

But bad weather compelled a change in plans, and they instead embarked on a train ride expected to take at least 12 hours.

He is scheduled to see Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze on Thursday and Communist Party General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Friday.

"I'm sure we'll make headway in the field of arms control," Shultz said. "It's only a question of how much."

He said he hopes to clear remaining hurdles to a treaty to scrap U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range nuclear missiles worldwide and to make progress on curbing long-range bombers, missiles and submarines.

President Reagan and Gorbachev reached an understanding last year in their Iceland summit meeting to slash strategic arms arsenals by 50 percent.

But U.S. and Soviet negotiations disagree on cuts in specific weapons, while the Soviets also want to restrict Reagan's program to develop a space-based defense against missiles. Shultz said he hoped "we can devote a substantial part of our time to this subject" in Moscow.

He shied away from predicting when a date would be set for Gorbachev to go to Washington. The two sides agreed last month that the summit would be held some time in the fall, but the Soviets did not suggest a specific date and the Americans did not press them.

Since then, on top of such unsettled issues as a schedule for dismantling their medium-range missiles and measures to guard against cheating, the Soviets revived a demand to include 72 U.S. nuclear warheads perched atop West German Pershing 1A missiles. But Shultz said "we believe that's a solvable issue."

Also in an optimistic vein, he said "we have settled all the issues of principles and are involved in the short strokes of being clear of the operation" of the intermediate missile-ban treaty.

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

Manhattan Health Foods

10% OFF
ALL VITAMINS
AND SUPPLEMENTS

776-6201

Expiration Dec. 31 300 N. 3rd MANHATTAN

NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER, 1 COUPON PER CUSTOMER

LEE'S WESTERN WEAR

is now open

on Sunday from 1-5 p.m.
Everyday low price Levi 501, 517, 505

Levi's Red Tag $19.98

up to 36" length
776-6715 Mon.-Sat. 9-5:30

2 miles east of Kmart, Hwy. 24

Manhattan, KS 66502

Thurs. 9-8:30
Sunday 1-5

HEALTH FAIR '87

Wednesday, October 28, 1987

9 a.m.-2 p.m.

KSU Union Main Ballroom

Featuring:

—HEALTH SCREENING

—Life Style Profile (computerized)

—Physical Fitness Assessment

—Blood Pressure

—Vision and Glaucoma Testing

—Dental Assessment

—And more

—HEALTH EDUCATION

—Nutrition

—Alcohol and Other Drugs

—Cancer

—Aids

—Much More

BLOOD CHEMISTRY PROFILE
($7 Charge)

NOTE: DO NOT eat for 12 hours prior to test. Continue taking any medication as ordered.

FLU VACCINATION
($6 Charge)

FREE & OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Sponsored by the Lafene Health Center
KSU and Manhattan Communities

Pumpkins!

All sizes and shapes! Some with "scarfaces" made by scratching in their features while they were still growing! Some with faces painted on. All with character!

HOMEGROWN Sweet Potatoes

New Crop Nuts! 5 pounds $1.00 SPECIAL!

Shelled English Walnuts & Almonds!

Eastside & Westside

Markets OPEN 9-8 DAILY.

east Hwy. 24 west K-18

OPEN 9-8 DAILY.

COMING SOON!

Look for the Grand Opening of Maurices coming soon to Manhattan
Town Center

Find fantastic savings on trendy, pace-setting fashions and All-
American classics!

MAURICES

Fashion doesn't cost a fortune at

Petland... come see the difference.

FULL LINE OF SUPPLIES, GROOMING AIDS, COLLARS,
LEADS, CARRIERS, NUTRITIONAL SUPPLEMENTS,
FLEA AND TICK CONTROL PRODUCTS AND TOYS.

FEATURING AKC PUPPIES AND CFA KITTENS.

Grand Opening
In-Store
Specials

MANHATTAN
TOWN CENTER

Mon.-Sat. 10-9
Sunday 12-6

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

REPO MAN

In this surreal satire of the world of auto repossession, Harry Dean Stanton stars as an angry, fiercely moralistic repo man who lives by a code that considers those who fail to make their car payments as out-and-out thieves. He and his sidekick (Emilio Estevez) prowls the inner city streets, preying on cars whose owners are delinquent in their payments.

Friday, October 23, and Saturday, October 24, Midnight, Forum Hall $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated R.

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

AMERICAN POP

The State of the Art
in Living Animation.

An animated journey tracing the growth of America and its music as seen through the lives of four generations of an American musical family. The film follows the family from turn-of-the-century burlesque through today's New Wave rock 'n' roll.

Today, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre and 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall
$1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated R.

PLANTING IN THE DUST

Little Theater Oct. 24, 7:30 P.M. discussion and reception following
no charge

a critically acclaimed dramatic monologue about farming, land stewardship, and rural life. It is powerful, yet entertaining, and has been hailed throughout the Midwest as an outstanding presentation.

a one-act play
by Nancy Paddock

American Baptist Campus Ministry

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

LET'S TALK ABOUT...

Ellie Brandt, president of the Aggieville Merchants Association will be discussing the KU-K-State game situation.

TODAY, Noon, K-State
Union Catskeller

AMERICA
HAS TAKEN
"LA BAMBA"
TO ITS HEART.
IF YOU'VE MISSED
"LA BAMBA",
YOU STILL HAVE A CHANCE TO SEE THE SLEEPER HIT
OF THE YEAR.

LA BAMBA

It will touch your heart.

Win 2 free All-You-Can-Eat Tastada Dinners and 2 16 oz. drinks from the K-State Union Food Service (good only on October 27 from 4-6:30 p.m.). Drawings will be held Friday, 7 p.m. and Saturday, 7 & 9:30 p.m. Friday, October 23, and Saturday, October 24: 7 & 9:30 p.m. All Shows in Forum Hall. $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated PG-13.

k-state union
upc feature films

*American Graffiti
is back!*

Saturday, October 24, 2 p.m., and Sunday, October 25, 2 & 7 p.m.
All Shows in Forum Hall.
$1.50; KSU ID Required; Rated PG.

CAVING

Explore the mysterious and awe-inspiring underworld of Missouri by participating in this trip on November 14-15. Trip cost is only $33 and includes 2 nights lodging, lunch on Saturday, and maps & string.

Information meeting on Tuesday,
October 27, 7 p.m., Union Room 207

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

HALLOWS EVE

• Play Games
• Win Prizes
• Non-Alcoholic
Beverages Served
• Costume Contest
• Music

8:00 p.m.-Midnight
Wednesday
October 28, 1987
Union Catskeller

Free Admission
Have A Great Time Without Alcohol

PARTY

Brought To You In Conjunction With Alcohol Awareness Week By Alcohol & Other Drug Education Services

K-State Association of Residence Halls
Special Events

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 22, 1987 ■ Page 9

FLAG FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES

Residence Hall League — Edwards Hall pounded Moore Hall 2, 42-14.

Independent League — Phi Wacka Jacka slipped past the Goalbusters, 18-12.

Fraternity League — Theta Xi outlasted Beta Theta Pi, 21-12.

All-University Title Match — Phi Wacka Jacka defeated Theta Xi, 18-12.

Women's League — Too Tough upended Gamma Phi Beta, 18-12.

Co-Recreational League — Kamikazi's skunked G.T. Destructors, 14-0.

A total of 165 teams entered the flag football competition. 25 teams were entered in the fraternity division, 65 independent squads competed, 24 teams battled for the title in the residence hall division, 23 women's teams competed and there were 28 co-recreational squads.

SOCCER

Busch defeated Marlatt Hall 4, 2-0, to advance to the championship match against the Arabo Team. The Arabo Team slipped past the Latinos, 7-6, in triple overtime.

In the championship match, Busch defeated the Arabo Team 6-5 in one overtime for the All-University soccer title.

Kicking it away

Issa Aloan, junior in architectural engineering, of The Arabo Team kicks the ball away from John Bayouth, senior in nuclear engineering, during the first period of the intramural soccer finals Wednesday evening. The Busch team won in overtime 5-4.

Collegian/Chris Assaf

St. Louis stadium is chilly

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The Minnesota Twins and St. Louis Cardinals should be at their best in the World Series. That's not easy out at the cold ball game.

Batters can't hit. Fans can't cheer. Even Commissioner Peter Ueberroth couldn't handle a grounder.

"Baseball was meant to be played in warm weather," Greg Mathews, the Cardinals' Game 4 starter, said. "No one likes to pitch in the cold."

Instead, the middle three games of the World Series are coming during the chilliest nights of the fall in St. Louis. It is freezing, really.

Domes might offend purists, but some views are changing 180 degrees as ballpark temperatures are forecast to drop into the 20s. There may be snow in Minnesota, but it's 70 degrees inside the Metrodome.

What a great time for a shorter season, or the first indoor Series.

"I lost my feet and toes a couple of times," Twins third baseman Gary Gaetti said. "It was cold."

At the start of Game 3 Tuesday night, it was a brisk 49 degrees. By the end, the temperature had dipped into the upper 30s.

Portable heaters were in both dugouts as St. Louis won 3-1, cutting the Twins' lead to 2-1. Cardinals third base coach Nick Leyva wore gloves throughout the night. John Tudor kept stepping off the mound to blow on his hands.

In the fourth inning, St. Louis' Curt Ford fouled an easy grounder into the commissioner's box. Ueberroth dropped it.

Remember those images of stoic Bowie Kuhn in his trenchcoat, sitting in Baltimore for the 1979 World Series and pretending not to notice the snow? This one could be worse for Game 5 Thursday night by the time Arctic winds sweep in.

"I don't think it affects anybody," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said. "The adrenalin is going so good. It affects the benchwarmers more than anybody."

The Twins, who scored 18 runs on 21 hits in winning the first two games, were held to five hits by Tudor and Todd Worrell in Game 3.

"Mr. Tudor pitched an outstanding game. Worrell threw the ball by us," Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly said. "We played in the cold in Detroit and played well."

Maybe the cold did not cool off the Twins. But it took the fans out of the game for most of the night.

There was little pregame excitement, the kind the Cardinals' fans generated for the playoffs. There was a stadium record 55,347 for Game 3, and not much sound.

At the Metrodome, the noise level reached 118 decibels — equal to hearing a jet take off from 100 feet away. At Busch Stadium, the bundled masses sat on their hands.

Game 5 of the World Series between St. Louis and Minnesota was delayed Thursday night because of a presidential news conference.

The game was scheduled to start at 7:25 p.m. The first pitch was delayed until the news conference, which began at 7 p.m., was over.

Basketball ticket sales moved ahead to accommodate campers

By Staff and Wire Reports

Student season ticket sales for the 1987-88 K-State basketball season, originally scheduled to go on sale Monday, have been moved up to 8 a.m. this Friday at the Ahearn Field House Ticket Office.

"The large demand for tickets thus far, combined with the harsh weather which we have had recently, caused us to look at moving up the date for student ticket sales to begin," K-State Athletic Director Larry Travis said.

"After consulting with the chairman of the Student Government Association Season Basketball Ticket Committee, we have decided to begin student season ticket sales on Friday. We have had many loyal students camping outside Ahearn the past two weeks.

"By moving the date up to Friday, this will create less of a hardship for them because of the cold weather we have been experiencing," Travis said.

Students are reminded that they must bring their fee cards in order to purchase tickets.

"It shows that (the athletic department) is concerned and cares about us," Mike Walden, senior in business administration said.

"I think it's great, because we're supporting these guys and they're giving us a break," Dennis Holcom, freshman in business administration said.

Harriers jilted in poll

Sports Rapp

JEFF RAPP
Sports Editor

Last week, the K-State women's cross country team was ranked 11th in the nation by the NCAA coaches' poll.

This week, despite winning its last two meets, the women harriers dropped nine spots in the ranking, to No. 20.

Does this make sense? I think not. "I don't think there is any consistency in the poll. I don't really agree with the way those who are ranking the teams are doing it," K-State cross country coach John Capriotti said.

The second-year head coach said there are eight districts across the country, in which one coach from each is selected to rank the nation's cross country squads for the NCAA.

The coach doing the ranking in K-State's district is the University of Missouri Coach Lou Duesing. Capriotti said that proposes somewhat of a roadblock for the Wildcat squad in the NCAA rankings.

"Basically, it gets down the coach at Missouri, who is doing the ranking in our district. He's tired of us beating him," Capriotti said.

"He's going to be recruiting some of the same people I'm recruiting and he's trying to make our program not look as good as it is, in my opinion....It's very simple. There's no other explanation for it."

This past weekend Capriotti said five of his runners beat the No. 1 runner for Missouri and it embarrassed them on their home course. "This seems like (Duesing's) way of getting back at us," Capriotti said.

Capriotti may be right. After all, K-State soundly defeated the presently ninth-ranked University of Iowa at the Iowa State Invitational on Sept. 26.

Then, in a winning effort, K-State beat the 15th-ranked University of Colorado at the Sooner Invitational at Norman, Okla., Oct. 9.

To top it all off, the women runners won the Mid-America Open in Columbia and were rewarded for their efforts by being dropped nine spots in the rankings. Capriotti said the lack of logic is not discouraging his team, but providing fuel for its competitive fire.

"No matter what the poll says, you still have to go out and race. My girls are all mad now, so it's going to come back to haunt some people, I promise you," Capriotti said.

"You can look at it two ways. You can sit back and worry about it — which we're not going to do — or you can turn it into your favor, and that's what we plan on doing."

Sounds like Coach Capriotti has the right approach — and a winning approach at that.

NCAA Women's Cross Country Top 20 (Oct. 19) and number of votes received.

1. Texas (158)
2. Oregon (154)
3. Alabama (135)
4. Clemson (126)
5. UCLA (125)
6. Villanova (106)
7. Arkansas (105)
8. Kentucky (103)
9. Iowa (91)
10. Wake Forest (77)
11. Yale (74)
12. Northern Arizona (65)
13. Michigan (64)
14. Irvine (58)
15. Colorado (56)
16. Wisconsin (42)
17. North Carolina State (27)
18. Cal Poly (26)
19. Nebraska (24)
20. K-STATE (22)

St. Louis evens Series at 2-2 behind Forsch's relief pitching

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Tom Lawless' three-run homer triggered a six-run romp as the St. Louis Cardinals caught fourth-inning fever and burned the Minnesota Twins 7-2 Wednesday night, tying the World Series at two games apiece.

Lawless' first home run since 1984 and second of his major-league career helped chase Game 1 winner Frank Viola, matching his quickest exit in 40 starts this season.

The Cardinals, overpowered in the first two games as Minnesota scored a total of 13 runs in the fourth inning, showed they can play that way, too, combining four hits and three walks in that inning for a 7-1 bulge.

World Series Game 4 Cards 7, Twins 2

St. Louis also raised more questions about the Twins' ability to win on the road. Minnesota won just nine games away from the Metrodome after the All-Star break before taking two in Detroit in the playoffs.

Jim Lindeman, joining Lawless as one of the productive replacement Cardinals, had two RBI singles among St. Louis' nine hits off four Minnesota pitchers.

Ken Dayley protected the lead by retiring Gary Gaetti and Tom Brunansky with the bases loaded to end the seventh. Dayley got a save in relief of Bob Forsch, who went 2-2-3 in relief and got his first World Series victory in four decisions.

Game 5 will be Thursday night with Bert Blyleven pitching for the Twins.

Letter to Mom may be just the ticket

Editor's note: Collegian sports writer Bill Lang has been on assignment camping on the lawn of Ahearn Field House, waiting for Wildcat basketball tickets. We fear he may be suffering from a minor case of hypothermia. The following is a letter we found tucked away in Bill's sleeping bag.

Dear Mom and Dad,

Just thought I'd drop a line as to how things are going at Camp Ahearn.

A funny place, this camp. People from all over the place have come just so they can get a ticket to an event — a spectacle — a thing called Wildcat Basketball.

Don't get me wrong; it's been fun camping so far. It's been a little cold and a little damp. Don't worry, I'm dressed warmly and I'm even wearing my long underwear, so I won't make my cold any worse than it already is.

So far the campers have all been present when our coordinator has taken roll call. Right now the group of guys I'm camping with is somewhere around the No. 8 spot in the

A.M. Sports

BILL LANG
Sports Writer

I think we are supposed to meet the camp director, Lon Kruger, sometime. He's a really neat guy, and he also coaches the K-State men's basketball team. This guy does so much, I don't know where he finds the time to do it all.

All the campers and even some people coming in out of the cold came to watch the Midnight Madness II practice session for the men's basketball team. I wish you could have been there, everyone was going bonkers.

Last season the men's team did pretty well, and they are expected to do better this year. I think that's the reason there are so many more campers this year than in the last few years.

And, Mom, I don't want you to worry about my classes. I've been making it to them, and I study hard by the light of a lantern when I'm in the tent at night.

The other campers also seem to be having a good time. Some have decided to sleep on the steps at the camp, while others have brought in a sofa to add that "homey touch" to their campsite. Others stay up until all hours of the night singing, or something that's supposed to resemble singing.

Some of the people have even added signs to personalize their tents. My personal favorite is the one that reads, "If this tent's rockin', don't bother knockin'!" What a sign.

Well, that should just about wrap it up from ol' Camp Ahearn. I'm having a lot of fun — A LOT OF FUN! Say "hi" to the dog for me, and don't forget to make sure he goes out before you go to bed. Take care, and I'll see you soon.

Love,

Bill

P.S. Please send a generator, an electric blanket, and also some more money.

Collegian/Jennifer Quist
Weldon White, gardener at K-State, picks up trash daily with his "jabber." White spends eight hours a day at his job.

Trash

■ CONT. FROM PAGE 1
Avenue. White and Nowland also pick up trash at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area.
"There's quite a lot of responsibility in my work," White said. "On (days of) football games, we pick the perimeter of the campus."

He said there is more trash than usual to pick up on Monday mornings after a home football or basketball game. But he doesn't mind.
"I don't care how bad the kids mess it (the campus) up on the weekend, because the simple fact is I know I'm gonna come up here Monday morning and clean it up," he said.

Upkeep

■ CONT. FROM PAGE 1
The budget for the grounds is $544,768 for fiscal year 1988.

This is about average for a university, Sykes said.
Grounds maintenance employs 15 people who maintain 300 acres. This averages out to about 20 acres per person, Sykes said.

Guardian

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

"If more people could interact with them on a one-to-one basis, the fears and prejudices could be done away with."

The most dramatic impact for him personally has been gaining a "tremendous respect and utmost admiration" for the people who work at institutions, he said.

Daniels compared being a guardian to being a parent of a minor. Several times he has gone to the hospital to sign medical releases when a ward required treatment for a medical problem. Explicit laws, however, define what medical action a guardian may or may not approve.

Being responsible for five wards is enough, Daniels said. "Any more, and it'd be back to the old problem of the guardian not spending enough time with the wards." Depending on several factors, Daniels could be Truhe's guardian for another 30 years, he said.

As a volunteer, Daniels receives $20 taxable income per month for each ward as a reimbursement for gas, postage, copying costs and out-of-pocket expenses, like Truhe's tobacco or the cookies he takes to his wards at KNI. The money comes from a line item in the budget of the Kansas Division of Mental Health and Retardation.

Daniels works as a senior systems analyst at Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Since his involvement in the Kansas Guardianship Program, he has recruited one person at his office to be a guardian.

There are three reasons it is difficult to find guardians, he said.

"They think it will be too time-consuming. It's not something that comes naturally, and it is a largely unknown program."

In response to those excuses, Daniels said he arranges his work schedule to visit his wards when it is convenient for him and said it does not take family time. Also, he admits having been apprehensive at first.

"Unless you've been trained, it's difficult to interact with developmentally disabled people."

Said Nickel: "We always have way more requests (for guardians) than volunteers."

Aging

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

ple must be met by families and/or government agencies.

"Such forward planning is particularly crucial in developing countries, which will have to adjust to the transition from a youthful to an aging population structure more rapidly than did developed countries in the past," Kaiser said.

Also, as countries become more industrialized, the extended family disappears and the remaining family is less able to provide support for the elderly, he said. Governments are then called upon to take responsibility for the aged.

Kaiser said AID's stance that government should be prepared for this problem was a major reason for the report and AID's involvement in the issue.

"We are trying to get a jump on the problem," Kaiser said.

The statement has been submitted to Congress and all the agencies within AID. The agencies will meet in November to reflect on the report and to make decisions on how much money and personnel should be involved in this program.

They will also decide on whether AID will do its own research on the problem or contract it out to universities in the United States. Furthermore, the agencies will decide how the program is going to be implemented in each country.

Kaiser said opportunities exist for the United States and less developed countries to learn from one another through the aging issue.

"It is possible to help countries plan for a successful response to the special needs and opportunities presented by an aging population if we have an adequate and timely understanding of those needs and opportunities," he said.

45 Years Serving America's Children

Support the
March of Dimes
Birth Defects Foundation

THURSDAY
BREW
and BBAMB

1.50 MIXED
DRINKS
(ANY BRAND)

$1.25 BBAMB
BURGERS, BURGERS
AND MORE BURGERS,
$1.25 BURGERS, 5-11

TONIGHT
OLD MILWAUKEE NIGHT

Pitchers $1.60

"It just doesn't get any better than this"

•NO DRESS CODE•
•NO COVER CHARGE•

NOW OPEN ON SUNDAYS

THE FINEST LITTLE TAVERN BY A DAM SITE

Rt. 5

537-3133

TV Listings

By TV Data

THURSDAY OCTOBER 22, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scooby Doo	Special	Bozo	Nation's Bus.	B. Hillbillies
8:00	"	To Be An-	"	My Little Pony	Sesame	Smurfs	SportsCenter	Bewitched
9:00	Hour Maga-	$25K Pyramid	Ghostbusters	Who's Boss	Sesame	H's Heroes	Little House	Movie: "Eric"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss	M.T. Moore	Body Electric	Andy Griffith	Grand Prix of	"
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec.	Dyke Green Acres	Psychology	Geraldo	Aerobics	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday	All My Child-	Beaver	Sesame	News	Top Rank	Movie: "Three
1:00	Days of Our	Bold/Beautiful	ren	I Love Lucy	Street	"	Boxing: Tim	into Two
2:00	Lives	As the World	One Life to	Andy Griffith	Ring of Truth	Van Dyke	Witherspoon	Won't Go"
3:00	Another World	Turns	Live	B. Hillbillies	"	Andy Griffith	vs. Mike Wil-	"
4:00	"	Guiding Light	General Hospi-	Brady Bunch	Living	Beaver	Clay Pigeon	Tom & Jerry
5:00	Santa Barbara	"	tal	Zoobee Zoo	Learn to Read	Ghostbusters	NFL Yearbook	and Friends
6:00	"	Donahue	Scooby Doo	Smurfs	Cooking	Jem	AWA Wres-	Flintstones
7:00	Oprah Winfrey	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game	Jeans	Square 1 TV	G.I. Joe	Hydroplane	Munsters
8:00	"	3's Company	P. Court	M. Bravestar	3-2-1 Contact	M. Bravestar	Racing: Silver	Laverne
9:00	Family Ties	News	ABC News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame	Facts of Life	SportsCenter	Alice
10:00	NBC News	News	M*A*S*H	WKRP	MacNeil / Le-	Cheers	SportsCenter	Andy Griffith
11:00	Wheel-Fortune	Truth/Conseq.	Newlywed	Gimme Br.	rer Newshour	Barney Miller	SpeedWeek	Sanford
12:00	Cosby Show	Mysteries of	Sledge/Series	Hill Street	Adams Chron-	Movie: "Lonely Guy"	Drag Racing:	Movie: "Mur-
1:00	Diff. World	Rock-Dwelling	Charmings	Blues	icles	"	IHRA Fall Na-	phy's War"
2:00	Cheers	Wiseguy	Movie: "Best	Movie: "Fri-	Mystery/Lord	Truck and	Tractor Pull	"
3:00	Night Court	Defense/	day the 13th,	Peter Wimsey	"	"	"	"
4:00	L.A. Law	Knots, Landing	World Series	Part III"	DeGrassi High	News	Tractor Pull	Movie: "Car-
5:00	News	Cheers	TBA	Barney Miller	Wild America	H'mooner	Sugar Ray	bine Williams"
6:00	Tonight Show	"	News	Late Show	Business Rpt.	Magnum, P.I.	SportsCenter	"
7:00	Ent. Tonight	Adderly	M*A*S*H	Nightline	MacNeil / Le-	rer Newshour	Movie: "Reck-	Waterskiing
8:00	David Letter-	Movie: "Never	700 Club	Movie: "Billion	"	"	Surfing: PSAA	bon
9:00	man	Con a Killer"	"	Dollar Brain"	"	"	Pro Cham-	San Fran

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.

* No abbreviations, please.

* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.

* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.

* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.

* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____	Phone no. _____
Address _____	Student ID # _____
1 _____	2 _____
3 _____	4 _____
5 _____	6 _____
7 _____	8 _____
9 _____	10 _____
11 _____	12 _____
13 _____	14 _____
15 _____	16 _____
17 _____	18 _____
19 _____	20 _____
21 _____	22 _____
23 _____	24 _____
25 _____	26 _____
27 _____	28 _____
29 _____	30 _____
Date ad begins _____	Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____	Category _____

LENOX CHINA & CRYSTAL SALE

Gracious holiday entertaining begins with Lenox. Set your most beautiful table ever with elegant Lenox fine china and brilliant Lenox full lead crystal. Through November 1, 1987 you can save 20% on all 5-piece Complete Place Settings (dinner plate, salad/dessert and butter plates, teacup and saucer) and 20-piece services for 4. All china patterns are trimmed in 24 Karat gold or platinum.

Lenox China—Autumn

Lenox China—Monroe

Campbell's
Use our Bridal Registry

5th & Poyntz—Downtown
776-9067

1227 Moro—Aggieville
539-1891

Gift

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
mination and perseverance these people exhibit, he said.

The woman's relationship to the University developed through her family, Moore said. Her husband, who is handicapped, and her son attended K-State.

"The donor spent more than a dozen years searching for a way to memorialize two relatives and countless friends who were physically impaired," Moore said.

He said the scholarship will allow others who are physically limited to realize their educational goals.

The Arizona woman contacted the Foundation last December after receiving one of its newsletters on estate and financial planning.

She set up a charitable trust which will pay her a lifetime income, Moore said. The trust's assets will endow the scholarship and the annual interest will provide the financial awards.

"We are very excited about the opportunities this scholarship will provide physically limited students at Kansas State University," he said.

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11f)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try chocolate herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 776-1465. (34-54)

SADD MEMBERS remember meeting Oct. 22nd at 5:30 p.m. Union room 207. New members welcome! (42-44)

HAVE YOU always wanted to be in pictures? SADD members now is your chance! Picture for Royal Purple at 6:45 p.m., Oct. 22, room 202 Fairchild. (42-44)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

ClassAds

532-6555

KSU Parachute Club Meeting
Thurs., Oct. 22
7 p.m.
Union 206
Yearbook Picture 8 p.m.

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED

NICE ONE- and two-bedroom apartments. Very close to campus. Available Nov. 1. Please call 776-9124. (37f)

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY, one-bedroom furnished apartment. All bills paid. Call 537-2590. (41-43)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (21f)

NICE, LARGE one- and two-bedroom apartments in Westloop area. Please call 776-9124. (37f)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE

VW 1600 cc Bug engine, complete, 1600 cc rebuilt shortblock, IRS Bug transmission. Import auto repairs at J & L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, St. George. (38-51)

MUST SELL 1970 Chevrolet Impala, 17,750 miles. Excellent condition, $300. Call 539-2421. (40-44)

1979 TOYOTA Celica five-speed, sunroof, new paint, great shape, 537-8944, ask for Murray. (41-44)

1966 WILDCAT Buick in good condition. White with maroon interior. Call 6-8 a.m. (913) 944-3570. (42-46)

COMPUTERS

HAYES MODEM, 1200 baud. Year old, as new, awesome. 537-4069, after 7 p.m. $300. (42-44)

EMPLOYMENT

OVERSEAS JOBS... summer, year round, Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2,000/month. Sightseeing. Free information. Write J.C., P.O. Box 52-KS2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (30-48)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, Others. Information (504) 641-0091 ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (35-59)

TRAVEL FIELD opportunity. Gain valuable marketing experience while earning money. Campus representatives needed immediately for spring break trips to Florida and South Padre Island, Texas. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-282-6221. (35-44)

WE SEEK entrepreneur business marketing major or agriculture students to market unique Florida tropical gift item. Contact Mr. Cohen, (305) 479-3280 after 5 p.m. (35-44)

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 East Poyntz, 9-9. (39-47)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service office. We offer student pay plan, job variety and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat, wear appropriate attire and be able to obtain a Food Handler's card. (38-44)

ACCESSORIES ON the Park is taking applications for part-time positions to work weekends and through the holidays. Apply in person 708 N. Manhattan Ave. (42-47)

ON-CAMPUS travel representative or organization needed to promote Spring Break trip to Florida. Earn money, free trips, and valuable work experience. Call Inter-Campus Programs at 1-800-433-7747. (42-44)

CALIFORNIA JOB opportunity—Do you like kids and childcare? Room, board, salary provided. Respond to HELP 4 PARACHUTE, 415-322-3616, 770 Menlo Ave., Suite 219, Menlo Park, CA 94025. (40-75)

RETAIL SALES clerk for afternoons and weekends. Sales experience preferred. Bring resume to 1212 Moro, Aggieville. (41-43)

FULL OR part-time mail clerk needed for growing company. Involves some lifting and fulfillment of orders. Contact Norreen at 539-0555. (41-43)

$10-$660 weekly/mailing circulars! Rush self-addressed stamped envelope. Dept. AN-7CC-CUI, 9300 Wilshire, Suite 470, Beverly Hills, CA 90212. (42-58)

PART-TIME SITTER and house cleaner needed. Call 456-9676 after 5 p.m. (42-44)

TEMPORARY WEEKEND construction laborer needed. Will pay extra for person with truck. 537-1002. (43-44)

PYRAMID PIZZA now accepting applications for fun-loving delivery personnel. Must have own reliable vehicle with insurance. Apply in person at Pyramid Pizza, 707 N. 12th. (43-45)

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, temporary, A.B.S. in biochemistry or biology required. Duties include: animal care, enzyme assays, tissue culture, RIA. Full-time, starts Nov. 1. Contact Dr. D. Takemoto at (913) 532-7009, biochemistry, Burr Hall, Room 203, KSU. KSU is an equal opportunity employer. (43-45)

CAMERAMERICA is now accepting applications for experienced lab personnel. Knowledge of one-hour color processing is a must. Qualified applicants only, apply in person, 2700 Anderson Ave. (43-48)

JOIN OUR "Nanny Network" of over 600 placed by us in the Northeast. One year working with kids in exchange for salaries up to $250 week, room and board, airfare and benefits. We offer the Best Choices in families and location. Contact Helping Hands, Inc. at 1-800-544-NANI for brochure and application. Featured on NBC's Today Show and in Oct. 1987 Working Mother magazine as nationally recognized leader in Nanny placement. Established in 1984. (43)

COMPANION SITTERS experienced in helping elderly needs. Mornings, flexible hours. Meal preparation and housekeeping skills necessary. Nurse Aid training helpful. Complete application at HomeCare Inc., 2803 Claitor by Oct. 30. EOE. (43-48)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE

1980 COMMODORE 14 x 70, three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, stove, refrigerator. Colonial Gardens, assume loan. 776-2261. (30-44)

NICE 1981 Redman mobile, 14 x 70, three bedrooms, central air, ceiling fan, big deck. Call 539-7103. (42-47)

HOUSE FOR sale. Two bedrooms, hardwood floors, appliances, new hot water heater, attached garage, large yard. Call 539-2860. (42-43)

LOST AND FOUND

FOUND: NAVY blue sweatshirt near Hollis House. Contact Throckmorton 414 or 532-6176, Marie. (41-43)

LOST: GRAY briefcase on Hunting Street west of Ahearn. Important documents inside. Reward offered. Call 532-6506 days or 537-0353 evenings. (43-45)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE

TYPEWRITER and computer ribbons. Hull Business Machines, 715 N. 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

Pronouncing English as a Second Language

Foreign Accent Improvement Workshop

An intensive 3 week program to maximize social & educational speaking skills

Nov. 14 & 15, Dec. 3

Evaluation $85

Tuition $450

Enrollment Deadline: Oct. 23

For more information & to register contact:

Junction City

Speech & Language Clinic

762-3350,

Manhattan 539-6377

Learn to

SKY DIVE

This Weekend

Train Friday,

Jump Saturday

Tell your parents Sunday!

For details call the KSU

Parachute Club

at 776-7241 today.

MANHATTAN COINS and Collectables. Buying scrap gold/jewelry. Plus coins, comic books, rock records, toys. 1130 Laramie, 539-1184. (42-44)

PYRAMID PIZZA

All Slices 99¢

after 5 p.m.

WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

TRADE UP!

Trade in Your Old Home Speakers & Receive $100 Trade in Value Against the New Audio Pulse.

1126 Moro 776-5507

FREE

Hot Dogs

10 p.m.-Midnight

Drink Special:

$1 Tonics

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment

17th & Anderson, 539-7631

HUMAN SKELETON. Great condition. Anatomically correct. Perfect for medical students. Best offer. Mark or Joel Smith, 539-1820. (42-46)

REFRIGERATOR. For sale. Only been used one semester. Great for dorm room. 776-7968. (43-45)

MUST SELL. An excellent sewing machine. Call 776-2382. (43-47)

Oktoberfest

Specials!

25% OFF All

Student Memberships!

Offer Exp. Oct. 31st

AND

Twenty 30 min. Tan Sessions

for $30

776-1750

DANCE,

DANCE,

DANCE

to the sounds

of

"The Myth"

playing a variety of well-known tunes

1981 KAWASAKI LTD 250. Looks and runs great. $430 or best offer. 776-3996. (41-43)

SHOQUIN 12-SPEED with accessories. Excellent condition. Less than 50 miles. Call Mark at 537-8696, 3-6 p.m. (42-44)

PERSONALS

JOE H—Put on your suit and strut your stuff for all the world to see. When you're done, shake his hand and say, "The man you want is me." Good Luck!! ILU! Gal. (43)

E.X., P.K., big bro, you're the best! Ready to do the wet sweatshirt again? Love, P.S. (43-44)

THETA SUSAN without a "P"—you're my Mom and I think that's just great! The T-shirt and treats were awesome—first rate! I had lots of fun and now that it's done, having you for my Mom will be second to none!! Love, without a "P's" Pee-wee. (43)

ATO—TOM B. Got your name off computer screen Tuesday morning in lab. I am interested. If you're interested respond here soon.—Girl who can center on Lotus 1-2-3. (43-44)

ATTENTION SHE-D.U.s—Yearbook pictures are tonight at 8:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202. Last chance!! (43)

SOUTH PACIFICERS—Time to party—Tonkinese style! Break legs tonight. Luv, B.M. and Babe. (43)

K.C.—THESE last two months have been the best!! I am so glad that we met!! I hope our feeling lasts!! Love, David. (43)

G-PH's LAURA K. and Lisa S.—I'm so excited to have you both as pledge dolls! You are worth breaking the tradition for. Love ya, Momma Jill. (43)

DELTA DELTA Delta HFB's (Hot Fabulous Babes): Well... what can we say. We knew "we" would be Number 1 in Homecoming '87 and quite frankly we were. Let's keep up our "ties" with each other and keep partying thru the whole year, or at least when we're not "tied up." Congrats and be prepared for an awesome post party soon to come! Couldn't have done it without you. PS. (Ty says hi.) Love, the Phi Deltas. (43)

CHI OMEGAS—BOO! Alpha Chis. (43)

JANINE—IT'S now been four years, four wonderfully perfect years. At this time next year, it will be 22 days... I can't wait. Remember: imagine large yachting, forever. Doug. (43)

MIKE V. Happy Birthday—22nd. Let's keep celebrating together! Thanks for all your encouragement and smiles! They mean the world to me. You're the greatest brother. Love your twin sister, Patty. (43)

TAWN AND Kess—Bandido (ban-dee-toe) 1. outlaw, brigand, 2. one who steals, profane, or kills (usually pink flamingos), 3. Gangster. Murray and Buck. (43)

I MIGHT as well face it, I'm addicted to Doug! Happy Anniversary. Love, Janine. (43)

CMPSK 207 GTA Rod A: If you're not going to call me, I want my night back! 539-2381. The Student. (43)

DISA—YOU are quite a doll, and here's to say I think so. The Grompy Boy (43)

BAHAMAMAMA—KEARNEY'S not the place to be—it's vacation time for you and me, the car is packed, the drinks are frozen, is chase the destination you've chosen? (43)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES

TAME COCKATIELS—males, pearl-grey, $45. Hand-fed parakeets, $10-$12. 539-1185. (42-46)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11f)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11f)

SELF-HYPNOSIS. Improve concentration, memory, recall. Overcome test anxiety, fear of public speaking, etc. Personalized instruction, one 90-minute session required. $140. Greg Potter, Ph.D., 714 Poyntz, Suite A, 537-0076. (33-49)

LAUNDRY DONE. For services available and charges, please call 537-1618. (41-44)

RENTALS

TYPEWRITERS—CORRECTING and non-correcting. In the Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (32f)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (42-44)

Study: Not all sodium causes ill health

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Challenging a widely held belief, researchers say new findings suggest that ordinary table salt may be the only form of sodium that raises people's blood pressure. They cautioned that their tentative results, based on a small study, must be confirmed by other researchers before they are used to tell people what they can safely eat. But if the results hold up, they will overturn one of medicine's often-repeated doctrines: All sodium is bad for people with high blood pressure.

"I hate to use the word 'bombshell,' but I think it will startle many people," said Dr. R. Curtis Morris Jr., one of the study's authors.

Table salt is sodium chloride. Other sodium compounds often added to foods include sodium bicarbonate or baking soda; sodium ascorbate, a form of vitamin C; the flavor enhancer monosodium glutamate, and such preservatives as sodium benzoate and sodium nitrite.

Table salt has long been known to raise blood pressure in people with hypertension. However, Morris said doctors frequently ask their patients to cut back on all forms of sodium, not just salt.

"For many years, the words 'sodium' and 'salt' have been used interchangeably," said Morris, director of the General Clinical Research Center at the University of California, San Francisco.

"That was because people thought that the only part of salt that was important was the sodium component," he said. "We are suggesting that it's not just sodium. It's sodium and chloride."

Graham Ward, a public health expert at Boston University School of Medicine, said the finding is important for researchers to pursue.

But he added, "It doesn't really impact on a practicing physician's approach to treating a hypertensive patient, because in the American diet we can't separate sodium and chloride. They come together in large quantities. When you want to get somebody down, whether it's sodium or chloride, what we are talking about is table salt."

The study, directed by Dr. Theodore W. Kurtz, was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine. It was conducted on five men, all in their 50s and 60s, who had high blood pressure that was sensitive to salt.

When the men were given salt supplements for a week, their blood pressures rose sharply. But when they received the same amounts of sodium citrate, their blood pressures didn't change. Sodium citrate is a common additive in many foods and drinks.

Just how salt aggravates high blood pressure is still unclear, but the latest research may provide new clues. The doctors found that salt increases blood volume, but sodium citrate does not, and this could be an important difference.

1120 Moro 539-9064

Looking for a great party?

Come see

TONITE AND TOMORROW

Horticulture Club
PUMPKIN SALE
Thurs. Oct. 22-Fri. Oct. 23
UNION and outside WATERS HALL
(between Waters & Farrell Library)
If bad weather, sale 1st Floor Waters
9-5 p.m.
WE'RE THE CHEAPEST PLACE IN TOWN!
Perfect for dorm rooms!

Open Campus Forum
(Open to Public)
"The Future of Higher Education: Quality & Accessibility"
October 22, 7 p.m.
Union Big 8 Room

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Haymaker,
Off Campus

Oct. 23: Marlatt,
Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

RUSHWATERS
TONIGHT
Schnapps Promo
All Mixed
Drinks
$1.50

Discover Your Major
at
MAJOR DECISIONS
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1987
11:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
UNION COURTYARD

- Information
- Your questions answered
- Materials
- Resource people from every college
- Exposure to all programs
- Graduate studies

Something for everyone - Especially for students still seeking a major

Sponsored by Golden Key National Honor Society

CLIP, KEEP & SAVE ALL WEEK

Kentucky Fried Chicken.
Kick-Off Special!

9 pieces of chicken original recipe or extra crispy chicken
for only $6.79 with coupon

901 N. 3rd
3002 Anderson
Offer expires Oct. 30

We Do Chicken Right.

GLAMOUR WORLD BEAUTY SUPPLY
433 Town East Center
Just East of Food 4 Less
537-3233

20% OFF
COUPON
STORE WIDE

YOUR NUMBER 1 BEAUTY STOP

Devoted Exclusively to Selling Professional Beauty Products
Public Welcome Expires 11-30-87 Public Welcome

Crum's beauty college
512 Poyntz Ave.
Manhattan, Kansas
66502

1/2 OFF Haircut
Mon.-Fri. 10:30 a.m. Appointments ONLY
with this coupon
Expires 10-29-87
776-4794

kinko's
Great copies. Great people.
$1 OFF
Passport Photos
Save $1 on a set of instant passport photos. No appointments, no waiting.
Only one coupon per visit.
Exp. Date 10/28/87
Mon.-Thur. 7:30-Midnight
Sat. 9-5
Sun. 10-Midnight
1110 Laramie
537-7340

BRING THIS AD

ask for RENE

new BEGINNINGS
HAIRSTYLING AND TANNING
A NEW CUT
A NEW STYLIST
NEW BEGINNINGS
Time Square
3rd & Thurston
537-1003 • 1107 N. 3rd.

5 OFF HAIRCUTS
10 OFF PERMS

EXPIRES NOV. 6, 1987

JOYCE'S HAIR PERMS

PERM SALE

Gals	Reg.	Now
Apple Pectin	$40	$30
Axiom	$45	$35
Warm & Gentle	$48	$38
Feels So Lively	$35	$25

Guys
Curly $25
Body $28
Partial $20

All Perms Include Cut and Style
539-TAME or 539-8601
404 Humboldt
Expires 10/29/87

South Pacific

The musical "South Pacific" will be presented by the K-State Players this weekend at McCain Auditorium. See Page 5.

Weather

Partly cloudy and cooler today, high in low 60s. Increasing clouds tonight, low in mid-40s. Cloudy Saturday, high in low 60s.

164 0/0/0  7
Kans: Newspaper Historical Soc
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
awarcc 48612
See Page 7.

it's , SO en ch.

Friday

October 23, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 44

Kansas State Collegian

Nation's economy remains unsettled

Stocks dive 77, quick recovery unlikely

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stocks tumbled in frantic trading Thursday, dousing hopes of quick recovery from the market's historic crash and raising fears that violent financial spasms may afflict the world indefinitely. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, the nation's best-known barometer of stock values, fell 77.42 points to 1,950.43 at closing. Losing stocks swamped gainers by a 5-to-1 margin on the New York exchange. Volume exceeded 393 million shares in the fourth busiest trading day ever.

Stocks also dropped sharply in London, wiping out more than two-thirds of the gains in Wednesday's record trading.

In an unusual step, the New York and American stock exchanges announced Thursday they would shorten each of their next three trading sessions by two hours to process the crushing volume of the last week. The New York exchange processed almost 2.5 billion shares in the past week, said NYSE Chairman John Phelan.

The exchanges will close at 2 p.m. Friday, Monday and Tuesday, and will open as usual at 9:30 a.m.

At one point Thursday, the Dow was down 140 points and bobbed violently afterward at sharply lower levels.

"The market's extremely fragile," said Peter J. DaPuzzo, manager of the retail equity group at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. in New York. "Any negative news causes it to break and people to sell out equities. There's so much tension and nervousness, the confidence level is very close to zero."

The value of all U.S. stocks fell $107.79 billion, wiping out nearly half the recovery of the previous two days, according to the Wilshire Associates 5,000 Equity Index of stocks. The drop represented 4.2 percent of the total valuation of $2.4 trillion.

The frantic selling that gripped the New York and London exchanges much of the day reverberated through every other market, eroding the dollar's value and pushing up the price of U.S. treasury bonds and gold in a migration to safe-haven securities.

"The stock market doesn't know what to do," said Robert Brusca, chief economist at Nikko Securities International Inc. in New York. "The message coming through clear, loud and strong is that the market is looking for greater coordination of economic policies that we haven't seen in a number of years."

Economy stable, Reagan assures

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Thursday night he is willing to talk with congressional leaders about a tax increase to cure the nation's economic ills, and declared he sees "no indicators" of a recession ahead despite the battered stock market.

At his first White House news conference since March, Reagan was generally upbeat about the economy, with which most of the questions dealt.

He said the markets should remain open, but he applauded the decision by the New York Stock Exchange to shorten trading hours for the next three days to permit overworked brokers to catch up on paperwork.

Reagan also announced he was appointing a commission under the direction of former Sen. Nicholas Brady, R-N.J., to examine stock market procedures.

But Reagan said the stock market's problems aside, the economy is fundamentally sound.

"This is purely a stock market thing and there are no indicators out there of recession or hard times at all," he contended.

The president stressed that he was prepared to meet personally with congressional leaders to seek a deficit reduction plan. However, he ducked when asked if he would repeat his vow to veto any tax increase bill that reaches his desk.

In other matters, Reagan said he believes Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev will visit the United States this year to sign a path-breaking arms reduction treaty, but he said he has no firm word that the meeting will take place.

The president also defended the United States' naval presence in the Persian Gulf, and said, "We are not there to start a war."

Banks lower lending rates to 9 percent

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Interest rates continued their dizzying plunge in the credit markets Thursday, and leading banks dropped their prime lending rates to 9 percent amid more nervous selling in the stock market.

It was the first industry-wide reduction since August 1986 in the prime rate, which is used by commercial banks as a benchmark for a range of business and consumer loans.

The one-quarter percentage point cut, led by Citibank, came about two weeks after banks raised their prime rates by half a percentage point to 9.25 percent.

Meanwhile, the price of the Treasury's closely watched 30-year bond rocketed in hectic trading about 3 points — or a hefty $30 for every $1,000 in face value. Its yield, which moves inversely to its price, slid to 9.09 percent from 9.45 percent late Wednesday.

Interest rates "came down like a stone," said Edward Yardeni, chief economist for investment firm Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. "We've had a heck of a bond rally. ... The good news for bond investors is that stock investors are getting clobbered."

Many investors have been fleeing the stock market since its dramatic plunge on Monday to seek a safer haven in bonds. The increase in demand has raised prices and drastically lowered yields.

At the Treasury's auction of 52-week T-bills Thursday, interest rates fell to the lowest level since July. The Treasury sold $9.3 billion of the bills at an average discount rate of 6.45 percent, down sharply from 7.32 percent at the last auction, on Sept. 30.

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

Coats off and on

Temperatures climbing into the 70s and the need for a few more merit points gave Steve Franzen, freshman in journalism and mass communications, a chance to apply a fresh coat of paint to the concrete letters on the front lawn of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house Thursday afternoon.

Aggieville to erect barricades on Nov. 7

By Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

The streets of Aggieville will be barricaded to traffic, and pedestrian entry will be monitored on Nov. 7, the day of the K-State-University of Kansas football game.

Guidelines developed by the Aggieville Merchants were discussed at a Union Program Council "Let's Talk About It..." forum Thursday noon in the Catskeller.

"What we're trying to do is allow you (students) to get in and have a good time while keeping it safe," said Bill Jacoby, executive director for the Aggieville Merchants.

On the day of the game, a two-section high barricade of snow fence will prevent pedestrian and vehicular traffic from entering onto the principal streets and alleys of Aggieville. No vehicles will be allowed into the shopping district after 6 a.m. During the morning hours, pedestrian access will not be controlled.

At noon, special gates, about as
■ See AGGIE, Page 3

Nursing shortage creates bright forecast for employment, experts say at Nurses Day

By Julie Key
Collegian Reporter

The current nursing shortage and an anticipated increase in the demand for nurses in the future are creating attractive opportunities for students entering the health care field, students were told Thursday.

"The need for nurses is going to be even more critical as time passes," said Gina Stadig, recruiter and administrative counselor at St. Mary of the Plains in Dodge City. Stadig was one of seven representatives from Kansas nursing schools addressing nursing students for Nurses Day.

Students graduating from a nursing program can expect to see salaries increase, Stadig said.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor projects an increase of 612,000 jobs for registered nurses by the year 2000 — a 43.6 percent jump. The agency ranks the nursing profession as third in expected growth.

"The world is your apple; you can work anywhere you want to go," said Bernadette Griggy, chairwoman of the division of health sciences and the department of nursing at Marymount College in Salina.

"The nursing shortage is being recognized on a national level," said Barbara Langner, associate professor in pediatric nursing at the University of Kansas.

Legislation has been introduced in the Senate and a similar one in the House concerning the nursing shortage. Langner said the bill would allot money to innovative nursing programs and help develop programs to attract students to the nursing profession.

Nurses Day is beneficial for students, Stadig said.

"For K-State students, (Nurses

Day) lets them see what their options are and the different programs in different parts of the state," she said.

Pre-nursing and other students could receive information about the nursing profession and universities where they can receive a nursing degree.

Tamara Taylor, a senior in pre-nursing and life science, said she attended the event so she could be more familiar with Kansas nursing schools when it was time to decide where to transfer and finish her degree.

"I would like to return to school and go into nursing," said Nellie Lamley, Paxico. Lamley is working as a teacher's assistant and is a graduate of K-State.

Each university has a different advantage to offer the prospective students, said Diana Kerle, associate professor at Pittsburg State University.

PSU is attractive to students because of the small campus, she said. The cost of living is low, and it is the least expensive nursing school in Kansas. It is also easier to get a scholarship, Kerle said.

How time flies (back)

For those wanting an extra hour this weekend, take heart. Daylight time comes to an end Sunday at 2 a.m., when clocks should be turned back one hour and standard time begins.

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Suicide bombers ready in gulf

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A pro-Iranian group that holds American and French hostages said Thursday that "thousands" of suicide bombers are poised for attacks against U.S. and European naval forces in the Persian Gulf.

The group, Islamic Jihad, claims to have carried out a series of suicide bombings against American and French targets in Lebanon in 1983 and 1984. The attacks killed more than 370 people, mostly American and French servicemen.

The threat was made in a typewritten Arabic statement, copies of which were delivered to the offices of Western news agencies in Beirut. It was accompanied by black-and-white photographs of American hostage Terry Anderson and French captive Jean-Paul Kauffmann.

The Islamic Jihad statement said the Persian Gulf attacks would be patterned after the Oct. 23, 1983, bombings that demolished the headquarters of the U.S. Marines and French paratroopers in Lebanon, for which it claimed responsibility.

The bombings, carried out by suicide truck drivers, killed 241 American servicemen at the Marines base and 58 Frenchmen at the other post. Both nations later withdrew their forces from Lebanon.

Monsanto fined $16.2 million

BELLEVILLE, Ill. — A jury has determined that Monsanto Co. failed to warn a Missouri town about the risks of a 1979 spill containing less than a teaspoon of dioxin and ordered the giant chemical company to pay $16.2 million in punitive damages.

Monsanto said it would appeal Thursday's verdict, which concluded one of the nation's longest jury trials.

The finding of misconduct also resulted in compensatory damage awards of $14,500 each to a mother and son who owned land near the Sturgeon, Mo., spill site, and $1 each for the remaining 63 plaintiffs. The punitive damages were to be divided equally among all plaintiffs.

The lawsuit in St. Clair County Circuit Court accused St. Louis-based Monsanto in the Jan. 10, 1979, spill of a 19,000-gallon rail shipment of raw material used in a wood preservative over a half-mile area.

The plaintiffs, contending they suffered headaches and fatigue and feared genetic damages, had sought $100 million in punitive damages and $35.4 million in compensatory damages.

Monsanto argued that the amount of dioxin in the spill was too small to cause injury.

Schoolchildren save driver

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Forty schoolchildren pulled together to save the life of their bus driver after the vehicle fell on him while he was changing a flat tire, a newspaper reported Thursday.

Bo Gosta Anundsson told the Expressen newspaper that he was fixing the tire Wednesday when the bus fell on top of him.

"When I tried to adjust the jack, I lowered it too fast and, as the tire had exploded, only the rim remained and suddenly I had the bus over me," the driver said.

Some of the children lifted the bus, while others pulled Anundsson to safety. He was taken to a hospital, treated for minor injuries and released.

The children had been en route to their school in the town of Wilhelmnia in northern Sweden.

Iranian missile hits tanker

KUWAIT — An Iranian Silkworm missile hit Kuwait's offshore supertanker oil terminal Thursday, setting it afire and wounding several people, officials reported. None of the U.S.-flagged tankers the Navy protects was in the area.

It was the third Iranian missile attack in a week on the sheikdom nestled between Iraq and Saudi Arabia at the head of the Persian Gulf.

The Kuwait News Agency quoted officials as saying five people were wounded and one remained hospitalized. Shipping and diplomatic sources said casualties were low because no ships were loading at the Sea Island terminal nine miles offshore and fewer than the usual 20 men were on duty.

Highway resembles oyster stew

NEW ORLEANS — About 2,000 crabs fell onto an interstate highway when the bottom fell out of a refrigerator truck bringing them to market, officials said.

"It looked like oyster stew on the highway," police Officer Joe DeJoie said Thursday.

It took a bulldozer several hours to scoop the 1,700 to 2,100 crabs that fell onto Interstate 10 in eastern New Orleans late Wednesday.

Ricky DeHart of Houma was driving the load to market in New Orleans.

"When they scraped the middle lane with the dozer, they had a pile of crabs a foot and a half deep, four feet long and two feet wide," DeJoie said.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ETA KAPPA NU senior composite pictures will be taken at 2:30-5 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in Durland 274. Sign up sheet is on Eta Kappa Nu bulletin board.

ARTS AND SCIENCES COUNCIL applications for Student of the Semester are due Oct. 30 in Eisenhower 117.

EDUCATION STUDENTS may attend the Rural and Small Schools Conference Oct. 26 and Oct. 27 free. The conference will be held in the Union. You may register to attend in Umberger 317 between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

SGA ELECTIONS COMMITTEE poll workers are needed for Student Government elections Nov. 3 and Nov. 4. Sign up in SGS office by today.

SINGLE PARENTS/DISABLED HOMEMAKERS $300 scholarships are available in Blumont 407, Holton 101 or Financial Aid office. For more information call 532-6561.

WILDCAT TIPOFF CLASSIC men's and women's 3-on-3 basketball tournament Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Registration forms are available at Union Information Desk, Hollis House and Ahearn 101. The deadline for registration is today.

CENTER FOR BASIC CANCER RESEARCH, DIVISION OF BIOLOGY applications are available in Acker 131. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS award applications are now available in the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Acker 131. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs at K-State are eligible to apply. Funding is available for 13 students. The awards are $500 per recipient. Application deadline is Dec. 4.

TODAY

ARMY ROTC meets at 6 a.m. at Memorial Stadium field for P.T. run.

1120 Moro

539-9064

HEY EVERYBODY!

This is it. Last chance to party with this semester!

THE CLIQUE

DON'T MISS 'EM!

$1 shots

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Taco Dinner $1.77 reg. $2.25

Burrito 88¢ reg. $1.30

Sancho 88¢ reg. $1.30

TACO HUT

2809 Claflin 539-2091

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

NEW THIS WEEK

•ALARM
•HOUSEMARTINS
•THE LEATHER NUN
•HEARTS OF FIRE SOUNDTRACK
•SCREENING BLUE MESSIAHS
•JANE LOVES JEZEBEL
•BEATLES 'CD's
•ABBEY ROAD, LET IT BE

1204 MORO-AGGIEVILLE

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt

that tastes like Ice Cream

but with 80% less fat!

--FREE SAMPLES--

I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!

Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily

Noon-11 p.m. Sundays

Nautilus Towers-Aggieville

HBO World STAGE

BILLY JOEL
FROM LENINGRAD,
USSRThe Piano Man takes Russia by storm—and HBO World Stage takes you there!

DAY TIME

Manhattan Cable TV

610 Humboldt

776-9239

ROCKY FORD
TAVERN

Join us this weekend at the "Finest Little Tavern By A Dam Site" NOW OPEN SUNDAYS 12 to 12

Rt. 5 537-3133

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES

MOVIE INFORMATION 538-1251

IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 762-4084

CAMPUS

HEART OF AGGIEVILLE

Prince of Darkness R Today at 7 & 9 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 3 & 5

WESTLOOP CINEMA 6

Westloop Center

The Princess Bride PG Today at 4:30-7:30 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2

Solo Tues. Stakeout R Today 4:30-7:30 Sat. 4:30-7:30 only Mat. Sat. & Sun. at 2

Like Father Like Son PG-13 Today at 4:40-7:10-9:20 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:10

Surrender PG Today at 4:40-7:10-9:20 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:10

Amazon Women on the Moon R Today at 4:45-7:20-9:25 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:20

Dirty Dancing PG-13 Today at 4:45-7:20-9:25 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:20

CAMPUS
RENT-ALLHALLOWEEN VIDEO HORROR MOVIE
SPECIAL

RENT TWO VIDEO TAPES DURING OCTOBER AND GET A HORROR MOVIE RENTAL OF YOUR CHOICE NO MEMBERSHIP REQUIRED *This offer not valid with any other.

Daily, weekly, monthly rental on TVs, VCRs, stereos, typewriters & appliances

Mon.-Thurs. 10 a.m.-8 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 10 a.m.-9 p.m.
Sun. Noon-5 p.m.
PHONE: 539-8786
1122 Laramie Street
Manhattan, Kansas 66502

See what's cookin' for Sunday BrunchChoose your favorite kind of omelette
cooked right in front of you.

Enjoy our all-you-can-eat brunch from 10:30 a.m.-2 p.m.

only $6.95

University Club
Restaurant & Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Marlatt,
Off CampusOct. 26: Marlatt, Moore,
Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

HEALTH
FAIR '87

Wednesday, October 28, 1987

9 a.m.-2 p.m.

KSU Union Main Ballroom

Featuring:

—HEALTH SCREENING
—Life Style Profile (computerized)
—Physical Fitness Assessment
—Blood Pressure
—Vision and Glaucoma Testing
—Dental Assessment
—And more

—HEALTH EDUCATION
—Nutrition
—Alcohol and Other Drugs
—Cancer
—Aids
—Much More

BLOOD CHEMISTRY PROFILE
($7 Charge)

NOTE: DO NOT eat for 12 hours prior to test. Continue taking any medication as ordered.

FLU VACCINATION
($6 Charge)

FREE & OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Sponsored by the Lafene Health Center
KSU and Manhattan Communities

Specials

25% off ALL

Trees in Stock

Cash & Carry Only

You still have plenty of time to plant shade and ornamental trees. Take advantage of these excellent prices and good selection now!

Pumpkins!

All You Can Carry for $4.99!
Let your strongest friend pick up pumpkins for the whole gang!

$2.00 Off!

Small and Medium Bark Chunks

reg. $5.95/3 cu. ft. bag Sale $3.95

Hurry! Sale Prices Effective Only While Current Supplies Last!

Horticultural Services

• Garden Center •

Mon-Sat 8-6 Sun 10-6

776-5764

2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

HERO provides unified voice to fight for higher education

By Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

In the minds of some university students, Kansas needs a hero — a Higher Education Rescue Operation. More than 40 people attended an open forum Thursday titled "The Future of Higher Education — Quality and Accessibility."

The six-member panel spoke and answered questions about the Board of Regents' "Margin of Excellence" program and selective admissions proposals.

Members of the Associated Students of Kansas designed HERO to allow students to speak in a unified voice to the legislature.

"We need to present the picture to the legislature that higher education is in a crisis situation," said Chris Graves, executive director of

ASK.

At the request of ASK, more than 1,000 letters were sent to Gov. Mike Hayden in support of the Margin of Excellence proposal.

"It is important that students participate in the quest for funding (for the University)," said panel member Charles Reagan, assistant to the president.

Reagan spoke about the impact the Margin of Excellence proposal would have on increasing faculty salaries.

"The flight of our best faculty has already begun," he said, in support of the program. "You don't get the education from the buildings or the football team, you get it from the faculty."

The proposal would add $6 million to faculty salaries during the next three years.

Speaking for the faculty, James Koelliker, civil engineering professor, said the faculty is looking for three things.

"If you're going to have a quality program, you need reasonable support (for faculty) and programs and motivation from students," Koelliker said.

Another issue discussed was the selective admissions proposal. Currently, K-State has a minimal admissions requirement of a high school diploma.

ASK supports enhanced open admissions based on incentives and preparation "to increase the student's chance for success at college, not limit access to get there," said Troy Lubbers, junior in business and chairman of the ASK Board of Directors.

Aggie

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
wide as a door, will be erected at five locations in Aggieville to let people in and out of the area. After 7 p.m., persons 17 and younger wishing to enter the area must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian.

The gates will be monitored by at least one Riley County police officer and one professional security officer. The Aggieville Merchants have contracted Benchmark Security of Topeka to help enforce security measures.

"It's a strap on the Aggieville Merchants to pay for extra security," Jacoby said. However, he would be opposed to charging admission to the area. "Aggieville is for everybody," he said.

Other law enforcement agencies including the Pottawatomie County Sheriff's Department; police departments from Wamego, Junction City and Wichita; campus police from K-State and KU; and the Kansas Highway Patrol have been enlisted to assist the Riley County Police Department, said Al Johnson, RCPD director.

These agencies will take care of matters in other areas of Manhattan so the RCPD can concentrate its efforts on Aggieville, he said.

If the crowd in the core area of Aggieville is deemed too large by the RCPD, a "one in-one out" procedure will be used at each of the gates. The RCPD will also have the option to clear the entire area if determined necessary by the police and fire department as a measure of public safety, Johnson said.

At 3 p.m. — approximately half-time of the football game — no containers, including paper or plastic cups, metal cans or glass bottles will be allowed into the area.

A special city ordinance has been passed outlawing glass, metal or open containers in Aggieville on the day of a home football game. Signs stating the ordinance have been posted in Aggieville since April.

"Anybody disorderly or intoxicated won't be allowed in," Johnson said. "Anybody in possession of containers other than paper or plastic are in clear violation of the law and will be arrested."

Merchants will also close their back entrances at halftime. Any establishment not having a "panic bar," a device which sounds an alarm when the door is opened, on the back door will have an employee monitor the exit.

At 2 a.m. Nov. 8, the patrons in establishments that are still open will be asked to leave through the back entrances and the people on the streets will be asked to leave the area. Street cleaners will begin washing and sweeping the streets at that time.

Six private security officers will safeguard the rooftop areas.

"If anyone is found on a rooftop, they will be asked to get down or they will be arrested immediately," Jacoby said.

The Aggieville Merchants are concerned about the image of Aggieville and K-State that was portrayed by national media following the last two incidents, Jacoby said.

"It's still very fresh in (the merchants') minds, what happened last year," he said.

Spook Dance
Oct. 24
8-Midnight
All Campus Invited
at St. Isidores
Costumes-$1
Non-Costumes-$1.50
Sponsored by: St. Isidores
& Newman
Music by: Best Sound Around

Bernina House
Christmas
Open House
Sat., Oct. 24,
10 a.m.-4 p.m.
•antiques•gifts•fabrics
4th & Osage

Krystallos
"Beautiful Objects
from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

Manhattan Health Foods

10% OFF
ALL VITAMINS
AND SUPPLEMENTS
776-6201
Expiration Dec. 31 300 N. 3rd MANHATTAN
NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER, 1 COUPON PER CUSTOMER

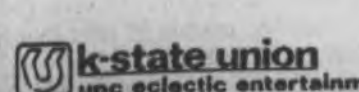

SUNDAY SUPPER
Oct. 25
5:30 p.m.
Program:
Profiles of the Soviet Union
Speaker: David Kromm
(50¢ donations or free if needed)
1021 Denison
The building with the two red front doors
Sponsored by
CUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES

FISHWATERS
THE FISHWATERS
TGIF
Free Hors D'oeuvres 5 p.m.
KSU Showcase of Talent
Nov. 6th
McCain Auditorium
Featuring Special Guest
Dr. Gonzo
Tickets Available at FISHWATERS
Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.
Next Week
O'Brien & Valoez
Bus. Off.
539-9727 539-4321
531 N. Manhattan

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
ESTABLISHED 1982
—THIS WEEKEND—
Rock 'n' Roll
from K.C. exclusively here at
CHARLIE'S
"THE ANSWER"
—NEXT SATURDAY—
HALLOWEEN BASH—
1800 Clarlin 539-9619

SUNDAY
Burger Blitz Mania
All You Can Eat!
Baby Burgers, Fries & Salad Bar

$2.99
5:30-8:30 p.m.
University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Coors LIGHT
COMEDY COMMANDOS

David Naster
Date:
Thursday, October 29, 1987
Time: 8 p.m.
Where: McCain Auditorium
Admission: $2
Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Box Office or at the Activities Center, third floor of the K-State Union.

TAYLOR MASON
Taylor Mason is comedy, music and ventriloquism.

An Invitation to the 16th Annual Benefit Dinner
Friday
November 6, 1987
Houston Street Ballroom
5th and Houston
Manhattan

featuring
Dr. Jon Wefald
President
Kansas State University

Manhattan is truly blessed to have such a leader in our community. And Manhattan Christian College is equally blessed to count among her friends Dr. Jon Wefald. Recently he made the following statement about the relationship shared by MCC and Kansas State:
"Manhattan Christian College and Kansas State University share a unique relationship that benefits students at both institutions. Kansas State University students can have the advantage of taking courses at a quality Christian institution if they want. Manhattan Christian College students have full access to a million-volume library, recreational services and an outstanding faculty with a quality reputation in a wide range of academic pursuits.
"Since coming to Kansas State University, I have been impressed with the devotion to excellence exemplified at Manhattan Christian College. The opportunities available across the street from our University can be compared with the best institutions in the country.
"I would not hesitate to recommend Manhattan Christian College to any young person contemplating a Christian education."
Reservations can be made through Linda Taylor at Manhattan Christian College at 539-3571 before October 26.

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 23, 1987 ■ Page 4

Columnist misses meaningful letters

To Whom This May Concern,

All of the letters I received this week were pitiful. They were full of lewd comments comparing Nancy Reagan's surgery to stockholders' losses on Wall Street. And other comments compared the Oklahoma-K-State football game to the United States-Iranian conflict. I chose not to print any of them. Either my tastes have changed, or there are a lot of ignorant individuals on this campus. Regardless of which is true, I still have to crank out a column. And this one is going to have to be a cappella.

This is the time of year when many columnists and English composition students are tempted to write an "I don't have anything to write about" story. All of their original ideas have been used up. Nothing exciting has happened to them since school started. Thus, they write about getting up too late, sleeping in classes and cramming before tests. In a way, these columns are a lot like Andy Rooney's material. Everything he writes for newspapers or discusses on "Sixty Minutes" is about cleaning out his closet or his pockets or his glove compartment. Not much variety exists in household cleaning. Not much variety exists in an "I don't have anything to write about" story. Therefore, I will resist this temptation.

I think people should pay more attention to chairs. If a chair was sat on by an average of seven people a day, it would have to put up with 35 butts a week. Counting 16 weeks in a typical semester makes 560 rear ends each fall and spring. Adding summer school and intersessions would give a grand total very close to 1,500 butts a year. A five-year-old chair would have had the pleasure of meeting 7,500 rear ends during its career. This, of course, is just speculation because at press time no classroom chairs were available for comment.

Perhaps, however, chairs have a very difficult time of distinguishing one tush from the next. They could all think that the same person sits on them for 50 minutes every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and 75 minutes every Tuesday and Thursday. Then, the owner of that tush leaves the room for five or 10 minutes and obviously sits on a block of ice. When he or she returns, the butt is always cold — how else would a chair explain it?

Whether chairs prefer narrow, compact

Commentary

JEFF SCHRAG
Collegian
Columnist

behinds to wide, soft ones, I don't know. Nor am I able to comment on the relative pluses and minuses of the "spill-over effect" (the case when the rear is larger than the sitting gear). I don't even know if chairs have sexist language they use to discriminate between males and females. We could all look the same from their perspective.

If all of the chairs at K-State were to go on strike for a larger share of tuition revenues, President Jon Wefald would have a crisis on his hands. I don't think he would cancel classes. I think he would begin a large ad campaign built around the slogan: "Kansas State University, Standing Room Only!" Then he would be tough on the chairs, telling them he could buy qualified chairs from any wholesaler in America. First, a few would sneak back to their classrooms — most likely ones that reside in low "butt density" buildings like Fairchild Hall and Anderson Hall. Next would come the ones who thought the strike was a stupid idea in the first place — most likely no nonsense chairs from Cardwell and Durland halls. Pretty soon the leadership of the strike — high-backed swivel chairs — would concede that the cause is lost. I am sure that chairs have some colloquial expression for working which is similar to "put your nose to the grindstone," but I don't know what it is. Would a chair that crossed the picket lines in order to rejoin the classroom squad be called a "scab" or a "stump"?

I hope all the candidates running for student body president take into consideration the plight of chairs on the K-State campus. But even if they do, they won't get an automatic approval rating from this Collegian staff member. I am withholding my support until the investigative team that is looking into the pasts of each of the candidates publishes its final report.

Inside sources from the Collegian newsroom have confided in me that documented proof of junior high detentions has been uncovered. Numerous reports from sources close to each of the candidates' elementary school principals have revealed stories of gross misconduct during recess. This includes, but is not limited to: participation in food fights, the pronunciation of naughty words and the dissection of captured vermin. Sketchy reports about nap-time behavior are also beginning to surface. In one account a candidate, who shall remain nameless, reportedly left his towel in order to visit the towel of a member of the opposite sex.

Even if the results of this investigation are too sorted and sordid for the Collegian to publish, I plan to put my job on the line and print the truth one week from today. In the business of journalism, this is called a "teaser." I can use that style because journalism is my business. I can get away with writing that type of story because the truth is my life.

signed,
Lost Without Letters

Toy-pistol shootings are highly preventable

Another man has died because of a child's toy that looked too real to be ignored.

A 29-year-old man was fatally shot in Topeka Wednesday after he pointed a realistic-looking toy gun at a Topeka police officer. The officer fired, and Francisco A. Almaraz lay dead.

Although no weapon per se was found at the scene, a black plastic replica of a .22-caliber pistol commonly called a Saturday Night Special was discovered.

So, on what or whom do we place the blame? The officer who mistakenly — albeit justifiably — fired on the defenseless man? The man who was foolish enough to point the pseudo-weapon? Or the company that manufactured it?

There is not any one place where blame may be placed. A number of pieces created the deadly puzzle.

However, some things demand attention. The first is that, despite the fact that the warnings have been issued time and time again, parents must teach children that guns are not toys. And adults must not condone their presence in the household.

Second, local legislators must take swift action to give severe penalties to those who possess and point such realistic-looking weapons at anyone. It would be virtually impossible to stop the production of the realistic-looking guns, especially since it would be so difficult to determine what is and isn't realistic looking.

This is one problem where common sense is the only solution.

Reagan names another worthless commission

President Ronald Reagan is up to his old tricks again. He has appointed yet another special commission to deal with a problem he knows little about, and obviously is unwilling to contend with.

In hopes of placating the worries of the nation, Reagan announced in his Thursday night press conference that he has appointed former Sen. Nicholas Brady, R-N.J., to head a commission which will examine stock market procedures.

The commission would be expected to study the contribution of computerized program trading to the New York Stock Market's 508-point drop Monday. Computerized program trading allows institutional investors to make split-second trades of millions of shares of stock through computer programs which automatically respond stock-index futures.

Could it be Reagan has forgotten the Securities and Exchange Commission — a regulatory group established after the Stock Market Crash of 1929 which most recently was cracking down on persons trading on illegal insider information?

It is this group's responsibility to monitor the securities system. If something is wrong with the stock exchanges, should not this group look into the problems since they have a 60-year history of keeping tabs on the market? The commission obviously is more knowledgeable about the background of this Monday's slide.

President Reagan should allow the professionals in this field to do their work instead of appointing another unnecessary commission.

STOCK MARKET EXPLANATIONS

THRU THE '80's

30-POINT DROP

BIG DROP, BUT HARDLY A RECORD.

40-POINT DROP

A RECORD IN POINT TERMS, BUT NOT IN PERCENTAGE TERMS.

50-POINT DROP

HEALTHY CORRECTION.

70-POINT DROP

GOOD BUYING OPPORTUNITY.

90-POINT DROP

JUST A LITTLE COMPUTER-DRIVEN PROGRAM SELLING.

RAPID SERIES OF 90-POINT DROPS

NOTHING FUNDAMENTAL WRONG WITH THIS MARKET.

100-POINT DROP

NOBODY'S JUMPING OUT OF WINDOWS. MODERN OFFICE TOWER WINDOWS DON'T OPEN.

200-POINT DROP

STRANGE LITTLE NOISE LIKE THAT OF A FORK SCRAPING ON A DINNER PLATE.
...OR FINGERNAILS ON AN OFFICE TOWER WINDOW...

Letters

ICAT unfair

Editor,

It's that time again. Ahearn will be rocking for the last time, but let's look and see who gets to do the rocking. ICAT, the pro-athletics group, gets first dibs on the seats for basketball. Just think, if you had a spare Andrew Jackson ($20 bill) around last week you could have gotten prime-time seating, and you would have only had to camp out for five days. What a way to cut in line — especially if you consider that other groups (people who live together, not organizations) will be camping out two and a half weeks to be behind the ICAT people.

Once again, money talks.

I would like to point out I am not against the ICAT group — just the policy that allows them first choice for basketball tickets. I just don't think it is fair to the other 17,000 students on campus that we have to sit behind some people who can afford an extra $20 apiece. The other people in line are also supporting the Wildcats in their own way. They are buying season tickets too.

Why can't ICAT join the rest of the University and camp with us? I know it would hurt my wallet more if I had to pay $55 for a basketball ticket since I would have to join ICAT. I'm sure this will happen if this policy stays the same. And if you don't believe me, take a look at how quickly ICAT membership grew after it was known ICAT gets preferred seating. I believe whoever decided to let ICAT have preferred basketball seating — be it the athletic department or the basketball ticket sales committee — has started a very bad thing. Because of this policy, I think ICAT is becoming not an organization for supporting K-State athletics, but an organization used for great basketball seats.

Come on, ICAT, it's nice to get a great seat, but try and remember what you're here

for.

Bill Nelson
sophomore in electrical engineering

Cynical trap

Editor,

Re: Erwin Seba's article titled "Empty generation defies expectation" in Oct. 15 edition of the Collegian.

I am not writing to either support or take exception to the views expressed by Seba in the above-mentioned article. Of course he has every right to express his opinions in the public format of the newspaper. The reason that I am writing is to comment on the strong undercurrent of sarcasm and cynicism which permeated the expression of these views.

As one person to another, Seba, realize that cynicism is a trap, a pit. It feeds on itself and escalates until one day you wake up and realize that you are nothing more than a cynical old man, having spent the majority of your life being disgusted with your fellow humans and the world around you.

It is nearly always better to inspire rather than disparage.

J. David McDonald graduate student in biology

Consider Jesus

Editor,

Erwin Seba's commentary on the Thursday-night meeting of the Heart of America Crusade presented yet another "me-too" voice in today's fashionable chorus of religious skepticism. Seba characterized Luis Palau's message of hope as nothing more than a mental balm for the middle-class minds gullible enough to buy the "Jesus-as-an-upper-for-the-soul line." And he dismissed Palau's audience as disappointed materialists greedily seeking riches in the afterlife.

But Seba missed the point. Rather than preaching escape from reality, Palau presented the Christian response to life's fundamental philosophical questions: Who am I? Why do I exist? How can I find fulfillment? These questions, especially in a university setting, deserve serious consideration.

Palau's message offered hope to the spiritually poor, regardless of their economic situation. And hundreds — students, children, University faculty, Manhattan residents, military personnel — responded to his call to faith in Jesus Christ, not to gain material riches, but rather to experience spiritual prosperity in this life.

I encourage Seba and other thinking persons to consider the claims of Jesus Christ. Either He was a lunatic or He was telling the truth, for He claimed to be God. But Christianity has endured 2000 years of intellectual scrutiny, and millions of believers remain.

Anne Guislain
graduate student in English

Listen closely

Editor,

Is Erwin Seba a student here? I find that hard to believe. If he were to take a class from me and listen to me as closely as he seems to have listened to Luis Palau, he would fail the course. If he were to turn in a paper for one of my classes as meaningless as his commentary in the Oct. 15 Collegian, I'd make him rewrite it.

Perhaps Seba did not intend to report Palau's talk accurately. Was it intended to be funny? It has the tact of a Polish joke.

Palau came, at the invitation of a large number of local residents, to speak about serious issues and offer realistic answers. Those of us who took the trouble to hear him out believe that he succeeded.

Tom Pittman
assistant professor in computer science

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6535. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Letters to the editor pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116 or mailed to the Collegian.

EntertainmentFriday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 23, 1987 ■ Page 5

Singing and sailing in 'South Pacific'

Luther Billis, played by Don Pfister, attempts to purchase a boar's tooth worn by Bloody Mary, played by Amy Hemphill. The musical takes place on two islands in the South Pacific during World War II. The work is by Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Staff/Brad Camp

An exotic island, romance and glory, combined with racial prejudice and the reality of war, create the stage for K-State's production of "South Pacific."

The musical being presented by K-State Players will run at 8 p.m. tonight and Saturday in McCain Auditorium.

A work by Rodgers and Hammerstein, "South Pacific" originally opened in 1949. The plot of this Pulitzer Prize winning musical was taken from the combination of two stories found in James A. Michener's "Tales of the South Pacific."

"The cast has had to approach the musical with total commitment and sincerity."

—Charlotte MacFarland

The musical's plot revolves around two love stories: that of Emile De Becque and Nellie Forbush and that of Lt. Joseph Cable and List. Both relationships are plagued with prejudice and contain underlying statements about moral commitment and racism.

"South Pacific is a musical dealing with the beauty of dreams and idealism as well as the stupidity of prejudice," said Charlotte MacFarland, instructor in theater and director of the musical.

Thirty-one K-State students are in the cast and 11 community children are in the children's chorus. The cast has been rehearsing Monday through Friday since the last week of August. Lately, however, rehearsals have run until midnight in preparation for opening night, MacFarland said.

"The cast has had to approach the musical with total commitment and sincerity," MacFarland said. "They can't pull back from their characters."

MacFarland said the musical can appear to a modern audience as melodramatic and over-sentimental with love being declared quickly and strong emotions being dramatically portrayed by characters.

"The only way to deal with this problem is to realize that the characters are in the middle of World War II. At the same time, they are isolated in a tropical paradise," MacFarland said.

"The presence of death enhances all experiences and compresses time."

Lead characters in the musical include: Dwight Tolar, sophomore in theater, as Emile De Becque; J.C. Harman, senior in theater, as Nellie Forbush; Paul Honigs, senior in journalism and mass communications, as Lt. Joseph Cable; Amy Hemphill, senior in music, as Bloody Mary; and Don Pfister, senior in radio and television, as Luther Billis.

"It's a really close cast," Tolar said. "There's a definite company feeling and there are no arguments between the director and the cast."

Tolar, who also had the lead in the K-State Players musical "Oklahoma," which played last fall, said he still gets nervous about opening night.

"The first night on McCain's stage is a little scary for some people," Tolar said. "Wednesday night we started with the set — it reminds you opening is getting closer and closer."

Tickets for "South Pacific" can be purchased at the Nichols Hall box office today, from noon until 5 p.m., or by calling the box office at 532-6398. For main floor seating, the tickets will be $7 for general admission and $6 for students and senior citizens. For balcony seating, the tickets will be $5 for general admission and $4 for students and senior citizens.

Collegian/Neal Hinkle

Emile De Becque, played by Dwight Tolar, sings "Some Enchanted Evening" to Nellie Forbush, played by J.C. Harman.

Collegian/Neal Hinkle

A group of sailors sing "Bloody Mary" during a dress rehearsal earlier this week at McCain Auditorium. There are 31 K-State students in the cast and 11 community children in the chorus. The musical will be played tonight and Saturday.

Story by Nancy Hill

Spotlight

EVENTS

"South Pacific," 8 p.m., Oct. 23-24, McCain Auditorium.

Coors Light Comedy Commandos, 8 p.m., Oct. 29, McCain

FILMS

K-State Union

"La Bamba," (PG-13) at 7 and 9:30, Friday and Saturday, Union Forum Hall.

"Repo Man," (R), midnight, Friday and Saturday.

"American Graffiti," (PG), at 2, Saturday; at 2 and 7, Sunday.

"Moonlighting," (PG), at 7:30, Wednesday, Union Forum Hall, and 3:30, Thursday, Union Little Theatre and 7:30, Union Forum Hall.

Commonwealth Theaters

Campus

"Prince of Darkness," (R), daily at 7 and 9; Saturday and Sunday at 3 and 5.

Westloop Cinema 6

"Baby Boom," (PG), sneak preview at 7 Saturday.

"The Princess Bride," (PG), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2.

"Stakeout," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday at 4:30 and 9:30;

Saturday and Sunday at 2.

"Like Father Like Son," (PG-13), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.

"Surrender," (PG), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.

"Amazon Women on the Moon," (R), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.

"Dirty Dancing," (PG-13), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.

Seth Childs Cinemas

"Someone to Watch Over Me," daily at 7:15 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20 and 4:45.

"The Principal," (R), Friday 7:10, 9:35; Saturday 2:10, 4:40 and 9:35; Sunday 2:10, 4:40, 7:10 and 9:35.

"Suspect," (R), daily at 7 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 1:55 and 4:25.

"Fatal Attraction," (R), daily at 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2 and 4:30.

"Hell Raiser," (R), daily at 7:25 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday at 2:25 and 4:45.

"Night Flyers," (R), daily at 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 and 4:50.

Polling places top agenda

Amendment names Derby as site

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

Sponsors of a bill to increase the number of polling places for Student Governing Association elections accepted an amendment at Thursday's Student Senate meeting to move one of the proposed additional voting areas from Farrell Library to the Derby Food Center.

The change from a "neutral" location to a residence hall cafeteria caused Arts and Sciences Senator Matt Queen to question the amendment which would place a polling area in the center of a living group.

Kent Bradley, student body president and one of the sponsors of the bill, said the move would favor people in other living groups, not just those in residence halls.

"I think you're going to hit an awful lot of people who aren't just in that living group," Bradley said.

In introducing the bill, Special Projects Director Troy Millsap said Farrell and Ackert Hall were selected as locations for the new polling places because they were "neutral" locations and would not favor members of one college or living group over another.

The bill will be voted on next week. When the Senate meeting ended, Bradley said senators with strong feelings about the change from Farrell to Derby should contact him during the week.

Senate tabled consideration of two bills which would define the succession of Senate officers in the event the student body president could not complete the elected term.

The first bill, which was scheduled for a vote Thursday, would have made the president's chief of staff the successor to the student body president. The chief of staff is appointed by the president and approved by Senate. Currently, the Student Senate chair succeeds the president.

The second bill would create the position of student body vice president. The position would be elected by the student body on the ticket with the president and would perform the duties currently performed by the chief of staff.

Jeff Wing, arts and sciences senator, suggested to Senate the second bill be substituted for the first. He sponsored the second bill and said Senate did not provide the necessary scrutiny of presidential appointees.

"I've seen so many appointments go through without any questions being asked; I have to question Senate's ability to scrutinize appointments," Wing said.

Arts and Sciences Senator Queen argued the creation of a vice president's position might politicize elections.

"I feel it would be a deterrent to try to change the system of good government we have here at K-State," Queen said.

In other business, senators approved final allocations for the 1987-88 fiscal year. Senate increased FONE Crisis Center's allocation from $10,781 to $11,838. The increase is to cover higher rent and telephone bills.

Senate also increased the final

SGA allocation from $33,067 to $33,117. The increase was given to cover the salary of the coordinator of finances.

Senate paid money into the Reserve for Contingencies fund for the first time in four years said Sally Routson, coordinator for student activities.

The final allocation for the contingencies fund was $10,852. The tentative allocation was $1,933. Routson attributed the increase to the rise in enrollment.

In new business, senators heard a request from the Black Student Union for $1,495 to pay for keynote speakers at the Big Eight Conference on Black Student Government. The K-State BSU will host the event in February.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

LEE'S WESTERN WEAR

is now open
on Sunday from 1-5 p.m.
Everyday low price Levi 501, 517, 505

Levi's

Fied Tag

$19⁸⁸

up to 36" length

776-6715

Mon. Sat. 9-5:30

2 miles east of Kmart. Hwy. 24

Thurs. 9-8:30

Manhattan, KS 66502

Sunday 1-5

Home Cinema

"Party Pack Special"

2 movies—2 liters of pop and 2 bags of popcorn

$5.95 or $9.95 w/VCR

Friday-Sunday

Hours: Mon.-Thurs. 10-9, Fri.-Sat. 10-10, Sun. Noon-7
South Addition—Village Plaza Shopping Center

RODEO

Kansas State University

vs

Fort Scott Community College and Alumni Members

Saturday, Oct. 24 & Sunday, Oct. 25

Cico Park 1 p.m.

Stock Contractor: Rumford

FREE ADMISSION

DANCE

Featuring: Rope Burn Blue River Pub

Saturday, Oct. 24, 8 p.m.

Admission: $3.50

Petland... come see the difference.

FULL LINE OF SUPPLIES, GROOMING AIDS, COLLARS,
LEADS, CARRIERS, NUTRITIONAL SUPPLEMENTS,
FLEA AND TICK CONTROL PRODUCTS AND TOYS.

FEATURING AKC PUPPIES AND CFA KITTENS.

Grand Opening
In-Store
Specials

MANHATTAN
TOWN CENTER

Mon.-Sat. 10-9
Sunday 12-6

Don't let winter take your car by surprise

On Oct. 28, the Collegian will run a car care special. This section will include tips on how to winterize your car and where you can buy the things you need.

Now the Best Pizza in Town Has the Best Price!

Two Pizzas for Only $5.99!

Now you can have two delicious 10" pizzas for the price of one. They're custom-made with your choice of toppings on each—they don't have to be the same! And we use only the freshest ingredients and 100% real cheese.

You're not seeing double. It's just our latest way to say that Domino's Pizza Delivers. And we deliver at no additional charge in 30 minutes or less. That's the Domino's Pizza guarantee.

No coupon necessary.

Call Us!
Manhattan
539-0561

517 N. 12th Street

Hours:
4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs.
4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.

Domino's
Pizza
Delivers®
Doubles.

Prices do not include tax.
Our drivers carry less than $20.00.
Limited delivery area.

COKE® AVAILABLE
in 16 oz. bottle 75¢ each.

	PEPPERONI MUSHROOMS GROUND BEEF	SAUSAGE BLACK OLIVES ONIONS	HAM GREEN PEPPER PINEAPPLE	JALAPENOS EXTRA THICK CRUST EXTRACHEESE
Menu
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE*	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

*DELUXE—5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.

VEGI—5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.

EXTRAVAGANZZA—A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

GLEN ALLEN GREEN CONCERT

Sponsored by KSU Campus Ministries & Christian Books & Gifts

Sunday, Oct. 25
7:30 to 9 p.m.

at Westview Community Church

3001 Ft. Riley Blvd., Manhattan, Kansas

Tickets available from any of the Campus Ministries and Christian Books & Gifts
1437 Anderson

Tickets are $1 each, or 6 for $5

Participating Campus Ministries include:

Baptist Student Union - Campus Life - Campus Crusade
Ichus - Intervarsity - Navigators

Don't Miss the FREE MUSIC PARTY

Over $500 Free Tapes & CDs Will Be Given Away
Glen Allen Green will Sing

We will also be playing the latest in Christian Music
Kevin Hutchinson KSDB & Gary Walker, Word Music will be M.C.'s

Monday, Oct. 26

7:30-9:30 pm

Refreshments

Discounts on all Word Inc., Tapes & CDs

At Christian Books & Gifts

1437 Anderson

537-0310

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, October 23, 1987 ■ Page 7

'Cats enter second phase of '1-2' punch

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

One of the keys to K-State's miserable start this season has been the punting game — or lack of one. The Wildcats rank last in the nation in net punting with a 33.3-yard average.

Coach Stan Parrish said it's time to make a change.

Punting duties have been awarded to Shane Pouch. He punted eight times against Oklahoma for a 34.7-yard average. Ken Olson, before quitting the team, averaged 29.9 yards. Olson's replacement, David Kruger, averages 34.8 yards.

Pouch hit the longest punt of the season at 57 yards last week and now has the task of keeping this week's opponent, Nebraska, from obtaining good field position.

"I thought (Shane) did an adequate job last week," Parrish said. "We'll let him start."

K-State should draw some national attention this weekend, because this is the first time in 16 seasons a team has faced the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in consecutive games. Iowa State, in 1971, lost to second-ranked Oklahoma 43-12 on Oct. 30 and to top-rated Nebraska 37-0 on Nov. 6.

K-State, 0-6 overall and 0-2 in the Big Eight Conference, after losing last week to top-ranked Oklahoma, plays No. 2 Nebraska this week at Lincoln. Kickoff is 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Memorial Stadium.

The 'Cats have lost 11 straight games — the last victory was against Kansas last season — and are in the midst of a murderous three-game stretch. After Nebraska, the Wildcats must play Oklahoma State, which dropped out of the national polls following a 35-0 defeat last week to Nebraska.

Parrish, though, said he doesn't have a preference as to which of the top two teams he would rather face. "I don't know. They're both good," Parrish said. "Nebraska is more power-oriented while OU is more speed-oriented, but they're both in their own ways the best in the country."

Nebraska, 6-0 and 2-0, last year shut out the 'Cats 38-0. The first half was played in a snowstorm and the second-half start was delayed while the field was cleared.

"I don't think it's going to snow, so I need to check on how long the halftime's going to be so there won't be a controversy," Parrish joked.

But the least of Parrish's concerns is Saturday's weather forecast.

"(The weather) doesn't make any difference. We have to worry about us and how we play," he said.

Parrish said the key to stopping the 'Huskers offensively is shutting down quarterback Steve Taylor and I-back Keith "end zone" Jones.

Nebraska, which is more pass-oriented than Oklahoma, is guided by Taylor, who set a Big Eight record with five touchdown passes against UCLA. The 6-foot, 195-pound junior from Fresno, Calif., has completed 34-of-73 attempts for 625 yards and leads the team in total offense with 975 yards. Taylor has also been the conference's player-of-the-week twice.

Jones, a 5-10, 180-pound senior from Omaha, has rushed for 532 yards this season in only five games. He, along with Taylor, sat out the Kansas contest when Nebraska rolled to a 54-2 win.

As a team, the Cornhuskers average 42 points per game — second-best in the nation — and rank third in total offense with a 480.3-yard average. K-State is 100th in scoring defense among the 104 Division I-A schools and 95th in total defense.

Defensively, the 'Huskers are led by left end Broderick Thomas. The 6-3, 235-pound junior was All-Big Eight last year and paces the squad in tackles with 41 and 5½ quarterback sacks.

Some of Nebraska's previous victories include wins against two teams in the Top 20, UCLA and Arizona State. Still, Coach Tom Osborne isn't taking Saturday's game for granted. "Obviously they haven't set the world on fire offensively, and yet

Collegian/Neal Hinkle

Shane Pouch will be the new punter for the K-State Wildcat football team. Pouch punted eight times against Oklahoma last week for a 34.7-yard average and now has the task of keeping this week's opponent, Nebraska, from obtaining good field position.

they moved the ball at times against Oklahoma, which is a pretty good measuring stick since Oklahoma is a pretty good defensive team," Osborne said.

"Defensively, they play with a lot of recklessness. They're an enthusiastic bunch. I think about 60 to 70 percent of your defense is your emotional pitch and intensity level," he added.

Osborne mentioned the quarterback-receiving combination of Gary Swim and John Williams — who struck it big with an 81-yard scoring play against OU — but is most impressed with tailback Tony Jordan, the 6-3, 220-pound senior from Rochester, N.Y.

"The guy that kind of catches your eye is Tony Jordan. He's probably the biggest running back we'll face in the Big Eight this year and one of the best," Osborne said. "Maybe he doesn't have the opportunities that (Oklahoma State's) Thurman Thomas has, but his abilities are equal."

NOTES: Nebraska leads the overall series 59-10-2...it will be another sellout in Lincoln. The 'Huskers have set a NCAA record with 154 consecutive sellouts at Memorial Stadium...the last time the 'Cats got off to an 0-6 start was in 1985, but they snapped the string in the 7th game.

Volleyball team defeats Missouri amid road stint

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's volleyball team made history Thursday night, as it defeated the University of Missouri on the Tigers' home floor for the first time ever.

The 'Cats won the match in four games, tallying scores of 15-12, 15-12, 10-15, 15-12.

Senior Kelley Carlson was a standout in the match, recording 18 digs and six blocks. Head Coach Scott Nelson praised Carlson on her play.

"This was (Carlson's) best match of the year," Nelson said. "She played very well."

The win improved K-State's record to 14-6 overall and 5-3 in the Big Eight Conference. MU dropped to 6-15 and 0-5 in the conference.

"The match was just real close. Every game was up for grabs," Nelson said.

K-State last defeated arch-rival the University of Kansas in four games Tuesday night and Nelson found some similarities between the Kansas and Missouri tilts.

"Like the Kansas match, we kind of lost our focus in the third game, but then we got some important side-outs and points in the fourth game to come away with the win," Nelson said.

Senior team captain Kristi Jacquart extended her service ace streak to 15 games by dealing one ace, which broke a K-State career record at 146 total. Jacquart has 62 aces on the season, which is also a Wildcat record.

Junior Shawnee Call had 14 kills and 14 digs, while sophomore Lynda Harshbarger recorded 14 kills.

Sophomore Kristin Martin served four aces to lead the 'Cats.

Rugby team travels to Omaha

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

K-State's rugby teams have a full day of games slated for this Saturday as they travel to Omaha for two club-side matches and a collegiate-side match.

The K-State A-side will take on the Omaha Goats Rugby Club, the B-side will play against Creighton University's A-side and the 'Cats C-side will take on the Goats' B-team.

Going into the weekend contests, the K-Staters only have one injured player. Team captain Mike Powers suffered a shoulder injury two weeks ago and will not be active for the K-State squad.

"We should be pretty well prepared for the Goats this weekend," club president Dave Todd said. "We will have all of our Army guys back this weekend and that should be a big help."

"We played the Goats last week (in the Heart of America Tournament) and lost in a close contest, 12-8, but last spring we beat them 14-11. It seems like they always give us a close match."

"They will probably be a stronger team at home than they were in Kansas City last week," Todd added. "Hopefully, we will also be quite a bit stronger with all of our guys back. We will have to play tough and it will be the team that makes the least amount of mistakes that will probably win."

According to Todd, the B-side contest will pit some of K-State's more experienced players against a very young and inexperienced Creighton squad.

"Creighton fields mostly freshmen and sophomores with not very much experience," Todd said. "We should have a pretty good advantage in that game, but it should still be a pretty even-up match for our B-team."

K-State's C-side will take on the players from the Omaha Goats club side squad who don't play in the first contest.

Cards gain 3-2 lead on home field

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Curt Ford's two-run single and a lucky bounce broke open a scoreless game in the sixth inning and the St. Louis Cardinals bounced back with a three-game sweep, beating the Minnesota Twins 4-2 Thursday night for a 3-2 lead in the World Series.

Danny Cox shut out Minnesota on three hits for seven innings and St. Louis' speed pulled the Twins apart at the seams. The Cardinals stole five bases, tying a record last accomplished in 1907, and three of those runners scored.

That put St. Louis one victory away from its 10th championship and sent the World Series back to the Metrodome, where Minnesota romped in the first two games. The Twins' 60-25 home record is the best in baseball and the Cardinals' road record was tops in the majors.

There has never been a Series in which the home team won every game. Game 6 was scheduled for Saturday with St. Louis' John Tudor, who won the third game, opposing Les Straker.

Cox, whose Game 7 shutout in the NL playoffs put the Cardinals into the World Series, outdueled Bert Blyleven, who took his first loss in six postseason decisions. It was a reversal of four days ago, when Blyleven won as the Twins shelled Cox.

This time, on a 64-degree evening — 22 degrees warmer than a night earlier — Cox was hot. Cox struck out six and walked three and was removed in the eighth after allowing singles to Dan Gladden and Greg Gagne, both of whom scored.

Blyleven managed to stay out of trouble until the sixth when St. Louis put together typical Cardinals' baseball and manufactured three runs.

World Series Game Five Cards 4, Twins 2

Vince Coleman led off with an apparent routine grounder to first baseman Kent Hrbek. But the ball's second hop scooted off a seam and handcuffed Hrbek, whose shovel toss to Blyleven was a shade late. Ozzie Smith followed Coleman's 45th infield hit of the season with his fourth bunt single of the year as Blyleven fumbled the ball on the third-base side.

